Ms Karen Buck (Regent's Park and Kensington, North): I agree with the hon. Members for Bexhill and Battle (Mr. Barker) and for Billericay (Mr. Baron) that infrastructure is essential. However, those of us who represent areas with very high demand face many of the same problems. In the past week I have met residents of the Dalgarno estate in north Kensington and the Warwick and Brindley estate in north Westminster, which consists of six 20-storey tower blocks and a low-rise estate. They are currently arguing with the council and registered social landlords about the building of additional infill accommodation. Those residents point to a level of density and a pressure on housing, particularly for those on low incomes and with high levels of social need.

I am not a popular person with those residents because I am prepared to say to them that we must tackle the issue of additional housing provision. I understand all their reasons for not wanting to do that, but housing demand and the problems that it causes are so acute and intense that we cannot hold out against such provision. We must concentrate our arguments on the problem of infrastructure. We need a regional solution for London, and that must be set in a wider context. In the old days of the Greater London council, its seaside housing initiative was one of the most successful housing policies ever run by a public organisation. It made a positive contribution to the problem of housing need, and I would like such an initiative to be revived.

The hon. Member for Bexhill and Battle picked up on the reference to regional policy in my intervention. There is no flood of housing demand from the north of England that must be turned around. We are not dealing with that kind of population growth in London. My constituency contains two local authority areas—Kensington and Westminster—with the highest population growth in the country, but there is no huge influx of people from other regions with low housing demand. The problem in London arises from several factors, including the decline in social lettings during recent years, much of which is attributable to the impact of high house prices leading to people not moving out of social accommodation. Household formation and international migration, including asylum seekers—although that is a smaller and often overrated aspect of the problem—have also caused some rise in demand. A large part of the problem is the collapse of the private rented sector for people on low incomes. That must be dealt with.

[Ms Karen Buck]

My major point, which I have made a thousand and one times to the Minister and others, is about London, its problems and the need for assistance in dealing with them. London now has 52,000 households in temporary accommodation—the highest number on record. London's boroughs are accommodating a homeless population the size of Reading. There are nearly 3,500 homeless people in my constituency alone, including 450 in bed-and-breakfast accommodation. London has two thirds of the homeless households and three quarters of the total number of families in bed and breakfast in the country. Yet the funding formula is skewed against the capital, despite the extra investment allocated to us through the comprehensive spending review, which I recognise and warmly welcome.

The distribution formula is about to cause us serious problems. Those problems are relative. I accept that there is still growth, but that growth is not adequate to deal with the trend of housing need. Factors relating to low demand are included in the general needs index formula, but issues of affordability and household population growth, as mentioned by my hon. Friend the Member for Bethnal Green and Bow (Ms King), are not. The relative loss to London—taking into account what we should receive—is £128 million, which is equivalent to around 1,300 additional housing units. It is unacceptable and inexplicable that areas with high housing demand, which are in housing crisis, should be penalised by the funding formula. That is counter-intuitive, contrary to the objectives of the housing Green Paper and will make the work of the bed-and-breakfast unit much harder.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: I support what the hon. Lady says. Is she aware that in the past four years the standard spending assessment formula has disadvantaged London by £400 million and rural areas by £700 million? Whatever the problem in the hon. Lady's area, the problem in rural areas is even worse.

Ms Buck: The hon. Gentleman can make his own case, which I am sure he is more than capable of doing. My job is to make my case.

There is an urgent need for the housing needs formula—the general needs index—to be revised and for the relative loss to London to be redressed. I welcome the Minister's comments on overcrowding and the revision of the statutory overcrowding formula. We have understandably concentrated on the high visibility housing issues of rough sleeping and bed and breakfast. I am delighted with the establishment of the bed-and-breakfast unit, and wish it well, but we must not forget the hidden homelessness that afflicts my area and the constituencies of a number of hon. Members.

I shall refer to some of my constituents to highlight the problem. The Koudrai family, which consists of the parents and four children aged seven, six, three and one, share two bedrooms. Under the space standards element of the statutory overcrowding legislation, they are not overcrowded because the living room is of sufficient size to allow the adults to use it as a bedroom. The Bowen family, on the other hand, which consists of one adult and six children aged 13, 11, 10, eight, four and 18 months, are now officially overcrowded as the 10-year-old has become a person for the purpose of the rules. However, they remain between 8th and 17th on the list for four-bedroomed accommodation. That raises the question of what conditions other households have to cope with, but we know nothing about those conditions because for many years local authorities have not kept adequate records of statutory overcrowding or other overcrowding needs, because the legislation was so out of date.

I also cite the case of the Hassan family in Kensington, which consists of two adults and three children who live in a very small two-bedroomed flat on the third floor. Two of the children are disabled and statemented with autism. The family has the most medical points available to them but still only has 30 points in total, and the council explained that people with most priority have around 200 housing points. Some hon. Members may be able imagine what it is like to share a small two-bedroomed flat with three children, two of whom are autistic, but I certainly cannot. I find it hard enough to live with one child.

The demand for housing represented by those examples, and the stress and the physical and mental damage that living in such conditions causes those households, is almost impossible to contemplate. We urgently need to update the overcrowding standards. When considering allocation of resources, we should consider not only the visible and dramatic end of the housing spectrum, however hideous it is for families in bed-and-breakfast accommodation, but housing need in the round.

Like the rough sleepers initiative, the bed-and-breakfast unit will do a great deal of good, because it will have high visibility. A strong case exists for numerical targets for a reduction in demand, although Ashley Horsley said in The Guardian yesterday that he was not sympathetic. I believe that there is no alternative. Unless we have numerical targets to reduce the numbers living in bed and breakfast accommodation, we will not be able to monitor progress. I urge the Minister to consider that point.

The bed-and-breakfast unit could consider not simply how quickly people can be moved out of bed-and-breakfast accommodation but how to create a better package of support services. The Minister has done good work in that area already, but the Victoria Climbié inquiry highlighted how easy it is for vulnerable families to fall through the net, especially if they do not have English as a first language, or have other communication problems, and are highly mobile. The Bayswater families unit told me that there must be hundreds of other Climbié cases waiting to happen. We hope that they do not, but the risk exists because of mobility in the temporary accommodation sector. There is a strong case for targeting the next wave of the sure start programme on wards with a great deal of bed-and-breakfast accommodation, as they tend not to be highly ranked on the index of multiple deprivation.

As for family accommodation, the private rented sector does not provide a desirable long-term alternative to the social rented sector or to affordable homes for purchase, but it is an essential transitional stage and can help those who, for example, are moving to seek employment. I commend to the Minister the work of the Brent private tenants rights group, which has produced an excellent document—entitled "The Private Rented Sector: Problem or Solution?"—that contains a good analysis of the difficulties. The problem is that the supply of private rented sector accommodation in London has halved in the past five years. The quality is very variable, and because of housing benefit restrictions the relationship between the private rented sector, families on low income and poverty is highly significant. The Government have recognised that in their "market of despair" research in Brent, and the matter is now a priority.

The document sets out a number of solutions. It suggests bringing the needs of landlords and tenants together in a proper package of measures that include ending tax discrimination in respect of landlords who let properties, promoting adequate management standards—that ties in with the licensing of homes in multiple occupation—and abolishing local reference rents and allowing rent officers to take away from rent assessment committees the role of rent termination. Rent officers are closer to the ground, and such a move would increase transparency and allow greater flexibility in meeting tenants' needs.

As an added incentive for renting to low-income households, the document also recommends the excellent idea of a 5 per cent. supplement for landlords who set rents for tenants on housing benefit. That idea is worthy of analysis and I commend it to the Minister. Research by Cambridge Housing and Planning Research, which was commissioned by Shelter, shows that contraction of the private rented sector's contribution to housing need could be adding 10,000 people to the annual affordable housing requirement. Put another way, investing in returning the sector to its mid-1990s position is the equivalent of spending £700 million on new housing.

The reform of housing benefit cannot wait until we have achieved rent convergence. The Minister is aware of my deep reservations about the implications of rent restructuring. I am particularly worried about capital values and the possibility of high target rents in London and other high-value areas. We must urgently consider measures such as setting a cap of no more than £100 a week and allowing a high degree of local variation in respect of landlords who let properties that will be affected by high-target rents. Time is of the essence, as the proposals will come into force next April. This complex pattern of rent restructuring could blow up in our faces, and I urge the Minister to ensure that we do not run into serious problems.

Before we achieve the admirable objective of greater coherence and consistency between local authority social landlords and the private rented sector, we should make rapid progress by improving administration. For example, we could put pensioners into a separate housing benefit strand, set fixed terms for housing benefit claims and improve work incentives. Those suggestions are set out in two recent documents: the Audit Commission's review of the administration of housing benefit, and an excellent policy document by Pivot, entitled "Hope for Housing Benefit". The latter document makes the important point that if we do not seize the moment and integrate housing benefit more effectively as we enter a new phase of tackling poverty through tax credits and increased work incentives, it will not work as effectively in London and other areas of high housing cost as it does in the rest of the country. As a result, it will not be as successful as it should be in helping to tackle poverty.

As many hon. Members have stressed, the main issue in dealing with these problems is supply, supply, supply. We will not deal with any of them in the long term without a major increase in housing investment in areas of housing need. Under planning guidance, 50 per cent. of new build in London should be affordable homes through developments under section 106 agreements. That was recommended by the Mayor's housing commission, of which I was a member, and I strongly support that. I welcome the Secretary of State's indication that he might consider allowing councils to demand affordable homes from commercial developments as well. There is a lack of logic in insisting on affordable housing in those housing developments, and not in commercial ones. We should level that playing field.

The Government's commitment to public services and to tackling poverty is not in doubt, and has been demonstrated during the past few years. Without a decent home over people's heads, however, it will be hard to realise all the objectives and to make the best use of the new wave of anti-poverty measures and public sector investment being introduced.

4.40 pm

Mr. Andrew Turner (Isle of Wight): It is a pleasure to follow the hon. Member for Regent's Park and Kensington, North (Ms Buck), because she demonstrates not only her knowledge but her obvious commitment and independence of thought on this important issue. I thank those who curtailed their speeches, in particular the hon. Member for Bethnal Green and Bow (Ms King), whom I could see skipping elegantly, gazelle-like, through the key points in her speech and avoiding the swampy lowlands occupied by the detailed recommendations of the London Labour group of MPs.

What a contrast that was with the remarks of the hon. Member for Torbay (Mr. Sanders), who was more like an elephant trying to remain on a tightrope. He tried to avoid falling off on one side with a policy that might offend urban constituents, and on the other with policies that might offend rural constituents. I did not hear him explain what market interventions he thought would deal appropriately with the problem of abandonment of housing in northern cities. Nor did I hear him respond—I may have missed it—to the question raised by my hon. Friend the Member for Cotswold (Mr. Clifton-Brown) about the exact details of the Liberal Democrats' policy on voluntary stock transfer, except to say that it could be done at local level.

The problem is that Liberal Democrat answers are different in every constituency. It is no good the hon. Member for Torbay saying that he wants to give local government the power to intervene in the market, to have new planning and fiscal powers and to have a general power of competence, if at the same time he wants regional government, with his constituents being run from Bristol and mine, heaven forbid, from Woking.

[Mr. Andrew Turner]

The problem that we have not faced is how to deal with abandonment. I have not yet heard a single answer to the problem of abandonment of properties in areas of high supply and obvious lack of demand. Will the Minister explain why additional housing is permitted in large rural areas in the south and the north of the country, when there is clearly a surplus of supply in some urban areas? Why is a house in Salford inappropriate for occupation when an exactly equivalent house in Newport in the Isle of Wight is not only appropriate, but one that people want to buy? The dimensions of those who live in Salford cannot be different from those of people who live on the Isle of Wight.

Dr. Iddon: They have yachts in the Isle of Wight.

Mr. Turner: I must tell the hon. Gentleman that not everyone who lives in Newport has a yacht.

We need to deal with the planning problem at national level, but it will not be solved through national intervention and the setting of targets that are inappropriate for local areas. I will not go over the ground that has been covered so ably by my hon. Friends the Members for Billericay (Mr. Baron) and for Bexhill and Battle (Mr. Barker), except to point out that my local authority—I do not usually attack the Isle of Wight council in this place, although I often do at home—sent someone to Serplan who voted in favour of the Government's target of 8,000 new houses on the Isle of Wight. That may not sound much compared with Essex, but it is enough for a small area. Of those 8,000 houses, 40 per cent. are to be built on greenfield sites—a target that is being implemented through the unitary development plan. I welcome the Government's publication of PPG3 with its 60 per cent. target for brownfield sites, but that document has no teeth as far as Isle of Wight council is concerned. It is happily giving its approval for building on greenfield sites, and the brownfield sites will never catch up.

I criticise the approval in the unitary development plan for more houses without adequate parking space in both rural and urban areas. It is not good enough to take away car parks, and especially commuter car parks, from towns, because if people are to use public transport they must have somewhere to park at the end of their public transport journey. People can no longer drive their cars into Cowes on their way to work, because the Government have taken out of the unitary development plan some of the already limited parking space in the town centre.

The other problem with which we must deal is housing quality. I echo the remarks of my hon. Friend the Member for Bexhill and Battle. His comments also apply to social housing. Some of the social housing that is being built is frankly tat. It is poor quality: it is of a poor standard; its common areas are little more than deserts; and it has inadequate parking spaces, which is a problem because people who live in social housing also want to own cars. It also has inadequate private space. People who live in social housing want private space because they do not want to bring up children in flats, which admittedly are not as high in my area as some in London.

Mr. Love: I have spent many enjoyable evenings, and indeed weeks, in the Isle of Wight over many years. However, would the hon. Gentleman do what he cajoled the hon. Member for Torbay (Mr. Sanders) to do, and say how he would solve the housing problems that he has identified?

Mr. Turner: I am happy to say that we should set higher standards for social housing. People who need or desire to live in social housing have a right to live in decent houses with adequate private spaces and places to park their cars.

I welcome the remarks made by the hon. Member for Stafford (Mr. Kidney) on anti-social behaviour orders. They should be implemented not only by the sometimes reluctant local authorities—my local authority has not implemented one—but by both registered social landlords and the private sector. Why should people not apply for a private anti-social behaviour order to see whether the courts will uphold it? We should allow people to bring forward traffic orders to deal with problems of parking for residents, which many local authorities relegate to the end of their programme. The problem of inadequate parking should be dealt with so that residents do not concrete over their front gardens in sheer despair at their inability to park. Such problems reduce people's quality of life.

Who pays for the social housing element of private development? There is a distinct difference between the prices that can be obtained in London for private sector housing, to the obvious detriment of many of London's people, and the prices that can be obtained in other parts of the country, including my constituency. In London, the profits made from building private housing are so great that the cost of social housing is, in effect, met by the developer. If the cost is 10 per cent. or whatever, the developer reduces his profit accordingly to provide space for social housing. However, it is difficult to develop a site on the Isle of Wight, or any rural area, where prices are low, because it is hard for the developer to make a significant profit. He will make sufficient profit, but he will not make a significant profit, and he will not necessarily be willing to lose that profit as a result of providing for 10 per cent. social housing.

Ultimately, the purchaser pays. In some areas, social housing is a tax on the developer, as is right and proper, but in other areas it is a tax on the first-time buyer. I hope that the Government will consider that when they make their housing allocations to registered social landlords, so that they do not have to depend to the same extent on taxing the first-time buyer.

4.50 pm

Dr. Brian Iddon (Bolton, South-East): I begin with a topic that is dear to your heart, Mr. Pike—the condition of private sector stock.

Let me tell Conservative Members exactly why private sector stock is in such a bad condition. They talk about terraces of houses that are completely empty.

Those houses are more than 120 years old. Unlike houses in the rest of the country, they were built on the cheap by factory owners within walking distance of the mills. They were built with brick-on-end foundations, with inner and outer skins touching, and with attics that were common to the entire terrace, which presents a real hazard when one of the properties catches fire.

The reason why tens of thousands of those properties are empty in your constituency of Burnley, Mr. Pike, in Eccles, in Salford and in Bolton is that nobody wants to live in them any more. During 18 years of Conservative government, no money was made available either to improve them or to clear and replace them. Now we are stuck with the problem. The Government are wrestling with it and I am sorry to say that they will be doing so for a long time.

The densely populated inner parts of Salford, Bolton and Burnley need places for children to play. When houses are cleared, more houses should not be put back on the sites: we need green lungs, as in London. Wherever I go in London, I walk past a park. That is not true of many of the old wool towns in Yorkshire, or the cotton towns in Lancashire.

The figures for Bolton are staggering. According to environmental health officers, we have 22,000 unfit properties, 5,000 to 6,000 of which are considered to be irredeemably unfit, yet people still live in them. I agree with the hon. Member for Isle of Wight (Mr. Turner) that we need more living space. If he were to visit Bolton, I would show him the two-up, two-downs with small backyards. None of his constituents would like to live in those properties, or in similar ones in Bradford, Burnley and Eccles.

Mr. Barker: Will the hon. Gentleman give way?

Dr. Iddon: I am sorry, but I do not have time.

If urban regeneration is to mean anything in towns and constituencies like mine, we must have the money to deal with such properties. They cannot be allowed to stand derelict and empty. Drug addicts inherit privately owned properties because private landlords buy them one by one for a few quid and reap large amounts of housing benefit by letting them to desperate people. Next door may live elderly people who are frightened of going out. Yards have rubbish dumped in them, which attracts vermin. None of our constituents wants to live in such conditions.

I plead with the Government to help constituencies like mine to deal with those mega housing problems. We need to clear properties that are beyond repair. The Government have been excellent at releasing capital receipts and working on neighbourhood renewal, but they are not getting to the heart of the problem.

Cutting my speech short, as have all other hon. Members, I turn briefly to the public sector. I have long argued that we should try to move away from the public sector borrowing requirement model of supporting public sector housing. At one stage, I thought that the general Government financial deficit model would be put into operation. Can the Minister confirm that? I understand that, of all the countries in the European Union, only this country and the Netherlands operate the public sector borrowing requirement model. The Minister will correct me if I am wrong on that.

I was not present at the Labour party conference, so did not hear the Secretary of State announce possible alternative financing of public sector housing, which has caused so much excitement in the housing arena. Will the Minister tell me about that? We need to borrow against our considerable assets because it makes sense and is done elsewhere in Europe. Why cannot public authorities borrow not only against the tenanted value of their properties, but against considerable rent streams. Will she clarify what the Secretary of State said in Brighton, which appears to have been denied by the housing press?

Will the Minister also look at the model, called a community regeneration company, presented to her by the director of housing in Bolton? If tenants must choose an alternative form of housing management, I ask her seriously to consider that model, which is not in the housing Green Paper but is recognised by people as a satisfactory alternative to proposals in it and has now been submitted to the Department. Best-value considerations have shown that the model is better than the options that the Government have suggested for Bolton and other authorities. Will she please consider it?

I am not against tenants having a choice of an alternative landlord, particularly if they have a bad one, which could even be a local authority. However, under successive Governments, Bolton has been one of the few north-west towns to have been given all the brownie points for housing management for, I think, nine out of 10 successive years. That is an incredible performance. If the tenants, local government and national Government are happy with the management, why should local authorities be put under extreme pressure to transfer either management or the ownership of their stock to an alternative landlord? That does not make sense to me. Surely, we can leave a few well-managed local authorities with their own stock to look after, because an awful lot of people are now in the queue for stock transfer.

Finally, has the Minister seriously considered securitisation as an alternative means of financing housing in the public sector? That is a hot topic in the housing press.

4.58 pm

Margaret Moran (Luton, South): The events of the past few months are a timely reminder that the Government's commitment to the delivery of public services must be underpinned by the provision of good-quality housing. The crisis in recruitment, spoken about earlier, is a reminder that healthy housing markets and good-quality housing are essential to achieving many of the Government's key priorities, especially neighbourhood renewal. The improvement of public services could otherwise be undermined by an acute shortage of affordable housing, with intermediate housing being lost in some areas and problems of market failure and local deprivation in others.

We should take note of the unrest in areas such as Bradford, which in terms of demography, ethnicity and housing conditions, is similar to my constituency. I was told by our local police that, had it not rained on the Saturday subsequent to the riot, a similar event would have occurred in Luton. That is hardly conducive to building a healthy community.

[Margaret Moran]

It is important to recognise that in areas such as mine, and in Bradford, there is overcrowding and an acute shortage of social housing. Owner-occupied housing is in poor condition with few resources to upgrade it because they are focused elsewhere. As a result, areas such as Bury park perform badly in all the indices of deprivation, including child mortality, high levels of heart disease and a horrifying rise in cases of tuberculosis, which is usually thought of as the disease of the poor. Homelessness, overcrowding and lack of investment must be tackled now through urgent intervention in such areas.

Although Luton generally has an acute housing crisis in areas such as Stopsley and Farley, special attention needs to be paid to areas where the housing crisis is magnified because of a multiplicity of deprivation. In Luton, the general and black and minority ethnic housing needs survey has shown the council the worrying levels of current and projected need in the town. According to data, in excess of 6,500 households are currently in need, and that will rise over the next five years to nearly 10,000. Half of those people will be looking to the council to provide affordable housing.

In the Bangladeshi and Pakistani community, households are four times as likely to be living in unsuitable housing as white households, and the average income of Bangladeshi households is around £5,000, compared with £17,000 in white households. The survey found that about 5 per cent. of white households were in need, whereas the comparative figures were 37 per cent. of Bangladeshi households and 30 per cent. of Pakistani households in need. There is therefore acute need in particular areas, which we must address.

As for the private rented sector and owner-occupation, demand and supply difficulties are exacerbated by the results of the private rented housing stock condition survey that was recently undertaken by the council, which shows high levels of disrepair in the town. More than 7,000 households in Luton are already in unsuitable housing, which is more than 10 per cent. of all households. It therefore has a bigger problem of disrepair than other comparable areas.

What needs to be done to tackle those problems? Greater priority must be given to investment in renovation of existing dilapidated stock. Greater focus should also be given to a strategy for empty housing. In Luton, for every one homeless family, there are seven empty private rented sector properties. I therefore ask my hon. Friend the Minister to consult the Chancellor of the Exchequer on the need to review VAT on refurbishment, to enable us to bring those urgently needed properties back into use.

In respect of social housing, for which there is acute need across the town, there is even more pressing need for family-sized accommodation with four bedrooms and a bathroom. However, there is no opportunity in areas such as mine to new build our way out of that problem. We are landlocked. We must therefore focus more on increasing Housing Corporation funding for acquisition and refurbishment, which I know from my experience as a chief executive of a housing association is inevitably more expensive than new build. That needs to be reflected in the financing of that part of the programme.

We welcome the doubling of the approved development programme for housing associations. However, we must also recognise that we must build on brownfield sites that are contaminated, which are inevitably of higher cost than new-build sites. We must ensure that those higher costs are reflected in the Housing Corporation allocations so that we can achieve our brownfield targets.

The vision for healthy communities in the urban and rural White Paper depends critically on healthier housing markets. Greater and more strategic investment in housing is necessary, as well as much more effective co-ordination with economic and neighbourhood renewal strategies at national, regional and sub-regional level.

As we approach the next spending round, I want my hon. Friend the Minister to make certain requests in her discussions with the Chancellor of the Exchequer. As many other hon. Members have said, we urgently need an increase in the supply of new social housing. In some areas, there is an acute housing need, especially in the south-east. We have heard about the problems in London, but they are not exclusive to London. East Anglia has similar problems. We need a programme for an extra 20,000 units to tackle the problem of key workers and to keep our households out of bed-and-breakfast accommodation, which is more expensive. It is estimated that, in 2003-04, that would cost an extra £6 million. I hope that Ministers will be calling on the Chancellor of the Exchequer for that added investment.

There also needs to be increased investment in existing regeneration programmes so that they can be maintained at their present value. There is a distinct query about how much of the existing regeneration programmes are concentrating on housing. Given that many of them are time limited, there is a severe question mark over the level of housing resources in the future. That needs to be examined. We must maintain investment in existing housing stock in order for the 10-year target to be met. I hope that the Minister will be dealing with such problems when she discusses matters with the Chancellor.

As other hon. Members have said, we do not need a shift of resources away from areas of acute housing need, such as London and the south-east, to areas of low demand. That conflicts with the overall objective of the review set by the housing Green Paper to focus investment resources in areas of greatest housing need. It also conflicts with the Government's recently announced objective to reduce the use of temporary and bed-and-breakfast accommodation. Will the Minister reconsider such issues?

During the next 10 years, we must set targets for overcoming the backlog of need in affordable housing to parallel the targets that have already been set to tackle the problem of rough sleepers, and that we should have to tackle the use of bed-and-breakfast accommodation. We need to set an annual target for reducing the number of homeless people who are placed in bed-and-breakfast and other forms of temporary accommodation. The Government must set out an emergency programme for enacting and achieving those targets. We have already said that we need urgently to enact the Bill that deals with houses in multiple occupation and several issues related to the private rented sector, which my hon. Friend the Member for Regent's Park and Kensington, North (Ms Buck) outlined, and which have been set out in the Brent private rented sector housing survey.

The Government should also introduce legislation to remove rent rebates from housing revenue accounts of local authorities to enable the full introduction of resource accounting. Local authorities' housing targets need to be put on a statutory basis. If we are to achieve an increase in affordable housing, we must give local authorities full powers and make it mandatory within their housing strategies so that they can work effectively in partnership with registered social landlords in their areas and the private rented sector to carry out the full range of duties in relation to all aspects of housing provision. That will require a strengthening of the obligations placed on RSLs and other housing providers to assist local authorities to meet their housing duties. That will be all the more important because, by 2004, more than 50 per cent. of all social housing will be managed and owned by residential social landlords. The strategic role of local authorities needs to be put more firmly on a statutory basis.

I make a final plea for the self-build movement, which makes a small but significant contribution to tackling the enormity of the housing problem that many of us experience. It is a movement that I espoused in my former life as leader of Lewisham council. In those small in-fill areas where we have a desperate shortage of land, such as in my constituency, self-build housing can be of moderate assistance in tackling the problem. We must re-examine the way in which the funding rules of housing corporations apply, so that we can enable unemployed and young people to build their own homes, thus providing them with a roof over their heads and empowering and training them. That is in the spirit of the Government's policy of regeneration and neighbourhood renewal.

Mr. Peter Pike (in the Chair): I apologise for the fact that I have been unable to call the hon. Member for Edmonton (Mr. Love). He has attended the debate, but sometimes it is impossible to call everyone. I know that he has a great interest in housing.

5.10 pm

Mr. Adrian Sanders (Torbay): I can sum up the whole of this largely good-natured debate in terms of investment. Everything that hon. Members have mentioned has come down to increased investment in both the public and private sectors. Other hon. Members mentioned that, and I hope that the Minister will respond to the point. Renovation grants in the private sector are vital for improving the housing stock. That applies not only to the north of England, but to all hon. Members' constituencies. Lack of local funds is at the heart of the problem. Few councils offer renovation grants because of constraints on local government finance.

The debate has been wide-ranging and I wish to give the Minister as much time as possible to respond, although I know that she will not be able to cover all our points. The debate has been excellent and a joy to hear.

5.11 pm

Mr. Clifton-Brown: I thank my hon. Friends the Members for Billericay (Mr. Baron), for Bexhill and Battle (Mr. Barker) and for Isle of Wight (Mr. Turner) for their excellent speeches that related, pertinently, to the Government's targets for housing in their areas. I have to say to the Minister—I hope in a non-partisan manner—that we cannot continue to build on our greenfield sites at the rate that those targets suggest. After we have built over the sites, we cannot get them back.

Pertinent points have also been made about building on brownfield sites. Yesterday, I was in Ipswich where the council is inhibiting a major development on a brownfield site because it will not allow a new road to be built although it has received private finance and will not cost the taxpayer a penny. Such political dogma against the car is unacceptable. We ask the Government to ensure that we meet brownfield housing targets.

I am a chartered surveyor—that is a registered interest—and I endorse the comments made by my hon. Friend the Member for Bexhill and Battle. We need well-designed social housing. We know the mistakes that were made in the 1960s, and some housing that was built then must be pulled down because the designs are so bad. I remember visiting a block of flats in Glasgow with a Select Committee. A poor woman on housing benefit was paying £20 a week for her electricity bill and, during the winter, the flat was colder inside than outside.

The hon. Member for Torbay (Mr. Sanders) mentioned investment. That is what this problem is all about. If we do not have investment, we will not get the quantity of social housing units that we want. The Chartered Institute of Housing calculated that the Government must transfer a further 1 million homes in order to meet their 10-year renovation target. That represents a critical sum of money, and the money that is generated from stock transfers will depend on the rent strategy. There is little point in trying artificially to hold down rents in the private sector, and then complaining that the private sector produces insufficient housing units.

One of the comments made by the hon. Member for Bolton, South-East (Dr. Iddon) caught my attention. He seemed to suggest that no urban regeneration occurred under the last Conservative Administration. That is absolute nonsense. We saw excellent regeneration in areas such as Docklands and the centres of Glasgow and Leeds.

Mr. Love rose—

Mr. Clifton-Brown: No, I will not take any interventions because I know that the Minister will want to wind up the debate.

I do not know about the local authority of the hon. Member for Bolton, South-East which he complained about. However, I suspect that the way in which the authority was run in the past has something to do with the housing stock. Hon. Members should examine the difference between the housing stock in Wandsworth and neighbouring Lambeth.

I sympathise with the problems of Labour Members, particularly those in London. I tell the hon. Member for Regent's Park and Kensington, North (Ms Buck) that if the Mayor pushes higher targets on the amount of social housing that will be built, it will have one of two effects: either the housing will not be built or, as my hon. Friend the Member for Bexhill and Battle said, it will impact on the price of starter homes, making it even more difficult for people to get on the housing ladder.

[Mr. Clifton-Brown]

The Minister has a highly complex task this evening. She has a huge number of points to answer. I hope that she can answer many of them; if not, perhaps she will write to hon. Members. I wish her luck in her winding-up speech, because she has a difficult job.

5.14 pm

Ms Keeble: I am grateful to all hon. Members who have taken part in this excellent debate. Many issues have been raised. I am sure that the hon. Member for Cotswold (Mr. Clifton-Brown) means it when he says that he is trying to be non-partisan, but nothing demonstrates more the chasm between this Government and the Conservative party—both now and when it was in power—than our approaches to housing.

Mr. Love: Will the Minister give way?

Ms Keeble: No, I will not because I do not have long.

The hon. Member for Cotswold talked about the awful things that the Government have done to private home owners, but one of our great achievements has been to provide a stable economy with high employment and low interest rates. As a result, the majority of people, as never before, are in an excellent position to own and maintain their own homes and have a good quality of life. That has been a priority for this Government, and rightly so.

The hon. Gentleman talked about the problem of homelessness, which is a blight on any civilised society. Our priority should be to house the homeless and to ensure that they have the necessary support so that they do not become homeless again. What a contrast there is between the approach of the Conservatives when they were in power and our approach, which involves the rough sleepers unit, the bed-and-breakfast unit and the work being done with the Army and Prison Service on the symptoms and causes of homelessness.

I was delighted to hear that the hon. Gentleman is going to Crisis this year. I am astonished that he has been in public life for so long and seems not yet to have met a homeless person.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: Will the Minister give way?

Ms Keeble: No.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: The Minister referred to me.

Ms Keeble: No, I will not give way.

I remember the council of which I was leader and other councils struggling against an intransigent Conservative Government to ensure that we could include homeless 16 and 17-year-olds among the ranks of vulnerable people who were entitled to housing. To be able to include those people under the homelessness regulations is a defining difference between Labour and the Conservatives.

The contributions from the hon. Members for Billericay (Mr. Baron), for Bexhill and Battle, and for Isle of Wight (Mr. Turner) showed not only that the Opposition have no housing policies, but that they either do not know or do not understand what the Government are doing. It is inconsistent, to say the least, to castigate the Government for not providing enough housing, and then to say that houses should be built anywhere but in their own constituencies. The best way to deal with their points is to send them the planning policy guidance notes, so that they can know and understand the Government's actions on brownfield and greenfield land, and on improving standards and design.

Mr. Barker: Will the Minister give way?

Ms Keeble: No.

Mr. Barker: It is on that point.

Ms Keeble: No, I have said that I will not give way.

The hon. Member for Torbay (Mr. Sanders) presented the Liberal Democrats' wish list. That may be want they want, but it would be the economics of utter madness. He said how awful it was for homeless people, and suggested using all the empty houses for them. For the reasons that my hon. Friends have set out, I reject the idea of simply matching up homeless people and empty houses. The hon. Gentleman mentioned building council housing and subsidising rents, but there is more to a good housing policy than just the building of houses and the paying of rents. Of course we must deal with those issues, but a host of others must also be addressed, such as those raised by my hon. Friends. I shall quickly go through the issues, and then try to respond to them in turn. I shall write to hon. Members about any points that I cannot deal with.

Hon. Members referred to affordable housing, bed and breakfast and homelessness, empty homes, houses in multiple occupation, housing allocations and time scales for acceptance, finance for homelessness, issues raised by Shelter, working with the Housing Corporation, skills shortages, women and black and ethnic minority communities and building, problems of housing in London, the detailed workings of the Children Act 1989, overcrowding regulations, health and children in bed and breakfast, the private rented sector, rent restructuring, housing benefit reform, affordable housing and commercial development, low demand, the Secretary of State's statement about housing finance, the Bolton model, securitisation, the need to link housing to wider regeneration, the need to deal with racial disadvantage in housing and private sector renewal. That long list shows the complexity of the issues surrounding housing. We need detailed policies to deal with all those problems.

My hon. Friend the Member for Stafford (Mr. Kidney) raised the issue of planning and affordable housing. He is absolutely right. The planning system helps to provide better housing and better communities.

He was also right to highlight the importance of dealing with empty homes. We need a range of strategies to deal with the different types of empty homes and what has caused them to be empty. He also spoke about houses in multiple occupation. My officials have been working closely with my hon. Friend the Member for Brighton, Kemptown (Dr. Turner) on his Home Energy Conservation Bill. We welcome the fact that it has helped to push the problems of houses in multiple occupation right up the political agenda.

My hon. Friend the Member for Bethnal Green and Bow (Ms King) talked about time scales for responses. The Homelessness Bill says that local authorities must act reasonably. Reasonableness is open to many interpretations, but it provides local authorities with the flexibility that they need. Clearly, if they do not act reasonably, they can be challenged through the courts. She also mentioned the impact of recent court cases on social services obligations under the Children Act 1989. We are currently looking into that and it has been the subject of extensive discussions.

My hon. Friend the Member for Bethnal Green and Bow also raised the issue of finance for homelessness. We have provided £8 million. Obviously we shall see the extent of that as new categories come into the ranks of the homeless. It would be as wrong to exclude 16 and 17-year-olds from qualifying for housing as it would to exclude care leavers or other vulnerable groups. She also referred to Shelter. I have had meetings with the chair of the Housing Corporation and the Department, and Housing Corporation officials are working closely with us to ensure that we provide a seamless service for the general public.

My hon. Friend the Member for Crosby (Mrs. Curtis-Thomas) was right to raise the issue of skills shortages. In some parts of the country, particularly the north-west, the biggest barrier to housing renewal and regeneration in inner city areas is a shortage not of Government funds but of skilled labour. She was right to highlight the particular shortage of women entering the construction industry. Women represent only 9 per cent. of the work force in the building industry, and only 2 per cent. come from black and minority ethnic groups. The Government are working through the "rethinking construction" programme to tackle some of those issues. Clearly we are missing out on a huge range of the population who could help us to overcome that skills shortage.

My hon. Friend the Member for Regent's Park and Kensington, North (Ms Buck) talked about the need to examine closely the concentrations of disadvantage in otherwise affluent areas—which we are doing—to ensure that the housing problems of those communities are addressed. She said that there was a need for a sure start scheme for children in temporary accommodation. We are considering producing guidance to deal with some of the health problems of children in bed and breakfast. I take her point that those children are some of the most needy and vulnerable. She also clearly set out why we must examine the problems of overcrowding.

I completely endorse the remarks of my hon. Friend the Member for Bolton, South-East (Dr. Iddon), who highlighted the problem of abandonment.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: Will the Minister give way?

Ms Keeble: No.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: On a point of order, Mr. Pike. I think that the basic courtesies of this House are not being observed. I did not intervene once on the Minister in her opening speech. She made a personal attack on me and would not give way. Will you use your role as protector of Back Benchers to ensure that the issues that my hon. Friends and I have raised are addressed during the last five minutes of this three-hour debate?

Mr. Peter Pike (in the Chair): Under the normal conventions of the House, the Minister can decide whether she wishes to give way. She is trying to reply to a comprehensive debate. I accept that she is trying to respond to all points, and has made it clear that she will write to hon. Members if she is not able to respond during the debate.

Ms Keeble: Thank you, Mr. Pike. I am sorry that the hon. Member for Cotswold feels that he needs to be protected from me. I did not intervene on him.

My hon. Friend the Member for Bolton, South-East, after his interesting comments on abandonment, asked about the Secretary of State's statement. The prudential code on possible new borrowing arrangements is currently under consideration.

My hon. Friend the Member for Luton, South (Margaret Moran) mentioned multiple disadvantage. That is one reason why it is so important that the Government's housing strategy is seen alongside the wider neighbourhood renewal strategies. She raised the subject of racial disadvantage. The Department is working closely on that with the Housing Corporation, which is trying to overcome the appalling fact that, in this day and age, people still suffer housing disadvantage because of their ethnicity.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: On a point of order, Mr. Pike. Every one in this Chamber has kept their speeches short to enable the Minister to answer all points. She has not answered a single point made by my hon. Friends and me, and that is a disgrace.

Mr. Peter Pike (in the Chair): The debate does not finish till 5.30 and there are still three minutes to go. Depending on when the Minister sits down, other Members will have the opportunity to be called.

Ms Keeble: I have said that I will send hon. Members the detailed policy guidance so that they can clearly understand how the planning system works, and see that the Government have taken action on the brownfield-greenfield issue. We have also taken action on design, density and parking spaces.

My hon. Friend the Member for Stafford gave me very good advice about being confident in the Government's record. Nothing gives me greater confidence than the bare-faced exhibition of exclusiveness and mean-minded nimbyism that we have seen from the Conservative Opposition this afternoon. It is in stark contrast with the Government's commitment to supporting private home owners, including providing the seller's pack to which we are committed. We are committed to bringing all social housing up to a decent standard by 2010, to renewing the private sector, to dealing with racial disadvantage in housing, to increasing the supply of affordable housing and to tackling the appalling problems of homelessness and overcrowding. We are committed to ensuring that people have decent homes at prices that they can afford, to overcoming the legacy that we inherited and to making sure not only that people have a decent home of their own choice but that it is in a sustainable, safe and sound community.

[Ms Keeble]

Mr. Peter Pike (in the Chair): The question is that the sitting be now adjourned.

I think the ayes have it. However, the hon. Member for Cotswold wishes to speak again.

5.29 pm

Mr. Clifton-Brown: The Minister's winding-up speech was disgracefully partisan.

Dr. Iddon: On a point of order, Mr. Pike. I thought that the ayes on this side of the Chamber were far louder than the noes on that side of the Chamber. I suggest that we put it to the vote.

Mr. Peter Pike (in the Chair): The hon. Gentleman is challenging the Chair's view on that point. I made it clear that hon. Members could speak again if the debate had not concluded.

Question agreed to.

Adjourned accordingly at half-past Five o'clock.

Written Answers to Questions

Monday 5 November 2001

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

Cluster Bombs

Lynne Jones: To ask the Solicitor-General if she has been consulted on the legality of the use of cluster bombs. [11844]

The Solicitor-General: The Attorney-General and Solicitor-General, as chief legal advisers to Her Majesty's Government, are available to advise the Government on all questions of international and domestic law. In this capacity, the Law Officers have been asked to advise, from time to time, on legal issues relating to the use of force, including international humanitarian law. There is a long-standing convention that neither the substance of the Law Officers' advice, nor the fact that they have been consulted, is disclosed outside Government.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Ambassadors (Ethnic Origin)

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he expects to appoint the first (a) black and (b) Asian ambassador. [11431]

Mr. Bradshaw: The first minority ethnic ambassador was appointed in 1993. Mr. Noel Jones served as ambassador to Kazakhstan from 1993 to 1995.

The Diplomatic Service is committed to reflecting the modern face of Britain and to attracting talent from all ethnic groups. To this end, we are continually working to encourage minority ethnic people to apply to join the service.

Departmental Assets

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what stocks of (a) antiques, (b) paintings and (c) fine wines are held by his Department; if he will list such assets sold over the last three years together with the sale proceeds from such transactions; what plans he has to sell further such assets over the period of the current comprehensive spending review; and if he will make a statement. [10834]

Mr. MacShane [holding answer 31 October 2001]: A description of the antiques and paintings in FCO properties appears in the FCO part of the national asset register. The Government wine cellar contains substantial stocks of fine wines for use at home. The FCO manages the cellar on behalf of the Government as a whole, and not exclusively for the FCO. The FCO owns no wine stocks overseas. No antiques, paintings or wines have been sold over the past three years and there are no plans to sell such items over the period of the current comprehensive spending review.

Cuba

Mrs. Mahon: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he last discussed with the US Secretary of State the inclusion of Cuba on the US list of nations that sponsor terrorism; and if he will make a statement. [12056]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Foreign Secretary has not discussed the US list of nations that sponsor terrorism with the US Secretary of State. The Government do not subscribe to the list; it is a US list and a matter for the US authorities.

Indonesia

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the situation in Sulawesi, Indonesia, with particular reference to attacks on the Christian minority by Muslim extremists. [12246]

Mr. Bradshaw: The sentencing to death of three Christian militia leaders on 5 April provoked civil disturbances in Poso, central Sulawesi. Following the deployment of an additional Infantry Battalion in August, the situation in Poso itself has been calm. However, some low-level violence between Muslims and Christians has continued in remoter areas of Sulawesi.

We will continue to monitor cases of inter-communal violence closely and raise our concerns with the Indonesian Government at every appropriate opportunity.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what further discussions he plans to have with the Indonesian authorities on the subject of inter-religious violence. [12247]

Mr. Bradshaw: I most recently raised this issue with the Indonesian Vice President Hamzah Haz, when we met in Jakarta in August.

We will continue to monitor the situation carefully and raise our concerns with the Indonesian Government at every appropriate opportunity.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Part-time Employment

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what representations she has received from employers following the passage of the Part-Time Employees (Prevention of Less Favourite Treatment) Regulations 2000. [11831]

Ms Hewitt: My Department has received no representations from employers on the regulations themselves since they came into force. However, we worked closely with employer representatives during and following the passage of the regulations to develop appropriate guidance for business, and we continue to discuss issues relating to part-time work with employers and employer groups from time to time.

Information and Consultation Directive

Mr. Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment she has made of the impact of the sanctions proposed for firms that fail to comply with the information and consultation directive. [11004]

Alan Johnson: The proposed directive requires member states to determine the provisions for enforcement of the obligations provided they are effective, proportionate and dissuasive. This part of the text was not the subject of amendment by the European Parliament. The Government will consult fully in due course on the implementation of the directive, including the question of sanctions.

Mr. Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will make a statement on the European Parliament amendments to the draft information and consultation directive which were passed on 23 October and the Government's policy in respect of the draft directive as amended. [10996]

Alan Johnson: The Government believe it is unnecessary and unhelpful to try to change the text of the proposed directive agreed at the Council of Ministers in June. We will be strongly defending the Council's common position. The UK is not alone in this view. Several other member states are also opposed to changing the flexible measures previously agreed. We expect the Council to stick closely to the common position text.

Mr. Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will make an assessment of the impact of the changes to the information and consultation directive which were agreed in the European Parliament on 23 October on the regulatory burden on small business in the UK. [10985]

Alan Johnson: The proposed directive will not affect small businesses and the European Parliament's proposed amendments do not alter this fact. In the UK the directive will apply to undertakings with 50 or more employees and will, therefore, only affect about 1 per cent. of UK businesses.

WORK AND PENSIONS

International Labour Conference

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will place in the Library the instruments adopted at the 88th session of the International Labour Conference. [13104]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: The 88th session of the International Labour Conference adopted a new convention revising the Maternity Protection Convention 1952 and a Recommendation supplementing the convention. The texts of the instruments have been placed in the Library.

Child Support

Mr. Pickthall: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much the CSA is owed in unpaid maintenance. [11584]

Malcolm Wicks: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the chief executive, Mr. Doug Smith. He will write to my hon. Friend.

Letter from Doug Smith to Mr. Colin Pickthall, dated 1 November 2001:

I am replying to your Parliamentary Question to the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions about the Child Support Agency.

You asked how much the CSA is owed in unpaid maintenance.

The amount of maintenance that is owed as at year ending March 2001 is £527.80million.

In the year 2000/2001 our target was to reduce the amount of outstanding debt by 25%. We met that target and have set ourselves the same challenge for 2001/2002.

Jobcentre Plus

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) if new benefit claimants living in the postcode areas laid out in Schedule 1 of the Social Security (Jobcentre Plus Interviews) Regulations 2001 will be required to visit a new Jobcentre Plus office rather than an existing Benefits Agency or Employment Service office; [12452]

(2) at which office new benefit claimants residing in SW14 will have to attend for compulsory work-focused interviews with reference to Schedule 1 of the Social Security (Jobcentre Plus Interviews) Regulations 2001. [12453]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: Jobcentre Plus will start to roll out nationally next year. At present, only people of working age living within the postcode areas that are served by Jobcentre Plus pathfinders or work-focused interview sites will be required to visit those offices to claim benefits. Other people will continue to make their claims through their local Benefits Agency office or Employment Service Jobcentre. These regulations are not being applied to people who live within the postcode area SW14.

Sign Language

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what help is available for those who wish to pursue signing courses to help with the advancement of an understanding of sign language. [8903]

Margaret Hodge [holding answer 19 October 2001]: I have been asked to reply.

Sign language courses are currently available through a range of FE colleges, universities and schools. There are currently four registered centres for the provision of British sign language training in Gloucestershire. Information about the availability of these courses can be obtained from Careers Services, Connexions Services and providers of information, advice and guidance for adult learners.

The Learning and Skills Council has access to funds to meet or stimulate demand for learning, including signing. For provision that is not publicly funded, my Department can provide individuals with a career development loan covering up to 80 per cent. of the cost of their training.

CHURCH COMMISSIONERS

St. Barnabas Reading

38. Jane Griffiths: To ask the hon. Member for Middlesbrough, representing the Church Commissioners,

if he will make a statement on the financial consequences of the actions of the Diocese of Oxford with regard to St. Barnabas church in Reading. [10059]

Mr. Bell: The Diocese of Oxford is considering proposals for the pastoral reorganisation of the benefice and parish in which St. Barnabas is situated, but has not yet taken any action with respect to this church which has financial consequences.

The Church Commissioners have a quasi-judicial role which they might have to exercise in respect of any proposals made by the diocese, so I am not able to take the matter further on the Floor of the House.

Inter-faith Dialogue

39. Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the hon. Member for Middlesbrough, representing the Church Commissioners, what spending the Commission has allocated for policies designed to encourage inter-faith dialogue. [10060]

Mr. Bell: None. The Church Commissioners' primary legal responsibility is to manage their assets for the support of the Church of England's serving and retired ministry.

Inter-faith policy is not directly a matter for the commissioners.

Works of Art

40. Miss McIntosh: To ask the hon. Member for Middlesbrough, representing the Church Commissioners, what his policy is on the sale of works of art owned by the Church of England. [10061]

Mr. Bell: The majority of such works of art are owned by parish churches and cathedrals. Their disposal is governed by legislation.

The commissioners own relatively few of the Church of England's works of art. They would consider any sale on its merits, in the light of their wider legal duties, and in consultation with interested parties.

Child Care

41. Harry Cohen: To ask the hon. Member for Middlesbrough, representing the Church Commissioners, what money the commissioners have received for child care related matters in the last 12 months; and how it is used. [10062]

Mr. Bell: The commissioners' primary legal responsibility is the financial support of the Church of England's serving and retired ministry. They receive no funds for child care related matters.

Historic Buildings (VAT)

Mr. Tyler: To ask the hon. Member for Middlesbrough, representing the Church Commissioners, what representations the Commissioners have made to the Chancellor of the Exchequer about remission of VAT on repairs and conservation work to historic churches and chapels since 7 March. [10057]

Mr. Bell: The Church of England and other faiths have welcomed the announcement made by my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer, that churches would be eligible to receive reimbursement equivalent to a reduction in VAT payable on the repair and maintenance of listed buildings from 17.5 per cent. to 5 per cent.

The Church has been included in consultation over the implementation of the scheme. We understand this is imminent and that eligible claims will be considered for all work undertaken from 1 April 2001.

PRIME MINISTER

Tibet

Dr. Tonge: To ask the Prime Minister when he will meet the Chinese Vice-President during his visit to the UK this month; and if he will raise the issue of Tibet. [11153]

Harry Cohen: To ask the Prime Minister what discussions he and other Ministers had with the Vice-President of China about the position of Tibet during his recent visit; and if he will make a statement. [12196]

The Prime Minister [holding answer 1 November 2001]: I met Vice-President Hu Jintao on 29 October. The main focus of our discussion was the international coalition against terrorism, but we also discussed a range of other issues including Tibet. Tibet was discussed in detail in a meeting on 30 October between the Under-Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, my hon. Friend the Member for Rotherham (Mr. MacShane), and Chinese Vice Foreign Minister Li Zhaoxing, who was accompanying the Vice-President.

Anthrax

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Prime Minister if he will make a statement on the holdings of anthrax by the Iraqi Government, with special reference to the particular strains held. [12583]

The Prime Minister: After years of denial, Iraq eventually declared to UNSCOM in 1995 that it had produced anthrax as a biological weapon fill for ballistic missile warheads and bombs. It declared it had possessed a number of different strains of the micro-organism. At the time, Iraq claimed to have already destroyed all of its BW weapons and agents. However, it did not provide the evidence, then or subsequently, to enable UNSCOM to verify this.

Contingency Planning

Jon Cruddas: To ask the Prime Minister what sub-committees he has constituted to support the Civil Contingencies Committee in its review of the country's contingency planning arrangements. [12962]

The Prime Minister: I have directed that three new sub-committees be constituted to make recommendations within the remit of the Civil Contingencies Committee.

The Civil Contingencies Committee is a long-standing committee. Its composition and terms of reference are set out together with those of three new sub-committees.

Civil Contingencies Committee

Composition:

Secretary of State for the Home Department (Chairman);

Others, including HM Treasury and the devolved Administrations, will be invited to attend, depending on the contingency.

Terms of Reference:

"To co-ordinate the preparation of plans for ensuring in an emergency the supplies and services essential to the life of the community; to keep these plans under regular review; and to supervise their prompt and effective implementation in specific emergencies."

Sub committee on chemical, biological, radiological and nuclear consequence management—CCC(CBRN)

Composition:

Minister of State with responsibility for crime reduction, policing and community safety—the right hon. Member for Southampton, Itchen (Mr. Denham)—(Chairman).

Officials from:

HM Treasury

Home Office

Foreign and Commonwealth Office

Ministry of Defence

Department for Transport, Local Government and the Regions

Department of Trade and Industry

Department of Health

Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs

Northern Ireland Office

Scotland Office

Wales Office.

The devolved Administrations are invited to attend as are others in accordance with their expertise, experience and responsibilities.

Terms of reference:

"To review contingency and other arrangements to protect the UK against the effects of a terrorist attack using chemical, biological, radiological and nuclear means, particularly in the light of the terrorist attacks of 11 September."

Sub committee on London resilience—CCC(LR)

Composition:

Minister for Local Government (Chairman)

Officials from:

HM Treasury

Department for Transport, Local Government and the Regions

Home Office

Government Office for London.

Others, including the Mayor of London, are invited to attend in accordance with their experience and expertise and in order to engage all responsible organisations in London.

Terms of reference:

"To review contingency arrangements for London, particularly in the light of the terrorist attacks of 11 September."

Sub committee on UK resilience—CCC(UKR)

Composition:

Parliamentary Secretary, Cabinet Office (Chairman)

Officials from:

HM Treasury

Home Office

Ministry of Defence

Department for Transport, Local Government and the Regions

Department of Trade and Industry

Department of Health

Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs

Northern Ireland Office

Scotland Office

Wales Office.

Others, including the devolved Administrations, are invited to attend in accordance with their expertise, experience and responsibilities.

Terms of reference:

"To review contingency arrangements for key suppliers, services and other systems which support the life of the community, particularly in the light of the terrorist attacks of 11 September."

Downing Street

Mr. Allen: To ask the Prime Minister how many people are employed at (a) No. 10 Downing street and (b) the Cabinet Office; and how many were employed there on 1 May 1997. [7134]

The Prime Minister: On 1 September, there were 5,284 staff employed by the Cabinet Office, of whom 175 staff were on the payroll of No. 10. Of these Cabinet Office staff, 2,458 worked in the Government Offices for the Regions.

Staff numbers of 1 May 1997 are not readily available and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Assassination

Harry Cohen: To ask the Prime Minister what the Government's policy is on the assassination of enemy leaders. [11645]

The Prime Minister: Our policy is to act in accordance with UK and international law. One of our key objectives in the on-going military action in Afghanistan is to bring Osama bin Laden to justice.

TRANSPORT, LOCAL GOVERNMENT AND THE REGIONS

Railtrack

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what changes in implementation date he anticipates for the following projects owing to the change of ownership of Railtrack, (a) west coast main line in Scotland (i) overhead line equipment, (ii) electrical distribution systems, (iii) power supply systems and (iv) supervisory control and date acquisition system, (b) Edinburgh Waverley, (c) Glasgow Central, (d) Scottish Express routes, (e) automatic warning systems on Girvan to Stranraer, (f) Mossend interlocking renewal, (g) signal interlocking renewal at Glasgow Central, (h) service improvements throughout the Edinburgh urban routes, (i) new station at Beauly, (j) train protection on routes currently signalled using RETB in the Highland rural route and (k) Edinburgh Crossrail. [10396]

Mr. Jamieson: Railtrack's administration should not itself affect project implementation. The administrator has taken over Railtrack's contractual commitments and the Government will ensure that he has sufficient funds to maintain the full operation of the network. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State would expect any changes to contracts commitments to be agreed with the parties to the contracts and with the Strategic Rail Authority.

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions (1) what assessment his Department has made of the impact of the decision to place Railtrack in administration on the value of local authority pension funds; [12239]

(2) what discussions his Department has had with local authorities on the impact of the Government's intervention in Railtrack on the value of local authority pensions funds. [12238]

Mr. Byers [holding answer 2 November 2001]: My Department is in regular touch with all the interested parties on the effectiveness of the regulations that govern local authorities' responsibility for the management and investment of their pension funds. The regulations are designed to ensure that pension fund portfolios are adequately diversified and so be able to withstand changes in market conditions.

London Underground

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions (1) at which discount rate used for the sensitivity analyses of the effect of changing discount rates on the relative levels of the public sector comparator and the bids for the London Underground PPPs a switching point or switching points were found; and if he will make a statement; [10464]

(2) which discount rates were used for sensitivity analysis of the effect of changing discount rates on the relative levels of the public sector comparator and the bids for the London Underground PPPs; and if he will make a statement. [10472]

Mr. Jamieson: The Government's plans for a publicly run, privately built tube will deliver around £13 billion of investment to improve the underground's infrastructure over the next 15 years. London Transport has yet to receive final bids on these plans. Consequently, it is too early to say whether changing the discount rate will lead to a switching point.

When final bids are received they will be evaluated for value for money on a variety of financing and discounting scenarios.

Ms Bridget Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions how many lines on the London Underground were subject to delayed or cancelled services on Tuesday 23 October; what the cause and length of the subsequent delay was for each line; and if more than one line was affected at any one time. [11559]

Mr. Jamieson: This is an operational matter for London Underground, which confirms that 10 lines (Central, Circle, District, East London, Hammersmith & City, Jubilee, Metropolitan, Northern, Piccadilly, Waterloo & City) were affected by delays (of at least 15 minutes) and/or cancellations. They have provided details of delays, their cause and duration as follows:

Incidents, which were a cause of significant train delays and cancellations on Tuesday, 23 October 2001

Time	Location	Nature of incident	Delay (minutes)
04.24	Royal Oak	Late engineering work. Hammersmith & City Line suspended between Edgware Road to Hammersmith. Circle Line stock was prevented from reaching the service area from Hammersmith depot.	59
04.59	Rayners Lane	No signalman. Service suspended on the Piccadilly Line between South Harrow to Uxbridge and Metropolitan Line between Harrow-on-the-Hill and Uxbridge.	66
05.18	Blackfriars	Late engineering work. District Line suspended between South Kensington and Whitechapel.	28
06.08	Watford	Alleged (subsequently unfounded) signal irregularity. Metropolitan Line suspended between Northwood and Watford.	85
08.06	Canary Wharf	Jubilee Line suspended between Canary Wharf and Stratford due to security alert (white powder found).	65
09.01	Whitechapel	Security alert. Suspensions on the District (Tower Hill to Whitechapel), Hammersmith & City (Plaistow to Liverpool Street) and East London Lines (Shoreditch to Canada Water), due to a suspected World War II bomb (found to be a pipe).	75
10.45	Mansion House	Fire alert. Westbound service on the Circle and District Lines delayed.	20
11.23	Gloucester Road	Fire alert. Westbound service on the Circle and District and Lines delayed.	25
11.48	High Street Kensington	Fire alert. Service suspended between High Street Kensington and Edgware Road on the Circle and District Lines.	47
15.24	High Street Kensington	Report of persons on track. District Line suspended between Earls Court and Edgware Road. Circle Line suspended.	68
16.50	Stratford	Signal failure. Eastbound service on Jubilee Line delayed.	16
17.23	Moorgate	Signal failure. Metropolitan, Circle and Hammersmith & City Lines suspended between Edgware Road and Aldgate.	45
18.09	North Greenwich	Signal failure. Jubilee Line suspended between London Bridge and Stratford.	203
18.19	Ealing Broadway	Security alert. Services suspended to North Acton (Central Line) and Turnham Green (District Line).	34
22.19	London Bridge	Security alert. Northern Line suspended between Kennington to Camden Town.	22
23.31	Royal Oak	Obstruction on track. Hammersmith & City Line suspended between Edgware Road and Hammersmith.	45

Ms Bridget Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what plans his Department has to replace the current fixed block signalling system on London Underground lines with more modern systems; if the moving block computerised system has been considered as an alternative; and when new systems are likely to be implemented. [11561]

Mr. Jamieson: This is a matter for London Underground Ltd. to consider.

London Underground has undertaken £84 million of signalling improvements since the Government announced plans for the modernisation of the tube on 20 May 1998. A further £27 million of improvements are being undertaken in this financial year.

The tube modernisation plans will deliver a massive increase in the level of investment across the underground. Examples of signalling improvements to be delivered in the first period of the contracts include new signals on the Northern line to get the full benefit from the new trains; replacement of the Victoria line signals as part of a complete modernisation package; an upgrade of the Jubilee line signalling; a new signalling control centre on the Piccadilly line; improved signal reliability on the Bakerloo line; and greater signal capacity for the Waterloo and City line. In addition, all the signalling on the Circle, District and Metropolitan lines will be renewed in the next 10 years.

The signalling improvements to be delivered are specified in terms of the outputs required; it is for bidders to decide what type of technology will best achieve the necessary results.

Ms Bridget Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions how many delays on London Underground were reported to have been caused by problems with (a) track and signalling and (b) rolling stock in the latest year that figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [11560]

Mr. Jamieson: This is an operational matter for London Underground, which defines delays as intervals of 15 minutes or more, which is the threshold for granting refunds to passengers under the customer charter. In 2000–01, the latest complete year for which data on delays are available, delays were attributed as follows: (a) track on 236 occasions, and signals on 662 occasions; (b) rolling stock on 569 occasions.

Rail Upgrades (North-East)

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what plans and programmes there were for (a) the upgrade of the east coast main line and (b) for upgrades and extensions of rail lines in the north-east of England as at 1 October. [10924]

Mr. Jamieson: The Strategic Rail Authority (SRA) announced on 14 September that they had allocated £17.5 million for development work for phase two of the project to upgrade the east coast main line. The SRA is also considering a number of applications for funding from the rail passengers partnership scheme including provision of passenger services over the Ashington, Blyth and Tyne line and to reopen the Leamside line.

The SRA intends to submit its strategic plan to Ministers by the end of November which will set out its priorities for enhancement to the network.

Local Parks

Mr. Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what plans the Government have to ensure everyone has access to local parks. [10774]

Ms Keeble: We have established the urban green spaces task force to assist my Department in developing policies and proposals for the future of parks, play areas and green spaces. Ensuring that people have easy access to their local parks and other green spaces is an issue which is being considered and for which we will develop proposals.

County Hall

Mr. Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what amount is outstanding from the sale of County hall, London SE1 to the Shiryam group; how long it has been outstanding; if interest is being charged, and when the balance will be paid in full. [11199]

Dr. Whitehead: The contract for the sale of County hall provided for a deferred sum of £10 million to be paid to the London residuary body from April 1996, subject to the full sum being paid by 2012. Following the winding up of the London residuary body on 29 March 1996, the London borough of Bromley inherited the remaining rights and liabilities in respect of County hall, including those in relation to the payment of this sum. I understand that, in line with the contractual terms, no interest is due and no amount has yet been paid to Bromley.

Strategic Rail Authority

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what salary the chairman of the Strategic Rail Authority will receive. [11220]

Mr. Spellar: This information is set out in the press release issued by my Department on 24 October about this appointment, a copy of which is in the House Library.

Jubilee Line

Ms Bridget Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions how many signal failures were reported on the Jubilee line for the five days from Monday 22 October to Friday 26 October inclusive. [11558]

Mr. Jamieson: I understand from London Underground Ltd. that there were seven signal failures during this period. The recurring problem has been identified and corrected. Its cause is under investigation. Recovery from signal failures on Monday 22 and Tuesday 23 was hampered by a passenger taken ill on a train and a security alert respectively.

Local Government (City of Westminster)

Mr. Mark Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions when he intends to publish the research into public attitudes to local government structures in the City of Westminster. [11644]

Dr. Whitehead: We are currently editing the report of this research for publication, and will issue it in due course. I will write to the hon. Member when the report is published, and place a copy in the Libraries of the House.

Crossrail

Mr. Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions (1) what his latest estimate is of the total cost of completing the Crossrail project; [11654]

(2) what proportion of funding for Crossrail will be required from the private sector. [11653]

Mr. Jamieson: The assumption in the 10-year plan is that construction of Crossrail is to be fully financed by the private sector. In advance of detailed economic appraisal of the options it is difficult to provide an accurate estimate of the cost of the project. Almost £3.5 billion was included in the 10-year-plan as a broad indication of the cost of the infrastructure and new rolling stock. Public support is assumed to be provided in the form of subsequent revenue support, but will depend on the precise project and on negotiations with the rail industry.

A total of £154 million of public funding has been allocated, jointly to the Strategic Rail Authority and Transport for London, for preparation costs of the project in 2001–02 to 2003–04.

White Horse (Folkestone)

Mr. Howard: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what representations he has received from English Nature on the proposal for a white horse on the downs above Folkestone since the end of the inquiry into the proposal. [12866]

Ms Keeble: We have received no further representations on this case from English Nature since the inquiry.

Greater London Authority

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions (1) what was the (a) percentage real-terms increase in the precept on average domestic rates by the Greater London Council in each year from 1975 to its abolition and (b) real-terms increase in the precept on band D council tax by the Greater London Authority since its creation; and if he will make a statement; [12579]

(2) what was (a) the percentage increase in the precept on average domestic rates by the Greater London Council in each year from 1975 to its abolition and (b) the increase in the precept on band D council tax by the Greater London Authority since is creation; and if he will make a statement. [12578]

Mr. Byers: The available information is given in the tables. We shall this week be laying regulations to ensure that percentage cash increases in precepts, including the Greater London Authority's, will be shown clearly on council tax bills from next year.

Greater London Council

	Total rate levied pence in the £	Cash increase percentage	Real terms[1] percentage
1974–75	8.90	[3]—	[3]—
1975–76	16.20	82.0	45.4
1976–77	[3]—	[3]—	[3]—
1977–78[2]	16.10	[3]—	[3]—
1978–79	16.10	0.0	–9.9
1979–80	17.80	10.6	–5.3
1980–81	19.40	9.0	–7.8
1981–82	22.90	18.0	7.8
1982–83	32.70	42.8	33.5
1983–84	37.66	15.2	10.2
1984–85	34.69	–7.9	–12.5
1985–86	33.74	–2.7	–7.8

[1] Adjusted using the GDP deflator at market prices
[2] Figures for 1977–78 onwards are taken from a different publication from those for earlier years and so may be on a slightly different basis
[3] Not available
[4] Not applicable, as the Greater London Authority did not exist in 1999–2000
Sources:
DOE and Welsh Office "Rates and Rateable Values in England and Wales", 1974–75 and 1975–76 editions
CIPFA "Financial, General & Rating Statistics", 1977–78 to 1981–82 editions
CIPFA "Financial and General Statistics" 1982–83 to 1985–86 editions
BR returns for 2000–01 and 2001–02

Greater London Authority

	Council tax per band D property (£)	Cash increase (percentage)	Real terms[1] (percentage)
2000–01	122.98	[2]—	[2]—
2001–02	150.88	22.7	19.7

[1] Adjusted using the GDP deflator at market prices
[2] Figures for 1977–78 onwards are taken from a different publication from those for earlier years and so may be on a slightly different basis
Sources:
DOE and Welsh Office "Rates and Rateable Values in England and Wales", 1974–75 and 1975–76 editions
CIPFA "Financial, General & Rating Statistics", 1977–78 to 1981–82 editions
CIPFA "Financial and General Statistics", 1982–83 to 1985–86 editions
BR returns for 2000–01 and 2001–02

Regional Planning

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions (1) further to the publication of PPG 11, what plans his Department has to increase the scope of regional planning; and if he will make a statement; [12572]

(2) what plans his Department has to issue new or revised national planning policy guidance in the next 12 months; if he will list the new guidance notes; and if he will make a statement. [12573]

Mr. Byers: I shall be issuing a Green Paper shortly setting out proposals for comprehensive reform of the planning system.

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what plans his Department has to issue new or revised regional planning policy guidance in the next 12 months; if he will list the new guidance notes; and if he will make a statement. [12574]

Mr. Byers: Regional planning guidance is issued by the Government offices. Since November 2000, revised regional planning policy guidance has been issued for East Anglia (RPG 6), the south-east (RPG 9), the south-west (RPG 10) and Yorkshire and the Humber (RPG 12). Over the next 12 months, new or revised regional planning policy guidance is due to be issued for the east midlands (RPG 8), the north-east (RPG 1) and the north-west (RPG 13). Draft revised regional planning guidance (RPG 11) for the west midlands, as prepared by the west midlands local government association, will be published for consultation very shortly.

Elections

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what plans his Department has to increase turnout in (a) London Assembly and mayoral elections and (b) European parliamentary elections. [12581]

Mr. Byers: As the Electoral Commission stated in its report on the 2001 general election:

> "responsibility for re-engaging the electorate with the democratic process must rest in large part with the political parties".

However, our programme for modernising electoral processes is aimed at improving access to electoral services for all elections. As a first step in October, we, in conjunction with the Electoral Commission and the Local Government Association, invited local authorities to apply to run innovative electoral pilot projects—including all-postal voting and online voting—at next May's local elections. We will consider how to take forward any lessons learned from those pilots in the London Assembly and mayoral elections and in the European parliamentary elections. The Electoral Commission is also examining the underlying reasons for low turnout and we will consider any conclusions they reach very carefully.

3G Technology

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what discussions he has had with the (a) Treasury and (b) Department of Trade and Industry concerning 3G mobile phone licences. [12570]

Mr. Byers: This Department had no discussion with either the Treasury or the Department of Trade and Industry over the awarding of the 3G mobile phone licences to the five successful bidders. Officials in this Department liaised with officials in the Department of Trade and Industry over the production of the information memorandum sent to prospective participants in the 3G auction to ensure that it contained accurate details of the planning regime as it applied to telecommunications apparatus.

From time to time, officials in this Department liaise with officials in the Department of Trade and Industry on specific licence conditions, such as conditions requiring operators to explore the possibility of mast sharing.

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what estimates his Department has made of the increase in demand for additional mobile phone masts that will result from the implementation of 3G technology; and if he will make a statement. [12569]

Mr. Byers: This is a matter for the individual telecommunications operators. However, the operators are fully aware of the importance we attach to keeping the number of masts to the minimum practicable, for example through mast sharing, and to ensuring that those which are needed are designed and sited with sensitivity and care.

Schooling (Hackney)

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what role he has played in the provision of schooling in the London borough of Hackney. [12580]

Mr. Byers: The provision of schooling is a matter for the Secretary of State for Education and Skills. My Department pays revenue and capital grants to local authorities for a range of local services including the provision of schooling.

Loft Conversions

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what plans he has to require planning permission to be obtained for loft conversions; and if he will make a statement. [12457]

Ms Keeble: Currently, loft conversions may or may not require planning applications depending on the circumstances of the case and the relevant permitted development rights. We will set out proposals for the future in our planning Green Paper.

Park Homes

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what plans he has to introduce legislation in relation to park homes; and if he will make a statement. [12454]

Ms Keeble: Changes to the legislation relating to park homes were included in the recommendations of the park homes working party. We have consulted on, and are considering, the working party's recommendations. We hope to be able to announce our conclusions on this shortly.

Motorcyclists

Mr. Rooney: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what restrictions apply to the wearing of black visors by motorcyclists. [12249]

Mr. Jamieson: Visors worn by motorcyclists on a road must either comply with British Standard BS4110:1979 (as amended) or with UN ECE Regulation 22.05. These standards allow visors to have a moderate tint which allows at least 50 per cent. of the light to pass through.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Departmental Publications

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many publications were issued by her Department in each of the last four years. [11833]

Clare Short: Since 1997 we have published all our major strategy documents, including all country and institutional strategy papers, as well as major consultation papers and speeches. Our publishing output has therefore expanded considerably.

Due to the disproportionate cost involved we are not able to provide the full level of details requested. However within the main categories we have produced:

Category	2001–02	2000–01	1999–2000	1998–99	Total
White papers	—	1	—	—	1
Country strategy papers	4	10	12	18	44
Institutional strategy papers	5	9	6	2	22
Consultation papers (IDTs)	—	1	8	—	9
Target strategy papers (TSPs)	1	8	—	—	9
Background briefings	15	6	3	3	27
Speech booklets	1	8	11	8	28
Issues of Developments magazine	2	4	4	4	14

We also produce a publications catalogue which is updated every six months and lists the majority of departmental publications produced since 1997, together with information on how to obtain copies. A copy of the latest edition (October 2001) has been placed in the House of Commons Library.

Belize

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development, pursuant to her answer of 2 July 2001, Official Report, columns 41–42W, on Belize, if she will place in the Library copies of the documents which recorded the conversation between her Permanent Secretary and the senior partner of KPMG on 18 May. [11615]

Clare Short: The conversation was confidential to the parties concerned.

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development on what date her Department obtained legal advice on the validity and applicability of the 1982 Britain-Belize Investor Protection Treaty for the Public Investment Companies with regard to the study commissioned by her Department to review the regulation of offshore financial services in Belize and the effect of tax exemptions on pro-poor programmes; what the conclusion of this legal advice was; on what date this advice was passed to the Government of Belize; and if she will place in the Library a copy of this advice. [11602]

Clare Short: Counsel's advice was received on 7 September and passed to the Government of Belize on 13 September. The advice is confidential to the UK and Belize Governments.

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if her Department requested KPMG to assess whether the 1982 Britain-Belize Investor Protection Treaty applied to the public investment companies during the study commissioned by her Department to review the regulation of offshore financial services in Belize and the effect of tax exemptions on pro-poor programmes; when this request was made by her Department; what the conclusion of this assessment was; and if she will place in the Library a copy of KPMG's assessment. [11604]

Clare Short: The request was implicit in the terms of reference for the study KPMG was contracted to undertake on 11 July 2000. KPMG's conclusion on this assessment was recorded in their report on the study. I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 11 July 2001, Official Report, column 531W, concerning the confidentiality of the KPMG report.

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development, pursuant to her answer of 13 July 2001, Official Report, column 653W, on Belize, if she will place in the Library (a) a copy of the correspondence of 25 August 2000 in which her Department was informed by KPMG that KPMG were the external auditors of the Belize Bank and (b) copies of responses made by her Department to KPMG following the receipt of this correspondence. [11611]

Clare Short: A copy of the letter dated 25 August 2000 to DFID will be placed in the Library. The enclosures referred to in that letter are confidential to the parties concerned. No written response was made to this letter.

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what meetings her Department has held since 3 August with the Government of Belize to discuss progress on the Commonwealth debt initiative and the effect of tax exemptions and public investment companies on pro-poor programmes; where each of these meetings took place; and which departments of the Government of Belize attended. [11603]

Clare Short: Following my decision on CDI, referred to in my answer to question [6605] and sent to you during the recess, I met with Prime Minister Said Musa in London on 22 October to discuss this and other matters relevant to Belize.

India

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what projects her Department supports in India; and what the amount of grants is in each case. [11395]

Clare Short: All project support to India is provided in the form of grants. The table provides details of active projects and total financial commitment.

£

SI Number	Projects	Total commitment
Andhra Pradesh
1	Andhra Pradesh Energy Efficiency Project	42,700,000
2	Andhra Pradesh Power Sector Reform Project	31,500,000
3	Andhra Pradesh Economic Restructuring Project	5,300,000
4	Andhra Pradesh Rural Livelihoods Project	45,543,000
5	Andhra Pradesh Urban Services for the Poor	94,413,000
6	Impact and Expenditure Review for Government of Andhra Pradesh Project	600,000
7	Andhra Pradesh Governance Reform Project	5,900,000
Karnataka
8	Karnataka Watershed Development Project	14,758,000
9	IISD/MYRADA—Project on developing appreciative inquiry technique	105,052
10	Western Ghats Forestry Project	23,294,000
11	OXFAM—Western Ghats Parallel Project	173,643
West Bengal
12	West Bengal Sexual Health Project	4,780,000
13	Eastern India Rainfed Farming Project	8,091,000
14	Calcutta Slum Improvement Project	12,620,000
15	West Bengal Reproductive and Child Health Project	2,990,000
16	ADB—Calcutta Environment Improvement Project	28,300,000
17	Christian Aid and Churches Auxiliary for Social Action Project	1,200,000
18	Enhancing Pro-poor Governance in West Bengal and Bihar	212,000
Madhya Pradesh
19	Support to Self Employed Womens Association	14,000
20	Madhya Pradesh Public Resource Management Project	350,000
21	Western India Rainfed Farming Project Phase II	27,920,000
22	Bihar—Madhya Pradesh Tribal Development Project	7,000,000
23	Natural Resources Management Project in the Bundelkhund Region	1,170,000
24	Indore Financial Services for the Poor Project	79,000
Orissa
25	Western Orissa Rural Livelihoods Project	32,750,000
26	IFAD Tribal Development Project	25,000
27	Orissa Power Sector Aid	67,000,000
28	Hirakund Rehabilitation Project	21,400,000
29	Orissa Gridco (Power Sector Reform) Restructuring Project	6,000,000
30	Energy: Orissa Rural Community Electric Supplies (CENDERET project)	1,000,000
31	Energy: Dadri Dry Ash Disposal Project	1,700,000
32	Orissa Power Sector Reform: Field Management	4,013,037
33	Orissa Public Sector Reforms Programme	19,000,000
34	Orissa Budgetary Aid—Design Phase	25,000
35	Orissa Health and Family Welfare Project Phase 3	3,827,000
36	Orissa Social Marketing—PSI	2,270,000
37	Orissa Urban Reproductive Health Project	4,997,780
38	Cuttack Urban Slum Improvement Project	12,720,000
39	Orissa cyclone rehabilitation initiatives	57,848,850
National
40	ILO-International Programme on the Elimination of Child Labour	2,860,000
41	Revised National Tuberculosis Project	20,570,000
42	WHO Operational Research on Tuberculosis	719,370
43	World Bank Trust Fund	4,000,000
44	ADB-Poverty Trust Fund	20,000,000
45	CARE: Credit and Saving for Household Enterprises Project	9,852,401
46	Haryana power Sector Reform and Restructuring Project	15,000,000
47	Indo/UK collaboration on Oil Seed crops Phase II	2,000,000
48	Development of Watershed Guidelines Project	60,000
49	Forestry Training Project	2,020,000
50	Integrated Coastal zone management training Project	1,000,000
51	Private Sector Forestry Project	114,000
52	Rural Development Programme Support Fund	100,000
53	Education: Shiksha Karmi Project Phase II	20,140,000
54	Education: Lok Jumbish Project	31,423,000
55	Pulse Polio Project	40,813,000
56	Poorest Areas Civil Society Programme	27,000,000
57	STD: Truck Drivers (Support to HIV/AIDS programme targeted at the Highway community)	4,500,000
58	Partnership for Sexual Health Project (Support to HIV/AIDS Programme)	28,180,000
59	Gender Centre	2,000,000
60	Public Administration training project	4,650,000
61	Training Development of Indian Police	1,180,000

£

SI Number	Projects	Total commitment
62	BBC Marshall Plan for the Mind Project	1,217,825
63	Small Industries Development Banking of India support project	16,585,000
64	Community Ophthalmology Blindness programme support	1,119,754
65	Environment and Poverty Link	200,000
66	Health Systems policy development support	800,000
67	Management Development for senior urban public health officials	1,460,000
68	UNDP Monitoring and Evaluation Project	60,000
69	Small Grants Scheme	212,000
70	Water and sanitation Programme-South Asia	2,520,000
71	Credit and Micro-enterprise support project	500,000
72	UNICEF: Child Environment Improvement Project	17,500,000
73	District Primary Education Project (AP+WB+Orissa)	166,416,000
Others
74	Himachal Pradesh Forestry Project	6,399,000
75	Cochin Urban Poverty Reduction Project	11,947,000
76	Natural Resources Management Project in the Western Himalayas	182,000

Tajikistan

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what estimate she has made of the extent of poverty and malnutrition in Tajikistan; and what aid has been offered to Tajikistan by the United Kingdom (a) directly and (b) through the programmes of the EU and United Nations. [10923]

Clare Short: Reliable data on Tajikistan are scarce. It is one of the poorest countries of the former Soviet Union, with rates of acute malnutrition ranging between 6.4 and 10.3 per cent. in different areas.

Since 1994, the United Kingdom has offered a total of £29.7 million to Tajikistan. Of this, £1 million has been through DFID's direct programme. DFID has also channelled £9.5 million into humanitarian assistance. £11.8 million has been provided through the European Commission, mainly to ECHO (EC Humanitarian Office) programmes. £1 million has been allocated to ECHO this year. £1.2 million has been offered to Tajikistan through programmes of the United Nations.

DEFENCE

Harrier Pilots

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the total requirement is for trained Harrier pilots in the (a) Navy and (b) RAF; and how many there are at present in each case. [11578]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 31 October 2001]: The naval requirement for Sea Harrier pilots (Commander and below) as at 1 October 2001 was 64, with an authorised increase to 66 planned for 1 April 2003. The current naval strength (Commander and below) is 44. The Royal Air Force requires 85 Harrier pilots to fill Harrier GR7-specific flying and flying related ground appointments (Wing Commander and below). It has a current strength of 102 Harrier pilots. A number of these are filling career broadening posts such as staff appointments, or are serving as qualified flying instructors or with the RAF Aerobatic Team, and some are on exchange postings.

Retention

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has to improve retention rates within the armed forces. [10067]

Mr. Ingram: Armed forces retention is being tackled as a matter of the highest priority. Our aim is to maintain good levels of retention through policies that genuinely reflect the priorities of our people and their families, both at home and on deployment. A key outcome of the Strategic Defence Review (SDR) was a widespread recognition of the need for an Armed Forces Overarching Personnel Strategy (AFOPS) as part of the 'Policy for People'. This was introduced in April 2000 to give more emphasis to personal issues. The SDR 'Policy for People' included some of the following aims: better terms and conditions; improvements to pay and allowances; better quality of training; addressing concerns about family life; ensuring equality of opportunity and provision of better accommodation. All these have now been embodied in the AFOPS Action Plan.

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his policy is to improve the career prospects and retention of young service men and women; and if he will make a statement. [10570]

Mr. Ingram: A wide range of challenging careers are offered to both young men and women joining the services. We need over 25,000 high quality, well motivated recruits each year to maintain the correct balance of age and experience; and the need for and success of training is therefore crucial to the continuing operational success of our armed forces. The Defence Training Review, completed earlier this year, emphasised the importance of transferable qualifications to both the recruitment and the retention of personnel in the armed forces. An earlier scheme to come out of the Strategic Defence Review (SDR) was the 'Learning Forces Initiative' which provides opportunities for service personnel to gain transferable skills and recognised civilian qualifications, not only improving and enriching their service careers but also preparing them for their second careers. The armed forces are also working closely with a number of key authorities to deliver increased recognition of service education and training leading to academic, vocational and professional qualifications. In summary, the armed forces provide attractive career prospects by offering: high quality training; accreditation of training wherever possible, against nationally recognised standards; a wide range of professionally demanding jobs, with many offering significant amounts of responsibility early on in careers; good promotion opportunities; encouragement to serve to age 40 or beyond; and provision of education facilities and grants to assist with the cost of education.

Armed forces retention is being tackled as a matter of the highest priority. Our aim is to maintain good levels of retention through policies that genuinely reflect the priorities of our people and their families, both at home and on deployment. A key outcome of the Strategic Defence Review was a widespread recognition of the need for an Armed Forces Overarching Personnel Strategy (AFOPS) as part of the 'Policy for People'. This was introduced in April 2000 to give more emphasis to personnel issues. The SDR 'Policy for People' included some of the following aims: better terms and conditions; improvements to pay and allowances; better quality of training; addressing concerns about family life; ensuring equality of opportunity and provision of better accommodation. New initiatives are under way in all of these areas.

Armed Forces (Pensions)

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when the report on the armed forces pension scheme will be published. [10108]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 29 October 2001]: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 25 October 2001, Official Report, column 319W.

Departmental Assets

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what stocks of (a) antiques, (b) paintings and (c) fine wines are held by his Department; if he will list such assets sold over the last three years together with the sale proceeds from such transactions; what plans he has to sell further such assets over the period of the current Comprehensive Spending Review; and if he will make a statement. [10837]

Dr. Moonie [holding answer 31 October 2001]: The Ministry of Defence has approximately 250 significant antiques, such as clocks and furniture, together with many more having little intrinsic value but some historic interest to the Department. The Department also has approximately 800 works of fine art, together with many more miscellaneous items of little intrinsic value, such as photographs, reproductions, maps and manuscripts. The Department has no stocks of fine wines. None of these assets has been sold over the last three years, and there are no plans to sell any over the period of the current Comprehensive Spending Review. The terms of bequest of many of the most important pieces prohibit disposal. Additionally, the Department is responsible for the many Regimental Museums throughout the country, whose collections are open to the public, and for minor collections of publicly owned works of art, such as the Sandhurst Collection, which are displayed at the Royal Military Academy.

Debt of Honour Register

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will set up a website giving a debt of honour register similar to that on the Commonwealth War Graves Commission website, to provide personal and service details and places of commemoration for those armed forces personnel who have served and died for their country since the second world war. [12666]

Dr. Moonie: There are currently no plans to set up a website to commemorate those service personnel who have died since the end of the Second World War. However, the subject is being considered as an additional initiative which could be undertaken in collaboration with the proposals to establish a new memorial to armed forces personnel who have died in the post-war years, which my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Defence announced on 10 November 2000, Official Report, column 414W.

Challenger 2

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Challenger 2 main battle tanks failed to complete Exercise Saif Sareea 2 because of mechanical or technical problems. [11636]

Mr. Hoon: A total of 65 Challenger 2 were deployed on Exercise Saif Sareea 2. The exercise was designed, deliberately, to test the military equipment and personnel deployed on it. Its duration, complexity and the very harsh environmental conditions in which it was conducted combined to offer an excellent training opportunity, enabling us to identify, under realistic conditions, the challenges we might face in future operations. Complex equipment requires routine maintenance to ensure continued peak performance, resulting in temporary periods of non-availability. This is entirely to be expected for deployments of this nature and represents an integral part of the training process.

Experience gained from the early stages of the exercise in logistically sustaining the Challenger 2 fleet required some rescoping of the exercise programme to ensure that the required supply of spares could be sustained. Against this revised programme of activity, the average availability of Challenger 2 was in excess of 80 per cent. and would have been higher if there had not been a delay in a routine supply of track spares.

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the expected life is of airfilters used in Challenger 2 main battle tanks in desert conditions. [11638]

Dr. Moonie: The designed life of the Challenger 2 Main Battle Tank air filter was 14 hours when used in extreme desert conditions. Work is currently in hand to determine whether the expected life of the air filter needs to be adjusted in the light of recent experience gained from operating the tank in desert conditions. Stock levels will be adjusted accordingly.

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the cost of converting Challenger 2 main battle tanks for desert conditions. [11637]

Dr. Moonie: Two options have been investigated for the desertisation of Challenger 2 Main Battle Tanks (CR2 MBT). The first involves a modification package, and would cost approximately £140,000 per tank. The second option, which involves remodelling the main engine compartment, is based on the Omani CR2 MBT. This would cost approximately £250,000 per tank.

Army Foundation College

Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when a decision will be made on the establishment of an Army Foundation College in Dundee; and where the other proposed sites are for this establishment. [12186]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 2 November 2001]: The Army needs to attract good quality young people by providing excellent education and work-related training in good facilities. The Army Foundation College (AFC) at Harrogate in Yorkshire provides this, but is currently oversubscribed. The Army are working on new proposals for a second more flexible college for the provision of improved facilities for a range of abilities and age groups. Various alternatives are under study, including establishing a second AFC delivered through partnership. If it were decided to pursue a second college by way of a Public Private Partnership, it would be announced through the Official Journal of the European Community in the normal way. It would then be open for an proposals for the college, including its location, to be put forward for consideration as part of the competitive process. We anticipate a variety of sites, including existing Ministry of Defence and other locations, to be proposed.

A decision on the way forward is unlikely before next year.

Royal Prerogative

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many ministerial decisions were made where authority for the same derived from the royal prerogative in the most recent calendar month for which information is available. [9369]

Dr. Moonie: Records are not kept of the individual occasions on which powers under the royal prerogative are exercised nor could it be practicable to do so.

Pharmaceutical Plants (Security)

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make it his policy to ensure that plants which manufacture antibiotics for the treatment of anthrax and other biological or chemical weapons are given enhanced security. [10589]

Mr. Ingram: The level of security in place at commercial establishments that manufacture antibiotics and other agents to counter biological or chemical weapons is based on the threat pertaining to that establishment. In the first instance, security is a matter for the owners/operators of the establishments. Beyond that, security rests with the police who can, if they feel the threat is beyond their capacity, call on established procedures to augment security, for example, through military assistance, at such establishments. The security of such facilities is also under active review as a result of the events of 11 September.

Role 3 Field Hospital

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much funding he is providing for the establishment of a Role 3 field hospital in partnership with the Netherlands; and if he will make a statement. [11781]

Dr. Moonie: We are not making any funding available specifically to establish a Role 3 field hospital in partnership with the Netherlands. We have signed a Memorandum of Understanding with the Netherlands setting out arrangements for the joint provision of an integrated Role 3 medical unit on future peacekeeping, peace enforcement or humanitarian relief operations in which both nations wish to participate. The aim is to make sensible and cost-effective use of valuable medical resources and avoid duplication of medical support. Existing resources will be used and the integrated Role 3 unit will be formed only when required. Medical personnel of both nations will undertake training and exercises together when possible to develop and foster interoperability.

HMS Ocean

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much time HMS Ocean spent in dock undergoing repairs, before being handed over to the Royal Navy; how much time she has spent in service at sea, since she was handed over to the Royal Navy; and if he will make a statement. [11755]

Mr. Ingram: During the period between HMS Ocean's launch in October 1995 and her handover to the Royal Navy in March 1999, she spent some 15 weeks in dock undergoing repairs. Since then, she has been available for programming, either at sea or in harbour, for a total of 904 days.

Gurkhas

Mr. Wilkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the Gurkha reinforcement companies in the British Army and the units to which they are assigned. [12617]

Mr. Ingram: Gurkha Reinforcement Companies are currently serving with the 2nd Battalion, Parachute Regiment in Colchester, 1 Royal Irish based in Canterbury and 1 Highlanders in Edinburgh. In addition, there are formed Gurkha units serving with 10 Transport Regiment, 30 Signal Regiment, 36 Engineer Regiment and in training establishments at Sandhurst and Brecon.

Suez Campaign Medal

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has to introduce a medal for the Suez campaign; and if he will make a statement on how veterans of that conflict may be recognised for their contribution. [12629]

Dr. Moonie: Service in the Suez Campaign, the Anglo/French Landings which took place in late 1956 as Operation Musketeer, was recognised by the institution of the Naval General Service Medal for Royal Navy personnel and the General Service Medal for Army and Royal Air Force personnel, with clasp Near East. There are no plans to institute a medal for service in the Canal Zone during the early 1950s.

Glencorse Barracks

Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what funds will be made available to maintain Glencorse Barracks pending announcement of plans for its reuse. [12188]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 2 November 2001]: Although the Army's Initial Training function based at Glencorse Barracks will transfer to Catterick during 2002, the Recruit Selection Centre will remain at Glencorse and will be funded to maintain its activity.

Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what plans he has to house an infantry battalion in Glencorse Barracks; and when this will take place; [12189]

(2) if the options for Glencorse Barracks include stationing an infantry battalion there. [12185]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 2 November 2001]: The Army's Initial Training function based at Glencorse Barracks will transfer to the School of Infantry at Catterick during 2002. The Recruit Selection Centre will, however, remain at Glencorse and it is the intention to retain a further Army presence there, although the extent of this has not yet been established.

Gibraltar Regiment

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has to celebrate 300 years of British rule in Gibraltar. [13011]

Dr. Moonie: At the present time the Ministry of Defence has made no plans to celebrate the 300th Anniversary of British rule in Gibraltar and has not received any requests for participation in any events which are being organised.

Chinooks

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Chinooks were unserviceable during Exercise Saif Sareea 2; and for what period of time. [11747]

Mr. Hoon: The eight Chinook helicopters deployed on Exercise Saif Sareea 2 performed well in very testing environmental conditions. Their availability varied throughout the exercise. This was in part affected by engineering instructions issued from the UK that required non-exercise related maintenance on a number of air frames.

The average daily availability rate during the main period of the exercise was around 70 per cent.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Ovine BSE (Research)

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on what basis she was convinced that the information concerning tests to establish the presence of BSE in sheep, presented to her Department by the Laboratory of the Government Chemist on 17 October would leak; who she was convinced would leak the information; and if she will make a statement. [10607]

Margaret Beckett [holding answer 26 October 2001]: The theoretical possibility of BSE in sheep is an issue of great sensitivity, generating widespread public interest. In light of the information a scheduled meeting of SEAC was—by the decision of its chairman—cancelled at short notice. This in itself was likely to stimulate further interest. In such circumstances, it is reasonable to assume that the possibility of leaks will be much higher and their impact more serious.

A press release was issued on 17 October about what we knew for certain. This was done to avoid the risk of information on a serious issue being presented incorrectly and piecemeal. Nor did we want to exacerbate public concern—in a situation of uncertainty—by giving the impression that the Government were withholding important information.

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if the results of the inquiries into the errors made by the Institute of Animal Health in relation to BSE in sheep will be made public. [9914]

Margaret Beckett: Urgent and independent scientific inquiries have been established already. We will not know the full facts until they have reported. We will continue to keep the House and the public informed of developments.

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans she has to conduct further research into whether BSE is present in the national sheep flock; and if she will made a statement. [9918]

Margaret Beckett: We will carry out a thorough review of the full range of scientific studies currently being undertaken in this area. In doing so we will take account of work that is being conducted elsewhere in Europe and the views of the Food Standards Agency and the Spongiform Encephalopathy Advisory Committee. Findings will be made available to the House.

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what inquiries have been commissioned into the results of the Institute of Animal Health in relation to BSE in sheep; and if she will made a statement; [9921]

(2) if she will establish an independent inquiry into the failure of the research into whether BSE is present in sheep. [9912]

Margaret Beckett: Following the receipt of the results of DNA testing by the Laboratory of the Government Chemist on Wednesday 17 October, an independent risk assessment company was immediately commissioned to perform a detailed audit of the Institute of Animal Health research into BSE and sheep; including how the relevant samples were stored and handled.

Additionally, the UK Accreditation Service (UKAS) has been asked to undertake to a longer time scale a rigorous assessment of the chain of custody arrangements for the IAH experiment.

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will give details of all work commissioned or undertaken by (a) the Government and (b) its agencies into BSE in sheep since

May 1997, stating, in each case (i) which organisations have been involved in which tasks and (ii) what costs or payments have been incurred. [10603]

Margaret Beckett [holding answer 26 October 2001]: A list of all research projects on TSEs, funded by UK funding bodies, is available on the MRC website at http://www.mrc/ac.uk/tse—2c.htm. This includes details of duration and cost of projects and the research organisations involved, as well as abstracts of the research projects.

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what measures she is taking to achieve faster results from tests to establish whether sheep have been infected with BSE. [10615]

Margaret Beckett [holding answer 26 October 2001]: Work is being undertaken to develop molecular profiling techniques so that a rapid, initial indication of whether BSE is likely to be present can be obtained. This will allow screening of the material that is to be tested using conventional strain typing in mice. The latter method, which is the test that has been used to date to distinguish between scrapie and BSE is very slow, taking up to two years to complete.

Of course this area will be examined as part of the thorough review of the range of scientific studies currently being undertaken into BSE and sheep; as I announced on 22 October.

Scrapie

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when she intends to publish a Bill to enable the Government to take powers to ensure the removal, from the national sheep flock, of genotypes of sheep susceptible to scrapie; and if she will make a statement. [10597]

Margaret Beckett [holding answer 26 October 2001]: The Bill was published on 25 October.

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what measures she is taking to eliminate scrapie from the national sheep flock; and if she will make a statement. [10609]

Margaret Beckett [holding answer 26 October 2001]: The Government launched a national scrapie plan for Great Britain in July. This will breed resistance to scrapie into the national flock.

The plan has initially been targeted at producers of purebred, pedigree breeding sheep registered with a recognised breed society. We are currently consulting about rapid extension of the plan to the remainder of the pure breeding flock, including special action for scrapie-infected flocks. We are considering other ways of speeding up implementation of the plan and we recently announced our intention to introduce a Bill that would allow the Government to take powers to remove from the breeding flock, on a compulsory basis, sheep with genotypes that make them susceptible to scrapie.

We are also consulting on ways to encourage the reporting of scrapie when it occurs, and next year we will be undertaking a survey to gain more knowledge of the incidence of scrapie, using rapid testing methods.

Agrimonetary Compensation

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what would be the estimated net cost to public funds of drawing down all EU agrimonetary compensation packages currently available. [8908]

Margaret Beckett [holding answer 19 October 2001]: There is approximately £55 million of agrimonetary compensation currently available for the arable sector. The net cost to the UK Exchequer of drawing down this sum would be approximately £47 million.

Foot and Mouth

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will make a statement on the effect on the environment of dioxin veltase associated with the disposal of carcases during the foot and mouth outbreak. [7868]

Margaret Beckett [holding answer 15 October 2001]: Dioxins have been measured in the air and the environment around some of the pyres used to dispose of carcases during the foot and mouth outbreak. All this monitoring data will be reported on the Department of Health website.

Analysis of the air measurements and modelling by the Environment Agency suggest that earlier estimates of dioxin emissions were likely to have been overestimates and to have erred on the precautionary side.

Levels of dioxins measured in soil, herbage and food were mostly similar to levels at control farms not affected by pyres. Some chemical analysis of ash from pyres has been performed. Levels of dioxins were within the range found in urban soils.

The Food Standards Agency considers that the available results show that the pyres have posed no additional risk to health through the food supply.

Dr. Richard Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans she has to give financial assistance to the Youth Hostel Association to offset the impact of foot and mouth disease. [11186]

Alun Michael: We are well aware of the impact that foot and mouth disease and the measures to control it have had on the Youth Hostel Association's finances. I and the Minister with responsibility for tourism, my hon. Friend the Under-Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport, have met representatives of the YHA to discuss their difficulties and possible sources of help. We have recently announced a change to the guidelines for the Business Recovery Fund to clarify that individual hostels, if their applications meet the Fund criteria, may apply for assistance in their own right. In the light of the recommendations of the rural task force which I chair, published on 18 October, we are considering what further help might be made available.

Meat Imports

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what measures she is taking to tighten controls on the importation of meat products. [7872]

Margaret Beckett [holding answer 15 October 2001]: My Department is co-ordinating action across Government to improve our ability to detect and prevent illegal imports. Improved publicity for travellers has been introduced. Posters have been placed at main airports and information is being provided by the travel industry and FCO posts abroad. National legislation has been amended to make it easier for local authorities to act when illegally imported meat is found and the Food Standards Agency are encouraging local authorities to ensure that checks for illegal imports are part of their routine inspections of food premises. An improved system of sharing and analysing of information has been introduced to enable enforcement bodies to target action more effectively. We are also looking at other ways in which enforcement of import controls may be improved.

Waste Incineration

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans she has to reduce the amount of waste being disposed of by incineration; and if she will make a statement. [8287]

Margaret Beckett [holding answer 18 October 2001]: Our priority is to meet the requirement of the Landfill Directive to divert biodegradable municipal waste away from landfill by maximising recycling and composting and minimising the need for incineration and landfill. In order to achieve this the Government have set tough statutory targets under best value for local authorities to double the amount of household waste recycled by 2003–04 and treble it by 2005–06, and will set further targets for later years.

Veterinary Medicinal Products

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will make a statement on European Commission proposals to reclassify veterinary medicinal products as prescription only medicines. [11726]

Margaret Beckett [holding answer 1 November 2001]: This proposal forms part of a much wider set of proposals produced by the European Commission to amend the procedures for the authorisation and control of both human and veterinary medicines in the EU. In considering the proposal the Government have taken account of its likely impact on the supply of veterinary medicines and have agreed that, during negotiations, UK officials should seek to modify the proposal to enable a flexible approach to the distribution of veterinary medicinal products that takes advantage of existing national practices, so long as consumer protection and animal welfare can be demonstrably assured.

Food Imports

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent representations she has received from the Food Standards Agency regarding the adequacy of food import controls; and if she will make a statement. [10614]

Margaret Beckett [holding answer 26 October 2001]: Officials from my Department and the Food Standards Agency meet on a regular basis to discuss food import issues. There have been no representations from FSA to DEFRA other than these discussions.

Civil Servants

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many civil servants are employed in each area of her Department's responsibilities, and at what grades; and what the equivalent figures for the same responsibilities were prior to the establishment of DEFRA. [10618]

Margaret Beckett [holding answer 26 October 2001]: The information requested is given in the figures. The data are derived from different sources and this may lead to minor inconsistencies. The figures relate to people in post; they include staff employed to deal with foot and mouth disease and those who are in the process of transferring to the Rural Payments Agency. The figures are expressed as grade equivalents.

	Core MAFF and DETR Central[1]	Core DEFRA[2]
Agriculture and Food
SCS	12	12
Grade 6	5	4
Grade 7	47	45
SEO	54	53
HEO	177	177
EO	145	139
AO	99	88
AA	64	59
Total	603	577
Fisheries
SCS	4	3
Grade 6	1	1
Grade 7	16	14
SEO	17	16
HEO	32	28
EO	63	65
AO	43	47
AA	46	43
Total	222	217
Environment, Rural and Regional Services
SCS	40	42
Grade 6	14	21
Grade 7	138	154
SEO	104	150
HEO	325	768
EO	792	885
AO	1,365	1,437
AA	650	618
Total	3,428	4,075
Animal Health (including State Veterinary Service)
SCS	22	24
Grade 6	36	39
Grade 7	54	57
SEO	255	249
HEO	109	127
EO	435	682
AO	794	1,151
AA	516	585
Total	2,221	2,914
Science Directorate
SCS	3	4
Grade 6	8	8
Grade 7	11	12
SEO	11	10
HEO	17	15
EO	22	22
AO	26	25
AA	10	5
Total	108	101

	Core MAFF and DETR Central[1]	Core DEFRA[2]
European Union and International Policy
SCS	3	4
Grade 6	0	0
Grade 7	9	6
SEO	4	4
HEO	7	7
EO	16	14
AO	9	11
AA	10	11
Total	58	57
Economics and Statistics
SCS	4	4
Grade 6	1	2
Grade 7	18	18
SEO	6	6
HEO	34	35
EO	47	41
AO	62	58
AA	14	11
Total	186	175
Central Services
SCS	27	38
Grade 6	29	39
Grade 7	91	97
SEO	88	88
HEO	149	184
EO	164	179
AO	277	307
AA	189	201
Total	1,014	1,133
E-Business Directive
SCS	2	2
Grade 6	2	3
Grade 7	12	14
SEO	52	48
HEO	106	107
EO	104	124
AO	55	52
AA	13	10
Total	346	360
Communications Directorate
SCS	1	2
Grade 6	1	1
Grade 7	5	5
SEO	13	17
HEO	22	26
EO	19	21
AO	18	28
AA	6	6
Total	85	106
Grand total	8,271	9,715

[1] At 1 April 2001
[2] At 1 October 2001

Press Officers

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many press officers are employed in her Department; and at what cost to public funds. [10608]

Margaret Beckett [holding answer 26 October 2001]: The DEFRA press office has a complement of 16 press officers. In the current financial year, the pay cost to date for the DEFRA press office is £433,239.

The non-paying running costs (NPRCs) for the DEFRA press office for this financial year, are as follows; DEFRA press office NPRCs (ex-MAFF)—£260,171.

Flooding

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions she has had with the insurance industry regarding flood cover on (a) private and (b) commercial properties. [10617]

Margaret Beckett [holding answer 26 October 2001]: The Government keep in close touch with the insurance industry on these issues. Members of the Association of British Insurers (ABI) have previously said they will continue to provide flood cover, except in exceptional circumstances, for domestic properties and small businesses which they currently insure up to the end of 2002.

My hon. Friend the Economic Secretary to the Treasury and the Under-Secretary my hon. Friend the Member for Scunthorpe (Mr. Morley), met the ABI on 5 September to discuss our mutual aim of ensuring that affordable flood insurance cover continues to be generally available beyond December 2002.

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what representations she has received from the Environment Agency regarding the funds available for work on flood defences. [10606]

Margaret Beckett [holding answer 26 October 2001]: The Environment Agency has asked the Government to recognise and commit to meeting the need for a significant further increase in funding on a planned basis to (a) improve flood warnings and (b) maintain and improve the overall standard and extent of flood defence. This will be considered through the Spending Review 2002 process. Current plans are for this Department's spending on flood and coastal defences for all operating authorities to increase from last year's outturn of £66 million to £114 million in 2003–04.

Consultation Exercises

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many consultation exercises by her Department are in progress. [10612]

Margaret Beckett [holding answer 26 October 2001]: The Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs currently has 28 consultation exercises in progress.

Pheasants

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what estimate she has of the number of pheasants (a) reared and (b) shot each year for (i) agricultural and (ii) sporting purposes since 1994; [7253]

(2) what percentage of pheasants released in each year from 1994 to date have been exported; [7254]

(3) what estimate she has made of the number of pheasants released each year; of those, what estimate she has of those (i) shot but not captured and (ii) shot and captured; and in respect of the latter category, how many of these are (a) discarded and (b) eaten; [7252]

(4) how many people she estimates are employed in connection with pheasant-rearing and shooting; and what the estimated animal income of this sector is. [7256]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 15 October 2001]: The Government do not hold such statistics.

British Waterways

Kevin Brennan: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions she has had with the Board of British Waterways on the scope of its activities in relation to the Environment Agency; and if she will make a statement. [11104]

Mr. Meacher: Ministers met the Chairman of British Waterways together with the Chairman of the Environment Agency on 17 September to discuss the future of the Agency's navigation responsibilities in the light of the publication of the report of Stage 1 of the Environment Agency Financial Management and Policy Review. A decision will be announced shortly.

Council for Voluntary Services

Mr. Burnett: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what financial assistance she provides to support the Council for Voluntary Services. [R] [10712]

Alun Michael [holding answer 29 October 2001]: The Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs does not provide any direct financial assistance to Councils for Voluntary Service or Councils for Voluntary Action. Individual Councils would be eligible to apply for support from the Rural Support Initiative Fund. This Fund, which is part of the joint Government and voluntary sector Rural Stress Action Plan, has supported local initiatives to help people in distress particularly as a result of Foot and Mouth Disease in recent months. We do provide financial support to the National Council for Voluntary Organisations (£90,000 for the 2001–02 financial year) and Rural Community Councils (£2.984 million plus staff costs for a Community Development Worker for the 2001–02 financial year) via the Countryside Agency. The Rural Community Councils work closely with Councils for Voluntary Service in their area and concentrate on activity in rural communities.

Carbon Trust

Mr. Chaytor: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will publish the (a) names of the board members appointed to the Carbon Trust in each case listing the sector or industry which they represent and (b) the date of the board's first meeting, its agenda and minutes. [10290]

Mr. Meacher: The Carbon Trust is an independent not-for-profit company limited by guarantee, funded by the Government and the devolved Administrations. Members of the Carbon Trust Board are drawn from both the public and private sectors and cover a wide range of interest and skills relevant to the Trust's remit.

The current membership is:

Non-executives

Ian McAllister—(Chairman), Chairman of Ford UK

Ian Stephenson—(Deputy Chairman), Johnson Matthey

Dinah Nichols, Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs

Alistair Keddie, Department of Trade and Industry

Diarmuid McLean, Northern Ireland Industrial Research and Technology Group

John Brown, Scottish Executive

David Pritchard, National Assembly for Wales

Richard Brook, Leverhulme Trust

John Edmonds, GMB

Paul Jefferiss, Royal Society for the Protection of Birds

Peter Lehmann, Energy Saving Trust

Chris Mottershead, BP

Michael Roberts, Confederation of British Industry

John Speirs, Norsk Hydro UK

Gordon Waters, United Utilities

Executives

Tom Delay, the Carbon Trust, Chief Executive

Rosemary Boot, the Carbon Trust, Finance Director.

The first Board meeting was held on 13 July 2001. Publication of Board papers is a matter for the Carbon Trust Board. However, I understand that the Carbon Trust's strategic framework will be published shortly for public consultation.

Water Companies

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) under what powers the Ofwat Regulator can (a) compel water companies to install meters at the request of tenants, (b) make water companies notify tenants of any changes to their water charge tariffs and (c) intervene where a tenant feels that the tariff being levied is too high; [11879]

(2) under what powers water companies are required to (a) advertise changes in tariffs to (i) residents and (ii) tenants and (b) inform (i) residents and (ii) tenants of such changes; [11878]

(3) if she will make a statement on the procedure for resolving disputes between landlords and tenants other than through the Regulator. [11880]

Mr. Meacher [holding answer 1 November 2001]: Under section 142 and 143 of the Water Industry Act 1991, as amended by sections 3 and 4 of the Water Industry Act 1999, water companies have no power to charge for services to a dwelling except in accordance with a charges scheme approved by the Director General of Water Services (Ofwat). Under Condition D of the terms of their appointments as statutory undertakers under the Water Industry Act, companies must make their charges schemes available to anyone on request but there is no requirement to advertise tariffs or changes in tariffs. Companies communicate with their customers about tariffs when sending out bills. Ofwat also publishes information each year about changes in average bills and detailed tariffs for each company.

Disputes as to the water charges payable by a customer to the water company may be made to Ofwat. There is no distinction in this procedure between customers who are tenants and others.

Under sections 144A and 209A of the Water Industry Act 1991 as amended by sections 6 and 11 of the Water Industry Act 1999, the right to a measured water charge, and therefore to a water meter free of initial cost, is available to all household water company customers irrespective of tenure except for tenancies of less than six months. The terms of a tenancy may not prevent a tenant from requesting the installation of a meter or require any consent from the landlord. Companies are required to fit a meter on request except where it would not be reasonably practicable or would incur unreasonable expense. Any dispute may be determined by Ofwat. Water companies have no involvement or statutory duties as to the charges made by landlords to tenants who are not water company customers, nor is there any statutory duty on landlords to charge tenants on a measured basis.

Sometimes the landlord is the customer liable to pay charges to the water company. The charges set by such a landlord to tenants are service charges that are in the first place a matter between landlord and tenant. Ofwat has made the Water Resale Order 2001, under section 150 of the Water Industry Act, limiting the charges that may be made for reselling water or sewerage services provided originally by a water company. Ofwat can advise but has no powers to determine disputes between landlords and tenants.

Litter

Mr. Gareth R. Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what action she is taking to encourage a reduction of litter in London. [8330]

Mr. Meacher: The Department funds the Tidy Britain Group (TBG) who work closely with the London local authorities to improve local environmental quality. The Government's Pathfinder initiative announced in March is providing £1 million for 50 local authority schemes to promote local environmental quality including reduction in litter. Four of the approved schemes are in London, in Ealing, Lambeth, Lewisham and Newham. In addition Bexley and Wandsworth councils are working with TBG on an educational project, Eco-Schools. This allows schools to carry out an environmental audit, with tackling litter problems a key part. Under the TBG's People and Places programme, TBG officers are working with a third of London's local authorities to survey the amount of litter on the streets and provide advice on how to improve street cleansing.

Thames21 is a partnership project sponsored by TBG which is designed to improve the environment of the River Thames and its tributaries. This programme is actively supported by two thirds of the local authorities in London who make a voluntary contribution to the work.

Combined Heat and Power

Mr. Gareth R. Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when she will publish a combined heat and power strategy. [8263]

Mr. Meacher: We will be issuing a draft Government strategy for consultation by the end of this year.

Paddy Tipping: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what further steps she plans to take to ensure that 10 GW can be generated by combined heat and power by 2010. [10426]

Mr. Meacher [holding answer 29 October 2001]: The Department is developing, in close collaboration with DTI and other Departments, a draft CHP strategy, which will set out the measures needed to achieve the Government's target of at least 10,000 MW of installed CHP electrical capacity by 2010. Our timetable for issuing the draft strategy for consultation is by the end of this year.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

SEN Tribunals

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many cases were referred to SEN tribunals in each local education authority in England in (a) 1998–99, (b) 1999–2000 and (c) 2000–01; what proportion they represent of the school age population of each authority; and how many appeals were (i) upheld or partially upheld, (ii) withdrawn and (iii) turned down. [12243]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 2 November 2001]: Tables showing the number of appeals referred to the special educational needs tribunal by local education authority in each of the three years for which information is requested, the number decided, the number withdrawn and the proportion they represent of the school age population, have been placed in the Library. The tribunal does not collect information about the outcome of appeals in the format requested. However, information about the number of appeals upheld or partially upheld is available at the national level, and has been placed in the Library. A case is listed as "upheld" when any of the points at issue are decided in the parents' favour. Over the last three years, the percentage of decisions where the appeal is upheld has increased from 75 per cent. to 79 per cent.

AS-level Examination

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what plans she has to abolish the AS level examination; what assessment she has made of the impact of the introduction of the AS level examination on pupils' involvement in non-curricular school activities; and if she will make a statement. [11490]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: None. The Government remain committed to the principles behind the Curriculum 2000 reforms, including the AS award. The Qualifications and Curriculum Authority's phase 1 report on the review of Curriculum 2000 included an assessment of the impact of the introduction of the AS-level examinations on enrichment activities. This concluded that student participation in extra-curricular activities has been reduced in some, but by no means all, institutions. A copy of the report has been placed in the Library.

Healthy Lifestyles

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what initiatives her Department aims at children of school age to promote healthy lifestyles and positive activities not involving drugs and other substance misuse. [7342]

Mr. Timms: We recognise how important it is for young people to be made aware of the positive effects that a healthy, active lifestyle and a nutritious diet can have on their life chances. We are the first Government to introduce a non-statutory framework for personal, social and health education (PSHE) across all four key stages.

Together with the Department of Health, our commitment to promoting healthier lifestyles through positive activities is clear from the "healthy schools" and "food in schools" programmes. The national healthy school standard, the mainstay of the "healthy schools" programme, helps to set the context for schools when developing policies in areas such as healthy eating and physical activity. "Food in schools" brings together all food-related initiatives in schools to improve young people's health and learning. Our recent White Paper, "Schools: Achieving Success", highlighted our commitment to promoting healthier lifestyles among young people.

Special Schools

Miss Kirkbride: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what provision is made for disability issues and education in the legislation governing residential special schools. [10710]

Mr. Timms: The Special Educational Needs and Disability Act 2001, which comes into force in September 2002, will ensure that pupils in all schools receive protection from unfair discrimination. This Act will make it unlawful for education providers to discriminate against disabled pupils and prospective pupils by treating them less favourably on the grounds of their disability or by failing to make reasonable adjustments to ensure that disabled people are not placed at a substantial disadvantage. These provisions apply to admission to the school, the education and other associated services offered and provided to pupils by the school, and exclusion from the school.

Under the Care Standards Act 2000, residential special schools will be obliged to ensure that residential, care and teaching staff work together to identify means of encouraging each child's personal, social, and educational development and achievement.

Through both the Special Educational Needs and Disability Act 2001 and the Care Standards Act 2000 the Government are actively promoting welfare, safety, and quality educational provision for children in residential special schools.

IT Staff

Alistair Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) how many IT teaching posts in higher education were unfilled in 2000; [10912]

(2) what recent studies she has carried out into the shortage of IT staff in higher education; and if she will make a statement; [10911]

(3) what discussions she has had in 2001 on the shortage of IT staff in higher education institutions; and if she will make a statement. [10925]

Margaret Hodge: The information is not held centrally. Individual universities and colleges, as employers, are responsible for monitoring their own vacancies. However, surveys commissioned by the funding councils and representative bodies to follow up the Bett report suggested that while there were no generalised problems of recruitment or retention, there were specific issues in recruiting to some subjects where there was competition for qualified staff in the economy, including information and communication technology. The Government have made available additional funding for higher education pay over three years, rising to £170 million in 2003–04. In exchange, all institutions have provided the Higher Education Funding Council for England with a human resources strategy which sets out the issues they have to address and how they will be resolved.

Higher Education

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what is the age participation rate in (a) higher education and (b) first degree course for each year since 1980. [11032]

Margaret Hodge [holding answer 29 October 2001]: It is not possible to desegregate a separate participation rate for first degree undergraduates only.

The available information, showing the proportion of under-21-year-olds who enter higher education, is shown in the following table. There was an increase in entrant numbers in 1997–98, related partly to changes in the funding arrangements for higher education, with students choosing to enter HE rather than wait until 1998–99. There was a corresponding reduction in 1998–99 before the entry rates started to increase again in 1999–2000. Between 1996–97 and 2000–01, the total of HE students in English universities and colleges rose by 118,000.

Latest figures show that total acceptances to HE courses in autumn 2001 rose by 5.6 per cent.[1]

[1] The API is defined as the number of home domiciled initial entrants to full-time and sandwich undergraduate HE aged under 21, expressed as a percentage of the average number of 18 and 19 year olds in the population.

Age participation index (API), Great Britain

Year of entry	Percentage
1980	13
1981	13
1982	13
1983	13
1984	14
1985	14
1986	14
1987	15
1988	15
1989	17
1990	19
1991	23
1992	28
1993	30
1994	32
1995	32

Age participation index (API), Great Britain

Year of entry	Percentage
1996	33
1997	33
1998	31
1999	32
2000[1]	32–34

[1] Projected: final data on initial entrants are not yet available.

Source:

UCAS

Northamptonshire (Local Initiatives)

Mr. Tony Clarke: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the annual expenditure by her Department was on centrally financed local initiatives in (a) Northamptonshire, (b) Northampton borough and (c) Northampton, South constituency for each of the last six years. [11278]

Mr. Timms: The following table shows the Department's allocated grants to Northamptonshire local education authority for each year since 1996–97.

£

	1996–97	1997–98	1998–99	1999–2000	2000–01	2001–02
Standards fund	2,100,980	2,689,725	3,501,381	9,490,717	13,824,907	16,640,731
Teachers pay reforms	—	—	—	—	3,317,167	[1]—
Nursery education	—	7,186,176	1,363,615	1,496,492	2,220,779	[1]—
Early years development and childcare partnership (EYDCP)	—	—	123,000	506,300	789,810	[2]1,466,762
Transitional insurance (former GM schools)	—	—	—	40,407	21,039	597
School standards	—	—	—	—	4,355,000	9,071,000
School budget support	—	—	—	—	655,000	—
Education budget support	—	—	—	—	—	100,000
Statutory education action zones	—	—	—	—	772,000	815,000
Capital	7,389,000	8,455,000	13,059,000	10,925,000	24,531,000	[1]—

[1] Not finalised.

[2] Northamptonshire EYDCP has also been allocated £1,486,110 revenue funding and £634,440 capital funding in 2001–04 for the Neighbourhood Nurseries initiative for Northamptonshire. It will be up to the EYDCP to decide the breakdown between years.

Figures for the amount of grants spent in an individual constituency or borough cannot be provided.

Northamptonshire (School Places)

Mr. Tony Clarke: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what recent steps her Department has taken to assist Northamptonshire local education authority in increasing the provision of school places in Northampton to match (a) current needs and (b) future requirements generated by new housing developments; and if she will make a statement. [11286]

Mr. Timms: The Government believe that decisions concerning the supply of school places are best taken locally—by the main partners in the provision of education who have knowledge of local needs. Local education authorities have a duty to ensure that there are sufficient school places in their area. They must publish annually a school organisation plan which sets out how they plan to deal with any surplus or deficit of school places over a rolling five-year period.

Where an LEA can demonstrate overall growth in the need for school places, it may apply to the Department for capital funding. I am aware of proposals for change in Northampton and officials are in regular contact with the LEA regarding this.

Northamptonshire (Class Sizes)

Mr. Tony Clarke: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what percentage of children aged (a) five, (b) six and (c) seven are taught in classes of over 30 in schools in Northampton; and what were the figures in 1997. [11280]

Mr. Timms: The available information is shown in the table. This information has been collected only since January 1998.

Percentage of pupils in classes of over 30 taught by one teacher in mainland primary schools[1,2]

Year	January 2001	January 1998
Northampton LEA
Reception[3]	0.0	17.5
Group 1[3]	5.5	27.1
Group 2[3]	5.7	32.8
England
Reception[3]	1.8	23.2
Group 1[3]	1.3	32.7
Group 2[3]	4.0	35.7

[1] Classes as taught during a selected period in each school on the day of the census in January

[2] Excludes middle schools

[3] Pupils in reception classes will reach the age of 5 during the academic year and pupils in Years 1 and 2 will reach the ages of 6 and 7 respectively during the academic year.

School Autonomy

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what criteria she will use to assess if a school should be given greater autonomy. [11293]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 30 October 2001]: A combination of inspection evidence, performance data and a record of effective leadership will be used to decide those schools that should be eligible for greater freedom. The precise criteria will be developed in discussion with Ofsted.

Faith Schools

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will make a statement on the criteria by which faith schools are determined to be inclusive. [11461]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 30 October 2001]: The White Paper, "Schools: Achieving Success" said that we want faith schools that come into the maintained sector to add to the inclusiveness and diversity of the school system and to be ready to work with schools of other faiths and those that do not have a religious character. We welcomed the recommendation in Lord Dearing's report to the Archbishops Council that Church of England schools should serve the whole community, not confining admission to Anglicans. We have not published criteria for inclusiveness.

Schools (Administrative Burdens)

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what action she has taken to reduce the administrative burdens on (a) primary schools and (b) secondary schools; and if she will make a statement. [11482]

Mr. Timms: My Department keeps administrative requirements on all schools under continuous review. We have taken a number of actions to reduce the burdens on schools—for example, we have simplified the standards fund by replacing all bidding, claiming and reporting paperwork with a single expenditure returns sheet; and by allowing schools to switch funds between grant headings and carry them over to the end of the school year.

From April 2001, £240 million over three years is being made available in a single small schools fund to provide extra funding for small schools to meet proportionately higher administrative costs; and also to encourage the development of collaborative approaches to reducing burdens, such as shared ICT technicians.

In the school year 2000–01, we exceeded our target of reducing by half the number of pages sent to schools by the Department. We continue actively to screen all mailings to schools.

We recognise that there is more to be done. The White Paper commits the Government to making teaching a more manageable profession. The PricewaterhouseCoopers study of teacher workload, expected at the end of November, will put forward further practical ways of addressing workload issues.

Performance-related Pay

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what plans she has to give headteachers greater control over the allocation of performance related pay in their own schools; and if she will make a statement. [11484]

Mr. Timms: The Government set the overall performance pay structure and provides funding to support the award of extra pay points, but it is for each school to determine its own performance pay policy and apply this when taking decisions affecting individual teachers.

Powers and Funding

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what plans she has to decentralise powers and funding from (a) national Government to local government and (b) local education authorities to schools; and if she will make a statement. [11488]

Mr. Timms: The White Paper, "Schools: Achieving Success", sets out the Government's agenda for transforming secondary education in England, including increased autonomy for successful schools.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions will shortly be publishing a White Paper on the role of local government. It will cover, among other things, our plans to reform the local government finance system, including ensuring that schools receive a fair share of the funding provided by central government to local education authorities.

A-level Examinations

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what proportion of A-level examination papers have been graded at grade A for each of the last 20 years; how many A-level examinations have been entered in each of these years; and if she will make a statement. [11489]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The proportion of GCE A-level examinations that resulted in a grade A over the last 20 years in England, together with the number of examinations in those years, are shown as follows. Corresponding figures are not available for the intervening years 1986 to 1990.

	Proportion of examination papers resulting in A grades (percentage)	Total number of examinations
1980	8.8	567,027
1981	9.2	588,249
1982	8.9	614,153
1983	9.4	632,127
1984	9.6	627,669
1985	9.8	609,215
1991	11.5	635,093
1992	12.6	669,584
1993	13.4	677,093
1994	14.3	675,572
1995	15.4	668,941
1996	15.7	677,295
1997	15.7	713,569
1998	16.8	724,852
1999	17.4	720,304
2000	17.6	709,580

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the average points score at A-level was for (a) pupils educated in local authorities which retain grammar schools, (b) pupils educated in local authorities which have no grammar schools and (c) the country as a whole, at the latest date for which figures are available. [11634]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The average GCE A-level point score of pupils aged 16 to 18 in maintained schools in England in 1999–2000 was (a) 17.8 for pupils educated in local authorities which retain grammar schools, (b) 15.9 for pupils educated in local authorities which have no grammar schools and (c) 16.6 for pupils in all maintained schools. The overall figure for all schools in England, including independent schools, was 17.9.

Illiteracy

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how may school children in England are judged to be illiterate in each age cohort; and if she will make a statement. [11491]

Mr. Timms: Early statistics for this year show that 99 per cent. of 15-year-olds (549,450 pupils) achieved a GCSE pass in English. Literacy standards are also rising in primary schools; this year 75 per cent. of 11-year-olds (474,000 pupils) achieved the expected standard for their age in the key stage 2 English tests, an increase of 10 per cent. points since 1998.

Failing Schools (Private Firms)

Mr. Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will list the statutory provisions that prevent private firms taking over the running of failing schools. [11536]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 31 October 2001]: Section 38 of the School Standards and Framework Act 1998 provides for the conduct of a maintained school to be under the direction of the school's governing body.

Curriculum

Mr. Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what plans she has to allow 12 to 13-year-old pupils to drop history and geography as part of the curriculum. [11545]

Mr. Timms: The last national curriculum review reaffirmed the position of history and geography as statutory subjects for all key stage three pupils. History fires pupils' curiosity about the past in Britain and the wider world. Geography provokes and answers questions about the natural and human worlds, developing pupils' knowledge of places and environments throughout the world.

A major focus of our drive to raise standards for pupils in the first years of secondary school is the key stage 3 strategy. This will eventually impact across all subjects in the curriculum, including history and geography, through the programme for teaching and learning in the foundation subjects, which we are currently piloting.

School Cleanliness

Mr. Blizzard: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps she is taking to monitor the cleanliness of schools. [11588]

Mr. Timms: Cleanliness in schools is a matter for local education authorities and governing bodies, as they have duties as employers to ensure that school premises meet health and safety requirements.

Free School Meals

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills in each LEA how many and what proportion of secondary school pupils received free school meals; how many pupils received free school meals and what proportion of the intake this represents at each specialist school within the LEA, at the latest date for which information is available. [11628]

Mr. Timms: Information showing free school meals data for specialist and other secondary schools by local education authority is contained in the table.

Number of pupils eligible for free school meals in specialist secondary schools and other maintained secondary schools, January 2001, by Government office region

	Specialist secondary schools				Other maintained secondary schools
	Number of schools	Number of day pupils	Number of pupils eligible for FSM	Percentage of pupils eligible for FSM	Number of schools	Number of day pupils	Number of pupils eligible for FSM	Percentage of pupils eligible for FSM
England	676	769,973	112,865	14.7	2,805	2,457,000	396,811	16.2
North East
Hartlepool	2	2,409	476	19.8	4	4,270	1,250	29.3
Middlesbrough	2	2,119	753	35.5	9	6,453	2,317	35.9
Redcar and Cleveland	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
Stockton-on-Tees	4	5,070	674	13.3	9	7,723	1,883	24.4
Darlington	3	2,953	368	12.5	4	3,056	581	19.0
Durham	13	13,116	2,075	15.8	23	19,042	3,687	19.4
Northumberland	8	8,014	766	9.6	52	22,464	2,927	13.0
Gateshead	5	7,025	930	13.2	5	5,018	1,676	33.4
Newcastle upon Tyne	7	10,140	2,196	21.7	14	7,931	2,377	30.0
North Tyneside	4	3,521	831	23.6	16	10,653	1,667	15.6
South Tyneside	2	2,680	527	19.7	9	7,828	2,008	25.7
Sunderland	4	4,823	1,046	21.7	13	15,014	4,910	32.7
North West
Halton	2	2,017	396	19.6	7	6,671	1,687	25.3
Warrington	3	4,192	316	7.5	9	9,641	1,084	11.2
Cheshire	6	5,654	671	11.9	39	40,585	3,934	9.7
Cumbria	9	8,533	1,133	13.3	33	25,134	3,034	12.1
Bolton	4	5,363	321	6.0	12	13,782	2,652	19.2
Bury	0	0	0	0.0	14	11,731	1,754	15.0
Manchester	7	8,229	3,110	37.8	16	15,248	7,176	47.1
Oldham	2	2,398	671	28.0	13	14,427	3,022	20.9
Rochdale	4	4,583	1,054	23.0	10	9,571	2,511	26.2
Salford	2	1,874	169	9.0	14	10,650	3,040	28.5

Number of pupils eligible for free school meals in specialist secondary schools and other maintained secondary schools, January 2001, by Government office region

	Specialist secondary schools				Other maintained secondary schools
	Number of schools	Number of day pupils	Number of pupils eligible for FSM	Percentage of pupils eligible for FSM	Number of schools	Number of day pupils	Number of pupils eligible for FSM	Percentage of pupils eligible for FSM
Stockport	2	2,791	469	16.8	12	13,784	1,856	13.5
Tameside	2	2,357	593	25.2	16	13,011	2,503	19.2
Trafford	5	5,000	1,161	23.2	13	10,846	1,280	11.8
Wigan	7	7,716	910	11.8	14	13,139	2,146	16.3
Blackburn with Darwen	2	2,143	448	20.9	7	7,358	2,021	27.5
Blackpool	2	2,204	397	18.0	6	5,620	1,324	23.6
Lancashire	17	16,642	1,350	8.1	72	58,172	9,832	16.9
Knowsley	3	3,160	1,226	38.8	8	7,080	3,386	47.8
Liverpool	9	10,775	2,781	25.8	24	22,701	9,282	40.9
St. Helens	3	4,167	649	15.6	9	7,992	1,682	21.0
Sefton	3	3,893	493	12.7	19	16,783	3,600	21.5
Wirral	5	5,759	1,452	25.2	18	18,422	5,004	27.2
Yorkshire and the Humber
East Riding of Yorkshire	5	7,333	527	7.2	13	15,294	1,416	9.3
Kingston upon Hull, City of	3	4,446	807	18.2	13	11,566	3,517	30.4
North East Lincolnshire	3	3,264	850	26.0	9	8,471	1,571	18.5
North Lincolnshire	3	2,933	428	14.6	11	7,716	1,007	13.1
York	4	4,929	295	6.0	7	5,045	592	11.7
North Yorkshire	8	8,703	445	5.1	39	31,513	2,134	6.8
Barnsley[1]	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
Doncaster	0	0	0	0.0	17	21,378	3,829	17.9
Rotherham	4	4,910	648	13.2	13	14,935	2,497	16.7
Sheffield	8	9,596	1,371	14.3	19	20,265	4,603	22.7
Bradford	8	12,539	2,869	22.9	19	21,675	6,291	29.0
Calderdale[1]	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
Kirklees	6	6,073	921	15.2	26	20,242	3,823	18.9
Leeds	8	9,799	1,444	14.7	35	37,369	7,038	18.8
Wakefield	5	6,758	1,283	19.0	13	14,521	2,336	16.1
East Midlands
Derby	3	3,739	458	12.2	11	11,009	2,518	22.9
Derbyshire	10	11,201	869	7.8	37	36,627	4,240	11.6
Leicester	5	5,436	1,389	25.6	11	12,598	2,638	20.9
Rutland[1]	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
Leicestershire	9	12,977	822	6.3	45	31,682	2,259	7.1
Lincolnshire	15	14,151	1,089	7.7	48	29,842	2,606	8.7
Northamptonshire	12	14,933	909	6.1	48	34,259	4,376	12.8
Nottingham	2	2,115	690	32.6	18	11,795	4,478	38.0
Nottinghamshire	4	5,927	830	14.0	54	49,053	6,148	12.5
West Midlands
Herefordshire	2	2,032	99	4.9	12	7,792	680	8.7
Worcestershire	7	7,638	801	10.5	54	32,670	3,339	10.2
Telford and Wrekin	2	1,521	204	13.4	111	8,657	1,829	21.1
Shropshire	4	4,075	288	7.1	18	13,531	1,134	8.4
Stoke-on-Trent	3	2,870	623	21.7	14	11,962	2,980	24.9
Staffordshire	4	5,348	478	8.9	65	55,586	5,147	9.3
Warwickshire	5	5,108	427	8.4	32	27,550	2,066	7.5
Birmingham	26	25,401	8,061	31.7	51	43,638	14,826	34.0
Coventry	4	5,091	1,074	21.1	15	15,872	3,149	19.8
Dudley[1]	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
Sandwell	3	3,240	1,052	32.5	17	16,292	3,688	22.6
Solihull	2	2,398	60	2.5	11	13,188	1,815	13.8
Walsall	3	3,476	682	19.6	17	17,908	2,991	16.7
Wolverhampton	5	4,695	768	16.4	13	11,846	2,942	24.8
East of England
Luton	2	2,449	367	15.0	10	9,628	2,884	30.0
Bedfordshire[1]	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
Peterborough	2	2,583	372	14.4	11	10,378	1,899	18.3
Cambridgeshire	10	10,629	719	6.8	21	20,394	1,706	8.4
Southend-on-Sea	3	2,840	367	12.9	9	8,527	1,122	13.2
Thurrock[1]	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
Essex	19	24,000	2,336	9.7	60	62,251	6,265	10.1
Hertfordshire	11	10,956	522	4.8	75	64,868	5,083	7.8
Norfolk	12	13,198	1,343	10.2	40	31,185	3,416	11.0
Suffolk	12	12,538	1,053	8.4	66	40,495	4,513	11.1

Number of pupils eligible for free school meals in specialist secondary schools and other maintained secondary schools, January 2001, by Government office region

	Specialist secondary schools				Other maintained secondary schools
	Number of schools	Number of day pupils	Number of pupils eligible for FSM	Percentage of pupils eligible for FSM	Number of schools	Number of day pupils	Number of pupils eligible for FSM	Percentage of pupils eligible for FSM
London
Inner London
City of London	0	0	0	0.0	0	0	0	0.0
Camden	4	4,545	1,254	27.6	6	6,325	1,883	29.8
Hackney	5	4,411	2,061	46.7	4	3,510	1,453	41.4
Hammersmith and Fulham[1]	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
Haringey[1]	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
Islington	2	1,815	904	49.8	7	5,768	2,557	44.3
Kensington and Chelsea	0	0	0	0.0	4	3,665	1,164	31.8
Lambeth	3	2,398	940	39.2	7	4,815	2,071	43.0
Lewisham	0	0	0	0.0	13	11,661	4,621	39.6
Newham	5	6,667	2,662	39.9	10	10,802	5,177	47.9
Southwark	2	1,844	1,029	55.8	11	8,377	4,372	52.2
Tower Hamlets	4	4,050	3,005	74.2	11	10,037	6,168	61.5
Wandsworth	5	6,397	1,601	25.0	4	3,551	1,069	30.1
Westminster	2	1,777	556	31.3	6	6,244	2,079	33.3
Outer London
Barking and Dagenham	3	3,709	746	20.1	5	7,370	2,133	28.9
Barnet	3	3,502	623	17.8	18	17,571	2,682	15.3
Bexley[1]	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
Brent	4	3,848	856	22.2	9	10,632	2,698	25.4
Bromley	5	6,274	589	9.4	12	14,964	1,915	12.8
Croydon[1]	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
Ealing	5	6,164	1,756	28.5	8	7,776	2,599	33.4
Enfield	0	0	0	0.0	17	20,530	4,172	20.3
Greenwich	5	5,767	2,125	36.8	9	8,067	2,521	31.3
Harrow	0	0	0	0.0	10	8,874	1,556	17.5
Havering	2	2,068	239	11.6	16	13,836	1,527	11.0
Hillingdon	3	3,869	356	9.2	14	12,603	2,084	16.5
Hounslow	2	2,526	371	14.7	12	13,766	2,842	20.6
Kingston upon Thames	0	0	0	0.0	10	8,639	790	9.1
Merton	0	0	0	0.0	11	7,754	1,262	16.3
Redbridge	5	6,301	1,318	20.9	11	12,567	1,547	12.3
Richmond upon Thames	0	0	0	0.0	8	7,531	1,180	15.7
Sutton[1]	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
Waltham Forest	3	2,997	514	17.2	13	9,983	3,373	33.8
South East
Bracknell Forest	0	0	0	0.0	6	6,022	289	4.8
Windsor and Maidenhead	0	0	0	0.0	13	10,207	573	5.6
West Berkshire	6	7,037	391	5.6	4	4,710	165	3.5
Reading[1]	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
Slough	2	1,483	285	19.2	9	6,442	945	14.7
Wokingham	2	2,190	61	2.8	7	8,568	448	5.2
Milton Keynes	4	4,465	466	10.4	7	7,593	972	12.8
Buckinghamshire	9	9,165	314	3.4	25	24,051	1,900	7.9
Brighton and Hove	2	2,872	385	13.4	8	9,154	1,727	18.9
East Sussex	7	8,687	1,010	11.6	19	19,120	2,625	13.7
Portsmouth[1]	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
Southampton	0	0	0	0.0	14	12,235	2,110	17.2
Hampshire	7	8,633	456	5.3	64	61,931	4,172	6.7
Isle of Wight	2	2,356	317	13.5	19	9,564	1,672	17.5
Kent	13	13,541	1,108	8.2	92	79,451	8,001	10.1
Medway	4	4,363	333	7.6	16	15,474	1,617	10.4
Oxfordshire	8	10,697	798	7.5	37	27,574	2,843	10.3
Surrey	12	15,901	661	4.2	41	40,323	2,788	6.9
West Sussex	8	11,486	493	4.3	31	31,332	2,469	7.9
South West
Bath and North East Somerset	5	5,219	339	6.5	8	7,054	630	8.9
Bristol, City of	3	3,082	489	15.9	17	14,825	3,180	21.5
North Somerset	5	5,891	547	9.3	5	6,378	411	6.4
South Gloucestershire	3	4,474	278	6.2	11	11,968	960	8.0
Cornwall	12	13,683	1,637	12.0	19	18,318	2,268	12.4
Isles of Scilly	0	0	0	0.0	1	95	6	6.3
Torbay[1]	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—

Number of pupils eligible for free school meals in specialist secondary schools and other maintained secondary schools, January 2001, by Government office region

	Specialist secondary schools				Other maintained secondary schools
	Number of schools	Number of day pupils	Number of pupils eligible for FSM	Percentage of pupils eligible for FSM	Number of schools	Number of day pupils	Number of pupils eligible for FSM	Percentage of pupils eligible for FSM
Plymouth	6	6,786	1,135	16.7	12	12,043	1,494	12.4
Devon	6	9,010	777	8.6	31	30,793	3,290	10.7
Bournemouth	3	3,802	269	7.1	7	5,968	774	13.0
Poole	2	2,321	109	4.7	7	5,876	483	8.2
Dorset	7	7,409	489	6.6	30	21,836	1,318	6.0
Gloucestershire	13	13,729	792	5.8	29	24,436	1,883	7.7
Somerset	8	6,966	585	8.4	31	23,821	2,188	9.2
Swindon	2	2,358	358	15.2	8	9,203	726	7.9
Wiltshire	9	9,571	685	7.2	25	18,460	1,143	6.2

[1] These local education authorities only have one specialist school. It is departmental policy not to release individual school level information unless the school has had the opportunity to check or confirm that information. Schools have not had the opportunity to check their free school meals data.

GCSE Passes

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many pupils attained five or more GCSE passes at grades A-C, by social class, in (a) grammar schools and (b) comprehensive schools in each of the past five years. [11629]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The primary source of information on GCSE attainment broken down by school type and personal characteristics is the youth cohort study (YCS). The YCS is run in alternate years; estimates for the proportion who gained five or more A*-C grades at GCSE in 1995, 1997 and 1999 are provided in the table.

Percentage

Schools	Non manual background	Manual background
1995
Grammar	94	87
Comprehensive	59	33
1997
Grammar	95	92
Comprehensive	60	34
1999
Grammar	[1]—	[1]—
Comprehensive	60	39

[1] Figures for Grammar schools in 1999 are not available

These estimates include schools in England and Wales only, and exclude independent and modern schools.

Nuclear Engineering Degrees

Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will list those universities offering a course in nuclear engineering; and if she will make a statement. [11765]

Margaret Hodge: No universities currently offer an undergraduate course specifically in nuclear engineering. However, a report by the Health and Safety Executive/ Nuclear Installations Inspectorate in October 2000, "Nuclear Education and Research in British Universities", listed eight higher education institutions (HEIs) offering undergraduate courses with nuclear engineering modules. Those were:

University of Birmingham
University of Cambridge
City University
Imperial College of Science, Technology and Medicine
University of Liverpool
University of Manchester
University of Plymouth
University of Sheffield.

The following 12 institutions offered masters courses relevant to nuclear education:

University of Birmingham
City University
Imperial College of Science, Technology and Medicine
University of Liverpool
Loughborough University
Middlesex University
University of Plymouth
Queen Mary and Westfield College, London
Royal Navy School of Marine and Air Engineering, HMS Sultan (Department of Nuclear Science and Technology)
University of Surrey
University of Wales, Swansea
University College London.

The HSE/NII report is expected to be updated during the second half of 2002.

Schools (Worcestershire)

Mr. Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills over what transitional period the new funding formula for Worcestershire schools will be phased in; and if she will make a statement. [11882]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 1 November 2001]: We are continuing to work on the new funding system with external partners: no decisions have been made on the period over which the new system will need to be phased in.

Teachers (Ethnic Minorities)

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many teachers from ethnic minorities have entered the profession in each of the last three years for which figures are available. [11999]

Mr. Timms: This information is not collected centrally.

Literacy and Numeracy

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which local education authorities had agreed new targets in literacy and numeracy for 11-year-olds by 26 October; and what the targets were in each case. [12090]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 2 November 2001]: The new 2004 targets for literacy and numeracy will be agreed as part of the education development plan approval process in the early part of next year.

Three-year-olds

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many places were provided for three-year-olds in each local education authority in (a) 1999–2000 and (b) 2000–01 (i) in LEA-funded settings, (ii) in Government-funded settings and (iii) in other settings; and how many were taken up in each category. [12242]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 2 November 2001]: The available information on the numbers of three-year-olds in free early years education places in each local education authority area is shown in the following table. The table shows the numbers of three-year-olds taking up: 1. Local education authority funded places; 2. Places funded directly by Government in the private, voluntary and independent sectors including places in settings run by the local authority rather than the local education authority, e.g. social services.

Number of three-year-olds taking up free early years education places, England, Government Office regions and each local education authority area 2000–01—Position in January each year

	2000			2001
LEA name	Maintained[1]	Private, voluntary and independent providers and other LA provisions[2]	All	Maintained[1]	Private, voluntary and independent providers and other LA provision[2]	All
England	229,883	40,309	270,192	226,634	108,813	335,447
North East	22,337	2,245	24,582	21,871	3,288	25,159
Darlington	975	0	975	919	49	968
Durham[3]	3,845	331	4,176	3,850	612	4,462
Gateshead[3]	1,412	562	1,974	1,342	593	1,935
Hartlepool[3]	1,063	36	1,099	961	34	995
Middlesbrough[3]	1,727	53	1,780	1,849	115	1,964
Newcastle upon Tyne[3]	1,757	715	2,472	1,773	857	2,630
North Tyneside[3]	1,793	54	1,847	1,767	232	1,999
Northumberland	2,118	0	2,118	2,139	136	2,275
Redcar and Cleveland[3]	1,795	2	1,797	1,601	14	1,615
South Tyneside[3]	1,391	81	1,472	1,450	143	1,593
Stockton-on-Tees[3]	1,911	67	1,978	1,813	100	1,913
Sunderland[3]	2,550	344	2,894	2,407	404	2,811
North West	41,335	9,156	50,491	39,566	20,727	60,293
Blackburn with Darwen[3]	1,041	381	1,422	966	679	1,645
Blackpool[3]	323	1,271	1,594	314	1,075	1,389
Bolton[3]	2,155	796	2,951	2,088	926	3,014
Bury	1,045	0	1,045	1,046	91	1,137
Cheshire	2,246	0	2,246	2,172	783	2,955
Cumbria	2,418	0	2,418	2,410	1,138	3,548
Halton[3]	623	565	1,188	542	577	1,119
Knowsley[3]	2,066	73	2,139	1,847	133	1,980
Lancashire	4,253	0	4,253	4,199	5,155	9,354
Liverpool[3]	3,890	1,297	5,187	3,648	1,310	4,958
Manchester[3]	4,078	522	4,600	3,890	713	4,603
Oldham[3]	1,525	846	2,371	1,507	1,048	2,555
Rochdale[3]	1,387	885	2,272	1,287	966	2,253
Salford[3]	2,047	147	2,194	1,836	247	2,083
Sefton[3]	2,078	289	2,367	2,103	778	2,881
St. Helens[3]	1,102	362	1,464	1,084	495	1,579
Stockport	1,625	0	1,625	1,703	87	1,790
Tameside[3]	1,646	516	2,162	1,580	581	2,161
Trafford	1,580	0	1,580	1,497	196	1,693
Warrington	963	0	963	889	1,099	1,988
Wigan	1,513	0	1,513	1,358	1,194	2,552
Wirral[3]	1,731	1,206	2,937	1,600	1,455	3,055
Yorkshire and The Humber	32,541	7,204	39,745	31,804	15,222	47,026
Barnsley[3]	1,404	226	1,630	1,356	529	1,885
Bradford[3]	4,747	805	5,552	4,520	1,197	5,717
Calderdale	1,305	0	1,305	1,184	666	1,850
Doncaster[3]	2,219	110	2,329	2,249	161	2,410

Number of three-year-olds taking up free early years education places, England, Government Office regions and each local education authority area 2000–01—Position in January each year

	2000			2001
LEA name	Maintained[1]	Private, voluntary and independent providers and other LA provisions[2]	All	Maintained[1]	Private, voluntary and independent providers and other LA provision[2]	All
East Riding of Yorkshire	1,033	0	1,033	1,024	138	1,162
Kingston-upon-Hull, City of[3]	2,111	460	2,571	2,036	517	2,553
Kirklees[3]	2,618	407	3,025	2,489	1,488	3,977
Leeds[3]	5,874	1,779	7,653	5,642	1,786	7,428
North East Lincolnshire[3]	998	521	1,519	933	554	1,487
North Lincolnshire	585	0	585	637	536	1,173
North Yorkshire	1,796	0	1,796	1,705	3,218	4,923
Rotherham[3]	1,447	724	2,171	1,364	875	2,239
Sheffield[3]	2,932	1,815	4,747	3,372	2,030	5,402
Wakefield[3]	2,684	358	3,042	2,592	611	3,203
York[3]	788	0	788	701	916	1,617
East Midlands	19,896	1,621	21,517	19,103	8,321	27,424
Derby	1,934	0	1,934	1,845	859	2,704
Derbyshire	4,243	0	4,243	4,016	3,099	7,115
Leicester[3]	2,335	964	3,299	2,146	1,112	3,258
Leicestershire	87	0	87	129	639	768
Lincolnshire	1,785	0	1,785	1,749	41	1,790
Northamptonshire	2,299	0	2,299	2,294	835	3,129
Nottingham[3]	2,653	657	3,310	2,509	700	3,209
Nottinghamshire	4,461	0	4,461	4,328	1,008	5,336
Rutland	99	0	99	87	30	117
West Midlands	30,935	5,188	36,123	30,441	9,450	39,891
Birmingham[3]	7,294	3,275	10,569	7,200	3,844	11,044
Coventry[3]	1,976	957	2,933	1,984	1,031	3,015
Dudley	2,227	0	2,227	2,336	738	3,074
Herefordshire	340	0	340	336	115	451
Sandwell[3]	3,217	21	3,238	3,059	100	3,159
Shropshire	424	0	424	499	309	808
Solihull	1,542	0	1,542	1,499	59	1,558
Staffordshire	2,561	0	2,561	2,554	443	2,997
Stoke-on-Trent[3]	2,032	285	2,317	1,842	367	2,209
Telford and Wrekin[3]	541	464	1,005	651	596	1,247
Walsall[3]	2,928	70	2,998	2,838	151	2,989
Warwickshire	1,603	0	1,603	1,473	813	2,286
Wolverhampton[3]	2,720	115	2,835	2,584	134	2,718
Worcestershire	1,530	0	1,530	1,586	751	2,337
East of England	14,865	0	14,865	15,740	4,352	20,092
Bedfordshire	1,211	0	1,211	1,202	218	1,420
Cambridgeshire	1,091	0	1,091	1,154	867	2,021
Essex	1,961	0	1,961	1,9292	221	2,213
Hertfordshire	5,890	0	5,890	6,406	257	6,663
Luton	954	0	954	975	996	1,971
Norfolk	1,885	0	1,885	1,932	126	2,058
Peterborough	316	0	316	288	593	881
Southend-on-Sea	453	0	453	446	440	886
Suffolk	633	0	633	857	477	1,334
Thurrock	471	0	471	488	157	645
London	46,466	12,138	58,604	46,679	20,825	67,504
Inner London	21,773	8,567	30,340	21,508	10,078	31,586
Camden[1]	916	769	1,685	915	718	1,633
City of London	10	0	10	12	1	13
Hackney[3]	1,608	951	2,559	12	968	2,488
Hammersmith and Fulham[3]	1,102	371	1,473	1,025	586	1,611[3]
Haringey[3]	1,980	396	2,376	1,932	486	2,418
Islington[3]	1,247	780	2,027	1,252	812	2,064
Kensington and Chelsea	591	0	591	612	277	889
Lambeth[3]	1,957	1,102	3,059	1,955	1,163	3,118
Lewisham[3]	1,869	816	2,685	1,892	968	2,860
Newham[3]	3,462	448	3,910	3,306	551	3,857
Southwark[3]	2,214	745	2,959	2,242	1,150	3,392
Tower Hamlets[3]	2,347	315	2,662	2,358	281	2,639
Wandsworth[3]	1,661	1,293	2,954	1,629	1,349	2,978
Westminster[3]	809	579	1,388	858	768	1,626

Number of three-year-olds taking up free early years education places, England, Government Office regions and each local education authority area 2000–01—Position in January each year

	2000			2001
LEA name	Maintained[1]	Private, voluntary and independent providers and other LA provisions[2]	All	Maintained[1]	Private, voluntary and independent providers and other LA provision[2]	All
Outer London	24,693	3,571	28,264	25,171	10,747	35,918
Barking and Dagenham[3]	1,393	294	1,687	1,418	326	1,744
Barnet	2,010	0	2,010	1,995	389	2,384
Bexley	1,385	0	1,385	1,314	911	2,225
Brent[3]	1,684	754	2,438	1,684	875	2,559
Bromley	242	0	242	247	428	675
Croydon	1,826	0	1,826	1,894	623	2,517
Ealing[3]	2,587	555	3,142	2,604	527	3,131
Enfield	1,30	0	1,230	1,236	1,034	2,270
Greenwich[3]	1,894	715	2,609	1,80	765	2,565
Harrow	620	0	620	615	350	965
Havering	550	0	550	603	1,210	1,813
Hillingdon	1,360	0	1,360	1,813	119	1,932
Hounslow[3]	1,523	479	2.002	1,564	550	2,114
Kingston upon Thames	940	0	940	911	172	1,083
Merton	1,665	0	1,665	1,707	117	1,824
Redbridge	1,604	0	1,604	1,587	852	2,439
Richmond upon Thames	585	0	585	546	40	586
Sutton	245	0	245	266	360	626
Waltham Forest[3]	1,350	773	2,123	1,367	1,098	2,465
South East	12,585	736	13,321	12,705	14,254	26,959
Bracknell Forest	111	0	111	147	735	882
Brighton and Hove[3]	772	712	1,484	732	1,032	1,764
Buckinghamshire	686	0	686	790	404	1,194
East Sussex	570	0	570	588	1,113	1,701
Hampshire	601	0	601	589	1,748	2,337
Isle of Wight[3]	134	23	157	131	471	602
Kent	1,412	0	1,412	1,494	818	2,312
Medway	421	0	421	412	2,119	2,531
Milton Keynes	368	0	368	379	197	576
Oxfordshire	995	0	995	1,024	213	1,237
Portsmouth	435	0	435	441	880	1,321
Reading	738	0	738	716	202	918
Slough	932	0	932	976	31	1,007
Southampton	435	0	435	334	1,346	1,680
Surrey	2,429	0	2,429	2,426	2,145	4,571
West Berkshire	261	0	261	273	99	372
West Sussex	838	0	838	816	441	1,257
Windsor and Maidenhead	306	0	306	306	226	532
Wokingham	141	0	141	131	32	163
South West	8,923	2,023	10,946	8,725	12,375	21,100
Bath and North East Somerset	303	0	303	288	195	482
Bournemouth	267	0	267	282	914	1,196
Bristol, City of	2,802	0	2,802	2,653	1,169	3,822
Cornwall and Isle of Scilly[3]	1,057	1,666	2,723	987	2,089	3.076
Devon	1,197	0	1,197	1,200	630	1,830
Dorset	246	0	246	215	288	503
Gloucestershire	74	0	74	97	3,385	3,482
North somerset	195	0	195	200	98	200
Plymouth[3]	776	358	1,134	744	1,508	2,252
Poole	78	0	78	92	742	834
Somerset	474	0	474	503	217	720
South Gloucestershire	331	0	331	341	145	486
Swindon	414	0	414	412	172	584
Torbay	394	0	394	391	505	896
Wiltshire	315	0	315	320	319	639

[1] Headcount of children aged three at 31 December in the previous calendar year from Annual Schools' Census.
[2] Part-time equivalent number of children aged three at private, voluntary, independent and local authority settings.
[3] This LEA received Nursery Education Grant funding for three-year-olds in 1999–2000, there were 65 such LEAs.

Further Education

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what plans she has to encourage more children to continue their education in (a) sixth form and (b) further education colleges. [12404]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: We have set out our vision for post-16 learning in the recent White Paper, "Schools: Achieving Success". We want all young people to continue after the age of 16 in high quality learning opportunities which best meet their needs and potential. This may be in school, college or in the work-based route. We have established the Learning and Skills Council to drive this forward and have put in place a number of measures which provide the support and incentives young people need to take up and succeed in learning. We are introducing the new Connexions service to provide advice and guidance to young people on the full range of learning options open to them and to help them progress within their chosen learning environment. We are also addressing the financial barriers to participation through piloting the education maintenance allowance scheme; providing discretionary funding targeted at specific learner needs, and the Connexions card, which offered discounts on transport and learning materials.

Violent and Disruptive Pupils

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will introduce legislation to deal with pupils who are violent and disruptive in the classroom and who threaten (a) teachers and (b) other classmates. [12582]

Mr. Timms: We will not tolerate violent or abusive behaviour towards teachers or pupils. Parenting orders may already be sought in cases where pupils have committed a criminal act. Our recent "Schools: Achieving Success" White Paper highlights our plans to extend the use of parenting orders so that they can be activated following violence or persistent misbehaviour by pupils at school. Parenting orders provide guidance to parents in managing challenging behaviour and their wider use would encourage parents to take more responsibility for behaviour in school.

We have also made it clear to schools that if a pupil is violent to classmates or persistently bullies them, or if they are violent or threaten violence to teachers, head teachers have the legal power to exclude that pupil permanently. While recognising that permanent exclusion is a serious matter, we plan to require in legislation that exclusion appeal panels balance the excluded pupil's interests against those of all other members of the school community.

School Grounds (Sussex)

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which school grounds in Sussex have been sold since May 1997. [12596]

Mr. Timms: No data were collected centrally on how many school grounds were sold before October 1998. Section 77 of the School Standards and Framework Act 1998 was introduced in October 1998 to stop the indiscriminate sale of school playing fields. Before October 1998, there was nothing to prevent a local authority selling school playing fields if it wanted to. As local authorities and governing bodies of all maintained schools are now required to obtain the Secretary of State's consent before disposing of playing fields or any part of a playing field, which can be said to comprise school grounds, we have collected information about the sale of school playing fields since October 1998. For the purposes of answering the question I have, therefore, equated school grounds to school playing fields.

Since 1 October 1998, the Secretary of State has approved the sale of various areas of school grounds that fall within the definition of school playing fields under the School Standards and Framework Act 1998 at the following schools in West Sussex and East Sussex:

Beacon Community College, Crowborough;

Barnham Primary School, Bognor Regis;

Chichester High School for Girls, Chichester;

Lindfield Junior School, Haywards Heath[1];

The Forest School, Horsham;

Hazelwick School, Crawley;

Catherington Special School, Crawley, and

Deerswood Special School, Crawley.

[1] School closed 31 August 2000

Student Support

Mr. Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will publish the evidence that informed her judgment relating to the impact on the Government's target for 18 to 30-year-olds in higher education of the current system of student support. [11580]

Margaret Hodge [holding answer 31 October 2001]: Last month my right hon. Friend announced the review of student support which, in seeking to get the right balance between the contributions made by the state, the parent and the graduate, has the explicit aim of ensuring that we reach our target of 50 per cent. of 18 to 30-year-olds having the opportunity to participate in higher education. In particular, the review will consider, in relation to the current system of student support, concerns expressed about the impact of debt, or perceptions of future debt, which have been identified in the 1998–99 student income and expenditure report, the DfES research report, "Social Class and Higher Education: Issues Affecting Decisions on Participation by Lower Social Class Groups" (2001), and elsewhere. We want to ensure opportunities for all and are reviewing student funding to remove obstacles that might deter potential students from low-income families participating in higher education.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Leisure Services (Lee Valley)

10. Mr. Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will make a statement on leisure services operated by the Lee Valley Authority. [10029]

Tessa Jowell: The Lee Valley Regional Park Authority is a statutory authority funded from a levy on all 32 London boroughs, Thurrock borough council and Hertfordshire and Essex county councils.

The Park Authority has a specific remit to regenerate the 12,500 acres of the Lee Valley as a regional park and to provide high quality regional sports and leisure facilities. The Park Authority is in the process of developing its facilities in accordance with its 10-year business plan published in 2000.

Sport (Centres of Excellence)

11. Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will make a statement on regional centres of excellence for sports. [10030]

Mr. Caborn: The Government remain committed to the development of the United Kingdom Sports Institute (UKSI) and good progress is being made in its establishment. Centres in Scotland and Wales are now operational; the English Institute is developing apace and it is hoped that work on the Northern Ireland Institute will begin soon. It is vital now that all those agencies with an interest in elite sport work together collectively to assist athletes achieve their ultimate goal.

Ofcom

12. Mr. Simon Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will make a statement on her plans for representation for Wales on the proposed Ofcom. [10031]

Dr. Howells: The draft Communications Bill to be published in spring 2002 will contain details of how the interests of Wales will be represented within Ofcom.

Foot and Mouth

13. Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will make a statement on the effects of foot and mouth disease on the hotel industry. [10032]

Tessa Jowell: The Department's best estimate is that revenue loss to the English tourism industry overall is likely to be around £3.3 billion in "value added" terms. The effects of FMD on the tourism industry, including the hotel sector, have been uneven, some areas have done well, others have been hit disproportionately hard. The Government introduced a package of recovery assistance for rural businesses, including tourism businesses, affected by the consequent implications of foot and mouth disease. In total, these measures will bring benefits to businesses of over £300 million.

32. Mr. Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will make a statement on the effects of foot and mouth disease on the tourism industry in England. [10053]

Dr. Howells: The Department's best estimate is that the revenue loss to the English tourism industry for March to October is likely to be around £3.3 billion in "value added" terms.

An additional £3.8 million was provided to the English Tourism Council in April for immediate recovery work. The British Tourist Authority has received an additional £14.2 million for marketing and promotion. The Regional Development Agency business recovery fund, established in April, is designed to provide targeted help for rural businesses, including tourism businesses, affected by the consequent implications of foot and mouth disease. On 18 October, the Government allocated a further £24 million to the fund taking the total to £74 million. The fund is one element in a package of recovery assistance for tourism that includes business rate relief and deferral of tax payments. These measures and existing programmes will help to encourage tourism.

British Cultural Identity

14. Mike Gapes: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will introduce plans to encourage the celebration of British cultural identity. [10033]

Dr. Howells: British cultural identity can be expressed through buildings and institutions, through the heritage and history of our communities, through art, literature, television and radio, through an appreciation of our countryside and landscape, and most of all through the diversity of the British people and their everyday lives. It is celebrated each day in theatres, halls, libraries, museums and galleries, in cinemas and sports stadiums up and down the country, finding expression in the talent and participation of people of all ages. This Department will continue to give people and communities the confidence and resources fully to express and to celebrate their cultural identity in an atmosphere of tolerance, openness and respect.

Equal Opportunities

15. Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps she has taken to promote equal opportunities among the non-departmental public bodies which her Department funds. [10034]

Tessa Jowell: I am determined that the Boards of my Department's public bodies reflect the diversity of the society they serve and have set challenging targets for the representation of women, people from ethnic minority backgrounds and disabled people. We are currently reviewing our appointments equal opportunities action plan which is published annually, together with those of other Departments, in "Quangos-Opening up Public Appointments", which is deposited in the Libraries of both Houses.

Community Sport

16. Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps she is taking to give children more opportunities to participate in sport in the community. [10035]

Mr. Caborn: My Department has a PSA target to raise significantly year on year the average time spent on sport and physical activity by those aged six to 16. A key element of the School Sport Co-ordinator programme, which will see a network of 1,000 co-ordinators in secondary schools across the country, is to encourage better links between schools and community sports clubs. We will also ensure that facilities refurbished or built under the Space for Sport and Arts initiative and the New Opportunities Fund's PE and School Sport programme will be available for both school and community use. In addition, Sport England's Active Sports programme aims to work through local centres, coaches and clubs to enable young people to participate in sport more frequently, improve their skills and compete at various levels.

28. Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will make a statement on the facilities available for sport in the community. [10049]

Mr. Caborn: Sport England estimates that there are over 6,300 sports hall and swimming pool facilities and approximately 500 synthetic turf pitches in England which meet Sport England's minimum standards in terms of size and community access. In addition there are many smaller community indoor facilities which are used for a range of community activities other than sport.

National Stadium

17. Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will make a statement on when Britain will have a national stadium. [10037]

Mr. Caborn: Scotland and Wales already have national stadiums.

Whether the current English National Stadium project can be developed depends to a great extent on whether the Football Association—whose events are crucial to the viability of the stadium—actually want to proceed with the National Stadium.

The discussions between Patrick Carter and the Football Association are intended to clarify the Football Association's position. The Government will, of course respond, to any proposals but we have made it clear that no taxpayers money will be committed to develop the stadium.

21. Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will make a statement on a national stadium for England. [10041]

Mr. Caborn: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to questions from my hon. Friends the Members for Chorley (Mr. Hoyle) and for Birmingham, Selly Oak (Lynne Jones) and the hon. Member for Ryedale (Mr. Greenway) on 19 October 2001, Official Report, columns 1380–81W.

Community Radio Licences

18. Jane Griffiths: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when the result of the latest bids for community radio licences will be announced. [10038]

Dr. Howells: The Radio Authority is responsible for licensing and regulating Independent Radio. I understand that the Radio Authority are is to announce its decision about the award of the Independent Local Radio licence to serve the town of Reading in February 2002.

Coalfield Communities (Lottery Funding)

20. Paddy Tipping: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what progress she has made in ensuring that coalfield communities receive a greater share of national lottery proceeds. [10040]

Mr. Caborn: My Department and Lottery distributors commissioned Sheffield Hallam University to research the impact of the Lottery on the coalfields and we have been working with coalfield groups to take forward recommendations to improve the take-up of funding in such areas. I shall publish a report tomorrow (6 November) on the progress made.

Gaming Machines

22. Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent representations she has had regarding gaming machines in private clubs. [10042]

Mr. Caborn: We have received a substantial number of representations about the recommendation that jackpot gaming machines should not be allowed in such clubs. We are considering them, but have not yet reached any conclusions. We intend to make an announcement about the report as a whole early next year.

Gambling Review

24. Mr. Robathan: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will make a statement on the gambling review. [10044]

Mr. Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will make a statement on the gaming review. [10494]

Mr. Caborn: When we published the report of the gambling review body we initiated a period of consultation which ended on 31 October. We are now considering all the responses and intend to announce our conclusions early next year.

Picketts Lock

25. Mr. Prisk: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will make a statement on the decision to abandon Picketts Lock as a venue for the world athletics championships. [10046]

Tessa Jowell: Patrick Carter's report on the Lee Valley project was completed on 31 August. The report concluded that the level of risk facing the project had reached such a stage as to make it unsustainable.

Having discussed his conclusions in detail with Sport England, the Government needed to decide whether to invest significant amounts of new money in the project to make it sustainable or whether to look to alternatives. Patrick Carter took the view that even with significant additional funding, the Lee Valley project still faced the very real prospect of being a substandard event due to transport, infrastructure and athlete accommodation difficulties.

The Government were not willing to see the United Kingdom proceed to stage a substandard event and with Sport England's agreement, decided to terminate the project on 4 October.

Dual Use Stadiums

26. Kevin Brennan: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment she has made of the viability of dual use stadiums with retractable seating for football and athletics; and if she will make a statement. [10047]

Mr. Caborn: I have made no specific assessment of the viability of dual use stadiums.

Eden Project

27. Linda Gilroy: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will make a statement on progress on the Eden project. [10048]

Tessa Jowell: This is a matter for the Millennium Commission. I will write to my hon. Friend in my capacity as Chair of the Commission, and place copies of my reply in the Libraries of both Houses.

S4C

29. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of the subsidy paid to S4C; and if she will make a statement. [10050]

Dr. Howells: It is an important principle that broadcasters should be independent of Government. In accordance with this principle the funding paid to S4C to provide a Welsh language broadcasting service is set by the formula in section 80 of the Broadcasting Act 1996.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State lays an annual report and statement of accounts prepared by S4C before Parliament annually.

World Cup

30. Mr. Blunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will make a statement on the network television broadcasting of World Cup matches in the United Kingdom. [10051]

Tessa Jowell: The whole of the World Cup Finals tournament is protected as a listed event in the UK, reflecting its importance to many millions of people. I therefore welcome the announcement made by the BBC and ITV on 18 October that they have signed an exclusive deal to broadcast the World Cup Finals tournaments in 2002 and 2006. This deal upholds the objective of the listed events legislation and will ensure that UK viewers are able to watch the entire 2002 and 2006 tournaments live on free-to-air, terrestrial television.

Sports Coaching

31. Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of the Minister for Sport of 16 July 2001, Official Report, column 4, if she will report the outcome of the meeting of 28 June on sports coaching facilities, and outline progress of subsequent meetings. [10052]

Mr. Caborn: At the first meeting of the coaching task force on 28 June the Terms of Reference set out in "The Government's Plan for Sport" were agreed and three sub-groups were established. The sub-groups have met on a number of occasions and reported back to the second meeting of the taskforce on 25 September. This meeting considered a draft model for a national coaching qualification and agreed to undertake an international bench-marking exercise on coaching structures in a number of other countries. The next meeting of the taskforce will take place on 22 November.

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans she has for parents and grandparents to take basic sport coaching courses; and what links they will have to the National Experience Corps. [12226]

Mr. Caborn: The coaching taskforce established earlier this year has a remit to review the co-ordination of coach education and training. As part of the groups' wider tasks they are currently exploring the opportunities for encouraging more parents and grandparents to become involved in coaching.

My Department are currently examining ways in which the National Experience Corps can contribute to achieving this aim.

Mr. Truswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans she has to promote coaching skills among parents. [12530]

Mr. Caborn: The coaching taskforce established earlier this year has a remit to review the co-ordination of coach education and training. As part of the groups' wider tasks they are currently exploring the opportunities for encouraging more parents to become involved in coaching.

Museum and Gallery Entry

23. Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what progress she has made towards ensuring free entry to national museums and galleries. [10043]

Tessa Jowell: Our policy is to encourage all museums to offer the widest possible access to their collections. We have enabled those museums and galleries funded by my Department which already offer free admission to continue to offer it. We have scrapped entry charges for children and people over 60 at the main museums and galleries sponsored by my Department that currently charge and have made available from 1 December 2001 additional resources to allow them to introduce free admission for all from that date.

The restoration of free access will enable the greatest collections we have, built up by public funds over generations, to be available to everyone, no matter what their income or background.

Lottery Moneys

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what is the total amount of lottery moneys paid by parliamentary constituency in each of the last four years. [11859]

Mr. Caborn: I will place copies of the information requested in the Libraries of both Houses.

National Lottery

Mr. Allen: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans she has to review the procedure for awarding the national lottery operating licence. [12983]

Mr. Caborn: Following the announcement earlier this year by my right hon. Friend the Member for Islington, South and Finsbury (Mr. Smith) that the Government would review the process for selecting the national lottery operator, we are now considering options for change and will be seeking the views of interested parties. We expect to publish our conclusions next year as the basis for wider public consultation.

Public Libraries

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what progress has been made in improving the service provided by public libraries. [10036]

Tessa Jowell: The Government have encouraged better planning and accountability in public library services through the introduction of Annual Library Plans and a more rigorous enforcement of the Public Libraries and Museums Act 1964. Standards of service for library authorities were introduced from 1 April this year. Additionally, £170 million of lottery money is being made available to libraries through the People's Network programme to upgrade their ICT infrastructure, create innovative digital content and train library staff in the use of ICT.

Sport and Recreation Facilities

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what figures she has collated on spending by local authorities in England on sport and recreation facilities since 1997; and if she will make a statement. [10026]

Tessa Jowell: Local authorities are key providers of sport and recreation and play a central role in the delivery of sport in and for the community. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions publishes annual figures on spending by local authorities on sport and recreation. Since 1997 local authorities have spent over £549 million on new construction, conversion and renovation of sport and recreation facilities, which includes a substantial investment from the national lottery, to improve facilities for local communities.

TREASURY

Cancer Patients

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what percentage of prostate cancer patients live for at least five years after treatment in the United Kingdom, and what is the average such percentage in the European Union; [11869]

(2) what percentage of leukaemia sufferers live for at least five years after treatment in the United Kingdom, and what is the average such percentage in the European Union; [11870]

(3) what percentage of breast cancer patients live for at least five years after the treatment in the United Kingdom; and what the average such percentage is in the European Union. [11871]

Ruth Kelly: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the national statistician. I have asked him to reply.

Letter from Robyn Lynch to Mr. John Bercow, dated 5 November 2001:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent questions on the percentage of prostate cancer patients, leukaemia sufferers and breast cancer patients that live at least five years after treatment in the United Kingdom and the average such percentages in the European Union. (11869, 11870, 11871). I am replying in his absence.

The information requested is not available.

However, the latest available comparable rates of survival from time of diagnosis for England, Scotland and some other countries in Europe were published in Berrino F, Capocaccia R, Estève J, Gatta G, Hakulinen T, Micheli M, Sant M, Verdecchia A (eds). Survival of cancer patients in Europe - the EUROCARE-2 study. (IARC Scientific Publications No.151. Lyons: International Agency for Research on Cancer, 1999).

A copy is available in the House of Commons Library.

Mobile Phone Licences

Mrs. May: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent discussions he has had with the (a) Department of Trade and Industry and (b) Department of Transport, Local Government and the Regions concerning 3G mobile phone licences. [12405]

Mr. Andrew Smith: My right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer meets regularly with Cabinet colleagues and others to discuss a wide range of issues.

Illegally Imported Alcohol

Mr. Steinberg: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the revenue lost each year to the Treasury because of illegally imported alcohol; and what plans he has to reduce the loss. [10410]

Mr. Boateng [holding answer 26 October 2001]: Estimates of alcohol fraud were published in the report by the Comptroller and Auditor General "Losses to the Revenue from Frauds on Alcohol Duty" (HC 178) in July 2001.

Details of the Government strategy to tackle alcohol fraud will be published in due course.

Customs and Excise

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the target of HM Customs and Excise is for detecting notifiable export irregularities. [11166]

Mr. Boateng: Targets for the number of notifiable export irregularities detected are not set.

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made since 11 September of the priority given by HM Customs and Excise to detecting notifiable import and export irregularities. [11165]

Mr. Boateng: Customs continue to deploy resources on the basis of intelligence and assessment of risk. Many of the potential risks which can result in notifiable import and export irregularities are unaffected by the 11 September events. Where intelligence or risk assessment indicates an increased risk a higher priority is afforded.

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer in how many and in what percentage of searches of premises by HM Customs and Excise were (a) smuggled goods and (b) other evidence relating to an offence discovered in (i) 1999–2000, (ii) 2000–01 and (iii) 2001–02 to date. [11167]

Mr. Boateng: This information is not readily available and can be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many searches of premises were conducted by HM Customs and Excise (a) by consent, (b) by warrant and (c) by writ of assistance in (i) 1999–2000, (ii) 2000–01 and (iii) 2001–02 to date. [11168]

Mr. Boateng: Figures for 2000–01 and 2001–02 are not yet available. For the year 1999–2000 there were 298 searches of premises conducted by consent, 265 conducted by warrant and 183 by writ of assistance in England, Wales and Northern Ireland.

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many cases were taken to court for Common Agricultural Policy export refund offences and irregularities levied by the Intervention Board as a result of Customs detections; what was the total overclaim value of those cases; and what was the total sum of penalties awarded in (a) 1999–2000, (b) 2000–01 and (c) 2001–02 to date. [11173]

Mr. Boateng: There were no cases taken to court by HM Customs and Excise for Common Agricultural Policy export refund offences in 1999–2000, 2000–01 and no cases to date for 2001–02.

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many people were detained after arrest by HM Customs and Excise in (a) 1999–2000, (b) 2000–01 and (c) 2001–02 to date; and how many such people were subsequently (i) charged, (ii) released on payment of a compound settlement and (iii) released for other reasons; [11170]

(2) how many people were kept in Customs detention for more than 24 hours in (a) 1999–2000, (b) 2000–01 and (c) 2001–02 to date; and how many people in each year were subsequently released without charge. [11171]

Mr. Boateng: Figures for 2000–01 and 2001–02 are not yet available.

1999–2000

	England and Wales	Northern Ireland
Number of persons:
Detained after arrest	3,595	89
Detained for more than 24 hours and subsequently released without charge	25	0
Number of persons for whom warrants for further detention were:
Applied for	27	0
Granted[1]	26	0
[1]in this instance, the number of persons:
Charged	46	0
Released on payment of a settlement	5	0
Number of persons:
Charged	1,563	18
Released on payment of a settlement	310	1
Released for other reasons	0	0

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many prosecutions were brought by HM Customs and Excise in (a) 1999–2000, (b) 2000–01 and (c) 2001–02 to date in cases where the offence is registrable under the Sex Offenders Act 1997. [11169]

Mr. Boateng: As part of the multi-agency approach to combating paedophile activity both Customs and Excise and the police bring prosecutions following the investigation of detections of material by Customs.

	1999–2000	2000–01
Total number of prosecutions	33	29
Police	14	14
HM Customs	19	15

The figures for 2001–02 are incomplete.

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many searches of persons carried out by Customs and Excise officers related to (a) drugs, (b) revenue goods and (c) other prohibited or restricted goods in (i) 1999–2000, (ii) 2000–01 and (iii) 2001–02 to date; and what percentages of the number of searches conducted this represented in each case. [11197]

Mr. Boateng: This information is not readily available and can be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Individual Pension Account

Mr. Webb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he plans to introduce the individual pension account. [12450]

Ruth Kelly: The individual pensions account was introduced in Budget 2001. They have been available since April 2001.

FRS 17 Regulations

Mr. Webb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the impact of the FRS 17 regulations on portfolio decisions of pension fund managers; and if he will make a statement. [12451]

Ruth Kelly: FRS 17, like the other financial reporting standards, is a matter for the Accounting Standards Board.

Kingscrest Case

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, pursuant to his answer of 3 July 2001, Official Report, column 127W, on care homes, what steps his Department has taken to challenge the decision of the London VAT tribunal. [12162]

Mr. Boateng: The Government are of the clear view that care of vulnerable people provided in residential homes should not be subject to VAT.

Customs and Excise appealed against this tribunal decision. The appeal is expected to be heard early in the new year.

Landfill Tax Credit

Sue Doughty: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) which organisations and individuals he has (a) already consulted and (b) plans to consult on the future of landfill tax credit; and when the consultations took place; [12982]

(2) when he plans to make an announcement on the future of landfill tax credit. [12981]

Ruth Kelly: The Government are committed to meeting the challenging targets for waste recycling set out in Waste Strategy 2000. As stated in Budget 2001, it is attracted to replacing all or part of the landfill tax credit scheme with a public spending programme to direct resources towards Government priorities on sustainable waste management. The Government, together with the devolved Administrations, are now beginning work on developing options for a spending programme for consideration as part of Spending Review 2002. In taking forward this work, the Government will consult with interested parties on the shape of any replacement scheme and the transition to any replacement.

Brownfield Sites

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, pursuant to his answers of 25 October 2001, Official Report, column 375W, and 30 October 2001, Official Report, column 625W, on brownfield sites, what information he has (a) collated and (b) published on the take-up of the tax credit for clearing and developing brownfield sites. [12414]

Mr. Boateng: No estimates are currently available for the take up of this measure. Tax relief for expenditure on the remediation of contaminated land will be claimed in the tax return of the company undertaking the remediation work and those returns do not have to be filed until 12 months after the end of the accounting period concerned. Relief is available in respect of land remediation expenditure incurred on or after 11 May 2001, therefore those companies who take advantage of this relief are unlikely to file their tax returns until May 2002 at the earliest. Information provided in those returns is covered by the normal rules on taxpayer confidentiality.

Tobin Tax

Adam Price: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent discussions he has had with his European colleagues on the Tobin tax; and if he will make a statement. [9849]

Mr. Boateng: The Tobin tax was discussed by European Finance Ministers during the 22 September informal ECOFIN meeting in Liege. Ministers agreed to further work into the economic implications and practical issues raised by the Tobin tax as part of a wider study into the challenges of globalisation.

Mr. Challen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent representations he has received about the Tobin tax. [8750]

Mr. Boateng: The Treasury has received correspondence from the public and non-governmental organisations, as well as academic assessments of the Tobin tax, and there have been meetings with non-governmental organisations and academics to discuss the issues.

The Tobin tax was also discussed by European Finance Ministers during the 22 September informal ECOFIN meeting in Liege. Ministers agreed to further work into the economic implications and practical issues raised by the Tobin tax as part of a wider study into the challenges of globalisation.

Church Repairs

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the impact of his policy on making a grant available for the repair of churches in lieu of reducing VAT; and what representations he has received on this subject. [11982]

Mr. Boateng: The Chancellor's long-term objective is to reduce the VAT rate levied on repairs to listed places of worship from 17.5 per cent. to 5 per cent. This is not permitted under current European Community legislation, but the European Commission has indicated that it will look at the UK's proposal to amend the VAT rules when these are reviewed in 2003. In the interim, the Chancellor has decided to introduce a grant scheme which will award the differential between the 17.5 per cent. and 5 per cent. rate to qualifying buildings. This scheme has been widely welcomed by owners of listed places of worship. It represents significant additional funds for this group—initial estimates are up to £30 million per year.

Sustainable Waste Management

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the performance of the environmental bodies in meeting his indicative guidelines for spending on sustainable waste management projects in the last 12 months. [12044]

Mr. Boateng: It is too early to make any meaningful assessment. In May this year the Government set the waste industry a challenging target of 65 per cent. of landfill tax credits to be allocated to sustainable waste management projects. The Government will review progress in forthcoming budget reports.

Bank Disclosures

Mr. Gareth R. Thomas: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, pursuant to his answer of 23 October 2001, Official Report, column 204W, on bank disclosures, what (a) barriers to and (b) opportunities for growth in the individual banks' lending activities in disadvantaged communities he has identified; and if he will make a statement. [12446]

Ruth Kelly: The barriers and opportunities to banks' lending activities in disadvantaged communities are identified in several reports including:

"Enterprise and Social Exclusion, Policy Action Team 3" (HM Treasury November 1999).

"Enterprising Communities: Wealth Beyond Welfare" (Social Investment Task Force, October 2000).

"Finance for Small Businesses in Deprived Communities" (Bank of England November 2000).

Competitiveness

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the World Economic Forum calculation of the change in the ranking of the United Kingdom in the league table of competitiveness from 1998 to 2000. [12538]

Ruth Kelly: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave to the right hon. and learned Member for Folkestone and Hythe (Mr. Howard) on 30 October 2001, Official Report, column 640W, regarding the World Economic Forum's growth competitiveness index.

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the Institute of Management Development calculation of the change in the ranking of the United Kingdom in the league table of competitiveness from 1997 to 2001. [12535]

Ruth Kelly: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave to the right hon. and learned Member for Folkstone and Hythe (Mr. Howard) on 30 October 2001, Official Report, column 640W.

Market Abuse Directive

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) if he will make a statement on his position in regard to the proposed EU market abuse directive; [12392]

(2) what the forecast cost to the UK financial services industry is of the proposed EU market abuse directive. [12391]

Ruth Kelly: The Government support the Commission's objectives of developing the single market in financial services and promoting the integrity of the single market. The proposal for the directive creates for the first time an EU-wide regime to counter market manipulation and updates the existing insider dealing provisions to enable them to benefit from the enhanced co-operation measures.

The Government will examine the proposal carefully to ensure that there is no diminution in the level of protection from market manipulation currently enjoyed by UK markets, that the level of regulation proposed is proportionate and consistent with the goal of advancing the single market in financial services, and that any consequent changes to the UK's new market abuse regime are kept to a minimum.

Since the United Kingdom has a rigorous market abuse regime under part VIII of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 due to come into force shortly, United Kingdom firms should already have in place measures to counter abusive behaviour.

However, the directive as currently drafted would require some modifications to the existing regulatory regime. The inflexible regulatory approach taken in the current draft of the directive could give rise to additional compliance costs as firms incur legal costs on advice to avoid behaviour that could give rise to enforcement actions.

The Government's goal in negotiations is to minimise the need for modification of the current regulatory regime to ensure the directive effectively tackles market abuse and does not impose additional, unnecessary costs.

Charities (Taxation)

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans he has to change the taxation of charities. [12331]

Ruth Kelly: The Government keep all taxes under review and decisions are made as part of the normal Budget process. In April 2000 the Government introduced a number of measures to help charities and to improve incentives for charitable giving. The Getting Britain Giving package of measures included improvements to the Gift Aid and Payroll Giving schemes and a new income tax relief for giving shares to charities. The Government are supporting the Giving Campaign, an independent charities-led initiative, to encourage a culture of giving and increase awareness of planned tax efficient giving.

Business Start-up Tax Credits

Adam Price: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his policy is on the provision of business start-up tax credits in the Objective 1 areas. [12397]

Ruth Kelly: The Government published proposals in March 2001 for a new community investment tax credit to increase the availability of capital to small enterprises, including start-ups, in disadvantaged communities. Details of the proposal can be found in the Treasury consultation document "Enterprising Communities: A Tax Incentive for Community Investment".

Office of Government Commerce

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the saving to public funds that will be realised by the establishment of the Office of Government Commerce. [11842]

Mr. Andrew Smith: The OGC has been set a target to deliver £1 billion value for money gains across central Government by 2002–03. This will be achieved by Departments applying the tools, methods and techniques promoted by OGC.

VAT

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what changes in the rate of value added tax have been introduced since 1 May 1997. [11378]

Mr. Boateng: Changes up to 1 January 2001 are published in table C6 of the tables and statistics accompanying the Customs and Excise annual report for 2000, available on the Customs and Excise website.

Changes to VAT rates announced in the Budget of 7 March 2001 were published in the Financial Statement and Budget Report 2001.

Mortgage Lenders (Fees)

Mr. Lazarowicz: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will take steps to prohibit the practice of mortgage lenders charging their customers a fee should they move their mortgage to an alternative mortgage lender. [11966]

Ruth Kelly: There are legitimate reasons for lenders to charge fees, not least the administration costs that are involved in transferring deeds to other lenders, together with the essential correspondence that needs to be entered into between borrower and (both) lenders as well as between lenders. Moreover, there is clear disclosure of these fees upfront in line with the benchmarks set out in CAT standard mortgages. I do not therefore propose to prohibit this practice.

Tobacco

Rachel Squire: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has of the tax revenue received in each of the last three financial years from the sale of (a) cigars and (b) cigarettes. [12164]

Mr. Boateng: Duty receipts from sales of tobacco products are published in chapter C of the Government's annual Financial Statement and Budget Report. Duty receipts from sales of individual types of tobacco products are set out on a regular basis in the HM Customs and Excise "Tobacco Factsheet", available from the House of Commons Library.

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what was the mean annual revenue in terms of (a) tobacco tax and (b) VAT on combined cost of tobacco products and the duty thereon imposed, from each smoker in the UK in (i) 1996–97 and (ii) 2000–01; and if he will estimate the mean annual combined tobacco tax and VAT revenue to be raised from each smoker in the UK in 2001–02. [9172]

Mr. Boateng: No accurate estimates are currently available.

Correspondence

Adam Price: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he plans to respond to the letter of the First Secretary of the National Assembly for Wales on fiscal variations; and if he will make a statement. [12396]

Mr. Andrew Smith: All representations in advance of the 2002 Budget will be considered carefully in the normal way.

Smuggling

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his estimate is of the value of cross-Channel smuggling in summer (a) 2001 and (b) 2000. [9173]

Mr. Boateng: For Customs' estimate of cross-Channel smuggling in 2000 I refer the hon. Member to the answer my hon. Friend the Paymaster General gave to the hon. Member for Preseli Pembrokeshire (Mrs. Lawrence) on 7 March 2001, Official Report, columns 229–30W. Results from the first year of the "Tackling Tobacco Smuggling" strategy, including Customs' estimate of cross-Channel smuggling in 2001, will be published at the time of the pre-Budget report.

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his estimate is of the share of the tobacco market represented by illicit supplies in (a) 2000–01 and (b) 2001–02 to the most recent date for which information is available. [9174]

Mr. Boateng: Results from the first year of the "Tackling Tobacco Smuggling" strategy, including the level of the illicit market for 2000–01, will be published at the time of the pre-Budget report. Customs estimate of the size of the illicit market during 2001–02 will be published on a full financial year basis during 2002–03.

Cigarette Seizures

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many cigarettes were seized by HM Customs and Excise in (a) 2000–01 and (b) 2001–02 to the latest date for which information is available to him. [9180]

Mr. Boateng: Results from the first year of the "Tackling Tobacco Smuggling" strategy, including the number of cigarettes seized during 2000–01, will be published at the time of the pre-Budget report. Customs cigarette seizures for 2001–02 will be published on a full financial year basis during 2002–03.

HOUSE OF COMMONS

Travel Warrants (Members' Spouses)

Mr. George Osborne: To ask the President of the Council what plans there are to increase the number of travel warrants available to the spouses of Members each year. [11082]

Mr. Robin Cook: I am not aware of any such plans. The hon. Gentleman may wish to raise the matter with the Speaker's Advisory Panel, which considers such matters.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Special Advisers

Chris Grayling: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many special advisers employed by the Government participate directly with civil service press and public relations staff in the planning and implementation of press and media announcements. [10961]

Mr. Leslie: Special advisers advise Ministers on the development of Government policy and its presentation, liaising as necessary with civil service press officers.

Civil Service (Departmental Changes)

Mr. Brady: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what assessment he has made of the net effect on full-time employee headcount of the civil service of the departmental changes announced in June. [12049]

Mr. Leslie: Central data on civil service personnel is collected twice yearly on the basis of staff in post at 1 April and 1 October. Changes in civil service staffing levels, including any attributable to the departmental changes announced in June, will not therefore become apparent until figures for October 2001 are available.

LORD CHANCELLOR'S DEPARTMENT

Deaths (Registration)

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department if the Lord Chancellor will take steps to change the law on the registration of deaths to ensure equality of treatment as between married and unmarried couples. [11961]

Ruth Kelly: I have been asked to reply.

In 1998, the then Economic Secretary to the Treasury commissioned the Registrar-General to carry out a fundamental review of the civil registration service in England and Wales. This was in recognition of the fact that much of the civil registration system is outdated and does not meet the needs of today's society.

In September 1999, the Registrar-General published a consultation paper, 'Registration: Modernising a Vital Service'. The consultation period ended on 6 December 1999. The responses have been used to set out options for the future development of the registration service, so that it can adapt to the changing needs and attitudes of a modern society.

Many of the responses to the consultation document were in support of equality of treatment for men and women in the records of births, deaths and marriages. Proposals on how this could be achieved are now being formulated and the intention is to publish a policy paper in due course.

Georgina McCarthy

Margaret Moran: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what action she intends to take on the Family Law Act Sub-Committee's report on the murder of Georgina McCarthy. [11723]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Sub-Committee's recommendations are currently being considered by a working party of the inter-departmental group on Violence against Women and Domestic Violence. The working group, which comprises officials from the Lord Chancellor's Department, Home Office and Department of Health, met on 1 November 2001. Areas were identified for action by each Department and work has begun on developing an inter-departmental strategy to deal with the issue of improving co-operation between the criminal and civil/family jurisdictions.

Bailiff Law

Margaret Moran: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what plans she has to reform bailiff law. [11724]

Ms Rosie Winterton: I refer my hon. Friend to the written answer given to my hon. Friend the Member for Monmouth (Mr. Edwards) by my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Secretary on 19 July 2001, Official Report, column 451W.

The consultation period for the Green Paper 'Towards Effective Enforcement' ended on 12 October 2001. We are very grateful to the wide range of individuals and organisations who have used their time and expertise to respond to the Green Paper.

The responses are currently being analysed by the Enforcement Review Team.

Clinical Negligence

Mr. Dobson: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department in each of the last five years for which figures are available, how many applications for legal aid in claims for clinical negligence against the NHS were (a) accepted and (b) rejected. [11956]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Legal Services Commission does not record case data in a way that would enable an answer to be given to the exact question asked.

The number of certificates issued by the Commission for legal aid relating to all claims for clinical negligence was as follows:

(a) in 1996–97: 9,165;

(b) in 1997–98: 11,899;

(c) in 1998–99: 7,867;

(d) in 1999–2000: 7,375; and

(e) in 2000–01: 7,329.

It is not possible to say, at this level of detail, how many applications were accepted and rejected. Approximate refusal rates are available for the last two years:

in 1999–2000: 10 per cent.

in 2000–01: 8 per cent.

In addition to this refusal rate, a number of offers of legal aid are not pursued. This figure is in the order of 10 per cent. of applications received.

It is not possible to separate applications from claimants and defendants, or those which involve the NHS from those which do not.

Mr. Dobson: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what was the cost, in each of the last five years for which figures are available, of legal aid in claims for clinical negligence against the NHS. [11955]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Legal Services Commission does not record case data in a way that would enable an answer to be given to the exact question asked.

The Commission records the value of main bills paid, comprising solicitors' costs, disbursements and counsels' fees. The total figures for each year also include the value of claims which are met in full by the opponents. The net cost to the Commission of clinical negligence cases is therefore less than the figures given:

(a) in 1996–97: £56.9 million;

(b) in 1997–98: £64.4 million;

(c) in 1998–99: £64.6 million;

(d) in 1999–2000: £60.6 million; and

(e) in 2000–01: £52.8 million.

It is not possible to separate claims against the NHS from claims against GPs and dentists; or can the Commission differentiate between NHS defendants and non-NHS defendants.

Prior to the introduction of civil contracting in January 2000, clinical negligence was not separately identified as a category of advice work. The figures therefore do not provide information regarding payments for advice and assistance work done under the former 'green form' system.

Magistrates Courts

Tim Loughton: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department how many court cases in magistrates courts have been abandoned in each of the last five years owing to non-appearance of (a) witnesses and (b) police witnesses. [12604]

Mr. Wills: Information has not been collected nationally on cases which have been abandoned. From 1 January 2002, a joint scheme will be implemented in England and Wales to collect data on the reasons for Cracked, Ineffective and Vacated trials in the magistrates courts.

Working Group on Gender Allocation

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department if she will make a further statement on progress of the Home Office Working Group on Gender Allocation. [11802]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This subject was transferred from the Home Office to the Lord Chancellor's Department in the recent machinery of Government changes. The Report of the Interdepartmental Working Group on Transsexual People was presented to Parliament in July 2002. The report has been carefully considered within Government and by other interested groups. The Government are sympathetic to the issues raised in the report and are considering further how to take the matter forward.

Induction and Accommodation Centres

Fiona Mactaggart: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what advice and representation will be available to asylum seekers in induction and accommodation centres. [11910]

Angela Eagle: I refer my hon. Friend to the reply given by my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary on 29 October 2001, Official Report, column 642.

Details of the services that will be available in induction and accommodation centres will appear in the White Paper, which my right hon. Friend announced on 29 October 2001.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Category A Prisoners

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) men and (b) women were classified as category A prisoners in prisons in England and Wales as at 1 July. [4782]

Beverley Hughes: Provisional information shows that on 1 July 2001 there were four female category A prisoners in prisons in England and Wales, all of which were adults, compared with 955 category A adult males, and 14 category A male young offenders.

Personal Identity Documents

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidance the Government give to Departments in cases involving the loss of personal identity documents (a) when they are being held by Departments and (b) in other circumstances. [10073]

Angela Eagle: Staff in Home Office departments handling documents of identity are instructed to treat them with proper regard to security.

Where it is confirmed after a thorough search that a document has been lost in the department, the document is replaced at the expense of the department. The circumstances are investigated and the situation monitored.

Losses in other circumstances are investigated wherever possible and the situation monitored to identify trends. Where appropriate, information to help prevent fraudulent use of documents is shared with other Departments. No general guidance to other Departments is issued.

Road Traffic Offences (Fines)

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much revenue was generated from fines for road traffic offences in the last 12 months. [11563]

Mr. Denham: Available information taken from the 1999 Home Office Motoring Offences (Court Proceedings) Database shows that the amount (£) of fines imposed at all courts for road traffic offences within England and Wales, was £57 million.

3.1 million fixed penalty notices were issued for road traffic offences in 1999 amounting to £80 million.

Religious Discrimination

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, pursuant to his answer of 19 October 2001, Official Report, column 1399W, on religious discrimination, if he will list the research participants who have been consulted; and if he will put copies of their evidence in the Library. [11066]

Angela Eagle [holding answer 30 October 2001]: The research participants in question took part in a research project commissioned by the Home Office into religious discrimination. They included representatives of religious organisations and representatives of secular agencies in the public, private and voluntary sectors throughout England and Wales.

I am not able to disclose their personal details as the organisations and participants were assured their responses would be confidential, as is standard practice in social surveys. In fact, researchers at the University of Derby (who conducted the research) removed all names and addresses before they sent us a copy of the survey data, which again is proper procedure.

This research produced two reports published in the Home Office Research Study series in February 2001;

1. "Religious discrimination in England and Wales" (ISBN 1 84082 612 6). One of the findings from this report was referred to in my last correspondence. This report provides full details of the survey findings; and
2. "Tackling religious discrimination: practical implications for policy-makers and legislators" (ISBN 1 84082 613 4). This is a separate report produced by the Cambridge Centre for Public Law and looks at the practical implications of the findings from the survey.

As with all our publications in the Home Office Research Study series, these reports are available in the Library.

Refugees

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what security profile is carried out on refugees arriving in the UK. [8150]

Angela Eagle: All arriving passengers are presented to the United Kingdom immigration controls where they are examined by an immigration officer before being allowed into the UK.

That examination includes checking personal details against the Immigration Service Warnings Index. The Warnings Index computer system is the primary tool for providing information to staff operating the immigration entry control. It maintains records of passengers who have, for example, previously been refused entry or been deported, and also contains information for the purposes of national security and the detection and prevention of crime. All Immigration Service staff at control points have access to the Warnings Index and portable equipment is available for use elsewhere when needed. All arriving asylum applicants are checked against the system.

Foreign Armed Forces (UK Citizens)

Mr. Page: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what action he is taking concerning British citizens who serve with the Taliban forces. [11981]

Mr. Keith Bradley [holding answer 2 November 2001]: It is wrong to take up arms against British soldiers and their allies.

Generally British citizens are free to travel abroad and it would not be practical to investigate every individual's intentions. However, anyone considering fighting with the Taliban will know it is wrong to take up arms against British soldiers and their allies, and should be aware that they may be laying themselves open to criminal sanctions, including for treason.

In addition, individuals who are committing offences here under the Terrorism Act 2000 can be detained by the police for investigation.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what his policy is on dealing with British citizens apprehended in Afghanistan taking arms against British military personnel, on their return to the UK. [12602]

Mr. Keith Bradley: I refer the hon. Member to the replies given to the hon. Member for South-West Hertfordshire (Mr. Page) on 2 November 2001, Official Report, column 862W.

Victims of Torture

Mr. Donaldson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assistance is offered to asylum seekers who make an application to enter the UK on the basis of providing evidence that they are the victims of torture. [11663]

Angela Eagle [holding answer 1 November 2001]: A person making an application for asylum may be issued with a Statement of Evidence Form (SEF). This has an accompanying explanatory note about the role of the Medical Foundation for the Care of Victims of Torture.

Those who are not given a SEF will be interviewed shortly after having made an asylum claim and if they raise the issue of torture during the course of their interview, the interviewing officer may advise them to get a medical report. The interviewing officer may also refer them to specialist organisations that might be able to assist them, such as the medical foundation.

All interviewing officers are trained to deal with victims of torture and have access to guidelines setting out how to interview such people.

All asylum seekers who are supported by the National Asylum Support Service (NASS) are provided with guidance notes explaining that they have access to the national health service (NHS).

Cannabis

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people were (a) arrested and charged with and (b) convicted of cannabis possession in (i) the Thames Valley police authority area and (ii) every other police authority area in each of the last four years. [11875]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Arrest data are not collected centrally by individual offence.

Information from the Home Office Court Proceedings Database showing the number of persons convicted of the possession of cannabis by police force area during the period 1997–2000 is given in the table.

Number of persons convicted at all courts for the possession of cannabis by police force area in England and Wales 1997–2000

Police force area	1997	1998	1999	2000
Avon and Somerset	140	201	260	311
Bedfordshire	227	290	248	212
Cambridgeshire	154	152	147	88
Cheshire	375	505	537	374
Cleveland	79	123	205	221
Cumbria	211	243	199	161
Derbyshire	167	204	248	206
Devon and Cornwall	492	587	517	479
Dorset	105	222	286	281
Durham	97	102	100	212
Essex	465	538	559	567
Gloucestershire	143	191	201	172
Greater Manchester	594	728	808	895
Hampshire	530	770	917	738
Hertfordshire	253	228	236	233
Humberside	146	213	226	232
Kent	542	873	873	720
Lancashire	657	885	814	716
Leicestershire	244	308	245	226
Lincolnshire	292	317	171	162
London, City of	67	89	70	23
Merseyside	999	1,312	1,246	941
Metropolitan police	3,743	5,100	4,974	4,550
Norfolk	318	170	261	237
Northamptonshire	12	11	31	102
Northumbria	314	655	879	925
North Yorkshire	230	371	337	158
Nottinghamshire	244	236	266	260
South Yorkshire	416	474	577	617
Staffordshire[1]	249	289	221	n/a
Suffolk	230	239	234	166
Surrey	208	250	314	358
Sussex	317	330	296	272
Thames Valley	550	683	642	558
Warwickshire	67	76	74	74
West Mercia	261	314	286	218
West Midlands	785	1,212	1,114	1,213
West Yorkshire	940	1,153	1,011	856
Wiltshire	125	169	203	169
Dyfed Powys	302	499	476	368
Gwent	178	262	278	337
North Wales	222	357	355	292
South Wales	585	712	681	692
England and Wales	17,275	22,643	22,623	20,725

n/a = not available

[1] Estimates made for Staffordshire police force, who were able to submit data for only a sample of weeks for year 2000, have been included only in the total.

Note:

All data are given on a principal offence basis.

Mr. Blizzard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate he has made of the effect on the (a) quantity of cannabis consumed in the UK, (b) quantity of tobacco consumed in the UK and (c) number of people in the UK using cannabis that would result from the reclassification of cannabis from a Class B to Class C drug. [11589]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I do not anticipate that a decision to reclassify cannabis from Class B to Class C under the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 would have any effect on the number of people using the drug or the quantity consumed. Cannabis will remain a controlled drug and using it still a criminal offence.

Sex Offences

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what reviews of sex offences are in progress in his Department; and when their conclusions will be reported to the House. [11873]

Mr. Keith Bradley: The Government set up a Sex Offences Review in January 1999. Its recommendations on reforming the law on sex offences were published in 'Setting the Boundaries' in July 2000. We are now considering the recommendations in the light of the over 700 responses to that consultation document. We hope to make an announcement as soon as possible.

In addition responses to consultation on a review of Part One of the Sex Offenders Act 1997 (the register of sex offenders) are currently being analysed.

Asylum Seekers

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what information will be stored on the asylum seekers' identification smart card. [12055]

Angela Eagle: The Application Registration Card or 'ARC' will have a microchip which could enable it to support financial transactions in due course. In addition, it is currently envisaged that the following data will be stored within the microchip:

Printed on card

- Name
- Date of Birth
- Sex
- Nationality
- IFB ref no
- Place of original issue
- Date of original issue
- Card Issue No
- Date of application
- Number of dependants
- Dependant of
- Language 1
- Language 2

Contained in microchip

- Name
- Address
- IFB ref no
- Home Office ref no
- Port/LEO reference
- NASS ref no
- Originating Port/LEO code
- Date of Birth
- Sex
- Nationality Code
- Case Type
- Asylum/Non-asylum
- Place of original issue
- Date of original issue
- Next report date
- Case Status
- Card Issue No
- Card Serial No
- Face image
- Fingerprints
- Issuing Officer
- Fingerprint used
- Date of application
- Number of dependants
- Dependant of
- Language 1
- Language 2.

However, these lists are still subject to change. Card design will not be confirmed until 9 November.

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many asylum claims by (a) families, (b) unaccompanied minors and (c) all persons were rejected on the grounds of non-compliance (i) as an initial decision and (ii) as a final decision, as a percentage of all decisions, for each of the last six months. [10749]

Angela Eagle: The available information on initial decisions made on asylum claims made by (a) principal applicants and (b) families are included in the table. Decision data for unaccompanied minors are unavailable.

Initial decisions made[1,2,3] and refusals on non-compliance grounds of asylum and exceptional leave, principal applicants, February 2001-July 2001[4]

	Initial decisions made	Refused on non-compliance grounds	Percentage of total decisions
February 2001	14,430	3,460	24
March 2001	18,895	3,110	16
April 2001	9,455	1,415	15
May 2001	9,645	1,625	17
June 2001	8,205	1,400	17
July 2001	7,600	1,285	17

[1] Figures (other than percentages) rounded to nearest 5.
[2] Information is of initial decision excluding the outcome of appeals of other subsequent decisions.
[3] May include some cases decided under the backlog criteria.
[4] Provisional.

Initial decisions made[1,2,3] and refusals on non-compliance grounds of asylum and exceptional leave, families, February 2001-July 2001[4]

	Initial decisions made	Refused on non-compliance grounds	Percentage of total decisions
February 2001	780	170	22
March 2001	1,165	205	18
April 2001	705	165	24
May 2001	750	175	23
June 2001	655	100	15
July 2001	590	70	12

[1] Figures (other than percentages) rounded to nearest 5.
[2] Information is of initial decision excluding the outcome of appeals of other subsequent decisions.
[3] May include some cases decided under the backlog criteria.
[4] Provisional.

Information on final decisions are not readily available and would only be obtained by examination of individual case files relating to the outcomes of initial decisions, appeals and reconsiderations, which would incur disproportionate cost.

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the percentage of applications for asylum refused on non-compliance grounds at the initial decision stage by country of origin in the last six months. [10724]

Angela Eagle: The information requested has been provided in the table.

Refusals[1,2,3] of asylum and exceptional leave, excluding dependants, by nationality, February 2001-July 2001[4]

Europe	Total decisions	Total refused	Percentage of total decisions	Refused on non-compliance grounds	Percentage of total decisions	Percentage of total refusals
Albania	975	885	91	245	25	28
Czech Republic	595	595	100	60	10	10
FRY	6,035	4,805	80	1,110	18	23
Poland	455	445	98	95	21	21
Romania	1,300	1,265	97	760	58	60
Russia	525	495	94	120	23	24
Turkey	4,495	4,265	95	445	10	10
Ukraine	705	685	97	165	23	24
Other former USSR	1,650	1,560	95	545	33	35
Other former Yugo.	525	480	91	100	19	21
Others	485	440	91	65	13	15
Total	17,745	15,910	90	3,710	21	23
Americas
Colombia	420	375	89	65	15	17
Ecuador	345	330	96	65	19	20
Others	400	370	93	90	23	24
Total	1,165	1,080	93	220	19	20
Middle East
Iran	3,360	2,900	86	545	16	19
Iraq	4,735	3,520	74	745	16	21
Others	1,110	940	85	140	13	15
Total	9,200	7,360	80	1,430	16	19
Africa
Algeria	1,670	1,585	95	345	21	22
Angola	695	380	55	95	14	25
Dem Rep of Congo	1,455	1,115	77	125	9	11
Ethiopia	650	515	79	40	6	8
Gambia	45	35	78	10	22	29
Ghana	230	180	78	55	24	31
Ivory Coast	305	285	93	50	16	18
Kenya	540	490	91	105	19	21
Nigeria	640	555	87	210	33	38
Rwanda	585	300	51	120	21	40
Sierra Leone	1,425	365	26	210	15	58
Somalia	4,180	1,505	36	745	18	50
Sudan	465	370	80	40	9	11
Tanzania	75	65	87	10	13	15
Uganda	640	570	89	70	11	12
Zimbabwe	945	885	94	85	9	10
Others	3,710	3,020	81	480	13	16
Total	17,305	11,330	65	2,720	16	24
Asia
Afghanistan	7,175	1,470	20	795	11	54
Bangladesh	555	535	96	165	30	31
China	2,340	2,255	96	595	25	26

Refusals[1,2,3] of asylum and exceptional leave, excluding dependants, by nationality, February 2001-July 2001[4]

Europe	Total decisions	Total refused	Percentage of total decisions	Refused on non-compliance grounds	Percentage of total decisions	Percentage of total refusals
India	1,775	1,740	98	790	45	45
Pakistan	2,420	2,260	93	800	33	35
Sri Lanka	6,375	5,215	82	485	8	9
Others	1,340	1,240	93	445	33	36
Total	21,980	14,710	67	4,070	19	28
Other and unknown nationalities	825	635	77	140	17	22
Grand total	68,230	51,030	75	12,285	18	24

[1] Figures (other than percentages) rounded to nearest five.
[2] Information is of initial decision excluding the outcome of appeals of other subsequent decisions.
[3] May include some cases decided under the backlog criteria.
[4] Provisional

Mr. Lilley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department for what purpose asylum seekers will be required to present their application registration cards. [11744]

Angela Eagle [holding answer 1 November 2001]: Asylum seekers will not be required to present Application Registration Cards (ARCs) other than for immigration and asylum purposes. They are being introduced to help them identify themselves in order to access Asylum Support services. The current standard acknowledgement letter (SAL) is too open to forgery and counterfeiting.

Mr. Lilley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether employers will be required to check the Application Registration Card of employees they believe to be asylum seekers. [11745]

Angela Eagle [holding answer 1 November 2001]: Employers are not currently required to check an asylum seeker's standard acknowledgement letter (SAL) but they must ensure that any person they are proposing to employ has permission to work in this country. Employers who fail to carry out such checks may be committing an offence under section 8 of the Asylum and Immigration Act 1996.

The Application Registration Card will be issued to all new asylum seekers. It is not envisaged that it will in itself confer permission to work and a statement to that effect will be on the reverse of the card. Other evidence will have to be provided for employers to check eligibility for employment. However, the card will help the holder to establish his/her identity.

Mr. Illsley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much money per (a) individual and (b) family was allocated to Barnsley metropolitan district council in respect of (i) council housing for asylum seekers and (ii) financial support for asylum seekers in the last 12 months. [10947]

Angela Eagle: In the year from 1 April 2000 to 31 March 2001 Barnsley metropolitan district council received £629,478.62 in grant for supporting asylum seekers, including unaccompanied asylum seeking children. This was based on unit costs of (a) £140 per week per single person and (b) £240 per week for a family. This amount is inclusive of (i) housing and (ii) other support.

Barnsley is a member of the Yorkshire and Humberside consortium and provides housing under contract to National Asylum Support Service but it is not possible to identify the amounts directly attributable to Barnsley.

Mr. Illsley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many asylum seekers in Barnsley metropolitan borough council are funded by the Government. [10942]

Angela Eagle: The available information comes from the National Asylum Support Service (NASS) which supports asylum seekers who applied for asylum on or after the 3 April 2000. Information is not available centrally on the number of asylum seekers in Barnsley who are funded by the Government under the Interim Support Scheme.

Statistics from NASS, for the end of July 2001, show that 160[1,2] asylum seekers (including dependants) were being supported in NASS accommodation in Barnsley.

A further 150[1,2], asylum seekers (including dependants) were receiving voucher only support from NASS in the Yorkshire and Humberside region, which includes Barnsley.

[1] Figures rounded to the nearest 10.

[2] Cases which have had their support ceased are excluded from these figures.

Mr. Malins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) asylum seekers, and (b) others applying under immigration law whose cases and appeals have failed (i) left the UK voluntarily and (ii) remained in the UK; if he is aware of their whereabouts; and if he will make a statement. [9442]

Angela Eagle: 550 persons left the United Kingdom under the Voluntary Assisted Returns Programme in 2000. It is not possible to say how many other persons voluntarily left the United Kingdom without the knowledge of the Home Office, or left voluntarily after enforcement action had been initiated.

Comprehensive information on the number and location of persons who remain in the UK after having exhausted their rights of appeal is not available.

Prison High Security Estate

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much of the £70 million allocated for new places in the prison high security estate announced in September 2000 has been spent. [10588]

Beverley Hughes: The £70 million allocated for new places in the Prison Service High Security estate announced in September 2000 provides funding for the development of new services for those who are dangerous and severely personality disordered (DSPD) over three years. It includes resources for capital costs, for the construction of new units, running costs and support for the development of new approaches to assessment and treatment. These are complex schemes involving major innovation both in design and in the approach to service delivery.

The initial capital allocation in 2001–02 was £9 million to fund three refurbished units at Whitemoor Prison (and replacement of prison places lost as a result) and the beginning of construction of a new build unit at Frankland Prison. The work at Whitemoor Prison is complete and has incurred a total capital cost of £230,000 together with £4.27 million allocated to the Prison Service for replacement of lost prison places.

Work at Frankland Prison has been slightly delayed by adverse ground conditions but is projected to incur capital costs of £1 million this year to open on schedule in 2003. In 2001–02, £11 million was allocated for running costs and service development work. This was necessarily a rough projection of likely costs because of the ground breaking nature of this work. At this stage we project spending of £5.2 million (with £766,584 spent to date). Any underspend is being reallocated to other key Home Office priorities.

Overstayers

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the progress of the processing of applications for indefinite leave to remain in the UK made under the regularisation of overstayers scheme; and when he expects it to be completed. [10558]

Angela Eagle: Resources have been invested in the current financial year to identify and process those cases where leave to remain can be granted under existing policy concessions. A dedicated unit within Immigration Casework Directorate (ICD) North has now been trained, and has already sifted and taken action on 600 applications. During the next financial year (2002–03) more caseworkers and resources will be devoted to the consideration of the remaining cases. The target date for the completion of all considerations is April 2003.

Charity Commissioners

Sir Sydney Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many complaints have been received by the Charity Commissioners and from how many complainants; how many have been fully or partially upheld; how many complaints relating to the Charity Commission have been received by the independent complaints reviewer and from how many complainants; how many have been fully or partially upheld; and if the present pilot complaints procedures are to continue. [10963]

Angela Eagle: This is a matter for the Charity Commission, who will write to the hon. Member. A copy of the Commission's reply will be placed in the Library.

Criminal Records Bureau

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the Criminal Records Bureau will be launched; and if he will make a statement. [11752]

Mr. Denham: I refer the hon. Member to the answer that I gave to the hon. Member for Colchester (Bob Russell) on 26 October 2001, Official Report, column 449W.

Criminal Justice System Reserve

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much of the Criminal Justice System Reserve has been (a) allocated and (b) spent to date; and if he will make a statement about his plans to allocate the reserve in (i) 2002–03 and (ii) 2003–04. [11754]

Mr. Keith Bradley: Of the £100 million Criminal Justice System Reserve in 2001–02, £85 million has been allocated to date. Information on spend to date on approved initiatives indicates that full allocations will be spent. In addition £13.75 million has been allocated from the Reserve to approved initiatives in 2002–03 and up to £53.1 million in 2003–04.

Allocations from the Criminal Justice System Reserve require the joint agreement of the Home Secretary, Lord Chancellor and Attorney-General prior to the Chief Secretary to the Treasury releasing the money from the Reserve. Bidding guidance for the Criminal Justice System Reserve for 2001–02 and 2002–03 was issued to the three Criminal Justice System Departments in July 2001. Ministers will shortly be recommending to the Chief Secretary further allocations for 2002–03 and 2003–04.

Drug Testing

Dr. Evan Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimation he has made of the pilot projects on drug testing for detainees in (a) Staffordshire, (b) Hackney and (c) Nottingham. [11586]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Piloting of the provisions for drug testing persons in police detention after charge, introduced under the Criminal Justice and Court Services Act 2000, began in Staffordshire on 30 July and in Hackney and Nottingham on 17 September. An interim evaluation report is due in spring 2002, with a further interim report in spring 2003 and a final full evaluation report in early 2004.

Correspondence

Mr. Syms: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he will respond to the fax from the hon. Member for Poole of 11 September on Leonilla Beck (Ref 16407/1). [10298]

Angela Eagle [holding answer 26 October 2001]: A reply was sent to the hon. Member for Poole on 24 October.

Independent Schools

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on his policy on the charitable status of independent schools. [11456]

Angela Eagle [holding answer 30 October 2001]: The advancement of education is the second of the four main heads of charity and any not-for-profit body that operates an independent school will normally be charitable under this head. The issue of charitable status is being more broadly considered by the Cabinet Office's Performance and Innovation Unit as part of its review of the legal and regulatory framework for voluntary organisations. The review will cover the scope and definition of charity, although it does not have the aim of removing charitable status from any particular type of organisation. The report of the review is due in early 2002.

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will abolish the charitable status for independent schools. [9594]

Angela Eagle: There are no plans to remove charitable status from independent schools. The issue of charitable status is being more broadly considered by the Cabinet Office's Performance and Innovation Unit as part of its review of the legal and regulatory framework for voluntary organisations. The review will cover the scope and definition of charity, although it does not have the aim of removing charitable status from any particular type of organisation such as independent schools. The report of the review is due in early 2002.

National Asylum Support Service

Mr. Malins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many complaints have been received by NASS in respect of sub-standard accommodation provided for asylum seekers since April 2000; and if he will make a statement. [11370]

Angela Eagle: Since April 2000 the housing management team of National Asylum Support Service has received 347 complaints about sub-standard accommodation. These complaints relate to both housing conditions and management. The complaints are from a range of sources including asylum seekers themselves or their legal representatives as well as voluntary and public sector organisations acting on their behalf.

All complaints received by the housing management team are registered, investigated and monitored. The team liaises as necessary with other agencies such as local authorities and refugee organisations in dealing with complaints.

Domestic Violence

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many part 8 reviews have been carried out by the Metropolitan police on incidents of domestic violence since the inception of the system. [11205]

Mr. Denham: When a child dies, and abuse or neglect are known or suspected to be a factor in the death, local agencies should consider whether there are lessons to be learned from the tragedy about the ways in which they work together to safeguard children. Consequently, when a child dies in such circumstances, the area child protection committee should always conduct a review into the involvement with the child and family of agencies and professionals.

Additionally, the area child protection committee should always consider whether to undertake a serious case review where a child has sustained a potentially life-threatening injury through abuse or neglect, serious sexual abuse, or sustained serious and permanent impairment of health or development through abuse or neglect, and the case gives rise to concerns about the way in which local professionals and services work together to safeguard children.

The Metropolitan police service does not carry out serious case reviews themselves, but like any other agency, they may be asked to undertake a management review of its involvement with a child and family as part of the case review process.

The conduct of such reviews is the responsibility of the area child protection committee for the area in which the child, who is the subject of the review, was normally resident.

In five serious case reviews to which the Metropolitan police service has contributed, a history of domestic violence between the carers prior to the death of a child has been identified.

Extradition

Mr. Stinchcombe: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people accused of capital crimes have been extradited to the USA since 11 May 1997; and under what arrangements. [11402]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The availability of the death penalty has been an issue in only one of 34 surrenders to the United States since 1997. In that case, the fugitive was surrendered following an assurance from the United States authorities that the death penalty would neither be sought nor applied. That is consistent with the UK/US Extradition Treaty (United States of America (Extradition) Order 1976 as amended by the United States of America (Extradition) (Amendment) Order 1986) which provides that extradition may be refused unless the requesting party gives satisfactory assurances that the death penalty will not be carried out.

Political Asylum

Mr. Kenneth Clarke: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what criteria are applied when deciding whether an unsuccessful applicant for political asylum should be granted exceptional leave to remain; and how many people have been granted such exceptional leave since June 1997. [12455]

Angela Eagle: Exceptional leave is a discretionary grant of limited leave made by the Home Secretary. Every case is considered on its own individual merits and exceptional leave is normally granted only after an asylum application has been substantively considered and it has been decided to refuse the application.

Exceptional leave may be granted for a wide number of reasons but is mainly granted for compassionate or humanitarian reasons or where there is a specific government policy or concession. Exceptional leave is also granted where removal from the United Kingdom would breach our obligations under the European Convention on Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (ECHR).

Exceptional leave is granted for limited periods, normally up to four years. After four years, an applicant may apply for settlement in the United Kingdom.

Our current statistical records run from June 1997 to July 2001. During this period, 46,215 people were granted exceptional leave, of which 14,110 were granted under the post July 1993 backlog clearance measures.

Mr. Kenneth Clarke: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proportion of applications for political asylum came from people who have already been living in the United Kingdom for at least six months. [12456]

Angela Eagle: The requested information is unavailable because data on applicants' dates of entry to the United Kingdom are not currently collected. The majority of applicants apply for asylum in-country rather than at ports.

Motoring Offences

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prosecutions there have been in the county of Essex for (a) serious motoring offences and (b) speeding by motor vehicles in (i) each full year since 1994 and (ii) the nine months to September 2001. [12007]

Mr. Keith Bradley: Available information is given in the table. Data for 2000 will be available later this year. 2001 data will be available in the autumn 2002.

Proceedings at magistrates courts for serious motoring offences[1] and speeding by offence group within Essex police force area, 1994–99

Number of offences

Offence group/type	1994	1995	1996	1997	1998	1999
Serious motoring offences[1]
1—Causing death or bodily harm	13	8	16	30	15	9
2—Dangerous driving	264	252	291	274	293	240
6—Unauthorised taking or theft of motor vehicle	1,123	811	1,061	957	954	1,108
14—Fraud, forgery etc. associated with vehicle or driver records	689	541	405	511	427	373
Total	2,089	1,612	1,773	1,772	1,689	1,730
Speeding
16—Speed limit offences	8,130	6,354	6,528	5,457	5,132	7,019

[1] 'Serious motoring offences' includes those motoring offences which are indictable only or triable either way.

Joint Enterprise Charges

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has to propose amendments to the law in respect of serious charges involving joint enterprise. [12587]

Mr. Keith Bradley: There are no plans to change the Law on Joint Enterprise at present. However, the Law Commission is conducting a major review of the whole area of inchoate offences and secondary liability, which will include this area.

National Criminal Intelligence Service

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what has been the (a) size and (b) caseload of the National Criminal Intelligence Service and its predecessor bodies in each year since 1997. [12649]

Mr. Denham: The information is as follows:

(a) The National Criminal Intelligence Service (NCIS) establishment in April (except where specified) each year since 1997 has been:

1997: 637
1998: 637
1999: 683 (June)
2000: 787
2001: 900 (August).

(b) The National Criminal Intelligence Service does not have an operational caseload. NCIS provides strategic intelligence; maintains intelligence reports on serious criminals for all law enforcement agencies; co-ordinates the activity of law enforcement agencies; conducts some intelligence investigations on behalf of law enforcement agencies; provides specialist advice and a range of other support functions. There is no single case record system.

Parliamentary Questions

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, pursuant to his answers of 3 October 2001 to the hon. Member for Crosby (refs. 9417, 9418 and 9419), when he will provide a substantive reply. [12547]

Mr. Denham: I replied to my hon. Friend on 2 November 2001, Official Report, column 853W.

Young Offenders (Education)

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many hours per week on average have been spent on education courses by those serving custodial sentences of compulsory school age in each year since 1995. [11632]

Beverley Hughes: The information requested is not available. Data on prison education participation do not distinguish between those of, and those above, compulsory school age. Prison Service Order 4950 states that education must be provided to all young offenders under school-leaving age for at least 15 hours per week.

Prisoners (Depression)

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proportion of prisoners were identified as suffering from clinical depression at the latest date for which figures are available. [11626]

Beverley Hughes: This information is not available in precisely the form requested. A survey of mental ill health in the prison population of England and Wales, was undertaken by the Office for National Statistics in 1997. Some 56 per cent. of remanded men and 64 per cent. of remanded women reported to a lay interviewer, applying a recognised tool for diagnosing neurotic symptoms and depression, that they had experienced certain recognised symptoms of depression for more than two weeks prior to interview. The comparable figures for sentenced men and women were 33 per cent. and 51 per cent. respectively.

Prison Education

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of prison inmates were assessed as having literacy and numeracy skills below level 2 at the latest date for which figures are available. [11625]

Beverley Hughes: Figures for September 2001 show that of those prisoners tested on induction, 71 per cent. and 65 per cent. respectively were assessed as having literacy and numeracy skills below level 2.

The Prison Service has in place targets for 23,400 prisoners to achieve national qualifications in 2001–2002 rising to 36,000 in 2003–2004. This includes a planned increase in the number of Level 2 basic skills awards to 21,000 over the period. In addition, targets have been agreed for the current year with the Adult Basic Skill Strategy for qualifications below Level 2 in Basic Skills: 7,500 qualifications at Entry Level and 7,500 qualifications at Level 1.

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make it his policy to (a) collect and (b) publish data on the average time spent in prison education classes by prisoners in private sector prisons. [11633]

Beverley Hughes: The Prison Service collects data on the average time spent on purposeful activity, including education, in all prisons including those run by the private sector. National statistics are published in the annual "Prison Statistics, England and Wales". Figures for different categories of prison are not published separately, I will write to my hon. Friend about education in private sector prisons.

Prisoners (Special Educational Needs)

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent assessment he has made of the number of prisoners in each of Her Majesty's prisons with special educational needs. [11631]

Beverley Hughes: No reliable information is available on the total number of prisoners with special education needs. The Prisoners' Learning and Skills Unit located in the Department for Education and Skills is implementing new procedures to collect this kind of information.

Young Offenders (Penalties)

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent consultations he has had regarding reducing penalties in youth courts for (a) criminal damage (b) shoplifting and (c) offences involving airguns. [12585]

Mr. Keith Bradley: None. We have not reduced the penalties or propose doing so.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement regarding the tariff of penalties in youth courts for criminal damage offences. [12586]

Mr. Keith Bradley: Sentencers in the youth court have discretion within the statutory framework laid down by Parliament. The maximum penalty for criminal damage above £5,000 is a two-year Detention and Training Order. Below that a range of non-custodial orders is available. These were enhanced by the Crime and Disorder Act 1998.

Penalty Downgrading

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions he has had with the Judicial Studies Board with regard to downgrading penalties issued by magistrates for low seriousness offences. [12584]

Mr. Keith Bradley: There have been no discussions between the Secretary of State for the Home Department and the Judicial Studies Board regarding the downgrading of penalties issued by magistrates for low seriousness offences. However, Lord Justice Auld's Report 'Review of the Criminal Courts of England And Wales' recommended that there should be a systematic review leading to fixed penalty and/or notice-to-correct schemes for a wider range of infringements than are presently the subject of criminal prosecution. Lord Justice Auld's report is currently out to a public consultation. Officials in the relevant departments are also considering these recommendations. An assessment of the feasibility of taking them forward will be made after a full consultation.

HEALTH

Heart Transplants

Mr. McCabe: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if he will take into account the implications of the Bristol inquiry report before making further decisions on the national specialist commissionary advisory group report; [6764]

(2) what the terms of reference were of the national specialist commissionary advisory group report into the future of heart transplant units; and if he will place a copy in the Library. [6763]

Mr. Hutton: We have published our intention to keep all six cardiothoracic transplant centres open in the discussion document "National Adult Heart and Lung Transplant Service" published on 21 September. We will receive comments on these proposals until 7 December.

The report by the National Specialist Commissioning Advisory group was an internal Department of Health paper. However reference to the paper is included in discussion document the "National Adult Heart and Lung Transplant service".

We are still considering our response to the Bristol Inquiry Report.

Small Birthing Units

Mr. Pollard: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will allocate funds to increase the number of small birthing units, led by midwives in hospitals without a maternity unit; and if he will make a statement. [7097]

Jacqui Smith: The National Health Service provides a variety of types of care for women during pregnancy and childbirth including care in midwife-led births units. We expect this variety to continue and do not support any one single model of maternity service provision in preference to all others. It is for health authorities and NHS trusts to decide on the pattern of service provision taking into account the needs of local service users, evidence of effectiveness and available resources.

Community Equipment Services

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what system is used to allocate budgets for community equipment services to local NHS trusts and social services departments. [R] [8718]

Jacqui Smith: National Health Service and social services community equipment services have their funding determined locally. Additional funding being made available to enable them to meet the NHS Plan targets is allocated through health authority allocations and local council personal social services spending assessments.

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list the NHS trusts and social services departments that have received funds from the community equipment services budget this financial year. [R] [8720]

Jacqui Smith: In addition to pre-existing levels of funding for community equipment services by health and social services, all National Health Service health authorities received additional funding for community equipment services in their general allocations in 2001–02. Where authorities have identified that additional funding is required, they will have allocated it to the appropriate organisation running the equipment service which may be an NHS trust, a primary care group or a social services department. Similarly, all local councils with personal social services received allocations from which they are expected to contribute not just previous funding but an increased amount towards achieving the community equipment services targets in the NHS Plan.

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the national budget is for community equipment services for the 2001–02 financial year. [R] [8719]

Jacqui Smith: £12 million has been allocated nationally to support the National Health Service to work towards achieving the NHS Plan targets in relation to community equipment services. We also took account of the need for additional investment in the personal social services settlement for 2001–02 to 2003–04 to enable councils to contribute an appropriate share to the expansion of these services. These amounts are in addition to pre-existing local funding for equipment services.

Dentists

Peter Bradley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what levels of investment have been made and what initiatives have been taken to promote access to NHS dentists in Shropshire since 1997. [9257]

Ms Blears: In 2000–01 dentists within Shropshire health authority received £9.66 million for providing general dental services.

Shropshire health authority also received £414,000 in 2000–01 to develop a dental access centre (DAC) and £80,000 from the Dental Care Development Fund to promote access to NHS dentistry. The DAC now operates from Shrewsbury, Donnington, Oswestry and Market Drayton and two further sites opening shortly in Ludlow and Craven Arms.

In addition £409,000 has been awarded for 11 "Investing in Dentistry" approvals leading so far to 24,800 additional patient registrations.

The connection between NHS Direct and NHS dentistry is now up and running and all callers to NHS Direct should now be able to get information about where they can find an NHS dentist.

Peter Bradley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what investment is planned to promote access to NHS dentistry in Shropshire. [9256]

Ms Blears: The table shows the investment planned to promote access to National Health Service dentistry in Shropshire for 2001–02.

	£
Local personal dental service funds:	50,000
Modernisation fund:	207,000
Dental care development fund:	50,000
Quality assurance (to implement clinical governance)	17,000

In addition, the anticipated spend on the Shropshire Dental Access Centre in 2001–02 is £656,000 revenue and £33,000 capital. The exact level of expenditure may vary depending on the opening date of the two new sites, in Ludlow and Craven Arms, and the numbers of patients needed in year.

Following changes in Regulations it is now possible for health authorities to use their own resources to respond to local patterns of unmet demand for NHS dentistry identified in their dentistry action plans.

Social Services Departments

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will set out the methodology used to calculate the top and bottom 14 social services departments as set out in the publication of Social Services Performance Assessment Framework Indicators 2000–01 on 19 October. [10500]

Jacqui Smith: The methodology used to rank social services departments was as follows:

A council was classified as one of the best performing if:

it was in the top one third of councils based on the proportion of indicators banded three or higher this year; and had on average three quarters or more of its indicators banded as three or higher over the past three years.

There were 15 councils in this category.

A council was classified as one of the least well performing if:

it was in the bottom third of councils based on the proportion of indicators banded three or higher this year; and had on average 55 per cent. or less of its indicators banded as three or higher over the past three years.

There were 14 councils in this category.

Banding of the performance indicators was introduced last year to help clarify what level of performance is generally good in relation to a performance indicator. Bands range from "investigate urgently" to "very good". Band three represents a council performing at a level which is "acceptable but with possible room for improvement".

Mental Health Services

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what private finance initiative projects in mental health services have (a) been given approval and (b) had contracts signed since 1 May 1997. [10529]

Jacqui Smith: The table shows the number of private finance initiative projects in mental health services which have been given approval and had contracts signed since 1 May 1997.

Trust	Project description	Date full business case approval given	Date financial close reached
Bay Community NHS Trust	New Mentally Ill Unit	25 September 1998	30 September 1998
Birmingham Specialist Community Health NHS Trust	Reprovision of accommodation for people with learning disabilities	12 February 1999	17 May 1999
Black Country Mental Health NHS Trust	Mental Health Unit	6 October 1998	8 October 1998
Bradford Community Health NHS Trust	Horton Park Centre—range of primary and community services including medical centres for GP practices, rehabilitation centre and Mental Health resource centre	26 November 1998	15 March 1999
Central Nottingham Healthcare NHS Trust	Learning disability/Mental Health team base	30 March 2000	15 May 2000
Doncaster and South Humber NHS Trust	Elderly Mental Health Services and Mental Health Rehabilitation Services	14 September 2001	17 September 2001
East London and the City Mental Health NHS Trust	Mental Health reprovision	10 August 2000	30 July 2000
Enfield Community Care NHS Trust	Elderly/Mentally Ill home	7 May 2000	9 May 2000
Leeds Community and Mental Health Services Teaching NHS Trust	Reprovision of Mental Health Services, High Royds	28 February 2000	24 January 2001
Local Health Partnerships NHS Trust	Mental health unit	15 August 2000	24 January 2001
North Staffordshire Combined Healthcare NHS Trust	Reprovision of Mental Health facilities	29 November 1999	8 December 1999
Northern Birmingham Mental Health NHS Trust	Reprovision of Mental Health facilities	9 August 2000	10 August 2000
Oxfordshire Mental Healthcare NHS Trust	Mental Health Medium Secure Unit	1 June 1998	1 June 1998
Oxleas NHS Trust	Reprovision of Mental Health	4 December 1998	11 December 1998
Redbridge Health Care NHS Trust	Mental Health Reprovision and Geriatric Day Centre	27 June 2000	4 July 2000
Rotherham Priority Health Service NHS Trust	Elderly Mental Health	19 March 1997	15 May 1998
Stockport NHS Trust	New Mentally Ill Unit	18 September 1998	10 October 1999
Thames Gateway NHS Trust	Acute Psychiatric—Stonehouse Hospital	14 December 1998	14 December 1998
West Berkshire Priority Care Services NHS Trust	Prospect Park mental health redevelopment	1 February 2001	2 May 2001

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the occupancy rate of NHS mental health beds, excluding day only, is in each London hospital. [10531]

Jacqui Smith: The latest data available are for 2000–01 and are shown in the table.

The data are collected annually at national health service trust level, rather than by individual hospital site.

NHS Trust[1]	Available beds	Occupied beds	Occupancy rate (Percentage)
2000–01
Barnet Community Health Care	207	187	90.5
BHB Community Health	245	223	91.3
Brent, Kensington, Chelsea and Westminster Mental Health	732	621	84.8
Camden and Islington Community Health Service	358	352	98.2
Ealing, Hammersmith and Fulham Mental Health	567	543	95.8
East London and the City Mental Health	514	480	93.4

NHS Trust[1]	Available beds	Occupied beds	Occupancy rate (Percentage)
Enfield Community Care	262	244	93.1
Forest Healthcare	213	190	89.0
Great Ormond Street Hospital for Children	8	6	77.1
Hammersmith Hospitals	72	65	90.4
Haringey Healthcare	240	235	98.1
Harrow and Hillingdon Healthcare	83	81	97.7
Hillingdon Hospital	116	109	93.9
Hounslow and Spelthorne Community and Mental Health	164	162	98.8
Kingston and District Community	308	289	94.0
Oxleas and District Community	391	354	90.7
Redbridge Healthcare	245	203	83.2
Royal Free Hampstead	122	114	93.4
South London and Maudsley	947	916	96.7
South West London and St George's Mental Health	595	541	90.9
University College of London	13	10	75.2

[1] Pre April 2001 Trust Configurations

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he is taking (a) to promote mental health and (b) to encourage people to seek help at an early stage, among those from an ethnic minority background. [10523]

Jacqui Smith: We have asked local health and social services to ensure that by March 2002, as required by Standard One of the National Service Framework for Mental Health, they develop and agree an evidence-based mental health promotion strategy based on an assessment of local needs which incorporates action to reduce discrimination. In August 2001, the Department issued to local services "Making it Happen: a guide to delivering mental health promotion". The document recognises the need to promote mental health for ethnic minority groups and it includes examples of good practice including working with Asian communities and assessing the needs of refugee children.

The mental health taskforce is preparing a draft strategy, which we expect will be launched for consultation in spring 2002, to promote more accessible and appropriate services for people from black and ethnic minorities.

The Department also plans to commission the development of a toolkit to support mental health services in promoting mental health for people from ethnic minority communities.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many mental health carer support workers have been recruited in accordance with the NHS Plan. [10525]

Jacqui Smith: The NHS Plan set a target for 2004 that 700 more staff will be recruited to increase the breaks available for carers and to strengthen carer support networks. In pursuance of this target, all regular carers of people with mental health problems will have been identified, received an assessment and have their own care support plans by April 2004. By June 2004, local support networks for these carers will have been developed. The statutory and voluntary sector currently provide support to carers, and the Department is currently developing a service specification for carers support services against which we will measure progress.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of levels of major depression and self-harm in children; and if he will make a statement on recent trends. [10517]

Jacqui Smith: In August this year the Office for National Statistics reported on the prevalence rates of self-harm (defined for the purposes of the report as any attempt to harm, hurt or kill themselves) among children and adolescents aged five to 15 in England, Scotland and Wales during the first half of 1999. The report represents a secondary analysis of data originally collected for the national survey of the mental health of young people published in March 2000.

The main findings were that, according to parents, approximately 1.3 per cent. of the sampled five to 10-year-olds had ever tried to harm, hurt or kill themselves. The rate of self-harm among those with no mental disorder was 0.8 per cent. but the rate increased significantly to 6.2 per cent. among young children with an anxiety disorder and 7.5 per cent. for those with conduct/hyperkinetic disorder. However there was no recorded link with depressive disorder in this age group.

According to parents, approximately 2.1 per cent. of the sample of 11 to 15-year-olds had ever tried to harm, hurt or kill themselves. The rate of self-harm among 11 to 15-year-olds with no mental disorder was 1.2 per cent. but the rate rose markedly to 9.4 per cent. of those with anxiety disorders, 12.6 per cent. of those with a conduct disorder and 18.8 per cent. of young people with depression.

As was the case with younger children, the prevalence of self-harm among 11 to 15-year-olds was influenced by factors relating to family constitution, exposure to discord and frequency of punishment, and, most significantly, the number of stressful life events.

At present there is no firm information on trends but it is believed that the prevalence of mental health problems among children and young people has increased over recent decades, both in this country and in the rest of western Europe.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the prevalence of mental illness is in children; and if he will make a statement setting out his assessment of recent trends. [10515]

Jacqui Smith: A survey of the mental health of children and adolescents in Great Britain was carried out in 1999 by the Office for National Statistics on behalf of the Department, the Scottish Health Executive and the National Assembly for Wales. The intention was to provide up-to-date baseline information on the prevalence of mental disorders among five to 15-year-olds. Prevalence rates were produced for the three main categories of mental disorder, for example, conduct disorders, hyperactivity and emotional disorders.

Key findings on prevalence were about 10 per cent. of children aged five to 15 in Great Britain had a mental disorder in 1999, 5 per cent. had conduct disorders (e.g. aggressive and antisocial behaviour), 4 per cent. had emotional disorders (e.g. anxiety, depression) and 1 per cent. were hyperkinetic (inattention, over-activity); and mental disorders were significantly more common in boys than girls in both the five to 10 and the 11 to 15-year-old age groups.

At present there is no firm information on trends, but it is believed that the prevalence of mental ill-health among children and young people has increased over recent decades, both in this country and in the rest of western Europe. It is the intention to repeat the original survey in approximately five years in order to detect any changes in prevalence over time.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many prescriptions were issued in 2000–01 for medicines used to treat mental illness. [10513]

Jacqui Smith: The number of prescription items dispensed in the community in England for the treatment of mental illness during the financial year ending 31 March 2001 is given in the table.

Information about the diagnosis for which the drugs were prescribed is not available. Drugs used to treat mental illness have therefore been defined as those within British National Formulary (BNF) paragraphs hypnotics and anxiolytics (4.1), drugs used in psychoses and related disorders (4.2) and antidepressant drugs (4.3).

Prescription items dispensed in the community for treatment of mental illness for the year ending 31 March 2001, England

Prescription items (thousand)

BNF description	Number
4.1 Hypnotics and anxiolytics	16,561
4.1.1 Hypnotics	10,677
—Benzodiazepine	7,112
—Chloral and derivative	179
—Other hypnotics	3,386
4.1.2 Anxiolytics	5,826
—Benzodiazepine	5,722
—Other anxiolytics	104
4.1.3 Barbiturates	58
4.2 Drugs used in psychoses and related disorders	5,857
4.2.1 Antipsychotic drugs	4,920
4.2.2 Antipsychotic depot injections	216
4.2.3 Antimanic drugs	722
4.3 Antidepressant drugs	22,634
4.3.1 Tricyclic and related antidepressant drugs	9,722
—Tricyclic antidepressants	9,233
—Related antidepressants	489
4.3.2 Monoamine-oxidase inhibitors (MAOIs)	96
4.3.3 SSRIs	10,884
4.3.4 Other antidepressant drugs	1,932

Notes:

1. The therapeutic classifications are based on British National Formulary, Number 40 (September 2000).

2. These data are based on items dispensed by community pharmacists, appliance contractors, dispensing doctors and prescriptions submitted by prescribing doctors for items personally administered. The data are from the Prescription Cost Analysis system.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people were formally admitted to hospital under the Mental Health Act 1983 in (a) 1996–97, (b) 1997–98, (c) 1998–99, (d) 1999–2000 and (e) 2000–01. [10521]

Jacqui Smith: The Department collects and publishes information annually relating to patients detained under the Mental Health Act 1983 on: admissions to hospitals under the Act by section of the Act; sex and category of disorder as defined and required under the Act; changes in patient's legal status while in hospital; and patients in hospital at the end of the year, by sex and category of disorder.

The latest data are published by the Department, in a statistical bulletin "In-patients formally detained in hospitals under the Mental Health Act 1983 and other legislation, England: 1989–1990 to 1999–2000". The National Assembly for Wales published a separate statistical report entitled "Admission of patients to mental health facilities in Wales, 1999–00 (including patients detained under the Mental Health Act 1983)". Both publications are available in the Library.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the proportion of those admitted to psychiatric wards who come from ethnic minority backgrounds; and if he will make a statement. [10510]

Jacqui Smith: Certain ethnic minorities, especially black ethnic groups, are over-represented in psychiatric care. While there are demographic and socio-economic factors which can partly account for over-representation of black ethnic groups, these cannot explain all of the disparity.

Due to this disparity and the acknowledgement that mental health services are not fully meeting the needs of ethnic minorities, my right hon. Friend the Member for Barrow and Furness (Mr. Hutton), when Minister of State with responsibility for community health, asked the mental health taskforce to prepare a strategy to address the issues surrounding black and minority ethnic mental health. A taskforce member, Professor Sashidharan, is taking forward the development of a draft strategy under the guidance of the ethnicity and mental health reference group. We expect consultation papers on the draft strategy to be issued in spring 2002.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the annual number of people with a diagnosis of severe mental illness who are refused treatment when they ask for it. [10526]

Jacqui Smith: Our policy is that nobody with severe mental illness who asks for treatment should be refused. The National Service Framework for Mental Health (NSF), published in September 1999, spells out national standards for mental health. The NSF contains seven overarching standards, two of which are specifically about the provision of effective services for people with severe mental illness. The standards aim to ensure that each person with severe mental illness receives the range of mental health services they need

In addition, the NHS Plan, published in July 2000, contains a number of commitments relating to the provision of services for people with severe mental illness. These include the establishment of crisis resolution and early intervention teams, and an increase in the number of assertive outreach teams.

Special Hospitals

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many places there were in the special hospitals at (a) Ashworth, (b) Broadmoor and (c) Rampton (i) in 1996–97 and (ii) at the latest date for which figures are available. [10518]

Jacqui Smith: The information requested is given in the table.

	Contracted places
	1996–97	October 2001
Ashworth Hospital	500	427
Broadmoor Hospital	443	408
Rampton Hospital	448	430
Total	1,391	1,265

The reduction in contracted places reflects our policy that patients inappropriately placed in the high security hospitals should be moved to more appfopriate accommodation.

Electro-convulsive Therapy

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many ECT treatments were administered in 2000–01. [10516]

Jacqui Smith: The information requested is not available. The most recent information available is contained in a one-off survey covering the period from January 1999 to March 1999, England only, that was undertaken to provide an up to date and accurate snapshot picture of the use of electro-convulsive treatment (ECT). Prior to this survey, the information previously recorded on ECT did not provide an accurate picture on the use of ECT treatment.

The results of the survey are contained in the Department of Health Statistical bulletin "Electro-convulsive Therapy: Survey covering the period from January 1999 to March 1999, England", a copy of which is in the Library.

The Department is hoping that more useful and reliable information on ECT will be obtained from the mental health minimum data set which is person-centred. It is being implemented across all mental health trusts on a phased basis during 2000, 2001, 2002 and 2003 but data will not be available until 2003.

Diabetes

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the original date was for the introduction of the national standard framework for diabetes; what it is now; and if he will make a statement. [10447]

Jacqui Smith: The Diabetes National Service Framework is due for publication this year. It will be published in two stages—the Diabetes National Service Framework Standards this autumn and the Diabetes National Service Framework delivery strategy next summer. This will enable the National Health Service to prepare to plan for implementation from April 2003.

Head Injury Rehabilitation

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he will respond to the Health Committee report entitled "Head Injury: Rehabilitation". [10566]

Jacqui Smith: The response was laid before Parliament on 24 July. The response is called, "Government Response to the Health Select Committee: Inquiry into Head Injury Rehabilitation, (Command Paper 5226.)" The response is also on the Department's website at "www.doh.gov.uk/nsf/longterm.htm."

Nurses

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many nurses (a) returned to and (b) left the NHS in (i) 1999–2000 and (b) 2000–01. [11118]

Mr. Hutton: The work force censuses record the net change in the work force taking account of the number who leave and the number who start work, including newly qualified staff, returners and nurses trained outside the United Kingdom. In 1999 there were 329,640 nurses working in the National Health Service and in 2000 there were 335,950.

Between 1 October 1999 and 30 September 2000, 3,405 former nurses returned to work in the NHS. Between 1 October 2000 and 30 September, 2001 3,906 former nurses returned to work in the NHS.

Treatment Abroad

Dr. Richard Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he expects the arrangements to be in place for NHS patients to travel abroad for their operations when they live outside a pilot site. [11252]

Mr. Hutton: Following recent rulings of the European Court of Justice (ECJ) it is clear that National Health Service bodies may commission treatment for NHS patients in other countries in the European Economic Area. However, this does raise a number of clinical, legal and quality issues. Officials are working through these issues with NHS colleagues in three test-bed sites, East Kent, Portsmouth and West Sussex/East Surrey, with the aim, if possible, of sending the first patients overseas for treatment by the end of the year. The Department will publish guidance for the rest of the NHS in England by the end of the year, based on the experience of the test-bed sites.

The Department also intends to establish through an open tendering process a list of approved foreign providers to assist primary care trusts planning to commission treatment abroad. It will take a number of months to put this in place.

Patients throughout the United Kingdom can already apply to travel overseas for treatment under the long-standing E112 scheme. This is of course subject to prior authorisation.

Dr. Evan Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if primary care trusts have the option to secure treatment for NHS patients in other European countries; [11044]

(2) what assessment he has made of the requirements for funding primary care trusts to support the European Court of Justice ruling of receiving NHS treatment abroad. [11046]

Mr. Hutton [holding answer 1 November 2001]: Following recent rulings of the European Court of Justice it is clear that National Health Service bodies, including primary care trusts, may commission treatment for NHS patients in other countries in the European Economic Area (EEA).

It will be for local commissioners to decide whether or not to contract with health care providers in other EEA countries. Primary care trusts (PCTs) will need to meet the costs out of their budgets.

This is a new opportunity and freedom for PCTs. There is no requirement for PCTs to make use of this opportunity and it will remain a matter for local commissioners to decide how to use their budgets.

Mr. Donaldson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much money is being made available to support the initiative to reduce waiting lists through the funding of operations for UK citizens in other European countries. [11662]

Mr. Hutton [holding answer 1 November 2001]: Following recent rulings of the European Court of Justice (ECJ) it is clear that National Health Service bodies may commission treatment for NHS patients in other countries in the European Economic Area.

It will be for local commissioners to decide whether or not to contract with health care providers in other EEA countries. Primary care trusts in England will need to meet the costs out of their budgets.

The decision to commission treatment for patients from Northern Ireland elsewhere in the European Economic Area is a matter for the Northern Ireland Assembly.

Professor David Southall

Dr. Richard Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the cost was to the NHS of locums to cover the duties of Professor David Southall during his two year suspension. [11248]

Mr. Hutton: The Department collects information quarterly in regard to the suspension of hospital medical and dental staff and costs incurred, including the cost of locum cover. The most recently available return is for October 2001, and indicates that the North Staffordshire Hospital National Health Service Trust has incurred costs of £284,258 in regard to the suspension of Professor Southall.

Cancer Referrals

Dr. Richard Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will extend the guidelines for the referral of patients with suspected cancer for an appointment within two weeks to include patients with atypical symptoms. [11250]

Mr. Hutton: Cancer referral guidelines were issued in March 2000 to help general practitioners identify possible signs and symptoms of cancer and to refer appropriately. For some cancer types, for example, lung cancer and breast cancer atypical symptoms were included on the advice of the members of the relevant tumour working parties who helped to draw up the guidelines. A review of the guidelines will be undertaken by the National Institute for Clinical Excellence. All National Health Service trusts have been encouraged to work with primary care to audit referrals against the guidelines. The Department will shortly be announcing research projects to help inform decision making and the identification of patients with suspected cancer requiring referral.

GP Visits

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent estimate he has made of the proportion of the population who regularly visit their general practitioner for each of the last 10 years. [11037]

Mr. Hutton [holding answer 31 October 2001]: The information is not collected in the form requested. The Office for National Statistics (ONS) publishes an estimate of the proportion of the population of Great Britain who consult a general practitioner within a 14 day period in their report "Living in Britain—Results from the General Household Survey". The table shows the estimate for each year for which figures are available from 1988.

Year	Percentage consulted GP in last 14 days
1988	14
1989	15
1990	16
1991	14
1992	15
1993	17
1994	15
1995	16
1996	16
1998	14

Source:
ONS "Living in Britain—Results from the General Household Survey"

The survey was not carried out in 1997 or 1999 and the report for 2000 is expected in December.

New Hospital (Romford)

Mr. Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress has been made on the new hospital planned for Oldchurch Park, Romford. [11656]

Mr. Hutton: Excellent progress has been made on this scheme since its national prioritisation in July 1999. The new hospital is still planned to be complete and operational in autumn 2005.

GM Crops

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on the safety of genetically modified crops grown for human consumption. [11729]

Ms Blears [holding answer 1 November 2001]: I am advised by the Food Standards Agency that all genetically modified crops approved for human consumption in the European Union following a rigorous safety assessment are considered as safe to eat as their non-modified counterparts.

Coquetdale Hospital

Mr. Beith: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he expects work to start on the Coquetdale Hospital redevelopment at Rothbury, Northumberland; and if he will make a statement. [11675]

Ms Blears [holding answer 1 November 2001]: As negotiations on the site for the new Coquetdale Community Hospital at Rothbury are continuing, at this stage we are unable to give a date by which construction work will have commenced.

Residential Nursing Homes

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, pursuant to his answer of 23 October 2001, Official Report, column 159W, how many residential nursing homes have closed and beds been lost in Great Britain and Northern Ireland since 1 May 1997. [11944]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 2 November 2001]: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave on 23 October 2001, Official Report, columns 159–60W. The figures are for England only. Figures for other parts of the United Kingdom are matters for the devolved Assemblies.

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, pursuant to his answer of 23 October 2001, Official Report, columns 159-60W, which client groups have been included in the figures provided in written answers N115 and N113 tables 1 and 2. [11946]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 2 November 2001]: The number of residential care homes, residential places in these homes and year on year changes, refer to the adult and older people client groups of: older people; younger physically/sensorily disabled adults; older mentally infirm adults; people with mental illness; people with learning disabilities and alcohol/drug misusers and other people. For residential care homes, information on client groups is based on the principal client group of the homes as defined for registration purposes and not of the client group of the places.

The number of nursing homes, registered nursing beds and year-on-year changes refers to all those available and includes those intended for children, older people, younger adults and for maternity usage and all of the primary registration categories. For nursing care homes, the allocation of homes and places is based on a combination of primary registration category (general nursing, people with learning disabilities, specialist nursing, maternity, mental health nursing, specialist mental health nursing, general specialities and other) and intended use (children, older person, other person).

Information by client group is available in the publications "Community Care Statistics 2000: Residential Personal Social Services for adults" and "Community Care Statistics 2000: Private Nursing Homes, Hospitals and Clinics". Copies of these publications are available in the Library and on the Department's website at www.doh.gov.uk/public/sb0028.htm and sb0107.htm respectively.

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, pursuant to his written answers of 23 October 2001, Official Report, column 159-60W, whether the figures provided include small residential homes of less than four beds. [11947]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 2 November 2001]: The figures include residential care homes (and places) for small homes, defined as homes with less than four places, registered under the Registered Homes (Amendment) Act 1991.

Residential Care

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what funds his Department allocated to local authorities for the uprating of the capital limit for residential care. [11676]

Jacqui Smith: Adequate provision was made in the personal social services expenditure settlement for 2001–02 to cover the costs of uprating the capital limits from April 2001 to restore them to their 1996 value.

Specialist Register

Alistair Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what representations he has received concerning the ending of the transition period for entry of non-consultant career grades to the specialist register; and if he will make a statement; [12623]

(2) what representation he has received on behalf of associate specialists within the National Health Service in relation to their inclusion on the specialist register. [12624]

Mr. Hutton: We have received a number of representations from medical professional bodies and from individual members of the profession on these issues.

As laid down in the NHS Plan, we are committed to increasing the number of consultants working in the National Health Service and it is important all available resources are harnessed. We are fully aware there is a pool of doctors within the non-consultant grades with the potential to become consultants. We are committed to removing unnecessary restrictions on the career progression of these doctors to ensure each is given the appropriate opportunity to demonstrate his or her potential.

NHS (Suspensions)

Dr. Richard Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list the (a) NHS consultants, (b) general practitioners, (c) public health doctors and (d) managers presently suspended, indicating the durations of the suspensions; and what plans he has to shorten the length of these suspensions. [11249]

Mr. Hutton: In the quarter ended 30 September 2001, a total of 33 hospital doctors and dentists had been suspended for six months or longer. The information is not broken down as between consultants and public health doctors. Information is not collected centrally on managers. Currently, three general practitioners are suspended by the National Health Service Tribunal. New procedures and guidance are being developed which should reduce both the incidence and length of suspensions. In addition, NHS employers will be able to seek advice from the National Clinical Assessment Authority.

The NHS Tribunal is due to be abolished in December 2001. Health authorities (and later primary care trusts) will then be able to suspend or remove general practitioners from their lists where appropriate. Time limits will be applied to these suspensions.

Suicide

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the timetable is for completion of the national suicide prevention strategy. [11521]

Jacqui Smith: [holding answer 31 October 2001]: The Department is in the process of developing, under the direction of the National Director for Mental Health, Professor Louis Appleby, a coherent national suicide prevention strategy to ensure that we are doing all we can to prevent suicides. We hope to launch this strategy in spring 2002.

Private Health Care Provision

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to increase the involvement of the private sector in the provision of health care; and if he will make a statement. [10743]

Mr. Hutton [holding answer 31 October 2001]: As my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State made clear on 24 October in his evidence to the Health Select Committee, the Department is working to improve collaboration between the National Health Service and the private sector. There are five aspects to this collaboration. First, £40 million is being made available to the NHS to buy treatment for NHS patients in the private sector over the coming months. Secondly, officials are working on a national framework agreement to build longer term relationships between the NHS and the private sector with a view to doubling the number of NHS patients treated in private hospitals to 100,000 a year from next year. Thirdly, the Department is exploring the possibility of contracts under which part of or indeed even entire private hospitals would become NHS providers of services for a number of years. Fourthly, Ministers will consider approaches from private sector providers to build privately owned diagnostic treatment centres which will perform operations purely on NHS patients. And finally we are exploring whether private sector providers in mainland Europe have spare capacity available to treat NHS patients. Three sites in south-east England are providing a test-bed for this new policy.

PFI Hospitals

Mr. Pollard: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many major hospital developments have been authorised under the Private Finance Initiative; how many of these are (a) completed and (b) nearing completion; what plans exist for expanding the number of these developments; and if he will make a statement. [12009]

Mr. Hutton: The table shows the major hospital developments which have been approved to go ahead under the private finance initiative. There are currently no plans to approve any further waves of major PFI schemes.

Major capital schemes approved to go ahead since May 1997—England

Regional office	Scheme	Capital value (£ million)
PFI schemes reached financial close which are completed:
South East	Dartford and Gravesham NHS Trust	94
Northern and Yorkshire	Carlisle Hospitals NHS Trust	65
South East	South Buckinghamshire NHS Trust	45
London	Queen Elizabeth Hospital NHS Trust	93
Northern and Yorkshire	Calderdale and Huddersfield NHS Trust	65
Northern and Yorkshire	North Durham Health Care NHS Trust	61
North West	South Manchester University Hospitals NHS Trust	66
Eastern	Norfolk and Norwich NHS Trust	158
8	Total PFI Schemes at Financial Close which are completed	647
PFI schemes reached financial close and under construction:
London	Bromley Healthcare NHS Trust	118
London	Barnet and Chase Farm Hospitals NHS Trust	54
West Midlands	Worcestershire Acute Hospitals NHS Trust	87
West Midlands	Hereford Hospitals NHS Trust	64
Northern and Yorkshire	South Durham Healthcare NHS Trust	41
Northern and Yorkshire	South Tees Acute Hospitals NHS Trust	122
South West	Swindon and Marlborough NHS Trust	96
London	King's Healthcare NHS Trust	64
Northern and Yorkshire	Leeds Community and Mental Health services Teaching NHS Trust	47
London	St. George's Hospital NHS Trust	49
London	University College London Hospitals NHS Trust	404
Northern and Yorkshire	Hull and East Yorkshire Hospitals NHS Trust	22
London	West Middlesex University Hospitals NHS Trust	60
West Midlands	Dudley Group of Hospitals NHS Trust	137
South East	Berkshire Healthcare NHS Trust	30
15	Total PFI Schemes reached Financial Close with work started on site	1,395
23	Total PFI Schemes Reached Financial Close with work started on site or completed	2,042

Major capital schemes approved to go ahead since May 1997—England

Regional office	Scheme	Capital value (£ million)
PFI Schemes approved to proceed and out to tender
South West	Gloucestershire Royal NHS Trust	32
North West	Central Manchester Healthcare/Manchester Childrens Hospitals NHS Trusts	199
Northern and Yorkshire	Newcastle Upon Tyne Hospitals/Newcastle City Health NHS Trusts	124
West Midlands	University Hospitals Coventry and Warwickshire/Coventry Healthcare NHS Trusts	178
Northern and Yorkshire	Leeds Teaching Hospitals NHS Trust	125
South East	Oxford Radcliffe Hospitals NHS Trust	95
London	Barking, Havering and Redbridge Hospitals NHS Trust	156
South East	Portsmouth Hospitals NHS Trust	121
North West	Blackburn, Hyndburn and Ribble Valley Healthcare NHS Trust	61
Trent	Southern Derbyshire Acute Hospitals NHS Trust	177
PFI Schemes approved to proceed but not yet out to tender:
London	Barts and The London NHS Trust	620
West Midlands	University Hospital Birmingham/South Birmingham Mental Health NHS Trusts	291
Northern and Yorkshire	Bradford Hospitals NHS Trust	116
South West	Avon and Western Wiltshire Mental Health NHS Trust	68
London	North West London Hospitals NHS Trust	56
South East	East Kent Hospitals NHS Trust	102
Trent	University Hospitals of Leicester NHS Trust	286
London	Lewisham Hospital NHS Trust	44
Eastern	Peterborough Hospitals NHS Trust	135
North West	Salford Royal Hospitals NHS Trusts	114
South East	Maidstone and Tunbridge Wells/Invicta Community Care NHS Trusts	175
Northern and Yorkshire	Pinderfield and Pontefract Hospitals/Wakefield and Pontefract Community/Dewsbury Health Care NHS Trusts	164
London	Whipps Cross Hospitals NHS Trust	184
South East	Brighton Health Care NHS Trust	28
South West	United Bristol Healthcare NHS Trust	104
Trent	Sherwood Forest Hospitals NHS Trust	66
London	Barnet and Chase Farm Hospitals NHS Trust	41
Eastern	Mid Essex Hospitals NHS Trust	80
Eastern	Essex Rivers Healthcare NHS Trust	79
Northern and Yorkshire	Hull and East Yorkshire Hospitals NHS Trust	39
London	North Middlesex Hospitals NHS Trust	73
West Midlands	North Staffordshire Hospital NHS Trusts	224
South West	Plymouth Hospitals NHS Trust	101
North West	St. Helens and Knowsley Hospitals NHS Trust	211
West Midlands	Walsall Hospitals/Walsall Community Health NHS Trusts	43
London	Paddington Basin	460
West Midlands	Royal Wolverhampton Hospitals NHS Trust	110
South East	Oxford Radcliffe Hospitals NHS Trust	28
South East	Southampton University Hospitals NHS Trust	52
South West	South Devon Healthcare NHS Trust	65
North West	Tameside and Glossop Acute Services NHS Trust	41
64	Total PFI	7,510

Notes:
The capital value of PFI schemes is approximate and defined as:
Total Capital Cost to the private sector includes the costs of land, construction, equipment and professional fees but excludes Value Added Tax, rolled up interest and financing costs such as bank arrangement fees, bank due diligence fees, banks' lawyers fees and third party equity costs. As PFI procures a service rather than the underlying asset, capital values shown are necessarily estimates.

NHS Pensions Agency

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will state the total lump sum cash payment received by the NHS Pension Agency from transfers back into the scheme as a result of the outcome of private pensions mis-selling; and if he will estimate the sums still to be received. [12654]

Mr. Hutton: In the period 1 October 1996 to 31 October 2001, the National Health Service Pensions Agency received cash payments totalling £753,915,089 in respect of transfers back into the NHS Pension Scheme arising from the review of private pensions mis-selling. The NHS Pensions Agency forecasts receipts to the scheme of a further £95,000,000 over the course of the next two financial years.

Midwives

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what long-term measures there are to encourage midwives to return to work in the NHS apart from the existing one-off incentive payment; and under what circumstances they would be eligible to receive assistance with child care. [12402]

Mr. Hutton: The Department is working closely with the Royal College of Midwives to encourage and support returning midwives. The National Health Service now offers all midwives improved pay, more supportive and family friendly working and training conditions, better access to continuing professional development and a better career structure. Applications for midwifery diploma courses are 63 per cent. higher than they were in 1997–98. In 2000–01 there were 14 per cent. more training places for midwives than there were in 1996–97. Since February 1999, 299 midwives have already returned to the NHS with another 170 in the pipeline.

Returning midwives receive £1,500 financial support and generous assistance with child care support is available while retraining. All midwives will have access to the benefits offered by the Department's child care strategy. For example, access to on-site nurseries, offering flexible opening and subsidised places, together with access to child care co-ordinators who will help midwives meet other child care needs. Over 60 new NHS nurseries are currently being built, providing an additional 2,500 places.

The amount of child care assistance received will be determined by whether or not the returner is employed while retraining. For parents who are not employed while retraining, assistance with child care costs incurred while attending refresher training and associated clinical placements should be provided up to Working Families Tax Credit levels.

For parents who are employed while retraining, employers and local child care co-ordinators should help returners access suitable, affordable child care, including access to the child care support available through the Working Families Tax Credit, where applicable.

Tonsillectomies

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many tonsil operations have been cancelled in the last 12 months; how many patients are waiting for tonsil operations; what the average waiting time is for tonsil operations; if he will make a statement on the effectiveness of single-use tonsillectomy instruments in the NHS; and what supplies of single-use tonsillectomy instruments are held by the NHS and how widely they are distributed. [12601]

Mr. Hutton: The number of cancellations by procedure is not collected.

Data are collected on the number of patients waiting for tonsillectomy and adenoidectomies, but tonsillectomies cannot be identified separately. The following table shows the number of patients waiting for tonsillectomy and adenoidectomy operations at the end of August 2001.

Months	England
6–8	7,299
9–11	4,078
12–14	1,854
15–17	710
18+	177
Total waiting	44,576

Source:
Department of Health waiting list statistics.

The average waiting times in national service hospitals in England for tonsillectomies are given in the table.

Year	Median days
1995–96	128
1996–97	116
1997–98	127
1998–99	147
1999–2000	118

Source:
Hospital Episode Statistics (HES), Department of Health

All surgical instruments used in tonsillectomy operations are Conformitte Europeane marked under the provisions of the Medical Devices Regulations and as such are considered fit for their intended purpose. Any breach of these Regulations would be investigated by the Medial Devices Agency's Compliance Unit and action taken as needed. During the summer there were reports of an increase in the rates of secondary haemorrhage at a number of centres following tonsil and adenoid surgery. This was investigated by the MDA who found that in some cases the diathermy used to close the wound was set at too high a power setting, and the instruments being used were in some cases inappropriate for this site. On 10 October the MDA issued advice to the health service to address these problems.

The NHS Logistics Authority holds sufficient stock to deliver enough single use instruments to perform 10,000 tonsil and adenoid operations each month. 5,000 equivalent operations were performed in October 2000. Any NHS Trust in England can order the single use instruments from the NHS Logistics Authority. The lead-time for delivery is 48 hours for standard service. Faster delivery can be arranged if required.

NHS Priority Care

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what his policy is on giving priority to NHS patients over private health policy holders for operations in NHS hospitals. [12605]

Mr. Hutton: The overwhelming majority of elective operations carried out in National Health Service trusts are performed on NHS patients. Although NHS trusts are permitted to generate income from providing facilities and staff to operate on private health policy-holders and self-pay patients, trusts must ensure that this private activity is not at the expense of their NHS work.

General Practioner Appraisers

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement about the number of general practitioners who have come forward to act as general practitioner appraisers. [12597]

Mr. Hutton: We are pleased with the progress being made towards introduction of appraisal for general practitioners from 1 April 2002. The Department has asked primary care trusts and primary care groups to identify at least three suitable GPs to train as an appraiser. Most have now replied putting forward at least the three nominations requested.

Beta Interferon

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to initiate further trials into the effectiveness of beta interferon; and if he will make a statement. [12366]

Mr. Hutton: We are currently holding discussions with the manufacturers to consider a range of options under which drugs for multiple sclerosis might be made available under the National Health Service. One option is a 'risk-sharing' scheme and until these discussions are concluded we cannot provide the information requested.

Strategic Outline Cases

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health for what reason his Department will not accept strategic outline cases for future hospital projects; and if he will make a statement. [12369]

Mr. Hutton: Strategic outline cases for major capital projects are accepted in specific rounds by the capital prioritisation advisory group (CPAG) which advises Ministers on each scheme's viability. Ministers can consider cases outside of the CPAG where there is an urgent need. The eventual treatment of such cases will depend on the progress and priority of those schemes already approved to commence their procurements, and the number of schemes waiting to go to tender, so as to ensure optimal value for money.

29 major hospital projects were announced in February 2001, which should be released to the market over the next 36 months.

Hospital Building

Mr. Rooney: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what was (a) the original tender price, (b) final cost, (c) projected time for construction and (d) actual time for construction for each of the last 20 new build hospital schemes under traditional public sector funding. [12250]

Mr. Hutton: The details for each of the last 20 new build hospital schemes under traditional public sector funding are shown in the table.

	(£ million)		(Months)
NHS Trust	Original construction tender price	Final construction cost	Projected construction time	Actual construction time
Sheffield Teaching Hospitals	16.3	18.4	23.0	25.2
Blackpool Victoria Hospital	14.4	14.4	23.9	28.2
City Hospitals Sunderland	15.2	15.6	22.0	24.0
Homerton Hospital	13.5	14.9	24.0	24.6
Brighton Healthcare	27.5	27.5	31.0	35.2
Medway	36.9	37.8	30.4	35.5
Mid Essex Hospital Services	17.6	19.8	22.1	25.8
Birmingham Childrens Hospital	23.7	30.9	14.7	23.1
West Dorset	24.6	26.7	24.6	34.4
Barnet and Chase Farm Hospitals	17.8	21.9	23.8	23.8
Worthing and Southlands Hospitals	26.6	28.7	35.9	42.4
Royal West Sussex	20.3	20.7	24.5	26.9
Lewisham Hospital	10.4	11.1	12.4	16.9
Bolton Hospitals	21.4	21.6	36.0	33.2
East Kent Hospitals	12.9	13.5	24.0	24.3
Salford Royal Hospitals	10.9	12.3	36.0	41.2
Northumbria Healthcare	12.5	13.3	28.1	28.1
Morecambe Bay	13.4	14.7	39.0	40.8
Royal Devon and Exeter	21.6	23.8	35.8	36.9
Southend Hospital	10.9	11.3	24.0	24.2

NICE

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how his Department monitors the implementation of NICE appraisal guidance throughout the NHS; and if he will make a statement; [11468]

(2) what advice his Department has given to (a) NHS trusts, (b) health authorities and (c) primary care groups and trusts on how they should audit the implementation of NICE guidance; [11470]

(3) what advice his Department has given to (a) NHS trusts and (b) health authorities on how they should prescribe treatments that are currently undergoing appraisal by the National Institute for Clinical Excellence; [11467]

(4) if he will publish the data collected by his Department on the implementation of the NICE appraisal guidance. [11469]

Mr. Hutton [holding answer 31 October 2001]: The Department is monitoring the implementation of National Institute for Clinical Excellence appraisal guidance through its routine performance assessment procedures supplemented by other data sources available to the Department. We will be looking to the Commission for Health Improvement to provide more information in due course. Additionally, we are preparing to implement our manifesto commitment that

> "local health authorities and trusts will be directed to fund drugs and treatments recommended by NICE",

and expect to announce further details shortly.

The Department has not provided specific guidance about the audit of guidance implementation. However, the National Prescribing Centre recently published a guide for National Health Service professionals to help with the process of local implementation of NICE guidance, including audit. NICE itself is developing audit tools which will be published alongside its appraisals.

Guidance to the NHS on treatments undergoing assessment by NICE is set out in Health Service Circular 1999/176. NHS bodies are advised to continue to use existing arrangements to access the publicly available evidence and to determine local policies for the managed entry of the new intervention.

We are currently formulating proposals for the release of data about products subject to NICE recommendations.

Written Answers to Questions

Tuesday 6 November 2001

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Gibraltar

Mr. Crausby: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what arrangements have been put in place for the people of Gibraltar to participate in elections to the European Parliament. [11773]

Peter Hain: We are actively working to ensure Gibraltar's enfranchisement in time for the 2004 elections to the European Parliament. We plan to consult the Government of Gibraltar soon about the precise detail of the necessary arrangements.

Mr. Crausby: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what response he has made to the motion passed by the Gibraltar House of Assembly requesting Her Majesty's Government to seek a legal opinion from the International Court of Justice on the right of self-determination and the Treaty of Utrecht of 1713; and if he will make a statement. [11774]

Peter Hain: I assume that my hon. Friend is referring to a Gibraltar House of Assembly motion of November 1999. We have not been asked to respond to this motion.

However, HMG's position on this issue has been consistent since the mid-1960s. We believe that Gibraltar's right of self-determination is not constrained by the treaty of Utrecht except in so far as Article X gives Spain the right of refusal, should Britain ever renounce sovereignty. Thus independence would only be an option with Spanish consent.

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when further talks will be held with the Spanish Government over the future of Gibraltar. [11813]

Peter Hain: The Foreign Secretary and Spanish Foreign Minister Pique met on 26 July to re-launch the Brussels process. A further ministerial meeting will be held in Barcelona on 20 November. Both we and the Spanish Government hope that the Chief Minister of Gibraltar will participate in this meeting. Normal contacts between the UK and Spanish and the UK and Gibraltar Governments in preparation for these talks will continue. The Government stand by their commitments to the people of Gibraltar as set out in the preamble to the Gibraltar constitution.

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the talks in July under the Brussels process with Spanish officials regarding Gibraltar; what the agenda is for the discussions under the Brussels process; and what guidelines are being issued to officials leading up to the negotiations. [11814]

Peter Hain: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Windsor (Mr. Trend) on 10 July 2001, Official Report, column 473W, regarding the Government's decision to resume talks with Spain under the Brussels process. In accordance with the terms of the Brussels communique issued in November 1984, the talks are aimed at overcoming all the differences between the UK and Spain over Gibraltar and at promoting co-operation on a mutually beneficial basis on economic, cultural, touristic, aviation, military and environmental matters. The communique establishes that issues of sovereignty will be discussed under the Brussels process.

Through these talks we aim to build a better future for Gibraltar. Both we and the Spanish Government intend that Gibraltar should be fully engaged in this process, and hope that the Chief Minister will participate at the next ministerial meeting planned for 20 November in Barcelona. Normal contacts between the UK and Spanish and the UK and Gibraltar Governments in preparation for these talks will continue. The Government will stand by their commitments to the people of Gibraltar as set out in the preamble to the Gibraltar constitution.

Mr. Laxton: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of statements from the Spanish Government relating to responsibility for the payment of increases in pensions to Spaniards who worked in Gibraltar prior to 1969; and if he will make a statement. [11775]

Peter Hain: Spanish nationals who worked in Gibraltar before 1969 and who are now retired and living in Spain, are eligible to receive pension payments from the Gibraltar social insurance fund. Pension payments under the SIF are awarded to all beneficiaries in line with contributions made.

After the decision was taken in 1988 to wind up the SIF, by 31 December 1993, the UK and Gibraltar Governments agreed in 1996 to set up a new 'closed' scheme to provide for on-going pension benefits to all beneficiaries of the old SIF scheme. Payments to all beneficiaries under the 'closed' scheme were fixed at the level payable at 31 December 1993. The Spanish authorities were kept informed of decisions regarding the dissolution of the Gibraltar social insurance fund.

Mr. Laxton: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he has asked the European Commission to initiate legal proceedings against the Government of Spain on the grounds of its failure to allow the use of Gibraltar's internationally recognised dialling code by telephone companies in Spain. [11877]

Peter Hain: We are in close contact with the Government of Gibraltar on this matter. We raise the question of Gibraltar's telecommunications situation with the Spanish Government, at both ministerial and official level, at every appropriate opportunity. Most recently, I raised the matter with my Spanish counterpart, Sr de Miguel, on 29 October.

Two private competition complaints have been brought before the Commission by Gibtel and Gibraltar Nynex Communications. We have supported these complaints in our dealings with the Commission and we will continue to ensure that the Commission is fully aware of our concerns.

Mr. Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he is making to the European Commission and other relevant European Union institutions to ensure that citizens of Gibraltar are accorded the right to participate in elections to the European Parliament. [12016]

Peter Hain: We are in close contact with the heads of both the Council and the Commission Legal Services on this issue.

Afghanistan

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will list the policy papers which he has produced relating to the objectives of the (a) action in Afghanistan and (b) international coalition against terrorism. [12146]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Secretary of State placed the paper "Defeating International Terrorism: Campaign Objectives" in the House of Commons Library on 16 October 2001. This paper sets out the objectives of the international coalition against terrorism and our action in Afghanistan.

Drugs Trade

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which countries are working with the UK Government to combat the trade in illegal drugs. [12082]

Mr. Bradshaw: We work bilaterally and through the EU and the UN to combat the illegal drugs trade. The UK supports counter-drugs work and capacity-building in all of the key countries concerned in the supply of heroin and cocaine to the UK and Europe. These include Iran, Pakistan, Turkey, the central Asian republics, Central Europe, Colombia, Bolivia, Peru, Venezuela, Jamaica and the countries of the eastern Caribbean. We also work closely with the United States and our European partners.

Afghanistan's leading role in world opium production was the focus of a meeting of representatives of countries close to Afghanistan and of the main donor countries to the UNDCP, in Vienna on 11 October 2001.

Burma

Mr. Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the Government of Burma regarding the continued imprisonment of Min Ko Naing (also known as Paw Oo Tun). [12031]

Mr. Bradshaw: We take every opportunity to press for the release of all political prisoners in Burma through our embassy in Rangoon, visiting officials, the EU and also by supporting UN resolutions.

We welcome the release so far this year of over 180 political prisoners, but many more remain in detention. We will continue to press for the early release of all political prisoners, including Miss Ko Naing.

Belize

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, pursuant to his answer of 20 July 2001, Official Report, column 484W, on Belize, if High Commission staff arranged calls to the two public investment companies in order to arrange meetings between the companies and KPMG; and what the result of these calls was. [11616]

Mr. MacShane: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 20 July 2001, Official Report, column 484W. The report is for disclosure only to the Governments of the UK and Belize.

Commonwealth Conference

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he next plans to attend a Commonwealth Conference; and what issues he expects to be on the agenda. [12429]

Mr. Bradshaw: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary expects to attend the Commonwealth Heads of Government meeting, originally scheduled for 6–9 October 2001 and now due to be held in Australia early next year. The dates and agenda for the meeting have not yet been set. But we expect Heads of Government to discuss the Commonwealth's response to terrorism as well as the high level group review of the Commonwealth.

Correspondence

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he will answer the letter from the hon. Member for the Isle of Wight, dated 8 October 2001, to the Secretary of State for Defence, which was passed to him. [12920]

Mr. Bradshaw: I received the hon. Member for the Isle of Wight's letter of 8 October to the Secretary of State for Defence on 18 October and replied on 6 November.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Individual Learning Accounts

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many individual learning accounts have been taken up by residents of the Isle of Wight in each year since their inception, and what their total value was; [12562]

(2) how many individual courses funded by individual learning accounts have been provided on the Isle of Wight in each year since the inception of the scheme, what their total value was, and how many were completed; [12563]

(3) how many individual courses, funded by individual learning accounts, have been (a) commenced and (b) completed in each year since the scheme's inception; [12565]

(4) how many individual learning accounts have been taken up nationally in each year since their inception. [12564]

John Healey: On the basis of recorded postcode information available, 5,506 people from the Isle of Wight became an individual learning account member through the national framework, launched on 4 September 2000. The figure given is up to 31 October 2001. As a result, 3,038 episodes of learning have been funded so far on behalf of these members, resulting in £825,393 total learning costs. Individual learning accounts funded £533,477 of these costs.

The corresponding figures for England up to 31 October 2001, are 2,529,609 people opened an individual learning account, and 1,380,370 episodes of learning have been supported.

Information is not maintained relating to course completion.

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what information is collected on the (a) size, (b) capitalisation, (c) corporate status, (d) qualifications of staff and (e) range of courses offered by providers under the individual learning account scheme. [12561]

John Healey: Learning providers registered with the individual learning account centre are not required to provide information about the size, capitalisation, corporate status or qualifications of staff. They do provide information about the range of courses offered to individuals. They are also required to provide health and safety and public liability certification.

New registrations to become a learning provider with the ILA centre ended on 28 September.

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what measures are being taken to guarantee the quality of (a) the learning providers and (b) the courses on offer, through the individual learning account scheme. [9686]

John Healey: ILAs were designed to encourage more people into learning by helping tackle the financial barriers to learning. It was a key principle of the design that people were able to take responsibility for learning they felt to be most appropriate and most beneficial to themselves. ILAs are not and were not intended to be a guarantee of quality for learning or learning providers.

Of course the Government do not want ILAs to be used for poor value learning or by providers that cause concern. In July of this year, the Department started to receive increasing numbers of complaints from individuals and local trading standards officers. In response the Department took positive actions to tighten up the ILA system to address these problems. We re-registered all learning providers, withdrew blank application forms, suspended all new provider registrations, introduced a revised learning provider agreement that made it harder for providers to act against the ethos of the programme, and made changes to the applications process, for the same purpose. While we have taken this action the first safeguard remains an informed public looking for learning of value to them.

However, it became clear that these changes were not sufficient by themselves to prevent the mis-selling of ILAs. At that point we decided we had no option other than to withdraw the programme, and my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State announced on 24 October that ILAs are to be suspended from 7 December. The programme has exceeded the Government's expectations in encouraging very large numbers of people to take a new interest in learning, and has quickly expanded beyond its capacity. The programme has attracted over 2.5 million account holders.

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what information is collected on the (a) age, (b) gender, (c) employment record, (d) academic/vocational attainment, (e) social class and (f) location of users of individual learning accounts. [12560]

John Healey: Characteristic information on age, gender, employment, academic attainment and location of the 1,246,449 individual learning account members who had activated their accounts in England, since the launch of the national framework on 4 September 2000, is given in the following tables. Although social class information is not routinely collected, the Department commissioned an evaluation earlier in the year and arranged for a question to be included in this. The report determined that the most frequently represented social class among ILA account holders was C1, which includes non-managerial and non-professional administrative and sales staff as well as nurses and technicians.

Table 1: Analysis of active individual account members—England

By gender	Number
Male	531,799
Female	710,707
Not supplied	3,943
Total	1,246,499

Table 2: Analysis of active individual account members—England

By age group	Number
19–30	382,181
31–40	365,328
41–50	253,120
51–60	157,243
60+	88,577
Total	1,246,449

Table 3: Analysis of active individual account members—England

By employment status	Active ILA Members
Self-employed	98,560
Employed	765,167
Employed and self-employed	3,662
Not employed	91,130
Retired	49,749
Unemployed	144,565
Student	30,452
Other	34,814
Data not supplied	28,350
Total	1,246,449

Table 4. Active ILA members by academic attainment at point of entry to ILAs

Highest qualification	Number
Degree/NVQ4 or equivalent	181,491
A-level/NVQ3 or equivalent	162,381
GCSE/NVQ2 or equivalent	271,455
NVQ1	58,699
Other	4,498
Data not supplied	567,925
Total	1,246,449

Table 5. Location of individual learning account users

Region	Number
East	102,813
East Midlands	103,332
London	215,445
North East	45,027
North West	128,580
South East	175,946
South West	118,741
West Midlands	222,487
Yorkshire, Humberside	94,389
Region unassigned	39,689
Total	1,246,449

Faith Schools

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what approaches have been made to her Department by groups wishing to (a) establish new faith schools and (b) bring independent faith schools into the maintained sector in the last 12 months. [12780]

Mr. Timms: Since 1 November 2000, 26 approaches have been made by groups inquiring about the possibility of establishing new faith schools in the maintained sector, including nine about bringing independent schools into the maintained sector. Previous experience suggests that relatively few inquiries become firm proposals to a school organisation committee to establish a new school.

DEFENCE

Personal Radios

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the performance and size specifications are of (a) the Thales Defence Systems Bowman personal radio and (b) the CDC Systems personal radio system, with particular relevance to the size of the (i) radio, (ii) microphone and (iii) ear-piece; if a smaller ear-piece design was explored by Thales Defence Systems; what assessment he has made of whether the Thales Defence Systems Bowman personal radio wiring restricts a soldier's range of motion; and if he will make a statement. [11785]

Dr. Moonie: There is no "personal radio system" supplied as part of the Bowman programme. For the purpose of this answer, I have assumed the intended subject to be the Bowman Personal Role Radio (PRR).

PRR was separated from the total Bowman requirement in October 1999 to ensure delivery of these radios to the front line earlier than would otherwise have been the case. The PRR Invitation to Tender was issued in March last year and eight responses were received. CDC Systems did not take part in the competition.

Thales (then trading as Thompson CSF) did submit a bid. However, as it did not win the competition and is no longer involved with Ministry of Defence on the PRR programme, it would be inappropriate for MOD to release commercial information that was obtained as part of the competitive process. I am therefore withholding the performance and size specifications requested in accordance with Exemption 13 of the Code of Practice on Access to Government Information.

I can confirm that the Thales PRR audio ancillaries were assessed during the competition and were not found to restrict the soldier's range of motion.

Marconi ultimately won the PRR contract on the basis that its system offered the best value for money in terms of performance, through life support, programme and cost. Work has progressed extremely well and we expect to better the declared ISD of March 2002.

Armed Forces (Special Payments)

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has to review the payments made to British armed forces service men and women who are engaged in theatres of operation; what assessments he has made of payments made to members of armed forces from other countries engaged similarly; and if he will make a statement. [12458]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 5 November 2001]: All payments made to service personnel are regularly reviewed, the majority of them by the independent Armed Forces Pay Review Body. These include basic pay; the X-factor, which takes account of the unique demands and circumstances of service life over a whole career; and allowances to compensate for particular disadvantages such as prolonged separation from home life. In addition a recent review of welfare support to service personnel on operations led to the introduction earlier this year of a new comprehensive operational welfare package. Where personnel receive this package, an overseas cost of living allowance is not usually payable.

A comparison of operational conditions of service in a wide range of NATO and non-NATO countries was undertaken by the UK last year. This showed that payments to UK service personnel over the course of a military career bear favourable comparison with those of any of our allies. While some countries pay their personnel more when deployed on operations, this is more than offset by lower levels of remuneration at other times.

Chinook ZD576

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many members of the maintenance team responsible for servicing RAF Chinook ZD576 at Aldergrove on 1 and 2 June 1994 had completed a full Chinook MK2 trade course and held the appropriate Trade Qualification Annotation prior to 2 June 1994; [13033]

(2) if he will place in the Library copies of (a) the Supplementary Flight Servicing Certificate MOD Form 705(SSC) of RAF Chinook ZD576 for 1 and 2 June 1994 and (b) pages 25 and 26 of the Flight Servicing Certificate for RAF Chinook ZD576; [13030]

(3) if he will list the regulations covering tool checks and the documentation to be completed on the RAF Chinook MK2 aircraft prior to flight for the period covering May and June 1994; [13032]

(4) if he will place in the Library copies of (a) sheet numbers 17, 18 and 19 of the Maintenance Work Order Log MOD Form 707A (ADP) for RAF Chinook ZD576 and (b) the MOD Form 711 associated with SNOW 0226 as listed on Sheet No. 20, Maintenance Work Order Log, MOD Form 707A(ADP) for RAF Chinook ZD576. [13031]

Mr. Ingram: I will write to my right hon. Friend and a copy of my letter will be placed in the Library of the House.

Ballistic Missiles

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what arms control measures he proposes to take to tackle the potential threat from ballistic missiles; and if he will make a statement; [11324]

(2) what defensive measures are available to tackle the potential threat from ballistic missiles; and if he will make a statement. [11325]

Mr. Hoon: We currently assess that as of today there is no significant ballistic missile threat to the UK. We do, however, continue to monitor developments closely. We also remain concerned by the potential ballistic missile threat to our armed forces when deployed to certain parts of the world. We believe it is important to tackle the potential threat from weapons of mass destruction and their means of delivery with a comprehensive strategy that encompasses diplomacy, non-proliferation, export control, counter-proliferation, conflict prevention, deterrence and defensive measures. We will continue to work closely with our allies, partners and friends in all of these areas.

Beyond our wide-ranging arms control efforts to tackle the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction, we have been working closely to establish a set of international norms dealing specifically with ballistic missiles. As a first step, a draft International Code of Conduct (ICOC) on ballistic missiles, based on an original text prepared by the UK, has been developed by members of the Missile Technology Control Regime. This draft will now be negotiated through an open multilateral process with a view to eventual signature during 2002. We hope that it will form the basis of a new international consensus against the destabilising spread of ballistic missiles, and we strongly support efforts to gain wide adherence to it.

We have a range of capabilities for passive defence of deployed forces against weapons of mass destruction delivered by ballistic missiles. Detection, identification, warning and reporting of possible attacks, physical protection, hazard management and medical countermeasures are all key elements of our force posture. We continue to believe it is premature to decide on acquiring a specific active ballistic missile defence capability, either for defence of the UK or deployed forces. This is based on our assessment of the threat, the rapidity with which defensive technologies are changing, and the need to evaluate further the potential role of missile defences as one element of a broad-ranging defence response to missile proliferation. We will continue to support NATO work in this area, as well as our own national work and bilateral dialogue with the US. Our future options remain open.

Military Personnel (Overseas)

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many UK military personnel are serving overseas, broken down by (a) unit and (b) country in which they are serving. [12080]

Mr. Ingram: The following table shows the number of UK regular forces serving overseas as at 1 September 2001 broken down by service. To break down the figures to unit level could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

	Navy	Army	RAF	Total
Overseas total	4,551	33,116	5,435	43,102
Continental Europe	441	17,423	2,006	19,870
Cyprus	8	2,053	1,089	3,150
Gibraltar	217	70	114	401
Other Europe	490	2,986	106	3,582
Near and Middle East	396	2,586	819	3,801
Far East	18	239	23	280
Others	2,981	7,759	1,278	12,018

Source:
DASA (Tri-Service)

Italy (A400M)

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what Italy's financial contribution was to the A400M consortium; [12224]

(2) what recent discussions he has had with the Italian Defence Minister about the A400M. [12223]

Dr. Moonie: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Defence last met the Italian Minister of Defence on 12 October when he was informed that Italy had reached the decision not to continue, at present, with the A400M programme. However, I understand that this is being reviewed and I expect the situation to become clearer in the near future.

Italy had been expected to procure 16 of these aircraft out of a total initial order of 212 aircraft and their financial contribution would have been commensurate with this. It would not be appropriate to release financial details while commercial negotiations are still under way.

Water Supplies

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent discussions he has had with DEFRA and the water companies about the protection of water supplies from chemical and biological attack. [12338]

Mr. Ingram: All aspects of the UK's resilience to terrorist attack are being reviewed following the events of 11 September. The Ministry of Defence and DEFRA are both involved in that work, and there are well-established arrangements for military assistance to the civil authorities when required. Government responsibilities in relation to the water companies are a matter for DEFRA.

Overseas Accommodation

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what improvements are being made to overseas accommodation for armed forces personnel and their families. [13008]

Dr. Moonie: In accordance with the Department's aim to improve the condition of living accommodation in overseas locations, there is an extensive programme of works projects currently under way. I will write to my hon. Friend and a copy of my letter will be placed in the Library of the House.

Gibraltar (Accommodation)

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what improvements are being made to accommodation for armed forces personnel and their families in Gibraltar. [13009]

Dr. Moonie: I will write to my hon. Friend and a copy of my letter will be placed in the Library of the House.

Territorial Army

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what criteria he uses to determine whether Territorial Army units are fit for role. [13024]

Dr. Moonie: The term "fit for role" is applied to individual members of the Territorial Army (TA) and not to units. TA units are required to achieve a level of collective performance that depends on the role and specified readiness of the unit. Readiness is defined as the time within which a unit can be made ready to deploy for operations from its normal peacetime location. The performance of TA units is measured in the same way as regular Army units, through the measurement of fighting power, which assesses units against a number of criteria, such as manning and equipment levels and the amount of training conducted.

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what standards Territorial Army service personnel must meet in order to obtain the annual bounty. [13025]

Dr. Moonie: In order to obtain the annual bounty, the standard requirement is for Territorial Army (TA) personnel to pass a set number of Individual Training Directives (Army); attend unit annual camp (15 days); and attend a specified number of out of camp training days. This requirement is 12 days for independent TA and four days for specialist TA.

Armed Forces Memorial

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what consultations with ex-servicemen's organisations have taken place about the site and form of the memorial to members of the armed forces killed in conflicts since 1945; and if he will make a statement. [12637]

Dr. Moonie: A project office was appointed in January this year to consult the Services and ex-Service organisations on the criteria for inclusion on and siting of the proposed memorial to Service personnel killed since the end of the Second World War. Consultation is continuing with the Confederation of British Service and ex-Service Organisations (COBSECO) before a final decision is made.

Afghanistan

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his policy is on confining military action against terrorism to targets in Afghanistan; and if he will make a statement. [11648]

Mr. Bradshaw: I have been asked to reply.

Coalition military action is focused on Osama bin Laden, the Al Qaeda network and their Taliban allies in Afghanistan.

The military action is necessary, but it cannot be seen in isolation. It is part of a wider global campaign against terror, which includes diplomatic, intelligence, financial, humanitarian and political elements.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Poverty

Mr. Russell Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what progress is being made in the Government's target to reduce the number of people worldwide living in extreme poverty by 2015. [12420]

Clare Short: The goal of reducing by half the population of people living on less than $1 a day was recently endorsed by 147 heads of state at the UN Millennium summit, and the UN have stated a commitment to monitoring progress towards this, and the other Millennium development goals, on a regular basis.

The most recent published figures from the World bank show that in 1990 29.0 per cent. of the population of developing countries lived on less than $1 a day. By 1999 this had fallen to 22.7 per cent. World bank projections indicate that by 2015 the proportion living on less than $1 a day will fall further to 12.3 per cent. meaning that the 2015 target will be achieved overall but will be missed in some countries and some regions.

Afghanistan

Mr. Dawson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development (1) what action she plans to take in order for the volume of food aid reaching Afghanistan to increase substantially; [12682]

(2) what assessment she has made of the increase needed in the volume of food aid reaching Afghanistan in order to guarantee adequate stockpiles for the winter. [12681]

Clare Short: In October, the World Food Programme reported that it managed to despatch over 27,000 metric tonnes of food into the country. This was less than their target but tonnage has improved and over 10,600 metric tonnes were despatched last week. WFP and other humanitarian agencies are working to maximise opportunities to get more food into the country as winter approaches. We are working with the international community to open up new land convoy routes into Afghanistan. As I announced in the House on 1 November 2001, Official Report columns 769-70W we have agreed to contribute £600,000 to Russian EMERCOM for a new convoy operation to deliver 9,000 metric tonnes of food from Tajikistan to northern Afghanistan.

WFP is buying 17,000 metric tonnes of wheat from the Iranian Government, which will be transported by rail to Turkmenistan, and from there to north and west Afghanistan. WFP is also looking at the airdropping of food to vulnerable people living in remote mountainous regions of Afghanistan which are likely to be cut off by winter snows.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if she will make a statement on international plans to deliver food aid to refugees in Afghanistan this winter. [12153]

Clare Short: As I said in my statement to the House of Commons on 24 October 2001, Official Report, columns 283-85, humanitarian agencies, especially the World Food Programme, are working under extremely difficult circumstances and continuing to get food and other relief items into Afghanistan. In October, WFP reports that it managed to despatch over 27,000 metric tonnes of food into the country. WFP and other humanitarian agencies will continue to maximise opportunities to get more food into the country as winter approaches. DFID has been assessing ways of maximising other routes of food delivery into Afghanistan, and as I announced in the House on 1 November, we have agreed to contribute £600,000 to Russian Emergency Ministry (EMERCOM) for a new convoy operation to deliver 9,000 metric tonnes of food from Tajikistan to northern Afghanistan over the next two months.

WFP is buying 17,000 metric tonnes of wheat from the Iranian Government, which will be transported by rail to Turkmenistan, and from there to north and west Afghanistan. WFP is also looking at the airdropping of food to vulnerable people living in remote mountainous regions of Afghanistan which are likely to be cut off by winter snows.

TRANSPORT, LOCAL GOVERNMENT AND THE REGIONS

Working Time Directive

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what assessment he has made of the impact of the working time directive proposals to increase night-time working restrictions will have on distribution and deliveries of basic goods to rural areas. [9659]

Mr. Jamieson: From our regular meetings with industry, we are fully aware of the problems that will result from an eight-hour limit for night workers. That is why the Government support the ten-hour figure included in the Council's common position.

Parking Revenue (London)

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will list income and expenditure under the parking places revenue accounts of each local authority in London for the years (a) 1996–97, (b) 1997–98, (c) 1998–99, (d) 1999–2000 and (e) 2000–01. [10720]

Mr. Jamieson: The information requested for the periods (a) to (d) has been placed in the Libraries of the House. The figures for period (e) are a matter for the Mayor of London.

Stingray

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions which areas of Scotland will be covered by the Stingray system. [11233]

Mr. Jamieson: The new mobile system will operate throughout Scotland.

Manchester Airport Eastern Link Road

Mr. George Osborne: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions when construction will begin of the Manchester Airport eastern link road (western section). [11078]

Mr. Jamieson: The South East Manchester Multi Modal Study covers the Manchester Airport eastern link road (western section). The Secretary of State is awaiting the recommendations of the North West Regional Assembly on the Study and will announce his findings shortly.

Railtrack

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will make a statement on conditions under which the new Railtrack company will be able to draw down the Government loan facility. [11266]

Mr. Spellar: I refer the right hon. Member to the replies given by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State, to my hon. Friend the Member for Preston (Mr. Hendrick) on 23 October 2001, Official Report, column 195W and to the right hon. Member himself on 31 October 2001, Official Report, column 671W.

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what his estimate is of (a) the gross assets to be transferred to the new Railtrack company and (b) the debt to be set against those assets. [11092]

Mr. Spellar: I refer the right hon. Member to the answer given to him by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State on 31 October 2001, Official Report, column 671W.

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions when he will make a statement on the amount of Government money available for (a) Railtrack in administration and (b) the successor Railtrack company for the next three years. [11265]

Mr. Spellar: I refer the right hon. Member to the reply from my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State to my hon. Friend the Member for Scarborough and Whitby (Lawrie Quinn) on 17 October 2001, Official Report, column 1230W.

The successor company to Railtrack would be entitled to receive network grants to the profile and amounts set out in the Rail Regulator's October 2000 Periodic Review and the 2 April agreement between Railtrack and Government.

The Government propose that a company limited by guarantee be established to succeed Railtrack. We would expect to put in place an arrangement by which the company could access a standby, subordinated loan facility. For details on this loan facility, I refer the right hon. Member to the reply given by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State to my hon. Friend the Member for Preston (Mr. Hendrick) on 23 October 2001, Official Report, column 195W.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what discussions his Department held with the Treasury

regarding the financial situation at Railtrack and his plans for the company prior to the announcement of the administration order. [12151]

Mr. Jamieson: There were regular discussions between my Department and the Treasury prior to the announcement.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions which officials were involved in planning the press announcement by his Department of the Railtrack administration. [12150]

Mr. Jamieson: The announcement was prepared by my Department following normal procedures.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions (1) what criteria he will use to assess proposals put to him by the administrators to resolve the future of Railtrack plc; [11801]

(2) by what process he will assess the solution proposed by the administrators to resolve the future of Railtrack plc. [11881]

Mr. Jamieson [holding answer 1 November 2001]: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State to my hon. Friend the Member for Gedling (Vernon Coaker) on 31 October 2001, Official Report, columns 669–71W.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what assessment he has made of the implications of the decision to place Railtrack into administration for (a) all services between (i) London Euston and Wolverhampton, (ii) Wolverhampton and Shrewsbury and (iii) Shrewsbury and Chester and (b) the proposed sale of the Oswestry branch line from Gobowen to Llanymywech to the Cambrian Railways Trust. [12608]

Mr. Jamieson: The Government will ensure that the administrator has the funds to finance Railtrack's activities, including the full operation of the network.

Birmingham Northern Relief Road

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will place the procurement documents relating to the Birmingham Northern Relief Road in the Library; and if he will make a statement in respect of health and safety of the project. [11237]

Mr. Jamieson: A copy of an edited version of the concession agreement prepared in accordance with the judgment of the High Court was placed in the Library in June 2000. I am also arranging for a copy of the OJEC notice that advertised the procurement of the BNRR construction contract to be placed in the Library of the House.

Midland Expressway Ltd. and CAMBBA have health and safety obligations under the Health and Safety at Work Act 1974 and the Construction Design and Management Regulations 1994 for the safe design, construction and management of the BNRR. They will continue to meet these obligations.

Road Safety (Motorcyclists)

Mr. Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what plans the Government have to encourage and promote road safety for motorcyclists; and if he will make a statement. [11658]

Mr. Jamieson: In March 2000 the Government published their strategy for improving road safety in the next decade, "Tomorrow's Roads—Safer for Everyone", which is available in the House Library.

On motorcycling, our strategy is:

to improve training and testing for all learner riders;

to publish advice for people returning to motorcycling after a break and people riding as part of their work;

to ensure the quality of instruction;

to help drivers become more aware of how vulnerable motorcyclists are;

to promote improvements in engineering and technical standards which could protect motorcyclists better; and to work with representatives of interested organisations, in an advisory group, to look at issues of concern.

Port of London Authority

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what application he has received from the Port of London Authority under section 14 of the Harbours Act 1964 concerning changes to their Act and proposals for a statutory instrument; what correspondence he has received from objectors or potential objectors to the proposed statutory instrument; what steps he has taken to ensure that those most likely to be affected have been consulted; and if he will make a statement on his intentions. [12168]

Mr. Jamieson: The Port of London Authority's application for a Harbour Revision Order was advertised in the London Gazette and various local newspapers. The Secretary of State received objections or representations from the following:

St. Pancras Cruising Club
Thames Boating Trades Association
Residential Boat Owners Association
TGWU South East and East Anglia
Thames Passenger Services Federation
London Tideway Harbour Company Ltd.
The Company of Watermen and Lightermen of the River Thames
Toughs Boatyard Ltd.
Royal Yachting Association
Royal National Lifeboat Institution
Inland Waterways Association
The Barge Association
River Association for Freight and Transport
British Marine Industries Federation
Association of Waterways Cruising Clubs
National Association of Boat Owners
Commercial Boat Owners Association.

All of the objections and representations were copied to the PLA who are currently involved in discussions with a view to resolving the various concerns. The Secretary of State is awaiting the outcome of these discussions before deciding whether or not to call a public inquiry.

Bull Bars

David Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what recent work has been undertaken to assess the effects of bull bars on pedestrians in vehicle accidents. [11986]

Mr. Jamieson: The Transport Research Laboratory has undertaken some test work for us comparing the likely effect on pedestrians of a range of typical bull bars and base vehicles. Its report, "Assessment and Test Procedures for Bull Bars", was published on 26 July last year, and copies were placed in the Libraries of the House.

GoVia

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what amendments to GoVia's proposals for the new South Central franchise have been put forward since Railtrack went into administration with particular reference to (a) start date and (b) levels of investment. [12526]

Mr. Jamieson: The Strategic Rail Authority and GoVia have not agreed any changes to the Heads of Terms for a new South Central franchise, which was signed on 23 October 2000. However, items relating to Mark 1 rolling stock replacement contained in the Heads of Terms have been brought forward into the current Franchise Agreement. Progress in negotiations on the exact terms of the new franchise is commercially confidential.

Bus Passengers

Mr. Edwards: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will undertake a review of the regulations on the permitted number of standing passengers on local buses. [12318]

Ms Keeble: The recent agreement in the EU for common standards for the construction of buses will lead to a change in the regulations. However, in practice, the provisions of the EU Directive are broadly similar to our current requirements.

Mr. Edwards: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will take steps to amend the Public Service Vehicle (Carrying Capacity) (Amendment) Regulations 1994 in order to end the practice of three seated children under the age of 14 years counting as two passengers. [12556]

Mr. Jamieson: Permitting three children sitting in the space provided for two seats is a concession, not a requirement, and applies only where the vehicle is not fitted with seat belts.

Currently, there is no plan to amend the Carrying Capacity Regulations to abolish this concession. The responsibility for choosing an appropriate vehicle must rest with those who are making the arrangements for the transport of children.

Mr. Edwards: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what the legislative basis is of the three for two rule in the carrying of pupils under 14 years on scheduled bus services; and what plans he has to abolish this rule. [12555]

Ms Keeble: The regulations that permit the three for two rule are the Public Service Vehicles (Carrying Capacity) Regulations 1984. I have no plans to abolish this rule as it a concession and not a requirement.

Mr. Edwards: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what assessment the Health and Safety Executive has made of passenger overcrowding on buses transporting pupils to school. [12444]

Ms Keeble: No assessment of overcrowding of buses has been made by the Health and Safety Executive. The responsibility for ensuring that a bus does not carry more passengers than it is certified for lies with the driver and, if applicable, conductor. Enforcement of regulations relating to carrying capacity and safety of buses rests with the Police and the Vehicle Inspectorate. I am not aware of any prosecutions for overcrowding on services involving school transport.

Motorway Speed Limits

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what assessment he has made of the impact on congestion of the variable speed limit system in operation on the M25 motorway; and if he will make a statement. [12326]

Mr. Jamieson: Independent monitoring and assessment of the scheme by the Transport Research Laboratory during the first year of operation confirmed its success. The monitoring indicated that traffic flow had improved, with drivers reporting more "comfortable", less aggressive driving conditions, with fewer very short, dangerous spaces between vehicles and fewer long (inefficient) spaces and more even use of the carriageway. There were also indications of improved safety, and shorter and more reliable journey times.

Regional Chambers

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what was the total budget for each regional chamber in England by region for (a) the last financial year and (b) this financial year; and what the projected figure is for next year. [12523]

Dr. Whitehead: The regional chambers have been established voluntarily by bodies representing the interests of each region. Their budgets are a matter for the chambers and their members. The Government have however allocated £500,000 this year to each regional chamber, with an additional £1 million for chambers to use collectively, to help them establish a stronger strategic and scrutiny role within the regions.

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what proportion of funding for regional chambers in England came from central Government for (a) last year and (b) this financial year; and what the projected apportionment is for the next financial year. [12524]

Dr. Whitehead: The Government provided no funding to the regional chambers in 2000–01. For 2001–02 we have allocated £500,000 to each regional chamber, with an additional £1 million for chambers to use collectively, to help them establish a stronger strategic and scrutiny role within the regions. As the total budgets of the chambers are a matter for the chambers themselves, information on the proportion represented by Government funding is not available centrally.

Unitary Development Plan

Mr. Truswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions in respect of the unitary development plan process (a) what review he has undertaken of the process since 1989, (b) what potential improvements he has identified and (c) how these will be incorporated in guidance to local authorities. [12527]

Ms Keeble: I shall be issuing a Green Paper shortly setting out proposals for comprehensive reform of the planning system.

Local Government Finance

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions which local authorities have applied to be considered for trial schemes for (a) congestion taxes and (b) work parking taxes. [12576]

Mr. Byers [holding answer 5 November 2001]: Two schemes have been published for public consultation, one in central London and one in the City of Durham.

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what additional central Government funding each local authority will receive for taking part in trial schemes for (a) congestion taxes and (b) work parking taxes. [12577]

Mr. Byers [holding answer 5 November 2001]: The local transport capital settlement for 2001–02 announced in December 2000 did make specific funding available to local authorities in England for capital costs directly related to the implementation of a road user charging or workplace parking levy scheme as follows:

Authority	£000
Nottingham City Council (workplace parking levy)	1,500
Derbyshire County Council (road user charging)	400
Durham County Council (road user charging)	240

Railway Stations (Disabled Access)

Mr. Russell Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what responsibility (a) Railtrack and (b) Virgin Rail have for the provision of disabled access at Lockerbie railway station. [12923]

Mr. Jamieson: Lockerbie station is owned by Railtrack and leased to ScotRail who are the "Stations Facilities Owner" with responsibility for managing the station on a day to day basis. ScotRail would be responsible for overseeing the provision of enhanced facilities at the station.

West Coast Main Line

Mr. Russell Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions when he expects the completion of Phase II of the upgrade of the west coast main line; and when he expects trains will be able to operate at more than 140 mph on the line south of Crewe. [12922]

Mr. Jamieson: It is clear from our discussion with the Strategic Rail Authority, the Railway Administrator and Virgin that parts of the project are subject to uncertainties over cost increases and timetables. We are in discussion with the parties on the issues involved and the options. At this stage we cannot predict the outcome of those discussions, but we are working hard to reach agreement on a project which is value for money and can be delivered to a clear timetable, subject to the need to obtain any planning consents.

Correspondence

Mr. Kevin Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions when he will reply to the letters of 10 July and 21 August from the hon. Member for Doncaster, North regarding Manchester Airport and Finningley Airport. [13137]

Ms Keeble: I replied to my hon. Friend's letters on 1 August 2001 and 6 November 2001 respectively.

Education Funding (Worcestershire)

Mr. Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will meet (a) hon. Members for Worcestershire, (b) representatives of the Worcestershire Education Authority and (c) head teachers and governors from the county, to discuss education funding in Worcestershire; and if he will make a statement. [12675]

Dr. Whitehead: I and my ministerial colleagues are certainly prepared to meet hon. Members to discuss the distribution of formula grant to local authorities, which the Government are currently reviewing.

Council Tax

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will revise the regulations governing the council tax benefits limitation scheme. [12609]

Dr. Whitehead: We review the regulations governing the council tax benefit subsidy limitation in advance of each year's local government finance settlement.

Parking Restrictions

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what guidance he gives local authorities on the use of parking restrictions relating to (a) HGVs and (b) lighter commercial vans in residential areas. [12685]

Ms Keeble: Traffic management and parking restrictions are best addressed by local traffic authorities, who are able to take account of particular local circumstances. We have not issued guidance to authorities on the exercise of their road traffic regulation powers in respect of parking of heavy goods vehicles and lighter commercial vans in residential areas.

Two publications that do include advice on parking provision for lorries are "Transport in the Urban Environment" published in 1997 by the Institution of Highways and Transportation with support from the Department of Transport and "Lorries in the Community" a report based on a study sponsored by the Civic Trust, the County Surveyors Society and the Department of Transport and published in 1990.

Concessionary Fares

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if his Department's discussions with coach operators over concessionary pensioners' fares are intended to cover inter-authority journeys. [13036]

Ms Keeble: We have agreed in principle to a proposal from the Commission for Integrated Transport under which coach operators would offer half-price fares to older and disabled passengers on long distance scheduled coaches in England. In return for these fare concessions, operators would—for the first time—receive Fuel Duty Rebate. We shall be consulting the industry and others shortly on the details. Under the proposal concessionary fares on the services eligible, which of course cross local authority boundaries, would not be part of the local authority concessionary fares schemes.

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will extend eligibility for concessionary pensioners fares to inter-authority journeys. [13034]

Ms Keeble: I refer the hon. Member to my replies of 10 July 2001, Official Report, column 439W and 30 October 2001, Official Report, column 578W.

Passenger Information

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will list those means of public transport for which he does not collect passenger information. [13037]

Mr. Jamieson: My Department collects and publishes data from operators on the total number of passengers carried by all means of public transport, including buses, coaches, rail, light rail and ferries.

In addition, my Department collects data on the personal characteristics of passengers (including age) using the National Travel Survey. The number of people in the sample who record trips by less common means, including ferry, is too small to produce reliable estimates, and these trips are recorded in published NTS figures aggregated in the 'other public transport' category.

Public Transport Subsidies

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what (a) fuel tax rebates and (b) other subsidies are available to operators of buses, trains, taxis, passenger hovercraft, passenger ferries, coaches and other means of public transport on UK internal routes. [13039]

Mr. Jamieson: Operators of local bus services in England receive fuel duty rebate from my Department. For the fuel predominantly used in bus operation, ultra low sulphur diesel, this is equivalent to 80 per cent. of the duty paid. Following consultation in the spring, we will be introducing regulations later this financial year to extend this rebate to a wide range of community transport services. We have also announced approval in principle of a recommendation from the Commission for Integrated Transport under which operators of long-distance scheduled coach services would receive the rebate in return for offering half-price fares to older and disabled passengers. Operators of Licensed Hackney Carriages, who hold a Bus Operators Licence, can also receive Fuel Duty Rebate when operating Taxi-Bus services along registered routes.

Local authorities outside London have powers under the Transport Act 1985 to subsidise bus services where transport needs are not being met by an existing commercial service. My Department also provides grants to local authorities to support bus services by means of the Rural Bus Subsidy Grant, Rural Bus Challenge and Urban Bus Challenge grant schemes.

The Department for the Environment, Food and Rural Affairs provides grants, administered by the Countryside Agency, for a range of community-based transport initiatives in rural areas.

Bus, coach and taxi operators can apply for grants towards the cost of converting to cleaner fuels or fitting emission reduction technologies through my Department's PowerShift and CleanUp programmes.

Train operating companies (TOCs) receive support for passenger rail services (SPRS) from the Strategic Rail Authority (SRA) to enable them to provide services which produce social, environmental and economic benefits that cannot be paid for through fares and charges. Similarly Passenger Transport Executives (PTEs) pay grants to those TOCs which provide rail services in their areas. Freight Operating Companies (FOCs) receive freight grants from the SRA to encourage the movement of freight by rail in order to maximise environmental benefits by removing lorries from roads.

Since 1 April 2001, Railtrack has received network grants from the SRA. Various organisations also receive funding from the SRA under the Rail Passenger Partnership (RPP) scheme.

My Department supports the work of Transport for London through the Greater London Authority Transport Grant which is paid under the Greater London Authority Act 1999. Transport for London's responsibilities include support for buses, light rail and the Woolwich ferry.

Grant is provided to London Regional Transport using powers under the London Regional Transport Act 1984 to support London Underground.

Under the Local Transport Plan system, my Department only provides capital support for light rail projects.

Apart from its indirect support for the Woolwich ferry, my Department does not provide subsidies for operators of passenger hovercraft and passenger ferries. These are matters for local authorities.

Model Code of Conduct

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions when he will lay before Parliament the model code of conduct for members of relevant authorities under the Local Government Act 2000; and if he will make a statement. [13166]

Mr. Raynsford: I have today laid before the House four model codes of conduct for members of relevant authorities. The four are:

The Local Authorities (Model Code of Conduct) Order 2000—which covers principal local authorities, the Greater London Authority, the City of London, the Scilly Isles Council, Fire and joint authorities;

The Parish Councils (Model Code of Conduct) Order 2000;

The National Parks and the Broads Authority (Model Code of Conduct) Order 2000; and

The Police Authorities (Model Code of Conduct) (England and Wales) Order 2000.

The Government have embarked on a radical programme to modernise local government and deliver better services. Strong and effective community leadership is at the heart of this vision. It is essential that communities trust those in local government and, equally, that members have clear guidelines under which they must operate.

The code, published today, meets those two objectives. It will help safeguard and raise standards of conduct in local government—ensuring that the highest professional standards are met by those who run our councils and represent our communities.

Authorities now have six months in which to adopt their own codes of conduct, which must contain the mandatory provisions set out in the relevant model codes.

I believe the code is a considerable improvement on its predecessor. It is easier to understand, and easier for members to apply to their day to day duties. We need to keep the provisions under review, to ensure their workability and also to make sure that the public has the reassurance it needs that those they elect really are serving only the public interest. I shall from time to time ask the Standards Board for England to review the efficacy of the code, or specific provisions within it, and provide advice to Ministers on whether it can be improved.

I will ensure that copies of all four codes are placed in the House Libraries.

Ferry Services

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what the cost of subsidies to the Woolwich ferry was in the last year in which they were paid; and what resources were made available by his Department to support such subsidies. [13038]

Mr. Jamieson: The Woolwich ferry is now the responsibility of Transport for London's Street Management Services. My Department paid just over £1 million for the ferry in the first quarter of 2000–01 before Transport for London took over. We took account of Transport for London's need to fund the ferry during the rest of 2000–01 in setting the level of GLA Transport Grant for that year.

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions for what reason he does not collect information on the number of passenger journeys by ferry. [13035]

Mr. Jamieson: Information on number of passenger journeys by ferry is collected by my Department and the information is published annually in "Maritime Statistics".

East Coast Main Line

Mr. Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions on how many occasions in (a) 2001 (b) 2000 and (c) 1999 services on the east coast main line have been disrupted owing to collapse or other failure of the overhead power cables; and what average length of delay has been caused to passenger services as a result. [6652]

Mr. Jamieson [pursuant to his reply, 23 October 2001, c. 191–92W]: The following corrected table from Railtrack shows the number of overhead line failures attributable to Railtrack and the train operators respectively in 1999, 2000 and 2001:

Minutes delay to ECML passenger services due to overhead line problems—period 11 (January) 1999 to end of period 6 (mid September) 2001

Year	Total minutes delay	Number of incidents	Average delay	Percentage of all delays ECML
Railtrack attributable (overhead line)
1999	19,328	157	123	5.4
2000	24,037	134	179	3.0
2001	17,797	100	178	2.9
TOC attributable (pantograph)
1999	—	—	—	—
2000	[1]387	[1]5	[1]77	[1]0.2
2001	8,149	13	627	2.2

[1] Data relating to these were not collected until summer 2000

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Flood Protection

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what provision she plans to make to (a) the Environment Agency and (b) East Riding of Yorkshire Council to protect properties at risk from flooding. [11963]

Mr. Morley: I have recently announced the allocations to flood and coastal defence operating authorities for 2002–03.

The capital allocation, on which we have offered to pay grant, for the Environment Agency in Yorkshire is £19.6 million (compared with £12.5 million in 2001–02). The rate of grant is one of the highest in the country at 65 per cent.

East Riding of Yorkshire Council have indicated that they intend to submit applications for funding for a number of schemes to reduce the risk of coastal erosion, but not to reduce the risk of flooding.

Ocean Management

Mr. Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will bring forward proposals to introduce an eco-system approach to the management of the oceans around the UK. [11503]

Mr. Meacher: We are working through the European Commission and the OSPAR Convention for the Protection of the Marine Environment of the North East Atlantic for the sustainable management and conservation of the seas around the UK. The Government's Marine Stewardship Report will set out our overarching strategy. We are looking at adopting an eco-system approach in this context.

Departmental Assets

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what stocks of (a) antiques, (b) paintings and (c) fine wines are held by her Department; if she will list such assets sold over the last three years together with the sale proceeds from such transactions; what plans she has to sell further such assets over the period of the current Comprehensive Spending Review; and if she will make a statement. [10845]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 31 October 2001]: The National Asset Register gives full details of departmental asset holdings across all categories of assets, including heritage assets, along with details of major acquisitions and disposals since the publication of the last register in 1997. While DEFRA does not hold any stocks of antiques, paintings or fine wines, the National Asset register does contain a summary of DEFRA's asset holdings.

Foot and Mouth

Mr. Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment she has made of the contribution of hunt staff to the control of foot and mouth disease; and if she will make a statement. [8987]

Mr. Morley: All our slaughter teams have provided a valuable contribution in the effort to control the disease. The first licensed hunt slaughtermen were engaged by the Department at the end of March on exactly the same basis as all licensed slaughtermen.

David Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what restrictions she intends to impose on the sourcing of animals for restocking farms after foot and mouth has been eliminated. [5344]

Mr. Morley: From 5 November 2001, it will be possible for farmers in high risk counties, outside Infected Areas and restricted Infected Areas to bring stock into such counties from foot and mouth disease free and at risk counties for the purposes of restocking farms which have been culled. The arrangements for restocking will be kept under review as the disease situation changes.

Mr. George Osborne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many confirmed foot and mouth cases occurred in 2001 in each of the borough council areas of Cheshire. [11083]

Mr. Morley: It is only possible to provide data from the DEFRA Disease Control System (DCS) database for Cheshire as a whole. As at 31 October, there have been 17 Infected Premises (IPs), 32 Dangerous Contacts (DCs) and three Slaughter on Suspicion (SOS) cases in Cheshire.

Mr. Yeo: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many farms included in the foot and mouth cull but not recognised as infected premises have had laboratory tests conducted for the presence of foot and mouth; and what proportion of these recorded positive results. [286]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 25 June 2001]: As at 22 October a total of 7,294 Dangerous Contacts (DC) and 255 Slaughter on Suspicion (SOS) cases, which had not been recognised as Infected Premises, had laboratory tests conducted. Of these, five yielded positive results and subsequently became IPs and were recorded as such.

Notes:

In addition to IPs and SOS cases, contiguous premises and DC premises have had samples taken from sheep at slaughter to further inform the Department as to origin and spread of disease. Some of these were subsequently recorded as IPs as they yielded positive laboratory results. A negative result does not necessarily mean that disease was not present. In the main, testing was for antibody, ie looking for evidence of origin (older disease).

Source:

DEFRA Disease Control System database as at 22 October—these figures may be subject to change as quality assurance of the data are carried out.

Agrimonetary Compensation

Mr. Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will make it her policy to apply for all available agrimonetary compensation in the 2001–02 financial year; and if she will make a statement. [8631]

Mr. Morley: As stated in my reply to my hon. Friend the Member for Ealing, North (Mr. Pound) on 31 October 2001, Official Report, column 738W, we have decided not to pay the agrimonetary compensation currently available for the arable sector. Any future payments of agrimonetary compensation must be balanced against the needs of other sectors and taxpayers.

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much EU agrimonetary compensation is available to be applied for on behalf of UK arable farmers. [9845]

Mr. Morley: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to my hon. Friend the Member for Ealing, North (Mr. Pound) on 31 October 2001, Official Report, column 738W.

Farm Funding

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will allow English farmers to access England Rural Development Programme funding on the same basis as Welsh farmers. [12610]

Alun Michael: Separate Rural Development Plans/ Programmes have been prepared for England and Wales which reflect the particular characteristics of each country but this has been done within the common framework of measures and requirements laid down in the European Commission's Rural Development Regulation. Farmers in some parts of Wales also receive support for rural development through Structural Funds.

Environmentally Sensitive Area Status

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will make it her policy to accord Environmentally Sensitive Area status to all national parks and areas of outstanding natural beauty. [11909]

Alun Michael: Under the Agriculture Act 1986, Environmentally Sensitive Areas (ESAs) may be designated where the maintenance or adoption of particular farming methods is likely to contribute to the conservation or enhancement of natural beauty, biodiversity, features, buildings or historic interest. In England, a total of 22 ESAs were designated between 1987 and 1994, many of which overlap with National Parks and Areas of Outstanding Natural Beauty. Since 1996, this Department has also operated the Countryside Stewardship Scheme which provides payments for similar objectives outside designated ESAs. There are no plans to designate any further ESAs pending the review of all agri-environment schemes which is due to begin shortly.

Business Links

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans she has to increase the funding for Business Link schemes for three-day consultancy for farmers; and if she will make a statement. [12361]

Alun Michael [holding answer 5 November 2001]: We have recently reviewed the budget allocations for the Farm Business Advice Service. As a preliminary step, 10 per cent. of the enhanced (five-day) service budget has been switched to the core (three-day) service in order to help farmers who have been subject to Form D restrictions. Funding will not be increased this year. Consideration is being given to making further budget realignments in order that predicted demand can be met.

Stewardship Schemes

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans she has to encourage a broader availability of stewardship schemes under the modulation and environmental subsidies scheme; and if she will make a statement. [12358]

Alun Michael [holding answer 5 November 2001]: We are planning for a major expansion of the Countryside Stewardship budget as is now well known. Under the England Rural Development Programme, expenditure on agri-environment schemes is scheduled to increase from £119 million this year to £197 million in 2006–07. This expansion is partly funded by receipts from modulation. Subject to EU approval, we also plan to introduce a number of new arable options to Countryside Stewardship next year, which will provide greater opportunities for arable farmers to join the scheme. Over the longer term, we have started a major review of agri-environment schemes which will consider a range of issues, including the scope for further broadening of the schemes. This is consistent with the Department's policy of seeking further CAP reform to redirect expenditure from agricultural subsidies towards measures to support environmentally friendly farming and the wider rural economy.

Tuberculosis

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will increase veterinary resources in the south-west to help against the spreading of TB; and if she will make a statement. [12355]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 5 November 2001]: Resources normally available to the State Veterinary Service in the south-west for TB testing are still, in part, diverted to foot and mouth disease control. The issue of whether extra resource will be needed in certain areas is currently being assessed within the Department.

Rendering Capacity

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans she has to increase rendering capacity; and if she will make a statement. [12351]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 5 November 2001]: We have no immediate plans for increasing rendering capacity, but increases in rendering capacity will be thoroughly considered in our development of contingency measures for future disease outbreaks.

Flooding (Upton-upon-Severn)

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will fund the provision of a pontoon bridge at Upton-upon-Severn which can be put in place in the event of flooding. [11660]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 1 November 2001]: I am not aware of a proposal for a flood defence scheme at Upton-upon-Severn and none have been submitted to this Department. To secure DEFRA funding capital works must be technically sound, economically worthwhile and environmentally acceptable, and achieve an appropriate priority score (based on an assessment of Departmental priorities, urgency and benefit:cost ratio).

British Horticulture (Greenhouse Fuels)

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will compensate British horticulture businesses for subsidies granted by Spain for greenhouse fuels; and what measures she is taking to prevent unfair competition caused by subsidy of greenhouse fuels in competition with the UK horticultural industry. [10675]

Mr. Morley: I am not aware of subsidies granted by Spain specifically for fuels used in horticultural production. In the UK, heating oil used in glasshouses is exempt from duty.

The rate of Climate Change Levy applied to energy used in horticulture in the UK has been abated by 50 per cent. for five years and we have allocated up to £5 million over three years to provide energy efficiency advice to growers to help them adjust to the full rate of levy. These measures (which require Commission approval under the state aids rules) recognise the importance of energy costs to competitive production in this sector.

Fodder and Grazing

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment she received from the Arthur Rank Foundation and industry bodies about the price and availability of (a) fodder and (b) grazing for livestock (i) in the UK and (ii) on the Isle of Wight. [9910]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 24 October 2001]: The Arthur Rank Foundation, ADAS and industry bodies have been examining the prices and availability of fodder and grazing throughout the country. We have received information on a broad regional basis but have no specific information on the Isle of Wight. The Department has been supporting a number of charities giving support to individuals and families suffering hardship as a result of foot and mouth disease, including the Arthur Rank Foundation. A total of £13 million has been provided to such charities up to September and we have now made available a further £2 million to the end of the year.

Groundwater

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will make a statement in respect of the requirement on manufacturing industries to prevent the release of hazardous substances into water and the policy of Ofwat in respect of contaminants penetrating underlying aquifers to significant depths. [11383]

Mr. Meacher: Under various powers contained in the Water Resources Act 1991, the Water Industry Act 1991, the Environmental Protection Act 1990 and regulations made under the Pollution Prevention and Control Act 2000, discharges from manufacturing industries to sewer and controlled waters require written authorisation from, respectively, the sewerage undertaker and the Environment Agency. Conditions in these authorisations are set in order to protect receiving waters from polluting substances. The Agency also has powers to prevent polluting activities. Ofwat has no direct responsibilities for discharge consents or associated standards.

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps she is taking to protect groundwater resources from known sources of contamination. [11379]

Mr. Meacher: The Government have, through the Groundwater Regulations 1998 and the Anti-Pollution Works Notices Regulations 1999, increased the powers available to the Environment Agency to protect groundwater resources. In addition the Government have issued, under Regulation 21 of the Groundwater Regulations, a groundwater protection code of practice on the use and disposal of sheep dip. A draft code for petrol stations and underground storage tanks has been to public consultation and work is under way on codes for potential sources of contamination.

Litter Offences

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many on-the-spot fines were levied for litter offences in England in (a) 1997 and (b) the last year for which figures are available. [12418]

Mr. Meacher [holding answer 5 November 2001]: Under the Environmental Protection Act 1990, litter wardens can issue a £25 fixed penalty to anyone who drops litter and refuses to dispose of it properly. These penalty notices are not on-the-spot fines but can be paid within 14 days of an offence occurring. If the money is not paid within 14 days the litterer can be prosecuted and if convicted face a maximum fine of £2,500.

In the period 1997–98, 727 litter fixed penalties were issued by local authorities in England, of which 660 were paid. The last year from which figures are available is the period 1999–2000 where 2,970 fixed penalty notices were issued of which 1,563 were paid.

Sheep Meat

Mrs. Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will calculate (a) the number of sweet lambs awaiting entry into the national supply chain and (b) the amount of sweet lamb being processed in the supply chain as a result of the imposition of export control restrictions on British livestock and meat. [11417]

Mr. Morley: DEFRA figures for the week ending 13 October 2001 indicate that the volume of sheep being slaughtered in the UK for human consumption was about 73 per cent. of the level that would have been expected had foot and mouth not occurred. However, allowing for the impact of the export ban, the production of sheep meat for the UK market is approximately 99 per cent. of normal.

Apples

Mr. Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what has been the average crop harvested of Bramley apples in (a) Northern Ireland, (b) Scotland, (c) Wales and (d) England since 1981. [11977]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 2 November 2001]: Home production of Bramley apples marketed for the calendar years 1985 to 2001 was as follows:

thousand tonnes

	England and Wales	Scotland	Northern Ireland	UK total
1985	121.6	0.1	24.4	146.1
1986	123.0	0.2	24.6	147.8
1987	114.5	0.1	24.3	139.0
1988	100.9	0.1	29.4	130.4
1989	189.0	0.1	35.6	224.7
1990	118.6	0.1	34.3	152.9
1991	150.5	0.1	41.9	192.5
1992	155.5	0.1	41.4	197.0
1993	101.4	0.1	51.2	152.6
1994	87.8	0.1	35.6	123.5
1995	89.7	0.1	41.3	131.2
1996	75.2	0.1	39.7	115.0
1997	57.5	0.1	31.0	88.5
1998	54.7	0.1	27.6	82.4
1999	83.5	0.1	25.8	109.4
2000	59.5	0.1	45.5	105.1
2001[1]	55.5	0.1	50.2	105.7

[1] Provisional

Draft Guidance (Parishes)

Mr. Plaskitt: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when she will publish draft guidance on quality parishes. [13249]

Alun Michael: I shall be publishing a consultation paper on Quality Parish and Town Councils tomorrow, Wednesday 7 November. This takes forward the commitment in the Rural White Paper to help town and parish councils develop a new role, give communities the opportunity to help shape their future and to make local government in the countryside more responsive to local people and local needs. Copies will be placed in the Library and the Vote Office in the morning. The consultation paper will be available on the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs' website www.defra.gov.uk/corporate/consult/consultfrm.htm and from my Department on request. I shall also be writing to Members of Parliament individually with the document.

Ebola Virus

Mr. Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps are being taken to stop ebola from entering the United Kingdom. [9433]

Jacqui Smith: I have been asked to reply.

Cases of ebola haemorrhagic fever are not infectious before the onset of symptoms and there are systems in place, based on the World Health Organisation's international health regulations, to ensure that individuals who appear to be ill on entry to this country are identified and are put in contact with health care services.

We have issued guidance to the national health service on the management and control of viral haemorrhagic fevers to help in the identification and safe care of cases, including the monitoring of contacts. There are two high security infectious disease units in England that provide specialised isolation facilities on a United Kingdom-wide basis for people suffering from or suspected of suffering from highly infectious diseases such as viral haemorrhagic fever. Specialist laboratories, which provide early diagnosis of suspected cases, support these units.

Bioterrorism

Mr. Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what checks will be made on grain imports to prevent terrorists from polluting them with disease-bearing spores. [9866]

Ms Blears: I have been asked to reply.

There are extensive controls on imports of food including grain at ports of entry. In addition, the Food Standards Agency plays a full part in Government emergency planning to protect the food chain, including against terrorism.

TREASURY

Customs and Excise

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what was the value, net of withdrawals and reductions, of the (a) penalties and (b) interest charged by HM Customs and Excise in respect of Insurance Premium Tax in (i) 1999–2000, (ii) 2000–01 and (iii) 2001–02 to date. [12199]

Ruth Kelly: Customs and Excise charged penalties and interest in respect of Insurance Premium Tax as shown in the table.

£000

	Net value charged
	Interest	Penalties
1999–2000	633	61
2000–01	382	75
2001 to 31 August	265	[1]—

[1] Reliable information is not yet available for this period, and it would take a disproportionate amount of time to quantify. Customs are developing a new system to report these data

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list the targets for detection of revenue set for each anti-smuggling team in HM Customs and Excise in (a) 1998–99, (b) 1999–2000, (c) 2000–01 and (d) 2001–02. [12212]

Mr. Boateng: Customs does not set revenue detection targets for individual teams.

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many staff are employed, and at what grades, by the National Investigation Service within HM Customs and Excise. [12214]

Mr. Boateng: The number of staff currently employed by HM Customs and Excise law enforcement investigation (formerly known as the national investigation service) is shown in the table:

Job band	Number of staff
02	53
03	99
04	31
05	100
06	1,015
07	571
08	26
09	109
10	4
11	20
12	4
SCS	4
Grand total	2,036

Mr. Bacon: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many employees of HM Customs and Excise are the subject of criminal investigations by the police; and how many of these relate to frauds on duty. [12638]

Mr. Boateng: The number of officers who are currently the subject of criminal investigations by the police is 16. None of these cases relates to frauds on excise or customs duties.

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what was the sum of revenue detected by each anti-smuggling team within HM Customs and Excise in (a) 1998–99, (b) 1999–2000, (c) 2000–01 and (d) 2001–02 to date. [12213]

Mr. Boateng: Information about the revenue evasion detected by individual anti-smuggling teams is not available.

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer in what ways the powers and responsibilities of HM Customs and Excise have been affected by the Terrorism Act 2000. [12217]

Mr. Boateng: Under the Terrorism Act 2000, all Customs officers at ports and airports in Great Britain, but not Northern Ireland, are designated as examining officers. This provides officers with a range of investigative powers to enable the officer to determine whether a person is or has been concerned in the commission, preparation or instigation of acts of terrorism.

In addition, the Act designates all Customs officers in the UK as authorised officers. This provides officers with powers to seize cash at import or export, or moving between Great Britain and Northern Ireland, which is believed to be linked to terrorism. The detention of seized cash beyond 48 hours must be authorised by the courts.

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many notifications of businesses no longer trading were received by HM Customs and Excise following the annual reminder mailshots in (a) 1997, (b) 1998, (c) 1999, (d) 2000 and (e) 2001. [12202]

Mr. Boateng: Information on the number of businesses no longer trading and notified as a result of annual reminders is not readily available. Information about the percentage increase in changes notified due to the annual reminder may be found in the publication "HM Customs and Excise annual report 1998–99, appendix B—Management by Outputs Agreement".

Such data are not readily available for the remaining years in question and would involve disproportionate cost to produce. Details of the total number of deregistrations over the period in question may be found in HM Customs and Excise annual reports for the respective financial years.

Barnett Formula

Mr. Salmond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer under the application of the multiplier to each area of comparable expenditure under the Barnett formula, which spending areas contributed to a reduction in Scotland's allocation in the last financial year. [12190]

Mr. Andrew Smith [holding answer 2 November 2001]: Increases in Scotland's allocation for 2000–01 were announced following the 1998 Comprehensive Spending Review. Details of the outcome of the Comprehensive Spending Review were announced in the spending plans published in July 1998 (Cm 4011) and the Barnett formula comparability factors used in the Comprehensive Spending Review were published in the Statement of Funding Policy in March 1999.

Euro

Barbara Follett: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on euro preparations. [13250]

Ruth Kelly: The Fifth Report on Euro Preparations was published on 4 November. Copies are available in the Vote Office and the Library of the House.

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) if he will make a statement on the current level of Treasury research into whether the United Kingdom has passed the five economic tests for membership of the euro zone; who will undertake the final tests; and how long the analysis will take; [13022]

(2) if it is the assessment of his Department that the United Kingdom qualifies for membership of the euro zone. [13023]

Ruth Kelly: The Government have said that they will complete an assessment of the five economic tests within two years of the start of this Parliament.

European Central Bank

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the accountability to EU member states of the European Central Bank. [12554]

Ruth Kelly: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by the then Economic Secretary to the Treasury, on 11 November 1999, Official Report, column 771W.

Landfill Tax Credit Scheme

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what options he is considering for the (a) reform and (b) abolition of the Landfill Tax Credit scheme; [12042]

(2) if he will amend the Landfill Tax Regulations to permit environmental bodies to make direct contributions to recycling schemes; [12045]

(3) when he will publish a consultation document on the future of the Landfill Tax Credit scheme. [12043]

Mr. Boateng: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Colchester (Bob Russell) on 30 October 2001, Official Report, columns 624–25W.

Airline Industry

Mr. Lazarowicz: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) if he will bring forward taxation measures to provide emergency support to the airline industry following the terrorist attacks of 11 September; [11969]

(2) if he will bring forward taxation measures to assist the tourism industry; and if he will make a statement. [11970]

Dawn Primarolo: The Government keep all taxes under review and decisions will be made as part of the normal Budget process.

Working Hours

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, pursuant to his answer of 23 October 2001, Official Report, column 204W, on excessive hours, if he will state the methodology by which his answer was reached. [11607]

Ruth Kelly: Aggregated data are produced three times a year from information provided by staff on their average working hours. This showed the trend I referred to in my reply to the hon. Member on 23 October 2001, Official Report, column 204W.

Railtrack

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what guarantees the Treasury is offering to Railtrack plc in administration to enable it to borrow from the market. [11087]

Mr. Spellar: I have been asked to reply.

I refer the right hon. Member to the Loan Agreement, copies of which were placed in the House Library on 17 October 2001.

Public-Private Partnerships

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what advice he has received since 7 October concerning additional risk premia that PPP partners might seek; [10770]

(2) what representations he has received since 7 October from (a) actual and (b) potential PPP partners concerning modifications of standard contractual arrangements; [10771]

(3) what representations he has received since 7 October about the operation of public private partnerships; and if he will publish them; [10769]

Angela Watkinson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent representations he has received from interested organisations regarding public/private partnerships. [11543]

Mr. Andrew Smith: Ministers and officials regularly receive representations on public-private partnerships (PPP). It is for those making such representations to publish them if they so wish. It would not be appropriate to make public the terms of contractual negotiations in advance of contract signature. The general guidance on "Standardisation of PFI Contracts", published in 1999 and which is available in the Library of the House of Commons, is currently being reviewed by the Office of Government Commerce. It is hoped to issue a revised draft of this guidance for consultation shortly.

VAT

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many cases of criminal VAT fraud were reported in (a) 1999–2000, (b) 2000–01 and (c) 2001–02 to date; how many prosecutions were completed in each year; and how many of those prosecutions were completed successfully. [12208]

Mr. Boateng: The number of reported VAT fraud criminal cases is:

1999–2000: 105

2000–01: 92.

During 1999–2000, 49 prosecutions were completed, of which in 48 one or more defendants were convicted. During 2000–01, 24 prosecutions were completed, of which in 20 one or more defendants were convicted.

Accurate figures for 2001–02 will be calculated after the year in question.

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the value was of criminal VAT evasion prevented by HM Customs and Excise in (a) 1999–2000, (b) 2000–01 and (c) 2001–02 to date. [12207]

Mr. Boateng: The value of criminal evasion prevented by Customs while investigating rose from £618 million in 1999–2000 to £993 million in 2000–01. Figures showing the total value of revenue evasion prevented by Customs in 2001–02 will be published in due course.

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many traders were dealt with by the VAT large payers unit in (a) 1997–98, (b) 1998–99, (c) 1999–2000 and (d) 2000–01; how many traders are now being dealt with by the unit; and if he will make a statement. [12205]

Mr. Boateng: The number of traders dealt with by the VAT large payers unit was 10,000 in 1997–98, 13,000 in 1998–99, 13,500 in 1999–2000, 14,500 in 2000–01 and is currently around 14,900.

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what was the total value of VAT repayment returns in (a) 1997–98, (b) 1998–99, (c) 1999–2000 and (d) 2000–01; [12203]

(2) what the target of HM Customs and Excise is for effecting VAT repayment returns; and what proportion of VAT returns, representing what sum of money, were effected within the relevant target time in (a) 1997–98, (b) 1998–99, (c) 1999–2000 and (d) 2000–01. [12204]

Mr. Boateng: Customs processes around 2 million VAT repayment returns each year, the values of which are set out on a regular basis in the HM Customs and Excise "Value Added Tax Factsheet", available from the House of Commons Library.

A target to authorise 92 per cent. of all repayments within 10 working days of the receipt of a claim in the VAT central unit was set for the year 1997–98, and this was increased to 96 per cent. for 1998–99 and subsequent years. The actual achievement in each of the subject years was over 97 per cent.

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what was the value of (a) court fines and costs and (b) confiscation and compensation orders following the completion of prosecutions in VAT criminal cases in (a) 1999–2000, (b) 2000–01 and (c) 2001–02 to date. [12215]

Mr. Boateng: The amount of money realised for each of the periods referred to was, in respect of confiscation orders for VAT cases only, as follows:

	£
(a) 1999–2000	415,585,93
(b) 2000–01	795,020.25
(c) 2001–02[1]	102,411.78

[1] April to September

Customs does not keep details as to the value of court fines or costs orders made nor does it have any record of compensation orders made. Similarly, it does not keep any record of confiscation orders made—only the amount realised through enforcement.

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the value of VAT civil evasion prevented by HM Customs and Excise was in (a) 1997–98, (b) 1998–99, (c) 1999–2000 and (d) 2000–01. [12209]

Mr. Boateng: The value of VAT civil evasion prevented by HM Customs and Excise in the years 1997–98 and 1998–99 are contained in Customs annual reports for these years. Figures for 1999–2000 and 2000–01 are:

	£ million
1999–2000	70
2000–01	71

From the current financial year, HM Customs and Excise has ceased to calculate a figure for VAT criminal evasion prevented.

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many and what proportion of applications for VAT registration during (a) 1998–99, (b) 1999–2000, (c) 2000–01, and (d) 2001–02 to the most recent date for which information is available were (i) refused or (ii) referred for further investigation; [12197]

(2) how many and what percentage of applications for VAT registration were found to be (a) invalid or (b) potentially fraudulent in (i) 1999–2000, (ii) 2000–01 and (iii) 2001–02 to the most recent date for which information is available. [12200]

Mr. Boateng: For 1998–99, information on the proportion of applications falling into these categories is published in appendix B of the HM Customs and Excise annual report 1998–99. For 1999–2000 and 2000–01, this information was not centrally collated and would now involve disproportionate cost to produce. National registration statistics for 2001–02 will be published in due course.

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many VAT fraud cases were investigated under the civil penalty procedure in (a) 1997–98, (b) 1998–99, (c) 1999–2000, (d) 2000–01 and (e) 2001–02 to date. [12210]

Mr. Boateng: Prior to 2001–02, HM Customs and Excise has recorded information on the numbers of VAT fraud cases where a civil penalty was imposed but not the number investigated. Figures for 1997–98 and 1998–99 were published in Customs annual reports for these years. Figures for 1999–2000 and 2000–01 are as follows:

	Number
1999–2000	860
2000–01	729

Accurate figures for 2001–02 will be calculated after the year in question.

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many businesses were sent the annual reminder mailshot with VAT returns in (a) 1999, (b) 2000 and (c) 2001. [12201]

Mr. Boateng: The information is as follows:

	Million
1999	1.6
2000	1.7
2001	0

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what was the value, net of withdrawals and reductions, of the (a) default surcharge, (b) penalties and (c) interest charged by HM Customs and Excise in respect of VAT in (i) 1999–2000, (ii) 2000–01 and (iii) 2001–02 to date. [12198]

Mr. Boateng: The information is as follows:

			£ million
Net value of penalty charged	1999–2000	2000–01	2001[1]
Default surcharge	117.3	126.9	47.9
Default interest	77.4	71.6	25.8
Other penalties	22.9	29.8	10.8

[1] To 31 August 2001

WALES

NHS (Wales) Bill

Mr. Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales when he will publish the draft NHS (Wales) Bill. [12679]

Mr. Touhig: The Queen's Speech at the beginning of this parliamentary Session confirmed that the Government intended to draft legislation to reform the provision of health services in Wales. The Government's intention is still to publish a Welsh Bill in draft during this parliamentary Session. My right hon. Friend and I have had close discussions with the National Assembly for Wales Minister for Health and Social Services and with our colleagues in Government on the contents of the draft NHS (Wales) Bill. My officials and Assembly officials are also making good progress on the detail of the Bill.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Ozone Depleting Substances

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the estimated cost to British businesses is of the Ozone Depleting Substances Regulation 2000/2037. [11857]

Mr. Wilson: EC Regulation 2037/2000 on substances which deplete the ozone layer is a matter for my right hon. Friend, the Minister for the Environment. A Regulatory Impact Assessment was prepared by his Department in relation to this Regulation, and was placed in both Libraries of the House on 3 December 1998.

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment she has made of the effects of the ozone depleting substances Regulation 2000/2087 on the design and manufacture of fridges and freezers. [11856]

Mr. Wilson: EC Regulation 2037/2000 on substances which deplete the ozone layer is a matter for my right hon. Friend, the Minister for the Environment. The manufacture of fridges and freezers will need to comply with the restrictions placed by the Regulation on the use of hydrochlorofluorocarbons (HCFCs). Use of HCFCs as refrigerants in domestic fridges and freezers has been banned since 1 January 1996. Regulation 2037/2000 additionally bans use of HCFCs for the production of polyurethane foams for appliances from 1 January 2003.

Small Business Service/Business Link

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps she is taking (a) to ensure effective co-operation and (b) to avoid duplication between the work of the Small Business Service and Business Links. [11847]

Nigel Griffiths: The Small Business Service and the Business Link Operators are part of the same network. They are not two different competing organisations. Business Link is the customer facing brand of the Small Business Service. The Business Link Service encompasses a national contact centre and website and the network of 45 local Business Link Operators.

The Small Business Service manages the network of local Business Link operators through its regional teams. They are responsible for encouraging effective local and regional collaboration and building a learning network.

End-of-life Vehicles Directive

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the estimated cost to British businesses is of the end-of-life vehicles directive. [11861]

Mr. Wilson: The DTI Consultation Paper on options for implementing the Directive, copies of which were placed in the Libraries of both Houses, includes a partial regulatory impact assessment. A fuller assessment of the cost to businesses will be made when the precise method of implementation has been decided, following consideration of responses received in the consultation exercise.

Small Businesses

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what percentage of UK registered businesses employ fewer than (a) 100, (b) 50, (c) 20, (d) 10 and (e) five people. [12156]

Nigel Griffiths: The percentage of UK registered businesses by employee size band is as follows:

Less than 100: 99.0

Less than 50: 98.2

Less than 20: 95.8

Less than 10: 90.3

Less than five: 79.7

Source:

Inter-departmental Business Register (IDBR), Start 2001

Economic Development

Mrs. Helen Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will make a statement on the potential of the environmental industries to generate economic development. [9821]

Mr. Wilson: The most recent available figures relating to the environmental industries indicate that the global environmental market was worth about $335 billion in 2000 rising to $640 billion by 2010. A new study to up date these figures has been commissioned by the Department and is due for completion at the end of November 2001. This will also provide information on the UK's share of the global market.

The Department is also in the process of establishing an Innovation and Growth Team (IGT) for the UK environmental industry. The primary role of the IGT will be to identify new trends and emerging factors which could impact on competitiveness within the industry, and to identify new market opportunities.

Nuclear Sites (Security)

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what plans she has to install anti-aircraft batteries at Sellafield and other nuclear plants; and what discussions she has had with her French counterpart following the French Government's decision to place anti-aircraft missiles around French reprocessing facilities. [10674]

Mr. Wilson: The UK's civil nuclear sites apply stringent security measures regulated by the Office for Civil Nuclear Security (OCNS), the security regulator. The security regulator works closely with the Health and Safety Executive, the safety regulator, which provides advice on the safety implications of events, including external hazards such as plane crashes, at nuclear installations. Security and safety precautions at nuclear sites are kept under regular review and the Government are reviewing all precautions in the light of the terrorist attacks in the United States on 11 September. It is not Government policy to disclose details of security measures taken at civil nuclear sites. Officials have discussed security issues with their French counter-parts.

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry, pursuant to her answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Bury, North (Mr. Chaytor), 22 October 2001, Official Report, column 7W, on nuclear security, if the Office for Civil Nuclear Security was asked to make a special assessment of the security provisions for the Sellafield MOX Plant and the transport of MOX fuel to overseas customers following the terrorist events of 11 September. [10673]

Mr. Wilson: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for East Surrey (Mr. Ainsworth) on 16 October 2001, Official Report, column 1152W.

Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will list the personnel who comprise her Department's Office for Civil Nuclear Security, along with the qualifications they have for their roles. [8763]

Mr. Wilson: The DTI's Office for Civil Nuclear Security comprise 34 staff headed by Michael Buckland-Smith, Director of Civil Nuclear Security. Staff have a range of relevant experience including work in the security and intelligence agencies, the armed services and the police. Training and competences required for OCNS—as for all parts of DTI—are kept under continuing review in the light of changing needs.

European Coal and Steel Treaty

Mr. Grogan: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will make a statement on her policy on the proposals of the European Commission to allow state aid to the coal industry to continue beyond the expiry of the European Coal and Steel Treaty in 2002. [11564]

Mr. Wilson: The Government currently have no plans to subsidise the UK coal industry beyond the expiry of the European Coal and Steel Community Treaty in July 2002. However, we are prepared to accept that continued State aid be permitted by the new European regime after this date, provided that it is in the context of appropriate limiting conditions and provided it does nothing to undermine greater liberalisation of energy markets. In particular we would like to see a cap on aid payments, degressivity in aid payments, and rules to prevent subsidies reducing domestic prices of delivered coal below international prices.

Given the geopolitical diversity of coal sources, we are not convinced by the security of supply justification for subsidies as detailed in the current Commission proposals. We would instead like to keep open the possibility of member states paying operating or investment aid to make further progress towards economic viability.

Mr. Grogan: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will make a statement on her policy towards the renewal of the European Coal and Steel Treaty. [11557]

Mr. Wilson: The European Coal and Steel Community (ECSC) Treaty comes to an end in July 2002, and there are no plans for it to be renewed. However the European Commission has published a proposal for a new European coal state aids regime. Our policy regarding this proposal is discussed in my answer today to my hon. Friend (PQ No. 11564), at columns 160-61W.

Manufacturing Industry

Mr. Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what representations she has received regarding the impact of new regulations on British manufacturing in the last 12 months. [11005]

Mr. Wilson: Ministers meet and correspond regularly with manufacturing companies and business organisations representing them on a range of issues, including the impact of new regulations.

Mr. Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment she has made of the factors responsible for the changes in competitiveness of British manufacturing in the last three years. [10993]

Mr. Wilson: Competitiveness depends on a wide range of factors which we keep under close review. My Department published, in February 2001, its latest assessment of the UK's competitiveness against the world's leading economies in the second edition of the UK Competitiveness Indicators. In addition, we have a rolling programme of sector competitiveness analyses which seek to examine all the factors that may influence the competitiveness of companies in a particular industrial or business sector.

Electricity Trading Arrangements

Mr. Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will make a statement on the operation of the New Electricity Trading Arrangements. [10992]

Mr. Wilson: Ofgem published on 31 August a review of NETA's performance over the first three months. Their key findings were that:

Wholesale electricity prices are 20–25 per cent. below prices that would have been produced under the Pool.

Market liquidity has been established with a threefold increase in the volume of trades, and a doubling of the number of contracts struck compared to this time last year under the Pool.

The National Grid Company is working well to keep the electricity system in balance. Its daily costs of balancing the system have halved, which will also benefit customers.

The impact of NETA on smaller generators continues to be a concern. Ofgem also published a report on the impact of NETA on smaller generators in the first two months of its operation. This report highlighted the areas where further action was needed to assist smaller generators. I have issued a consultation document aimed at addressing these concerns, and copies have been placed in both Libraries of the House.

Mr. Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will make a statement on the impact of the new Electricity Trading Arrangements on the generation of electricity by wind power. [10118]

Ms Hewitt [holding answer 30 October 2001]: The impact of NETA on smaller generators, including renewables such as wind power, was and continues to be of great concern. Ofgem published on 31 August 2001 a report on the impact of NETA on smaller generators, based on the first two months of NETA operation, as well as a report on NETA operation generally.

Ofgem's key findings on the initial impact of NETA on smaller generators, including wind generation, included:

(a) That the prices achieved by smaller generators are 17 per cent. lower than under the Pool. This is a somewhat smaller reduction than for generation prices overall. Ofgem reports, however, that wind plant have seen the largest drop in the price paid for their exports, 27 per cent.

(b) Smaller generators' output has fallen substantially. Ofgem suggests the lower export prices for electricity are one factor, but also speculates that higher costs (especially gas prices) may also have contributed. Exports for wind generation, however, are only down by 13 per cent.

(c) In its report Ofgem has singled out the position of wind generators within the renewables community as especially unpredictable. Other than wind power, the output of smaller generators does not appear to be significantly less predictable than for other generators.

The Government issued proposals specifically aimed at addressing the concerns of the smaller generators community, including wind generation. Copies have been placed in both Libraries of the House.

The Government remain committed to their target for 10 per cent. of electricity sales from licensed suppliers to come from renewables which are eligible for the Renewables Obligation by 2010, subject to the costs being acceptable to the consumer.

Coal

Mr. Kevin Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she has security of supply concerns about coal production; and if she will make a statement. [10373]

Mr. Wilson: Domestic supplies constitute about 50 per cent. of our current coal use, competing in a diverse and active international market. I believe this market provides a secure and diverse choice of coal supplies in which I would expect UK production to continue to play a significant role.

Mr. Kevin Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what risk assessment she has made about the potential for disruption to coal supply to the UK. [10378]

Mr. Wilson: No formal risk assessment has been made about the potential for disruption to coal supply to the UK. However, the current Coal Aid Code, the European Commission's Security of Supply Green Paper and the Commission proposal for state aid to the coal industry all acknowledge that the geopolitical diversity of coal sources is such that the risks of disruption to supply are minimal.

In terms of a physical threat to coal assets or the freight transport infrastructure, the Government and relevant companies are working with the security services to ensure that the risk of terrorist attack is properly assessed and that appropriate measures are in place to reduce the risk of disruption.

Mr. Kevin Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what plans she has to promote the capping of EU state aid to the UK coal industry at 2001 levels. [10375]

Mr. Wilson: On 25 July 2001, the European Commission adopted a proposal for a Council regulation on state aid to the coal industry. There is no specific cap in this proposal. However, to see levels of aid increase on current levels would contradict aims for greater liberalisation in EU markets, and run counter to the commitment given by member states at the Lisbon Council to reduce the level of state aids, shifting the emphasis from supporting individual companies or sectors. The Government would therefore at least like to see payments by each member state capped at the levels of aid it granted in 2001. We are pursuing this objective in Council negotiations.

Mr. Kevin Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what plans she has to promote amendments to reduce EU state aid to the UK coal industry on a year-by-year basis. [10374]

Mr. Wilson: The European Commission proposal for a Council regulation on state aid to the coal industry beyond 2002 requires aid to be reduced in a "continuous and significant manner". It is very important that this is achieved so that we progress to a liberalised market without aid, and honour the commitment given at the Lisbon Council to reduce the level of state aids. Therefore we would like to see amendments clarifying that the total level of aid which may be granted by any member state must be reduced in a significant manner on a year-by-year basis. We are pursuing this objective in Council negotiations.

Nuclear Power (Finland)

Mr. Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what recent discussions she has had with the Government of Finland about nuclear power generation. [7378]

Mr. Wilson: I have had no recent discussions but, as with other international energy issues, am aware of developments in the nuclear sector in Finland.

Screening Centre (Wrexham)

Ian Lucas: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many (a) medical examinations by doctors and (b) screening tests by nurses were carried out at Healthcall's screening centre at Grosvenor road in Wrexham in each month between June and September inclusive. [8711]

Mr. Wilson [holding answer 23 October 2001]: The number of screening spirometry tests completed at Wrexham test centre each month, from June to September inclusive was:

	Number
2001
June	3
July	20
August	0
September	22
Total tested at Wrexham at end September	480

The number of medical assessments completed at Wrexham test centre each month was:

	Number
2001
June	3
July	6
August	6
September	11
Total tested at Wrexham at end September	197

Miners' Compensation

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many compensation claims made by miners suffering from vibration white finger and mining-related lung diseases are still waiting to be processed; and how many of the claimants in this group have received an interim payment, in Bassetlaw constituency. [9881]

Mr. Wilson: In the Bassetlaw constituency, with regards to Vibration White Finger, VWF, there have been 4,153 claims registered to date, 1,355 interims have been made and 877 full and final payments have been made. The total amount paid in damages is £14.2 million.

In relation to respiratory disease, 3,602 claims have been initiated in the Bassetlaw constituency. There have been 609 interim payments and 264 full and final payments have been made. The total amount paid in damages is £3.7 million.

Constituency statistics will be available on the www.dti.gov.uk/coalhealth website in the next three to four weeks.

Adam Price: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many compensation payments to sick miners and their dependants for (a) vibration white finger and (b) respiratory diseases have been made by means of

(i) fast track settlements and (ii) full settlements, broken down by parliamentary constituency. [9851]

Mr. Wilson: The information is not yet available in the format requested. The Department is working closely with its claims handlers to produce a breakdown of headline statistics by parliamentary constituency for both respiratory diseases and vibration white finger. It is anticipated that the information will be available on the Department's coal health website www.dti.gov.uk/coalhealth—in the next three to four weeks.

In the meantime breakdowns by postcode and region are currently available on the website.

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many (a) claims were received in respect of respiratory disease, (b) interim and expedited awards were made in respect of respiratory disease broken down by (i) number and (ii) value, (c) claims were received in respect of vibration white finger and (d) interim and general damage awards were made in respect of vibration white finger by (A) number and (B) value, broken down by region. [12065]

Mr. Wilson: The breakdown of progress, on a regional basis, for both compensation for respiratory disease and vibration white finger is as follows:

Regional breakdown as at 30 September 2001

	Wales	Scotland	Nottinghamshire	Yorkshire	North-east	North-west	Midlands	South
Vibration White Finger
Number of claims	16,812	8,297	22,377	41,292	19,983	4,232	12,783	1,987
Interim payments
Number of payments	3,869	2,562	6,642	12,357	7,263	1,204	3,014	488
Value of payments (£ million)	20.3	12.8	36.6	70.8	44.8	5.6	15.2	2.8
Settlements
Total number of general damages settlements	5,097	2,619	4,773	7,925	5,222	1,118	2,054	379
Value of settlements (£ million)	24.0	11.5	31.0	43.6	34.2	4.1	9.3	1.6
Respiratory disease
Number of claims	34,497	12,837	20,706	43,477	23,615	8,829	15,552	3,942
Interim payments—post spirometry and post MAP
Number of payments	8,733	3,280	3,679	8,621	4,906	1,837	4,071	843
Value of payments (£ million)	35.8	13.3	13.2	32.8	20.8	7.0	14.2	3.3
Expedited payments post spirometry
Total number of expedited offers made	2,235	1,576	2,033	4,965	2,238	946	1,799	422
Value of payments (£ million)	6.1	5.7	7.4	17.9	6.8	3.5	7.0	12.9

Regional breakdowns are available on the Department's website on www.dti.gov.uk/coalhealth.

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many claims her Department has received in respect of respiratory disease; in respect of how many claims spirometry has been completed; in how many claims a medical assessment process has been started; and in how many claims a medical assessment process has been completed, in the last four years. [12063]

Mr. Wilson: The Handling Agreement was formally signed on 24 September 1999 and claims submitted before would not have begun to be processed until after this date.

IRISC, the Department's claims handlers, have registered 167,559 claims, to date, of which 104,783 are from live claimants. In total, 97,880 appointments have been made and of these, 92,272 claimants have undergone the initial spirometry test.

Both claims from miners and their estates can proceed through the full Medical Assessment Process, MAP. There have been 123,641 claims questionnaires and mandate packs, which authorise access to claimants' medical records, issued by IRISC to claimants' solicitors, of which 85,591 have been returned. The number of claimants who have undergone the medical assessment is 43,390.

Pylons

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will review the Government's policy on the future construction of pylons in this country on the basis of international research published since April. [9651]

Mr. Wilson: We are always interested to note and consider relevant research. There are no plans for a general review of policy at this juncture.

Underground Gas Storage

Mr. George Osborne: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what Government policy is on the construction of underground gas storage facilities. [11077]

Mr. Wilson: Gas storage facilities (including underground) will have an increasingly important role, as Great Britain becomes increasingly dependent on imported gas and as the "swing" capability of North Sea gas fields declines, in helping gas suppliers to meet peak demand requirements. In this way they contribute to security of supply. They can also help to keep prices down by enabling suppliers to purchase additional gas, to put into storage, when wholesale prices are low.

The Office of Gas and Electricity Markets, acting under its duties to protect the interests of consumers, supports the development of new gas storage projects. Proposals for new storage projects are subject to regulatory consents, notably planning permission and under health and safety legislation. Energy security, including gas storage, is a key element of the energy policy review currently being undertaken by the Performance and Innovation Unit of the Cabinet Office. The review is due to conclude at the end of the year.

Tyre Manufacturing

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps she is taking to safeguard the future of the tyre manufacturing industry in the UK; and if he will make a statement. [9063]

Mr. Wilson: The Government strongly support all types of manufacturing. We do this by:

Providing a stable macro-economic framework, investing in education and skills, investing in Britain's knowledge base, ensuring a decent infrastructure, helping business boost productivity, securing effective competition and supporting business by creating a culture in which enterprise can flourish.

In common with other industrial countries the tyre industry in the UK is under great competitive pressure. We will continue to maintain close contact with tyre manufacturers in the UK and make sure that they are fully aware of our manufacturing policy.

Work and Parents Taskforce

Mr. Rooney: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when she expects to publish the findings of the Work and Parents Taskforce. [12248]

Alan Johnson [holding answer 5 November 2001]: The Work and Parents Taskforce is due to report to me this month. Once I have received the report I hope to be able to publish it soon after.

OPEC

Mr. Sayeed: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will make a statement on OPEC's oil reserves. [9945]

Mr. Wilson: OPEC-11 (i.e. including Iraq) proven oil reserves[1] are estimated to be around 800 billion barrels, approximately 80 per cent. of proven world reserves (Source: US DoE, Energy Information Administration website). Current OPEC-11 spare oil production capacity is approximately 4.7 million barrels per day, compared to production of 27.2 million barrels per day and world oil demand of around 76 million barrels per day (Source: International Energy Agency, October Oil Market Report). Information on the level of oil stocks held by OPEC countries is not available.

[1] Proven reserves of oil are generally taken to be those quantities that geological and engineering information indicates with reasonable certainty can be recovered in the future from known reservoirs under existing economic and operating conditions.

Plutonium

Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what quantities of plutonium have been (a) sold and (b) loaned to the European Commission, on behalf of the European Communities, by the United Kingdom (i) prior to and (ii) since the United Kingdom joined the European Community; and if she will provide details of dates and reasons for such transactions. [8870]

Mr. Wilson: Information available to us indicates that small samples of material have been transferred to the European Commission for purposes such as safeguards measurements and research. The details requested cannot be provided because the information is held largely on paper records dating back over 40 years and could be provided only at disproportionate cost to the Department.

Wind Farms

Gareth Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if legislation is required to allow offshore wind farms to be built in British waters more than 12 miles from the coastline; and if she will make a statement. [9765]

Mr. Wilson: The Department has recently reviewed the consent requirements for offshore windfarms within English and Welsh territorial waters and is currently reviewing the legislation for developments outside territorial waters but within the United Kingdom continental shelf area. Until this review has been completed, we are not in a position to say whether further legislation will be required.

Mr. Simon Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will hold a public inquiry into the Cefn Croer wind farm proposals. [9604]

Mr. Wilson: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry has yet to receive the views of the National Assembly for Wales. Until their views are known she will not take her decision, including whether or not to hold a public inquiry on the application.

Gas Prices

Paddy Tipping: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry by what means she will measure the effectiveness of her strategy to address high gas prices; and over what timescale. [10430]

Mr. Wilson [holding answer 29 October 2001]: The Government's three point strategy to address high gas prices is:

1. to work to for greater market liberalisation in Europe
2. to work for improvements in the British gas market
3. to take action against any anti-competitive activity.

We shall monitor the market regularly to see how effective this strategy has been in enabling British consumers to access gas at competitive prices without damaging price spikes.

There has already been good progress with the strategy. The publication in March by the EU Commission of a revised draft Gas Directive was a positive step towards greater European liberalisation. On 10 September we held a joint workshop with the United Kingdom Offshore Operators Association (UKOOA) to consider how greater information flows between the offshore and the onshore could improve the market and I intend to maintain the momentum on this issue.

Interconnector (UK) Ltd. now publishes details of flows with a one day lag instead of the previous six week delay. We have also been working with IUK and interconnector shippers on improvements to interconnector governance and marketing arrangements. I understand that the European Commission's competition inquiry into the operation of the interconnector, which was instituted at the request of the Government, is now in its final stages.

However, I should warn against expectations of immediate success as this strategy is liable to be a lengthy process.

Oil Companies

Dr. Tonge: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will review the advice given by his Department to British companies involved in oil extraction in Southern Sudan; and if she will make a statement. [11154]

Mr. Wilson [holding answer 1 November 2001]: We have no ongoing campaign to promote investment in the Sudanese oil industry. We provide full and frank advice to companies that approach us about oil extraction in southern Sudan. We keep this advice under constant review.

Dr. Tonge: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will list the British companies which are involved in oil and gas pipelines between the Caspian and Europe. [11480]

Mr. Wilson [holding answer 1 November 2001]: The information is as follows:

Operational Pipelines

BAKU (Azerbaijan)—SUPSA (Georgia/Black Sea): BP plc has a 34.14 per cent. holding in the consortium, and is the operator of the pipeline. No other British oil companies are involved.

Tengiz (Kazakhstan)—Novorossiysk (Russia): BP, Shell and BG Group all have small equity holdings of between 2 and 6.25 per cent.

Planned Pipelines

Baku (Azerbaijan)—Tbilisi (Georgia)—Ceyhan (Turkey): BP plc currently has a 25.72 per cent. holding in, and is the operator for, two consortia planning parallel oil and gas pipelines. The final ownership structures have not yet been decided. No other British oil companies are currently involved.

Dr. Tonge: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will list the British oil industry companies which operate in (a) Tajikistan, (b) Turkmenistan, (c) Uzbekistan, (d) Kyrgstan and (e) Kazakhstan. [11481]

Mr. Wilson [holding answer 1 November 2001]: The information is as follows:

Tajikistan and Kyrgistan—None.

Turkmenistan—Shell and Burren Energy have offices.

Uzbekistan—Shell have an office. Trinity Energy have a holding in a consortium operating an exploration asset.

Kazakhstan—BG Group, Shell, BP and Enterprise Oil all have holdings in consortia operating exploration and production assets.

Employment Directive

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if the Government are committed to implementing Article 13 of the EC Employment Directive by 2 December 2003; and what plans the Government have to ensure that faith schools comply. [11065]

Alan Johnson [holding answer 30 October 2001]: We intend to implement the Directive's provisions on religion or belief and on sexual orientation by 2 December 2003; and those on disability and age by 2 December 2006. The implementing legislation will cover all employers, including faith schools.

We believe the current arrangements for the employment of teachers at state maintained religious schools, as set out in the School Standards and Framework Act 1998 (sections 58–60), are compatible with the requirements of the Directive, given the special provisions within the Directive for organisations whose ethos is based on religion or belief.

We will publish a consultation document about our plans for new legislation within the next three months. We intend to issue guidance to help employers understand the new provisions.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Chess

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans she has to recognise chess as a sport. [12330]

Mr. Caborn: There are no current plans to recognise chess as a sport.

National Stadium

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when the money from Sport England for the Wembley stadium project will be repaid. [13017]

Mr. Caborn: I refer my hon. Friend to the reply my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State gave to the hon. Member for South Suffolk (Mr. Yeo) on 22 October 2001, Official Report, column 21W.

Mr. Yeo: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport, pursuant to her answer of 15 October 2001, Official Report, column 816W, on the national stadium, if she will give details of the spending by Sport England on the development of the national athletics centre project, indicating how much of this expenditure is recoverable. [12628]

Mr. Caborn [holding answer 5 November 2001]: Sport England has spent £1.57 million on the development of the national athletics centre project. All of the funding was committed for feasibility and outline design work, which has been completed. The issue of recoverability does not, therefore, arise.

Palliative Care (Children)

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much money from the new opportunities fund was devoted to palliative care for children in each of the last three years. [12713]

Mr. Caborn: Money to support palliative care for children was allocated in the new opportunities fund (Specification of Initiatives) Order 2001. From early 2002, the fund will provide £48 million to palliative care projects for children as part of its £84 million palliative care programme.

In the period 1998–99, £1,835,136 of lottery money went to provide palliative care and support to children and young people with terminal illnesses, in five grants made by the community fund. In 1999–2000, the community fund made three grants totalling £902,145 and in the period 2000–01 four grants totalling £655,727.

SCOTLAND

Small Business Sector

5. Mr. Peter Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland when she last met the Scottish Executive's Minister for Enterprise and Lifelong Learning to discuss the prospects for the Scottish small business sector. [10313]

Mr. Foulkes: I have regular discussions with Scottish Executive Ministers on a number of issues relating to business and industry including those of relevance to small businesses.

Performance and Innovation Unit

6. Mr. Russell Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland whether the Scotland Office has made a submission to the PIU energy review. [10314]

Mr. Foulkes: The Scotland Office has made a submission to the performance and innovation unit's energy review. In addition I represent Scotland on the review's advisory group. The Scotland Office submission, along with all other submissions received by the PIU team, is available on the PIU website www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/innovation.

Personal Care (Elderly People)

7. Annabelle Ewing: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what discussions she has had with the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions regarding transferring attendance allowance resources to the Scottish Executive in order to ensure that free personal care for elderly people is implemented from April 2002. [10315]

Mrs. Liddell: I have frequent discussions with my right hon. Friend on a wide range of issues.

Boundary Commission

8. Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland when she last met officials from the boundary commission for Scotland. [10316]

Mrs. Liddell: I have not met either the Commissioners or the Secretary of the Boundary Commission for Scotland. My officials are, however, in regular contact with its secretary since the Scotland Office is the Commission's sponsoring department.

Railtrack

9. Sir Robert Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what discussions she has had with the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions as to the consequences for rail travel in Scotland of the decision to put Railtrack into administration. [10317]

Mr. Foulkes: My right. hon. Friend and I are in regular contact with my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions on a range of transport matters affecting Scotland.

Scottish Parliament

10. Ann McKechin: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what plans the Government have to adjust the number of Members of the Scottish Parliament. [10318]

11. Mr. Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if she will consult (a) the Scottish Parliament and (b) others on the size of the Scottish Parliament. [10319]

20. Mr. Davidson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what plans she has for amendments to the proportional representation element of the system of election to the Scottish Parliament. [10329]

Mrs. Liddell: I refer my hon. Friends to the answer I gave earlier today to my hon Friend the Member for Glasgow, Anniesland (Mr. Robertson), at column 91.

Tourism

12. Mr. David Stewart: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what recent discussions she has had with the First Minister about her visits abroad to promote tourism in Scotland. [10320]

Mrs. Liddell: I have regular contact with the First Minister about a range of issues.

Both the First Minister and I are aware of the importance of the tourism industry to the Scottish economy, particularly at this time. I shall be continuing to use every opportunity to promote to overseas audiences the attractions of today's Scotland in all its vibrant diversity and to support the efforts of the tourism agencies in that regard.

Employment Trends

13. Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if she will make a statement on employment trends in Scotland since September. [10321]

Mr. Foulkes: Latest statistics show that there are 2.384 million people in work in Scotland, a fall of 0.6 per cent. over the previous month. The number of people out of work and claiming benefit rose by 800 in September, but remains at its lowest level since October 1975.

Barnett Formula

14. Mr. Fallon: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland when she last discussed the future of the Barnett formula with Treasury Ministers. [10323]

Mrs. Liddell: I have regular discussions with my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer and other Treasury Ministers on a wide range of issues. The Government have no plans to review the Barnett formula.

23. Mr. Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what recent discussions she has held with the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions on the operation of the Barnett formula. [10332]

Mrs. Liddell: I have regular discussion with my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions on a wide range of issues. The Government have no plans to review the Barnett formula.

Army Installations

15. Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland when she last met the Secretary of State for Defence to discuss the future of Army installations in Scotland. [10324]

Mr. Foulkes: I have regular contact with my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Defence on a range of issues. I and my right hon. Friend are conscious of the important contribution that Army installations in Scotland make to the defence of the United Kingdom and to the Scottish economy.

Ferry Services

16. Mr. Alan Reid: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what plans she has to issue tender documents for the ferry service between Campbeltown and Ballycastle. [10325]

Mrs. Liddell: My Department is in the process of finalising evaluation of the initial expressions of interest received to operate the ferry service. It is also important that other issues including the value for public money in relation to potential benefits are fully investigated before any decision is taken.

A decision whether and, if so, how to proceed with tendering for this ferry service will be taken shortly in conjunction with the Scottish and Northern Irish Executives.

Nuclear Reactors

17. Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what action she has taken to ascertain public opinion on the possible siting of new nuclear reactors in Scotland. [10326]

Mr. Foulkes: The performance and innovation unit review will consider how energy policy can contribute to meeting longer-term objectives for the environment and for security of supply. This will include consideration of the future role of nuclear power generation.

Consent is required for new power station developments under the Electricity Act. In Scotland, the power to grant consents is a devolved matter and the procedures are the responsibility of Scottish Ministers.

Rural Employment

18. Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland when she next expects to meet representatives of the Scottish Executive to discuss rural employment. [10327]

Mr. Foulkes: My right hon. Friend and I have regular meetings with the Scottish Executive to discuss a wide range of issues including employment. Employment in Scotland remains high with 2,384 million people in work. There are, however, still some areas of Scotland which suffer from persistently high levels of unemployment. We are addressing this inequality through measures like the new deal which has helped over 60,000 people from all areas of Scotland back to work; and the action teams for jobs initiative which is tackling high levels of localised unemployment in the Highlands and Islands, East Ayrshire, West Dunbartonshire, Dundee, North Lanarkshire and Glasgow.

Terrorism

19. Mr. Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what action she has taken since 11 September relating to security against terrorist attacks. [10328]

Mrs. Liddell: Like all Departments, we are currently reviewing our resilience to potential terrorist attacks.

Business Support

21. Mr. Tynan: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what recent action she has taken to support business operations in Scotland. [10330]

Mr. Foulkes: Local action to support economic development and business operations is devolved. This Government have put in place macroeconomic policies that are delivering low inflation and sound public finances. As a consequence businesses in Scotland and the rest of the UK are better placed than ever before to cope with changes in the economic environment.

Airport Security

22. John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what action the Government are taking to improve security at Scottish airports. [10331]

Mr. Foulkes: All UK airports, including those in Scotland, are in receipt of statutory directions from my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions. These set out the security responsibilities of airport managers.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Energy Efficiency Week

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what action his office took in recognition of Energy Efficiency Week. [11513]

Mr. Blunkett: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to him by my right hon. Friend the Minister for the Environment, on 30 October 2001, Official Report, column 592W.

The Home Office has achieved a reduction of 15 per cent. on the non-Prison estate between 1990–1991 to 1999–2000 in energy consumption (kwh/m^2), taking into account weather changes and estate changes. The Home Office (non-Prison estate) has benchmarked all key office buildings, with a view to reducing their individual consumption. The Prison Service has invested £300,000 in energy efficiency schemes. It circulates a regular 'Energy News' bulletin to all prison establishments to encourage energy saving schemes, and the Construction Unit frequently gives presentations to outside organisations to publicise the Prison Service's initiatives in the field of energy reduction.

Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department for what reason his review of section 24 of the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 is not yet complete; and when he will announce the conclusions. [11804]

Angela Eagle: Section 24 of the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 prevents the disclosure by Home Office Ministers and officials of information about the use of animals in scientific procedures that has been provided in confidence. Following the enactment of the Freedom of Information Act 2000, all statutory bars to the disclosure of information are being reviewed, including section 24 of the 1986 Act.

The Government have a clear commitment to freedom of information and are equally committed to the maintenance of necessary protections for individual scientists and their research institutions. I am considering very carefully how these commitments can best be met. A decision on whether to appeal or amend section 24 will not be made until later this year.

John Austin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he will publish the review of the working of ethical review processes in establishments designated under the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986; and if he will make a statement. [13248]

Angela Eagle: The Home Office Animals (Scientific Procedures) Inspectorate has completed a thorough review, after extensive consultation with stakeholders, including certificate holders and licensees under the 1986 Act, animal welfare organisations and others.

The findings, which the Government accept, are that the ethical review process has generally worked well and as intended since its introduction in April 1999, in the interests of the welfare of animals used in licensed scientific procedures. There are variations between establishments, more related to the efficiency than the effectiveness of the process, but overall the picture to emerge is positive and encouraging, given that the ethical review process is relatively new and still evolving.

There is increased awareness both of compliance issues and, more importantly, of the need for full application of the 3Rs at all stages of a project—replacement of animal use wherever possible, reduction of the number of animals used when there is no alternative, and refinement of procedures to minimise animal suffering.

The main Inspectorate recommendations are that the ethical review process in establishments should continue to develop on the basis on which it was introduced, with account being taken of observations offered in the review report on best practice. We accept these recommendations.

We shall ensure the widest possible circulation of the review report, within both the scientific and animal welfare communities, with the aim of encouraging all research establishments to examine and improve their own ethical review processes. To help achieve those aims we will, making use of additional resources recently provided to the Inspectorate, initiate a number of awareness-raising activities and events. These will ensure that those involved with local ethical review processes, and those with responsibility for the welfare of animals produced for and used in laboratories, benefit fully from the advice on best practice that the report contains. We will as part of this activity be urging greater use of lay members in ethical review processes.

A copy of the review report will be placed in the Library.

Cannabis

Mr. Dobson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many arrests were made for possession of cannabis; and how many prosecutions followed, in each police force in England, in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [11958]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Arrest data are not collected centrally by individual offence.

Information from the Home Office Court Proceedings Database showing the number of persons proceeded against for the possession of cannabis by police force area in England during the period 1996–2000 is given in the table.

Number of persons proceeded against at magistrates courts for the possession of cannabis by police force area in England 1996–2000

Police force area	1996	1997	1998	1999	2000
Avon and Somerset	180	149	219	283	340
Bedfordshire	155	274	300	255	223
Cambridgeshire	80	163	172	156	88
Cheshire	384	395	534	578	401
Cleveland	60	85	134	222	221
Cumbria	195	234	267	217	166
Derbyshire	146	173	219	268	222
Devon and Cornwall	330	540	633	555	505
Dorset	123	113	238	308	306
Durham	158	113	114	102	223
Essex	405	501	571	575	617
Gloucestershire	145	160	209	222	199
Greater Manchester	589	614	783	856	918
Hampshire	407	558	813	960	785
Hertfordshire	229	273	244	262	257
Humberside	150	159	230	241	248
Kent	362	565	929	923	774
Lancashire	456	709	929	869	760
Leicestershire	187	262	327	265	239
Lincolnshire	216	325	340	196	183
London, City of	88	75	103	76	26
Merseyside	866	1,064	1,399	1,322	1,022
Metropolitan Police	3,233	4,112	5,452	5,355	4,933
Norfolk	274	329	168	265	245
Northamptonshire	31	3	5	25	113
Northumbria	210	338	717	947	1,007
North Yorkshire	195	256	383	363	165
Nottinghamshire	238	275	258	292	277
South Yorkshire	326	453	521	622	635
Staffordshire[1]	214	281	314	239	[2]—
Suffolk	177	238	248	244	173
Surrey	152	230	263	329	390
Sussex	338	371	363	341	309
Thames Valley	576	600	765	712	615
Warwickshire	63	77	84	76	77
West Mercia	212	286	329	295	222
West Midlands	556	871	1,325	1,213	1,312
West Yorkshire	908	1,149	1,335	1,142	947
Wiltshire	91	142	178	211	182
England	13,705	17,515	22,415	22,382	20,143

[1] Estimates made for Staffordshire Police Force, who were only able to submit data for a sample of weeks for year 2000, have been included in the total

[2] Not available

Note:

All data are given on a principal offence basis

Asylum Seekers

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many asylum seekers have been relocated from the Isle of Thanet under the Government's dispersal programme. [11665]

Angela Eagle: The information requested is not available.

The National Asylum Support Service (NASS) currently does not hold statistics on the location of asylum seekers before they are dispersed by NASS. Statistics are only available on the areas that asylum seekers are dispersed to.

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what assessment he has made of the case for increasing the length of time given to asylum seekers to complete statement of evidence forms; [11761]

(2) what recent representations he has received on the length of time given to asylum seekers to complete statement of evidence forms; [11760]

(3) what assessment he has made of the impact of the introduction of statement of evidence forms on the numbers of asylum applications rejected on the grounds of non-compliance. [11757]

Angela Eagle: We have received a number of representations from hon. Members and from non-governmental organisations (NGOs) about the length of time given to asylum seekers to complete their statement of evidence forms. There is concern that 10 working days is insufficient time for an asylum seeker to find help completing the detailed Statement of Evidence Form (SEF) in English, and to gather and translate evidence in support of the application.

Asylum seekers are expected to comply with the asylum process and I consider the length of time given to asylum seekers to complete the SEFs to be reasonable. The original 14 day time limit for the return of the SEF was changed to 10 working days, so applicants are not disadvantaged by public holidays.

We do not propose therefore to increase the current 10 day time limit. Most asylum applicants do return their SEF on time. Discretion is exercised where applicants need extra time to obtain translations or submit extra material, such as a medical report, in support of their claim.

A higher proportion of applications was refused on grounds of non-compliance in 1999 and 2000 than had previously been the case. The increase was due partly to the stricter enforcement of the 10 day deadline for return of the SEF and partly to administrative problems which led to a backlog of correspondence within the Immigration and Nationality Directorate and some flawed refusals as a consequence. We have made a number of changes over the past 12 months to improve our administrative processes and reduce flawed refusals. These include the introduction of a dedicated PO Box for the return of completed SEFs, and adjustments to internal procedures to ensure that the receipt of SEFs is registered on a database.

We have also taken steps to improve asylum applicants' understanding of the asylum process and of the importance of meeting the time limit. We have done this by simplifying the explanatory leaflet which is sent out with the SEF, and by making it available in the 33 languages spoken by most asylum seekers in the United Kingdom. The SEF form has also been simplified. NGOs were consulted about these improvements.

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many (a) asylum applications and (b) asylum applications rejected on the grounds of non-compliance there have been in each month of the last three years, indicating the (i) monthly and (ii) yearly change expressed as a percentage; [11759]

(2) what recent assessment he has made of (a) the number of asylum applications rejected on the grounds of non-compliance, (b) the number of cases waiting to be processed by the Appeals Tribunal and (c) the relationship between the two. [11756]

Angela Eagle: The requested information on refusals to grant asylum on grounds of non-compliance over the last three years is provided in the table.

Non-compliance refusals rose by over 21 times in 2000, due to seven times as many refusals and a three times higher proportion of refusals on non-compliance grounds. Provisional figures show the proportion of refusals made on non-compliance grounds has fallen from 32 per cent. in 2000 to 25 per cent. in the first seven months of 2001.

Immigration Appellate Authority (IAA) statistics show the number of asylum 'cases in progress' increased by 168 per cent. over the past 15 months. From 7,735 cases awaiting a final promulgation at the end of June 2000, outstanding cases have risen to 20,751 at the end of September 2001. This is due to the increase in asylum appeals received from the Immigration and Nationality Directorate over the same period, during which the IAA also expanded.

Analysis of cases for which data are available shows that, in percentage terms, refusals on non-compliance grounds result in fewer appeals to the IAA than other refusals.

Applications for asylum to the UK and refusals on grounds of non-compliance, for cases decided under normal criteria[1], not including dependents, 1998–2001[2]

Month/year	Asylum applications	Percentage change on previous month/year	Total refusals	Non-compliance refusals[3]	Percentage change on previous month/year	Non-compliance percentage of total refusals
1998	46,015	42	22,315	2,995	–17	13
1999	71,160	55	11,025	1,085	–64	10
2000[4]	80,315	13	75,680	24,295	2,139	32
2001[4,5]	39,280	*—	61,965	15,780	*—	25

Applications for asylum to the UK and refusals on grounds of non-compliance, for cases decided under normal criteria[1], not including dependents, 1998–2001[2]

Month/year	Asylum applications	Percentage change on previous month/year	Total refusals	Non-compliance refusals[3]	Percentage change on previous month/year	Non-compliance percentage of total refusals
1998
January	2,860	−8	2,130	360	47	17
February	2,650	−7	2,240	250	−31	11
March	3,200	21	2,270	280	12	12
April	3,135	−2	1,850	250	−11	14
May	3,110	−1	1,690	260	4	15
June	3,575	15	1,790	255	−2	14
July	4,215	18	1,840	340	33	18
August	4,420	5	1,595	225	−34	14
September	4,455	1	1,885	230	2	12
October	5,010	12	2,290	245	7	11
November	4,620	−8	2,100	275	12	13
December	4,770	3	645	25	−91	4
1999
January	4,700	−1	540	5	−80	1
February	4,185	−11	810	40	700	5
March	5,060	21	945	50	25	5
April	4,905	−3	1,060	25	−50	2
May	5,370	9	830	45	80	5
June	6,130	14	780	20	−56	3
July	6,440	5	840	30	50	4
August	7,120	11	835	200	567	24
September	7,355	3	830	45	−78	5
October	6,295	−14	1,370	150	233	11
November	6,420	2	1,325	245	63	18
December	7,180	12	855	220	−10	26
2000
January	6,110	−15	2,390	245	11	10
February	6,110	0	5,025	920	276	18
March	6,680	9	7,570	2,115	130	28
April	6,855	3	4,205	[6]	[6]	[6]
May	6,725	−2	5,455	1,520	[6]	28
June	6,545	−3	6,565	2,035	34	31
July	6,870	5	6,280	1,895	−7	30
August	6,770	−1	7,155	2,895	53	40
September	6,790	0	6,160	2,610	−10	42
October	7,230	6	7,105	2,965	14	42
November	7,500	4	10,060	4,325	46	43
December	6,125	−18	7,710	2,770	−36	36
2001
January	6,380	4	10,935	3,495	26	32
February	5,520	−13	11,235	3,460	−1	31
March	5,810	5	14,180	3,110	−10	22
April	5,000	−14	7,030	1,415	−55	20
May	5,290	6	7,180	1,625	15	23
June	5,300	0	5,970	1,400	−14	23
July	5,975	13	5,435	1,285	−8	24

[1] Exclude cases decided under the backlog clearance exercise, aimed at reducing the pre-1996 asylum application backlog.
[2] Figures (other than percentages) rounded to the nearest five.
[3] Failure to provide evidence to support the asylum claim within a reasonable period, including failure to respond to invitation to interview to establish identity.
[4] 2000 and 2001 data are provisional
[5] 2001-January to July
[6] Not available

Mr. Lilley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the Government began requiring asylum seekers to be fingerprinted. [11742]

Angela Eagle [holding answer 1 November 2001]: The power to fingerprint asylum seekers and their dependants was introduced in the Asylum and Immigration Appeals Act 1993. However, the introduction of a computerised fingerprint storage system in December 2000 has allowed for the quick and effective electronic checking of prints of all asylum seekers against the Immigration and Nationality Directorate's records. Remote checking of fingerprints has been made possible which was not the case under the paper system. The introduction of smart cards will build on this technology to tackle fraud.

Mr. Malins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average time taken was from first application to initial decision in asylum cases in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [9444]

Angela Eagle: For decisions made in the 12 months to July 2001, the average time between application and initial decision was 15 months. This average includes older cases decided as part of the reduction of the number of cases outstanding (see table).

Average time[1] between application and decision, for cases decided in the 12 months to July 2001:

	Average time in months[2]	Number of cases[2,3]
All applications	15	127,060
of which:
Application pre 1996[4]	80	3,315
Application 1996	55	2,740
Application 1997	43	4,410
Application 1998	30	13,450
Application 1999	18	28,740
Application 2000	6	50,310
Application 2001	2	24,095

[1] Calculated using all available data from the date the application is lodged to the date of the initial decision
[2] These data are still subject to revision following quality checking
[3] Figures are provisional and rounded to the nearest five. The number of cases quoted differs from published figures due to uncertainty concerning date of application in a small minority of cases
[4] Cases decided as part of the backlog clearance exercise, as part of measures outlined in the July 1998 White paper entitled "Fairer, Faster and Firmer—A Modern Approach to Immigration and Asylum"

The corresponding figure for cases decided in April 1997 was 20 months.

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many cases were waiting to be processed by the Appeals Tribunal in each month of the last three years, indicating the (a) monthly and (b) yearly change expressed as a percentage. [11758]

Ms Rosie Winterton: I have been asked to reply.

The numbers of cases where work was in progress within the Immigration Appellate Authority, and the change expressed as a percentage, for each month of the last three years are as follows:

	Number of cases	Percentage change
2001
January	14,729	–4
February	15,326	4
March	16,451	7
April	17,741	8
May	18,932	7
June	19,417	3
July	18,815	–3
August	19,960	6
September	20,751	4
2000
January	6,083	–7
February	5,614	–8
March	5,495	–2
April	5,256	–4
May	5,898	12
June	7,735	31
July	10,500	36
August	12,494	19
September	13,859	11
October	14,962	8
November	15,437	3
December	15,347	–1
1999
January	13,891	–13
February	12,289	–12
March	9,744	–21
April	8,423	–14
May	7,590	–10
June	7,294	–4
July	7,170	–2
August	6,187	–14
September	5,597	–10
October	4,911	–12
November	3,362	–32
December	6,572	95
1998
January	24,098	–2
February	23,831	–1
March	23,760	n/a
April	23,814	n/a
May	23,639	–1
June	23,757	n/a
July	22,531	–5
August	22,165	–2
September	20,994	–5
October	19,098	–9
November	17,371	–9
December	16,028	–8

The yearly changes in case load expressed as a percentage were:

	Percentage
2000	134 increase
1999	59 decrease
1998	35 decrease

Afghanistan

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will bring forward proposals to prevent the re-entry into the United Kingdom of those leaving the country to fight against British and American forces in Afghanistan; and if he will make a statement. [12461]

Angela Eagle: Under existing immigration and nationality law we may refuse entry to the United Kingdom where a person subject to immigration control does not meet the requirements set out in the Immigration Rules governing leave to enter but not the re-entry of a British citizen, who by definition has right of abode in the United Kingdom. Criminal sanctions may be applied to a British citizen returning to the United Kingdom who is suspected of having committed a criminal offence. It would be for the Crown Prosecution Service to decide whether prosecution was justified in an individual case after a full police investigation.

Passport Agency

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if the new information technology systems at the Passport Agency are fully rolled out; what has been the estimated total cost of the new systems; what was the original planned cost; and if he will make a statement. [13028]

Angela Eagle: Yes; with the successful implementation in the Glasgow Passport Office on 5 November, the United Kingdom Passport Service's new passport issuing arrangements have been fully rolled out. As indicated in the service's 2000–01 annual accounts the estimated cost of the contracts awarded to Siemens Business Services, and Security Printing and Systems Ltd. for the new system remains at £230 million. With completion of the roll out the service will now be conducting a post implementation review which, among other things, will fully evaluate actual and planned costs. The review should be completed in early 2002.

Mr. George Osborne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if the Passport Agency has conducted a feasibility study into a national identity card system; what it cost; and if he will make a statement. [12874]

Angela Eagle: The United Kingdom Passport Service is carrying out studies to explore a range of policy, cost and implementation options for a Passport Card Scheme. Results will be employed to support policy decisions in due course.

Passport Application Fees

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has to change (a) the fees charged for processing passport applications and (b) the charging structure for passport applications; and if he will make a statement. [13027]

Angela Eagle: There is a requirement to review passport fees annually as the costs of the United Kingdom Passport Service must be recovered through fees. The review has now been completed and I will be making an announcement shortly.

Drugs Education Programmes

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the effects of (a) Operation Charlie and (b) other anti-legal and illegal drugs education programmes in reducing drugs use. [12059]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Project Charlie (Chemical Abuse Resolution Lies in Education), as it became known, was implemented in primary schools in Hackney between 1991 and 1993. This drugs education programme was delivered to 44 children and its effects compared with standard education for 233 children. The Project Charlie pupils received a lesson of at least 30 minutes each week for 39 weeks.

The Project was assessed in terms of self-esteem, decision making, peer pressure resistance, drug knowledge and self-reported drug-taking and was found to have a positive impact on all areas, except self esteem. Four years after the programme both tobacco and illegal drug use were significantly less common among the Project Charlie pupils.

Under the Government's 10-year strategy 'Tackling Drugs to Build a Better Britain' we support a holistic approach to the delivery of drug education in schools through Personal, Social and Health Education (PSHE) and the National Healthy Schools Standard. However, decisions on the detailed organisation and content of health and drug education are best taken at a local level, in order to take account of the specific needs and circumstances of the pupils in that area.

In terms of measuring the effectiveness of different forms of drug education the Department for Education and Skills, in partnership with the Department of Health and the Home Office, will be starting a long term study which will inform future policy. The study will run for three to five years.

Correspondence

Mr. Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he intends to answer the letter to him dated 14 September from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton, with regard to Mrs. M McDonagh. [12229]

Mr. Blunkett: I wrote to my right hon. Friend on 30 October.

Ministerial Meetings (EU)

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the dates of the European Union meetings attended by Ministers in his Department from 1 January onwards, indicating what issues were discussed at each meeting. [11753]

Mr. Blunkett: There have been two formal Justice and Home Affairs (JHA) Councils and one informal JHA Council under the Swedish Presidency, and four formal JHA Councils and one joint JHA/Ecofin Council under the Belgian Presidency since 1 January.

With regard to the Councils under the Swedish Presidency, I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave the hon. Member for Buckingham (Mr. Bercow) on 25 June 2001, Official Report, column 46W.

Under the Belgian Presidency, Ministers from my Department have attended the following Justice and Home Affairs Council meetings: a special JHA Council on 13 July which my hon. Friend the Member for Conventry, North-East (Mr. Ainsworth) attended; a special Council on 20 September in response to the terrorist attacks on the United States, which I attended; a Council meeting on 27–28 September which I, together with my hon. Friend the Member for Wallasey (Angela Eagle) attended; and a joint JHA/Ecofin Council followed by a JHA Council on 16 October which my right hon. Friend the Minister for Police, Courts and Drugs attended. Copies of the agendas of these Council meetings will be placed in the Library. The Government reported the outcome of these meetings to the European Scrutiny Committee in accordance with the usual arrangements.

In addition, my hon. Friend the Member for Wallasey attended the Belgian Presidency's Ministerial Conference on Migration, held in the European Parliament on 16–17 October.

National Experience Corps

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has for members of the National Experience Corps to contribute to the delivery of sport in schools. [12227]

Angela Eagle: The Experience Corps initiative aims to encourage more people aged 50 and over to become or to remain active in their local communities. It is hoped that those who volunteer through the Experience Corps will be able to participate in a wide range of volunteering opportunities.

The Department of Culture, Media and Sport (DCMS) with the assistance of funding from the Active Community Unit is undertaking a programme for the training of volunteers in sport. The aim is to train 50,000 volunteers, of which around 8,000 will be older people, during the two year programme, which starts in April 2002. The aim is to target schoolchildren from 14 years of age with older volunteers providing mentoring and support to them. The DCMS is discussing with the Experience Corps how its work might link in with its own programme.

Immigration and Nationality Directorate

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proposals he has to review information technology systems, with specific reference to the Asylum and Immigration Directorate. [8559]

Angela Eagle: The Home Office Head Office has a Planned Office Information System Environment (POISE). This is being made available to the Immigration and Nationality Directorate (IND) and the work will be completed by the end of the 2001–02 financial year.

The National Asylum Support Service (NASS) system has been enhanced and the redevelopment of the Warnings Index continues. An enhanced standard build for all desktop PCs, the availability of the Asylum Casework Information Database (ACID) and similar databases for recording both general and nationality casework are enhancements to the Team-Based Caseworking (TBC) Information Technology system used by caseworkers. Within the Immigration Service (IS), the initial phase of a management system for Detention Centres has been completed.

We will further review our IT systems to accommodate the changes to Immigration policy as in the Home Secretary's statement of 29 October.

Yarls Wood Immigration Detention Centre

Alistair Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, pursuant to his answer of 30 October 2001, Official Report, column 615W, on Yarls Wood immigration detention centre (1) how many detainees are expected at the centre in (a) the first month, (b) the second month and (c) subsequently for the next four months; and if he will make a statement; [12625]

(2) how many contractors' personnel there are, broken down by occupation; [12627]

(3) how many of his Department's personnel are employed at the centre, broken down by occupation; and what were their respective dates of first employment at the centre. [12626]

Angela Eagle [holding answer 5 November 2001]: The following identifies the numbers of contractors personnel broken down by occupation:

	Number
Construction Related Trades:
Project Managers	24
Modular Specialists	3
Mechanical, electrical and public health engineers	73
General Construction Trades (Joiners, painters and decorators, flooring specialists, furniture installers)	141
External Works—landscaping, road repairs	22
General labourers	19
Caterers	3
Operational Activities
Senior/Middle Managers	17
Supervisors	20
Detention Custody Officers	263
Administrative Staff	6
Facilities Staff	16
Chaplaincy	2
Education/Activities Department	17
Project Managers	3
Medical Services	24
Catering and cleaning services	77

The centre has an agreed incremental build up rate for detainees in the first four months, leading to operational capacity, as follows:

Month 1: 185

Month 2: 206

Month 3: 239

Month 4: 270.

Following this the centre will be capable of holding up to 900 detainees at any one time.

The following Home Office Staff are employed at the centre:

Immigration Service Operational Staff: 16

Administrative Support Grades: 7.

The dates of first employment for departmental personnel cannot be given as information regarding individual employees is confidential.

Bribery

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prosecutions for the (a) offer and (b) taking of bribes have been brought under (i) the Prevention of Corruption Acts and (ii) common law in each year since 1997. [12650]

Mr. Keith Bradley [holding answer 5 November 2001]: Statistics held centrally do not distinguish between the offer of or taking of bribes and neither do they enable offences under common law to be reliably identified.

The following table shows the number of persons proceeded against under the Prevention of Corruption Acts 1889 to 1916 in England and Wales.

	Number
1997	19
1998	31
1999	16
2000	17

Charities (Voluntary Registration)

Lawrie Quinn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement about the review of the criteria for the voluntary registration of charities. [13196]

Angela Eagle: My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister announced on 3 July 2001, Official Report, column 93W, that he had asked the Performance and Innovation Unit (PIU) of the Cabinet Office to undertake a broad-ranging review of the legal and regulatory framework for charities and the wider voluntary and community sector. Subsequently, the PIU confirmed that the position of charities excepted from registration with the Charity Commission, was one of the areas that was to be looked at as part of its review. The work by the Home Office and the Charity Commission on the way forward, has therefore been discontinued pending the outcome of the PIU review. The PIU is expected to complete its review early in 2002.

Terrorist Attacks

Ms Bridget Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what additional measures have been taken to guard Britain's (a) oil rigs and (b) nuclear power stations from terrorist attack, following the events in the USA on 11 September. [11544]

Mr. Wilson: I have been asked to reply.

Stringent security measures apply at oil industry installations and civil nuclear sites and these are kept under regular review. We are reviewing these precautions in the light of the recent terrorist attacks in the United States.

It is not our policy to disclose details of security measures taken in connection with these facilities.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Attendance Allowance

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans he has to introduce (a) a shorter attendance allowance claim form and (b) an attendance allowance freephone claim line; and what plans he has to increase take-up of attendance allowance. [12437]

Maria Eagle: Last April we reduced the attendance allowance claim pack by nine pages with no loss of essential information. We are continuing to look at what further changes can be made to make the form shorter and easier to complete while ensuring we obtain all the necessary information about a person's care needs.

We have no plans to introduce a separate freephone line for attendance allowance claims, as experience shows that it is not normally possible to make a full and sufficient telephone claim for benefits requiring detailed evidence of the needs arising from disability.

We have no plans for a specific take-up campaign of either benefit.

Minimum Income Guarantee

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans he has to increase take-up of minimum income guarantee among attendance allowance and disability living allowance (a) claimants and (b) entitled non-recipients. [12436]

Mr. McCartney: We are investigating how best to identify pensioners aged 60 or over who are awarded attendance allowance or disability living allowance and inviting them to claim the minimum income guarantee.

We are working in partnership with organisations for older people to improve access to benefits and take up of the minimum income guarantee (MIG). This includes projects on a national good practice guide and a survey of local take-up initiatives.

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what estimate he has made of the (a) number and (b) percentage of minimum income guarantee (i) claimants, (ii) eligible non-recipients and (iii) claimants and eligible non-recipients who are entitled to the minimum income guarantee as a consequence of their eligibility for the severe disability premium; [12613]

(2) what estimate he has made of the (a) number and (b) percentage of minimum income guarantee (i) claimants, (ii) eligible non-recipients and (iii) claimants and eligible non-recipients who are entitled to the severe disability premium. [12607]

Mr. McCartney: As at May 2001, there were 1.7 million pensioners receiving the minimum income guarantee (MIG). This is nearly 16 per cent. of the pensioner population. Of these MIG recipients, 405,000 (24 per cent. of the total) receive the severe disability premium.

The latest available figures on the number of people entitled to the MIG who are not claiming it are set out in the publication "Take-Up of Income Related Benefits—Statistics for 1999/2000", copies of which are available in the Library.

Neither figures for the number of eligible non recipients who are entitled to the severe disability premium, nor figures for the number of eligible non recipients who are entitled to the MIG as a consequence of their eligibility for the severe disability premium, are available.

Foreign Nationals (Benefits)

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what state benefits foreign nationals are entitled to when given exceptional leave to remain in the UK. [9965]

Malcolm Wicks: Foreign nationals who are granted exceptional leave to remain in the United Kingdom (UK) are generally eligible to claim the same range of social security benefits, subject to the same rules of entitlement, as any UK citizen.

The only exceptions to this are people who are admitted to the UK on the condition that they do not have recourse to public funds, and those who are admitted on the condition that a relative who is an existing UK resident gives a written undertaking to support them.

Invalidity Care Allowance

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimates he has made of the number of carers in work during term time who do not qualify for invalidity care allowance for looking after an invalid student during college vacations because of the operation of the rules governing the calculation of earnings. [9991]

Maria Eagle: This information is not available.

Benefit Fraud

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many suspected cases of (a) housing benefit and (b) council tax benefit fraud there were in the financial year 2000–01; how many of these led to a prosecution; and how many of these prosecutions were successful. [10412]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 26 October 2001]: The information is in the table:

Local authority fraud investigations 2000–01

	Number
Cases referred to the fraud/investigation section:
For further action	460,000
For further action that were investigated by the fraud section	370,000
Cases referred for prosecution	2,300
Successful prosecutions	1,100

Notes:

1. The data refer to benefit units, which may be a single person or a couple
2. The figures have been rounded to two significant figures
3. Data are not available for all 409 local authorities. These totals include estimates for local authorities that have not responded which are based on historical and regional data. This type of estimate is standard practice in reporting totals where there have been non-respondents

Source:

Housing Benefit Management Information System Quarterly Administration Returns April 1999 to March 2000

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people have been successfully prosecuted for benefit fraud in the last year for which figures are available, broken down into those prosecuted (a) for the first time, (b) for the second time and (c) for the third or subsequent time. [10413]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 26 October 2001]: In 2000–01, 24,112 people were prosecuted or sanctioned by Benefits Agency fraud investigators and local authorities reported that they prosecuted or sanctioned 1,650 people[1]. These are more than double the numbers in 1997–98.

9,030 successful prosecutions were undertaken by the Benefits Agency and 1,100 successful prosecutions were reported by local authorities[1]. Our research suggests that approximately 5 per cent. of prosecutions involve a person with a previous conviction for benefit fraud. We are putting in place mechanisms to identify second and further convictions.

[1] Notes:

1. Figures for local authorities are taken from management information returns.
2. It is possible that there could be some double counting with Benefits Agency data if there were cases which involved a joint prosecution.
3. Data are not available for all 409 local authorities. The total for Great Britain includes estimates for local authorities that have not responded. These estimates are based on historical and regional data. This type of estimate is standard practice in reporting totals where there have been non-respondents.

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much has been spent in the development and maintenance of the "Targeting Fraud" website to date. [11256]

Malcolm Wicks: The total cost so far has been £35,631.

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what action he is taking to investigate the allegations of benefit fraud committed by a person whose name has been communicated to him; and if he will make a statement. [9640]

Malcolm Wicks: It is not appropriate to disclose details of investigations into individual cases of alleged benefit fraud.

Jobseeker's Allowance

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average processing time is for repeat benefit claims for (a) jobseeker's allowance and (b) income support. [11258]

Malcolm Wicks: Information on repeat benefit claims is not collected separately. The average time taken to clear a new or repeat benefit claim to jobseeker's allowance is 9.3 days; and for income support it is 7.6 days.

Source:

Validated data from the Income Support Computer System, April to July 2001

Benefits (Northampton)

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions which of the specific directions issued to Northampton borough council on 21 August 2000 concerning the delivery and accuracy of housing benefit and council tax benefit payments was implemented by the deadline of 22 August; which directions were not met by this deadline; and what further action is to be taken against the council. [7903]

Malcolm Wicks: Northampton borough council attained, by the specified date, the standard set out in the directions relating to the examination of cases referred for fraud investigation. The council failed to attain the standards relating to the speed of processing claims and reported changes of circumstances, and to the correct classification of overpayments, by 22 August 2001.

The Department subsequently provided assistance from the housing benefit help team to work in partnership with the council to develop service improvement initiatives. Following assistance from the help team, the council has recently provided the Department with a report on the current situation, together with an action plan for improving its benefit administration. We are now considering what further action is necessary following study of the report and plan, and completion of the help team's work with the council.

Disability Benefits

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average waiting time for clearing new claims was over the last 12 months in each disability benefit centre. [11904]

Maria Eagle: The information requested is collated on a year-to-date basis. The figures for disability living allowance (DLA) and attendance allowance (AA) new claims for each disability benefits centre (DBC) are in the table:

Disability Benefit Centre (DBC)	DLA and AA new claim actual average clearance times in days January to September 2001
Edinburgh	34
Newcastle	33
Leeds	27
Manchester	28
Bootle	36
Midlands	38
Bristol	33
Wales	30
Wembley	36
Sutton	34
Glasgow	34

Disability Discrimination Act

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on (a) the implementation of the Disability Discrimination Act 1995, as amended and (b) the level of compliance with its provisions. [11319]

Maria Eagle [holding answer 31 October 2001]: Most provisions of the DDA have been implemented. The final provisions of part III will be implemented in October 2004. The provisions on education come into force in September 2002, with some reasonable adjustment duties on responsible bodies in the post-16 sector coming into force in 2003 and 2005.

Only courts and tribunals can decide whether a particular action complied with the DDA or not and then only if a complaint is made. Emerging findings from research indicate that awareness levels are increasing and fewer than one per cent. of people covered by the parts II and III have complained to tribunals and courts. Compliance with the accessibility regulations for transport vehicles has generally been good.

Independent Living Fund

Andy Burnham: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he will publish the findings of his review of the independent living fund. [9870]

Maria Eagle: We intend to announce the results of the quinquennial review of the independent living fund in due course.

Incapacity Benefit

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, (1) pursuant to his answer of 20 July 2001, Official Report, column 684W, on incapacity benefit, how many incapacity reviews were undertaken in each of the last five years; and if he will estimate the annual additional number of reviews that will be undertaken once his plans for reviews every three years are fully implemented; [7996]

(2) if he will make it his policy to ensure that the average length of time to complete a review of incapacity benefit will be no higher over the three years beginning in 2002–03 than in the previous three years. [7997]

Malcolm Wicks: We are introducing jobcentre plus interviews in jobcentre plus pathfinder offices to enable incapacity benefit recipients to discuss with their personal adviser the help, benefits and opportunities available to them.

Jobcentre plus interviews will be conducted by a trained personal adviser who will discuss with people their skills, qualifications and ability to work, barriers which may preclude them from working, and their plans, aspirations and interests in training and taking up work in the future. This is entirely separate from the reviews undertaken as part of the incapacity benefit medical testing regime. The Department always aims to carry out such reviews as quickly as possible.

Stakeholder Pensions

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will estimate the total advertising costs for promoting the stakeholder pension scheme. [7580]

Mr. McCartney: We are not specifically advertising stakeholder pensions. Stakeholder information is included as part of the wider pensions education campaign. This campaign seeks to promote information about the full range of pension options available, including stakeholder pensions, and cost £6.5 million in 2000–01. This included development of the new campaign, press, cinema and TV advertising, research and evaluation, the costs of running the pensions information line, website development, printing leaflets and other campaign materials.

The Department has also written to employers with five or more employees with information explaining what stakeholder pensions are; whether those employers are affected by the new rules on providing access to a stakeholder pension scheme for their employees; and if so, what they need to do.

Fibromyalgia Syndrome

Ms Shipley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans his Department has to improve the knowledge of doctors representing the Benefits Agency regarding the condition known as Fibromyalgia Syndrome; and if he will ensure that information relating to the illness is sent to all appropriate agencies. [9741]

Maria Eagle: All medical service doctors who carry out assessments on behalf of the Benefits Agency have received comprehensive training on fibromyalgia within the past year. Fibromyalgia is covered in the disability handbook for disability living allowance and attendance allowance, which is available to decision-makers. Information on the condition will also be included in new training material for decision-makers which is currently being developed.

Benefit Recovery (Accident Victims)

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much benefit was recovered from accident victims by way of recoupment from damages awards in each of the last four years. [9609]

Maria Eagle: The current compensation recovery scheme is working in accordance with the principles and objectives set when the reformed scheme was introduced in October 1997.

The amount recovered is in respect of benefits already paid to the claimant in consequence of their accident, injury or illness and is recovered direct from the compensator, and never from the claimant.

The amount recovered purely in respect of accident is given in the tables.

£

Financial Year	Amount
1997–98	157,436,635
1998–99	188,724,849
1999–2000	186,678,400
2000–01	171,539,293

Income Support

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many lone parents have claimed income support in each quarter since August 1996, broken down by lone parents with (a) at least one child under five and (b) all children over five years. [9645]

Malcolm Wicks: The information is in the table.

Lone parent income support claimants by age of children

Thousand

	At least one child aged under 5	All children aged 5 or over
1996
August	531	530
November	517	506
1997
February	514	506
May	508	505
August	505	507
November	492	490
1998
February	488	484
May	480	482
August	475	480
November	466	472

Lone parent income support claimants by age of children

Thousand

	At least one child aged under 5	All children aged 5 or over
1999
February	465	475
May	463	473
August	464	476
November	460	470
2000
February	454	465
May	450	460
August	446	463
November	440	454
2001
February	440	456
May	437	452

Notes:

1. Figures are rounded to the nearest thousand. Totals may not sum due to rounding
2. Figures are based on a 5 per cent. sample and are therefore subject to a degree of sampling error
3. Lone parents are defined as single people who have dependants but do not receive a pensioner or a disability premium

Source:

Income Support Quarterly Statistical Enquiries, August 1996 to May 2001

State Pension

Mr. Plaskitt: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many pensioners had a reduction in their state retirement benefit as a result of a stay in hospital; by what amount the state retirement benefit is reduced in these circumstances; and how much was saved by his Department as a result of reduced benefit payments in the last full year for which figures are available. [8678]

Mr. McCartney: At 31 March 2001, there were about 33,000 retirement pensioners with reductions in their retirement pension due to a stay in hospital[1].

The hospital downrating rules led to an estimated £57 million reduction on expenditure on the basic state pension in 2000–01.

From 9 April 2001, a £14.50 reduction for a person with a dependant applies after a six-week stay in hospital. This reduction was £13.50 at 31 March 2001.

From 9 April 2001, a £28.30 reduction for a person with no dependant applies after a six-weeks stay in hospital. This reduction was £27.00 at 31 March 2001.

After 52 weeks retirement pension recipients get the £14.50 "pocket money" rate.

[1] Source:

5 per cent. from the Pension Strategy Computer System at March 2001. Rounding to nearest hundred

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what recent discussions he has had with Age Concern about the equalisation of state pensions; and if he will make a statement. [9381]

Mr. McCartney: We have discussions with a variety of pension organisations from time to time. These discussions generally cover wide-ranging issues which are of concern to them.

Residential Care

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will estimate for each local authority how many residents in (a) nursing homes and under 65-years-old, (b) nursing homes and over 65-years-old, (c) residential care and under 65-years-old and (d) residential care and over 65-years-old, will be covered by preserved rights in April 2003. [10507]

Mr. McCartney: There will be no residents covered by preserved rights in April 2003. From 8 April 2002 people who had preserved rights to the higher rates of income support and all new customers going into residential care or nursing homes will receive normal income support or minimum income guarantee allowances and premiums.

No one will lose out as a result of these changes as local authorities will be able to make up any shortfalls in fees. At the moment about half of all preserved rights customers do not have enough public support to cover their fees. Many have to pay some of their personal expenses allowance, currently £16.05 a week, towards their fees. The new arrangements will mean customers will no longer have to do this.

Industrial Injuries Disablement Benefit

Mr. Salmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans he has to amend the industrial injuries disablement benefit qualifications to include those unable to work through conditions caused through work processes but which are not the result of an accident or prescribed disease; and if he will make a statement. [13041]

Malcolm Wicks: The Industrial Injuries Advisory Council considered the question of injury by process in 1981. At that time it felt unable to recommend any changes to the industrial injuries scheme to allow claims in these circumstances, because the medical knowledge which could connect a process with a non-prescribed disease is not generally available. The council looked again at the issue in 1995 but was still unable to recommend any changes to the scheme.

The council continues to monitor the position but we have no current plans to change the existing legislation.

Mr. Salmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many applications for industrial injuries disablement benefit have been refused each year since 1995 as a result of the applicant's condition being caused through work processes and not as a result of an accident or prescribed disease; and if he will make a statement. [13042]

Malcolm Wicks: The information is not available.

"Removing the Barriers"

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how his Department ensured that the report "Removing the Barriers" published by the Local Government Association, was taken into account during the 1997–98 comprehensive spending review; and which of its recommendations have been implemented. [8051]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 12 October 2001]: Since the report "Removing the Barriers" was published in 1997 we have made, and continue to make, radical changes to the mechanisms through which welfare is delivered. Many of the improvements introduced by our reforms address concerns set out in the report.

We are taking a single approach to work and benefits designed to make work pay, make work possible and to support those who are unable to work. The jobcentre plus pathfinder offices are now delivering a single, integrated service to benefit recipients of working age with a clear focus on work.

From April 2002, the Pension Service will provide a dedicated service for pensioners, working in partnership with local agencies and acting as a gateway to other services pensioners receive.

PRIME MINISTER

International Anti-terrorist Coalition

Mr. Kenneth Clarke: To ask the Prime Minister if he will list the political, diplomatic, financial and commercial commitments that have been given on behalf of Her Majesty's Government to the Governments of other states in the course of assembling and strengthening the international coalition to combat terrorism. [10898]

The Prime Minister [holding answer 29 October 2001]: The international coalition to combat terrorism has come together out of a shared recognition that only a global response can succeed. Governments across the world have willingly taken on commitments, for example of military help, or the obligation to tackle terrorism imposed by the UN Security Council Resolution 1373, because all have recognised the essential nature of the task.

Of course, the act of building the coalition has strengthened our relationship with several countries. But the British Government have not offered financial or commercial commitments to states explicitly to reward adherence to the international coalition. That coalition has been built because its members recognise the need for a determined and united response by the international community.

House of Lords

Norman Baker: To ask the Prime Minister what further plans he has to reform the basis of membership of the House of Lords. [11809]

The Prime Minister: We shall publish our proposals for completing the reform of the House of Lords on Wednesday 7 November 2001.

Conflict (Northern Ireland)

Rev. Martin Smyth: To ask the Prime Minister if he will make a statement on the necessity of a visible demonstration that the conflict is over in Northern Ireland. [12674]

The Prime Minister: Securing an end to politically motivated violence and the stable operation of democratically based institutions of Government commanding cross-community support will provide the most visible demonstration that Northern Ireland has put the past behind it.

Decommissioning, verified by the Independent International Commission on Decommissioning, is a key part of achieving that goal.

Afghanistan

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Prime Minister which Muslim leaders in the United Kingdom have expressed support for the coalition's military action against the Taliban regime in Afghanistan. [12931]

The Prime Minister: All the main British Muslim organisation have condemned the attacks in the USA on 11 September. They and other Muslim leaders around the world have declared that such acts of infamy are wholly contrary to the Islamic or any other world religion.

HOUSE OF COMMONS

Modernisation

48. Ms Coffey: To ask the President of the Council what plans he has for wider consultation of the public on modernisation of the House. [10358]

50. Mr. Ben Chapman: To ask the President of the Council if he will make a statement on progress in the modernisation of the House. [10360]

53. Anne Picking: To ask the President of the Council what plans he has to improve the parliamentary scrutiny of Bills. [10363]

55. Joan Ryan: To ask the President of the Council what plans he has to make proposals for greater involvement of Select Committees in pre-legislative scrutiny. [10365]

Mr. Robin Cook: During its current investigations into Select Committees, the Modernisation Committee has decided, for the first time, to take evidence in public. It has already heard from the Hansard Society, Professor the Lord Norton of Louth and from Lord Sheldon, the Chair of the Liaison Committee in the previous Parliament.

The Modernisation Committee has asked me to provide a strategy paper setting out the broader objectives for Commons reform, which I will present to the Committee at the end of the month.

I hope that the Modernisation Committee's proposals for reform will result in a Parliament that is relevant to voters, reflects their concerns and re-engages the public with the political process.

Legislative Scrutiny

49. Mr. Pike: To ask the President of the Council what plans he has to make proposals to the Select Committee on Modernisation of the House of Commons to improve the scrutiny of legislation. [10359]

Mr. Stephen Twigg: It is essential that Bills leave this House properly scrutinised by MPs. I hope that we can build on the Modernisation Committee's report from the last Parliament on the legislative process. We have made efforts to ensure that more Bills are published in draft form and subject to Committee scrutiny before they are presented to Parliament.

I hope that the Modernisation Committee will return to these issues to assess how we might improve pre and post-legislative scrutiny. However, we must also address the issue of scrutiny by MPs during a Bill's passage and how we might improve legislation by finding ways to overcome the bottlenecks in the parliamentary process.

Grand Committees

51. Mr. Simon Thomas: To ask the President of the Council if he will bring forward proposals to improve the legislative function of Grand Committees. [10361]

Mr. Stephen Twigg: Standing Orders already provide for Bills to be referred to Grand Committees, and for Standing Committees on Welsh or Scottish Bills to contain Members from those countries, although I agree there is a great deal of variation in Grand Committee powers, and they might usefully be looked at in the light of devolution.

The Procedure Committee has said that it will keep the consequences of devolution under review, and the hon. Gentleman might wish to raise this with them.

Information Technology

52. Mr. Salter: To ask the hon. Member for Roxburgh and Berwickshire, representing the House of Commons Commission, what proposals he has for using IT to improve access to the business of the House to the public. [10362]

Mr. Kirkwood: A wide range of information about the business of the House can be viewed on the Parliament website. The proceedings of both Houses and sittings in Westminster Hall will be webcast on a pilot basis from January 2002.

57. Mr. Jack: To ask the President of the Council if he will make proposals to the Select Committee on Modernisation of the House of Commons on further ways in which information technology might aid the work of hon. Members in the course of their Standing Committee work. [10367]

Mr. Stephen Twigg: As I indicated in July, the Modernisation Committee may well wish to look at the use of IT in the House in general, although I understand that it has not yet included this in its programme. Routine responsibility for order in Standing Committees rests with the Chairmen's Panel.

Computer Contract

54. Charlotte Atkins: To ask the President of the Council if he will make a statement on the operation of the new computer contract for hon. Members. [10364]

Mr. Robin Cook: The advisory panel on the Members' Vote continues to monitor the system. I am pleased to be able to report substantial progress since my reply to my hon. Friend the Member for Thurrock (Andrew Mackinlay) on 25 October 2001, Official Report, column 323W.

I am told that by close of play on 2 November 2001, a further 110 orders had been fulfilled, and a further six had been partly met, making a total of 272 orders fully completed and 61 part completed. During the same period, a further 32 Members had ordered equipment, bringing the total of Members who have placed orders to 500. I understand that all Members who ordered during the recess have been offered delivery dates before the end of November.

Peerages

56. Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the President of the Council when the House of Lords Appointments Commission is to hold its next roadshows to encourage people to apply for peerages. [10366]

Mr. Stephen Twigg: I understand that the House of Lords Appointments Commission is currently considering when to hold its next set of regional events.

LORD CHANCELLOR'S DEPARTMENT

Judicial Appointments

33. Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department if he will establish a judicial appointments commission. [10343]

Mr. Wills: The Lord Chancellor has established a Commission to oversee the judicial appointments process and the First Commissioner, Sir Colin Campbell, was appointed on 15 March 2001. Further to that appointment, around 10 Deputy Commissioners will be appointed to assist Sir Colin.

Lay Magistrates

34. Mr. Ben Chapman: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department if he will make a statement on the progress of the work to develop a national strategy for the recruitment of lay magistrates. [10344]

35. Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what plans he has to encourage recruitment to the lay magistracy; and if he will make a statement. [10345]

Mr. Wills: My noble and learned Friend the Lord Chancellor hopes to be able to announce proposals for the creation of a national strategy for recruitment early next year. This will seek to identify a range of activities which will bring more fully to the attention of the public and employers, the role of the lay magistrate and the need for recruits from all walks of life.

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department how many chairmen of lay magistrates are in post; and how many of them are (a) from the ethnic minority communities, (b) under 45 years and (c) women. [12076]

Mr. Wills: The chairman of each magistrates bench is elected by the magistrates of the bench at the bench annual general meeting in October. Apart from providing, through subordinate legislation, the framework within which the elections may take place, their appointment is not a matter for my noble and learned Friend, the Lord Chancellor, and his Department does not keep the figures sought.

Auld Report

36. David Taylor: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what changes he expects in the role of magistrates in response to the Auld proposals. [10346]

Mr. Wills: The Government are grateful to Sir Robin Auld for his very substantial and important review of the criminal courts at every level. In his report he gave the lay magistracy a huge vote of confidence. Sir Robin Auld makes some radical recommendations, which will need the most careful consideration. The Government have taken no decisions on his report and we are keen to encourage wide debate on these issues before we reach decisions.

Courthouse (Colchester)

37. Bob Russell: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department if he will make a statement on the establishment of a new courthouse in Colchester. [10347]

Mr. Wills: Work on completing the outline business case for the provision of new and refurbished magistrates courts across Essex is in progress. It is anticipated that work will be completed early in the new year and that a new courthouse in Colchester will be ready for use during 2005.

Tribunals (Access)

38. Ms Walley: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what research she has planned in respect of the effect of the award of costs on access to tribunals. [10348]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Lord Chancellor has no research planned at present in respect of the effect of the award of costs on access to tribunals. The Government note that Sir Andrew Leggatt has made recommendations in this area. We will be taking these recommendations forward as part of our examination of tribunals in light of the Leggatt report.

Westminster Coroner

39. Mr. Pond: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what representations she has received concerning the performance of the Westminster coroner. [10349]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Lord Chancellor has received a letter from solicitors representing the Marchioness action group asking what steps had been taken to review the Westminster coroner's performance of his judicial duties, given criticisms of him in Lord Justice Clarke's report. There have also been requests for meetings to discuss, among other matters, criticisms of the Westminster coroner raised in the report. While accepting Lord Justice Clarke's conclusion that the Westminster coroner acted at all times in good faith, the Lord Chancellor considered that the Westminster coroner's actions on this occasion fell below the standard to be expected of a judicial officer and he issued a formal admonishment.

Employment Tribunals

40. Mr. Heath: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department, what discussions he has had with the Prime Minister on the future role of the community legal service fund in employment tribunals. [10350]

Mr. Wills: None.

Social Exclusion

41. Ms Dari Taylor: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what part the new community legal service partnerships play in reducing social exclusion. [10351]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Community legal service partnerships are responsible for co-ordinating the funding and delivery of legal and advice services in their area. Through an analysis of local legal needs, CLS partnerships can ensure that resources are more effectively targeted to help the socially excluded and other vulnerable groups and individuals.

CLS partnerships are also able to tackle social exclusion by forging links with other Government programmes. CLS partnerships are therefore starting to link with social exclusion initiatives such as local strategic partnerships where they have a key contribution to make to the delivery of the neighbourhood renewal strategy.

In order to raise awareness of how legal and advice services, through the CLS, can help combat social exclusion, the Lord Chancellor's Department has been working with the Law Centres Federation on a joint paper, to be entitled "Legal and Advice Services—A Pathway out of Social Exclusion". The paper will be launched in November and is to be made widely available.

Magistrates Courts (Ceredigion)

42. Mr. Simon Thomas: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department if he will make a statement on his response to Ceredigion county council's proposals for magistrates courts in the county. [10352]

Mr. Wills: I responded by letter to Ceredigion county council on 26 September 2001. My response detailed the Department's position with regard to the issues raised and reiterated the responsibilities of magistrates courts committees for the effective and efficient management of courts in their area.

Jurors

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department if jurors have the optior of being escorted in and out of court (a) by separate entrances and (b) at different times from the rest of the public. [12428]

Mr. Wills: Twelve Crown court centres have separate entrances used only by jurors, but most other courts can arrange for them to use a separate entrance if it is felt necessary. Arrangements can also be made for jurors to be escorted in and out of the building, and at different times from the rest of the public, if the need arises.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what is done to prevent threatening behaviour from the families of convicted defendants toward jurors (a) in and (b) outside court. [12427]

Mr. Wills: Separate accommodation is made available for jurors until they are ready to leave the court building. If there is any threat of retribution, or if the jurors are concerned about their safety, arrangements can be made to transfer them safely away from the vicinity of the court.

District Judges

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department how many district judges (magistrates' courts) are in post, broken down by the ethnic minority communities; and how many of them are (a) under 45 years and (b) women. [12075]

Mr. Wills: The figures have not changed from those shown in my noble and learned Friend's Judicial Appointments Annual Report (Cm 5248) published on 30 October 2001. This shows that as at 1 April 2001 there were 98 district judges (magistrates courts) in post including the senior district judge and her deputy. Of this total number, 82 are males (86 per cent.) and 16 are females (14 per cent.). Two of these district judges are Asian, one man and one woman, and two women are under 45.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Non-departmental Public Bodies

Norman Baker: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many executive NDPBs there have been in existence each year from 1978; and what the total expenditure by these bodies was in each year in (a) real and (b) actual terms. [11808]

Mr. Leslie: Information on the number and expenditure of executive NDPBs for each year from 1979 (when the classification was introduced) to 2000 is published in the Cabinet Office publication "Public Bodies 2000". Copies have been placed in the Libraries of the House. Information on the number and expenditure of executive NDPBs during the 2000–01 financial year will be published in the new year.

Regional Co-ordination Unit

Mr. Moss: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what was the budget of the regional co-ordination unit (a) last year and (b) this year; and what the projected figure is for next year. [12522]

Mrs. Roche: The regional co-ordination unit's (RCU) budget for administrative running costs is £9.716 million in 2001–02. Funding for 2002–03 has yet to be finalised, but is expected to be in the region of £9.116 million.

The RCU was formed during 2000–01 and overall expenditure on the RCU and its predecessor unit, the Government office co-ordination unit (GOCU) for that year totalled £5.55 million.

A large element of the budget of the RCU and its predecessor unit is for funding that is managed centrally on behalf of the Government office network as a whole, such as for IT and communications systems. For the current financial year, £6.689 million is in respect of centrally managed budgets.

Energy Efficiency Week

John Barrett: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what action his Department took in recognition of energy efficiency week. [11508]

Mr. Leslie: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him by my right hon. Friend the Minister for the Environment on 30 October 2001, Official Report, column 592W.

My Department's initiatives to improve energy efficiency will be listed in the Green Ministers report to be published on 27 November 2001. This will include efforts by the Cabinet Office and its agency, the Government Car and Despatch Agency (GCDA), to improve energy awareness among staff. Since October 2001, 100 per cent. of electricity used at 10 Downing street and the Cabinet Office buildings at 70 Whitehall and Admiralty Arch are now being generated by renewable energy (CCL exempt) sources.

Equitable Life

Mr. Chope: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will refer to the parliamentary ombudsman the cases of those civil servants who took out additional voluntary contribution policies with the Equitable Life Assurance Society in 1999 and 2000 under the civil service AVC scheme; and if he will make a statement. [12824]

Mr. Leslie: No. The Cabinet Office, as managers of the civil service AVC scheme and acting on behalf of the civil service as employer, has wished to see that the appointed scheme providers remain suitable for AVC investment. To that end, the Cabinet Office appointed Bacon and Woodrow some years ago to provide expert and professional advice in this role. Bacon and Woodrow have conducted regular reviews of the civil service AVC providers and their continuing suitability for the civil service AVC scheme, as well as providing advice on specific developments. The Cabinet Office has acted throughout on the independent advice of Bacon and Woodrow. It believes it has met its responsibilities as manager fully and properly.

The civil service AVC scheme, provides members with a choice of provider and wide choice of investment route. AVC investment carries the same risks as any other investment and benefits are not guaranteed.

In acting on independent advice from Bacon and Woodrow, the Cabinet Office has been acting in the same way as other pension schemes affected by the problems of Equitable Life. It has not been in a privileged position and has not had access to information which is not available to the pensions industry more widely. There is a clear difference between the role of the Cabinet Office as managers of the civil service AVC scheme and the regulatory role carried out elsewhere in Government. The Cabinet Office believes it has exercised its duty of care responsibilities fully and properly.

The Government, in their wider role, announced on 31 August an independent inquiry into Equitable Life, to be headed by Lord Penrose. This will look at the circumstances leading to the current situation at Equitable Life and identify any lessons to be learned for the conduct, administration and regulation of life assurance. The inquiry will report to Treasury Ministers.

Mr. Chope: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many civil servants took out new additional voluntary contributions policies with the Equitable Life Assurance Society in 1999 and 2000 under the civil service AVC scheme; and what advice he is giving them about possible redress for maladministration. [R] [12825]

Mr. Leslie: The information is not held centrally. However, I will write to the hon. Member about the numbers of civil servants who began to pay AVCs with Equitable Life in 1999 and 2000 under the civil service AVCs scheme shortly. The Cabinet Office has been pro-active in keeping civil service employers and staff informed of developments as they occur, and, through its adviser Bacon and Woodrow, has made available generic guidance. I have seen no evidence of failure, on the part of the civil service as employer, in this matter. The Government, in their wider role, have of course announced the inquiry led by Lord Penrose.

Departmental Publications

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many publications were issued by his Department in each of the last four years. [11840]

Mr. Leslie: The publications issued or sponsored by the Cabinet Office between May 1997 and October 2001 are listed in the table. Because of the restructuring of the Department in May 1997, any information relating to before this date can be obtained only at disproportionate cost. This answer does not include publications which were issued in electronic form only.

Cabinet Office publications May 1997–October 2001

	Number
May to December 1997	97
January to December 1998	127
January to December 1999	139
January to December 2000	177
January to October 2001	151

Departmental Assets

Mr. Laws: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what stocks of (a) antiques, (b) paintings and (c) fine wines are held by his Department; if he will list such assets sold over the last three years together with the sale proceeds from such transactions; what plans he has to sell further such assets over the period of the current Comprehensive Spending Review; and if he will make a statement. [10835]

Mr. Leslie: The National Asset Register (CM 5221, July 2001) provides full details of the departmental asset holdings across all categories of assets, including heritage assets, along with details of major acquisitions and disposals since the publication of the last register in 1997. The information published in the National Asset Register for the Cabinet Office includes No. 10 Downing street.

HEALTH

Departmental Buildings

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will estimate the total annual running costs for buildings used, owned or rented by his Department for each nation and region of the United Kingdom, and estimate the average cost per square metre for properties used by his Department as a whole, and by region and nation of the United Kingdom. [6867]

Ms Blears: The table shows an estimate for the total running costs for financial year 2000–01 for buildings used, owned or rented by the Department and its agencies for England. It also estimates the average cost per square metre for properties used by the Department as a whole for England. It does not include any costs associated with the national health service.

Region	Total running costs (£ million)	Average cost per square metre
Northern	0.646	268.92
Yorkshire and Humberside	5.311	275.10
North West	2.709	132.19
East Midlands	0.614	123.42
West Midlands	0.909	304.99
Eastern	0.735	162.30
South West	1.328	222.80
South East	1.188	243.78
London	26.051	350.16
Total	39.491	282.25

Running costs include capital charges, rents, service charges, rates, unitary charge (as appropriate), cleaning, decoration, building maintenance, utilities (including refuse collection), security, reception and porters.The Department does not occupy any properties in Scotland, Wales or Northern Ireland.

Meningitis

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent steps he has taken to reduce the incidence of meningitis B; and what further steps he plans to take in the next 12 months. [9087]

Ms Blears: As the recent success with meningitis C vaccine has demonstrated, the best way to reduce the incidence of meningococcal Group B disease is through an effective meningitis B vaccine. Unfortunately, we are some years away from having such a vaccine. Work to find a vaccine against Group B is much more difficult than for Group C, although early indicators for a Group B vaccine are encouraging. The Department is investigating Group B vaccines in collaboration with RIVM, the Dutch national vaccine manufacturer, and funds Group B vaccine dedicated work at the Centre for Applied Microbiology Research.

In the meantime, it remains essential for parents and health professionals to be aware of the signs and symptoms of meningococcal disease and alert to act quickly should they recognise any of these symptoms. Information on recognising meningococcal disease is included in all the childhood immunisation materials produced by Health Promotion England which are given to parents. Health professionals have been reminded to be alert to the expected winter rise in meningococcal cases in a letter from the Chief Medical Officer, Chief Nursing Officer and Chief Pharmacist issued on 15 October.

Adam Price: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to deal with changes in the incidence of meningitis in the last four years. [9855]

Ms Blears: Meningitis and septicaemia can be caused by a number of viruses and bacteria. Illness caused by bacteria is the most serious and meningococcal disease is the commonest cause of bacterial meningitis and septicaemia in the United Kingdom

The incidence of meningococcal disease had been increasing in the second half of the 1990s. However, the introduction of a new vaccine against Group C meningococcal infection in November 1999 has reduced the incidence of meningococcal Group C disease by up to 90 per cent. in those age groups immunised.

The vast majority of meningococcal disease is now caused by Group B infection. The success of the meningitis C vaccine has demonstrated that the best way to reduce the incidence of Group B disease is through an effective meningitis B vaccine. Unfortunately, we are some years away from having such a vaccine. Work to find a vaccine against Group B is much more difficult than for Group C, although early indicators for a Group B vaccine are encouraging. The Department is investigating Group B vaccines in collaboration with RIVM, the Dutch national vaccine manufacturer, and funds Group B vaccine dedicated work at the Centre for Applied Microbiology Research.

Groundwater Protection

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will list the EC directives relating to groundwater protection and indicate in each case how compliance is (a) monitored and (b) enforced. [11382]

Mr. Meacher: I have been asked to reply.

The Groundwater Directive (80/60/EEC) is the principal EC measure for the protection of groundwater. As competent authority in England and Wales the Environment Agency has powers under the Water Resources Act 1991, the Environment Act 1995, the Groundwater Regulations 1998 and the Anti-Pollution Works Notices Regulations 1999 to enforce this directive's authorisations. The Environment Agency has also developed a strategic monitoring network to determine groundwater status.

Infant Mortality Rate (Worcester)

Mr. Michael Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the infant mortality rate in Worcester was in each year since 1992. [10405]

Ruth Kelly: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician. I have asked him to reply.

Letter from Len Cook to Mr. Michael Foster, dated 6 November 2001:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent question about the infant mortality rate in Worcester in each year since 1992(10405).

The information requested is provided in the attached table.

The rates for Worcester county district (which are calculated from fewer than 20 deaths) may be unreliable due to the small number of events and should be treated cautiously. Any variation they show over time, or difference from National or county or health authority rates are likely to be due to chance.

Infant mortality numbers and rates for Worcester CD, 1992–2000

Calendar Year	Number	[1]Rate
1992	11	8.7
1993	9	7.1
1994	8	6.6
1995	13	10.2
1996	10	8.0
1997	8	6.1
1998	8	6.3
1999	10	7.7
2000[2]	9	7.4

[1] Per 1,000 live births

[2] Provisional

Source:

1992–94 and 2000 unpublished

1995–99 figures are published in the National Statistics publication 'Key Population and Vital Statistics', series VS Nos 22–26

Power Lines

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made since April of international research on the health effect of living close to overhead transmission lines; and what review he plans of the health effects of pylons on human beings. [9650]

Ms Blears: The Department obtains advice on the possible health implications of exposure to electromagnetic fields, including the extremely low frequency fields (ELF) associated with power lines, from the National Radiological Protection Board (NRPB).

In June, on behalf of the International Agency for Research on Cancer (IARC), a working group of scientific experts from 10 countries published its review on the health effects of static and extremely low frequency (ELF) electric and magnetic fields. The IARC working group concluded that ELF magnetic fields are possibly carcinogenic to humans based on a statistical association between higher level magnetic field exposure and the risk of childhood leukaemia.

This conclusion of the IARC working group is consistent with that of the NRPB Advisory Group on Non-ionising Radiation (AGNIR), which issued a report in March 2001. AGNIR stressed, however, that there was insufficient evidence to justify a firm conclusion that magnetic fields cause leukaemia in children. In responding to the advisory group report the board of NRPB considered there was a need to understand better the factors that might result in higher residential exposures to magnetic fields, noting also the recent evidence from the United Kingdom childhood cancer study that suggested the higher levels of magnetic fields are not attributable solely to proximity to power lines. The Government and NRPB are currently planning a study into the factors that result in certain households having higher levels of exposure to power frequency magnetic fields.

The AGNIR is also further considering the possible effects on health of corona ions generated by power lines. A first meeting to consider this issue has taken place and researchers on this topic have been invited to make presentations at future meetings. Information about the work of the advisory group is to be posted on the NRPB website www.nrpb.org.uk. A final report will be published by NRPB.

In July, the California Health Department released a draft report for public comment and this will also be considered by AGNIR.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will commission a Government inquiry into the health effects of power frequency electric and magnetic fields. [11366]

Jacqui Smith: The Department obtains advice on the possible health implications of exposure to electromagnetic fields, including the extremely low frequency (ELF) fields associated with power lines, from the National Radiological Protection Board (NRPB). The Board of NRPB has set up an independent Advisory Group on Non-ionising Radiation (AGNIR) chaired by the eminent epidemiologist Sir Richard Doll. Members are some of the United Kingdom's leading experimental scientists and epidemiologists. The AGNIR has prepared a number of reports on the possible health effects of exposure to power frequency electric and magnetic fields. Its most recent report was published in March 2001 and provided a comprehensive summary of sources of exposure to ELF electromagnetic fields and methods of measurement as well as reviews of experimental and epidemiological (human health) studies.

AGNIR continues to monitor research on this topic.

In June, the International Agency for Research in Cancer (IARC) based in Lyon, France, brought together an international team of experts to review the evidence for the possible carcinogenic effects of exposure to static and ELF electric and magnetic fields. It concluded that magnetic fields are "possibly carcinogenic" to humans based on a statistical association between higher level magnetic field exposure and the risk of childhood leukaemia. This conclusion is consistent with the views expressed by AGNIR.

These two reviews by teams of eminent scientists are consistent in their findings and provide the most up to date published reviews of this subject.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the health risks of a (a) cancer and (b) non-cancer nature and other health consequences of electro-magnetic fields situated near to overhead power lines. [11416]

Jacqui Smith: The Department obtains advice on the possible health implications of exposure to electromagnetic fields, including those associated with power lines, from the National Radiological Protection Board (NRPB). The Board of NRPB has set up an independent Advisory Group on Non-ionising Radiation (AGNIR) "to review work on the biological effects of non-ionising radiation relevant to human health and to advise on research priorities".

Most of the research carried out on possible health effects of exposure to electromagnetic fields and radiation has concentrated on cancer risk. In March this year, the AGNIR published a report on the potential risks of cancer from exposure to extremely low frequency electromagnetic fields that includes those from power lines. The report provides a comprehensive review of experimental and epidemiological studies relevant to an assessment of the possible risk of cancer as well as information on sources of exposure and their measurement.

An assessment has been carried out by AGNIR of the potential neurodegenerative effects of exposure to electromagnetic fields. A report has been prepared and publication is imminent.

The AGNIR is also further considering the possible effects on health of corona ions generated by power lines. A first meeting to consider this issue has taken place and researchers on this topic have been invited to make presentations at future meetings. A final report will be published by NRPB.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make an assessment of the possible links between childhood leukaemia and magnetic field exposures above 0.4 mircotesla. [11187]

Jacqui Smith: The Department obtains advice on the possible health implications of exposure to electromagnetic fields, including those associated with power lines, from the National Radiological Protection Board (NRPB).

In March this year NRPB's Advisory Group on Non-ionising Radiation (AGNIR) published a review of extremely low frequency electromagnetic fields and the risk of cancer, which included an assessment of the possible link between childhood leukaemia and average magnetic field exposures of 0.4 microtesla or more.

AGNIR concluded that recent large and well-conducted epidemiological studies, both in this country and overseas, have provided better evidence than was available in the past on the relationship between power frequency magnetic field exposure and the risk of cancer. Taken in conjunction, they suggest that relatively heavy average exposures of magnetic fields at 0.4 microtesla or more are associated with a doubling of the risk of leukaemia in children under 15 years of age. However, the evidence is not conclusive because of the small number of children exposed, and other features related to the design of the studies.

NRPB have noted that, if the association between magnetic fields and the risk of cancer was causal, of the 500 cases of childhood leukaemia occurring in the United Kingdom each year an additional 2 cases might result from exposure to magnetic fields at exposures above 0.4 microtesla.

AGNIR have pointed out that, in the UK, very few children (perhaps 4 in 1000) are exposed to 0.4 microtesla or more. The UK study (United Kingdom Childhood Cancer Study), with much the largest number of direct measurements of exposure, found no evidence of risk at lower levels.

Worcestershire Acute Hospitals NHS Trust

Mr. Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if he will reconsider his decision to accept the early resignation of Mr. Harold Musgrove from the chairmanship of the Worcestershire Acute Hospitals NHS trust; and if he will make a statement; [10155]

(2) what discussions his Department had with Mr. Harold Musgrove about the announcement of his resignation from the chairmanship of the Worcestershire Acute Hospitals NHS trust prior to that announcement; what the nature of any such discussion was; and if he will make a statement. [10156]

Ms Blears [holding answer 25 October 2001]: The acceptance of Mr. Musgrove's resignation is a matter for the national health service Appointments Commission, which now has responsibility for appointments to NHS boards. Mr. Musgrove contacted the NHS Regional Director for the West Midlands to inform him of his decision to resign. His formal letter of resignation was submitted to the chair of the NHS Appointments Commission on 1 October. He subsequently had discussions with the Appointments Commissioner for the West Midlands about the timing of his departure, which was mutually agreed as 31 December 2001, allowing sufficient time for recruitment of his successor.

Haemophiliac Patients

Mr. Lepper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on the provision by NHS trusts of recombinant clotting factors to haemophiliac patients. [10733]

Mr. Hutton: We asked health authorities and national health service trusts to provide recombinant clotting factors for new patients and children under 16 from April 1998 and are considering the case for providing these products, subject to availability, for all haemophilia patients.

Treatment Overseas

Mr. Truswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on (a) the outstanding legal questions relating to the treatment of NHS patients abroad, (b) when he anticipates those legal questions will be resolved and (c) how patients will be selected for treatment abroad. [10704]

Mr. Hutton: The main legal issue on the principle of treating patients abroad has been decided. Health authorities and national health service trusts must be free to commission services in Europe. What remains to be resolved are the practical and legal issues flowing from that decision, in particular, the legal consequences for commissioners and patients should things go wrong.

Our aim is to address these various legal, clinical and quality issues over the coming few weeks so that the first patients are able to travel for treatment before the end of the year.

Selection of patients is a matter for local commissioners and the patients themselves. No patient will be forced to travel against his or her will. Commissioners and clinicians will need to satisfy themselves that patients are fit for travel and are at low risk of post-operative complications.

Orthopaedic Waiting Lists

Mr. Truswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on (a) orthopaedic waiting lists in Leeds and (b) what action will be taken to reduce these in the short term. [10705]

Jacqui Smith: At the end of August 2001 there were 1,714 patients waiting for orthopaedic inpatient or day case treatment at Leeds teaching hospitals national health service trust.

There has been substantial investment of £3.7 million in orthopaedic services in Leeds this year. This is funding an additional ward and theatre for orthopaedic services and will help to fund an additional five orthopaedic consultant posts:

two spinal surgeons

one foot and ankle surgeon

one lower limb surgeon

one hand surgeon.

Bed Blocking

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proportion of acute beds are blocked in each acute national health service hospital trust. [11096]

Jacqui Smith: The information available is shown in the table.

Delayed discharges—first quarter activity

Blocked beds health authority	Percentage Delayed discharge rate[1]
Bradford	1.7
Durham	7.5
East Riding	1.6
Gateshead and South Tyneside	6.4
Leeds	3.9
Newcastle and North Tyneside	3.9
North Cumbria	13.8
Northumberland	2.4
Sunderland	3.7
Tees	5.5
Wakefield	4.5
North Yorkshire	5.6
Calderdale and Kirklees	2.4
Barnsley	1.5
North Derbyshire	1.9
South Derbyshire	0.9
Doncaster	3.0
Leicestershire	2.4
Lincolnshire	2.2
North Nottinghamshire	3.4
Nottingham	2.9
Rotherham	2.9
Sheffield	3.8
South Humber	6.3
Birmingham	14.7
Coventry	5.4
Dudley	8.5
Herefordshire	5.8
Sandwell	4.4
Shropshire	3.2
Solihull	7.0
North Staffordshire	7.7
South Staffordshire	12.4
Walsall	5.9
Warwickshire	5.4

Delayed discharges—first quarter activity

Blocked beds health authority	Percentage Delayed discharge rate[1]
Wolverhampton	4.1
Worcestershire	5.8
South Lancashire	4.2
Liverpool	5.3
Manchester	2.3
Morecambe Bay	8.3
St. Helens and Knowsley	6.8
Salford and Trafford	3.2
Sefton	5.3
Stockport	1.8
West Pennine	3.0
Bury and Rochdale	2.9
North Cheshire	4.6
South Cheshire	4.6
East Lancashire	0.2
North West Lancashire	10.6
Wigan and Bolton	—
Wirral	2.0
Bedfordshire	3.9
North Essex	—
South Essex	—
Suffolk	13.6
Cambridgeshire	5.4
Norfolk	5.5
Hertfordshire	—
Hillingdon	16.1
Kensington, Chelsea and Westminster	—
Redbridge and Waltham Forest	10.0
Croydon	5.0
Kingston and Richmond	5.4
Lambeth, Southwark and Lewisham	2.1
Merton, Sutton and Wandsworth	3.7
Barking and Havering	9.2
Brent and Harrow	18.2
Camden and Islington	6.8
Ealing, Hammersmith and Hounslow	7.7
East London and City	2.6
Barnet, Enfield and Haringey	7.4
Bromley, Bexley and Greenwich	—
Berkshire	13.3
Buckinghamshire	17.4
East Kent	4.8
West Kent	4.3
East Surrey	6.5
West Surrey	12.8
East Sussex, Brighton and Hove	—
West Sussex	7.8
Northamptonshire	12.3
Oxfordshire	5.4
North and Mid Hampshire	18.6
Southampton and South West Hampshire	14.3
Isle of Wight, Portsmouth and South East Hampshire	4.8
Somerset	—
South and West Devon	6.5
Wiltshire	5.6
Avon	9.7
Cornwall and Isles of Scilly	9.5
Dorset	6.1
North and East Devon	5.5
Gloucestershire	9.3
	9.0

[1] All ages

NICE (Compulsory Guidance)

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what his policy is on providing funding to health authorities to meet the cost of implementing compulsory guidance issued by the National Institute for Clinical Excellence. [11094]

Mr. Hutton: We expect national health service bodies to fund treatments recommended by the National Institute for Clinical Excellence from their general allocations which increased on average by 6.25 per cent. in real terms for 2001–02.

We are preparing to implement our manifesto commitment that

> "local health authorities and trusts will be directed to fund drugs and treatments recommended by NICE",

and expect to announce further details shortly.

NHS Dentistry

Mr. Tony Clarke: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS dentists there were in the Northamptonshire constituencies in (a) 1992, (b) 1997 and (c) 2001. [11273]

Ms Blears: The number of general dental service dentists in Northamptonshire health authority is shown in the table at 30 June for the years (a) 1992, (b) 1997 and (c) 2001.

General dental service: Number of dentists in Northamptonshire health authority at 30 June

Northamptonshire HA	All dentists
June 1992	138
June 1997	153
June 2001	167

Data are not available centrally by constituency.

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS dentists were taking on new patients on 1 September. [11117]

Ms Blears: There are some 16,000 general dental service dentists in England. Some of these dentists have no patient registrations including specialist dentists such as those with practices limited to orthodontics. 14,000 dentists took on at least one new registration during August 2001.

In addition, there were 400 personal dental service dentists, 100 salaried dentists and 1,300 dentists in the community dental service who may have been taking on some new national health service patients.

Mr. Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to increase the provision of dentistry and the number of dentists in (a) Lincolnshire and (b) Boston and Skegness. [11550]

Ms Blears: In September 1999, we gave a commitment that, within two years, everyone would be able to access National Health Service dentistry if, and when, they wanted it via NHS Direct. All health authorities in England now have in place dentistry action plans to ensure that everyone in their local area can access NHS dentistry if they want it, within a reasonable time and distance. These plans identify shortfalls in service provision and ways of tackling user demand.

Action is being taken to improve the situation in Lincolnshire and Boston and Skegness. Lincolnshire is one of the third wave personal dental service pilots. The pilot will see the development of a dental access centre at six sites across the county, including Boston and Skegness, through a combination of new buildings and conversion of existing Community Dental Services. £877,000 capital and £340,000 revenue were allocated to the pilot in 2000–01 with a further £270,000 capital and £91,000 revenue in the current financial year.

In addition, Lincolnshire has received dental care development funding amounting to £95,000 in 2000–01 and £185,000 in 2001–02 for expansion and modernisation of practices in areas of poor access which are already offering significant NHS commitment and are prepared to increase numbers of NHS patients. A further allocation of £407,000 has been made from the dental modernisation fund to modernise premises and upgrade equipment and from the dental practice. £17,000 has been allocated from the dental practice grant to set up quality assurance systems in each dental practice.

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many salaried dentists are employed (a) by the national health service and (b) by the personal dental service. [11913]

Ms Blears [holding answer 2 November 2001]: The latest information on the number of salaried dentists employed in the national health service in England is shown in the table for each of the dental services. The figures are on a headcount basis rather than whole-time equivalent.

Personal dental services are one of the ways in which the NHS provides dentistry and may be used both for NHS trust based projects with salaried dentists and for arrangements which are similar to the general dental service, with self employed dentists.

Number of salaried dentists employed in 2000–01

England	Number
a) By the NHS (excluding personal dental services)
Hospital dental service[1]	2,190
Community dental service[1]	1,340
Salaried GDS dentists[2]	101
b) By the personal dental services[2,3]
Dentists in pilots managed by trusts	392
Total[4] NHS salaried dentists	4,023

[1] Number of dentists at September 2000.

[2] Number of dentists at June 2001.

[3] Excludes 200 dentists in pilots not managed by trusts where most dentists are self employees of the contract holders.

[4] Some dentists work in several services and are counted in each service.

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the gross fee is paid for (a) an MOD amalgam and (b) a root canal filling on the lower first molar to an independent contractor dentist in the NHS; [11914]

(2) what is the unit cost of provision by the salaried dental service of (a) an MOD amalgam and (b) a root canal filling on the lower first molar, taking into account all management, rental and other overheads. [11915]

Ms Blears [holding answer 2 November 2001]: The item of service fee currently paid to a dentist providing treatment in the general dental services (GDS) is £17.60 per tooth for an amalgam filling in permanent or retained deciduous teeth for three or more surfaces where the mesio-occlusal and disto-occlusal surfaces are involved. If pin or screw retention is involved there is an additional fee of £5.40. The fee for the root filling of each root canal of a permanent tooth per first molar tooth is £68.65.

The total fees claimed by general dental practitioners are intended to cover all costs including management, rental and other overheads. Under the personal dental service's arrangements, treatments are not remunerated on an item of service basis but are included as part of the overall contractual arrangements. We have no reason to expect that in the salaried services similar item of service treatments would differ significantly in cost from the GDS, taking into account the range of patients treated.

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people, and what proportion of the population, had no access to an NHS dentist in May of each year since 1997. [11916]

Ms Blears [holding answer 2 November 2001]: About 24 million people, almost half of the population, are registered with a general dental services (GDS) dentist in England at any one time. This has been broadly constant over the last three years (figures before this time are not comparable because of changes to the registration period). Registration figures represent people who have been seen by a GDS dentist within the past 15 months. Excluded from these figures are people who have chosen not to attend their dentist in the latest 15 months as well as people who have been treated within the GDS but are not registered and those who have used other NHS dental services, such as the community dental services.

Information on the number of people who sought national health service dentistry unsuccessfully in each year since 1997 is not available.

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Health by what date he expects to be able to provide universal access to an NHS dentist. [11917]

Ms Blears [holding answer 2 November 2001]: In September 1999, my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister pledged that within two years, everyone would be able to access national health service dentistry by phoning NHS Direct.

All callers to NHS Direct should now be able to gain access to NHS dentistry either to receive emergency dental treatment, urgent treatment to relieve pain or have an oral examination followed by a course of treatment for identified dental problems.

For each of these kinds of treatment, health authorities have set local standards for times and distances, for both rural and urban locations, for dentistry to be available for their populations.

Child Abuse

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if his Department will request local authorities to provide statistics on the abuse of disabled children as a subset of the annual figures collected regarding the total number of children registered for abuse. [11413]

Jacqui Smith: We already collect statistical information about the abuse of disabled children. Information on the numbers of disabled children in need known to local authority social services departments, and the reason for their being in need (including abuse/neglect), was collected by the Department as part of the first children in need survey in February 2000. The report is published on the Department's Home Page of the Internet at www.doh.gov.uk/cinresults.htm. A copy of the report is also available in the Library. The survey is being repeated in late 2001, and the results are likely to be available in mid 2002.

Child Protection Register (Disabled Children)

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many local authorities (a) have fulfilled their obligations to provide a register of disabled children and (b) are able to provide information on the numbers of disabled children on the child protection register. [11410]

Jacqui Smith: We do not keep a list of authorities which have a disabled children's register. However, this years' national overview report on the 2001–02 "quality protects" management action plans, reports that most councils currently have up-to-date registers of disabled children.

All local authorities should be able to provide information on the numbers of children on the child protection register although we do not hold it centrally. However, local authority returns from the children in need census, currently taking place, will mean this information will become available.

Drinking Water

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what priority he gives to multi-barrier approaches to protect drinking water quality; and if he will make a statement in respect of hazard assessment critical control points. [11381]

Ms Blears: There is a regulatory requirement for all public water supplies in England and Wales to be treated before entering supply. If the raw water comes from a surface water derived source, the treatment has to be appropriate to the classification of the raw water as specified by the European Community Directive on the quality required of surface water intended for the abstraction of drinking water (75/440/EEC). This could involve a multi-barrier approach.

There are separate regulations relating to Cryptosporidium oocysts in drinking water, which require water companies to carry out risk assessments at all treatment works site. Companies may either install treatment capable of continuously removing particles greater than one micron in diameter or install continuous sampling for Cryptosporidium oocysts at sites considered to be at significant risk.

These regulations are enforced by the Drinking Water Inspectorate on behalf of my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs and for the National Assembly for Wales.

Zyban

Mr. Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what guidelines have been given to health authorities for the prescribing of the anti-smoking drug Zyban; and which health authorities allow GPs to prescribe this drug; [11100]

(2) if he will calculate the number of people who have been prescribed the anti-smoking drug Zyban since its release on prescription basis; and how many deaths have been attributed to the use of Zyban; [11101]

(3) what changes have been made to the recommended dosage of Zyban by the manufacturers GlaxoSmithKline during the last 12 months; and for what reasons these alterations were made; [11102]

(4) what assessment he has made of the effectiveness and safety of Zyban in the treatment of people addicted to smoking; and if he will make a statement. [11103]

Ms Blears: Since Zyban (bupropion) was marketed in the United Kingdom in June 2000, at least 440,900 prescriptions of Zyban have been dispensed, based on the prescription cost analysis (PCA) data for England.

To date, there have been 53 reports to the Committee on Safety of Medicines (CSM)/Medicines Control Agency (MCA) of suspected adverse reactions in relation to Zyban with a fatal outcome. The contribution of Zyban to these fatal cases is unproven and in the majority of cases the individual's underlying condition may provide an alternative explanation. In 14 of these reports the individual was not taking Zyban at the time of death. Smoking itself is the single greatest cause of premature deaths in the UK and is responsible for 120,000 deaths per year, which is equivalent to more than 13 people an hour.

Zyban has been authorised in 14 European member states via the mutual recognition procedure. At the time of licensing our independent expert scientific advisory body, the CSM, advised that Zyban met appropriate standards of quality, safety and efficacy to justify its licence for use as an aid to smoking cessation in combination with motivational support in nicotine-dependent patients.

Since marketing, the safety of Zyban has been closely monitored by the MCA/CSM, particularly the accumulating evidence from spontaneous reports of suspected adverse drug reactions received in association with its use. The CSM has advised that the balance between the effectiveness of Zyban in helping people to stop smoking, and the health benefits that this brings, with the risk of adverse effects remains favourable.

Guidance on prescribing and use of Zyban is provided in the authorised Summary of Product Characteristics for health professionals and Patient Information Leaflet. These documents provide information on use of Zyban, contraindications, warnings and possible adverse effects. Key prescribing information is also included in the British National Formulary which is sent by the Department to doctors and pharmacists.

Zyban was made available on national health service prescription in June 2000 in all health authorities. Since then a number of communications have been issued to health professionals. In March 2001 the MCA and CSM reminded general practitioners and health professionals in smoking cessation clinics about the safety profile of bupropion and provided information on safe prescribing, in particular predisposing factors for seizures. This information was distributed to doctors and pharmacists in the MCA/CSM drug safety bulletin "Current Problems in Pharmacovigilance".

In May 2001, the CSM issued new guidance (strengthened warnings particularly about potential interactions with other medicines) and advised a slower increase in the dose of Zyban in order to minimise the risk of side effects especially seizures (the lower 150mg dose should be prescribed for the first six days, increasing to 150mg twice daily on day seven rather than day four). This new guidance was issued in order to allow more time for the drug levels to stabilise, to help minimise the risk of adverse reactions, particularly seizures.

The Department provided information to all doctors concerning the safety of Zyban, via an article in the Chief Medical Officer's Update 30 (May 2001), entitled "Safety of Zyban as an aid to smoking cessation". A copy of the CMO's Update 30 can be found in the Statistics Section, in the Library. Updated information on the safety profile of Zyban can also be found on the MCA website.

General Practitioners

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on the number of general practitioners in the national health service in England and Wales in each of the last four years. [11868]

Mr. Hutton: The number of general practitioners in the national health service in England in each of the last four years is shown in the table. Information relating to Wales is a matter for the devolved Administration.

General medical practitioners in England as at 1 October 1997 to 1999 and 30 September 2000

Headcount

	1997	1998	1999	2000
All practitioners (excluding GP retainers)[1]	29,389	29,697	29,987	30,252
of which:
Unrestricted principals and equivalents (UPEs)[2]	27,099	27,392	27,591	27,704

[1] All practitioners (excluding GP retainers) includes UPEs, restricted principals, assistants, GP registrars, salaried doctors (para. 52 SFA) and PMS other. GP retainers were not collected until 1999. In 1999 there were 972 GP retainers; in 2000 there were 1,117.

[2] Unrestricted principals and equivalents (UPEs) includes GMS unrestricted principals, PMS contracted GPs and PMS salaried GPs.

Source:

Department of Health General and Personal Medical Services Statistics.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on the definition of excessive as applied to GP list sizes; what measures he plans to take to ensure that areas which experience sudden population growth have sufficient numbers of medical practitioners; and what measures he will encourage the National Clinical Assessment Authority to take against doctors with excessive list sizes. [12767]

Mr. Hutton: From 2002 health authorities will be responsible for determining how many general practitioners are needed in their areas. List size and population change are among the factors they will consider. The National Clinical Assessment Authority's role is to assess the clinical performance of a GP if a health authority raises concern.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will publish the number of general practitioner vacancies in each (a) health authority and (b) primary care trust in the last two years. [12775]

Mr. Hutton: The number of general practitioner vacancies reported by health authorities in the Department's annual general practitioner recruitment retention and vacancy surveys for 1999–2000 and 2000–01 are shown in the table. Information on vacancies in primary care trusts is not held centrally.

Health Authority[1]	2000	2001
Avon	33	67
Barking and Havering	2	1
Barnet Enfield & Haringey HA	17	40
Barnsley	8	10
Bedfordshire	19	20
Berkshire	19	29
Bexley, Bromley & Greenwich HA	5	29
Birmingham	7	65
Bradford	17	37
Brent & Harrow	8	29
Buckinghamshire	[2]—	38
Bury & Rochdale Health Authority	7	12
Calderdale & Kirklees	12	26
Cambridgeshire	1	6
Camden & Islington	1	15
Co. Durham & Darlington	[2]—	26
Cornwall & Isles of Scilly	0	22
Coventry	4	17
Croydon	8	25
Doncaster	12	26
Dorset	25	38
Dudley	12	9
East London & City	31	38
Ealing, Hammersmith and Hounslow	4	2
East Kent	13	29
East Lancashire	6	28
East Riding and Hull	7	23
East Surrey	12	10
East Sussex, Brighton & Hove	[2]—	[2]—
Gateshead and South Tyneside	10	8
Gloucestershire	17	28
Herefordshire	6	10
Hertfordshire	3	60
Hillingdon	5	19
IoW, Portsmouth & SE Hampshire	16	18
Kensington & Chelsea and Westminster	11	17
Kingston & Richmond	8	17
Lambeth Southwark & Lewisham	33	72
Leeds	19	55
Leicester	15	48
Lincolnshire	19	46
Liverpool	19	16
Manchester	10	24
Merton, Sutton & Wandsworth	[2]—	[2]—
Morecambe Bay	4	7
Newcastle & North Tyneside	23	26
Norfolk	21	53
North and East Devon	14	19
North Cheshire	10	16
North and Mid Hampshire	9	18
North Cumbria	8	19
North Derbyshire	11	16
North Essex	7	17
North Nottinghamshire	24	27
North Staffordshire	12	30
North West Lancashire	3	26
North Yorkshire	[2]—	33
Northamptonshire	18	31
Northumberland	8	18
Nottingham	13	29
Oxfordshire	24	62
Redbridge and Waltham Forest	16	21
Rotherham	7	7
Salford & Trafford	11	26
Sandwell	6	16
Sefton	6	17
Sheffield	13	33
Shropshire	4	16
Solihull	10	11
Somerset	4	28
South & West Devon	20	7
South Cheshire	19	27
South Essex	31	34
South Humber	15	22
South Lancashire	9	13
South Staffordshire	15	23
Southampton and SW Hampshire	17	18
Southern Derbyshire	[2]—	27
St. Helens & Knowsley	10	22
Stockport	10	11
Suffolk	10	17
Sunderland	13	22
Tees	34	43
Wakefield	20	29
Walsall	6	10
Warwickshire	14	25
West Kent	31	60
West Surrey	23	35
West Sussex	31	45
Wigan & Bolton	17	19
Wiltshire	17	22
Wirral	9	13
Wolverhampton	4	5
Worcestershire	1	4

[1] This table reflects the health authorities as at April 2001.
[2] Not provided

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the number of general practitioners due to retire in each of the next five years. [12774]

Mr. Hutton: The Department does not collect information about retirement intentions of general practitioners. All unrestricted principals and equivalents (UPEs) have to retire as a principal by the age of 70. Around 480 UPEs will reach 70 by 2006.

Waiting Lists (Buckinghamshire)

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people were on the waiting list in Buckinghamshire for hospital treatment in each of the last four years; and if he will make a statement. [11865]

Ms Blears: The numbers of patients waiting for hospital treatment between March 1997 and March 2001 are shown in the table.

Inpatient waiting list data for Buckinghamshire health authority

Quarter	Size of inpatient waiting list
March 1997	14,039
June 1997	14,253
September 1997	15,276
December 1997	16,154
March 1998	16,149
June 1998	15,706
September 1998	14,878
December 1998	14,679
March 1999	13,069
June 1999	13,795
September 1999	14,000
December 1999	13,854
March 2000	12,604
June 2000	12,937
September 2000	13,252
December 2000	13,535
March 2001	13,332
June 2001	13,604

Source:
QF01 quarterly waiting times return, Department of Health.

NHS Plus

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on his proposals for NHS Plus with particular reference to (a) income generation, (b) avoiding unfair competition with private sector consultants and (c) improving awareness of occupational health issues among health professionals and private employers. [11310]

Ms Blears [holding answer 31 October 2001]: NHS Plus will be launched on 19 November as a national network of National Health Service Occupational Health Departments who will be selling occupational health services to the private or other parts of the public sector, particularly small and medium sized businesses. Occupational health services are not part of the statutory NHS provision: NHS Plus will be provided as an income generating service. Under the rules of income generation, such services have to recover their full costs as well as making a surplus which is reinvested in the health service. Our aim is that NHS Plus will help to raise awareness of the importance of occupational health to businesses as well as helping to improve the quality of occupational health available to NHS staff themselves.

Social Services (London)

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations he has received that local authority social services provision (a) as a whole and (b) other than those which have been specifically targeted for priority increased provision by his Department, have been disproportionately affected in London; and if he will make a statement. [11845]

Jacqui Smith: The Department receives many representations from various sources and in various forms about the level of funding for social services in London and elsewhere.

Between 1996–97 and 2001–02 total provision made available by the Government for social services in London has increased by 28 per cent., including a 24 per cent. increase in the personal social services standard spending assessment. These substantial increases in provision demonstrate our commitment to London's social services.

Health Authorities (Efficiency)

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent estimates he has made of variations in the efficiency of health services across different health authorities; and if he will make a statement. [11067]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 31 October 2001]: The national health service performance indicators were published in July 2000, and can be found on the Department's website: www.doh.gov.uk/nhsperformanceindicators. This includes a comparison of the performance of health authorities across a number of different aspects of performance, including efficiency.

The information we have published shows there is variation in performance, including for day case rates, length of stay, and prescribing. Publishing comparative information of this sort is key to both improving performance and strengthening public accountability.

Staff Retention

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to improve the retention of staff working in the professions allied to medicine. [12157]

Mr. Hutton: "Meeting the Challenge" sets out our plans for developing and supporting allied health professions and the central role they have to play in delivering the NHS plan's key priorities. A copy has been placed in the Library. The NHS plan also introduced the improving working lives standard to ensure that national health service employers create well-managed, flexible working environments that support all NHS staff.

Nurses

Mr. Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proportion of nursing vacancies were filled by nurses trained (a) in the UK, (b) in the remainder of the EU and (c) elsewhere in each of the past five years for which figures are available. [12037]

Mr. Hutton: The information requested is not available centrally.

Correspondence

Mr. McLoughlin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he will reply to the letter from the hon. Member for West Derbyshire, dated 11 August, forwarded to him by the Department of Education and Skills on 21 August, and the reminder letters of 20 September, concerning training programmes for the managers of care homes. [11960]

Jacqui Smith: I replied to the hon. Member on 1 November.

Heroin Addicts

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many heroin addicts are receiving their heroin from the NHS; and what percentage that represents of the estimated total of heroin addicts. [12060]

Ms Blears: There are currently no centrally held figures on the number of deaths as a result of heroin abuse.

There were 2,943 deaths records in 1999 where drugs were recorded as a primary cause of death. However, the database from which these figures derive cover accidents and suicides involving drugs, as well as poisonings due to drug abuse and drug dependence, but not other adverse effects of drugs. The range of substances these statistics cover are wide, including legal and illegal, prescribed substances and over the counter medications such as paracetamol.

For each death the database includes every mention of a substance recorded on the death certificate or mentioned by the coroner.

The Department is developing a comprehensive strategy to reduce drug-related deaths which is to be launched shortly.

Health Campaigns

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of Government campaigns in the past 15 years in reducing the consumption of (a) alcohol and (b) tobacco. [12286]

Ms Blears [holding answer 2 November 2001]: The aim of the Department's health promotion campaigns on alcohol during the period in question has been to encourage sensible drinking and to promote knowledge of the risks of alcohol misuse. Current advice is that men should drink no more than 3–4 units of alcohol per day and women should drink no more than 2–3 units of alcohol per day. There has been a consistent increase in recent years of the proportion of drinkers who were aware of the sensible drinking advice: a rise from 54 per cent. in 1997 to 64 per cent. in 2000.

Our tobacco education campaign, launched in December 1999, is aimed at persuading smokers to give up and non-smokers, particularly children, not to start.

Between October 1992 and May 1994 a prospective controlled trial was conducted in four television regions in central and northern England. Evaluation showed that the campaign was effective in reducing smoking and preventing relapse but as part of a prolonged campaign. We concluded that anti-smoking TV advertising should be undertaken routinely as an essential component of any tobacco reduction strategy.

A number of different measures are in place to evaluate the effectiveness of the "Don't Give Up Giving Up" TV advertising campaign, which has been running since December 1999. Quarterly surveys of smoking attitudes and awareness of the campaign are being carried out and results indicate that the campaign is well recalled and is communicating effectively with the target audience.

There is a clear link between advertising and the number of calls to the helpline. In non-advertising periods there is a background level of around 1,000 calls per week to the helpline, this increases to approximately 4,000 a week when there is advertising activity.

The website "givingupsmoking.co.uk" has had over 4.4 million "hits" since its launch in December 1999.

Earlier this year the World Health Organisation, in partnership with the Centres for Disease Control and Prevention, published a report entitled "Smoking Media Cessation Campaigns from Around the World". The study evaluated the results of mass media campaigns from nine nations (including England) and six states from the United States of America. The report concluded that comprehensive media campaigns are working and that successful campaigns

"maintained a strong media presence for extended periods of time."

Lymphoedema

Mr. Shepherd: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what level of treatment for lymphoedema is available (a) nationally, (b) within the West Midlands and (c) in Walsall. [11998]

Mr. Hutton [holding answer 2 November 2001]: Data on the number of lymphoedema clinics across the United Kingdom are not collected either centrally or regionally.

We are aware of the following services available to patients in Walsall: Little Bloxwich day hospice has a full time specialist lymphoedema nurse who runs lymphoedema clinics; St Giles hospice has two lymphoedema nurses providing services.

Nuclear Accidents (Iodine)

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what stocks of iodine doses are held against the possibility of nuclear accidents. [12616]

Jacqui Smith: The exact figure is not held centrally by the Department as stocks are held in locations close to operating nuclear installations, however, I have been advised that nearly three million tablets were produced in 1998 and are held by the various parts of the nuclear industry throughout the United Kingdom including Ministry of Defence sites.

Partnership Grant

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much has been paid to local authorities in 2001–02 under the partnership grant; and how much is allocated for 2002–03. [12363]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 5 November 2001]: The partnership grant was last paid in 2000–01. It has been subsumed in the promoting independence grant, which amounts to £296 million in 2001–02 and is provisionally £862 million in 2002–03.

National Care Standards Commission

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many accountants there are in the planned establishment for the inspection function of the National Care Standards Commission; and how many have been recruited. [12342]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 5 November 2001]: There are no plans to recruit accountants within the inspection function of the National Care Standards Commission. The headquarters of the Commission has two posts requiring qualified accountants, one of whom has already been recruited. The Commission may seek external accountancy advice as necessary.

Clinical Negligence

Mr. Dobson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many claims for clinical negligence against the

NHS which went to trial were successful; and of these how many were (a) legal aid cases and (b) pursued on a no win, no fee basis, for the latest year for which figures are available; [11950]

(2) how many claims for clinical negligence against the NHS went to trial; and of these how many were (a) legal aid cases and (b) pursued on a no win, no fee basis for the latest year for which figures are available; [11949]

(3) how many claims for clinical negligence were (a) made against the NHS and (b) settled out of court; of these how many were (i) legal aid cases and (ii) pursued on a no win, no fee basis; how many went to trial; and of these how many were legal aid cases in the latest year for which figures are available. [11948]

Ms Blears [holding answer 5 November 2001]: Comprehensive data on the total number of clinical negligence claims are not collected centrally.

However, the national health service litigation authority handles clinical negligence claims made against the NHS under two risk pooling schemes, but only those at above certain values. Of the claims held by the NHS litigation authority on its database, there were 4,570 reported to the relevant NHS body in the year 2000–01.

The NHS litigation authority's database does not show whether cases are settled out of court or go to trial. However, the NHSLA estimates that approximately 95 per cent. of cases which they settle are done out of court. It is also not possible to distinguish from NHSLA data whether a case is funded by legal aid or under a conditional fee arrangement (no win, no fee). However, the NHSLA estimate that approximately 95 per cent. of all cases are legally aided, while the number being pursued under a conditional fee arrangement is limited to around a dozen.

Mr. Dobson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the total cost was to the NHS of clinical negligence cases in each of the last five years for which figures are available; and in each year what was the proportion paid in legal fees. [11953]

Ms Blears [holding answer 5 November 2001]: Figures on the amounts included in the National Audit Summarised Accounts for clinical negligence expenditure for the latest available years are as follows:

Year	£ million
1996–97	235
1997–98	144
1998–99	221
1999–2000	373

Source:
National health service summarised accounts for health authorities, NHS trusts and NHS litigation authority

Figures prior to 1996–97 are not available because clinical negligence was not separately identified in the accounts before that date.

Changes to accounting policies mean that these amounts are not directly comparable.

The summarised accounts do not show, and it is therefore not possible to break down, separately what proportion of these figures are for legal fees.

Mr. Dobson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what his latest estimate is of the annual cost to the NHS of a no-fault compensation scheme for clinical negligence. [11954]

Ms Blears [holding answer 5 November 2001]: There are no reliable estimates of likely costs of no-fault compensation.

No-fault compensation is among the issues now being considered by the Chief Medical Officer's advisory committee looking at the options for reforming the system for dealing with clinical negligence claims. The Department has recently commissioned Professor Paul Fenn, Professor of insurance policy at the University of Nottingham, to conduct a study evaluating the potential cost of alternative systems for compensating patients.

Mr. Dobson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many claims for clinical negligence were made against the NHS in each of the last five years, for which figures are available. [11951]

Ms Blears [holding answer 5 November 2001]: Comprehensive data on the total number of clinical negligence claims are not collected centrally.

However, the national health service litigation authority handles clinical negligence claims made against the NHS under two risk pooling schemes, but only those at above certain values. The NHS litigation authority does not hold data on whether a case is funded by legal aid or under a conditional fee arrangement (no-win no-fee). Of the claims held by the NHS litigation authority on its database, the information requested is set shown in the table:

Clinical negligence claims against the NHS

Year	All claims
1996–97	4,017
1997–98	6,711
1998–99	6,415
1999–2000	5,973
2000–01	4,570

Doctor Suicides

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the suicide rate was among NHS doctors in the latest 12 month period for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [12600]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 5 November 2001]: The information requested is not available centrally.

Avon Health Authority

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will estimate the proportion of the administrative budget of Avon health authority that will be transferred to (a) primary care trusts, (b) the Strategic Health Authority and (c) the regional Government office from April 2002. [12368]

Ms Blears [holding answer 5 November 2001]: Avon health authority is undertaking preliminary work on the transfer of budgets from the authority to those organisations that are assuming its functions. It is not, however, possible to provide robust estimates on final allocations until the functions and structures of each organisation are agreed in the new year.

Beta Interferon

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on the mechanism by which patients will be able to participate in the extended clinical trials of the beta interferon drug. [12344]

Ms Blears: We are currently holding discussions with the manufacturers to consider a range of options under which drugs for multiple sclerosis might be made available under the national health service. One option is a risk-sharing scheme which will evaluate their clinical and cost effectiveness, and until these discussions are concluded we cannot provide the information requested.

Overseas Doctors

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what disciplinary regimes overseas doctor applicants to the NHS will be subject to while employed in the UK. [12709]

Mr. Hutton: In order to practise in the United Kingdom, all doctors must be registered with the General Medical Council.

Overseas hospital doctors employed in the national health service are subject to exactly the same disciplinary regimes as all other doctors. Also, overseas doctors working as general practitioners in the NHS are subject to the same disciplinary systems as other GPs.

Prescription Charges

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to reassess the list of conditions exempt from prescription charges. [12721]

Ms Blears: We have no current plans to do so.

Mental Health Services

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many 24-hour mental health staff beds are in operation. [12768]

Jacqui Smith: Returns received indicate that there were approximately 4,300 24 hour staffed mental health beds at 31 March 2001. This is the latest date for which validated information is currently available.

24 hour staffed beds

		31 March 1999 position	31 March 2000 position	Additional 24 hour staffed beds from 1998–99 to 1999–2000	31 March 2000 position (adjusted for changes in definition, boundaries and errors)	31 March 2001 position	Additional 24 hour staffed beds from 1999–2000 to 2000–01
England		4,074	4,396	322	4,010	4,304	294
Northern and Yorkshire	Y01	938	1,074	136	872	829	–43
Trent	YO2	242	257	15	257	283	26
West Midlands	YO7	278	205	25	276	270	–6
North West	YO8	414	419	5	407	451	44
Eastern	YO9	313	439	126	439	557	118
London	Y10	774	881	107	703	832	129
South East	Y11	595	622	27	605	600	–5
South West	Y12	520	499	–21	451	481	30

Source:
Common Information Core 1998–99, 1999–2000, 2000–01

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many assertive outreach mental health teams are in operation. [12769]

Jacqui Smith: Returns received indicate that there were 173 assertive outreach teams in operation as at 30 June 2001. This is the latest date for which information is currently available.

Children's Homes

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many children were being looked after in children's homes in each year since 1997. [12706]

Jacqui Smith: The information requested is shown in the table.

Number of children looked after by local councils in England at 31 March 1997–2001[1]

Years ending 31 March	All children looked after	Children's homes
		Number	Percentage
1997	51,100	6,200	12
1998	53,300	6,100	11
1999	55,500	6,100	11
2000	58,100	6,300	11
2001	58,900	6,200	10

[1] Figures in this table exclude children looked after under an agreed series of short term placements

Source:
CLA 100
SSDA 903

NHS National Plan

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list the sponsors of the NHS national plan consultation leaflet and the public consultation to inform the NHS national plan. [12722]

Mr. Hutton: The Department funded the NHS national plan consultation leaflet and the public consultation to inform the NHS national plan. There were no sponsors involved.

Logos

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the cost was of developing the new logo for the Commission for Health Improvement. [12723]

Mr. Hutton: The cost of developing the logo for the Commission for Health Improvement was £2,115.

Prescription Pricing Authority

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the gross expenditure of the Prescription Pricing Authority was in relation to the monitoring of prescriptions in the last 12 months. [10781]

Ms Blears: The annual gross expenditure of the Prescription Pricing Authority for the financial year 2000–01 was £62,340,000. Included in this was the sum of £1,238,000 for monitoring patient compliance with the current prescription charging arrangements.

Chiropodists

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations he has received on behalf of independent private sector chiropodists and podiatrists in respect of the draft Health Professions Council Order; and if he will place them in the Library. [12782]

Mr. Hutton: We hope shortly to lay before the House a report on the outcome of consultations. We have no plans to publish individual responses, but their authors are free to do so.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what plans he has to amend the draft Health Professions Council Order to provide for independent private sector chiropodists and podiatrists to be represented on the Health Professions Council; [12783]

(2) if he will appoint a representative of independent private sector chiropodists and podiatrists to the Health Professions Council. [12781]

Mr. Hutton: No. There is scope on the Health Professions Council for one registrant member of each profession regulated by the council. The council will be able to recruit additional members to its committees including its professional advisory panels, and will be encouraged to cover all sectors of the professions.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what his assessment is of the level of expertise of chiropodists and podiatrists trained by the SMAE Institute. [12784]

Mr. Hutton: The assessment of qualifications for the purposes of state registration is a matter for the Chiropodists Board of the Council for Professions Supplementary to Medicine.

I can confirm however that officials have been facilitating meetings with the registered and unregistered sector, which includes the SMAE Institute, to open dialogue between the two sectors. An agreement was reached at the last meeting in October for the unregistered sector to submit their course documentation for assessment. So far no documentation has been received.

Cancer Services

Mr. Jack: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what his Department's target is, under the National Cancer Plan, for the number of CT scanners per thousand of the population. [11887]

Jacqui Smith: In 2000 there were approximately five machines per million head of population in England. By the time the investment programme in computer tomography scanners is completed in 2004 that figure will have risen to seven per million.

Mr. Jack: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on the criteria employed in determining which (a) hospitals and (b) cancer centres will receive help from the Cancer Capital Modernisation Fund CT Scanner Replacement Programme 2000 to 2003. [11886]

Jacqui Smith: The clear criterion announced in January 2000 was based on the age of the scanners in the national health service at that time. By 2004 all computer tomograpy scanners in the NHS will be no more than 10 years old.

No distinction was made in applying the above criterion between scanners for cancer centres and those for other hospitals.

Adoption

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many children were placed for adoption in each year since 1998 broken down by local authority as a percentage of the number (a) in care and (b) of the total population of 18 years and under. [12925]

Jacqui Smith: The information requested is shown in the table. The answer to part (b) of the question has been expressed as rates per 10,000 resident population aged 17 and under.

The numbers of adopted children increased from 2,200 in 1998–99 to 2,700 in 1999–2000 and 3,100 in 2000–01. This equated to 4.0 per cent. in the looked after population in 1998–99, 4.7 per cent. in 1999–2000 and 5.2 per cent. of the looked after population in 2000–01.

Number of looked after children placed for adoption at 31 March 1998 to 2001

England — Number, percentage and rates per 10,000 population

	1998			1999			2000			2001
	Number	% of all looked after children	Rate per 10,000 population	Number	% of all looked after children	Rate per 10,000 population	Number	% of all looked after children	Rate per 10,000 population	Number	% of all looked after children	Rate per 10,000 population
England	2,410	5	2	2,880	5	3	3,135	5	3	3,420	6	3
North East Shire Counties
Durham	15	3	1	15	3	1	10	2	1	35	7	3
Northumberland	20	6	3	20	6	3	10	3	1	10	3	1
Unitary Authorities
Darlington	[1]—	1	[1]—	5	4	3	10	9	4	15	13	7
Hartlepool	10	11	4	5	6	3	10	9	4	10	7	4
Middlesbrough	20	11	5	10	5	2	5	3	2	20	8	5
Redcar and Cleveland	10	4	2	10	6	3	15	9	4	15	9	5
Stockton On Tees	15	10	4	10	6	2	10	4	2	10	4	2
Metropolitan Districts
Gateshead	0	0	0	5	3	2	15	6	4	15	5	3
Newcastle Upon Tyne	40	10	7	45	10	7	25	5	4	40	9	7
North Tyneside	20	7	4	25	9	6	25	9	6	35	10	8
South Tyneside	5	2	2	10	3	3	25	8	6	15	5	4
Sunderland	35	9	5	40	10	6	40	9	6	45	9	7
North West Shire Counties
Cheshire	10	2	1	20	4	1	30	7	2	35	8	2
Cumbria	40	7	4	30	7	3	40	8	4	30	6	3
Lancashire	20	2	1	40	3	1	50	3	2	60	5	2
Unitary Authorities
Blackburn and Darwen	0	0	0	5	2	2	10	4	3	15	5	3
Blackpool	[1]—	1	1	10	4	3	5	2	2	30	10	10
Halton	0	0	0	5	5	2	10	5	3	10	5	3
Warrington	5	4	1	10	6	2	15	10	4	15	10	3
Metropolitan Districts
Bolton	30	10	5	15	4	2	25	8	4	25	8	4
Bury	5	4	2	10	5	3	5	4	2	5	3	1
Manchester	30	3	3	55	5	5	65	5	6	85	7	8
Oldham	5	2	1	20	7	3	15	5	3	20	7	4
Rochdale	20	11	4	25	10	5	20	7	3	15	6	3
Salford	20	5	4	30	6	5	30	5	5	35	6	7
Stockport	20	8	3	20	6	3	15	5	2	20	5	3
Tameside	15	7	3	10	5	2	15	5	2	25	10	5
Trafford	10	6	2	15	8	3	5	3	1	10	6	2
Wigan	20	6	3	15	4	2	20	5	3	30	7	4
Merseyside Metropolitan Districts
Knowsley	0	0	0	15	6	4	15	6	4	10	5	3
Liverpool	20	2	2	25	2	2	40	3	4	65	6	6
Sefton	10	4	1	10	4	2	10	3	1	15	5	3
St. Helens	20	8	5	25	9	6	25	10	6	30	11	8
Wirral	10	4	2	15	4	2	10	3	2	15	4	2
Yorkshire and Humberside Shire Counties
North Yorkshire	30	9	2	20	6	2	5	1	[1]—	15	4	1
Unitary Authorities
East Riding Yorkshire	[1]—	1	[1]—	10	5	1	10	5	2	20	10	3
Kingston Upon Hull	50	6	8	35	5	5	20	3	3	30	5	5
North East Lincolnshire	15	5	3	10	4	3	10	4	3	15	5	3
North Lincolnshire	20	10	6	5	3	2	10	4	2	5	3	2
York	15	13	4	10	7	2	20	14	5	10	7	3
Metropolitan Districts
Barnsley	15	5	3	15	4	3	20	6	4	15	4	3
Bradford	0	0	0	0	0	0	50	8	4	30	5	3
Calderdale	5	2	1	5	2	1	10	5	2	10	4	2
Doncaster	15	4	2	30	8	4	25	6	4	35	8	5
Kirklees	10	4	1	15	5	2	25	8	3	35	11	3
Leeds	65	5	4	60	5	4	55	4	4	60	5	4
Rotherham	25	7	4	25	7	4	25	7	5	25	6	4
Sheffield	35	7	3	40	7	4	50	7	5	40	6	4
Wakefield	10	3	2	15	3	2	10	3	2	20	5	3
East Midlands Shire Counties
Derbyshire	25	5	2	20	4	1	15	2	1	25	4	1
Leicestershire	10	4	1	10	4	1	10	3	1	10	3	1
Lincolnshire	10	2	1	50	10	4	65	13	5	85	16	6
Northamptonshire	35	6	2	35	6	3	45	8	3	35	6	2
Nottinghamshire	50	11	3	80	16	5	70	13	4	60	11	4
Unitary Authorities
Derby	[1]—	1	1	10	3	2	15	3	2	30	7	5
Leicester	35	8	4	35	8	4	40	9	5	25	5	4
Nottingham	70	11	10	60	10	9	65	11	10	90	14	13
Rutland	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	[1]—	8	1

Number of looked after children placed for adoption at 31 March 1998 to 2001

England — Number, percentage and rates per 10,000 population

	1998			1999			2000			2001
	Number	% of all looked after children	Rate per 10,000 population	Number	% of all looked after children	Rate per 10,000 population	Number	% of all looked after children	Rate per 10,000 population	Number	% of all looked after children	Rate per 10,000 population
West Midlands Shire Counties
Shropshire	10	7	1	20	11	3	10	5	2	5	4	1
Staffordshire	20	3	1	25	4	1	25	4	1	35	7	2
Warwickshire	5	2	1	10	3	1	15	4	1	10	3	1
Worcestershire	25	5	2	25	4	2	35	5	3	40	7	4
Unitary Authorities
Herefordshire	10	5	3	10	5	3	15	7	3	—	2	1
Stoke-On-Trent	—	1	1	20	6	4	20	6	4	15	4	2
Telford and Wrekin	15	8	5	5	4	2	10	5	2	—	1	1
Metropolitan Districts
Birmingham	75	5	3	70	4	3	95	6	4	80	5	3
Coventry	—	1	1	0	0	0	25	5	3	15	3	2
Dudley	10	4	2	10	3	2	10	2	1	20	6	3
Sandwell	20	4	3	15	3	2	10	2	1	20	4	3
Solihull	—	2	1	10	6	2	5	3	1	10	5	2
Walsall	0	0	0	25	7	4	25	7	4	25	6	4
Wolverhampton	—	1	1	10	3	2	20	5	3	30	7	5
South West Shire Counties
Cornwall	25	4	2	30	6	3	40	7	4	20	3	2
Devon	35	6	2	40	6	3	35	5	2	30	4	2
Dorset	10	3	1	5	3	1	15	5	2	5	2	1
Gloucestershire	—	1	—	15	3	1	15	3	1	—	—	—
Isles of Scilly	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0
Somerset	15	4	1	20	5	2	20	5	2	5	2	1
Wiltshire	5	2	1	10	4	1	—	1	0	5	2	1
Unitary Authorities
Bath and NE Somerset	0	0	0	5	5	2	—	1	1	—	3	1
Bournemouth	15	7	5	10	5	3	0	0	0	—	1	1
Bristol	15	3	2	25	4	3	30	6	4	25	5	3
North Somerset	10	7	3	5	5	2	15	11	4	10	6	2
Plymouth	10	3	2	10	3	2	20	5	3	20	4	3
Poole	10	9	3	—	3	1	—	2	1	5	4	2
South Gloucestershire	10	5	1	—	1	—	5	4	1	5	4	1
Swindon	5	4	2	—	2	1	10	5	2	5	4	1
Torbay	—	1	1	5	3	3	5	2	2	10	4	4
Eastern Shire Counties
Bedfordshire	25	8	3	20	6	2	25	7	3	20	6	2
Cambridgeshire	15	3	1	25	6	2	20	5	2	15	4	1
Essex	60	6	2	70	7	2	80	6	3	75	6	3
Hertfordshire	35	5	2	35	4	1	40	5	2	50	6	2
Norfolk	15	3	1	25	4	2	25	4	2	45	6	3
Suffolk	15	3	1	25	5	2	30	5	2	30	5	2
Unitary Authorities
Luton	10	5	2	10	4	2	15	5	3	10	3	2
Peterborough	15	5	4	15	5	4	15	4	4	30	9	8
Southend	15	5	3	15	6	4	10	4	2	10	5	3
Thurrock	5	6	2	10	7	4	10	5	3	10	6	3
Inner London
Camden	30	9	8	25	8	7	30	9	8	35	11	9
City of London	0	0	0	0	0	0	00	0	0	0	0	0
Greenwich	40	10	7	30	7	5	30	7	6	20	4	4
Hackney	10	2	2	10	3	2	20	4	3	15	3	3
Hammersmith and Fulham	25	8	8	20	6	7	20	5	6	25	6	8
Islington	—	1	1	25	5	6	15	3	4	15	3	4
Kensington and Chelsea	10	5	4	10	4	3	15	7	4	5	3	2
Lambeth	30	5	5	35	5	5	40	5	6	30	4	5
Lewisham	25	6	5	30	6	5	15	3	3	25	4	4
Southwark	—	—	—	15	3	3	35	6	6	50	8	9
Tower Hamlets	15	6	3	10	4	2	n/a	n/a	n/a	20	7	4
Wandsworth	25	7	5	15	5	3	20	6	4	20	5	4
Westminster	30	10	8	25	9	7	25	9	7	20	7	5
Outer London
Barking and Dagenham	—	1	—	10	5	2	10	3	2	10	3	2
Barnet	—	2	—	5	3	1	10	4	1	10	4	1
Bexley	10	5	2	10	6	2	10	6	2	15	8	3
Brent	15	5	3	15	5	2	15	5	3	15	5	3
Bromley	20	8	3	10	4	2	—	1	—	15	5	2
Croydon	30	9	4	15	5	2	20	5	3	15	4	2
Ealing	10	3	1	0	0	0	25	5	3	35	9	5
Enfield	—	1	—	20	7	3	25	10	4	25	9	4
Haringey	10	3	2	10	3	2	15	4	3	20	4	4
Harrow	5	5	1	15	8	3	10	5	2	10	4	2
Havering	0	0	0	0	0	0	10	5	2	—	3	1
Hillingdon	10	3	1	20	6	3	15	3	2	20	5	3

Number of looked after children placed for adoption at 31 March 1998 to 2001

England — Number, percentage and rates per 10,000 population

	1998			1999			2000			2001
	Number	% of all looked after children	Rate per 10,000 population	Number	% of all looked after children	Rate per 10,000 population	Number	% of all looked after children	Rate per 10,000 population	Number	% of all looked after children	Rate per 10,000 population
Hounslow	0	1	1	15	6	3	10	3	2	15	5	3
Kingston upon Thames	0	0	0	10	10	3	5	5	2	[1]—	4	1
Merton	0	0	0	[1]—	2	1	10	5	2	10	6	2
Newham	10	2	1	20	4	3	25	5	3	25	5	4
Redbridge	10	6	2	20	13	3	15	10	3	20	14	3
Richmond upon Thames	[1]—	2	1	[1]—	4	1	5	5	1	5	6	2
Sutton	20	19	5	10	6	2	10	8	3	10	6	2
Waltham Forest	[1]—	1	1	5	3	1	10	2	1	15	6	3
South East Shire Counties
Buckinghamshire	20	8	2	25	10	2	10	4	1	10	4	1
East Sussex	20	4	2	20	5	2	45	10	4	35	7	3
Hampshire	55	8	2	40	5	1	45	5	2	50	6	2
Kent	60	5	2	65	5	2	65	4	2	105	6	3
Oxfordshire	30	6	2	45	10	3	35	7	2	45	10	3
Surrey	45	7	2	85	13	4	55	8	2	50	7	2
West Sussex	40	6	3	40	6	2	35	4	2	40	6	3
Unitary Authorities
Bracknell Forest	5	8	2	5	10	3	10	14	3	5	10	3
Brighton and Hove	20	6	4	25	7	5	20	6	4	30	8	6
Isle of Wight	5	4	2	[1]—	1	[1]—	10	5	3	10	7	5
Medway Towns	5	2	1	25	8	4	35	11	6	15	5	3
Milton Keynes	10	2	2	25	8	5	n/a	n/a	n/a	5	3	1
Portsmouth	[1]—	1	1	10	5	3	15	6	3	15	6	4
Reading	[1]—	1	[1]—	[1]—	1	1	15	13	5	15	12	5
Slough	0	0	0	[1]—	3	1	5	4	2	15	9	5
Southampton	20	6	4	25	6	5	30	8	7	15	4	3
West Berkshire	5	5	1	5	5	2	[1]—	2	1	5	6	2
Windsor and Maidenhead	[1]—	5	1	[1]—	3	1	10	9	3	5	7	2
Woking	10	12	3	10	11	3	5	7	2	10	9	2

[1] Less than five (for numbers) or 0.5 (for rates or percentages)
Figures have been rounded to the nearest five
n/a = not available

Written Answers to Questions

Wednesday 7 November 2001

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

British Consulate (Punjab)

Ann Keen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress has been made to establish the British Consulate Office in Jallander, Punjab. [12540]

Mr. Bradshaw: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave my hon. Friend the Member for Leicester, East (Mr. Vaz) on 31 October 2001, Official Report, column 667W.

Visas

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many applications for a visa to visit family members in the UK were refused in each month since 1 October 2000. [13056]

Mr. Bradshaw: Statistical information on the number of family visit applications refused on a monthly basis is only available from those posts that provide monthly statistical information (107 largest posts in 2000 and 110 in 2001). These figures are as follows:

Month	Received	Refused
2000
October	11,850	2,022
November	14,334	1,897
December	12,470	1,283
2001
January	13,612	2,276
February	16,182	1,775
March	20,811	4,205
April	22,486	3,978
May	32,143	5,177
June	32,168	5,610
July	36,866	5,870
August	28,820	5,129
September	15,737	3,225
Total	257,479	42,447

The remaining posts submit information on an annual basis, which is not broken down into months. To answer this question for all 165 posts we would have to ask those additional posts manually to extract the information requested. This could be done only at disproportionate cost.

New Partnership for African Development

Dr. Tonge: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what financial commitments the Government have made to the New African Initiative; and if he will make a statement. [13120]

Mr. Bradshaw: The New Partnership for African Development (NEPAD—formerly known as the New African Initiative) will require a broad international response, ranging from support to some of NEPAD's programmatic elements to action in the EU, OECD, UN and other international forums. No specific financial commitments have yet been made.

The Prime Minister has appointed Baroness Amos as his Personal Representative in developing a G8 Action Plan for Africa to be adopted at the 2002 G8 Summit in Canada. The first meeting of G8 Heads of State Personal Representatives was held in London on 17–19 October. They agreed to consult widely with other development partners, with the private sector, civil society and international organisations. They have further meetings planned which will include dialogue with African partners. The elements in the Action Plan will be evolved in the context of these meetings.

Afghan Women (Suicides)

Dr. Tonge: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has (a) received and (b) made concerning the number of suicides among Afghan women. [13121]

Mr. Bradshaw: Although we have received no specific representations on this issue, we have, through our High Commission in Islamabad, made numerous and regular representations to the Taliban on women's rights in Afghanistan.

International Criminal Court

Mrs. Anne Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what arrangements are being made to publicise the United Kingdom's policies on international humanitarian law, with particular reference to the International Criminal Court. [13195]

Peter Hain: On 4 October the Foreign and Commonwealth Office issued a publication entitled "United Kingdom and International Humanitarian Law", whose appearance was timed to coincide with United Kingdom ratification of the Rome Statute establishing the International Criminal Court. The publication, which has been placed in the Libraries of both Houses, describes the United Kingdom's policy regarding the International Criminal Court itself, in addition to a number of other important areas of international humanitarian law.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Education Funding

Mr. Chaytor: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will list the proportion of total education spending on primary and secondary education delivered through (a) Education Standard Spending assessment allocations and (b) other central Government funding streams for each of the last five years. [10820]

Mr. Timms: The table provides the information requested. It compares funding through the primary, secondary and post-16 sub-blocks of Education Standard Spending with DfES grant funding through the Standards

Fund (DfES revenue grant only), School Standards Grant, Teachers' Pay Grants, Education Action Zone programme, School Budget Support Grant and Education Budget Support Grant.

Percentage

Year	Primary, secondary, and post-16 ESS sub-blocks	DfES grant funding
1997–98	99	1
1998–99	98	2
1999–2000	96	4
2000–01	91	9
2001–02	88	12

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills, pursuant to her answer of 26 October 2001, Official Report, column 456W, on education spending, what proportion of total spending on education was devolved to schools and colleges in each of the past 10 years. [12163]

Mr. Timms: The information requested is not available on a comparable basis across this period.

Performance-related Pay

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the total cost of performance-related pay is to date, divided between (a) payments to staff and (b) administration costs; how many teachers have received performance-related pay; how many teachers who applied for performance-related pay failed to meet the necessary criteria; and if she will make a statement. [11486]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 5 November 2001]: Over 200,000 teachers in England applied to cross the performance threshold in the first round, some 80 per cent. of those who were eligible to apply. Of these, nearly 195,000 were assessed as meeting the threshold standards and are now receiving over £400 million per year in associated pay increases.

The Department has contracts with Cambridge Education Associates (CEA) for the provision of threshold assessors and external advisers to governing bodies on heads' performance and with the Centre for British Teachers (CfBT) for training in threshold assessment and performance management. For the first round CEA contract costs have been around £22 to £24 million and CfBT contract costs about £12 to £14 million.

Free School Meals

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills in each local authority which retains grammar schools, what proportion of children received free school meals (a) in that local authority as a whole, (b) in each grammar school within the authority and (c) in other secondary schools within the authority, at the latest date for which figures are available. [11627]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 5 November 2001]: Information showing free school meals figures for grammar schools and other secondary schools for each local education authority is contained in the following tables.

It is not departmental policy not to release individual school data unless the school has had the opportunity to check it. Schools have not had the opportunity to check their free school meals data.

Number of pupils known to be eligible for free school meals in grammar schools and other maintained secondary school by government office region—January 2001

	Grammar schools				Other maintained secondary schools
	Number of schools	Day pupils	Number of pupils known to be eligible for free school meals	Percentage of pupils known to be eligible for free school meals	Number of schools	Day pupils	Number of pupils known to be eligible for free school meals	Percentage of pupils known to be eligible for free school meals
England	159	141,478	3,393	2.4	3,322	3,085,495	506,283	16.4
North East
Darlington	0	0	0	0.0	7	6,009	949	15.8
Durham	0	0	0	0.0	36	32,158	5,762	17.9
Gateshead	0	0	0	0.0	10	12,043	2,606	21.6
Hartlepool	0	0	0	0.0	6	6,679	1,726	25.8
Middlesbrough	0	0	0	0.0	11	8,572	3,070	35.8
Newcastle-upon-Tyne	0	0	0	0.0	21	18,071	4,573	25.3
North Tyneside	0	0	0	0.0	20	14,174	2,498	17.6
Northumberland	0	0	0	0.0	60	30,478	3,693	12.1
Redcar and Cleveland	0	0	0	0.0	13	10,352	2,361	22.8
South Tyneside	0	0	0	0.0	11	10,508	2,535	24.1
Stockton-on-Tees	0	0	0	0.0	13	12,793	2,557	20.0
Sunderland	0	0	0	0.0	17	19,837	5,956	30.0
North West
Blackburn with Darwen	0	0	0	0.0	9	9,501	2,469	26.0
Blackpool	0	0	0	0.0	8	7,824	1,721	22.0
Bolton	0	0	0	0.0	16	19,145	2,973	15.5
Bury	0	0	0	0.0	14	11,731	1,754	15.0
Cheshire	0	0	0	0.0	45	46,239	4,605	10.0
Cumbria	'—	'—	'—	'—	'—	'—	'—	'—
Halton	0	0	0	0.0	9	8,688	2,083	24.0
Knowsley	0	0	0	0.0	11	10,240	4,612	45.0
Lancashire	4	3,995	117	2.9	85	70,819	11,065	15.6
Liverpool	'—	'—	'—	'—	'—	'—	'—	'—
Manchester	0	0	0	0.0	23	23,477	10,286	43.8
Oldham	0	0	0	0.0	15	16,825	3,693	21.9
Rochdale	0	0	0	0.0	14	14,154	3,565	25.2

Number of pupils known to be eligible for free school meals in grammar schools and other maintained secondary school by government office region—January 2001

	Grammar schools				Other maintained secondary schools
	Number of schools	Day pupils	Number of pupils known to be eligible for free school meals	Percentage of pupils known to be eligible for free school meals	Number of schools	Day pupils	Number of pupils known to be eligible for free school meals	Percentage of pupils known to be eligible for free school meals
Salford	0	0	0	0.0	16	12,524	3,209	25.6
Sefton	0	0	0	0.0	22	20,676	4,093	19.8
St. Helens	0	0	0	0.0	12	12,159	2,331	19.2
Stockport	0	0	0	0.0	14	16,575	2,325	14.0
Tameside	0	0	0	0.0	18	15,368	3,096	20.1
Trafford	7	6,731	266	4.0	11	9,116	2,175	23.9
Warrington	0	0	0	0.0	12	13,833	1,400	10.1
Wigan	0	0	0	0.0	21	20,855	3,056	14.7
Wirral	4	4,350	237	5.4	19	19,831	6,219	31.4
Yorkshire and the Humber
Barnsley	0	0	0	0.0	14	13,134	3,240	24.7
Bradford	0	0	0	0.0	27	34,214	9,160	26.8
Calderdale	2	1,988	43	2.2	13	12,896	2,430	18.8
Doncaster	0	0	0	0.0	17	21,378	3,829	17.9
East Riding of Yorkshire	0	0	0	0.0	18	22,627	1,943	8.5
Kingston Upon Hull, City of	0	0	0	0.0	16	16,012	4,324	27.0
Kirklees	'—	'—	'—	'—	'—	'—	'—	'—
Leeds	0	0	0	0.0	43	47,168	8,482	18.0
North East Lincolnshire	0	0	0	0.0	12	11,735	2,421	20.6
North Lincolnshire	0	0	0	0.0	14	10,649	1,435	13.5
North Yorkshire	3	1,954	25	1.3	44	38,262	2,554	6.7
Rotherham	0	0	0	0.0	17	19,845	3,145	15.8
Sheffield	0	0	0	0.0	27	29,861	5,974	20.0
Wakefield	0	0	0	0.0	18	21,279	3,619	17.0
York	0	0	0	0.0	11	9,974	887	8.9
East Midlands
Derby	0	0	0	0.0	14	14,748	2,976	20.2
Derbyshire	0	0	0	0.0	47	47,828	5,109	10.7
Leicester	0	0	0	0.0	16	18,034	4,027	22.3
Leicestershire	0	0	0	0.0	54	44,659	3,081	6.9
Lincolnshire	15	11,987	213	1.8	48	32,006	3,482	10.9
Northamptonshire	0	0	0	0.0	60	49,192	5,285	10.7
Nottingham	0	0	0	0.0	20	13,910	5,168	37.2
Nottinghamshire	0	0	0	0.0	58	54,980	6,978	12.7
Rutland	0	0	0	0.0	3	2,255	113	5.0
West Midlands
Birmingham	8	6,694	333	5.0	69	62,345	22,554	36.2
Coventry	0	0	0	0.0	19	20,963	4,223	20.1
Dudley	0	0	0	0.0	22	19,938	2,995	15.0
Herefordshire	0	0	0	0.0	14	9,824	779	7.9
Sandwell	0	0	0	0.0	20	19,532	4,740	24.3
Shropshire	0	0	0	0.0	22	17,606	1,422	8.1
Solihull	0	0	0	0.0	13	15,586	1,875	12.0
Staffordshire	0	0	0	0.0	69	60,934	5,625	9.2
Stoke-on-Trent	'—	'—	'—	'—	'—	'—	'—	'—
Telford and Wrekin	2	898	10	1.1	11	9,280	2,023	21.8
Walsall	2	1,369	32	2.3	18	20,015	3,641	18.2
Warwickshire	5	3,180	31	1.0	32	29,478	2,462	8.4
Wolverhampton	0	0	0	0.0	18	16,541	3,710	22.4
Worcestershire	0	0	0	0.0	61	40,308	4,140	10.3
East of England
Bedfordshire	0	0	0	0.0	57	36,987	3,735	10.1
Cambridgeshire	0	0	0	0.0	31	31,023	2,425	7.8
Essex	4	3,014	23	0.8	75	83,237	8,578	10.3
Hertfordshire	0	0	0	0.0	86	75,824	5,605	7.4
Luton	0	0	0	0.0	12	12,077	3,251	26.9
Norfolk	0	0	0	0.0	52	44,383	4,759	10.7
Peterborough	0	0	0	0.0	13	12,961	2,271	17.5
Southend-on-Sea	4	3,726	88	2.4	8	7,641	1,401	18.3
Suffolk	0	0	0	0.0	78	53,033	5,566	10.5
Thurrock	0	0	0	0.0	10	8,126	1,243	15.3
Inner London
Camden	0	0	0	0.0	10	10,870	3,137	28.9
City of London	0	0	0	0.0	0	0	0	0.0
Hackney	0	0	0	0.0	9	7,921	3,514	44.4
Hammersmith and Fulham	0	0	0	0.0	8	7,181	2,374	33.1
Haringey	0	0	0	0.0	11	11,391	4,584	40.2
Islington	0	0	0	0.0	9	7,583	3,461	45.6

Number of pupils known to be eligible for free school meals in grammar schools and other maintained secondary school by government office region—January 2001

	Grammar schools				Other maintained secondary schools
	Number of schools	Day pupils	Number of pupils known to be eligible for free school meals	Percentage of pupils known to be eligible for free school meals	Number of schools	Day pupils	Number of pupils known to be eligible for free school meals	Percentage of pupils known to be eligible for free school meals
Kensington and Chelsea	0	0	0	0.0	4	3,665	1,164	31.8
Lambeth	0	0	0	0.0	10	7,213	3,011	41.7
Lewisham	0	0	0	0.0	13	11,661	4,621	39.6
Newham	0	0	0	0.0	15	17,469	7,839	44.9
Southwark	0	0	0	0.0	13	10,221	5,401	52.8
Tower Hamlets	0	0	0	0.0	15	14,087	9,173	65.1
Wandsworth	0	0	0	0.0	9	9,948	2,670	26.8
Westminster	0	0	0	0.0	8	8,021	2,635	32.9
Outer London
Barking and Dagenham	0	0	0	0.0	8	11,079	2,879	26.0
Barnet	3	2,531	26	1.0	18	18,542	3,279	17.7
Bexley	4	4,382	151	3.4	12	13,080	2,065	15.8
Brent	0	0	0	0.0	13	14,480	3,554	24.5
Bromley	[1]—	[1]—	[1]—	[1]—	[1]—	[1]—	[1]—	[1]—
Croydon	0	0	0	0.0	21	17,396	3,375	19.4
Ealing	0	0	0	0.0	13	13,940	4,355	31.2
Enfield	[1]—	[1]—	[1]—	[1]—	[1]—	[1]—	[1]—	[1]—
Greenwich	0	0	0	0.0	14	13,834	4,646	33.6
Harrow	0	0	0	0.0	10	8,874	1,556	17.5
Havering	0	0	0	0.0	18	15,904	1,766	11.1
Hillingdon	0	0	0	0.0	17	16,472	2,440	14.8
Hounslow	0	0	0	0.0	14	16,292	3,213	19.7
Kingston upon Thames	2	1,891	15	0.8	8	6,748	775	11.5
Merton	0	0	0	0.0	11	7,754	1,262	16.3
Redbridge	[1]—	[1]—	[1]—	[1]—	[1]—	[1]—	[1]—	[1]—
Richmond upon Thames	0	0	0	0.0	8	7,531	1,180	15.7
Sutton	5	4,629	51	1.1	9	9,951	1,081	10.9
Waltham Forest	0	0	0	0.0	16	12,980	3,887	29.9
South East
Bracknell Forest	0	0	0	0.0	6	6,022	289	4.8
Brighton and Hove	0	0	0	0.0	10	12,026	2,112	17.6
Buckinghamshire	13	14,513	179	1.2	21	18,703	2,035	10.9
East Sussex	0	0	0	0.0	26	27,807	3,635	13.1
Hampshire	0	0	0	0.0	71	70,564	4,628	6.6
Isle of Wight	0	0	0	0.0	21	11,920	1,989	16.7
Kent	33	29,140	634	2.2	72	63,852	8,475	13.3
Medway	6	5,988	186	3.1	14	13,849	1,764	12.7
Milton Keynes	0	0	0	0.0	11	12,058	1,438	11.9
Oxfordshire	0	0	0	0.0	45	38,271	3,641	9.5
Portsmouth	0	0	0	0.0	10	10,108	1,629	16.1
Reading	2	1,447	7	0.5	6	4,833	816	16.9
Slough	4	3,585	177	4.9	7	4,340	1,053	24.3
Southampton	0	0	0	0.0	14	12,235	2,110	17.2
Surrey	0	0	0	0.0	53	56,224	3,449	6.1
West Berkshire	0	0	0	0.0	10	11,747	556	4.7
West Sussex	0	0	0	0.0	39	42,818	2,962	6.9
Windsor and Maidenhead	0	0	0	0.0	13	10,207	573	5.6
Wokingham	0	0	0	0.0	9	10,758	509	4.7
South East
Bath and North East Somerset	0	0	0	0.0	13	12,273	969	7.9
Bournemouth	2	2,077	35	1.7	8	7,693	1,008	13.1
Bristol, City of	0	0	0	0.0	20	17,907	3,669	20.5
Cornwall	0	0	0	0.0	31	32,001	3,905	12.2
Devon	[1]—	[1]—	[1]—	[1]—	[1]—	[1]—	[1]—	[1]—
Dorset	0	0	0	0.0	37	29,245	1,807	6.2
Gloucestershire	7	5,407	100	1.8	35	32,758	2,575	7.9
Isles of Scilly	0	0	0	0.0	1	95	6	6.3
North Somerset	0	0	0	0.0	10	12,269	958	7.8
Plymouth	3	2,645	82	3.1	15	16,184	2,547	15.7
Poole	2	1,879	32	1.7	7	6,318	560	8.9
Somerset	0	0	0	0.0	39	30,787	2,773	9.0
South Gloucestershire	0	0	0	0.0	14	16,442	1,238	7.5
Swindon	0	0	0	0.0	10	11,561	1,084	9.4
Torbay	3	2,697	101	3.7	5	6,011	1,109	18.4
Wiltshire	2	1,668	8	0.5	32	26,363	1,820	6.9

[1] These local education authorities only have one specialist secondary school. It is Departmental policy not to release individual school level information unless the school has had the opportunity to check or confirm that information. Schools have not had the opportunity to check their free school meals data.

Departmental Staff

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many employees of (a) her Department and (b) agencies sponsored by her Department work in (i) London, (ii) areas benefiting from EU Objective 1 status, (iii) areas with Objective 2 status and (iv) other areas. [12244]

Mr. Ivan Lewis [holding answer 2 November 2001]: The number of permanent employees in the Department for Education and Skills (DfES) who work in:

(a) London is 2,037;

(b) areas benefiting from EU Objective 1 status is 1,134;

(c) areas with Objective 2 status is 129;

(d) other areas is 972.

711 permanent staff also employed by DfES work throughout the Government office network. A breakdown into the above categories could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

DfEs has no agencies.

High Quality Teaching

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how she will monitor expenditure on rewarding high quality teaching over the next three years; and if she will publish the results. [12310]

Mr. Timms: We are currently providing funding to support teachers' performance pay through special grants paid to local authorities. A requirement of special grants is that they are fully and properly audited. Auditors appointed by the local authority make certain that the funds are spent for the purposes for which they are paid. Local authorities are required to provide me with copies of these audits. The new special grant, providing £250 million to support performance pay across the period April 2002 to 2004, will be subject to these same audit requirements.

Ministerial Travel

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will list overseas visits undertaken by Ministers in the (a) Department for Education and Employment and (b) Department for Education and Skills since 1 May 1997. [12333]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The overseas visits undertaken by Ministers since 1 May 1997 are as follows:

Department for Education and Employment—Secretary of State: 18;

Ministers of State for Employment: 48;

Ministers of State for school standards: 5;

Minister of State for education and employment in the Lords: 41;

Parliamentary Under-Secretaries of State for school standards:4;

Parliamentary Under-Secretaries of State for employment and equal opportunities: 11;

Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for lifelong learning: 17;

Parliamentary Under-Secretaries of State for learning and technology: 4.

Department for Education and Skills—Minister of State for lifelong learning and higher education: 1;

Minister for school standards: 1.

All travel complied with the requirements of the "Ministerial Code" and "Travel by Ministers".

Qualified Teacher Status

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what minimum level of qualifications is required for teachers without qualified teacher status in maintained schools. [12365]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 5 November 2001]: Decisions on the suitability of the qualifications held by applicants for employment as teachers in maintained schools are matters for the professional judgments of head teachers taking into account the legal requirements of the Education (Teachers' Qualifications and Health Standards) (England) Regulations 1999 as amended.

Sixth Forms

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many schools have (a) opened and (b) closed sixth forms since 1997. [12403]

Mr. Ivan Lewis [holding answer 5 November 2001]: Since 1997 proposals have been approved to open 27 school sixth forms and close 13 school sixth forms.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many sixth forms have closed since 1997. [12973]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Thirteen proposals for the closure of school sixth forms have been approved since 1997.

Recruitment

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many people, with respect to Annexe A of her Department's press release "Recruitment to Teacher Training Hits Seven Year High" of 1 November, are already registered; and what estimate she has made of how many will be registered in the rest of the year. [13106]

Mr. Timms: The figures published on 1 November comprised the results of the Teacher Training Agency's annual survey of training providers. As in previous years, these included both the numbers of trainees recruited to courses up to and including 11 October 2001, and providers' estimates of the numbers expected to start training later in the 2001–02 academic year. The Agency's survey showed 28,966 recruits to training, including 1,719 people expected to begin their courses in the spring and summer 2002 terms.

The estimate of recruitment for 2000–01 that my right hon. Friend published on 20 November 2000 was 0.25 per cent. lower than final recruitment for that year.

Computer Crime

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many cases of computer (a) hacking, (b) fraud and (c) theft her Department recorded in (i) 2000 and (ii) 2001; and on how many occasions in those years computer systems have been illegally accessed by computer hackers (A) within and (B) outside her Department. [13143]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: There have been no detected cases of computer hacking, either by insiders or by persons outside of the Department in either 2000 or 2001. There were four cases of insider fraud in each of the years in question. There were three cases of theft of IT equipment by insiders from Departmental offices in 2000 and one case in 2001.

School Governors (Reports)

Vera Baird: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will reduce the level of detail required in the annual reports produced by school governors. [13252]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Yes, we shall. Earlier this year we consulted on reducing the requirements within both governor's annual reports and school prospectuses, and on the possibility of schools combining these two documents. Following that consultation, we are proceeding with streamlining the requirements and making it easier for schools that choose to do so to combine the two documents. We aim to amend the relevant regulations and send revised guidance to schools early in the new year.

Departmental Assets

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what stocks of (a) antiques, (b) paintings and (c) fine wines are held by her Department; if she will list such assets sold over the last three years together with the sale proceeds from such transactions; what plans she has to sell further such assets over the period of the current Comprehensive Spending Review; and if she will make a statement. [10847]

Mr. Ivan Lewis [holding answer 31 October 2001]: The stocks of antiques, paintings and fine wines held by the Department are as follows: There have been no assets sold over the last three years and there are no plans to sell further such assets over the period of the current Spending Review.

Site: Sanctuary Buildings, Great Smith street, London.

Assets: Suite of Cuban mahogany furniture, inlaid with holly, currently on loan to "The Lake District Art Gallery and Museum Trust" to provide conference room and office furnishings for Blackwell.

Value: Insurance value of £5,000

Site: Sanctuary Buildings, Great Smith street, London.

Assets: Six antique clocks, currently in secure storage.

Value: £500 each

Site: Sanctuary Buildings, Great Smith street, London.

Assets: 40 paintings and prints, currently on display throughout the building.

Value: Total value of £7,000

Site: Caxton House, Tothill street, London.

Assets: 118 paintings (mainly student works), currently on display throughout the building.

Value: Total value of £19,451.

Individual Learning Accounts (Bromley)

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many people in the borough of Bromley had individual learning accounts; how many account holders were the victims of fraud; and what plans there are to allow Beckenham account holders to complete the training plans they had begun. [12697]

John Healey: On the basis of the recorded postcode information available, by 31 October 2001, 12,015 people in the borough of Bromley had opened an individual learning account through the national framework launched on 4 September 2000.

The police have made 30 arrests in England involving four individual learning account (ILA) providers registered at the ILA centre. No allegations of fraud have yet been brought to court.

The individual learning account centre will continue to accept and process bookings for learning up until 7 December 2001, for all present members. The learning start date to which the bookings relate must be within six months of the date of booking. Learners do not have a deadline in which to complete an episode of learning.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan

Valerie Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if depleted uranium has been used by (a) US and (b) British forces in Afghanistan. [12694]

Dr. Moonie: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State on 5 November 2001, Official Report, columns 27–28W, to the hon. Member for North Tayside (Pete Wishart).

Service Pensions

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what the pension paid is to (a) a retired Gurkha and (b) a similar ranking British ex-service man, in money terms and as a percentage; [13013]

(2) if he will make a statement on how pensions are paid to retired Gurkhas. [13012]

Dr. Moonie: Because of their different engagements and career structures, comparing Gurkha and British solider pensions in this way is particularly difficult. 87 per cent. of Gurkhas are discharged in Nepal after 15 years' service and receive an immediate pension. British soldiers discharged at this time would receive no pension until they reached the age of 60.

The only British and Gurkha rank likely to be discharged at the same point of service is a Warrant Officer Class 1 after 22 years. In this instance, a Gurkha receives an immediate annual pension of £1,672, or 16 per cent. of the £10,283 paid to comparable British ex-servicemen. The difference reflects the Tripartite Agreement between the Governments of the United Kingdom, Nepal and India, and the cost of living in Nepal, where all Gurkhas are discharged. In the Nepalese economy, Gurkha pensions now compare favourably with professional salaries.

The way in which Gurkha ex-service men receive their pensions depends upon the region in which they live. Those based to the main population centres in Nepal are able to receive their pension either directly into bank accounts or from one of the three Pension Paying Offices in Kathmandu, Pokhara and Itahari. These are manned on a full-time basis and the majority of ex-Gurkhas opt to receive their pension this way.

Nepal has poor communications, however, and we recognise that the arrangements above do not cater for residents of the more rural and remote areas. For this reason, Gurkha pensions are also paid quarterly, in cash, via Area Welfare Centres. There are 24 of these located throughout Nepal, but concentrated near the main ex-Gurkha populations centres where there are often no banking facilities. Nepal's topography, inclement weather and poor infrastructure, means that it is inevitable that some pensioners will still have to undertake long journeys in order to collect their pension. These difficulties are minimised as far as possible and, where necessary, special arrangements are put in place to enable pensions to be collected on behalf of the sick or infirm.

A400M Project

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence to what extent the withdrawal by Italy from the A400M project will mean a change in contribution from the UK; and if he will make a statement. [12913]

Dr. Moonie [holding answer 6 November 2001]: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 6 November 2001, Official Report, column 130W. If Italy stands by the decision it took last month not to continue with the A400M programme at present, the total number of aircraft in the initial order will fall from 212 to 196.

The final price of the A400M aircraft has yet to be agreed with the contractor. While it is reasonable to assume that such a reduction in overall aircraft numbers will increase our contribution to programme costs, reductions achieved in other aspects of the price negotiation may counterbalance that increase. Accordingly, we do not expect to identify a discrete cost increase associated with Italian withdrawal, should that be confirmed in due course.

Future Aircraft Carrier

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much extra funding is needed for the next phase of the UK's Future Aircraft Carrier programme; and if he will make a statement. [11783]

Dr. Moonie: We are currently discussing the CVF procurement strategy with both candidate prime contractors, BAE Systems and Thales Naval Ltd. We hope to be in a position to make an announcement about the way forward in the next few weeks. It would, therefore, be inappropriate for me to comment on funding for the programme at this time.

Army Pensions

Mr. Greenway: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the compensation he proposes to pay to (a) Army pensioners, (b) Army widows and (c) estates which have wrongly had income tax deducted by his Department from their invalidity pensions. [13141]

Dr. Moonie: Individuals wrongly taxed receive a refund of tax and an extra amount as compensation for the delay. The Inland Revenue calls this additional payment a repayment supplement. The Income Corporation Taxes Act 1988 (Section 824) governs the way the Inland Revenue calculates the repayment supplement. The precise formula is set out in Statutory Instrument No 1297 of 1989.

Mr. Greenway: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what action he will take to identify (a) Army pensioners, (b) Army widows and (c) estates which have wrongly had income tax deducted by his Department from their invalidity pensions. [13140]

Dr. Moonie: Following the discovery of a taxation error affecting Army invaliding pensions in 1998, we have manually trawled through individuals' pension files, including widows and dependants, and publicised the matter through the ex-service organisations and the War Widows Association. This publicity has included articles in their journals and circulars. All those identified as being incorrectly taxed, except a small number currently under investigation, have received a full refund with compensation. The Ministry of Defence has no plans to undertake further action on this matter.

Territorial Army

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what criteria he uses to determine whether Territorial Army personnel are fit for role. [13142]

Dr. Moonie: Individual members of the Territorial Army (TA) are considered fit for role when they have completed two phases of training. Phase 1 is recruit training, which is either delivered in a two-week package or over a series of weekends. Phase 2 is to prepare them to a standard at which they can train with their unit, and this phase will vary in length depending on an individual's role and trade.

TREASURY

VAT (Home Repairs)

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library documents relating to studies concerning the lowering of VAT for home repairs and renovations undertaken by his Department in the last five years. [13058]

Mr. Boateng: It would be inappropriate to publish research relating to internal policy analysis, in accordance with exemption 2 of the code of practice on access to government information.

Excise Duties

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer in respect of offences concerning excise duties in the single market how many people were sentenced; what were the total of sentences passed, broken down by months; what the total sum of (a) court fines and costs and (b) compound settlements was; how many vehicles were seized; and how much was paid for restoration in (i) 1999–2000, (ii) 2000–01 and (iii) 2001–02 to date. [11172]

Mr. Boateng [holding answer 5 November 2001]: For vehicle seizures in 1999–2000, I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer the Paymaster General gave on 15 January 2001, Official Report, column 125W, and for 2000–01 and 2001–02, I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave him on 30 October 2001, Official Report, column 624W. Information for 1999–2000, in relation to excise duties or the single market, on how many people were sentenced, what the total of sentences passed was, broken down by months, what the total sum of fines, costs and compound penalties were is contained in the Customs and Excise annual report for 1999–2000, presented to Parliament in March 2000. The same information for 2000–01 will be published in the Customs and Excise annual report for 2000–01, which will be published shortly. The figures for 2001–02 are not yet available.

Customs and Excise

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many cases of strategic exports to (a) strategic and (b) other destinations were detected by HM Customs and Excise in (i) 1999–2000, (ii) 2000–01 and (iii) 2001–02 to date. [11163]

Mr. Boateng [holding answer 5 November 2001]: The number of detections of strategic and proliferation goods to sensitive and other destinations during the financial years 1999–2000 and 2000–01 were as follows:

	Number
To sensitive destinations
1999–2000	238
2000–01	188
To other destinations
1999–2000	245
2000–01	232

The figures for 2001–02 are not yet available.

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people were searched by HM Customs and Excise officers under section 164 of the Customs and Excise Management Act 1979 in (a) 1999–2000, (b) 2000–01 and (c) 2001–02 to date. [11176]

Mr. Boateng [holding answer 5 November 2001]: Figures for 2000–01 and 2001–02 are not yet available. In 1999–2000, HM Customs and Excise conducted 19,246 searches under section 164 of the Customs and Excise Management Act 1979.

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many cases of exports involving breaches of UN sanctions were detected by Customs and Excise in (a) 1999–2000, (b) 2000–01 and (c) 2001–02 to date. [11164]

Mr. Boateng [holding answer 5 November 2001]: The number of exports in breach of UN sanctions detected by HM Customs and Excise during the financial years 1999–2000 and 2000–01 were 27 and 38 respectively. Figures for 2001–02 are not yet available.

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what was the value of revenue evasion (a) generally, (b) of customs duties and (c) of common agricultural policy export refunds, that were prevented by HM Customs and Excise in (i) 1999–2000, (ii) 2000–01 and (iii) 2001–02. [11124]

Mr. Boateng: The total VAT and excise revenue evasion prevented by Customs and Excise in 1999–2000 was published in the Customs and Excise annual report. For the year 2000–01, the figure will be published in the Customs and Excise annual report that will be published in due course.

HM Customs and Excise does not calculate the revenue evasion prevented for customs duties and common agricultural policy export refunds.

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many (a) people were sentenced and (b) prison sentences were passed, broken down by month and what was the total of (i) court fines and costs and (ii) company settlements in respect of Customs and Excise non-fiscal prohibitions and restrictions in (1) 1999–2000, (2) 2000–01 and (3) 2001–02. [11131]

Mr. Boateng: This information can be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Terrorism (Departmental Spending)

Mr. Howard: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what (a) proportion and (b) amount of all spending by Departments on the action against terrorism he forecasts will be met in the current financial year from funds in the reserves; [10258]

(2) if he will provide a breakdown of the costs which he forecasts will arise over the current financial year as a direct result of the war on terrorism for each Department directly affected. [10294]

Mr. Andrew Smith [holding answer 26 October 2001]: It would be inappropriate to forecast the costs of operations and other related activities at this stage.

Railtrack

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the loss to UK pension funds of the suspension of shares in Railtrack. [8394]

Mr. Andrew Smith: The value of Railtrack shares at the time of administration was around £1.5 billion, and no institutional investor held more than 5 per cent. of the shares at the time of administration.

The Government are actively working with the board of Railtrack Group to assist shareholders in achieving fair value for assets they hold.

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he was told that a decision had been taken that Railtrack was to go into administration. [8395]

Mr. Andrew Smith: The Chancellor was informed of the decision that Railtrack would go into administration on Friday evening, 5 October.

Terrorist Finance Unit

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what additional expenditure he plans to make to support the work of the new asset tracking unit; how many staff it will have; and when it will be operational. [11268]

Mr. Andrew Smith: The costs of the terrorist finance unit will be met from within existing spending plans. It will initially have eight staff and is expected to become fully operational by 30 November 2001.

VAT

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many (a) persons registered for VAT, (b) repayment traders, (c) new VAT registrations and (d) VAT deregistrations there were and what the net increase or decrease in the register was in the financial years (i) 1999–2000, (ii) 2000–01 and (iii) 2001–02 to the most recent date for which information is available. [11376]

Mr. Boateng: The data for the information requested for the year 1999–2000 can be found in Customs and Excise annual report. Figures for 2000–01 will be published in Customs and Excise annual report in November 2001.

The latest information was placed in the House of Commons Library in September 2001 in the form of a VAT fact sheet, which is produced every four months.

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what proportions of average household expenditure were (a) taxable at the standard rate of VAT, (b) taxable at the reduced rate of VAT, (c) taxable at the zero rate of VAT and (d) exempt from VAT in (i) 1998, (ii) 1999, (iii) 2000 and (iv) at the most recent date for which information is available. [11371]

Mr. Boateng: The figures for 1998–99 are published in table C7 of the tables and statistics accompanying the Customs and Excise annual report. Figures for 1999–2000 are available on the Customs and Excise website www.hmce.gov.uk/general/about/index.htm.

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the cost was of each of the structural reliefs for VAT in (a) 1999–2000 and (b) 2000–01; and what his estimate is of the cost of each such relief in the current financial year. [11377]

Mr. Boateng: Estimates for 1999–2000 and 2000–01 were published in table A3.1 of the Budget Financial Statement and Budget Report.

Estimates for 2001–02 will be published in the annual tax ready reckoner at the time of the pre-Budget report.

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what was the total yield of (a) value added tax and (b) excise duty in each of the last four years. [11854]

Mr. Boateng: Receipts of value added tax and excise duty for the financial years 1997–98 to 1999–2000 are published in table A1 of the tables and statistics accompanying the Customs and Excise annual report for 2000.

Details for the year 2000–01 can be found in the national statistics publication "Financial Statistics", table 2.1D.

Working Families Tax Credit

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, pursuant to his answer to the hon. Member for the Isle of Wight (Mr. Turner) of 30 October 2001, Official Report, column 625W, on the working families tax credit, (1) how many applications have been selected for further inquiry; [12329]

(2) how many applications have been selected for further inquiry. [12668]

Dawn Primarolo: Since 1 April 2001, 18 WFTC applications have been referred for a full inquiry. Four inquiries resulted in child care being overpaid and the recovery of £4,201.88 of overpaid tax credits.

Equitable Life

Mr. Chope: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what advice was given to the Financial Services Authority about the Equitable Life Assurance Society; and when the FSA was given responsibility for the regulation of Equitable Life under the service level agreement dated 18 December 1998. [12822]

Ruth Kelly: I refer the hon. Member to the section of chapter 4 of the report of the Financial Services Authority headed "The Inheritance Period". Responsibility for the prudential regulation of the life insurance industry, including Equitable Life, passed to the FSA on 1 January 1999.

Mr. Chope: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he approved the terms and references of the FSA review of the regulation of the Equitable Life Assurance Society. [12821]

Ruth Kelly: The FSA review and its terms of reference were established by the board of the FSA. The terms of reference were published on 22 December 2000.

Mr. Chope: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will instruct the Personal Investment Authority ombudsman to resume investigation of complaints from policyholders of the Equitable Life Assurance Society; and if he will make a statement. [12846]

Ruth Kelly: The service provided by the PIA ombudsman is impartial and independent and the Treasury does not have the power to instruct the PIA ombudsman.

Under the current regime for regulation of investment business, established under the Financial Services Act 1986, the PIA ombudsman provides a complaints resolution service for customers of firms authorised by the PIA, including the Equitable Life Assurance Society. From 1 December 2001, the PIA ombudsman will be replaced by the Financial Ombudsman Service. However, the independence of the ombudsman will remain unchanged.

Mr. Chope: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer for what reasons Mr. Ronnie Baird and his team have no access to documents held by Equitable Life or its advisers in preparation of the FSA report on the review of the regulation of the Equitable Life Assurance Society. [12820]

Ruth Kelly: The terms of reference drawn up by the FSA board asked the review team to report on the discharge of its functions by the Financial Services Authority and the Personal Investment Authority. The review team had full access to files held by HM Treasury, the Financial Services Authority and the Government Actuary's Department. The review team did not deem it appropriate or necessary to extend the review to include obtaining access to documents in the possession of Equitable Life or any of its advisers. The report will be an important source of evidence to the independent inquiry being undertaken by Lord Penrose, which will be able to look carefully into the actions of Equitable over the years.

Euro Counterfeiting

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if the Pericles programme will cover euro-counterfeiting in the United Kingdom; and if he will make a statement. [12971]

Ruth Kelly: The Pericles programme will cover euro-counterfeiting in all member states, including the United Kingdom.

Counterfeiting of any currency is a serious criminal offence in the United Kingdom. The Government are committed to the principle of protection of the euro against counterfeiting, and to take action to support and supplement anti-counterfeiting measures with appropriate staff training and sharing of information. It is important that the United Kingdom should contribute to efforts to develop and share best practice among member states.

Pensions Mis-selling

Mr. Chope: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make it his policy that penalties imposed by the FSA on insurance companies for mis-selling should be a charge to shareholders and not to with-profits funds; and if he will make a statement. [12843]

Ruth Kelly: I refer the hon. Gentleman to paragraphs 11 and 12 of the Government's response to the Treasury Committee's ninth report 1997–98 session, "The Mis-selling of Personal Pensions", which was published by the Committee as its first special report on 12 January 1998.

Exercise Saif Sareea

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what requests were submitted to the Treasury from the MOD for funds for equipment upgrade for desert conditions relating to exercises in Oman; and if he will make a statement. [12970]

Mr. Andrew Smith: I assume that the hon. Gentleman's question relates to the recent UK armed forces' Exercise Saif Sareea 2 in Oman. The answer is none.

VAT Returns

Mr. Chope: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much money was raised by Customs and Excises in 2000–01 from penalties imposed upon VAT-registered traders for late returns of VAT forms; and what is the estimate for 2001–02. [12845]

Mr. Boateng: During 2000–01, penalties totalling £87 million were incurred by traders defaulting on their VAT payments. The amount incurred in 2001–02 will be lower, reflecting the sympathetic approach taken by Customs towards businesses affected by the foot and mouth outbreak, the reform of the penalty regime for businesses with a turnover of up to £100,000, and other recent initiatives to help small businesses to manage their VAT payments.

Economic Cycle

Mr. Howard: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what definition of the economic cycle he employs for the purpose of calculating the cyclically adjusted budget surplus or deficit; what his assessment is of the typical lengths of an economic cycle; and what assessment he has made of the (a) start and (b) end date of the last economic cycle. [12869]

Mr. Andrew Smith: The Treasury's methodology for assessing trend growth and the output gap is set out in the publication "Fiscal policy: public finances and the cycle", HM Treasury, March 1999.

Paragraphs 2.35 and 2.36 of Budget 2001 set out the assessment of the last cycle; this will be updated in the next pre-Budget report.

Landfill Tax Credits

Sue Doughty: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if the 65 per cent. indicative targets for diverting landfill tax credits towards sustainable waste management are mandatory; and if he will make a statement. [12984]

Mr. Boateng: The indicative targets for diverting landfill tax credits to sustainable waste management are not mandatory. In May this year the Government set the waste industry a challenging target of 65 per cent. of landfill tax credits to be allocated to sustainable waste management projects. The Government will review progress in forthcoming Budget reports.

Sue Doughty: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how the performance of organisations seeking to divert 65 per cent. of landfill tax credits towards sustainable waste management projects will be measured. [12985]

Mr. Boateng: Data on the allocation of contributions to projects under the landfill tax credit scheme are reported by environmental bodies to Entrust, the regulator of the scheme. The Government will review progress based on this information in forthcoming Budget reports.

Fuel Duty

Chris Grayling: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the latest submission from the Road Haulage Association on fuel duty. [12752]

Mr. Boateng: The Government are grateful for all representations and the Road Haulage Association's submission was read with interest. This will be considered in the context of the Chancellor's Budget judgment.

Climate Change Levy

Mr. Watts: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what impact the introduction of the climate change levy has had on the net tax paid by (a) manufacturing industry and (b) the service sector. [12817]

Mr. Boateng: The climate change levy package, including the reduction in employer NICs and support for energy efficiency investments, is expected to be broadly revenue neutral to manufacturing industry and to the service sector.

National Insurance

Lynne Jones: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many employees have been paying national insurance contributions in each year since 1995. [3069]

Dawn Primarolo: Estimates for the number of UK employees paying national insurance contributions (NICs) are given in the table.

Million

	Estimated number of employees paying NICs
1995–96	22.1
1996–97	22.6
1997–98	22.8
1998–99	23.6
1999–2000	24.1
2000–01	n/a

These estimates are based on the national insurance recording system. I regret that information is not yet sufficiently complete for 2000–01 to provide a reliable estimate.

This series reflects the increasing number of people in work who earn more than the lower earnings limit.

For 2000–01 and 2001–02, there should be a reduction in the number of employees paying NICs as the starting point for paying NICs has been increased and aligned with the income tax personal allowance. The benefit entitlement of employees who no longer pay NICs because of this change has been protected.

IT Contracts

Mr. Dobson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list the Information Technology contracts in excess of £500,000 let by his Department or its predecessor since April 1991, giving in each case the original estimated cost and original estimated completion date, the actual cost and actual completion date and the names of the contractors involved and consultants retained by his Department. [3509]

Ruth Kelly [holding answer 17 July 2001]: I have arranged for the information requested by my right hon. Friend to be placed in the Library.

Self-Assessment Forms

Mr. Chope: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much money was raised by the Inland Revenue in 2000–01 from penalties imposed for late returns by taxpayers of self-assessment forms; and what is the estimate for 2001–02. [12844]

Dawn Primarolo: For the Inland Revenue's accounts year November 1999-October 2000, receipts from self-assessment penalties totalled £33 million. Figures for subsequent accounts years are not yet available.

Corporate Tax Harmonisation

Chris Grayling: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on EU plans for the harmonisation of corporate taxes by 2005. [12747]

Dawn Primarolo: The Government's view is that fair tax competition is the way forward for Europe not proposals for tax harmonisation. The Government will not support any action at European level that will threaten jobs or the competitive position of British business.

Tax Credit System

Mr. Howard: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of problems that recipients of the tax credit system have in understanding the system; and what steps he will take to ensure that further reforms to the system are easily comprehensible to intended recipients in the lower earning quintiles. [12802]

Dawn Primarolo: The Government have established a comprehensive programme to monitor and evaluate the existing system of tax credits. Recipients' experiences with the current system are a part of this process and are being considered in the design of the new tax credits.

National Insurance Fund

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the balance of the national insurance fund was (a) in total and (b) above the Government Actuary's recommended margin (i) in April 2000 and (ii) in April 2001; and what is the forecast on the basis of plans for April 2002. [12651]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 5 November 2001]: I refer my hon. Friend to the report of the Comptroller and Auditor General—national insurance fund account 1999–2000 (HC446)—and the report by the Government Actuary on the drafts of the Social Security Benefits Up-rating (No. 2) Order 2000 and the Social Security (Contributions) (Re-rating and National Insurance Funds Payments) Order 2001 (Cm 4933).

These reports are available in the Library of the House.

Tax Evasion

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many staff in the Inland Revenue were devoted to (a) tax evasion in general and (b) offshore and international tax evasion in each year since 1996; and what his estimate is for 2001 and his plans for 2002. [12652]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 5 November 2001]: A substantial number of staff in the Inland Revenue work on countering tax evasion, but for very many of them this is only a part of their job. Similarly, staff dealing with offshore and international tax evasion may also handle domestic issues. I regret therefore that information is not available in the form in which my hon. Friend has asked for it.

Bee Diseases Insurance Ltd.

Mr. Chope: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if Bee Diseases Insurance Ltd. will be exempted from levy under the Policyholders Protection Act 1975; and if he will make a statement. [12760]

Ruth Kelly: Bee Diseases Insurance Ltd. would be required to pay a levy were one to be raised under the Policyholders Protection Act 1975. However, on 1 December 2001 the Financial Services Compensation Scheme (FSCS) will supersede the Policyholders Protection Scheme (established under the Policyholders Protection Act 1975). The Financial Services Authority has consulted on the rules for the FSCS and will be issuing the rules shortly.

Financial Services Authority

Mr. Chope: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what comments the Treasury made to the Remuneration Committee of the FSA on the reputation of the FSA after consultation, prior to the decision of the FSA to reduce the chairman's bonus in January; [12847]

(2) what conclusion the Treasury formed by December 2000 on the performance of the FSA since January 1999; and how this was communicated to the Remuneration Committee of the FSA. [13257]

Ruth Kelly: It would not be appropriate to disclose any information, opinions and assessments given in confidence in relation to public employment.

Inland Revenue

Mr. Goodman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer under what circumstances an employee of the Inland Revenue is permitted to make an inquiry about a person whose tax affairs were dealt with by another Inland Revenue office. [13216]

Dawn Primarolo: There are many circumstances in which an Inland Revenue officer may need to make inquiries about a taxpayer, some of whose affairs are dealt with by another office. For example, an officer dealing with a company's tax affairs may need information about individual directors. Or a formal inquiry into a tax return may be carried out at a different office from that which issued the return, depending on the availability of staff.

Staff are prohibited from making inquiries or searching for data about any taxpayer except in the performance of their official duties. But those duties may often take them across the boundaries of different offices.

Mr. Goodman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer under what circumstances an Inland Revenue inquiry about a person's financial circumstances is entitled to lead to further inquiries about that person's immediate relatives (a) generally and (b) in respect of their financial affairs. [13215]

Dawn Primarolo: In a formal inquiry into a tax return, an officer is statutorily entitled to ask for information which he requires in order to determine whether the return is incorrect and, if so, to what extent. Information about relatives may be relevant to that inquiry. For example, in a case where the business records are incomplete, the best way to measure the true level of income may be to estimate the taxpayer's expenditure. In that case, information about the cost of maintaining dependent relatives and their contribution to household expenses may be relevant, and may be legitimately required by the investigator.

The results of any inquiry into one family member may show that there is a risk of tax evasion by another. There is no bar on the Inland Revenue using that information in deciding whether to inquire into the tax affairs of the second family member.

Princess Diana Memorial Fund

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if the loss recorded in the Royal Mint annual report for 2000–01 includes a sum which is owed to the Princess Diana Memorial Fund. [12536]

Ruth Kelly: The loss recorded in the Royal Mint annual report for 2000–01 does not include any proceeds owed to the Princess Diana Memorial Fund.

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what sum from the proceeds of the minting of £5 coins in 1999 in memory of Diana, Princess of Wales has been paid over to the Princess Diana Memorial Fund. [12537]

Ruth Kelly: The sale of commemorative and collector coins in memory of Diana, Princess of Wales raised £7,393,000 by 25 July 2001. This will be used to offset voted expenditure on projects put forward by the Diana Memorial committee. It was never intended to pay the proceeds into the Princess Diana Memorial Fund.

The main projects are: a playground in Kensington Gardens, opened in July 2000; a walkway running through London's Royal Parks—Kensington Gardens, Hyde Park, Green Park and St. James' Park; a fountain in Hyde Park by the Serpentine, due to be built by summer 2003; and the establishment of eight Diana Nursing Teams, each led by paediatric nurses trained in palliative care, to work in the community providing support to children with life limiting conditions, and their carers, as an alternative to hospital based care.

The total cost of the park projects to date is £6,000,000. The Diana Nursing Teams cost £2,000,000 in 1999–2000 and £2,000,000 in 2000–01, and further expenditure is intended to continue and expand the programme in future years.

Royal Mint

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer for what reason the Royal Mint directed banks not to accept £5 commemorative coins from their customers, but to direct customers to the Post Office. [12336]

Ruth Kelly: A Royal Mint team was established in order to review the system for issuing and returning UK circulation commemorative crown coins. This was a result of growing concerns regarding the total volume of returns, a number of 25p (5 shilling) crowns mixed in with consignments of £5 crowns, abuse of the current distribution system and to monitor any counterfeits.

In order for the Royal Mint to log and analyse the returns we agreed with the UK banks and the Post Office that for ease of handling, processing and payment, all commemorative crowns should be returned via the Post Office. So, the UK banks were advised to refer customers wishing to repatriate crowns to their nearest post office whereby they can exchange them for goods and services.

Despite this agreement we continue to receive a small number of these crowns from some banks however, we are trying to encourage them to channel all returns via the Post Office.

This exercise is currently on-going and for the reasons outlined above we would not want to change the arrangement in the immediate future.

Social Security (Scotland)

Annabelle Ewing: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list the level of social security contributions in Scotland over each of the last five years (a) in total and (b) as a percentage of the United Kingdom total. [12173]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 2 November 2001]: Estimates of social security contributions relating to residents of Scotland can be found in the Scottish Executive publication "Government Expenditure and Revenue in Scotland, 1998–99".

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Fireworks

Mr. Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps she is taking to encourage compliance by the fireworks industry with the voluntary code of practice on the sale of fireworks prior to 5 November. [11507]

Miss Melanie Johnson: We have held discussions with representative bodies of the fireworks industry and some larger retailers to agree dates for this year's voluntary sales period and to consider its effectiveness. In addition we have asked LACOTS (Local Authorities Co-ordinating Body on Food and Trading Standards) to remind trading standards departments of the voluntary code. We intend to review the effectiveness of the agreement after the fireworks seasons, and I would be interested in any evidence about how well the code is working.

Sub-Post Offices

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what measures she is proposing to prevent more sub-post offices closing in the next 12 months. [12592]

Mr. Alexander: Implementation of the performance and innovation unit recommendations, all of which were accepted by the Government, will help to modernise and sustain the whole post office network. The Government are committed to providing transitional financial assistance to rural post offices and decisions on this will be taken following advice from the Postal Services Commission, which is expected later in the autumn. In addition, we have made available a £2 million fund to support volunteer and community initiatives to maintain or reopen post office facilities in rural areas where traditional services would otherwise close. £15 million of ring-fenced money has been earmarked for the Department for Transport, Local Government and the Regions to help sustain and improve post offices in deprived urban areas.

Universal Bank

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will make a statement on progress on the universal bank. [12589]

Mr. Alexander: Progress is being made on the detailed implementation for universal banking services and they remain on schedule for introduction when benefit payment migration begins in 2003.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the respective responsibilities are of her Department and the Department for Work and Pensions in relation to the universal bank. [12389]

Mr. Alexander: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions is co-ordinating the work to modernise the payment of pensions, benefits and tax credits along with the introduction of universal banking services. The DTI retains shareholder responsibility for Consignia and responsibility for sponsorship of the post office network.

Broadband

Mr. Peter Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what representations she has received on cross-border co-operation on broadband capacity purchasing from (a) Cumbria, (b) the Scottish Borders and (c) Dumfries and Galloway; and if she will make a statement. [12315]

Mr. Alexander [holding answer 5 November 2001]: In each of these pathfinder areas the authorities are working with local partners to develop the provision of broadband. Cross-border discussions have taken place, but there have been no specific proposals brought to my attention regarding capacity purchasing.

Mr. Peter Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what progress is being made towards connection of the UK's rural communities to broadband telecommunications networks. [12731]

Mr. Alexander [holding answer 6 November 2001]: The Government are working to make the broadband market more extensive and competitive. The market has developed so far to the point where over 60 per cent. of UK households are able to access one or more of ADSL, cable or wireless broadband technologies. We have already established the £30 million fund for RDAs and the devolved Administrations to develop schemes to extend broadband networks, and will announce a further range of measures in response to the recommendations of the broadband stakeholder group.

3G Technology

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what discussions she has had with the (a) Treasury and (b) Department for Transport, Local Government and the Regions concerning 3G mobile phone licences. [12411]

Mr. Alexander [holding answer 5 November 2001]: The Treasury was a member of the auction steering group that established the auction process leading to the award of the 3G licences. The Treasury and the Department for Transport, Local Government and the Regions were involved in the production of the information memorandum sent to prospective participants in the 3G auction.

My officials also liaise with the DTLR as necessary on planning issues affecting telecommunications, including those related to the installation of masts and other equipment for 3G networks.

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimates her Department has made of the increase in demand for mobile phone masts that will result from the implementation of 3G technology; and if she will make a statement. [12410]

Mr. Alexander [holding answer 5 November 2001]: The number of mobile masts needed for third generation mobile communications systems depends upon a wide range of assumptions about demand and technical issues. These are commercial decisions for the licensees. The Department is encouraging operators to minimise the number of installations needed by sharing facilities as long as this does not disproportionately reduce competition.

Retailer Code of Practice

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what plans she has to introduce a retailer code of practice; and if she will make a statement. [12359]

Miss Melanie Johnson [holding answer 5 November 2001]: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry announced on 31 October that she had asked the Director General of Fair Trading to seek to obtain undertakings from the four leading supermarket chains to comply with the code of practice on relations between supermarkets and their suppliers. A copy of her announcement and the Code have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Corporate Insolvency Liabilities

Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what measures she is taking to improve directors' awareness of their corporate insolvency liabilities. [12980]

Miss Melanie Johnson: The Insolvency Service has produced a guide which informs directors of companies what duties and responsibilities they have if their company is subject to insolvency procedures. The Insolvency Service has also ensured that the information provided by Companies House to the officers of newly formed companies contains details of the responsibilities they have while managing limited companies.

In addition, when my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry successfully applies to have an unfit director disqualified from acting as a director, or accepts an undertaking not to act in that capacity, a press release is issued in local newspapers and trade journals relevant to the insolvent company. This provides details of the director's misconduct complained of in the application to disqualify and this reporting assists greatly in the drive to increase the business community's awareness of the dangers of running a company while insolvent.

The company law review has made proposals for a more general codification of the duties of directors under company law and the Department is studying them.

Energy Consumption

Mr. Chaytor: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what plans she has in the next edition of the Digest of United Kingdom Energy Statistics, to publish disaggregated data for energy consumption by (a) the agricultural sector, (b) the public administration sector and (c) the commercial sector; and if she will make a statement. [12099]

Mr. Wilson: Energy consumption data by (a) the agriculture sector, (b) the public administration sector and (c) the commercial sector are published each July for the latest three years in the "Digest of UK Energy Statistics", copies of which are available in the Libraries of the House. Data for 1998, 1999 and 2000 appeared in Tables 1.1 to 1.3 in this year's edition, while data for earlier years are available in previous editions of the Digest.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Afghanistan

Mr. Dawson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what discussions she has had with the Governments of other countries bordering Afghanistan on the need to reopen their borders to Afghan refugees. [12683]

Clare Short: We are working closely with the UN and other donors to persuade all of Afghanistan's neighbours to open their borders. We continue to urge all neighbouring countries to adopt an open border policy and to allow those seeking refuge safe passage.

We should not underestimate the burden that refugees have placed on these countries. Pakistan and Iran in particular have provided generously for millions of refugees for many years. However, these neighbouring countries have the assurance that donors will provide generously for the care of these refugees. The UK has so far contributed £3 million to UNHCR for its work in the region—a combination of financial and practical support, including specialist personnel and shelter material. We are also supporting the work of a number of NGOs in neighbouring countries.

In addition, we have set aside £11 million for immediate short-term support to the poorer communities of Pakistan, especially those most directly affected by the influx of refugees from Afghanistan. On 18 October, I announced a further £15 million package to support the Government of Pakistan in its continuing reforms and in its efforts to alleviate the humanitarian crisis for Afghans.

Mr. Dawson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assistance she gives to the UN to enable it to co-ordinate properly the humanitarian operation; and how she will help the UN to fulfil its humanitarian goals in Afghanistan. [12680]

Clare Short: My Department has set aside £40 million to respond to the current crisis affecting Afghans in Afghanistan and in neighbouring countries. About £22 million has already been allocated to agencies for their work in the region to fulfil their humanitarian goals.

This includes £14 million to UN agencies. Our financial assistance is complemented by the provision of technical personnel, logistical, material and other practical support.

Co-ordination for humanitarian assistance is the responsibility of the United Nations Office for the Co-ordination of Humanitarian Affairs (OCHA), which has appointed a regional humanitarian co-ordinator based in Islamabad. We have provided £1 million to OCHA in response to the current crisis to support these co-ordination efforts. This includes the provision of technical personnel to set up a humanitarian information centre (HIC) that will collate and communicate humanitarian information on the needs and programmes to all concerned agencies. This contribution will also be used to increase the capacity of the offices of the UN resident co-ordinators in Turkmenistan, Uzbekistan, Iran, Pakistan and Tajikistan.

We have also provided £1 million to support the work of Mr. Lakhdar Brahimi as the UN Secretary-General's Special Representative for Afghanistan, who is charged with the responsibility of supervising the UN humanitarian effort in Afghanistan and negotiating the political settlement necessary to bring the conflict to an end.

Sierra Leone

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what non-governmental organisations and charities her Department supports in Sierra Leone. [12904]

Clare Short: Non-governmental organisations and charities directly supported by DFID in Sierra Leone are listed. This excludes those non-governmental organisations that receive assistance from the international organisations such as the humanitarian agencies of the United Nations, which DFID also supports.

NGOs supported by DFID in Sierra Leone

1. Action Aid
2. Adventist Development and Relief Agency Sierra Leone
3. CARE
4. Catholic Relief Services
5. Children's Aid Direct
6. Christian Aid
7. Concern Worldwide
8. Conciliation Resources
9. International Committee of the Red Cross
10. International Medical Corps
11. Lutheran World Federation
12. Marie Stopes
13. Medical Research Council/Sierra Leone
14. Mercy Ships
15. Rural Aid
16. Save the Children Fund
17. World Relief
18. World Vision.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if she will list her Department's spending in Sierra Leone in the last 12 months. [12905]

Clare Short: Since November 2000, DFID expenditure on the Sierra Leone programme has been as follows:

Sierra Leone programme	£ million
Security Sector (includes Police and Disarmament, Demobilisation and Reintegration programme)	11.645
Governance (includes support to Media development, Law Development, Anti-corruption, Governance reform and Elections)	1.838
Humanitarian Assistance	5.679
Budgetary Support	19.500
Other technical cooperation costs	1.936
Total	40.598

Departmental Publications

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much her Department spent on information literature, advertising and campaign material in the financial years (a) 1995–96, (b) 1996–97, (c) 1997–98, (d) 1998–99 (e) 1999–2000 and (f) 2000–01; and if she will make a statement. [12268]

Clare Short: We have since 1997 published all our major strategy documents, including all country and institutional strategy papers, as well as major consultation papers and speeches. Our publishing output has therefore expanded considerably.

We do not produce anything which we would regard as campaign material. Our spending on publications over the period in question is as follows:

Year	£000
1995–96	352
1996–97	318
1997–98	166
1998–99	347
1999–2000	570
2000–01	639

We do not have a specific advertising budget. However, the bulk of our paid advertising is in relation to recruitment advertising in newspapers and journals. This costs between £1 million to £1.2 million annually.

Democratic Republic of Congo

Mr. Colman: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment she has made of the (a) humanitarian situation and (b) situation of children in the Democratic Republic of Congo. [12322]

Clare Short: A recent Food and Agriculture Organisation (FAO) study on food security reported the DRC as having the world's most dramatic rise in malnutrition. This affects nearly two-thirds of the population. Infant and maternal mortality figures also continue to rise. With some progress on the peace process and a gradual improvement in access for humanitarian agencies, we have this year substantially increased the level of support for humanitarian work.

The children of the DRC have a particularly vulnerable status. School enrolment is low and three out of four of these children drop out before they are able to finish their education. We have been particularly concerned about the use of child soldiers in the conflict and have repeatedly called on all parties to respect the rights of the child and urge them to initiate disarmament, demobilisation and rehabilitation programmes for children. We will continue to monitor the situation and call for all parties to respect and promote the rights of the child.

Development Awareness

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what work has been undertaken by her Department with trade unions to promote development awareness. [11832]

Clare Short: Trade unions are one of the groups identified as a priority in our strategy paper on building support for development.

At the level of individual projects, we are supporting the Transport and General Workers Union (TGWU) to increase awareness and understanding of international development issues among workplace trade union representatives and the TGWU members.

We also support a project administered by Labour and Society International to develop new modules and teaching materials on the theme of international development for officials, educators and members of the Manufacturing, Science and Finance union (MSF).

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Lancashire Townscapes

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will list those industrial townscapes in Lancashire that are being considered by English Heritage for protection; and if she will make a statement. [10390]

Dr. Howells: English Heritage has proposed that the St. Mary's conservation area in Nelson should be extended and has requested that my right hon. and noble Friend the Minister for the Arts use her reserve powers for this purpose. My right hon. Friend is considering the request. I understand that English Heritage is funding a survey of historic and industrial towns in Lancashire to assist local authorities carry out their functions relating to the historic environment, including the designation of conservation areas. However, English Heritage has no current plans to ask my right hon. Friend to designate any further conservation areas.

Holocaust Memorial Day

Mr. Tony Clarke: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans have been made by (a) her Department and (b) institutions involved in the preparation for Holocaust Memorial Day 2002. [11275]

Dr. Howells: I refer my hon. Friend to the reply given by my hon. Friend the Member for Wallasey (Angela Eagle) on 1 November 2001, Official Report, column 851W.

Television

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will make a statement on the Government's policy in relation to the switchover to digital television. [12382]

Dr. Howells: The Government's policy, as set out in the White Paper "A New Future for Communications" is to complete the switchover to digital terrestrial television as soon as possible, and we believe that it is realistic to aim for the period 2006–10. On 12 October, we issued a draft action plan, which is a technical, consultative document aimed at the key stakeholders who will need to work together to make progress towards switchover. The draft plan sets out the issues on which action needs to be taken, both by the Government and by the industry; to enable and encourage take up of digital television, to identify who should lead on those issues, and to set target dates for delivery. We intend to publish an agreed plan by the end of the year.

Mr. Levitt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport by what date she expects (a) Channel 5, (b) digital terrestrial TV and (c) cable TV services to be available in the High Peak constituency. [12334]

Dr. Howells: (a) I do not expect the availability of analogue Channel 5 services to be increased because the priority is to use available spectrum for the development of digital terrestrial television (DTT). I understand, however, that these services are available in some areas of the High Peak constituency: coverage details can be found on Channel 5's website at: www.channel5.co.uk. (b) The BBC and ITC, who are responsible for the DTT transmission network, are considering, in consultation with Government and stakeholders, how to improve coverage of all DTT multiplexes across the UK and coverage information is available on the Digital Television Group website: www.dtg.org.uk. No date has been set for the provision of DTT throughout High Peak. (c) This is a commercial matter for the cable operators: I am not aware that any operator has plans to supply cable across the High Peak area.

Tourism Industry

Shona McIsaac: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will make a statement on the outcome of her recent meeting with senior leaders of the tourism industry. [13126]

Tessa Jowell: I, together with my hon. Friend the Minister for Tourism, Film and Broadcasting, met leading figures from the tourism industry on 10 and 11 October at Hartwell House in Buckinghamshire. This meeting was convened to discuss the immediate difficulties facing the industry in the wake of the foot and mouth outbreak and the terrorist attacks of 11 September, but also to agree the necessary programme for long term strategic reform of the industry to achieve more consistent high standards and better value for money.

The main conclusions for action from the meeting include: the urgent need for tourism bodies to review their programmes so as best to meet the needs of the current difficulties; the importance of acting in the new spirit of partnership between industry and Government; the creation of the CBI chaired voice for tourism, the Tourism Alliance; the need to focus public sector resources on improving co-ordination of marketing, rationalising tourism data collection so that it is more useful, improving the quality of product, strengthening service through improved training and skills and developing better tourist information, including through the use of the internet.

The following table sets these conclusions out in more detail.

Tourism Industry Seminar—Outcomes

	Who to lead	Timescale
Immediate short term action[1]
The London Tourist Board and the English Tourism Council have been asked to review their programmes, working with the industry, to meet the new circumstances. DCMS Ministers are ready to see more than £60 million already available directed to marketing to the domestic market. The hotel and major attractions industry are creating packages to offer to the domestic market. DCMS will chase progress and encourage and support co-operation of this sort.	Industry and associations, LTB, ETC, DCMS	Immediate
The British Tourist Authority is re-designing its overseas marketing campaign, in close consultation with key industry partners in the UK and overseas	BTA	End of October
Other measures which might provide effective assistance are being examined. The Industry has made a number of proposals.	DCMS	October
Ministers are strong advocates of and for the industry.	DCMS	October
Ministers and officials are in constant discussion with the tourism industry about the impact of the events in America.	DCMS	Ongoing
Medium term action[2]
We will create a voice for the tourism sector which reflects the diversity of its main core industries and ensures a coherent view is put to Government on key opportunities and issues of common concern.	CBI-supported Tourism Alliance	Launched October, starts November 2001
Ministers are ready to develop strong and more co-ordinated arrangements for the marketing of English tourism to the domestic market in response to the views of the industry. We are ready to concentrate public sector resources on three areas—marketing coordination, data gathering, and quality assessment. This will mean reducing support on other areas. Marketing co-ordination should have a strong private sector lead and embrace regional and local government spending.	DCMS, ETC and the industry to develop new arrangements.	First discussion at November Tourism Forum. New plan within six months.
We will strengthen regional arrangements. We are committed to closer marketing co-ordination at regional level, development of strong sub-regional brands, and implementation of TIC modernisation.	RDAs, RTBs and local authorities	Proposals to Secretary of State by end of November.
We are ready to develop a "Fitness for purpose" approach to better regulation of hotels and restaurants. The aim is to bring together the many regulatory controls, and make them into a basic and strong assurance to customers. Premises not meeting the standard would be improved or closed. Arrangements for modernising alcohol and entertainment licensing, and gaming, will go ahead in parallel.	DCMS with key Department and Local Government Association.	Report to Secretary of State by end December.
We will bring together the many sources of public sector data on tourism performance and trends and create a partnership with the private sector to give the industry and Ministers the information which is needed to decide policy, make investments, and improve service to the customer. The first step is to rationalise what is there at present and improve coherence and leadership. One objective will be to undertake a public attitude survey, and another to report annually. There will be a regional and local dimension to this but the first phase will look at national information and data.	DCMS, ETC, BTA	Prepare remit for Secretary of State's approval within one month.
We will follow a fresh approach to training and skills. Our ambition is to create a major new skills body embracing the major industries of the sector. It will drive an improvement in service quality and career opportunities. Ministers will back it strongly within Government and ensure a fair share of resources is available to support effective new arrangements.	Industry to convene, Ministers to back it in Government.	To be set up and seek recognition by Government by December.

Tourism Industry Seminar—Outcomes

	Who to lead	Timescale
We will ensure wide adoption of the productivity and performance improvement techniques emerging for the Government supported "Productivity for Profit" initiative.	Industry	Launched. Review in 2002.
We will build on the EnglandNet and other e-tourism initiatives to create a strong network of tourist information services and to encourage the take up by small and micro-businesses of electronic means of communication and booking.	ETC, DCMS, Industry, RDAs.	First stage by April 2002.

[1] Our approach will be to ensure Government and industry understands and appraises the impact of current challenges, co-ordinate public sector and private sector responses to those challenges, and for the public sector to make a direct contribution where that is justified.
[2] We will take this action in a new spirit of partnership between industry and Government. The industry will take the lead in modernising, improving quality and product development. Government will support where better regulation and co-ordination of public services is needed. Ministers will review in three months whether the current distribution of responsibilities supporting the joint programme is working well enough and will meet with industry again in six months to review the progress of the whole programme. All the initial action is to be taken within six months and further assignments then agreed at a further joint meeting with industry leaders.

Sport England

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport where Sport England receives its revenue from. [13016]

Mr. Caborn: Sport England receives annual grant in aid from my Department which amounted to £37.4 million in 2000–01. It also received income in that year of £9.2 million from other sources including operating receipts from the National Sports Centres and from the sale of publications.

Commonwealth Stadium

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the cost is of the compensation for the proposed use of the Commonwealth stadium in Manchester for the world athletics championships. [13015]

Mr. Caborn: There are no plans to use the city of Manchester stadium for the world athletics championships. Compensation to Manchester city football club, were the stadium to have been used for the 2005 world athletics championships, would have been a matter for commercial discussion between Manchester city council and the club.

BBC Knowledge

Mr. Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will introduce legislative proposals to apply the provisions of section 186 of the Broadcasting Act 1990 to BBC Knowledge. [12422]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 5 November 2001]: BBC Knowledge will move to the BBC's own multiplex on 8 November 2001, when it will automatically come under the provisions of section 186.

Treasure Act

Paul Goggins: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will announce the outcome of the review of the Treasure Act 1996. [13592]

Dr. Howells: The report on the Operation of the Treasure Act 1996: Review and Recommendations is being published today and I am arranging for copies to be deposited in the Libraries of both Houses.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Security Situation

4. Mr. Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on the security situation in Northern Ireland. [10851]

25. Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on the security situation in Northern Ireland. [10873]

Jane Kennedy: This year has seen, among others, the murders of Ciaran Cummings, the schoolboy Gavin Brett, the journalist Martin O'Hagan and 19-year-old Peter McNally. Up to 28 October, there have been 291 shooting incidents and 298 bombing incidents relating to the security situation.

Following advice from the Chief Constable about the involvement of the UDA, UFF and LVF, the Secretary of State specified these organisations on 12 October. The ceasefires of the other paramilitary groups are believed to be holding, although there is still a very real threat from dissident groups who want to destroy the peace process.

23. Mr. David Stewart: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what progress the Government have made towards normalising the security environment in Northern Ireland. [10871]

Jane Kennedy: Along with other measures, the Government have closed, vacated or demolished 43 Army installations since the ceasefires. On the basis of the Chief Constable's judgment that the IRA's decision to put a quantity of its arms completely beyond use represented a real improvement in the security situation, the Secretary of State announced that the following installations would also be demolished:

the observation tower on Sturgan mountain and one of the observation towers on Camlough mountain in South Armagh;

the supersangar adjacent to the helicopter landing site at Newtownhamilton Police Station; and the Magherafelt Army base.

Work to demolish all four installations has already commenced.

Decommissioning

6. Andy King: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what has been the impact of General de Chastelain's recent report on decommissioning on the implementation of the Good Friday agreement. [10853]

11. Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment he has made of the impact of General de Chastelain's recent report on decommissioning on the stability of democratic institutions in Northern Ireland. [10858]

27. Mr. McCabe: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on the impact of decommissioning on the permanence of devolved institutions in Northern Ireland. [10875]

Dr. John Reid: The Independent International Commission on Decommissioning's confirmation of the IRA's unprecedented act of decommissioning has facilitated the return of the UUP Ministers to the Northern Ireland Executive Committee and the re-election of the right hon. Member for Upper Bann (Mr. Trimble) as First Minister. As a result of these very positive developments, all of the political institutions should now be allowed to operate without impediment. The Government will in turn move ahead to implement the Weston Park package of proposals and its remaining commitments under the Belfast agreement.

7. Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what arrangements he will put in place to deal with decommissioning of illegally held arms after the expiry of the de Chastelain Commission. [10854]

Dr. John Reid: Only the period during which an amnesty may be provided expires in February next year, not the Independent International Commission on Decommissioning.

The political mandate for the IICD is in the Good Friday agreement—the total decommissioning of all paramilitary arms. We shall obviously consider the commission's statutory remit in the light of that and its advice on how best to achieve that key objective.

9. Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what progress has been made towards decommissioning. [10856]

Dr. John Reid: I welcome the recent report from the IICD verifying that the IRA has put a quantity of weaponry, including arms, ammunition and explosives completely beyond use. This is a significant development not only in terms of moving forward the decommissioning process but also in the context of the Good Friday agreement.

The commission also stated it would continue contact with the IRA representative in the pursuit of its mandate, the total decommissioning of arms.

All paramilitary groups should now build upon the progress that has been made on decommissioning and all should begin decommissioning too.

15. Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what recent measures have been taken to encourage paramilitary decommissioning in Northern Ireland. [10863]

Dr. John Reid: Following the recent discussion at Weston Park, the Prime Minister and the Taoiseach presented to all the constitutional parties a comprehensive package of measures, which they considered fair and balanced, and invited all parties to accept that as a way of moving the process forward. Decommissioning was one part of that package.

Since then, the Prime Minister and I have been working with all the parties to bring about the right climate for change.

17. Mr. Borrow: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on the prospects for further decommissioning of illegally held weapons. [10865]

Dr. John Reid: The total decommissioning of paramilitary arms is the remit of the Independent International Commission on Decommissioning.

The Government and all of the pro-agreement parties have said throughout the process that the details of the actual process should be left to the decommissioning commission.

In its recent report, the commission stated it would continue contact with the IRA in pursuit of that mandate.

It is hoped that further decommissioning events will take place in the future from both the IRA and also loyalist paramilitary groups.

Geraldine Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the impact of de Chastelain's recent report on decommissioning has been on the implementation of the Good Friday Agreement. [10819]

Jane Kennedy: I refer my hon Friend to the statement I made to the House on Wednesday 24 October in which I stated my belief that following the Independent International Commission on Decommissioning's confirmation of the IRA's unprecedented act of decommissioning, the Belfast agreement should now be implemented in its entirety and all the political institutions allowed to operate without impediment.

Rev. Martin Smyth: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what plans he has to extend the remit of the decommissioning body. [11991]

Jane Kennedy: The remit of the Independent International Commission on Decommissioning remains as set out in the international agreement between this Government and the Government of the Republic of Ireland, dated 26 August 1997; and there are no plans to extend it.

The period during which an amnesty may be provided expires in February next year. However, the political mandate for the IICD as set out in the Good Friday agreement—the total decommissioning of all paramilitary arms—remains. We shall obviously consider the statutory position in light of that and the Commission's own advice on how best to fulfil that mandate.

Mr. Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what specific reduced security measures have been enacted in Northern Ireland in response to the IRA's decision on 23 October to decommission. [11400]

Jane Kennedy: On the basis of the Chief Constable's judgment that the IRA's decision to put a quantity of its arms completely beyond use represented a real improvement in the security situation, the Secretary of State announced that the following installations would be demolished:

the observation tower on Sturgan mountain and one of the observation towers on Camlough mountain in South Armagh;

the supersangar adjacent to the helicopter landing site at Newtownhamilton RUC Station; and the Magherafelt Army base.

Work to demolish all four installations has already commenced and significant progress has been made.

RUC Reserve

8. Mr. Donaldson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what recent discussions he has had with the Chief Constable about the future of the full-time RUC Reserve. [10855]

Jane Kennedy: The Secretary of State and I have regular discussions with the Chief Constable on all manner of policing and security-related matters.

Peace Process

10. Fiona Mactaggart: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what plans he has for moving the peace process forward; and if he will make a statement. [10857]

20. Mr. Lloyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on the peace process. [10868]

Dr. John Reid: In the light of the considerable progress that has been made in recent weeks on decommissioning and in the operation of the devolved institutions, the Government will now work with the parties and with the Irish Government to move quickly ahead with the full implementation of the Good Friday agreement and also to pursue the measures set out in the Weston Park package of proposals.

22. Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland when he next expects to meet representatives of republican groups to discuss the peace process. [10870]

Dr. John Reid: I talk to and meet with representatives of all the democratically elected parties in Northern Ireland on a regular basis to discuss and make progress on the peace process.

Policing

12. Mr. Tony Clarke: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on the policing of groups and individuals who are not part of a ceasefire. [10859]

Jane Kennedy: The police continue to monitor the activities of such groups and individuals and, where warranted, make them amenable to the law.

Violent Crime

13. Sir Teddy Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on the level of violent crime in Northern Ireland. [10860]

Jane Kennedy: The term "violent crime" covers offences against the person, sexual offences and robbery. During the year 2000–01 a total of 24,323 violent crimes were recorded in Northern Ireland, an increase of 0.7 per cent. on 1999–2000. Overall, violent crime accounted for 20.3 per cent. of all recorded offences during 2000–01, an increase of 7.9 per cent. on the previous year. A rise in the number of robberies was the main reason for this increase, although on a positive front, there was an 11.8 per cent. decrease in recorded sexual offences. Actual figures for the current year are not yet available.

The Northern Ireland policing plan 2001–02 contains nine objectives for policing. In particular, the specific target relating to the detection rate for violent crime has been increased to 65 per cent. from the 50 per cent. target set for 2000–01. The Government are confident that the Chief Constable is doing everything possible within the resources available to him to reduce and deal with incidents of violent crime in Northern Ireland.

Parades Commission

14. Mr. Trimble: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on progress with the review of the Parades Commission. [10861]

Jane Kennedy: As part of the package following the Weston Park talks and the IRA's recent decommissioning of weapons, the Government have confirmed the time is right to proceed with a review of the way in which the Parades Commission operates. We plan to announce the details shortly.

Terrorist and Criminal Violence

16. David Burnside: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment he has made of the level of terrorist and criminal violence in Northern Ireland over the last three months. [10864]

Jane Kennedy: Terrorist violence over the last three months has remained at a significant level. The table gives a breakdown of that violence from 1 July 2001 to 26 October 2001. Statistics for criminal violence over the last three months are not readily available.

	2001
	July	August	September	October[1]	Total
Number of deaths	2	0	1	0	3
Number of shooting incidents	39	24	42	21	126
Number of bombing incidents	56	40	54	29	179

	2001
	July	August	September	October[1]	Total
Paramilitary style attacks
Casualties as a result of shootings	13	21	19	9	62
Casualties as a result of assaults	14	4	8	7	33

[1] To 26 October

Note:

Statistics relating to 2001–02 financial year are provisional and may be subject to minor amendment.

Paramilitaries

18. Mr. John Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what progress he has made on the disarming of paramilitaries. [10866]

Jane Kennedy: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland gave the hon. Member for the Isle of Wight (Mr. Turner), at column 273W.

21. Mr. Syms: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many incidents of violence attributed to (a) republican paramilitaries and (b) loyalist paramilitaries there have been since 1 January. [10869]

Jane Kennedy: The following table provides a breakdown of security situation statistics from 1 January 2001 to 26 October 2001.

	Attribution
	Loyalist	Republican	N/K	Total
Number of deaths	10	1	0	—
Number of shooting incidents	190	82	18	290
Number of bombing incidents	246	34	15	195
Paramilitary style attacks:
Casualties as a result of shootings	99	60	0	159
Casualties as a result of assaults	75	46	0	121

Note:

Statistics relating to the 2001–02 financial year are provisional and may be subject to minor amendment.

29. Ann Keen: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on the position of paramilitary organisations who are not committed to a ceasefire. [10877]

Dr. John Reid: The initial list of specified organisations was made on 30 July 1998. The current list comprises of the Real IRA, the Continuity IRA, the Red Hand Defenders and the Orange Volunteers. On 12 October, it was also necessary for the Secretary of State to add the UDA, UFF and the LVF.

This means that, among other restrictions, early released prisoners associated with those organisations can have their licences suspended and be returned to jail if they continue to engage in paramilitary activity in support of their organisations. Also, under the Terrorism Act 2000, provision relating to charges of membership will also apply.

Electoral Fraud

19. Lawrie Quinn: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland when he anticipates the new measures to combat electoral fraud will come into force. [10867]

Mr. Browne: It is our intention that all the measures proposed by the Electoral Fraud (Northern Ireland) Bill, which will provide the chief electoral officer for Northern Ireland with additional functions to address the problem of electoral fraud there, will be in force by May 2003.

Northern Ireland Executive

24. Brian White: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what discussions he has had with the Chancellor of the Exchequer with regard to the funding of the Northern Ireland Executive. [10872]

Jane Kennedy: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland has had no recent discussions with the Chancellor of the Exchequer on overall funding for the Northern Ireland Executive. He is, however, in regular contact with Treasury and Executive Ministers on a range of financial issues relating to Northern Ireland.

IRA Weapons

26. Mr. Robathan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment he has made of the number of weapons remaining in the hands of the IRA. [10874]

Jane Kennedy: For obvious reasons, it is not our practice to disclose such intelligence matters. I can, however, say that substantial amounts of illegal firearms, munitions and explosives are held by various paramilitary groups in Northern Ireland. That is why we continue to press all groups to decommission their arms.

Organised Crime Taskforce

28. Mr. Mahmood: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on the organised crime taskforce in Northern Ireland. [10876]

Jane Kennedy: The Government remain committed to tackling the organised crime problem in Northern Ireland. The organised crime taskforce and the agencies in NI are achieving good results.

This week has seen a number of successes against the organised crime gangs who operate in Northern Ireland. In the past two weeks, in two separate raids, £700,00 of drugs were seized and £80,000 of counterfeit goods were confiscated. Last week, a Customs and police operation seized 600,000 duty-free cigarettes, 150 kilos of tobacco, 6,000 litres of alcohol and a huge quantity of illegal fireworks, CDs, videos and counterfeit clothing.

International Terrorism

Mr. Blunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much he forecasts will be spent in the current financial year by his Department as a direct result of measures associated with action against international terrorism after 11 September. [11073]

Jane Kennedy: At this point in time the Northern Ireland Office has had no notable expenditure in relation to international terrorism as a direct result of 11 September, and there is no planned expenditure for the remainder of this financial year.

Remembrance Day

Mr. Donaldson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if the Chief Constable of the RUC issued a directive to his officers with regard to the wearing of poppies during the annual period of remembrance centred on 11 November; and if he will make a statement. [11943]

Jane Kennedy: The Chief Constable has not issued specific instructions in relation to the coming period of remembrance. Current instructions whereby officers may, on a voluntary basis, wear poppies on their uniform caps, still apply.

Departmental Buildings

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will estimate the total running costs for buildings used, owned or rented by his Department for each nation and region of the UK, and estimate the average cost per square metre for properties used by his Department as a whole, and by region and nation of the UK. [6789]

Dr. John Reid: The information requested is as follows:

	£
Total running costs	2,300,000
Northern Ireland	1,430,000
London	870,000
Total running costs per m^2	110
Northern Ireland costs per m^2	82
London costs per m^2	235

HEALTH

Departmental Properties

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list the number, value and location of properties newly leased in each of the last five years by his Department, broken down by leases by the Department itself, its next step, agencies and its non-departmental public bodies, differentiating between purchases made as a result of the creation of new bodies and those purchases made by established bodies. [7815]

Ms Blears: The table lists the number, value and location of properties newly leased in each of the last five years (1996–97 through to 2000–01) by the Department. They include and distinguish between the Department, its next step agencies and its non-departmental public bodies, differentiating between acquisitions made as a result of the creation of new bodies and those acquisitions made by established bodies.

Department of Health

Acquired by	Year	Number	Value (£ million)	Location
New bodies	1998–99	1	0.328	Bristol
Established bodies	1998–99	1	0.492	Cambridge
	2000–01	1	0.092	Manchester
Agencies
Established bodies	1996–97	1	0.086	Reading
	1998–99	1	2.277	Reading
	1999–2000	2	0.009	Kingswinford, Cambridge
	2000–01	1	0.039	Harrogate
Non-departmental public bodies
New bodies	1999–2000	1	0.029	London
	2000–01	12	1.785	London, Bristol Aylesbury, Shrewsbury, Bedford, Gloucester, Ashford, Northampton, Oxford, Wolverhampton, Easing, Welwyn Garden City
Established bodies	1996–97	2	0.035	Nottingham, Redhill
	1997–98	2	0.029	Bristol, Wigan
	1998–99	2	0.999	Bristol, London
	1999–2000	4	0.035	Newcastle, Bristol, Harrogate, Plymouth
	2000–01	8	2.669	London (3), Newcastle, Bristol, Chester, Birmingham, Jesmond

Note:
Value for leased accommodation is taken as the annual rent and service charge (based on the current annual cost) and for private finance initiative/public private partnership arrangements as the annual unitary charge (based on the current annual cost) and includes the cost of the provision of facilities management services.

Dental Treatment (Asylum Seekers)

Mr. Illsley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what recent guidance has been issued to regional and local health authorities and trusts regarding dental treatment for asylum seekers; [10948]

(2) what recent guidance has been given to (a) regional dental boards and (b) dentists regarding dental treatment for asylum seekers. [10949]

Ms Blears: The Department issued letters, in February 2000, to all local authorities and health authorities detailing the current position on prescription charges and national health service dental treatment for asylum seekers in February 2000. This explained that any asylum seeker who did not fall into one of the groups entitled to free dental treatment, for example those who are pregnant or aged under 18 (under 19 years if in full time education) would need to complete an HC1 claim form in order to receive a NHS charges certificate (HC2), but that arrangements were under review. From 1 April 2001 the national asylum support service would issue HC2 certificates on behalf of the Department to all the asylum seekers it supports. These arrangements are now in place, and HC2 certificates are issued where appropriate, along with the first support voucher. This has removed the need for separate HC1 claims.

Under current arrangements, health authorities are responsible for the dissemination of this information to dental practitioners.

Essentially, dentists can treat asylum seekers in exactly the same way as all other patients, judging their need to pay charges using the usual criteria.

Norwich Union

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS trusts have contracts with Norwich Union to provide healthcare premises; and what advice his Department has given to trusts on the marketing of private healthcare and health insurance products within such premises. [10018]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 29 October 2001]: The Department does not hold information on the number of national health service trusts with contracts with Norwich Union to provide healthcare premises.

The overwhelming majority of elective operations carried out in NHS trusts are performed on NHS patients. Although NHS trusts are permitted to generate income from providing facilities and staff to operate on private health policy-holders and self-pay patients, trusts must ensure that this private activity is not at the expense of their NHS work.

World Health Organisation Targets

Mr. George Osborne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if the Government are committed to achieving the targets set out in the World Health Organisation Charter on Transport, Environment and Health. [11080]

Jacqui Smith: Yes. In adopting in 1999 the World Health Organisation charter on transport, environment and health the Government confirmed their commitment to making transport sustainable to health and the environment, and to striving to implement the measures in the charter's plan of action, especially those aimed at attaining its health targets.

Our White Paper on transport defined the national framework for creating a better, more integrated transport system and tackling the problems of pollution and congestion. The subsequent 10-year plan set out the long-term spending plans for delivering the policies described there.

The United Kingdom is an active participant in the steering group set up to push forward implementation of the WHO transport charter, and is the lead actor for the charter's action point on public participation, public awareness and information.

Brain Injury

Mr. Berry: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what recent guidance he has issued in relation to (a) the recognition of acquired brain injury and (b) the planning of rehabilitation services for those with acquired brain injury; [11670]

(2) what plans he has to implement a national education and training programme for NHS staff on the rehabilitation and treatment of individuals with acquired brain injury; [11668]

(3) what plans he has to undertake a review of the provision of brain injury rehabilitation services within the United Kingdom. [11669]

Jacqui Smith: We have issued no recent guidance on either the recognition of acquired brain injury or the planning of rehabilitation services for those with acquired brain injury.

However, the national service framework (NSF) for long term conditions was announced in February 2001 by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State and will have a particular focus on the needs of people with neurological disease and brain and spinal injury. In addition, it is also likely to set general standards of care for people with other long-term conditions or chronic illness that are not already covered by other NSFs. The Health Committee report on head injury rehabilitation will be brought to the attention of the group developing the NSF.

We have also asked the National Institute for Clinical Excellence (NICE) to produce a clinical guideline for the initial assessment, management and first referral of patients with head injury. NICE will start work on the guidelines in November 2001.

Provision of brain injury services in Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland are matters for the devolved Assemblies.

Mr. Berry: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to introduce a national funding mechanism for the provision of brain injury vocational rehabilitation services. [11671]

Jacqui Smith: We allocate funding to health authorities on the basis of the relative needs of their populations. A weighted capitation formula is used to determine each health authority's fair share target of available resources, to enable them to commission similar levels of health services for populations in similar need. There are no plans to change this system.

It is for health authorities, in partnership with primary care groups/trusts and other local stakeholders, to determine how best to use their funds to meet national and local priorities for improving health, tackling health inequalities and modernising services.

Getting people back to functional independence following illness or injury is a high priority for the national health service. This year, with the Department for Work and Pensions, we are planning job retention and rehabilitation pilots to test the best ways of helping people with prolonged illness or disability to remain in their jobs. £12 million has been allocated to fund the pilots.

Mental Health Services

Mrs. Helen Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what alternatives are being considered to HSG(94)27 for providing auspices for inquiries into deaths in the mental health services; and when they will be introduced; [11912]

(2) what assessment has been made of the adequacy of HSG(94)27 in providing the auspices for inquiries into deaths in the mental health services. [11911]

Jacqui Smith: Circular health service guidance (94)27 has been an effective mechanism since 1994 for ensuring that thorough investigations are conducted into serious adverse incidents occurring in specialist mental health services. However, in the light of the Chief Medical Officer's report 'An Organisation with a Memory' and the implementation document 'Building a Safer NHS for Patients' published in April 2001, we are establishing a system for reporting, analysing and learning lessons from adverse incidents throughout the national health service. It is important that mental health services should be included in these arrangements.

The new system is currently being piloted and will be rolled out across the NHS from January 2002.

Guidance on the introduction of new arrangements will be issued early next year. In future, all serious service failures or dysfunction will be subject to a full local review to establish what went wrong, to learn lessons and to take appropriate action. In addition, the Department's investigations and inquiries unit will be informed and, in conjunction with the Commission for Health Improvement, will decide whether any further investigation is warranted.

Bed Blocking

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what criteria were used in determining which local authorities would receive additional social services funding to tackle the problem of bed blocking; and how the criteria differ between the councils targeted for extra help and the others. [12230]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 2 November 2001]: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave my hon. Friend the Member for Newcastle upon Tyne, Central (Mr. Cousins) on 30 October 2001, Official Report, columns 654–56W.

Overseas Treatment

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what measures he has put in place to ensure adequate after care for patients treated abroad; and what measures will be taken to ensure that a patient's GP can discuss a patient's case with a foreign hospital team where there is a language barrier. [12773]

Mr. Hutton [holding answer 6 November 2001]: Local commissioners will need to ensure that any contracts with foreign providers clearly specify the roles and responsibilities of each party, including pre-operative and post-operative care. It will be essential that there are clear and agreed protocols for transferring information between clinicians abroad and the United Kingdom, including general practitioners, and opportunities for UK clinicians to raise any concerns. All relevant medical records will need to be translated into English.

These and other points will be covered in guidance for the national health service on purchasing treatment for NHS patients overseas, which the Department will publish by the end of the year.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on what basis were (a) Portsmouth, (b) East Kent and (c) West Kent and East Surrey Health Authorities selected to test the treatment of NHS patients overseas. [12710]

Mr. Hutton [holding answer 6 November 2001]: The three test-bed sites were selected on the basis that all three have significant waiting time problems and are also located close to airports, ferry ports and train stations with connections to the continent.

Logos

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the cost was of creating the new logo for the (a) Social Care Institute for Excellence, (b) General Social Care Council and (c) National Care Standards Commission. [12777]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 6 November 2001]: The cost of creating the logo for the General Social Care Council was £16,000 and for the National Care Standards Commission £12,290. Both bodies followed procurement rules and tendered for the work. The Social Care Institute for Excellence is currently using an interim design produced in-house at a cost of £376.

Overseas Doctors

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what training overseas doctor applicants to the NHS will undergo before working on the wards. [12707]

Mr. Hutton [holding answer 6 November 2001]: Overseas doctors will be registered to practise medicine in the United Kingdom only if they have satisfied the General Medical Council that their language and clinical skills are of a sufficiently high standard to deal with patients safely.

All doctors have to compete for national health service posts at a level appropriate to their qualifications. There is an obligation for NHS employers to ensure that each doctor they take on (whether from Europe or from overseas) has the professional and communication skills necessary to carry out the duties of their specific post.

All non-UK doctors newly recruited to the NHS are entitled to attend an overseas doctors' induction course either before or shortly after starting in post. Courses are run by postgraduate deaneries at a variety of locations and are available throughout the year. During the course, doctors are familiarised with UK and NHS cultural and ethical issues, and taken through some of the more common NHS procedures. Individual trusts routinely run local induction courses covering issues specific to their area.

Germedic

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what contact his Department has had with Germedic Gmbh. [12712]

Mr. Hutton [holding answer 6 November 2001]: Officials met the chief executive of Germedic on 15 October and have spoken to him several times subsequently by telephone.

Care Homes

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) care homes and (b) care home places have been lost in each health authority in each financial year since 1997. [12730]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 6 November 2001]: The available information is in tables that have been placed in the Library. Table 1 shows year on year changes in the number of residential care homes and places in these homes, by local authority area. Table 2 shows year on year changes in the number of nursing homes and private hospitals and clinics and registered beds in these homes, by health authority area.

Allied Health Professions

Barbara Follett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether uni-professionals curriculum development and course approval for regulation purposes for allied health professions will continue to involve the professional and regulatory bodies. [13057]

Mr. Hutton: The Health Professions Council as the regulatory body for allied health professions has responsibility to set standards for education and training and to approve courses in accordance with those standards. In doing so it will be expected to work with professional bodies who provide the registrant members of the council. It will also be expected to safeguard essential uni-professional curriculum requirements but also to enhance professional training by exploiting the benefits of multi professional and shared learning where the subject matter is common across professions.

Chiropodists

Mr. Pickthall: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he is taking to enable the NHS to utilise the services of non-state registered chiropodists. [12439]

Mr. Hutton: Non-state registered chiropodists, also known as unregulated practitioners, are not allowed to practise in the national health service. However, we recognise that non-state registered chiropodists do have important skills to offer.

This is one of the reasons we are proposing to modernise the regulation of professional healthcare staff. From April 2002 a new Health Professions Council will be established and all those wishing to be able to practise in the NHS will be able to seek registration. The Council will require all practitioners to meet accepted standards of safe practice, and apply consistent, fair and appropriate measures to deal with practitioners whose practice falls short of those standards.

PRESIDENT OF THE COUNCIL

House of Lords

Mrs. Lait: To ask the President of the Council what plans he has for MSPs to sit in a reformed House of Lords; and when he expects to announce them. [9461]

Mr. Robin Cook: The Government are today publishing a White Paper expressing their views on the composition of a reformed House of Lords and are seeking comments on these proposals.

PRIME MINISTER

Tuition Fees

13. Mr. Illsley: To ask the Prime Minister if he will make a statement on the future of tuition fees. [10891]

The Prime Minister: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Education and Skills has announced a review of student finance, which will cover higher education tuition fees.

Energy Efficiency Week

John Barrett: To ask the Prime Minister what action his Department took in recognition of Energy Efficiency Week. [11514]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him by my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Secretary, Cabinet Office, on 6 November 2000, Official Report, column 203W.

Departmental Assets

Mr. Laws: To ask the Prime Minister what stocks of (a) antiques, (b) paintings and (c) fine wines are held by his office; if he will list such assets sold over the last three years together with the sale proceeds from such transactions; what plans he has to sell further such assets over the period of the current Comprehensive Spending Review; and if he will make a statement. [10836]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him by my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Secretary, Cabinet Office, on 6 November 2001, Official Report, column 204W.

European Delegations

Mr. Gardiner: To ask the Prime Minister if he will announce the composition of the United Kingdom Delegation to the Parliamentary Assembly of the Council of Europe and the Assembly of Western European Union. [13537]

The Prime Minister: The United Kingdom delegation to the Parliamentary Assembly of the Council of Europe and Western European Union is as follows:

Terry Davis Esq. MP (Leader)

Full Representatives

David Atkinson Esq. MP
Malcolm Bruce Esq. MP
Sir Sydney Chapman MP
Tom Cox Esq. MP
James Cran Esq. MP
Bill Etherington Esq. MP
Paul Flynn Esq. MP
Lord Judd
Baroness Knight of Collingtree DBE
Tony Lloyd Esq. MP
Jim Marshall Esq. MP
Chris McCafferty MP
Kevin McNamara Esq. MP
Eddie O'Hara Esq. MP
Lord Russell-Johnston
John Wilkinson Esq. MP
Jimmy Wray Esq. MP

Substitute Members

Janet Anderson MP
Tony Banks Esq. MP
Baroness Billingham
Lord Burlison
Ann Cryer MP
Michael Hancock Esq. CBE MP
Baroness Hooper
Rt. Hon. Lord Kilclooney
Khalid Mahmood Esq. MP
David Marshall Esq. MP
Alan Meale Esq. MP
Gordon Prentice Esq. MP
Geraldine Smith MP
Lord Tomlinson
Dr. Rudi Vis MP
Robert Walter Esq. MP.

TRANSPORT, LOCAL GOVERNMENT AND THE REGIONS

Working Time Directive (Road Transport Sector)

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what estimate he has made of the impact of the working time directive proposals on the pay levels of haulage workers. [9660]

Mr. Jamieson: The draft directive for mobile workers in the road transport sector is still subject to negotiation, so it would be very difficult to assess the likely impact of these proposals on levels of pay until the directive has been agreed. In any event, levels of pay for haulage drivers will remain a matter for negotiation between the employer and the employee.

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what assessment has been made of the impact of the Working Time Directive on the haulage industry; and if he will make a statement. [9658]

Mr. Jamieson: In March 1998, the Department of Trade and Industry published a regulatory assessment covering the costs and benefits of working time legislation. The assessment covered all sectors of employment in the UK, including excluded sectors such as the road haulage industry. A copy of the assessment was deposited in the Libraries of the House.

Since then, the Government have held regular meetings with both sides of industry to discuss the impact of the latest proposals on the haulage industry.

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what assessment he has made of the effect of the working time directive proposals to increase night-time working restrictions on day time traffic congestion. [9661]

Mr. Jamieson: From our regular meetings with industry, we are fully aware of the problem that an eight-hour limit for night workers is likely to have on daytime congestion. That is one of the reasons why the Government support the 10-hour figure included in the council's common position.

Vehicle Excise Duty Evasion (Stingray System)

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions when the Stingray system for combating vehicle excise duty evasion will be introduced in Scotland. [11182]

Mr. Jamieson: The mobile number plate reader camera system was launched in Scotland on 23 October. I wrote to Scottish MPs, MEPs and MSPs on 18 October, to inform them about this.

Air Traffic Control Centre, Prestwick

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions (1) what changes have been made to the proposed plans for the new air traffic control centre at Prestwick, following the delay in construction; [11245]

(2) when the building of the new air traffic control centre at Prestwick will recommence. [11246]

Mr. Jamieson: National Air Traffic Services (NATS) remains committed to investing in the New Scottish Centre (NSC) at Prestwick as part of its two-centre strategy. Following the downturn in demand for air travel arising from the events of 11 September, the Government have agreed to a proposal to delay construction of the NSC, though preparatory work on the building and system design will continue. It is not possible to be precise about the revised timing.

London Underground

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will place in the Library the terms of reference for evaluation of the PPP bids for the London Underground. [11612]

Mr. Jamieson: London Transport is carrying out a thorough evaluation of the value for money of the bids for the London Underground PPPs, in line with the relevant guidance produced by HM Treasury and Treasury Taskforce, copies of which are already in the House Library. London Transport is also working to ensure that when it evaluates final PPP bids it addresses the issues raised by the National Audit Office in its report "The financial analysis for the London Underground Public Private Partnerships".

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he has asked external (a) consultants and (b) organisations to evaluate the PPP bids for the London Underground once the final bids have been prepared; and if he will make a statement. [11613]

Mr. Jamieson: The Government's plans for a publicly run, privately built tube will deliver around £13 billion of investment to improve the underground's infrastructure over the next 15 years. The Secretary of State has made it clear that he will only be prepared for these plans to go ahead if he is content that they represent value for money.

London Underground is carrying out a thorough evaluation of all bids, assisted by its financial advisers PricewaterhouseCoopers and its engineering advisers Ove Arup. I understand that London Underground is also asking KPMG, its external auditor, to review the public sector comparators that London Underground has developed to guide its value for money evaluation.

In addition, Ernst & Young will be providing the Secretary of State with an independent opinion on London Underground's evaluation of the final PPP bids, focusing on the overall robustness of the value for money conclusions reached by London Underground and its advisers.

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will place copies of the letters of comfort issued in relation to (a) Railtrack and (b) the London Underground PPP in the Library; and if he will make a statement. [11606]

Mr. Jamieson: No such letters have been issued.

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what analyses of the impact of the discount rate on the value for money calculations on the London Underground PPP have been undertaken; and if he will place summaries in the Library. [11605]

Mr. Jamieson: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him on 5 November 2001, Official Report, column 9W. The value for money evaluation of the London Underground PPPs will be placed in the House Library, but not until London Transport has concluded its negotiations with bidders. To publish the value for money evaluation any earlier would reveal London Transport's negotiating position and so undermine its ability to achieve best value.

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what assessment he has made of the impact on London Underground fares of financing the tube improvements planned for the next 15 years by (a) PPP and (b) direct Government borrowing. [12219]

Mr. Jamieson: Fares for the London Underground are a matter for the Mayor. The value for money evaluation that London Underground is carrying out on PPP bids assumes that fares will do no more than keep pace with inflation whether tube improvements are financed under the PPPs or by direct Government borrowing.

Fire Deaths (Cigarettes)

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions how many people died in the United Kingdom in 2000 in fires caused by cigarettes. [11863]

Dr. Whitehead: The total number of people estimated to have died in fires caused by smokers' materials (ie cigarettes, cigars, pipe tobacco etc.) in the United Kingdom in 2000 was 140. Of these, 135 occurred in accidental fires in dwellings.

It is not possible separately to identify those fires that were caused by cigarettes.

Flood Defences (Yorkshire)

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will increase the provision for flood defences in future SSA calculations for the East Riding of Yorkshire. [11962]

Dr. Whitehead: The Government will increase SSA provision for authorities collectively up to the aggregate 4.2 per cent. increase for 2002–03 provided for in spending review 2000. To do more would mean unfairly limiting the increase in other parts of the environment, cultural and protective services SSA block. Of course, a local authority is able to increase spending on flood defence by more than this if it judges flood defence a high priority within its budget.

The Government are just completing a review of the funding arrangements for flood and coastal defence and a report will be published later this year.

Railway Assets

Mr. Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what progress has been made in compiling a register of the assets of the railway system infrastructure. [12048]

Mr. Jamieson: The compilation of a robust asset register is a complicated task and Railtrack has agreed a two-year rolling plan with the rail regulator for the continued development of asset management and decision support systems. The new licence condition requiring Railtrack to establish and maintain a register of the condition, capacity and capability of its assets came into force on 18 April, and the first two reporting dates have been met:

On 10 June Railtrack produced its initial guidelines to the asset register, to document the current state of asset data held and used, and identify gaps in service-critical data with plans to remedy these; and its committed development plans (eg the roll-out of its computerised maintenance information management system database).

On 1 October Railtrack produced the first two-year rolling plan for further development of the asset register up to April 2004.

Railtrack will continue to produce six-monthly progress reports, which will be used to monitor and review implementation of the asset register.

Railway Safety

Mr. Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions how many instances there have been of trains falling between rails that have spread apart in (a) 2000 and (b) 2001. [12047]

Mr. Jamieson: Figures provided by the Health and Safety Executive's railway inspectorate show that during the period 1 April 2000 to 31 March 2001 there were 29 derailments due to gauge spread. Figures for this type of incident were not collected prior to 1 April 2000. Figures for the current financial year, from 1 April 2001, will not be collated until next year.

Private Leisure Craft (Accidents)

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions how many accidents involving private leisure craft were caused by the consumption of alcohol in the last five years. [12262]

Mr. Spellar: No specific records are currently kept of accidents involving private leisure craft caused by the consumption of alcohol, but it is estimated that some 47 such incidents occurred in the last five years.

Council Houses

Mr. Cash: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions how many council houses for rent were held on 21 April 1991 in (a) Cannock Chase, (b) East Staffordshire, (c) Lichfield, (d) Newcastle Under Lyme, (e) South Staffordshire, (f) Stafford, (g) Staffordshire Moorlands, (h) Stoke on Trent and (i) Tamworth; and what the current equivalent figures are. [12567]

Ms Keeble: Council houses for rent held on 21 April 1991 and the current equivalent figures.

	Council houses for rent
	1 April 1991	1 April 2001
(a) Cannock Chase	7,743	6,675
(b) East Staffordshire	6,226	0
(c) Lichfield	5,686	0
(d) Newcastle under Lyme	10,621	0
(e) South Staffordshire	5,732	0
(f) Stafford	7,441	6,361
(g) Staffordshire Moorlands	3,674	0
(h) Stoke on Trent	25,412	22,329
(i) Tamworth	6,399	5,522

Mr. Cash: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions how many council houses for rent for each of (a) Cannock Chase, (b) East Staffordshire, (c) Lichfield, (d) Newcastle under Lyme, (e) South Staffordshire, (f) Stafford, (g) Staffordshire Moorlands, (h) Stoke on Trent and (i) Tamworth local authorities were transferred by a large scale voluntary transfer in each authority between 1 May 1997 and 31 August 2001. [12443]

Ms Keeble: Council houses for rent transferred by a large scale voluntary transfer in each of the following authorities between 1 May 1997 and 31 August 2001:

	Transferred
(a) Cannock Chase	0
(b) East Staffordshire	5,637
(c) Lichfield	0
(d) Newcastle under Lyme	9,887
(e) South Staffordshire	0
(f) Stafford	0
(g) Staffordshire Moorlands	3,132
(h) Stoke on Trent	[1]917

[1] Partial transfer only

Building Inspectors

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions how many recent complaints he has received about the work of approved building inspectors. [12646]

Dr. Whitehead: I receive a small number of complaints about the work of approved inspectors. If my hon. Friend has concerns about any particular aspects of their work, I hope he will write to me.

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will make a statement on the quality of work carried out by the National House Building Council as approved building inspectors. [12643]

Dr. Whitehead: NHBC Building Control Services Ltd. carries out building control on about half the new homes built for sale in England and Wales and on a substantial number of new homes built by registered social landlords. Local authorities carry out building control on the other new homes. I have no evidence that the quality of building control service provided by NHBC Building Control Services Ltd. is in general different from that provided in the new homes sector by local authorities.

Building Act

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what plans he has to bring into force section 38 of the Building Act 1984; and if he will make a statement. [12644]

Dr. Whitehead: I have no immediate plans to bring into force section 38 of the Building Act 1984. I keep all parts of the Building Act 1984 under review, and should a clear need to implement this section arise, I will do so.

Rail Services (London—North Kent)

Clive Efford: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will make a statement on how capacity on rail services between London and north Kent can be increased; how the electricity supply for rail lines between London and north Kent can be improved; and how the length of trains can be increased to 12 carriages on rail services between London and north Kent. [12551]

Mr. Jamieson: Twelve car operation from London to Dartford possibly through to Gillingham could be achieved by a combination of the implementation of Thameslink 2000, and as part of possible negotiations to extend the current Connex South Eastern franchise. This would increase capacity between London and north Kent. The parties concerned are aware of the need to improve the electricity supply on these rail lines and will work together in devising a suitable solution.

Private Rail Tracks

Mr. Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will take steps to ensure that private rail tracks are marked by signs placed at the border between the public rail network and private lines. [12325]

Mr. Jamieson: I understand from Railtrack that the public rail network is separated from private lines by fencing and barrier systems as appropriate. Where private lines cross over the public network, notification is provided of the type of barrier and signal process in place.

Local Government (Minority Party Representation)

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what guidance he gives to local authorities on the proportionality of minority party representation on committees; and what information he collates on the action taken by local authorities to observe his guidance. [12324]

Dr. Whitehead: Section 21(11) of the Local Government Act 2000 requires that where party groups have been declared, overview and scrutiny committees, and their sub-committees, must reflect the political balance of the local authority. My Department has issued local authorities with guidance on these requirements.

The only exception to this is where the local authority approves a different arrangement for the allocation of committee seats without any member present voting against, under section 17(1)(B) of the Local Government and Housing Act 1989.

All local authorities have been required to submit their constitutional proposals, including the rules for membership of overview and scrutiny committees, to the Secretary of State for consideration.

Planning Permission

Mr. Truswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what plans he has to introduce a third party right of appeal against the granting of planning permission. [12531]

Ms Keeble: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Hendon (Mr. Dismore) on 24 October 2001, Official Report, column 222W.

Rail Rolling Stock

Mr. Truswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what assessment he has made of the availability of new rail rolling stock; and if he will make a statement. [12534]

Mr. Jamieson: Ministers receive monthly progress reports from the Strategic Rail Authority regarding the delivery of the new rolling stock currently on order.

European Railways

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions, pursuant to his answer of 31 October 2001, Official Report, column 682W, on European railways, which TSIs are now being drafted; what work his Department has done to contribute to the scoping of the TSI drafting; if the directive will require the upgrading of main line routes in the UK to meet continental gauges; and what representations his Department has received from the rail industry about this directive. [12972]

Mr. Jamieson: Preparatory work has started on the first priority group of TSIs specified in article 23(1)(a) of the directive. This work is being led by the AEIF (the European Association for Railway Interoperability), which comprises representatives from the railway operating and manufacturing industries. The UK railway industry is well represented at all levels within AEIF. Member states' involvement in the TSIs at government level is through participation in the "Article 21 Committee" set up under the directive. This committee is responsible for approving the TSIs before they are adopted and can influence the contents of the TSIs throughout the drafting process.

We do not expect the TSIs to require the upgrading of UK main line routes to continental gauges. The directive provides for "specific cases" to be included in the TSIs to allow some existing national parameters, such as the loading gauge, to be retained in certain circumstances. We expect to seek appropriate specific cases in these respects. More generally, the directive provides for derogations from application of the TSIs in certain circumstances, including where their application would compromise the economic viability of the project and/or its compatibility with the existing rail system.

The rail industry has been consulted on the directive from its inception and has made wide-ranging representations on its scope and potential impact.

Jet-skis

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what plans he has to bring forward proposals to improve the safety of jet-skis in coastal waters. [12593]

Mr. Jamieson [holding answer 5 November 2001]: Although Government policy is generally that recreation should be self-regulating, recreational sailing or motor boats are subject to the international regulations for the prevention of collisions (COLREGS). To comply with the COLREGS vessels must be navigated in a safe and responsible manner.

In the UK, personal watercraft such as jet-skis are not covered by merchant shipping regulations because the UK's powers to make safety regulations apply to ships.

However the Government intend to amend the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 when parliamentary time allows in order that specified legislation, such as the COLREGS, can be applied to jet-skis. Contravention of the COLREGS is a criminal offence.

Building (Flood Plains)

Mr. Sayeed: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions how many houses were built on flood plains in the last year; and what percentage this is of the total number of houses built. [12888]

Ms Keeble: The latest information on new house construction and its relationship to flood-risk areas was published in "Land use Change in England: No. 16", in July 2001. This showed that in 1998 about 135,000 new dwellings were constructed, of which about 14,500 (11 per cent. of the total) were within the indicative flood plain as shown on maps published by the Environment Agency in December 2000. Many of the new houses in flood-risk areas were constructed behind adequate flood defences. For example 37 per cent. of new houses in London were in flood-risk areas that are largely defended to a very high standard as a result of the Thames Barrier.

For the 10 years from 1989–98, 9 per cent. of the land changing to residential use and 10 per cent. of the almost 1.4 million new dwellings built were within the indicative flood plains. This compares to the 12 per cent. of all land in England that is within the indicative flood plains.

Mr. Sayeed: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what estimate he has made of how many houses will be built on flood plains in the next (a) two, (b) five and (c) 10 years. [12890]

Ms Keeble: No such estimate can be made because of the wide range of factors affecting the future volume and location of house-building. However, we are continuing to monitor land-use change in relation to areas of flood-risk. Through the high-level targets published by the then Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food in 1999, we are also monitoring the responses of the Environment Agency to consultations on planning applications and whether decisions were in line with or contrary to their views. My Department is currently examining with the Environment Agency how the implementation and effectiveness of the flood-risk related policies in the new planning policy guidance note 25 issued in July 2001 on "Development and flood risk" can best be secured.

Railway Stations (Disabled Access)

Mr. Russell Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what action he is taking to ensure that adequate disabled access is being provided at railway stations in order to ensure compliance with the Disability Discrimination Act 1995. [12912]

Ms Keeble [holding answer 6 November 2001]: Access to railway stations for disabled people is covered by part III of the Disability Discrimination Act 1995. Since October 1999, service providers have been required to take reasonable steps to change practices, policies or procedures which make it impossible or unreasonably difficult for disabled people to use a service. From 2004, service providers will have to take reasonable steps to remove, alter or provide reasonable means of avoiding physical features that make it impossible or unreasonably difficult for disabled people to use a service.

My Department, with the Institution of Highways and Transportation and a number of other bodies, has commissioned guidance, which should be available early next year, on best practice in the design of public transport infrastructure and the pedestrian environment. This will help transport service providers to meet the duties imposed by the DDA.

In addition, the Strategic Rail Authority (SRA), which took over responsibility for protecting the interests of disabled passengers from the rail regulator earlier this year, requires that all licensed train operating companies publish a disabled people's protection policy describing their facilities and policies for passengers with disabilities. These policies are subject to approval by the SRA and must take account of the SRA's code of practice, "Train and Station Services for Disabled Passengers", a revised version of which was recently circulated for consultation.

Port Policing

Sir Teddy Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he has completed his review of the policing of ports; and if he will make a statement. [13107]

Mr. Jamieson: Work on this review is continuing and I hope that it will be completed early in 2002.

Commercial Floor Space

Mr. Chaytor: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what proportion of UK commercial floor space is provided by buildings which are (a) larger than 1,000 square metres, (b) larger than 500 square metres and (c) larger than 100 square metres. [12100]

Ms Keeble: We do not currently have UK floorspace broken down as requested. In England and Wales in 2000, there were 1,340,780 commercial and industrial hereditaments with a total floorspace of 568,909 sq m. (A hereditament is a rateable unit of property and corresponds mainly to groups of buildings, individual buildings or parts of buildings.)

More information is available in 'Floorspace and Rateable Value for Commercial and Industrial Properties 2000', a copy of which has been placed in the House Library. The data in the publication come from the administrative databases of the VOA.

Container Ports

Mr. Salter: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will make a statement on demand for container port capacity in the United Kingdom. [13518]

Mr. Jamieson: Our ports policy paper, "Modern Ports: A UK Policy", published last November, recognised a need to be better informed about developments in the UK port industry. The Department recently issued a discussion paper, "Recent developments and prospects at UK container ports", which notes that most industry forecasts point to an overall shortage of container movement capacity in the UK over the next 10 years. Market pressures are driving up the size and draught of container ships, which means that container facilities need to offer deep water with good tidal windows and ample manoeuvring room; there is only a limited number of sites capable of meeting these criteria. Market considerations, such as proximity to principal shipping lanes and markets, and other criteria such as transport access, including the availability of deep water concentrate demand in the south-east and east of England.

As indicated in "Modern Ports", the Government believe there are important national economic benefits in meeting the growth in demand. We recognise that this would require significant container port capacity increases in the south-east and east of England over the next few years. There are relatively few specific sites where such capacity can realistically be provided which meet the criteria previously noted. At the same time, we are well aware that some expansion proposals may have significant local environmental impacts and that these represent a challenge to which those proposing port development need to rise. Planning decisions will have to take due account of these considerations.

The discussion paper discusses recent trends and prospects for demand at container ports and how it might be met. Its purpose is not to discuss in detail all the issues which planning procedures have to address, but to promote a better understanding of the ports and shipping business, and of the demands which are now causing pressure on capacity. Copies of the paper are in the Library, and it is also available from my Department (EAMI Division, Zone 1/34, Great Minster House, 76 Marsham Street, London SWIP 4DR) and on the Department's website. A further consultation paper is planned discussing project appraisal criteria to be applied to port developments.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Fly Tipping

Mr. Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment she has made of the level of fly tipping in the countryside; and if she will make a statement. [6613]

Mr. Meacher: The fly tipping forum, under the chairmanship of the Environment Agency, has commissioned research to assess the problem of fly tipping on farmland. However, the survey, which is an essential part of the project, was suspended on the outbreak of the foot and mouth epidemic. The project will be carried out as soon as practicable.

The action being taken by the Government on fly tipping and other forms of unlawful waste disposal was set out most recently in the Government's response to the Environment, Transport and Regional Affairs Committee's report on the Environment Agency (Cm 4832—paragraphs 55–60).

Live Bovine (Ear Tag)

David Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what evidence she has received of a slaughter team in Yorkshire cutting off the ear of a live bovine in order to get an ear tag. [2799]

Mr. Morley: I replied to the right hon. Member by letter on 6 August 2001 and placed a copy of my letter in the Library.

Foot and Mouth

David Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) if she will use the veterinary laboratories at Stormont for foot and mouth blood testing as a supplement to Pirbright; [2739]

(2) what confidentiality or secrecy agreements temporary veterinary inspectors have to sign on joining her Department. [2759]

Mr. Morley: I replied to the right hon. Member by letter on 6 August 2001 and placed copies of my letters in the Library.

David Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans the Government have to assist small farms following the foot and mouth outbreak. [2555]

Mr. Morley: I replied to the right hon. Member by letter on 13 August 2001 and placed a copy of my letter in the Library.

Mr. Beith: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what her most recent assessment is of the impact of foot and mouth disease on the economy of rural Northumberland and its market towns. [4683]

Alun Michael: Foot and mouth disease restrictions have had a massive impact on rural economies. We have commissioned a study to help quantify the impact on a selection of areas typical of those affected, and Newcastle university is currently undertaking research specific to Northumberland.

Twelve market towns in the north-east, including Berwick-on-Tweed and six others in Northumberland, have been selected for inclusion in the market towns regeneration programme announced in the rural White Paper. This will help counter the effects of foot and mouth by providing a boost to the economies and communities of the towns and their rural hinterlands.

Mr. Beith: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what representations her Department has received in favour of treating the north of Northumberland as a foot and mouth disease free area; and if she will make a statement. [11085]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 30 October 2001]: The Department has received a number of representations on this subject. When the autumn movements arrangements were announced, Ministers said that foot and mouth free status would normally be gained on a county or unitary authority basis. However, it was also made clear that we would consider splitting counties between different foot and mouth disease status if circumstances warranted this. So far, this has been done only in Powys and north Yorkshire, but we are keeping other candidates, including Northumberland, under constant review.

Adam Price: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many of the cases of FMD in sheep in Wales were diagnosed on the basis of clinical symptoms alone; and how many were confirmed positive by laboratory tests. [9852]

Mr. Morley: Since the start of the foot and mouth disease outbreak, the number of infected premises in Wales which had sheep present totals 107. Of these 107 premises, 94 had laboratory tests conducted of with 54 returned positive results.

Notes:

1. The 107 premises noted above may have contained other animals as well as sheep.

2. A negative lab result does not mean that infection was absent. Each case is confirmed on the basis of a clinical diagnosis of foot and mouth disease by the vet on the farm, supported by convincing clinical evidence.

Source:

DEFRA Disease Control System database as at 1 November 2001. The figures may be subject to revision as quality assurance of data is carried out.

Adam Price: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what representations the Government have received about a public inquiry into the handling of the foot and mouth disease outbreak. [9850]

Hywel Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many representations she has received in favour of a public inquiry into the foot and mouth crisis. [9263]

Mr. Morley: The Government have received a number of representations from a variety of sources on this subject. These have mainly been from parish, district and borough councils.

Mr. Sayeed: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment her Department has made of recent research into the relationship between the number of animals slaughtered during the foot and mouth outbreak and the promptness of the implementation of a 24 hour slaughter policy. [7723]

Mr. Morley: The foot and mouth disease control policy is to slaughter all susceptible animals on infected premises within 24 hours of the infection being reported and, with allowance for limited local veterinary discretion, all susceptible livestock on contiguous premises within 48 hours.

The Department's implementation of the policy is likely to be one of the issues that will be examined by Dr. Iain Anderson's lessons learned inquiry.

Paddy Tipping: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many individual payments have been made to farmers following foot and mouth disease of (a) £1,000,000 to £1,999,999, (b) £2,000,000 to £2,999,999, (c) £3,000,000 to £3,999,999 and (d) in excess of £4,000,000. [11799]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 1 November 2001]: The information on individual payments to farmers that you requested is as follows:

	Number of payments
£1,000,000 to £1,999,999	56
£2,000,000 to £2,999,999	8
£3,000,000 to £3,999,999	3
In excess of £4,000,000	1

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many infected premises were identified in Powys in the foot and mouth outbreak. [R] [12834]

Mr. Morley: The number of infected premises cases in Powys is available on the DEFRA website www.defra.gov.uk. The website is updated daily.

As at 5 November 2001, there had been 69 infected premises in Powys.

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many contiguous culls were started more than 48 hours after samples had been collected from infected animals on the contiguous infected premise in Powys in the foot and mouth outbreak. [R] [12835]

Mr. Morley: The information requested is not available.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what powers the three inquiries into foot and mouth have to compel (a) Ministers and (b) officials to give evidence. [12612]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 6 November 2001]: Given their non-statutory nature, Ministers and officials may not be compelled by the two Government inquiries or the Policy Commission on the Future of Farming and Food to give evidence. However, Ministers and officials are expected to co-operate fully with the two inquiries and the policy commission and compulsion is not an issue.

Light Lambs

Mr. Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many lighter lambs the Government plan to buy in 2001. [6661]

Mr. Morley: Under the light lamb scheme introduced from September 2001, the Government are prepared to pay £10 for the buying up of light lambs for which there is currently no export market because of the foot and mouth export ban. This could cost up to £25 million in purchase costs but estimates of uptake are uncertain. The scheme will not operate in 2002 and we expect farmers to look into selling lambs into the food chain as their first priority.

Waste Disposal

Sue Doughty: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will take steps to ensure that incineration is only used to burn sorted, post-recycled waste and not mixed household waste; and if she will make a statement. [4149]

Mr. Meacher [holding answer 16 July 2001]: The Government have now set each local authority statutory targets for recycling and composting. In future, therefore, material burnt in municipal waste incinerator residues cannot be counted towards meeting the statutory recycling targets.

Sugar Beet Industry

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what support is to be given by her Department to the sugar beet industry over the next five years. [4494]

Mr. Morley: Support for the sugar beet industry is governed by the European Union's common agricultural policy (CAP) regime for sugar. A new regime was agreed at the May Agriculture Council and runs for five years from 1 July 2001. This maintains support prices for sugar and sugar beet at previous levels, but ends support for the storage of sugar. The regime will be subject to review at the beginning of 2003 on the basis of a Commission report and any necessary proposals. The Government's view is that the EU support for sugar needs to be put on a more sustainable basis.

Carcase Burial Site, Petrockstowe

Mr. Burnett: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will state, in relation to the carcase burial site at Ash Moor, Petrockstowe, (a) what the level of the water table is below the surface of the land and (b) whether a microbiological study has been conducted into the use of the land for the burial of animal carcases; if she will publish the environmental impact and risk assessments for the site and list the recommendations they made; which legal requirements were complied with before construction of the site started; what has been (i) the cost of work to date and (ii) the continuing cost of upkeep; what additional cost will be incurred if the site is brought into use for the burial of animal carcases; and if she will make a statement. [R] [10735]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 29 October 2001]: In relation to the burial site at Ash Moor, Petrockstowe:

(a) The level of the water table is 1.3, to 3.5 m below ground level.

(b) No. A microbiological study is not necessary as the only vectors for micro-organisms to travel from burial into the environment are in the leachate or gas. The environmental assessment describes how these vectors will be controlled.

The environmental statement will be published after local consultation. The document is currently in draft format and is being finalised prior to local consultation.

Prior to construction an Environment Agency risk assessment (available from the Public register at Exminster House, Miller Way, Exminster, EX6 8AS) was completed on 11 April 2001. EA authorisation under regulation 18(3)(a) of the Groundwater Regulations 1998 was granted on 12 April 2001. (Construction at Ash Moor started on 20 April 2001).

(i) £5.6 million is the cost of the work to date but this figure is subject to confirmation as negotiations are on-going with one of the contractors.

(ii) £20,000 per week is the continuing cost of upkeep.

If the site is brought into use for the burial of animal carcases the one off cost for one cell would be approximately £350,000. If three cells were used the cost rises to approximately £670,000 and if all cells were used the cost would be approximately £1,550,000. On top of this, there would be costs for odour controls, long-term maintenance and monitoring and testing. These are expected to be approximately £350,000-£400,000 per annum irrespective of the number of cells used. Such costs would fall after four or five years.

Compensation (Tuna Fishermen)

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what her policy is on compensation to UK tuna drift net fishermen for the withdrawal of their licences. [11591]

Mr. Morley: Funding available under Cornwall's objective 1 fisheries programme includes grants for the conversion of fishing vessels to more environmentally friendly fishing methods. Depending on the new fishing method chosen, conversion from drift netting could be treated as a priority under this scheme.

Those affected by the ban may also apply under the decommissioning scheme which I recently announced.

Livestock Markets

Mr. Liddell-Grainger: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans her Department has to support livestock markets in England and Wales to ensure that they have a viable future; and if she will provide financial aid and support for livestock markets to assist with the financial costs they are incurring due to additional cleaning and disinfecting measures that are in place. [10497]

Mr. Morley: The question of whether, and if so under what conditions, livestock markets will reopen is kept under review in the light of the developing disease situation.

Livestock markets are commercial operations, and there are no plans to offer them subsidies from the public purse.

Mr. Liddell-Grainger: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what long-term plans her Department has for local collection points at livestock markets; what plans she has (a) to help livestock farmers to off-set the costs of having their livestock collected at markets and (b) for assisting markets with the costs they incur in acting as collection points. [10499]

Mr. Morley: The question of whether, and if so under what conditions, livestock markets will reopen is kept under review in the light of the developing disease situation.

There are no plans to offer subsidies (a) to farmers to offset the cost of having livestock collected at markets or (b) to markets to offset costs incurred in acting as collecting points.

Devolved Administrations

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what her policy is with regard to (a) Ministers and (b) officials in her Department giving evidence to (i) Scottish Parliament, (ii) Welsh Assembly and (iii) Northern Ireland Assembly Committees; and to what categories of document she gives (A) full access, (B) restricted access and (C) no access to (w) Scottish parliament, (x) Welsh Assembly, (y) Northern Ireland Assembly and (z) House of Commons select committees. [7045]

Mr. Morley: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by my hon. Friend the Minister of State, Cabinet Office, on 15 October 2001, Official Report, columns 1003–05W.

Transmissible Spongiform Encephalopathies Research Programme

Phil Sawford: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when she will provide the information on her Department's TSE research programme promised in her statement of 22 October. [13487]

Margaret Beckett: I have today placed a paper describing the programme in full in the Library of the House.

Live Animal Exports

Sue Doughty: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many exporters of live animals have been found to have breached the live transport regulations; and how many have had their licence revoked since July 1997. [10389]

Mr. Morley: Since July 1997, anyone transporting farm livestock for journeys exceeding eight hours by road or any animals on commercial journeys by rail, sea or air must hold a specific authorisation. The TRADE database, maintained by DEFRA, records enforcement action under the Welfare of Animals (Transport) Order 1997 but does not separately identify transporters who are exporters of live animals. No specific authorisations have been revoked. One case is pending.

Correspondence

Mr. Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when she will reply to letters from the hon. Member for Mid-Worcestershire of 3 April concerning Mr. Gale, 4 April concerning Chaddesley Corbett, 18 April concerning Mr. and Mrs. Morris, 20 April concerning Mr. Boaz, 25 April concerning Mr. Chadwick, 30 April concerning the Wyre Piddle By-Pass, 30 April concerning Ann Ward and 2 May concerning landfill sites. [2705]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 9 July 2001]: Replies have been sent to all the hon. Member's letters to MAFF Ministers with the exception of his letter of 30 April, of which I am afraid we have no record.

Fishing Industry

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what short-term provision she will make to North sea trawlermen; and if she will make a statement. [11996]

Mr. Morley: The priority for action to help the fishing industry is to reduce the current excess of fishing capacity. I have therefore announced a grant scheme for the decommissioning of fishing vessels. Grants are also available for the conversion of vessels to introduce more environmentally sensitive fishing methods and to improve the handling of fish.

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what estimate she has made of (a) current and (b) projected cod stocks for the next three years in the North sea; [11964]

(2) what the Government's policy is in relation to the future of the British trawling industry in the North sea; and if she will make a statement. [11997]

Mr. Morley: The International Council for the Exploration of the Sea (ICES) estimates that the spawning stock biomass of cod in the North sea will stand at 55,400 tonnes at the beginning of 2002, which ICES considers to be outside safe biological limits. The biomass in future years will depend on the level of exploitation as regulated by management measures and on natural developments. The Government's policy is to work with EU partners, through recovery plans and other measures, to ensure a sustainable future for trawling and for other sectors of the British fishing industry, exploiting opportunities in the North sea and elsewhere.

French Beef Imports

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much French beef was imported in the last 12 months. [12077]

Mr. Morley: The volume of beef imported into the UK from France in the 12-month period from September 2000 to August 2001, as recorded by the overseas trade statistics, was approximately 5,700 tonnes. The country from which these imports originated is not recorded in the overseas trade statistics; therefore, not necessarily all beef shown as being imported from France will be of French origin. Similarly, this figure will exclude any beef of French origin imported from other member states.

Food Standards Agency

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will make a statement on her Department's relationship to the Food Standards Agency. [11791]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 1 November 2001]: DEFRA is responsible for the promotion of sustainable development across government and society at large, both in the UK and internationally, leading the renewal of rural areas and promoting an efficient, competitive and sustainable food chain. The main objective of the Food Standards Agency is to protect public health from risks which may arise in connection with the consumption of food, including risks caused by the way in which it is produced or supplied, and otherwise to protect the interests of consumers in relation to food. The two Departments have a close working relationship.

Horticulture

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what information she has collated on (a) variations in the prices of horticultural plants in the EU and (b) the impact of localised funding support on such prices. [12167]

Mr. Morley: No such information is collated by the Department, though we do compile data on UK horticultural production, including the price of selected flowering pot plants in certain wholesale markets in England.

Apples

Mr. Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) how much subsidy from the (a) UK and (b) EU Bramley apple growers have received in (i) Northern Ireland, (ii) Scotland, (iii) Wales and (iv) England each year since 1981; [11976]

(2) how many apple processing plants have been given grant in aid in (a) Northern Ireland, (b) Scotland, (c) Wales and (d) England since 1981; [11978]

(3) how many apple processing plants have closed in (a) Northern Ireland, (b) Wales, (c) Scotland and (d) England since 1991. [11979]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 2 November 2001]: The information is not available in the form requested. Apple growers may have received payments under a variety of schemes and from a number of Departments but are not generally identifiable as such from the records held.

The Department does not hold information on the number or location of apple processing plants.

Agrimonetary Compensation

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many representations she has received for arable compensation from British farmers in the year prior to the 31 October deadline; and from whom they came. [12301]

Mr. Morley: I have received numerous representations about arable agrimonetary compensation directly from farmers, from their unions and other organisations, and through hon. Members' correspondence.

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent steps she has taken to secure agrimonetary compensation from the European Union. [12300]

Mr. Morley: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to my hon. Friend the Member for Ealing, North (Mr. Pound) on 31 October 2001, Official Report, column 738W.

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions she has had with EU Ministers about a replacement to the agrimonetary compensation scheme; and if she will make a statement. [12357]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 5 November 2001]: There have been no discussions with EU representatives concerning a replacement to the agrimonetary compensation arrangements.

Correspondence/Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Alan Reid: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) when will she reply to the letters from the hon. Member for Argyll and Bute, dated 27 July, regarding (a) import of German beef, (b) prawn quotas and (c) sheep farming in Kintyre; [8638]

(2) when she will reply to the question tabled by the hon. Member for Argyll and Bute on 16 October, ref. 8638. [12657]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 5 November 2001]: My noble Friend, Lord Whitty, replied to the letter from the hon. Member on 6 November.

Tuberculosis

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when she expects testing for TB to resume in Gloucestershire; and if she will make a statement. [12354]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 5 November 2001]: Veterinary resources in Gloucestershire are still subject to pressures of work in support of foot and mouth disease control. TB testing will resume as and when resources become available. It will be prioritised in accordance with veterinary risk assessment.

Livestock Movements

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will make provision to compensate for the cleansing and disinfecting costs involved in animal movement; and if she will make a statement. [12348]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 5 November 2001]: There is currently no provision to compensate farmers for the cost of cleansing and disinfecting involved in the movement of animals and there are no plans to do so.

Imported Foods

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what further measures are being implemented to check against possible contamination of imported foods. [13018]

Mr. Morley: Adequate measures are in place to control legally presented imports of products of animal origin. All products of animal origin imported from third countries into the UK must enter at designated UK border inspection posts (BIP) where they are subject to veterinary inspections. All consignments are subject to documentary and identity checks and a percentage of consignments undergo physical checks. These checks are designed to establish that the products meet EU import conditions. Contaminated consignments would be rejected.

In respect of food not of animal origin, the Food Standards Agency monitors general food enforcement activity by all local authorities, including port health authorities, and has recently begun a programme of audits to provide more detailed information on enforcement standards.

Farm Woodland Schemes

Mrs. Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many farmers participate in farm woodland schemes. [12806]

Mr. Morley: Between 1988 and the end of June 2001, there were 8,572 approved applications in England under the farm woodland premium scheme and/or its predecessor the farm woodland scheme. Individuals may make more than one application.

Supermarkets

Mr. Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps she is taking to ensure that the code of practice on the relationship between suppliers and supermarkets is made available to farmers and growers in Worcestershire; and if she will make a statement. [12676]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 6 November 2001]: The Secretary of State for Trade and Industry published the code of practice on 31 October 2001 and asked the Director General of Fair Trading to seek to obtain undertakings from four leading supermarket chains within four weeks.

The code can be found as an attachment to the relevant press release on the Department of Trade and Industry's website: http://www.dti.gov.uk

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Private Finance Initiative (Employees' Rights)

Norman Baker: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what his policy is on protection of employees' rights and conditions of service where PFI projects are introduced to the public sector. [10717]

Mr. Leslie: The Government are committed to protecting the rights and existing terms and conditions of staff in transfers from the public sector to the private sector under public private partnership arrangements. To this end the Cabinet Office has published a statement of practice on staff transfers in the public sector. This is accessible on the Cabinet Office website: www.cabinet-office.gov.uk/civilservice/2000/tupe/

Departmental Spending

Pete Wishart: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what the total spending by his Department was in each nation and region of the UK in the last year for which figures are available; what proportion of his Department's total spending this constitutes; and if he will make a statement. [6785]

Mrs. Roche: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Banff and Buchan (Mr. Salmond) by my right hon. Friend the Chief Secretary to the Treasury on 15 October 2001, Official Report, columns 854–56W.

Council of the Isles

Mr. Lazarowicz: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will make a statement on the future programme of meetings of the Council of the Isles. [10862]

Mr. Prescott: The British-Irish Council, brings together the British and Irish Governments, the devolved Administrations in Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland, and the authorities in Jersey, Guernsey and the Isle of Man.

The British-Irish Council meets in different formats. Since the first summit meeting held in London in December 1999, a number of meetings have taken place in different sectoral areas at ministerial and official level.

The most recent meeting of the Council took place in Dublin on 13 September 2001. Officials discussed the issue of misuse of drugs, the area of work for which Ireland is the lead administration within the Council.

The Irish Government will host the next British-Irish Council summit. The drugs issue will be the main item for discussion at the summit. Progress in the other areas of work of the Council will also be reviewed.

The Government look forward to further meetings taking place in the agreed areas of work.

Computer Crime

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many cases of computer (a) hacking, (b) fraud and (c) theft his Department recorded in (i) 2000 and (ii) 2001; and on how many occasions in those years computer systems have been illegally accessed by computer hackers (A) within and (B) outside his Department. [13130]

Mr. Leslie: Within my Department and its agencies over the last two years there have been no cases of computer hacking from (A) within or (B) outside and no instances of fraudulent use of computers although there have been 16 cases of theft in 1999–2000 and nine in 2000–01.

Consultation Documents

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many consultation documents were issued by his Department from (a) 15 October to 14 January, (b) 15 January to 14 April, (c) 15 April to 14 July and (d) 15 July to 14 October in each year from 1996. [12895]

Mr. Leslie: The number of consultation documents issued by the Cabinet Office was as follows:

	1997	1998	1999	2000	2001
(a) 15 October to 14 January	2	1	1	3	—
(b) 15 January to 14 April	—	1	—	2	2
(c) 15 April to 14 July	—	—	1	—	2
(d) 15 July to 14 October	—	1	—	—	9

No formal consultation documents were issued in the other periods given in the question. The figures do not include nine technical documents published between 1999 and 2001. These documents went out for consultation but the Cabinet Office does not hold records of the precise dates of issue.

Since the beginning of 2001, formal Cabinet Office consultation documents (and those of other central Government Departments) have been available from the online central register of consultations at http// www.ukonline.gov.uk.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Benefit Fraud

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people were prosecuted for committing benefit fraud in financial years (a) 1997–98, (b) 1998–99, (c) 1999–2000 and (d) 2000–01. [7579]

Malcolm Wicks: The information is in the tables:

Benefits Agency fraud investigations

Year	Prosecutions	Cautions and administrative penalties as an alternative to prosecution[1]	Total
1997–98	12,009	—	12,009
1998–99	11,185	2,835	14,020
1999–2000	9,977	12,332	22,309
2000–01	9,030	15,092	24,122

Local authority investigations[2]

Year	Number of successful prosecutions[3]	Number of administrative penalties[1] administered as an alternative to prosecution[3]	Total[3]
1997–98	700	—	700
1998–99	800	—	800
1999–2000	860	390	1,250
2000–01	1,100	550	1,650

[1] Administrative Penalties, as an alternative to prosecution, were introduced by the Social Security Administration (Fraud) Act (1997) with effect from December 1998.

[2] Figures are taken from local authority management information returns. It is possible that there could be some double counting with Benefits Agency data if there were cases which involved a joint prosecution.

[3] Data are not available for all 409 local authorities. The total for Great Britain includes estimates for local authorities that have not responded. These estimates are based on historical and regional data. This type of estimate is standard practice in reporting totals where there have been non-respondents. The figures have been rounded to two significant figures.

National Insurance Numbers

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many national insurance numbers have been issued; and what plans he has to review the procedures for issuing, cancelling and verifying NI numbers. [8341]

Malcolm Wicks: We regularly review data cleansing activities on the departmental central index (DCI) and are currently looking at issues relating to NINO security as a whole. This includes reviewing procedures and building on work already done to identify and further safeguard vulnerable accounts.

There are approximately 83 million national insurance numbers (NINOs) currently held on the DCI. Other than the 47 million NINOs used by UK residents over 16, this figure includes approximately 12.5 million child reference numbers for all children included on claims to child benefit, 13.5 million for people who are dead and whose numbers remain in order to allow surviving spouses to claim contributory benefit entitlement and 2 million for those in receipt of benefit abroad. The remaining estimated 8 million will include UK citizens who have migrated to other countries, short-term immigrants/holiday workers and deceased persons where notification of death has not been received.

Duplicate NINOs are 'cancelled' or removed from the DCI as and when they are identified. The cancellation of NINOs, other than those discovered to be duplicates or unused, is not carried out as it is considered that the removal of 'inactive' records opens a gateway to identity fraud. The retention of a deceased person's NINO is necessary to protect the inheritable rights of a surviving spouse to ensure they are awarded the correct rate of retirement pension.

The procedure for issuing NINOs has been tightened through the enhanced NINO allocation process which was introduced nationally from April 2001. This aligns the process for the allocation of both benefit inspired and employment inspired NINOs and ensures consistency of approach is maintained throughout the country, thereby securing the adult registration gateway. All adult applicants for a NINO are interviewed by dedicated staff who have received specific specialist training. Information given by the applicant in support of their application is corroborated by expert staff who also scrutinise documentation provided using specialist equipment. A more stringent internal checking regime ensures that a NINO application is valid and that the applicant does not already have a NINO.

We are currently examining new initiatives that address the issues around NINO security and propose to do more in the future to improve the procedures for managing NINOs.

Jobseeker's Allowance

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what considerations and costs are taken into account when determining the level of jobseeker's allowance. [10575]

Malcolm Wicks: Jobseeker's allowance consists of both a contribution-based and an income-based element. The rates of jobseeker's allowance are intended to cover normal day-to-day living expenses and are reviewed annually using the Rossi index.

Entitlement to contribution-based jobseeker's allowance is not affected by the amount of capital a person has although part-time earnings and occupational or personal pensions are taken into account. When determining income-based jobseeker's allowance most forms of income a person or their partner have are taken into account. The amount of capital held can also affect the amount of benefit.

Child Support Agency

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans he has to increase the staff of the Child Support Agency while the new assessment procedures are implemented. [10417]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 26 October 2001]: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the chief executive, Mr. Doug Smith. He will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Mr. Doug Smith to Mr. David Willetts, dated 6 November 2001:

I am replying to your Parliamentary Question to the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions about the Child Support Agency.

You asked what plans the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions has to increase the staff of the Child Support Agency whilst the new assessment procedures are implemented.

The amount of staff in the Child Support Agency will grow by around 1,000 during the period in which the new procedures will be implemented.

I hope this is helpful.

Attendance Allowance

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average time was between receipt of requests to re-examine claims for attendance allowance and their examination, in each of the last four years. [11386]

Maria Eagle: This is a matter for Alexis Cleveland, chief executive of the Benefits Agency. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Alexis Cleveland to Mr. Christopher Chope, dated November 2001:

The Secretary of State for Work and Pensions has asked me to respond to your recent Parliamentary Question asking what the average time was between receipt of requests to re-examine claims for Attendance Allowance and their examination in each of the last four years.

The actual average clearance times for Attendance Allowance (AA) reviews between April 1997 and September 2001 are shown in the attached table. Please note that under the Decision Making and Appeals (DMA) procedures introduced in October 99, the review process changed in some respects and was henceforth termed reconsiderations. Reconsiderations occur when a claimant asks for a claim to be looked at again within one month of the previous decision.

The DMA procedures introduced in 1999 led to temporary backlogs of work, and taken with a growing caseload for disability benefits, the average time taken to reconsider claims increased very significantly. These backlogs were tackled as a priority and the average clearance time for reconsiderations is now significantly lower.

I hope this is helpful.

Date	Average days taken
Reviews (AA) April 1997-March 1998
April 1997	43.20
May 1997	44.72
June 1997	53.69
July 1997	53.17
August 1997	52.57
September 1997	52.17
October 1997	50.40
November 1997	47.99
December 1997	45.34
January 1998	48.41
February 1998	42.30
March 1998	38.48
Reviews (AA) April 1998-March 1999
April 1998	39.10
May 1998	38.04
June 1998	38.90
July 1998	40.58
August 1998	42.06
September 1998	43.54
October 1998	43.54
November 1998	43.24
December 1998	44.38
January 1999	46.05
February 1999	54.39
March 1999	44.13
Reviews (AA) April 1999-March 2000
April 1999	44.34
May 1999	46.[illegible]
June 1999	51.14
July 1999	54.73
August 1999	54.61
September 1999	52.57
October 1999	53.98
November 1999	67.75
December 1999	75.17
January 2000	90.78
February 2000	105.59
March 2000	129.80
Reconsiderations (AA) October 1999-March 2000
April 1999	—
May 1999	—
June 1999	—
July 1999	—
August 1999	—
September 1999	—
October 1999	24
November 1999	28
December 1999	36
January 2000	52
February 2000	62
March 2000	65
Reconsiderations (AA) April 2000-March 2001
April 2000	63
May 2000	60.2
June 2000	54.4
July 2000	50.9
August 2000	47.5
September 2000	51.8
October 2000	46.1
November 2000	44.9
December 2000	42.2
January 2001	44.4
February 2001	40.5
March 2001	35.6
Reconsiderations (AA) April 2001-September 2001
April 2001	36
May 2001	33.9
June 2001	35.3
July 2001	36.1
August 2001	36.1
September 2001	38.5

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what factors determine the length of time for a decision to be given in response to those who request that their claims for attendance allowance are re-examined; and if he will make a statement. [11388]

Maria Eagle: This is a matter for Alexis Cleveland, chief executive of the Benefits Agency. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Alexis Cleveland to Mr. Christopher Chope, dated 6 November 2001:

The Secretary of State for Work and Pensions has asked me to respond to your recent Parliamentary Question asking what factors determine the length of time for a decision to be given in response to those who request that their claims for Attendance Allowance are re-examined; and if he will make a statement.

A number of factors can affect the length of time it takes to re-examine claims for Attendance Allowance. In particular, before a final decision can be taken on their case, a decision maker (DM) may need additional evidence from claimants or further medical evidence or reports about the effects of their disabilities on their care needs.

I hope this is helpful.

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many appeals against decisions on attendance allowance have been made in each of the last 12 months for which figures are available; and how many (a) have been allowed, (b) have been dismissed and (c) are awaiting a decision in each of the last four years. [11385]

Maria Eagle: This is a matter for Alexis Cleveland, chief executive of the Benefits Agency. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Alexis Cleveland to Mr. Christopher Chope, dated 6 November 2001:

The Secretary of State for Work and Pensions has asked me to respond to your recent Parliamentary Question asking how many appeals against decisions on attendance allowance have been made in each of the last 12 months for which figures are available; and how many have been (a) allowed (b) dismissed and (c) are awaiting a decision.

The information is in the attached table.

I hope this is helpful.

Month	AA appeals registered	Allowed appeals (a)	Dismissed appeals (b)	Outstanding appeals (c)	Total number of cleared cases (d)
October 2000	1,434	386	3	3,116	1,271
November 2000	1,545	502	6	2,284	1,539
December 2000	1,023	425	6	1,958	1,246
January 2001	1,311	613	8	1,698	2,008
February 2001	1,330	636	4	1,672	1,770
March 2001	1,442	642	5	1,649	1,688
April 2001	1,317	431	1	1,799	1,227
May 2001	1,212	448	3	1,646	1,237
June 2001	1,263	430	3	1,475	1,210
July 2001	1,331	431	3	1,447	1,266
August 2001	1,261	397	3	1,516	1,142
September 2001	1,129	338	5	1,676	1,078

(a) Allowed appeals include allowed or increased appeals.
(d) Dismissed appeals include cases where entitlement is reduced or disallowed on appeal.
(c) Outstanding appeals include all cases sent to the Tribunal awaiting a decision.
(d) The total number of cleared cases column includes allowed, dismissed, maintained and various other outcomes that are not appropriate to the stated categories.
It is not possible, from overall statistics to track individual claims through the subsequent stages.

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average time is for dealing with requests by those seeking an explanation for decisions relating to claims for attendance allowance. [11384]

Maria Eagle: This is a matter for Alexis Cleveland, the chief executive of the Benefits Agency. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Alexis Cleveland to Mr. Christopher Chope, dated November 2001:

The Secretary of State for Work and Pensions has asked me to respond to your recent Parliamentary Question asking what the average time is for dealing with requests by those seeking an explanation for decisions relating to claims for attendance allowance.

There are two types of explanation available to claimants, a verbal explanation and a written explanation. A customer is entitled to ask for an explanation in one or both forms to help them understand the reasons for the decision on their entitlement to Attendance Allowance. The actual average clearance times for requests for explanations of decisions relating to Attendance Allowance is three days.

I hope this is helpful.

Energy Efficiency Week

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what action his Department took in recognition of energy efficiency week. [11519]

Malcolm Wicks: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on 30 October 2001, Official Report, column 592W.

The Department for Work and Pensions is actively involved in an overall cross-government programme designed to lessen the impact of our operations on the environment. We are currently working with our estates and service partners, Land Securities Trillium, to implement a number of capital investment projects designed to improve energy efficiency throughout the estate. Further to this, the Department is in the process of developing an overarching environmental awareness campaign for staff, that will include energy efficiency good practice while at work and links will be promoted with the work of the Energy Savings Trust.

Medical Assessments

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what proportion of C grade medical reports fail to meet his Department's standards by (a) 10 per cent. and (b) five per cent. broken down by disability benefit centre in each of the last three years. [11903]

Malcolm Wicks: The information is not available in the format requested.

Medical quality targets were set in June 2000, in the Government's response to the Social Security Committee report on medical services. The target in relation to C grade medical reports was: within six months to reduce the proportion of C grade reports by 10 per cent.; and within one year to reduce the proportion of C grade reports across all benefits to less than 5 per cent.

Performance against the target is monitored at national and at contract package level. All contract package areas (north, south-east, and south-west) have met both the six month and the one year target.

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the rate of medical examinations by SEMA is in respect of (a) incapacity and (b) disability benefits. [11901]

Malcolm Wicks: In the 12 months ending 31 September 2001, there were 428,232 IB examinations and 235,549 DLA/AA examinations carried out.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Passports (Confiscation)

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will remove the passports of individuals who have expressed an intention to go to (a) Afghanistan and (b) Pakistan to fight against British or US armed forces; and if he will make a statement. [8655]

Angela Eagle: The courts have distinct statutory powers to order the surrender of passports belonging to football hooligans and drug offenders but, in general, the power of the Secretary of State to refuse or withdraw passport facilities is limited to certain categories which have previously been announced in Parliament. These include:

> "in very rare cases a person whose past or proposed activities are so demonstrably undesirable that the grant or continued enjoyment of passport facilities would be contrary to the public interest".

I will carefully consider the individual circumstances of any cases which appear to fall into this category.

Police Pensions

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has to fund police pensions over the next 10 years. [9974]

Mr. Denham: We have no plans to change the manner of funding of police pensions at present. However, we are aware of police authorities' concern over the increasing burden of the funding of pensions. The Home Office and Treasury will be keeping the situation under review.

Justice and Home Affairs Council

Mr. Hood: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the outcome was of the Justice and Home Affairs Council held in Brussels on 16 October; what the Government's stance was on each issue discussed, including its voting record; and if he will make a statement. [10368]

Mr. Denham: I represented the United Kingdom at the Justice and Home Affairs (JHA) Council in Luxembourg on 16 October. The purpose of the Council was to consider key issues on the two main anti-terrorism instruments presented by the Commission at the special JHA Council on 20 September, both of which are scheduled for adoption at the JHA Council on 6–7 December.

Framework Decision on European Arrest Warrant

The principal issue considered was the intended scope of the warrant, in particular the abolition of dual criminality for offences covered by the framework decision.

Member states expressed a range of views on dual criminality and on the way in which offences should be defined for the purpose of operating the warrant.

The Council also noted the work in hand to identify the appropriate procedures for serving and enforcing the European arrest warrant.

Framework Decision on Combating Terrorism

The Council examined two aspects of the draft framework decision on combating terrorism: penalties and jurisdiction.

A number of member states expressed difficulty over the Commission's proposal for common minimum/maximum penalties for those terrorist offences defined in the framework decision.

On jurisdiction, member states expressed concern about possible conflicts of jurisdiction if extra-territorial jurisdiction within the European Union were provided for.

The Presidency concluded that further work should be undertaken and that these issues should be discussed again at the Justice and Home Affairs Council on 16 November, in order to meet the commitment to adoption in December.

Police Numbers (Staffordshire)

Mr. Stevenson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent discussions he has had with the chief constable on police numbers in Staffordshire. [10289]

Mr. Denham: I have not had any discussions with the chief constable about police numbers in Staffordshire.

On 31 August, Staffordshire police had 2,212 officers, 83 more than in March 2001. The force had 935 civilian support staff at March 2001; this is an increase of 173 since March 1997 and 77 since March 2000.

Under the crime fighting fund (CFF) recruitment initiative, Staffordshire police have been allocated a total of 146 additional recruits, over and above their existing recruitment plans for the three years to March 2003.

In 2000–01, Staffordshire police recruited all 49 of their CFF allocation. The force expects to recruit all its second year CFF allocation of 51 in 2001–02. Staffordshire has been allocated a further 46 CFF recruits in 2002–03.

Asylum Seekers

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has to collect data on the number of asylum seekers who have their asylum applications rejected on the grounds of non-compliance, broken down by the reason for non-compliance. [10722]

Angela Eagle: Data are collected centrally and published showing the number of applications refused on non-compliance grounds as a whole. This is not broken down into specific reasons for non-compliance. This information could be obtained only at a disproportionate cost. However, anecdotal evidence suggests that the main reasons for refusing an asylum claim on non-compliance grounds are:

1. Failure to attain the screening interview;
2. Failure to return or late return of the statement of evidence form (SEF);
3. Failure to attend or late attendance at an asylum interview.

Police Numbers (Cheshire)

Mr. George Osborne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) police officers and (b) police constables there were in the Cheshire constabulary in (i) 1997 and (ii) 2001. [11074]

Mr. Denham: The information requested has been provided by the chief constable of Cheshire constabulary and is set out in the table.

Year	Police Officers	Constables
31 March 1997	2,046	1,590
31 March 2001	2,002	1,533
30 September 2001	2,058	1,575

Under the crime fighting fund (CFF) recruitment initiative, Cheshire police have been allocated a total of 147 additional recruits, over and above their existing recruitment plans for the three years to March 2003. Cheshire police recruited 21 of its CFF allocation in 2000–01.

Cheshire constabulary employed 735 civilian staff in March 1997 and 833 in March 2001.

Motorcycle Theft

Mr. Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans the Government have to target motorcycle theft. [11659]

Mr. Denham: Motorcycle theft is included within the national target to reduce vehicle crime by 30 per cent. over the five year period April 1999 to March 2004.

The National Criminal Intelligence Service has received additional Government funding to run a project aimed at tackling organised motorcycle theft. Crime prevention messages specifically aimed at motorcyclists have been included in the current phase of the national vehicle crime reduction communications campaign. Local authorities now have powers to provide secure parking for motorcycles under the Road Traffic Regulations Act 1984 (as amended). The Vehicles (Crime) Act 2001 provides for statutory regulation of the motor salvage industry which will help prevent vehicles, including motorcycles, from being stolen to be broken up for spare parts or "rung" (ie taking on the identities of vehicles which have been written off in accidents).

Cannabis

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate he has made of the average cost of arresting and charging people for cannabis possession in the last 12 months. [11874]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: It can take on average three hours of a police officer's time to arrest and charge a person for possession of cannabis. There were 81,380 cannabis possession offences in 1999. A police constable's basic salary cost in England and Wales falls within the range of £12 to £14 per hour, therefore the annual cost is in the region of £2,929,680 to £3,417,960.

In assessing the costs, it is important to remember that arrests for cannabis possession may be incidental to other police action.

People Trafficking

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what action the Government are taking to bring to justice people who traffic in human beings; and in what such action they are participating on an EU-wide basis. [12074]

Angela Eagle: The Government are committed to ensuring that strong measures are in place to penalise people who traffic in human beings. We have signed the trafficking protocol to the United Nations convention on transnational organised crime, which requires the specific criminalisation of trafficking in human beings.

The Government are currently negotiating a framework decision, which is a binding European Union instrument and requires the criminalisation of trafficking in human beings for the purposes of exploiting their labour and services or for sexual exploitation. Under its provisions, the United Kingdom will be required to have implemented the instrument within two years of its adoption.

A decision will be made on how best to implement the UN and EU agreements after the EU framework decision has been adopted. We will also take account of the outcome of the consultation exercise on "Setting the Boundaries", the report of the sex offences review which made recommendations for a new offence of trafficking for sexual exploitation.

Last year we set up Project Reflex, a multi-agency task force chaired by the National Crime Squad, to co-ordinate anti-trafficking operations and develop the intelligence and strategic planning to underpin them. It is now well established and has resulted in some major successes involving partners overseas. The most recent has been Operation Franc in early June, which led to arrests in the United Kingdom, Belgium, France and Germany.

Antisocial Behaviour Orders

Mr. Stinchcombe: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) if he will list the (a) local authorities which have successfully applied for antisocial behaviour orders, (b) local authorities which have only unsuccessfully applied for antisocial behaviour orders and (c) local authorities which have not applied for any antisocial behaviour orders; and if he will identify under what political control each authority operates; [12030]

(2) how many applications for antisocial behaviour orders have been made by (a) local authorities and (b) the police; and how those applications were disposed of and with what outcomes. [12029]

Mr. Denham: There is known to have been some under-recording of anti-social behaviour orders (ASBOs) in a few police force areas. With the co-operation of Association of Chief Police Officers (ACPO) we are therefore undertaking a one-off reconciliation exercise to establish any differences, between the numbers of ASBOs known to the police and the data from court returns.

The data should be available in November and I will write to my hon. Friend.

Mr. Stinchcombe: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many appeals against antisocial behaviour orders have been made; and with what outcomes. [12028]

Mr. Denham: Information collected centrally on antisocial behaviour orders does not include details of those cases in which an appeal has been lodged.

Crimestoppers

Mr. Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans the Government have to support voluntary organisations involved in crime prevention, with particular reference to Crimestoppers. [12015]

Mr. Denham: My Department is constantly looking at ways to support voluntary organisations involved in crime prevention. Crimestoppers has submitted a request for support which is currently being considered.

Experience Corps Initiative

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has for members of the National Experience Corps to lead sport and exercise sessions for older people. [12228]

Angela Eagle: The experience corps initiative aims to encourage more people aged 50 and over to become or to remain active in their local communities. Although there are no specific plans in relation to encouraging older people to engage in sport and exercise sessions, it is hoped that those who volunteer through the experience corps will be able to participate in a wide range of volunteering opportunities.

The Government recognise the importance of sport and exercise activities for older people and that is why the Department for Culture, Media and Sport has set up a working group of officials and representatives from other key bodies to explore ways of encouraging and facilitating physical activity for older people.

Police Pay

Mr. Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will revise the income supplements provided to police officers in Sussex, based on an analysis of comparative costs of living in Kent, Surrey and Sussex. [12038]

Mr. Denham: In February this year, the police negotiating board (PNB) reached agreement on a recommendation to the Secretary of State for the Home Department that officers in eight south-east police forces appointed after 1 September 1994 and not in receipt of housing allowance should receive a new allowance. The PNB recommended that qualifying officers in Kent and Surrey should receive an allowance of £2,000 a year and qualifying officers in Sussex should receive £1,000 a year. My right hon. Friend the Home Secretary approved the recommendation of the PNB.

The PNB is the statutory negotiating body for police pay and conditions of service, with representatives from all the main police organisations, including the Police Federations, the Association of Chief Police Officers and the Association of Police Authorities. It would be for the PNB in the first instance to consider whether the allowance awarded to qualifying officers in Sussex should be revised.

Drugs

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will reassess the recommendations of the Police Foundation report on drug use. [12061]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: No. The Government published their response to the report of the independent inquiry into the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 by the Police Foundation in February 2001. We welcomed the inquiry's report and its contribution to the on-going process of assessing the effectiveness of the United Kingdom's drugs laws and policies.

The Government supported 24 of the inquiry's 81 recommendations, rejected 37 and referred the remaining 20 recommendations for further consideration by relevant Government Departments and agencies. There is no intention to undertake a further review of the inquiry's recommendations.

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what assessment he has made of the effect of the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 on the levels of consumption of (a) heroin, (b) cocaine and (c) cannabis; [12058]

(2) if his Department has recently considered the merits of (a) legalising and (b) decriminalising the use of illegal drugs. [12171]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: There has been no change in Government policy on legalising or decriminalising illegal drugs. Our drugs laws deter experimentation, a point borne out by public opinion surveys. For example 30 per cent. of adults questioned by MORI for the Police Foundation inquiry cited illegality as the main reason for not taking drugs. Moreover, the findings of the 1998–99 youth lifestyle survey revealed that 64 per cent. of respondents who had never taken cannabis had not done so because it is against the law.

The Home Secretary has asked the Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs to review the arguments for reclassifying cannabis from class B to class C. In giving evidence the Home Secretary said that he was not in favour of either legalisation or decriminalisation.

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many arrests were made for the (a) possession and (b) supply of (i) heroin, (ii) cocaine and (iii) cannabis in each of the past five years. [12057]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Arrest data are not collected centrally by individual offence.

Information taken from the Home Office Court proceedings database showing the number of persons proceeded against for the (a) possession, (b) supply and (c) possession with intent to supply (i) heroin, (ii) cocaine and (iii) cannabis in England and Wales during the period 1996 to 2000 is given in the table.

Persons proceeded against in the magistrates courts for the given offences, England and Wales, 1996–2000

Offence	Principal statute	1996	1997	1998	1999	2000
Having possession of a controlled drug
Heroin	Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 Sec. 5(2)	2,653	3,698	4,819	5,236	5,510
Cocaine	Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 Sec. 5(2)	840	1,194	1,829	2,268	2,048
Cannabis	Ibid as amended by the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 Sec. 157 Sch.8 part II	14,857	18,940	24,395	24,322	22,303
Supplying or offering (or being concerned in) to supply a controlled drug
Heroin	Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 Sec. 4(3)	933	1,304	1,486	1,869	1,643
Cocaine	Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 Sec. 4(3)	287	342	423	487	437
Cannabis	Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 Sec. 4(3)	1,559	1,788	1,830	1,580	1,001
Having possession of a controlled drug with intent to supply
Heroin	Misuse of Drugs Act Sec. 5(3)	1,040	1,265	1,411	1,483	1,488
Cocaine	Misuse of Drugs Act Sec. 5(3)	370	471	502	578	664
Cannabis	Misuse of Drugs Act Sec. 5(3)	2,765	3,275	3,223	2,917	2,194

Note:
Data are given on a principal offence basis

Centralised Custody Centres

Mr. Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what efficiency savings have been achieved, broken down by police force area, through the introduction of centralised custody centres; [12035]

(2) which police forces have moved to a system of centralised custody centres; [12036]

(3) what the average waiting times at each custody centre for processing a case were for the latest month for which figures are available. [12033]

Mr. Denham: This information is not collected centrally.

Police Establishment

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police officers within the City of London there were (a) in May 1997 and (b) for the latest month for which figures are available. [12406]

Mr. Denham [holding answer 5 November 2001]: The City of London police had 859 police officers on 31 March 1997 and 705 police officers on 2 November 2001.

The force employed 347 civilian support staff in March 1997 and 223 in March 2001.

Identity Cards

Mr. George Osborne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the Government's policy on national identity cards is; and if he will make a statement. [12873]

Angela Eagle: The Government have no plans to introduce a national identity card scheme as part of its response to the atrocities in the United States on 11 September.

However, the policy is kept under review and the Government are considering whether a universal card which allowed people to prove their identity more easily and provided a simple way to access a range of public services would be beneficial. Such an entitlement card scheme could also help to combat illegal working which disproportionately affects the poorer sections of our society by undercutting the minimum wage and encouraging unscrupulous employers. It could also reduce fraud against individuals, public services and the private sector.

The introduction of an entitlement card would be a major step and the Government would not proceed without consulting widely and considering all the views expressed very carefully.

Vandalism Costs

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what information he collates on the annual cost of vandalism, broken down by local authority. [13103]

Mr. Denham [holding answer 6 November 2001]: In Home Office statistics, vandalism is categorised as criminal damage. We have estimates of the economic cost of criminal damage in England and Wales. However, we do not currently estimate the annual cost of criminal damage broken down by local authority.

The most recent figure of the cost of criminal damage was published in a report in December 2000, "The economic and social cost of crime" (Home Office Research Study 217). This estimated the total cost of criminal damage in England and Wales in 1999–2000 to be £4.1 billion. This represents 7 per cent. of the total economic cost of crime.

Private Security Firms

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidance he gives to local authorities on the case of private security firms; and if he will make a statement. [12910]

Mr. Denham [holding answer 6 November 2001]: We do not routinely issue guidance on this subject. There is, however, an extant piece of advice (Home Office Circular 60/1995) on the subject of local authority registration of door supervisors.

The Private Security Industry Act 2001 sets out the Government's current framework for the regulation of the private security industry in England and Wales. Consultations with local authorities will be essential with regard to those aspects of the Act relating to the licensing of door supervisors.

Special Constables (Sussex)

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many special constables there were in (i) Sussex police and (ii) nationally in (a) 1996, (b) 1997, (c) 1998, (d) 1999 and (e) 2000. [11805]

Mr. Denham [holding answer 6 November 2001]: The number of serving special constables in England and Wales and the number of specials serving in Sussex police from 30 September 1997 to 30 September 2000 are set out in the table:

Year	Total strength[1]	Strength in Sussex
1997	19,163	465
1998	17,296	415
1999	15,727	377
2000	13,487	317

[1] England and Wales

Note:

Figures provided by Research Statistics and Development

The Government are committed to increasing the special constabulary and we are looking at radical improvements in their management, welfare and deployment as part of the police reform process.

Asylum Support

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many asylum seekers are receiving (a) accommodation and subsistence support and (b) subsistence support only from the national asylum support service. [13053]

Angela Eagle: As at the end of July 2001, the number of asylum seekers (including dependants) supported in national asylum support service (NASS) accommodation was 28,810[1,2]. A further 18,520[1,2] asylum seekers (including dependants) were receiving voucher only support from NASS.

[1] Figures rounded to the nearest 10.

[2] Cases which have had their support ceased are excluded from these figures.

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many asylum-seekers and dependants have been dispersed to each of the NASS-designated dispersal areas since (a) 1 April 2001 and (b) 3 April 2000. [13054]

Angela Eagle: The information is not currently available in the form requested.

The available information on dispersed asylum seekers is in the table. The table shows the number of asylum seekers (including dependants) supported in the national asylum support service (NASS) accommodation in each cluster area as at the end of July 2001.

Number of asylum seekers (including dependants) supported in NASS accommodation by cluster area as at the end of July 2001[1,2]

Region/area	Number
East Midlands
Derby	110
Leicester	640
Nottingham	880
Total	1,630
East of England
Ipswich	30
Peterborough	180
Total	200
Greater London
Disbenefited[3]	200
London	480
Total	680
North East
Darlington	30
Gateshead	530
Hartlepool	50
Middlesbrough	370
Newcastle	1,410
North Tyneside	340
Redcar and Cleveland	300
South Tyneside	130
Stockton-on-Tees	240
Sunderland	830
Total	4,240
North West
Blackburn	430
Bolton[4]	590
Burnley	130
Bury[4]	160
Disbenefited[3]	*
Liverpool	1,620
Manchester	1,880
Nelson	210
Oldham[4]	160
Rochdale[4]	230
Salford[4]	250
Stockport[4]	70
Tameside[4]	60
Trafford[4]	50
Wigan	360
Total	6,190
Northern Ireland
Belfast	40
Other	10
Total	50
Scotland
Glasgow	3,890
Total	3,890
South Central
Bournemouth	*
Brighton and Hove	40
Disbenefited[3]	40
Hastings and St. Leonards	210
Portsmouth	100
Total	390
South West
Bristol	130
Disbenefited[3]	10
Exeter	40
Plymouth	360
Total	540

Number of asylum seekers (including dependants) supported in NASS accommodation by cluster area as at the end of July 2001[1,2]

Region/area	Number
Wales
Cardiff	330
Swansea	10
Wrexham	30
Total	370
West Midlands
Birmingham	1,980
Coventry	840
Disbenefited[3]	10
Dudley	160
Sandwell	120
Solihull	60
Stoke-on-Trent	340
Walsall	210
Wolverhampton	690
Total	4,410
Yorkshire and Humberside
Barnsley	160
Bradford	1,370
Disbenefited[3]	*
Doncaster	590
Grimsby	80
Halifax	220
Hull	960
Kirklees	390
Leeds	910
Rotherham	370
Sheffield	1,040
Wakefield	140
Total	6,230
Overall total	28,810

[1] Figures have been rounded to the nearest 10. * indicates a number between one and four. Figures may not sum due to rounding.
[2] Figures exclude cases where the asylum seekers support has been ceased.
[3] Disbenefited cases are cases which were previously supported by social services and after an initial decision on their asylum application have been transferred onto NASS support.
[4] Greater Manchester

Women Prisoners

Mr. Blunt: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many women prisoners were detained (a) on remand and (b) following sentence on the 1st of each month since May 1997. [11640]

Beverley Hughes: The number of females in prisons in England and Wales in each month since 30 April 1997 is shown in the table. Figures are available only for the last day of the month.

Number of females detained on remand and under sentence since 1 April 1997 by month[1,2]

	1997		1998		1999		2000		2001
	Remand	Sentenced	Remand	Sentenced	Remand	Sentenced	Remand	Sentenced	Remand	Sentenced
January	—	—	650	2,205	778	2,397	730	2,489	692	2,624
February	—	—	693	2,311	781	2,427	740	2,590	686	2,749
March	—	—	698	2,372	707	2,435	716	2,659	677	2,849
April	592	1,992	717	2,371	730	2,411	675	2,620	702	2,848
May	560	2,044	694	2,385	741	2,451	701	2,592	746	2,895
June	587	2,066	735	2,367	752	2,436	669	2,666	773	2,899
July	618	2,105	721	2,445	757	2,481	724	2,692	820	2,936
August	628	2,113	704	2,440	806	2,504	709	2,712	846	2,978
September	630	2,146	714	2,430	783	2,539	685	2,689	860	3,060
October	625	2,152	694	2,432	788	2,582	726	2,681	—	—
November	671	2,196	748	2,441	742	2,589	731	2,627	—	—
December	589	2,158	681	2,364	614	2,447	604	2,515	—	—

[1] All figures are as the last day of the month
[2] Figures exclude civil prisoners

Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act

Mr. Rammell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he will publish guidance on the housing and care of ferrets and gerbils in breeding and supplying establishments designated under the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986; and if he will make a statement. [13591]

Angela Eagle: I have today laid before Parliament a draft supplement to the code of practice for the housing and care of animals in designated breeding and supplying establishments. The draft sets standards for the housing and care of ferrets and gerbils in designated breeding and supply establishments, and is a consequence of the species concerned being added to the list in schedule 2 to the 1986 Act (animals which can only be obtained from designated sources). The draft has been produced and laid under section 21 of the Act and is subject to the negative resolution procedure. Copies have been placed in the Library.

LORD CHANCELLOR'S DEPARTMENT

Land Registry

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department, what percentage of the total land area of Great Britain is not registered; and when he expects all land to be registered. [12553]

Mr. Wills: Information relating to the amount of land that is either registered or unregistered in Great Britain is not collected centrally. In England and Wales, land registration is compulsory on sale and on most other transactions affecting unregistered land. Over 18 million titles are already registered out of an estimated 23 million. The Land Registration Bill currently before Parliament is expected to lead to a substantial increase in voluntary applications for first registration and in registration of leasehold interests. The Law Commission and HM Land Registry have recommended that ways in which all remaining land with unregistered title in England and Wales might be brought on to the register should be re-examined five years after the Bill is implemented. The Government are currently considering that recommendation.

Islamic Marriages

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department, if she will make it her policy to make Islamic marriages undertaken by UK citizens abroad registerable in the UK upon the return home of either party to the marriage. [12400]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The recognition in the UK of a marriage which has taken place overseas can be determined only by a court. I understand, however, that generally such marriages would be recognised here as valid provided that they complied with the law of the country where they took place and the couple had the legal capacity to marry each other.

There is currently no provision in law for marriages which take place outside the UK to be registered in this country. But, under the Foreign Marriage Order 1970, certificates of marriage may be lodged with the Registrar General on receipt from the local consular office of non-Commonwealth countries. However, if the couple are already validly married to each other, there would be no need for the marriage to be registered again in this country.

Census Information

Andrew Bennett: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what arrangements are being made for the general public to view 1901 Census information. [12379]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The general public will be able to view the 1901 census in two ways. First, online over the internet at www.census.pro.gov.uk. This innovation will greatly increase ease of access and is expected to attract a wider range of users. Secondly, as with earlier census records, it will be available on microfiche at local record offices and libraries and a full set of fiche for England and Wales will be available at the Public Record Office at Kew.

District Judges

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department how many district judges (magistrates courts) sit in England and Wales, broken down by county; and what plans he has to increase this number. [12386]

Mr. Wills: The table shows where stipendiary magistrates (now district judges (magistrates courts)) are based, county by county. London includes the senior district judge and her deputy. A competition is under way to fill the following vacancies included in the figures—two in London, one in Greater Manchester, one in Middlesex, one in Nottinghamshire, one in South Yorkshire and one in West Yorkshire. The Government are considering Lord Justice Auld's recommendations which may have an impact on the number of these appointments required.

District judges (magistrates courts) district bench by county

County	Number
Bristol	1
Cheshire	1
Cleveland	1
Derbyshire	2
Devon	1
Dorset	1
Essex	1
Greater Manchester	5
Hampshire	3
Humberside	1
Leicestershire	2
London	48
Merseyside	5
Middlesex	3
Norfolk	1
Nottinghamshire	3
Shropshire	1
South Wales	3
South Yorkshire	5
Staffordshire	1
Sussex	2
West Midlands	10
West Yorkshire	5
Total	106

Written Answers to Questions

Thursday 8 November 2001

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Refrigerators

Mrs. Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment she has made of the impact on small businesses of the requirement to take refrigerators to scrap yards after 1 January 2002. [12689]

Nigel Griffiths: These requirements are a policy matter for my right hon. Friend the Minister for the Environment. However, officials in the Department have been assisting those in DEFRA to consult small businesses about this issue, and to consider the wider implications for small businesses as the policy is developed.

DEFRA is currently assessing what financial assistance local authorities will require, in keeping with the new burdens procedure.

Conference on Nuclear Terrorism

Mr. Chaytor: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what representatives her Department had at the International Atomic Energy Agency's conference on nuclear terrorism in Vienna; what recommendations for action by the United Kingdom Government were made at the conference; and what further discussions she intends to have with the IAEA in respect of security at civil nuclear installations. [13230]

Ms Hewitt: Officials from the Office for Civil Nuclear Security and the Export Control and Non-Proliferation Directorate within my Department participated at the International Atomic Energy Agency's symposium on nuclear safeguards, verification and security held in Vienna between 29 October and 2 November. This included a special session on 2 November focused on the issue of combating nuclear terrorism. The special session consisted of preparations on a number of issues around the response to the threat of nuclear terrorism.

The IAEA Secretariat will be presenting a preliminary report to the IAEA's Board of Governors later this month on current and planned activities relevant to protecting against acts of nuclear terrorism, and ideas for new and expanded activities for the agency to undertake. The UK is an active member of the Board of Governors, and will consider carefully the agency's proposed activities.

Departmental Reviews

Brian Cotter: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if initial findings submitted to the strategic steering group as part of the Helping the UK get to the Future First and Business Support reviews will be made available to opposition parties. [12520]

Ms Hewitt: The reviews of my Department's priorities and structure of my Department's support for business are continuing. I propose to make a public announcement about them as soon as their recommendations are ready.

EU Research Council

Mr. Hood: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the outcome of the Research Council held in Brussels on 30 October was; what the Government's stance on each issue discussed, including their voting record was; and if she will make a statement. [12018]

Ms Hewitt: The Research Council which was held in Luxembourg on 30 October:

1. Held a general debate on Commission proposals for the next EU Research and Development Framework Programme 2002–06, including the proposed new funding instruments, and the next EURATOM Research and Development Framework Programme 2002–06. The Government reiterated their support for a focused programme, aimed at achieving added value through European co-operation, and for improving the efficiency of financial arrangements. The Council agreed to set up an expert working group to examine the future development of research on nuclear fusion.
2. Adopted Council conclusions on the possible application of Article 169 concerning the voluntary networking of national programmes.
3. Received a presentation from the Commission of its Communication on the regional dimension of the European Research Area.
4. Received a presentation by the Commission on a draft European Community action plan on the Global Monitoring of Environmental Security (GMES) satellite initiative. The Government welcomed the emphasis on users' needs in the proposed action plan, but underlined the risks of a potential overlap with the Common Foreign and Security Policy (CFSP).
5. Received information from the Commission on the networking of member states' activities in the field of therapeutic AIDS trials.
6. Under Other Business, the Council agreed in principle a proposal by the Belgian presidency to set up an expert group of member states' representatives to examine the scope for co-operation in research aimed at countering bio-terrorism.
7. No votes were taken at the Council.

Ministerial Meetings

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many meetings Ministers have had with the Institute of Directors in each of the last five years. [10092]

Ms Hewitt: Since 2 May 1997 DTI Ministers have had formal meetings with representatives from the Institute of Directors on the following number of occasions:

Year	Number of occasions
1997	5
1998	4
1999	4
2000	7
2001	3

In addition, in the normal course of Government business DTI Ministers will have had more informal contact with representatives from the Institute of Directors on other occasions.

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many meetings Ministers have held with the Institute of Management in each of the last five years. [10093]

Ms Hewitt: Since 2 May 1997 DTI Ministers have had formal meetings with representatives from the Institute of Management on the following occasions.

Year	Number of occasions
2000	3
2001	1

In addition, in the normal course of Government business DTI Ministers will have had more informal contact with representatives from the Institute of Management on other occasions.

Objective 1 Regions

Adam Price: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what her policy is in relation to the provision of (a) operating aid, (b) employment aid and (c) investment aid in the Objective 1 regions under Article 87(3)a of the EC Treaty; and what representations she has received on this issue. [12398]

Ms Hewitt: Our policy is to support aid which addresses market failure and which speeds economic reform but which does not distort competition. I have received no recent representations about aid in Objective 1 regions.

Fossil Fuel

Mr. Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what has been the installed capacity of fossil fuel generation for each fossil fuel type in the UK in each year since 1990. [13290]

Ms Hewitt: The available information is as follows:

Capacity of coal stations owned by major power producers[1] in the UK in DNC[2] terms

MW

End month	Coal fired	Oil fired	Mixed or dual fired[3]	Gas fired (CCGT)[4]	Gas turbines and oil engines
March 1990	34,583	12,847	5,434	—	3,356
March 1991	34,298	11,895	5,172	—	3,130
March 1992	32,686	10,817	4,806	229	2,968
March 1993	30,523	8,556	5,781	1,129	2,539
March 1994	29,132	6,317	5,694	5,463	2,248
March 1995	27,774	5,145	5,534	8,364	1,895
March 1996	27,494	5,214	5,534	9,034	1,890
December 1996[5]	25,976	3,989	8,445	12,052	1,721
December 1997	25,976	4,069	7,530	12,252	1,526
December 1998	25,324	2,829	6,928	14,638	1,492
December 1999	25,581	2,829	7,017	16,110	1,333
December 2000	24,835	3,514	6,872	19,349	1,243

[1] Companies whose prime purpose is the generation of electricity. The total fossil fuel capacity of other generators was 3,284 MW in March 1990 rising to 5,358 MW in December 2000.
[2] Declared net capability.
[3] Mixed or dual fired covers stations that can be fuelled by more than one fuel either as alternatives or simultaneously. So as not to disclose information provided in confidence about individual stations, this category also includes gas fired stations that are not combined cycle gas turbine stations.
[4] Combined cycle gas turbine stations.
[5] In 1996 a change was made to measure capacity at the end of the calendar year rather than at the end of March.
Source:
Digest of UK Energy Statistics 2001 Table 5.7 and the corresponding tables for earlier years.

Mr. Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what has been the total amount of electricity generated from fossil fuel sources (a) in total and (b) for each fossil fuel type, in the UK in each year since 1990. [13288]

Ms Hewitt: The available information is as follows:

GWh

	Electricity supplied from coal	Electricity supplied from oil	Electricity supplied from gas	Total electricity supplied from fossil fuels
1990[1]	n/a	n/a	n/a	246,114
1991[1]	n/a	n/a	n/a	245,368
1992[1]	n/a	n/a	n/a	236,034
1993	170,276	20,038	32,930	223,244
1994	161,739	14,075	49,526	225,340
1995	157,240	12,480	63,323	233,043
1996	146,856	13,677	82,959	243,492
1997	119,627	7,854	109,515	236,996
1998	122,953	6,360	117,858	247,171
1999	106,112	5,685	143,052	254,849
2000	119,960	5,597	146,807	272,364

[1] Before 1993 electricity supplied statistics were disaggregated by type of station rather than type of fuel so only the total for fossil fuels is available.
Source:
Digest of UK Energy Statistics 2001 Table 5.6 and corresponding tables for earlier years.

Renewable Energy

Mr. Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what has been the total installed capacity of renewable energy generation in the UK in each year since 1990. [13292]

Ms Hewitt: The available information is as follows:

MW

End December	Capacity of renewable energy generation in the UK in DNC[1] terms
1990	1,234.8
1991	1,572.7
1992	1,644.5
1993	1,743.0
1994	1,795.3
1995	1,831.1
1996	1,962.0
1997	2,008.1
1998	2,171.3
1999	2,273.4
2000	2,439.7

[1] Declared net capacity

Source:
Digest of UK Energy Statistics 2001 Table 7.4 and corresponding tables for earlier years.

Mr. Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) what has been the proportion of electricity generated from (a) renewable and (b) UK-based renewable sources since 1990 (i) in total and (ii) compared with each fossil fuel type; [13286]

(2) what was the (a) total amount of electricity generated from renewable sources in the UK in each year since 1990 and (b) proportion of all electricity generated from (i) renewable sources and (ii) UK-based renewable sources in each year since 1990. [13291]

Ms Hewitt: The available information is as follows. Nuclear sources account for the proportion of generation that was neither from renewables nor fossil fuels. On b(i), the fuel source of imported electricity is not recorded separately in DTI statistics. It is assumed that electricity imported from France in these years was from non-fossil sources:

Year	Electricity generated from renewable sources in the UK (GWh)	Proportion of total electricity generated in the UK that was from: Renewable sources (percentage)	Fossil fuel sources (percentage)
1990	5,894	1.8	77
1991	5,409	1.7	76
1992	6,502	2.1	74
1993	5,883	1.8	69
1994	7,307	2.2	69
1995	7,283	2.2	70
1996	6,101	1.8	68
1997	7,428	2.1	68
1998	9,231	2.5	68
1999	10,199	2.8	69
2000	10,476	2.8	73

Source:
Digest of UK Energy Statistics 2001 Tables 5.6 and 7.44 and the corresponding tables for earlier years

Postal Service

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what measures she proposes to improve the postal service; and if she will make a statement. [12591]

Mr. Alexander: Under our reform package for postal services, which was fully implemented on 26 March this year, Consignia has greater commercial freedom to compete more efficiently and effectively. There is now a new independent regulator, the Postal Services Commission, whose primary responsibility is to maintain the provision of a universal postal service at a uniform tariff. The commission has set tough standards of service for Consignia and is monitoring them closely. In addition, the commission can and has licensed other companies to compete with Consignia which will benefit consumers through more choice and better quality services. The commission recently completed a comprehensive consultation exercise on the introduction of competition and is expected to come forward with a report and recommendations shortly.

The Consumer Council for Postal Services, known as Postwatch, replaced the Post Office Users National Council, and will investigate consumer complaints if these have not been satisfactorily resolved with Consignia. Postwatch has wider powers and duties than POUNC and works closely with Postcomm to monitor the quality of postal services in the UK.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Kosovo

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many of the bodies found in the mass grave at Dragodan, Pristina have been identified, broken down by (a) ethnic background and (b) sex. [10450]

Mr. MacShane: The International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia (ICTY) has exhumed 210 bodies from individual graves at the cemetery in Dragodan, Pristina. Of the bodies exhumed, 36 were females and 139 were male. The gender of 35 bodies could not be identified.

According to the Missing Persons Unit of the UN Interim Administration Mission in Kosovo (UNMIK), 52 of the 210 bodies have been identified to date. Five bodies were Kosovo Serbs (four male and one female). Forty-seven bodies were Kosovo Albanians (40 male and seven female).

High Commission and Embassy Offices

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the total cost was of running (a) British high commission offices and (b) British embassy offices in each of the last three years. [12083]

Mr. MacShane: The total costs of running British high commissions and embassies for the years in question are as follows:

£ million

	(a) British high commissions	(b) British embassies
1998–99	148.35	510.99
1999–2000	113.50	442.74
2000–01	127.01	479.40

The apparent fall in costs between the first and second years is due to the switch from cash accounting to resource accounting.

Gibraltar

Mr. Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the consequences of a failure of the Government of Gibraltar to participate in the Brussels process. [12017]

Peter Hain: When the Foreign Secretary met the Spanish Foreign Minister on 26 July for talks under the Brussels process, they confirmed that Gibraltarian engagement would be an important element in carrying the process forward and that they would welcome the attendance of the Chief Minister of Gibraltar at future ministerial meetings. This remains the case and both we and the Government of Spain very much hope that the Chief Minister of Gibraltar will participate at the ministerial meeting due to be held in Barcelona on 20 November.

The Government believe that through the dialogue in the recently resumed Brussels process, we shall build a better future for the people of Gibraltar, including normalising relations with Spain, and that all should welcome this. I refer the hon. Member to my speech to Westminster Hall on 7 November 2001, Official Report, columns 88–92WH.

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he (a) last met and (b) next plans to meet representatives of the Spanish Government to discuss the future of Gibraltar. [12383]

Peter Hain: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Chorley (Mr. Hoyle) on 6 November 2001, Official Report, column 121W.

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the future of Gibraltar. [12381]

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on his Department's briefing of 30 October on the future of Gibraltar. [12961]

Peter Hain: I refer my hon. Friends to my statement in Westminster Hall on 7 November 2001, Official Report, columns 88–92WH.

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on his policy relating to the sovereignty of Gibraltar. [12831]

Peter Hain: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Romford (Mr. Rosindell) on 30 October 2001, Official Report, columns 737–39, and to the speech I made in Westminster Hall on 7 November 2001, Official Report, columns 88–92WH.

South and Central America

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what arrangements were made for discussions with representatives of (a) Government, (b) industrial, (c) commercial and (d) other organisations during his visit to south and central America. [12880]

Mr. MacShane: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs has not yet visited south or central America since taking office. My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister, together with a delegation of business leaders, visited Brazil, Argentina and Mexico in July-August.

Plan for Africa

Linda Gilroy: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what contribution his Department has made to the Plan for Africa. [11349]

Mr. Bradshaw: The New Partnership for African Development (NEPAD—formerly known as the New African Initiative) will require a broad international response, ranging form support to some of NEPAD's programmatic elements to action in the EU, OECD, UN and other international forums. No specific financial commitments have yet been met.

The Prime Minister has appointed Baroness Amos as his personal representative in developing a G8 Action Plan for Africa to be adopted at the at the 2002 G8 Summit in Canada. The first meeting of G8 Heads of State personal representatives was held in London 17 to 19 October. They agreed to consult widely with other development partners, with the private sector, civil society and international organisations. They have further meetings planned which will include dialogue with African partners. The elements in the Action Plan will be evolved in the context of these meetings.

Private Military Companies

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he will publish his Green Paper on private military companies. [13427]

Peter Hain: Preparation of the Green Paper is now well advanced. I will keep the House informed of progress.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Afghanistan (Children)

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if she will meet representatives of Save the Children to consider what action can be taken by the Government to reunite separated children with their families in the Afghanistan area. [12696]

Clare Short: As part of our response to the current crisis, my Department is supporting Save the Children's work in Pakistan and Afghanistan, which encompasses health, education and shelter in addition to child protection activities.

We are also supporting the Red Cross movement and UNICEF for their work in child protection, food supply, water and sanitation, shelter and health.

All these organisations are experienced in the important activity of reuniting separated families in humanitarian crises.

Pakistan (Refugee Camps)

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development (1) what she is doing to ensure that refugee camps in Pakistan comply with internationally agreed standards; [12906]

(2) if she will make a statement on the standards in the refugee camps in Pakistan. [12907]

Clare Short: Pakistan has been shouldering the burden of some 2 million refugees from Afghanistan for many years. This is in addition to the estimated 100,000 people who have moved into Pakistan from Afghanistan since 11 September. Over the last 20 years, these refugees have been hosted in camps or absorbed into communities. The majority of the camps in Pakistan pre-date the agreement of the international sphere standards.

We must of course do all we can to ensure that all refugees are properly cared for. And the international community must do more to give Pakistan all possible support in coping with this burden and making progress towards improving standards in camps.

So far my Department has committed £3 million to UNHCR's operations in response to the current crisis, to support its operations for refugees. We have also provided a specialist site planner to UNHCR in Pakistan to assist with the setting up of new refugee camp sites. In addition we have allocated £5 million to support NGOs, much of which will be directed towards Afghans in Pakistan.

TRANSPORT, LOCAL GOVERNMENT AND THE REGIONS

Physical Agents Directive

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what assessment he has made of (a) the impact on British businesses of the proposed physical agents directive and (b) its cost to British business. [11855]

Dr. Whitehead: Regulatory Impact Assessments of the common position on both proposed physical agents directives on vibration and noise have been prepared by the Health and Safety Executive. The RIA on the vibration directive has already been submitted to the European Scrutiny Committee and is available in the House of Commons Library; I will shortly submit the RIA on the noise directive and place it in the Library.

Property Blight

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will make a statement on compensation payable to residents for property blight arising from the construction of the Aston Clinton bypass. [11862]

Mr. Jamieson: The Highways Agency is able to confirm that two properties need to be acquired in order to construct the A41 London-Birmingham Trunk Road (Aston Clinton Bypass). They are being acquired under Compulsory Purchase Order (C.P.O) (No. SW14) 1997 and compensation for these properties will be at market value. Statutory property blight, which could require us to buy a property adversely affected by the announcement of a road scheme before a C.P.O is issued, did not apply in this instance because no request to purchase was received from the owner occupiers.

Building Inspectors

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will make a statement about the system of buildings inspection by approved inspectors. [12645]

Dr. Whitehead: Building control by approved inspectors is provided for under the Building Act 1984 and the Building (Approved Inspectors etc.) Regulations 2000. People intending to carry out work subject to the building regulations may opt to engage an approved inspector as an alternative to asking the local authority to carry out building control. This competitive situation is widely regarded as a stimulus to better, more efficient building control services.

Air Travel

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what measures he proposes to encourage people to travel by air. [R] [12974]

Mr. Jamieson: The Government are working hard to help return the aviation industry to business as usual as quickly as possible.

Following the events of 11 September security measures have been enhanced at all UK airports and for all flights from the UK. We are carrying out a fundamental review of aviation security to ensure that air travel is as safe from terrorist attacks as we can make it while, at the same time, balancing security with our freedom to travel.

Alongside increased security measures and intervention to provide the industry with third party war risk insurance, the Government are also actively involved in helping to restore confidence in air travel. As part of this I undertook a programme of visits to airports on 25 October, taking in Gatwick, Edinburgh, Birmingham and Bristol, which gave me the opportunity to press home the message that we should not let the fear of terrorism undermine our freedom to fly.

Croydon Tramlink

Richard Ottaway: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will make a statement on the future of Croydon Tramlink. [12754]

Mr. Jamieson: This is a matter for the Mayor of London and Transport for London.

Port Health

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what the expenditure on Port Health was in each of the last five years and what the estimated outturn is for the next three years. [12725]

Mr. Raynsford [holding answer 6 November 2001]: English local authorities have reported the following expenditure on Port Health. This information was not collected centrally after 1997–98.

£000

	Net current expenditure
1993–94	4,579
1994–95	4,273
1995–96	4,335
1996–97	4,226
1997–98	4,040

Bypass Schemes

Mr. Dawson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what European Union guidelines he uses in evaluating the environmental impact of proposed bypass schemes. [13150]

Mr. Jamieson: When draft orders are prepared for a road scheme, including a bypass, where the land required exceeds one hectare an environmental statement assessing the environmental impact is required under European Community Directive 85/337/EEC as amended by Directive 97/11/EC. The EC Directive sets out the information specified in the environmental statement but guidelines on evaluating the environmental impact are matters for each member state.

Civil Aviation Industry

Paul Goggins: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions (1) what (a) action he is taking and (b) further plans he has to support the civil aviation industry following the terrorist attacks on 11 September; [13236]

(2) what discussions he has had with (a) trades unions and (b) civil aviation industry representatives with regard to the problems facing the civil aviation industry since 11 September. [13237]

Mr. Jamieson: We have had discussions with airlines and other bodies connected with the aviation industry, including union representatives, to consider the economic consequences for the industry of the 11 September terrorist attacks. The Government have underwritten, on a temporary basis, third party war risk insurance for UK airlines and service providers to the aviation industry and are considering whether further support should be made available within European Commission guidelines.

Aircraft Seating

Mr. John Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions (1) what plans he has to increase the minimum distance between the seat back cushion and the back of the seat in front on all UK-registered aircraft over 5,700 kg MTWA which carry 20 passengers or more; [11810]

(2) what plans he has to commission research into the need to alter the minimum vertically projected distance between (a) seat rows and (b) a seat and any fixed structure forward of the seat on all UK-registered aircraft over 5,700 kg MTWA which carry 20 passengers or more; [11923]

(3) what assessment he has made of recommendations of the Anthropometric Study to Update Minimum Aircraft Seating Standards initiated by the Joint Aviation Authorities; [11921]

(4) what plans he has to increase the minimum distance between the seat base and back of the seat in front on all UK-registered aircraft over 5,700 kg MTWA which carry 20 passengers or more. [11922]

Mr. Jamieson: The Anthropometric Study to Update Minimum Aircraft Seating Standards was initiated by the Joint Aviation Authorities (JAA) in order to examine how the most recent data on human dimensions may be used to assess the way passengers sit in their seats and their ability efficiently to evacuate an aircraft in an emergency. In addition some other aspects, such as the adoption of recommended brace positions, were also examined.

The study, commissioned by the United Kingdom Civil Aviation Authority (CAA) on behalf of the JAA, was carried out by consultants ICE Ergonomics. It made a number of recommendations based on dimensions between seats and between seats and other structures.

The development and application of airworthiness requirements and operational procedures related to emergency evacuation is the responsibility of the Safety Regulation Group of the CAA. Currently the CAA is the only member of the JAA to set legal minimum requirements for seat spacing. The Authority will consider the study's recommendations in consultation with other members of the JAA and industry, and, if considered appropriate, proposals will be made for amending the airworthiness requirements.

Mr. John Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what plans he has to commission prospective research together with clinical and basic scientific support, into the incidence and cause of thrombo embolic disease among air travellers. [11919]

Mr. Jamieson: The World Health Organisation has recently announced a global research project into a number of aspects of Deep Vein Thrombosis. This Department, together with the Department of Health, is considering the extent to which the Government should participate in this work and will shortly announce plans.

Mr. John Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what plans he has to introduce compulsory foldaway foot leg rests in all UK-registered aircraft over 5,700 keg MTWA which carry 20 passengers or more. [11920]

Mr. Jamieson: Foot leg rests are already provided in many aircraft but not normally in economy class seats. Although their provision might improve the comfort of passengers, there is no evidence to suggest their absence represents a health risk. This is not therefore a matter for regulation but rather a commercial matter for airlines to decide what level of comfort to offer in a particular class of seating.

Railtrack

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what his policy is on providing financial guarantees to the successor company to Railtrack; and if he will make a statement. [11336]

Mr. Jamieson: I refer the hon. Member to the replies given by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State to my hon. Friend the Member for Preston (Mr. Hendrick) on 23 October 2001, Official Report, column 195W, and to the right hon. Member for Wokingham (Mr. Redwood) on 31 October 2001, Official Report, column 671W.

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what changes he has made in the financial provision for transport services as a result of Railtrack's going into administration. [11339]

Mr. Jamieson: I refer the hon. Member to the reply from my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State to my hon. Friend the Member for Scarborough and Whitby (Lawrie Quinn) on 17 October 2001, Official Report, column 1230W.

WALES

Objective 1 Money

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what percentage of current allocated Objective 1 money has been spent in Wales; and what percentage is committed to projects in Wales. [11121]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The operation of Objective 1, and the allocation of its funds, is a matter for the National Assembly for Wales.

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what meetings he has attended in the last 12 months on Objective 1 money with (a) HM Treasury, (b) the Department of Trade and Industry, (c) the European Commission, (d) the National Assembly for Wales and (e) the Welsh Development Agency. [11120]

Mr. Paul Murphy: In the course of the last 12 months I have had meetings with representatives of all the bodies listed to discuss Objective 1 funding, among other issues.

Departmental Publications

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many publications were issued by his Department in each of the last four years. [11820]

Mr. Paul Murphy: My Department was established on 1 July 1999 and issued no publications in 1999, one in 2000 and has issued one so far this year.

Joint Committee of Health Ministers

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales, pursuant to his answer to the hon. Member for Cardiff, Central (Mr. Jones), on 17 October 2001, Official Report, column 1153, what the conclusions were of the joint committee of Health Ministers from the UK Government and the devolved administrations held on 22 October. [12883]

Mr. Touhig: JMC (Health) provides a forum for Ministers responsible for health services in all parts of the United Kingdom to work together on areas of shared interest to deliver improved health services for the people they serve. At the meeting on 22 October, the Health Ministers exchanged experiences on their respective modernisation agendas and affirmed the importance of continuing to share best practice, working in partnership on issues where they had similar aims and values for improving the patient experience of healthcare.

Computer Crime

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many cases of computer (a) hacking, (b) fraud and (c) theft his Department recorded in (i) 2000 and (ii) 2001; and on how many occasions in those years computer systems have been illegally accessed by computer hackers (A) within and (B) outside his Department. [13136]

Mr. Paul Murphy: None.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

World Athletics Championships

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport, pursuant to her answer of 10 July 2001, Official Report, columns 449–50W, on the World Athletics Championships, what indications she received from Mr. Gyulai regarding the IAAF's continuing commitment to holding the World Athletics Championships in London; and if they discussed a contingency plan for the games to be held outside the UK. [5383]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 19 July 2001]: It has been my priority to keep the International Association of Athletic Federations IAAF fully informed at every stage about the review of the UK's arrangements for the 2005 World Athletics Championships. My Department has had the following contact with the IAAF prior to the decision to withdraw support for the Lee Valley project.

2 July: I spoke to Istvan Gyulai, General Secretary of the IAAF by telephone to inform him that Sport England had commissioned Patrick Carter to review the Lee Valley project and to advise him that the Government were committed to staging the 2005 World Athletics Championships.

6 August: My right hon. Friend the Minister for Sport met Lamine Diack, President of the IAAF, and Istvan Gyulai at the World Athletics Championships in Edmonton.

25 September: At my request, a senior DCMS official spoke to Istvan Gyulai to inform him that the Government were considering Patrick Carter's report and that we would advise him of the position as soon as the Government, Sport England and UK Athletics had reached a conclusion on staging the World Athletics Championships.

During these discussions the question of switching the Championships outside the UK was not specifically raised. Once the decision to withdraw support from the Lee Valley project had been taken, David Moorcroft, Chief Executive of UK Athletics and I spoke to Lamine Diack and Istvan Gyulai on 4 October by telephone to let them know of our decision that Lee Valley was not viable and to say that we wanted to suggest to the IAAF that the Championships be switched to Sheffield. My right hon. Friend the Minister for Sport and I met Lamine Diack, President of the IAAF, Istvan Gyulai and Robert Stimpson, IAAF Treasurer on 5 October. This meeting was also attended by David Hemery and David Moorcroft from UK Athletics, Patrick Carter and by officials from DCMS and Sport England.

Millennium Dome

Mr. Yeo: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many parliamentary written questions regarding the Millennium Dome have been tabled since 1 May 1997; and how many answers to such questions have been subject to commercial confidentiality. [10620]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 26 October 2001]: Of some 1,360 questions that have been answered on Dome and Millennium Experience issues since May 1997, 78 questions have been answered by my Department on which information requested has been subject to commercial confidentiality. This represents 5.73 per cent. of all questions answered.

In addition, the Department for Transport, Local Government and the Regions has answered 21 questions relating to the Millennium Dome in which commercial confidentiality has been cited.

Television

Mr. Allan: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate she has made of the commercial value of the spectrum which will become available following the switch-off of analogue television. [12340]

Dr. Howells: The value of the spectrum will depend on a range of issues including the amount of spectrum that may become available, what the spectrum can be used for and how it might be packaged into licences for an award process, together with prospective licensees' own perception of the value of the resource at the time of award in the context of their business plans. It is not possible to anticipate these issues. However, to help consideration of the spectrum planning issues, we will shortly release a consultation document, as a strand of the Draft Digital Television Action Plan published recently, seeking views on the various ways that the spectrum might be ordered after switch over.

European City of Culture

Kevin Brennan: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many applications she has received for membership of the advisory committee on the selection of the European City of Culture 2008; how many of the applicants are resident in Wales; when she expects to announce the membership of the panel; and if she will make a statement. [12848]

Dr. Howells: We have received 47 nominations and applications for membership of the independent advisory panel on the selection of the UK nomination for European Capital of Culture 2008. Of these, four are resident in Wales. We are also identifying possible candidates from the DCMS and Cabinet Office public appointments databases, which include many more people resident in Wales. We expect to announce the membership of the panel by March 2002. It will include at least one member from each of the four countries of the UK.

Consultation Documents

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many consultation documents were issued by her Department and its predecessors from (a) 15 October to 14 January, (b) 15 January to 14 April, (c) 15 April to 14 July and (d) 15 July to 14 October in each year from 1996. [12899]

Dr. Howells: My Department consults the public in a variety of ways, not simply through the publication of documents. Since 1998 we have, for example, held ministerially-led seminars in connection with our Departmental Spending Review; used specialist working groups to help formulate our national tourism strategy Tomorrow's Tourism; put consultation documents on our internet site, and issued press releases seeking views on whether particular buildings should be listed.

No central record of every consultation document issued since October 1996 is held, but the approximate figures for DCMS and its predecessor, the Department of National Heritage, are:

From	To	Number of documents issued
15 October 1996	14 January 1997	0
15 January 1997	14 April 1997	0
15 April 1997	14 July 1997	1
15 July 1997	14 October 1997	2
15 October 1997	14 January 1998	0
15 January 1998	14 April 1998	2
15 April 1998	14 July 1998	2
15 July 1998	14 October 1998	2
15 October 1998	14 January 1999	2
15 January 1999	14 April 1999	1
15 April 1999	14 July 1999	2
15 July 1999	14 October 1999	0
15 October 1999	14 January 2000	3
15 January 2000	14 April 2000	0
15 April 2000	14 July 2000	4
15 July 2000	14 October 2000	3
15 October 2000	14 January 2001	5
15 January 2001	14 April 2001	4
15 April 2001	14 July 2001	1
15 July 2001	14 October 2001	4
15 October 2001	7 November 2001	1

Commonwealth Stadium

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much Government money has been given to the Commonwealth stadium in Manchester. [13014]

Mr. Caborn: None. The cost of the stadium, currently estimated at £110 million, is being met by Manchester city council with the support of a £77 million lottery grant from Sport England.

Television Licences

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what measures she has taken to ensure that the mailing of households not recorded as holding television licences by the Television Licensing Authority is cost-effective. [12662]

Dr. Howells: Statutory responsibility for the administration and enforcement of the television licensing system rests with the BBC. Decisions on the resources allocated to different enforcement activities are therefore a matter for the BBC rather than the Government. However, the Corporation is accountable to the National Audit Office and Public Accounts Committee as to the value for money of the collection and enforcement arrangements.

Computer Crime

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many cases of computer (a) hacking, (b) fraud and (c) theft her Department recorded in (i) 2000 and (ii) 2001; and on how many occasions in those years computer systems have been illegally accessed by computer hackers (A) within and (B) outside his Department. [13129]

Dr. Howells: No cases of computer hacking or fraud, either by outsiders or internal staff were recorded by the Department for Culture, Media and Sport in 2000 or in 2001 to date.

Two computers have been lost so far in 2001 with three computers lost in 2000.

No Departmental computer systems have been illegally accessed by computer hackers within or outside the Department.

Correspondence

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when she will reply to the letter from the hon. Member for North Thanet on political bias by broadcasting stations; and if she will make a statement. [12787]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 6 November 2001]: I wrote to the hon. Member yesterday and I have arranged for copies of my letter to be placed in the Libraries of both Houses today.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Correspondence

Mr. Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when she will reply to the letter to her dated 14 June, from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton with regard to Miss M. Cowley. [6522]

Mr. Morley: My Private Secretary replied to my right hon. Friend the Member for Manchester, Gorton on 3 August 2001.

After a request from my right hon. Friend, the reply was resent on 14 August 2001 signed by myself.

Foxhunting

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment she has made of job losses in the countryside if foxhunting does not restart before Christmas. [10006]

Alun Michael [holding answer 25 October 2001]: It is not possible to make a reliable estimate of the potential number of job losses consequent on the suspension of hunting as a result of foot and mouth disease.

Foot and Mouth

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many animals were culled in Powys during the foot and mouth outbreak. [R] [12836]

Mr. Morley: The numbers of animals slaughtered on infected premises, dangerous contacts, contiguous premises and slaughter on suspicion cases in Powys are available on the DEFRA website (www.defra.gov.uk). The website is updated daily.

Figures for Powys as at 5 November 2001

		Dangerous contacts
Animals	IP	Contiguous	Non-contiguous	SOS	Total
Cattle	5,357	9,440	2,224	697	17,718
Sheep	50,941	67,747	36,892	8,149	163,729
Pigs	2	7	47	0	56
Goats	22	15	0	0	37
Deer	0	0	0	0	0
Other	0	0	0	0	0
Total	56,322	77,209	39,163	8,846	181,540

Note:
Data drawn from DEFRA Disease Control System database and are subject to revision as quality assurance of data is carried out.

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assistance the Arthur Rank Foundation is giving to farmers in Chorley affected by foot and mouth. [13228]

Mr. Morley: The Arthur Rank Foundation has used its charitable funds to provide relief for rural communities who have been affected by the outbreak of foot and mouth disease. This includes, among other things, the establishment of a National Fodder Bureau. This bureau maintains a database of people who wish to sell or donate fodder and matches them up with farmers who cannot source their own supplies. The National Fodder Bureau has been receiving matched funding from the Countryside Agency pound for pound on donations (excluding corporate donations) and gift aid. My right hon. Friend the Minister for Rural Affairs announced on 6 November that the Government had agreed to a new tranche of match funding, comprising up to £2 million until 31 December 2001.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Murder Investigations

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps he has taken to appoint a judge of international standing from outside the jurisdiction to undertake the investigation of allegations of collusion in the cases of the murders of Pat Finucane, Robert Hamill, Rosemary Nelson and Billy Wright; when he expects these investigations to be completed; when he will publish the terms of reference for them; what powers he will give the judge to compel potential witnesses and interview people disapplying the Official Secrets Acts; what arrangements will be made to hear the views of the victims' families; and what commitment he has made to publish the terms of his agreement to establish a public inquiry. [11492]

Jane Kennedy: The package of proposals published after the Weston Park talks contained details of the investigation by a judge of international standing into the cases of Chief Superintendent Breen and Superintendent Buchanan, Lord Justice and Lady Gibson, Billy Wright, Patrick Finucane, Rosemary Nelson, and Robert Hamill. We are currently working with the Irish Government on the appointment. Further details will be published in due course.

Reproductive Health

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many (a) individuals and (b) organisations made submissions to the Northern Ireland Human Rights Commission calling for the inclusion of a right to equal and free access to reproductive health care; and if he will list these organisations, together with the number of people represented by them. [12312]

Mr. Browne: This is a matter for the Northern Ireland Human Rights Commission. I have asked the Chief Commissioner to write to the hon. Member. A copy of his letter will be placed in the Library.

HEALTH

National Organ Register

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many and what percentage of the population have joined the national organ register. [10759]

Jacqui Smith: There are currently 9,170,045 people on the national health service organ donor register. This is 15 per cent. of the population.

Waiting Lists

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many patients died in each year from 1995 to 2000 while on the waiting list for (a) heart, (b) heart and lung, (c) lung and (d) liver transplants; [10960]

(2) how many people are awaiting a (a) kidney transplant, (b) heart transplant, (c) heart and lung transplant, (d) lung transplant and (e) liver transplant; and if he will make a statement on the shortfall in organs available for transplant; [10959]

(3) how many organ transplants were carried out in the last five years for which figures are available. [10760]

Mr. Hutton: The information requested is in the tables.

Thoracic and liver patients who died while on the active waiting list in the UK from 1995 to 2000 by organ and year of death

Organ	1995	1996	1997	1998	1999	2000
Heart	55	57	59	55	54	37
Heart/lung	32	39	32	22	26	42
Lung	50	50	54	66	71	49
Liver	50	50	62	74	76	65
Total	187	196	207	217	227	193

Solid organ waiting list in the UK as of 21 October 2001 by organ and status

Organ	Active	Suspended	Total
Kidney	4,779	1,263	6,042
Kidney/pancreas	104	29	133
Pancreas	11	21	32
Heart	106	11	117
Heart/lung	77	2	79
Lung	232	2	234
Liver	151	2	153
Total	5,460	1,330	6,790

Solid organ transplants in the UK from 1996 to 2000 by organ and year of transplant

Organ	1996	1997	1998	1999	2000	Total
Kidney	1,682	1,666	1,581	1,581	1,670	8,180
Kidney/pancreas	19	21	22	31	32	125
Pancreas	3	9	0	3	0	15
Heart	276	264	261	227	204	1,232
Heart/lung	50	43	51	49	33	226
Lung	116	103	88	100	98	515
Liver	617	659	651	679	665	3,271
Other Multi-organ	24	14	19	15	6	78
Total	2,787	2,779	2,673	2,695	2,708	13,642

Pneumococcal Vaccine

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what plans he has to (a) provide and (b) promote pneumococcal vaccine for pensioners aged over 65 years; and if he will make a statement; [10104]

(2) what plans the JCVI has to consider the effectiveness of pneumococcal vaccine on elderly patients and make recommendations on its future use for NHS patients aged over 65 years; [10106]

(3) what evaluations his Department has made of the clinical effectiveness of the pneumococcal vaccine for those aged over 65 years; [10103]

(4) what estimates he has made of the (a) cost and (b) savings to the NHS if everyone aged 65 years and more were given the pneumococcal vaccine; [10105]

(5) what evaluations his Department has carried out into the cost effectiveness of administering the pneumococcal vaccine to all those aged over 65 years; [10107]

(6) what plans her Department has to submit evidence to the JCVI on the effectiveness of pneumococcal vaccine for those aged 65 years and older; and if he will make a statement. [10102]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 29 October 2001]: Based on the advice of the Joint Committee on Vaccination and Immunisation (JCVI), pneumococcal vaccine is currently recommended for use in certain risk groups with certain medical conditions, which put them at higher risk of pneumococcal infection. The JCVI regularly reviews its advice and the Department also keeps the evidence base on this topic under review.

Pneumococcal vaccine is recommended for all those aged two years or older in whom pneumococcal infection is likely to be more common and/or dangerous, ie those with:

Asplenia or severe dysfunction of the spleen

Chronic renal disease or nephrotic syndrome

Immunodeficiency or immunosuppression due to disease or treatment, including HIV infection at all stages

Chronic heart disease

Chronic lung disease

Chronic liver disease including cirrhosis

Diabetes mellitus.

It is the responsibility of general practitioners and nurses to identify and immunise their at risk patients.

The Department has not carried out a cost effectiveness study of administering the pneumococcal vaccine to all aged 65 years and over but continues to recommend the vaccine based on underlying ill health rather than age.

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment he has made of the clinical and cost effectiveness of implementing an age-based pneumococcal vaccine campaign; [10736]

(2) which health authorities operate age-based pneumococcal vaccine campaigns. [10737]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 29 October 2001]: The Department has not carried out a cost effectiveness study of administering pneumococcal vaccine based on age and does not hold data on which health authorities operate age-based pneumococcal vaccine, as the Department continues to recommend the vaccine based on underlying ill health rather than age.

Pneumococcal vaccine is recommended for all those aged two years or older in whom pneumococcal infection is likely to be more common and/or dangerous, ie those with:

Asplenia or severe dysfunction of the spleen

Chronic renal disease or nephrotic syndrome

Immunodeficiency or immunosuppression due to disease or treatment, including HIV infection at all stages

Chronic heart disease

Chronic lung disease

Chronic liver disease including cirrhosis

Diabetes mellitus.

It is the responsibility of general practitioners and nurses to identify and immunise their at risk patients.

National Care Standards Commission

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many specialist pharmacist inspectors the National Care Standards Commission plans to have in its establishment; how many will be in post from 1 April 2002; and what their role will be. [11013]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 29 October 2001]: The planned establishment for pharmacist inspectors in the National Care Standards Commission is 66. The number which will be in post at 1 April 2002 is not yet known, as invitations to transfer have not yet been issued to staff eligible to transfer from health authorities and trusts. The ministerial scheme to effect the transfer of staff (the Statutory Transfer Order) will be prepared later this year. The role of pharmacist inspectors in the National Care Standards Commission will continue to be to provide professional support to regulation, with the new regulator, from 1 April 2002.

Maternity Units

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which health authorities have midwife-led maternity units. [10013]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 29 October 2001]: Using a definition of midwife-led units to cover free standing units, separate units co-located with other hospital services and midwife-led areas which are part of a consultant-led unit, the following health authorities have midwife-led units:

Trent Region:

North Derbyshire, Lincolnshire, Leicestershire, South Humber, Nottinghamshire, South Derbyshire, Doncaster, Sheffield and Nottingham.

South Eastern Region:

Berkshire, Buckinghamshire, East Kent, East Surrey, East Sussex, Isle of Wight, Portsmouth and South East Hampshire, North and Mid Hampshire, Northamptonshire, Oxfordshire, Southampton and South West Hampshire

South West Region:

Cornwall and Isles of Scilly, North and East Devon, Dorset, Gloucestershire, Somerset and Wiltshire.

North West Region:

South Lancashire, Morecambe Bay, St. Helens and Knowsley and Salford and Trafford.

Northern and Yorkshire Region:

East Riding and Hull, Northumberland, North Cumbria, Tees and Wakefield (to open February 2002).

West Midland Region:

Shropshire, North Staffordshire, South Staffordshire, Worcestershire Coventry, Birmingham.

Eastern Region:

North Essex health authority and Suffolk health authority.

London Region:

Kensington Chelsea and Westminster, Barking and Havering, Lambeth Southwark and Lewisham, Redbridge and Waltham Forest, Camden and Islington, Barnet Enfield and Haringey, East London and The City, Hillingdon, Bexley, Bromley and Greenwich, Ealing Hammersmith and Hounslow, Merton Sutton and Wandsworth, Brent and Harrow, Kingston and Richmond and Croydon.

Departmental Publications

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many publications were issued by his Department in each of the last four years. [11835]

Ms Blears: The Department has issued the following number of publications over the last four years:

	Number of publications issued
1998	974
1999	884
2000	1,035
2001	[1]946

[1] As of 31 October 2001

Note:
These figures include documents issued as books, leaflets, circulars or in electronic format only

NHS Dentists

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on the number of dentists providing treatment on the national health service in each health authority in England and Wales in each of the last four years. [11872]

Ms Blears: The number of general dental services dentists in England and Wales is shown in the table for June in each of the years 1998 to 2001 for the current health authorities.

The total number of dentists in England and Wales increased by 7 per cent. in the three years from June 1998 to June 2001. The commitment of individual dentists to the general dental services can vary.

General dental service: Total number of dentists at 30 June each year from 1998 to 2001: England and Wales

Health authority by region	1998	1999	2000	2001
England and Wales	17,691	18,245	18,686	18,995
England	16,763	17,270	17,700	18,004
Northern and Yorkshire	1,990	2,030	2,030	2,110
Bradford	146	148	148	142
Calderdale and Kirklees	185	185	188	195
County Durham and Darlington	153	161	165	171
East Riding and Hull	136	141	145	153
Gateshead and South Tyneside	119	122	119	124
Leeds	265	268	254	279
Newcastle and North Tyneside	161	173	164	168
North Cumbria	103	102	102	104
North Yorkshire	268	279	280	292
Northumberland	107	100	100	97
Sunderland	79	76	82	85
Tees	182	186	189	196
Wakefield	86	89	94	104
Trent	1,447	1,495	1,560	1,570
Barnsley	61	64	67	61
Doncaster	88	85	96	98
Leicestershire	261	267	277	278
Lincolnshire	136	149	156	157
North Derbyshire	102	105	104	112
North Nottinghamshire	106	107	122	117
Nottingham	210	219	222	223
Rotherham	70	70	73	75
Sheffield	178	176	186	197
Southern Derbyshire	162	177	178	172
South Humber	73	76	79	80
West Midlands	1,545	1,571	1,612	1,632
Birmingham	313	314	321	315
Coventry	83	86	88	89
Dudley	84	81	85	91
Herefordshire	67	72	73	73
North Staffordshire	114	116	119	128
Sandwell	86	86	81	86
Shropshire	136	132	141	146
Solihull	55	62	63	65
South Staffordshire	161	158	166	171
Walsall	58	61	63	54
Warwickshire	148	152	164	166
Wolverhampton	60	65	66	69
Worcestershire	180	186	182	179
North West	2,213	2,239	2,237	2,253
Bury and Rochdale	127	124	123	118
East Lancashire	159	157	160	158
Liverpool	153	151	144	150
Manchester	173	180	167	169
Morecambe Bay	106	110	114	111
North Cheshire	88	91	97	93
North West Lancashire	161	165	169	165
Salford and Trafford	151	148	152	154
Sefton	96	97	92	95
South Cheshire	265	251	247	253
South Lancashire	93	95	93	99
St. Helens and Knowsley	94	105	106	106

General dental service: Total number of dentists at 30 June each year from 1998 to 2001: England and Wales

Health authority by region	1998	1999	2000	2001
Stockport	111	107	116	120
West Pennine	144	146	143	148
Wigan and Bolton	166	175	180	181
Wirral	126	137	134	133
Eastern	1,772	1,858	1,914	1,976
Bedfordshire	165	176	191	188
Cambridgeshire[1]	—	223	227	241
Hertfordshire	429	453	468	494
Norfolk[1]	—	266	266	277
North Essex	289	295	302	305
South Essex	210	220	235	241
Suffolk	212	225	225	230
London	2,948	3,011	3,102	3,137
Barking and Havering	109	117	117	123
Barnet, Enfield and Haringey	346	347	373	371
Bexley, Bromley and Greenwich	262	267	293	294
Brent and Harrow	196	198	196	213
Camden and Islington	204	208	220	233
Croydon	140	141	136	150
Ealing, Hammersmith and Hounslow	345	361	341	348
East London and The City	185	204	191	196
Hillingdon	93	96	97	101
Kensington, Chelsea and Westminster	222	219	237	216
Kingston and Richmond	149	155	155	155
Lambeth, Southwark and Lewisham	273	259	272	261
Merton, Sutton and Wandsworth	264	275	293	301
Redbridge and Waltham Forest	160	164	181	175
South East	3,082	3,225	3,326	3,376
Berkshire	277	282	307	303
Buckinghamshire	252	272	283	288
East Kent	193	200	206	204
East Surrey	190	189	189	202
East Sussex, Brighton and Hove	296	308	317	328
Isle of Wight, Portsmouth and South East Hampshire	211	225	224	226
North and Mid Hampshire	178	188	197	212
Northamptonshire	160	167	169	167
Oxfordshire	210	223	244	253
Southampton and South West Hampshire	190	193	199	199
West Kent	352	364	369	357
West Surrey	269	294	288	295
West Sussex	304	320	334	342
South and West	1,766	1,841	1,919	1,950
Avon	396	411	431	436
Cornwall and Isles of Scilly	158	161	171	178
Dorset	251	263	271	272
Gloucestershire	210	217	218	215
North and East Devon	180	184	191	204
Somerset	161	162	176	174
South and West Devon	210	228	240	249
Wiltshire	200	215	221	222
Wales	928	975	986	991
Bro Taf	228	238	243	247
Dyfed Powys	145	160	165	167
Gwent	176	183	180	180
Morgannwg	176	185	185	186
North Wales	203	209	213	211

[1] June 1998 data are not available. Cambridge and Norfolk HAs were created in April 1999 from the previous HAs: Cambridge and Huntingdon; East Norfolk; and North West Anglia. The total number of dentists in these HAs was 467 in June 1998 and 489 in June 1999.

Notes:

1. Some dentists have contracts in more than one health authority. These dentists have been counted only once, in the HA in which they hold their main contract. Dentists include principals on a HA list of dentists, and their assistants and vocational dental practitioners.

2. At 30 June 2001 there were 592 dentists working in the personal dental service (PDS) in England, of which 385 were working solely in the PDS. There are no PDS pilots in Wales.

Digital Hearing Aids

Mrs. Calton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what research his Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the success of trials involving digital hearing aids in the 20 trial hospitals under the Government pilot programme; [12169]

(2) what research his Department has undertaken to assess the possibility of establishing a system to enable members of the public to purchase digital hearing aids at the cost price through the NHS; and if he will make a statement. [12170]

Jacqui Smith: The Department has commissioned the Institute of Hearing Research to evaluate the "modernising NHS hearing aid services" project. The final evaluation report will be available next year.

The Department is not conducting research to evaluate allowing people to pay for digital hearing aids on the national health service. NHS hearing aid services, which include hearing tests, hearing aids and follow up care, are available free to children and adults who are resident in the United Kingdom.

Dr. Evan Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what preliminary evaluation of the first wave sites in the digital hearing aid trial he has received; and if a copy will be placed in the Library. [12158]

Jacqui Smith: The Department has received interim evaluation reports based on data collected from a relatively small sample of patients from the Institute of Hearing Research in July and October. The evaluation is still ongoing, so reports have not been placed in the Library.

The final evaluation report will be available next year.

Mrs. Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what timescale his Department is working under to extend the pilot programme of provision of digital hearing aids to the rest of the NHS; and what plans his Department has made regarding the future funding of digital hearing aids on the NHS between 2002–03 and 2003–04. [12011]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 6 November 2001]: The Department expects to make decisions about extending the modernisation of national health service hearing aid services to other audiology departments from 2002–03, and about future funding of digital hearing aids on the NHS, in the light of the research evaluation which is being carried out by the Institute of Hearing Research.

Twenty NHS trusts in England are fitting digital hearing aids as part of the "modernising NHS hearing aid services" project.

BMA Guidance

Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on his policy relating to the British Medical Association's guidance on withholding and withdrawing life-prolonging medical treatment; and what observations he has sent to the Association on this subject. [12225]

Ms Blears: The document issued by the British Medical Association aims to identify the range of clinical, ethical and legal factors which need to be considered in making decisions on withdrawing and withholding medical treatment. It covers also potential procedures, including consulting the health care team and seeking a second opinion where necessary, which may assist in ensuring high quality decision-making in this area.

The guidance is a helpful contribution on this subject for practitioners. We have not made any observations to the association on this subject and have no plans to do so.

North Durham NHS Trust

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if he will list the (a) individuals invited for interview by the NHS Appointments Commission for the post of chair of the North Durham NHS Trust and (b) reasons for their selection for interview; [R] [11983]

(2) which (a) individuals and (b) organisations were consulted by the NHS Appointments Commission on the appointment of the chair of the North Durham NHS Trust; and if he will publish their comments; [R] [11984]

(3) what reasons were given by the NHS Appointments Commission for not reappointing Mr. Kevin Earley to the post of chair of the North Durham NHS Trust. [R] [11985]

Ms Blears: Appointment of chairs of national health service trusts is the responsibility of the NHS Appointments Commission. The appointments process they follow has been published and has been approved by the Commissioner for Public Appointments. It is an open and transparent process but rightly protects the identity of individual candidates and the assessment of their performance at interview or elsewhere. I understand that the Appointments Commission drew the advertisements for this appointment to the attention of local hon. Members and local authorities, but in accordance with their agreed procedures, did not consult on the appointment.

Smoking-related Illnesses

Rachel Squire: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of expenditure in each of the last three financial years on NHS treatment of smoking-related illnesses. [12165]

Ms Blears: Treating illness and disease caused by smoking is estimated to cost the national health service up to £1.7 billion every year in terms of general practitioner visits, prescriptions, treatment and operations.

Air Ambulance Services

Mr. Truswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what representations he has received regarding public funding of air ambulance services; and if he will make a statement; [12528]

(2) which air ambulance services receive public funding. [12529]

Ms Blears: We have received a number of letters of support from a wide variety of organisations suggesting that there should be public funding of air ambulances. Evidence supporting the introduction of air ambulances in the national health service, however, is not convincing. In 1995, the Department commissioned Sheffield University to report on air ambulances. The report failed to show benefits which would justify NHS investment. However, in recognition of the growing public interest in this subject, further research has been commissioned into the contribution made by air ambulances in the care and transportation of seriously ill patients in a modern NHS. The Department will review the position on this issue when the outcome of this further research is available.

Information on the funding of individual air ambulance services is not collected centrally.

Social Services Departments

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, pursuant to his answer of 29 October, Official Report, column 559W, on the community care services special grant, if he will list the sources of the money allocated by his Department which previously were not earmarked for social services. [12094]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 5 November 2001]: The £300 million allocated to councils over this year and next is additional funding for social care. £80 million of this funding has been provided by the Department for Transport, Local Government and the Regions, and a further £20 million from Her Majesty's Treasury. The remaining £200 million will be found from unallocated funds within the Departmental expenditure limit.

Hospital Meals

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average cost per hospital meal is (a) before and (b) after the implementation of the Government's better hospital food programme; and if he will make a statement. [12765]

Ms Blears: The better hospital food programme, announced in the NHS Plan, is designed to improve the quality and availability of food in hospitals. It is a long term programme, the first stage of which requires hospitals, by 31 December 2001 to ensure that their meal services meet or exceed required standards and meet nutritional requirements, to provide a 24-hour catering service so that patients can obtain food when they need it, to adopt the national design for menus, and to provide on their menus dishes designed for the National Health Service by the team of leading chefs.

The initial stage of the programme is therefore about bringing standards up to the required level in places where they do not currently meet these.

The costs of each component part of the programme will vary from hospital to be hospital, and will be affected by a range of factors including current levels of investment in catering services, the type of catering service in use and the number of patients choosing dishes designed by the leading chefs.

Since hospitals are not required to implement the programme until 31 December 2001, and because at this stage costs will vary considerably, precise details regarding the average additional costs are not currently available. These will become available in the coming months.

Once standards have been brought to a more equal level across the service, it will be easier to accurately forecast any additional costs of future improvements.

Human Organs

Mr. Wareing: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what Government bodies and agencies deal with matters referred to in the Chief Medical Officer's advice of January relating to the removal, retention and use of human organs and tissue from post-mortem examination; what work has been undertaken by them; and what further work remains for them to do; [12373]

(2) what recent study he has made of the psychological aspects of the removal and retention of human organs and tissue; what further work he plans; and how such work will be carried out; [12371]

(3) what recent research he has undertaken on international practice relating to the removal, retention and use of human organs and tissue; and if he will make a statement; [12372]

(4) what action he proposes to take to put into practice the recommendations of the Chief Medical Officer in respect of the removal, retention and use of human organs and tissue; [12370]

(5) what work has been done on the recommendation from the Chief Medical Officer for a review of the legislation on organ donation; and when he is planning to begin consultations. [10958]

Ms Blears [holding answer 5 November 2001]: We are committed to implementing the Chief Medical Officer's recommendations on the removal, retention and use of human organs and tissue made in the light of the Redfern and Kennedy reports. The Department is principally responsible for this programme. We have established the Retained Organs Commission as a special health authority to oversee, among other things, the return of organs and tissue to families who want that to happen. The Home Office is leading a review of the coroners' system which was set up in July this year. Close links are being maintained between the two Departments and with the Commission.

As part of the implementation programme, we shall shortly be consulting publicly on a number of documents, including codes of practice on communications with families about post mortems and on the import and export of body parts. Linked to the Department's wider "Good Practice in Consent" initiative, we shall be piloting consent forms for hospital post mortems and for consent to the post-mortem removal, retention and use of organs and tissue where such actions are not required by the Coroner. We shall be seeking views also on an interim statement on the use of organs and tissue, based on the current law.

For the medium to longer term, the Department is leading a comprehensive review of the law in England and Wales which will examine, among other things, the taking, storage and use of organs and tissue from the living and the dead and options for future regulatory control. We shall be issuing an initial consultative paper on the review in the near future.

As part of the review we shall be gathering further information about how these matters are treated in other countries, notably elsewhere in the European Union, in North America and in parts of the Commonwealth.

We do not now propose to legislate separately to amend the Human Tissue Act 1961 to clarify that consent must be sought from those with parental responsibility for the retention of organs or tissue from post mortem on children beyond the time necessary to establish the cause of death. This proposal, as well as our intention to introduce a penalty for non-compliance, will be considered as part of the comprehensive review.

We are aware that many families affected by organ removal and retention may require a range of support, including psychological support, from the statutory and voluntary services. On the advice of the Chief Medical Officer, we have made a clear commitment to improve bereavement services. We shall be considering what else may need to be done to meet individual and family needs; and whether the Department needs to commission any research or other survey on psychological aspects. The consultative process will have an important part to play here.

CT Scanner (Blackpool Victoria Hospital)

Mr. Dawson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will provide funding for an additional CT scanner at Blackpool Victoria Hospital. [12921]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 6 November 2001]: In the coming months, the Department will be drawing up and discussing the criteria for allocating a further 50 computer tomography scanners nationally, funded through the NHS Cancer Plan for 2003–04. It is hoped that a list of sites will be agreed early in the next financial year. Blackpool Victoria Hospital can apply to be considered for an additional scanner under this initiative.

Zyban

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what advice he has received in the last six months on the safety of bupropion (Zyban). [12729]

Ms Blears [holding answer 6 November 2001]: Since the marketing of bupropion (Zyban) in June 2000, my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has been kept informed by the Medicines Control Agency (MCA) and the Government's independent expert scientific advisory body, the Committee on Safety of Medicines (CSM), on matters relating to its safety.

In the last six months this has included the following CSM advice issued on 31 May 2001, the purpose of which was to minimise the risk of adverse effects especially seizures:

(i) The dosing regimen should be amended to delay the increase in dose (from day four to day seven of treatment) in order to give more time for drug levels to stabilise.

(ii) Existing warnings relating to the other risk factors for seizure should be strengthened to emphasise that Zyban should only be used in patients with these factors if there are compelling clinical reasons.

The CSM has continued to review the balance between the effectiveness of Zyban in helping people to stop smoking, and the health benefits that this brings, with the risk of adverse effects. This balance is considered to remain favourable. There is some indication that the latest advice issued by CSM has helped to further improve the safe use of Zyban, since the rate of reporting of suspected adverse reactions in the United Kingdom has decreased since then. The CSM will continue to monitor its safety record of Zyban closely.

Delayed Discharges

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what definition of a health and social care change agent is used in relation to investment in reducing delayed discharges. [12700]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 6 November 2001]: A health and social care change agent is defined as a member of the change agents team who addresses the issue of delayed discharge by practical action and advice to support local national health service and social services management. The work of the change agents is likely to cover local implementation of relevant standards of the National Service Framework for Older People, particularly including development of care trusts, where these may impact on bed blocking locally.

NHS Magazine

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many copies of the NHS Magazine are sold per issue; and how many copies are distributed free of charge. [12702]

Ms Blears [holding answer 6 November 2001]: Twenty-two copies of NHS Magazine are sold to overseas and private sector subscribers per issue. The remaining 61,000 are distributed free of charge.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what involvement Ministers have in (a) writing the editorial page of the NHS Magazine and (b) sanctioning the content of articles. [12701]

Ms Blears [holding answer 6 November 2001]: Ministers do not see any of the content of NHS Magazine prior to publication. Content is approved by officials in the Department.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average cost of is of producing NHS Plan News. [12726]

Ms Blears [holding answer 6 November 2001]: The average cost of producing NHS Plan News is 0.2p a copy.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average cost of publishing the NHS Magazine is. [12703]

Ms Blears [holding answer 6 November 2001]: The average cost of publishing the NHS Magazine is 1.4p a copy.

Service Agreements

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if the departmental public service agreements will be updated to reflect the commitments contained in the NHS National Plan. [12699]

Ms Blears [holding answer 6 November 2001]: The Department's public service agreement already reflects the commitments contained in the NHS Plan. The public service agreement can be found at Annexe 3, page 142, of the NHS Plan.

Ambulances

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to allow GPs to override telephone protocols when making emergency requests for ambulances. [12776]

Ms Blears [holding answer 6 November 2001]: Protocols for making emergency requests for ambulances are agreed locally between general practitioners and each ambulance trust. There are no plans to override these arrangements.

All national health service ambulance trusts use call prioritisation systems. This means that calls to immediately life threatening conditions will get a quicker response. Ambulance services are required to take patients to hospitals that are identified by a doctor as urgent so that these patients arrive at hospital within 15 minutes of the arrival time specified by the doctor in 95 per cent. of cases.

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what (a) guidance and (b) instructions on performance levels have been given to the Isle of Wight ambulance service this year; and when, distinguishing that which is general to the ambulance services from that which is specific to the island's service. [12927]

Ms Blears [holding answer 6 November 2001]: Ambulance services in England measure their performance against a number of criteria. We place a high priority on performance in responding to category A calls, those calls which may be immediately life-threatening. There is no different standard on performance levels set for the Isle of Wight. All ambulance services, including that on the Isle of Wight, were originally set a target of reaching 75 per cent. of category A calls in eight minutes by 31 March 2001.

Mrs. Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the target response time for non-urgent ambulance responses is; and what the average response time has been in the last 12 months for which figures are available. [12462]

Ms Blears [holding answer 7 November 2001]: There are no nationally laid down standards for ambulance responses to patients with non-emergency illnesses and injuries.

Information on response times for all National Health Service ambulance trusts is contained in the Department of Health Statistical Bulletin "Ambulance Services, England 2000–01". A copy is in the Library and available at www.doh.uk/public/sb0115.htm.

Mixed Sex Wards

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many hospital beds were in mixed sex wards in each of the last five years. [12717]

Ms Blears [holding answer 6 November 2001]: Hospital wards are usually subdivided into bays and these are designated male or female. Depending on case mix and local need, the exact proportion of male to female bays will vary. We are therefore unable to provide information at the level of the individual ward.

The national health service is working to eliminate mixed sex accommodation. Guidance on maintaining privacy and dignity was first issued to the service in 1997 and since then NHS trusts have been working towards clear targets to promote privacy and dignity in hospital wards.

These targets include the abolition of Nightingale wards for older people and £120 million has been allocated over the next three years to make progress towards this. Schemes to modify 233 wards have already been approved to commence work this year and further schemes will begin in the next two years.

Chest Pain Clinics

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list the locations of the rapid access chest pain clinics. [12724]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 6 November 2001]: The information requested is in the table.

List of rapid access chest pain clinics

Number/hospital	NHS trust
Northern and Yorkshire region
1. Bradford Royal Infirmary	Bradford Hospitals NHS Trust
2. Sunderland Royal Hospital	City Hospitals Sunderland NHS Trust
3. Dewsbury and District Hospital	Dewsbury Health Care NHS Trust
4. Queen Elizabeth Hospital	Gateshead Health NHS Trust
5. Hull Royal Infirmary	Hull and East Yorkshire Hospitals NHS Trust
6. St. James' University Hospital	Leeds Teaching Hospitals NHS Trust
7. Hartlepool General Hospital	North Tees and Hartlepool NHS Trust
8. North Tyneside General Hospital	Northumbria Healthcare NHS Trust
9. Wansbeck General Hospital	Northumbria Healthcare NHS Trust
10. Pinderfields Hospital	Pinderfields and Pontefract NHS Trust
11. Pontefract General Infirmary	Pinderfields and Pontefract NHS Trust
12. Scarborough Hospital	Scarborough and North East Yorkshire NHS Trust
13. Bishop Auckland General Hospital	South Durham Health Care NHS Trust
14. Darlington Memorial Hospital	South Durham Health Care NHS Trust
Trent region
15. Barnsley District General Hospital	Barnsley District General Hospital NHS Trust
16. Bassetlaw District General Hospital	Doncaster and Bassetlaw Hospitals NHS Trust
17. Doncaster Royal Infirmary	Doncaster and Bassetlaw Hospitals NHS Trust
18. Scunthorpe General Hospital (and Goole Hospital)	Northern Lincolnshire and Goole Hospitals NHS Trust
19. Nottingham City Hospital	Nottingham City Hospital NHS Trust
20. Nottingham University Hospital	Queens Medical Centre, Nottingham University NHS Trust
21. Rotherham General Hospital	Rotherham General Hospitals NHS Trust

List of rapid access chest pain clinics

Number/hospital	NHS trust
22. Northern General Hospital	Sheffield Teaching Hospitals NHS Trust
23. Royal Hallamshire Hospital	Sheffield Teaching Hospitals NHS Trust
24. Kings Mill Centre for Health Care Services	Sherwood Forest Hospitals
25. Derbyshire Royal Infirmary	Southern Derbyshire Acute Hospitals NHS Trust
26. Grantham Hospital (and Skegness Hospital)	United Lincolnshire Hospitals NHS Trust
27. Lincoln County Hospital	United Lincolnshire Hospitals NHS Trust
28. Louth Hospital	United Lincolnshire Hospitals NHS Trust
29. Pilgrim Hospital	United Lincolnshire Hospitals NHS Trust
30. Glenfield General Hospital	University Hospitals of Leicester NHS Trust
West Midlands region
31. Birmingham Heartlands Hospital	Birmingham Heartlands and Solihull NHS Trust
32. City Hospital	City Hospital NHS Trust
33. City General Hospital	North Staffordshire Hospital NHS Trust
34. Royal Shrewsbury Hospital	Royal Shrewsbury Hospitals NHS Trust
35. New Cross Hospital	Royal Wolverhampton Hospitals NHS Trust
36. Sandwell District General Hospital	Sandwell Healthcare NHS Trust
37. Walsall	Walsall Hospitals NHS Trust
38. Walsgrave Hospital	University Hospitals Coventry and Warwickshire NHS Trust
39. Alexandra Hospital	Worcestershire Acute NHS Trust
40. Kidderminster General Hospital	Worcestershire Acute NHS Trust
41. Worcester Royal Infirmary	Worcestershire Acute NHS Trust
North West region
42. University Hospital Aintree	Aintree Hospitals NHS Trust
43. Blackburn Royal Infirmary	Blackburn, Hyndburn and Ribble Valley Healthcare NHS Trust
44. Victoria Hospital	Blackpool Victoria Hospital NHS Trust
45. Royal Bolton Hospital	Bolton Hospitals NHS Trust
46. Burnley General Hospital	Burnley Healthcare NHS Trust
47. Bury General Hospital	Bury Health Care NHS Trust
48. Manchester Royal Infirmary	Central Manchester and Manchester Childrens NHS Trust
49. Chorley District General Hospital	Chorley and South Ribble NHS Trust
50. Countess of Chester Hospital	Countess of Chester NHS Trust
51. Macclesfield District General Hospital	East Cheshire NHS Trust
52. CTC Liverpool	Liverpool Cardiothoracic Centre NHS Trust
53. Leighton Hospital	Mid Cheshire Hospital NHS Trust
54. Furness General Hospital	Morecambe Bay Hospitals NHS Trust
55. Royal Lancaster Infirmary	Morecambe Bay Hospitals NHS Trust
56. Westmorland General Hospital	Morecambe Bay Hospitals NHS Trust
57. Halton General Hospital	North Cheshire NHS Trust
58. Warrington Hospital	North Cheshire NHS Trust
59. North Manchester General Hospital	North Manchester Healthcare NHS Trust
60. Royal Oldham Hospital	Oldham NHS Trust
61. Royal Preston Hospital	Preston Acute Hospitals NHS Trust
62. Birchill Hospital	Rochdale Healthcare NHS Trust
63. Royal Liverpool University Hospital	Royal Liverpool and Broadgreen Hospitals University NHS Trust
64. Hope Hospital	Salford Royal Hospitals NHS Trust
65. Wythenshawe Hospital	South Manchester University Hospitals NHS Trust
66. Ormskirk and District General Hospital	Southport and Ormskirk Hospital NHS Trust
67. Southport and Formby District General Hospital	Southport and Ormskirk Hospital NHS Trust
68. Whiston Hospital	St. Helens and Knowsley Hospital NHS Trust
69. Stepping Hill Hospital	Stockport NHS Trust
70. Tameside General Hospital	Tameside Acute Care NHS Trust
71. Trafford General Hospital	Trafford Healthcare NHS Trust
72. Royal Albert Edward Infirmary	Wigan and Leigh Health Services NHS Trust
73. Arrowe Park Hospital	Wirral Hospital NHS Trust
Eastern region
74. Addenbrookes Hospital	Addenbrooke's NHS Trust
75. Basildon Hospital	Basildon and Thurrock General Hospitals NHS Trust
76. Lister Hospital	East and North Hertfordshire NHS Trust
77. Queen Elizabeth II Hospital	East and North Hertfordshire NHS Trust
78. Colchester General Hospital	Essex Rivers Healthcare NHS Trust
79. Ipswich Hospital	Ipswich Hospital NHS Trust
80. James Paget Hospital	James Paget Healthcare NHS Trust
81. Queen Elizabeth Hospital	Kings Lynn and Wisbech Hospitals NHS Trust
82. Luton and Dunstable Hospital	Luton and Dunstable Hospital NHS Trust
83. Broomfield Hospital	Mid Essex Hospitals Services NHS Trust
84. Princess Alexandra Hospital	Princess Alexandra Hospital NHS Trust
85. Southend Hospital	Southend Hospital NHS Trust
86. Hemel Hempstead General Hospital	West Hertfordshire NHS Trust
87. Watford Hospital	West Hertfordshire NHS Trust

List of rapid access chest pain clinics

Number/hospital	NHS trust
London region
88. King George Hospital	Barking, Havering and Redbridge Hospitals NHS Trust
89. Oldchurch Hospital	Barking, Havering and Redbridge Hospitals NHS Trust
90. Barnet General Hospital	Barnet and Chase Farm Hospital NHS Trust
91. Bromley Hospital	Bromley Hospitals NHS Trust
92. Chelsea and Westminster Hospital	Chelsea and Westminster Healthcare NHS Trust
93. Ealing Hospital	Ealing Hospital NHS Trust
94. St. Helier Hospital	Epsom and St. Helier NHS Trust
95. Charing Cross Hospital	Hammersmith Hospitals NHS Trust
96. Hammersmith Hospital	Hammersmith Hospitals NHS Trust
97. Homerton Hospital	Homerton Hospital NHS Trust
98. Kingston Hospital	Kingston Hospital NHS Trust
99. Lewisham University Hospital	Lewisham Hospital NHS Trust
100. Mayday University Hospital	Mayday Health Care NHS Trust
101. Newham General Hospital	Newham Healthcare NHS Trust
102. North Middlesex Hospital	North Middlesex Hospital NHS Trust
103. Central Middlesex Hospital	North West London Hospitals NHS Trust
104. Northwick Park Hospital	North West London Hospitals NHS Trust
105. Queen Mary's Hospital	Queen Mary's, Sidcup NHS Trust
106. St. George's Hospital	St. George's Healthcare NHS Trust
107. St. Mary's Hospital	St. Mary's Hospital NHS Trust
108. Whipps Cross Hospital	Whipps Cross University Hospitals NHS Trust.
109. Whittington Hospital	Whittington Hospital NHS Trust
110. Queen Mary's Roehampton	South West London Community Trust
South East
111. Ashford Hospital, Middlesex	Ashford and St. Peter's Hospitals NHS Trust
112. St. Peter's Hospital	Ashford and St. Peter's Hospitals NHS Trust
113. Royal Sussex County Hospital	Brighton Health Care NHS Trust
114. Darent Valley Hospital	Dartford and Gravesham NHS Trust
115. Queen Elizabeth the Queen Mother Hospital	East Kent Hospitals NHS Trust
116. Eastbourne District General Hospital	Eastbourne Hospitals NHS Trust
117. Conquest Hospital	Hastings and Rother NHS Trust
118. Wexham Park Hospital	Heatherwood and Wexham Park Hospitals NHS Trust
119. Kettering General Hospital	Kettering General Hospital NHS Trust
120. Medway Maritime Hospital	Medway NHS Trust
121. Milton Keynes General Hospital	Milton Keynes General NHS Trust
122. North Hampshire Hospital	North Hampshire Hospitals NHS Trust
123. Northampton General Hospital	Northampton General Hospital NHS Trust
124. Horton Hospital	Oxford Radcliffe Hospitals NHS Trust
125. John Radcliffe Hospital	Oxford Radcliffe Hospitals NHS Trust
126. St. Mary's Hospital	Portsmouth Hospitals NHS Trust
127. Royal Berkshire Hospital	Royal Berkshire and Battle Hospitals NHS Trust
128. Royal Surrey County Hospital	Royal Surrey County Hospital NHS Trust
129. St. Richards Hospital	Royal West Sussex NHS Trust
130. Wycombe Hospital	South Buckinghamshire NHS Trust
131. Southampton General Hospital	Southampton University Hospitals NHS Trust
132. Crawley Hospital	Surrey and Sussex Healthcare NHS Trust
133. East Surrey Hospital	Surrey and Sussex Healthcare NHS Trust
134. Worthing Hospital	Worthing and Southlands Hospitals NHS Trust
South West
135. Cheltenham General Hospital	East Gloucestershire NHS Trust
136. Yeovil District Hospital	East Somerset NHS Trust
137. Gloucestershire Royal Hospital	Gloucestershire Royal NHS Trust
138. Frenchay Hospital	North Bristol NHS Trust
139. Southmead Hospital	North Bristol NHS Trust
140. North Devon District Hospital	Northern Devon Healthcare Trust
141. Derriford Hospital	Plymouth Hospitals NHS Trust
142. Poole Hospital	Poole Hospital NHS Trust
143. Royal Bournemouth Hospital	Royal Bournemouth and Christchurch NHS Trust
144. Royal Cornwall Hospital	Royal Cornwall Hospitals and West Cornwall Hospital NHS Trust
145. Royal Devon and Exeter Hospital	Royal Devon and Exeter NHS Trust
146. Royal United Hospital Bath	Royal United Hospitals, Bath NHS Trust
147. Salisbury District Hospital	Salisbury Health Care NHS Trust
148. Torbay Hospital	South Devon Healthcare NHS Trust
149. Princess Margaret Hospital	Swindon and Marlborough NHS Trust
150. Taunton and Somerset Hospital	Taunton and Somerset NHS Trust
151. Bristol Royal Infirmary	United Bristol Healthcare NHS Trust
152. Dorset County Hospital	West Dorset General Hospitals NHS Trust
153. Weston General Hospital	Weston Area NHS Trust

Public Health Laboratory Service

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list the expenditure on the Public Health Laboratory Service for each of the past five years. [12719]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 6 November 2001]: The gross expenditure on the Public Health Laboratory Service for each of the past five years is given in the table. These figures are in cash terms for the whole period.

£000

	1996–97	1997–98	1998–99	1999–2000	2000–01
Revenue expenditure	109,696	118,899	120,392	125,751	129,836
Capital expenditure	3,539	3,892	3,624	4,067	4,567
Total	113,235	122,791	124,016	129,818	134,403

Welfare Foods Scheme

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will publish the detailed expenditure plans of the welfare foods scheme. [12720]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 6 November 2001]: The planned net programme expenditure on welfare foods in 2001–02 is £114.5 million for England. No decisions have been made about future years.

Occupational Health and Safety Service

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress has been made on establishing the Occupational Health and Safety Service for general practitioners. [12770]

Mr. Hutton [holding answer 6 November 2001]: £6 million was included in health authority main allocations in England for commissioning occupational health and safety services for general medical practitioners and their staff during 2001–02. Guidance on the provision and range of service delivery standards was issued to health authorities on 28 June 2001.

GPs

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress he is making on achieving 48-hour access to general practitioners. [12772]

Mr. Hutton [holding answer 6 November 2001]: Health authorities were asked to set plans to achieve 48 hour access for 60 per cent. of patients by April 2002. These plans are being monitored through the usual performance management mechanisms. The 60 per cent. milestone is the first on the way to achieving 100 per cent. coverage by 2004.

As part of regular performance monitoring, health authorities were asked to carry out a survey of primary care access on 26 September. Data from the survey are currently being analysed and will be available shortly.

Overseas Health Services

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on the legislation required to enable health authorities and primary care trusts to send patients abroad for routine treatment. [12766]

Mr. Hutton [holding answer 6 November 2001]: The recent judgments of the European Court of Justice in the joined cases Geraets-Smits/Peerbooms and Case Vanbraekel (joined Cases C-157/99 and Case 368–98 respectively) marked a development in the interpretation of directly applicable provisions of European Community law. The cases concerned the interpretation of directly applicable Treaty provisions and these have to be applied even in the face of inconsistent domestic law.

The relevant provisions of the National Health Service Act 1977 will be amended in the interests of legal certainty. This can be done by regulations made under the European Communities Act 1972 and this is in hand. In the meantime health authorities and primary care trusts are legally able to commission services abroad.

Working with the three test-bed sites, the Department is examining the detailed practical and legal issues involved in sending patients abroad. This work may raise legal issues requiring further amendments to specific regulations.

Overseas Doctors

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what tests of linguistic aptitude will be taken by doctors from EU countries applying to work in the NHS. [12708]

Mr. Hutton [holding answer 6 November 2001]: European Economic Area doctors (and others with enforceable Community rights) do not have to prove to the registration authority that they have a knowledge of English in order to have their qualifications recognised in the United Kingdom.

National health service employers themselves are responsible for ensuring that the doctors they employ have the necessary language, communication and professional skills to carry out their jobs safely.

Research and Development

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to improve research and development in each of the NHS regions. [12727]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 6 November 2001]: As the Minister with responsibility for research at the Department, my noble Friend Lord Hunt of Kings Heath announced in March 2000 plans for the modernisation of national health service research and development funding set out in "Research and Development for a First Class Service". They included the establishment of a funding system for NHS priorities and needs research and development, which should be introduced in 2002–03. This system will open new avenues for funding research activity across the NHS and replace in a more co-ordinated way the support hitherto provided from budgets held at the Department's regional offices. I am placing in the Library a copy of a position paper published in February 2001.

Widdrington Health Centre

Mr. Beith: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions have taken place between NHS officials and the district valuer about the planned Widdrington Health Centre, Northumberland; and whether agreement has been reached in time for the funds available from the single regeneration budget to be used for the project. [13122]

Jacqui Smith: Discussions between Northumberland health authority and the district valuer, concerning the rental levels for the buildings of the new Widdrington Health Centre, are ongoing and a final settlement is expected very shortly. Single Regeneration Budget funds have been identified to provide optometry and dental facilities within the health centre and agreement has been reached for these funds to be used within the 2001–02 and 2002–03 financial years.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Correspondence/Parliamentary Questions

Annabelle Ewing: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) if he will place in the Library for each year since 1995 the average response time for providing a substantive answer to (a) hon. Member's correspondence, (b) correspondence from members of the public and (c) written parliamentary questions in the (i) House of Commons and (ii) House of Lords; [7019]

(2) if he will place in the Library for each year since 1995 the total number of (a) letters from hon. Members, (b) letters from members of the public and (c) parliamentary questions from (i) hon. Members and (ii) Lords dealt with by his Department; what percentage took (A) more than one month and (B) more than three months to provide a substantive answer; and if he will make a statement. [7020]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: Information is not available in the format requested. Such information as is available is as follows.

General information on the volumes of correspondence received across Whitehall and on overall performance is published by the Cabinet Office. Figures for 2000 were published on 6 April 2001, Official Report, columns 324–28W and on 19 July 2001, columns 454–56W.

Total number of parliamentary questions by parliamentary session since 1995

Session	Total	Percentage: Over one month	Percentage: Over three months
Commons
1995–96	2,667	1.50	0
1996–97	17	0	0
1997–98	3,666	1.67	0
1998–99	2,173	0.41	0
1999–2000	2,878	0.14	0.04
2000–01	1,254	0.56	0
Lords
1995–96	148	0	0
1996–97	2	0	0
1997–98	208	2.4	0
1998–99	0	0	0
1999–2000	151	0	0
2000–01	43	0	0

Workstep Programme

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on the workstep programme, with particular reference to (a) progression to open employment and (b) maintenance of an infrastructure for sheltered employment. [11318]

Maria Eagle [holding answer 31 October 2001]: Workstep was introduced on 1 April 2001 and replaces the supported employment programme. It is designed to help disabled people progress to working without support and to provide longer-term support for those who need it. Our targets for progression into open employment are around 10 per cent. from among existing participants and 30 per cent. from people joining Workstep after 1 April this year.

However, we have been very clear that no one should be pressurised to progress from the programme if this is not the right choice for them. Longer-term support will still be available for supported employees who need it. But it is equally important that they have access to the development opportunities the programme will offer in the longer-term.

New Deal

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many left the new deal for lone parents whose youngest child is aged (a) five to 11 and (b) 11 to 16 years in each year since the inception of the new deal, broken down by destination. [9643]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: The information is in the table.

Numbers leaving NDLP by destination to July 2001—Great Britain

Thousand

Period	Total	Left income support: Employment[1]	Left income support: Transfer to other benefits[2]	Left income support: Ineligible[3]	Still on income support: Employment[1,4]	Still on income support: Withdrawn for other reasons[5]	Still on income support: Unknown destination[6]
October 1998-September 1999
Age of youngest child[7]
0–4	7.66	2.10	0.04	0.15	0.07	4.79	0.50
5–11	7.46	2.11	0.03	0.12	0.09	4.65	0.46
12–16	1.89	0.60	0.06	0.07	0.02	1.03	0.11
Not recorded[8]	6.50	4.38	0.11	0.31	0.02	1.45	0.23

Numbers leaving NDLP by destination to July 200.—Great Britain

Thousand

Period	Total	Left income support		Still on income support
		Employment[1]	Transfer to other benefits[2]	Ineligible[3]	Employment[1,4]	Withdrawn for other reasons[5]	Unknown destination[6]
October 1999-September 2000
Age of youngest child[7]
0–4	21.74	10.65	0.13	0.54	0.11	9.60	0.72
5–11	20.80	11.00	0.09	0.45	0.17	8.45	0.64
12–16	5.93	3.32	0.34	0.24	0.02	1.81	0.20
Not recorded[8]	4.12	2.02	0.06	0.16	0.03	1.70	0.16
October 2000-July 2001
Age of youngest child[7]
0–4	20.24	10.27	0.12	0.55	0.09	8.63	0.58
5–11	17.94	9.76	0.08	0.40	0.13	7.08	0.49
12–16	5.76	3.33	0.37	0.20	0.04	1.67	0.15
Not recorded[8]	1.34	0.53	0.03	0.08	0.00	0.64	0.06

[1] These totals do not include people who have moved into full-time work but remain on the NDLP caseload as they are in receipt of in-work support.
[2] Includes those making a claim for Jobseekers Allowance (JSA) in order to join the New Deal for 18–24 year olds or the new deal for the long-term unemployed. Excludes lone parents who claim JSA in order to access work based learning for adults/training for work.
[3] Those lone parents who become ineligible for NDLP due to a change in circumstances, e.g. partnering.
[4] Lone parents working less than 16 hours in an average week, and remaining on income support. A very small number found employment after their initial interview but before joining the caseload. These are no counted in the "Total" leavers column.
[5] Lone parents who leave the programme but remain on income support for a number of reasons, e.g. change in childcare arrangements, new additions to the family, etc.
[6] Currently it is not known whether these people are on income support or not.
[7] Age of youngest child when attended initial interview.
[8] This figure includes children from each of the above age ranges.
Source:
New Deal Evaluation Database

Jobcentre Plus

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions which is the most accessible pathfinder jobcentre available to residents in the Vale of York; and if he will make a statement on the type of advice which will be provided by that jobcentre. [8274]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: We are establishing a new business that draws together the Employment Service and the parts of the Benefits Agency which support people of working age. This new business is called Jobcentre Plus and will come into being at the end of this financial year. To demonstrate the improved and more work-focused service we intend to offer in Jobcentre Plus, we are putting in place around 49 pathfinder offices throughout the country from 22 October.

Jobcentre Plus will offer a significantly enhanced telephone service that will improve access to the service for those who do not live near a Jobcentre Plus office. Each Jobcentre Plus pathfinder office will have a dedicated telephone contact centre open from 8.30am to 6.00pm. Customers will be able to make their initial claim to benefit through this service and book appointments with personal advisers. Customers will also be able to access job vacancies over the telephone through Employment Service Direct.

Jobcentre Plus will also have its own internet site with information on the service and links to the Employment Service job bank and worktrain sites, which offer a vast range of job and training opportunities and advice on job searching.

There are several Jobcentre Plus pathfinder offices in rural locations, and the managers in those places will be further developing the service they offer to meet the needs of rural communities.

The development of services for people in rural communities is not confined to the Jobcentre Plus pathfinders, with both the Benefits Agency and the Employment Service already undertaking valuable outreach work. In North Yorkshire, for example, the Northallerton and Richmond Jobcentres are engaged in outreach work to some of their outlying rural areas. Vacancy lists are put on display in a large number of local post offices and Jobcentre clinics are held in three locations—Hawes, Leyburn and Catterick—for half a day each week.

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many staff in the new Jobcentre Plus offices (a) have been fully trained, (b) are undertaking training programmes and (c) are waiting to begin their training. [11223]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: 3,840 staff in the Jobcentre Plus pathfinder offices have been fully trained, 648 are undertaking training programmes and 295 are waiting to begin their training. Over 80 per cent. of staff are fully trained as of 30 October. Every member of staff should be fully trained by the end of November.

Hywel Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what representations he has received regarding safety procedures and safety precautions in Jobcentre Plus Pathfinder offices; and if he will make a statement. [11113]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: Jobcentre Plus is a new service which brings together the Employment Service and those parts of the Benefits Agency which deal with people of working age. Jobcentre Plus will provide a far more personalised, customer friendly and work-focused service for both employers and individuals. The first 49 Jobcentre Plus pathfinder offices opened on 22 October.

Central to the new service is our ability to provide face-to-face advice to members of the public. That can be done only in a predominantly unscreened environment. To that end we have invested considerable sums of money in building a far more friendly and safer environment than any we have had in the past. In particular, we take the issue of the safety of both the public and our staff very seriously. We have therefore been involved in discussions with the Public and Commercial Services union (PCS) about their members' concerns about the new working arrangements, both at national and local level.

Employment Service and Land Securities Trillium risk assessors have carried out risk assessments in each pathfinder office. Drawing on those assessments, and following consultation with local trade union health and safety representatives, we have introduced a series of extra security measures. These include: wide coverage by closed circuit television; training for staff in how to handle difficult situations; better management in each office to avoid difficult situations building up; panic alarms; and more visible and more effective security guards. Additionally, in each pathfinder area there are screened facilities to deal with individuals and parts of the business which pose a greater risk. All pathfinder risk assessments will be reviewed in November and any additional security measures recommended by these reviews will be introduced. We believe that these measures demonstrate that we are taking staff safety seriously.

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what representations his Department has received about the layout and furnishings of the new Jobcentre Plus offices. [11261]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: Jobcentre Plus is a new service which brings together the Employment Service and those parts of the Benefits Agency which deal with people of working age. Jobcentre Plus will provide a far more personalised, customer friendly and work-focused service for both employers and individuals. The first 49 Jobcentre Plus pathfinder offices opened on 22 October. Central to this new service is our ability to provide face-to-face advice to members of the public. That can be done only in a predominantly unscreened environment.

We have been involved in lengthy discussions with the Public and Commercial Services union (PCS) regarding our proposals in respect of layout and furnishings including the generic risk assessment process. We have also consulted with the Health and Safety Executive and professionals in the field of office design.

We have consequently invested considerable sums of money in building a friendly and safe environment which not only looks radically different but also supports the service delivery aspirations of Jobcentre Plus.

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what resources will be available to staff in the new Jobcentre Plus offices to ensure that claimants are made aware of their full benefit entitlement. [11254]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: Jobcentre Plus is a new service which brings together the Employment Service and those parts of the Benefits Agency which deal with people of working age. Jobcentre Plus will provide a far more personalised, customer friendly and work-focused service for both employers and individuals. The first 49 Jobcentre Plus pathfinder offices opened on 22 October.

People wanting to make a claim to benefit in Jobcentre Plus offices will be encouraged to make initial contact by phone. The member of staff in the call centre will use a script which is designed to help them identify the customer's benefit entitlement. The customer will then have an appointment in a Jobcentre Plus office. At this meeting a member of customer service staff, who is specially trained in benefit information, will explore the customer's benefit needs in more detail. The benefits systems will also support staff in providing full and detailed advice across welfare benefits.

Customers will also be offered review meetings, which will allow Jobcentre Plus staff to keep in touch with them from both a labour market and a benefit perspective.

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what training programmes have been initiated in order to ensure that all staff in the new Jobcentre Plus offices are able to provide claimants with the best service possible. [11264]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: Each individual member of staff within the Jobcentre Plus pathfinders has their training needs identified in conjunction with their line manager. This information then forms a personal training plan for that individual. The training is planned so that when they are required to start their job, they have completed and consolidated all their necessary training.

The training programmes fit into three different areas: IT and telephony, procedural, and the "New Beginnings" programme. The latter introduces the individual to the new Jobcentre Plus new culture and expectations. The procedural training is job specific and ensures that individuals know how to do their job. The IT and telephony training shows staff how to use the new IT and telephony systems.

The three types of training, delivered to the right people at the right time, has ensured and will ensure that individuals have the skills, knowledge and confidence to deliver the best service possible to the public within Jobcentre Plus.

Occupational Pensions

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans he has to discuss recent trends in occupational pension provision with the occupational pension industry; and if he will make a statement. [12441]

Mr. McCartney: The Department holds regular meetings with representatives of the pensions industry. These discussions include an assessment of trends in occupational pension schemes and other forms of retirement savings and the role Government can play in supporting and encouraging pension provision.

The Government acknowledge the contribution that occupational pension schemes play in the provision of income in retirement and want to encourage continued employer involvement. As part of the process of reform and support, we have already announced the replacement of the minimum funding requirement and the simplification review of pensions regulation, led by Alan Pickering.

Social Security Regulations

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what reason was given to him by the Social Security Advisory Committee for its decision not to examine the Social Security (Jobcentre Plus Interviews) Regulations 2001; what discussions he had with the Social Security Advisory Committee prior to that decision; and if he will publish the minutes of such discussions. [12159]

Mr. Nicholas Brown [holding answer 2 November 2001]: The Social Security Advisory Committee considered these regulations and decided, under section 173 of the Social Security Administration Act 1992, that these regulations need not be formally referred to them. Under the Act the committee is not obliged to give my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State a reason for its decision and does not normally do so. My right hon. Friend had no discussions with the committee prior to that decision.

Social Security (Scotland)

Annabelle Ewing: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what was the level of spending on social security in Scotland in each of the last five years (a) in total and (b) as a percentage of the United Kingdom total, broken down to show spending on (i) benefit payments, (ii) Scotland's pro-rata share of United Kingdom administration costs and (iii) actual spending on central and local administration and the branch network for facilities in Scotland. [12193]

Mr. Nicholas Brown [holding answer 2 November 2001]: Information is not available in the format requested. However, analysis of social security expenditure by country, region and per head of population for the years 1995–96 to 1999–2000 is available in HM Treasury's publication "Public Expenditure Statistical Analyses (PESA) 2001–02", published in April 2001 under Command Number 5101.

Asylum Seekers

Mr. Lilley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many cases of forgery of the standard acknowledgement letters issued to asylum seekers have been detected in the last 12 months; and what the value of benefits involved was. [11743]

Angela Eagle [holding answer 1 November 2001]: The information is as follows.

1. Figures are not kept centrally within the Immigration and Nationality Directorate for forgery of Standard Acknowledgement Letters (SALs). The Immigration Service National Forgery Section (NFS) is a national unit specialising in document fraud. In the last 12 months (from 31 October 2000 to 31 October 2001), the NFS was asked by the Immigration Service and other enforcement agencies or departments to examine 121 SALs of which 111 were found to be fraudulent. Of these, 104 were counterfeit and seven forged.

2. Many of the documents examined by NFS were examples of large batches of suspected fraudulent SALs detected in various operations conducted by the police and Immigration Service. Four such operations alone, conducted in various parts of the country during the past 12 months, are known to have involved over 2,000 counterfeit SALs, with more detections expected as operations continue.

3. In the operations which the NFS was associated with, the most frequent use of fraudulent SALs was to obtain illegal employment. While a limited number of examinations of SALs were conducted of documents presented at Benefits Agency offices, the NFS does not have information about the value of any benefits that might have been involved.

DEFENCE

HMS Fearless

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the new date for the withdrawal of HMS Fearless is; and if he will make a statement. [13282]

Mr. Ingram: There is no new date for the withdrawal of HMS Fearless. I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the then Minister of State for the Armed Forces to the right hon. Member for Chingford and Woodford Green (Mr. Duncan Smith) on 19 December 2000, Official Report, column 93W.

Tanks (Desert Conditions)

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of the cost of converting the tanks of 1 UK Armoured Division for desert conditions. [13272]

Dr. Moonie: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for New Forest, West (Mr. Swayne) on 5 November 2001, Official Report, columns 24–25W, which sets out the estimated cost of converting Challenger 2 Main Battle Tanks (CR2 MBTs) for desert conditions. The establishment for one (UK) Armoured Division, post Strategic Defence Review, is 174 CR2 MBTs. Depending on which desertation option were used, the estimated cost for 174 CR2 MBTs would therefore be either £24.36 million or £43.5 million.

Exercise Saif Sareea

Mr. Menzies Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the type and number of UK armoured vehicles and tanks that were in Oman for Saif Sareea II, stating in each case the percentage of those vehicles that were considered (a) fully serviceable and (b) unserviceable during the exercise; and if he will make a statement. [11768]

Mr. Ingram: The types and number of each UK armoured vehicle, including tanks, that were in Oman for Saif Sareea II, are as follows: 65 Challenger 2 Main Battle Tanks; 49 Warrior Infantry Fighting Vehicles; 12 AS90 self propelled artillery; and 269 reconnaissance and other armoured vehicles.

The serviceability of these vehicles varied through the exercise as they passed through operational and maintenance cycles. The average percentage availability of each armoured vehicle type throughout the main period of the exercise was as follows: Challenger 2 83 per cent.; Warrior 83 per cent.; AS90 71 per cent.; and reconnaissance and other armoured vehicles 80 per cent.

Overall the armoured vehicle fleet, and indeed the rest of the UK military equipment deployed on Saif Sareea, performed very effectively.

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the percentage rate of serviceability of helicopters on exercise Saif Sareea was; what the principal cause of helicopter non-serviceability was; and if he will make a statement. [13293]

Mr. Hoon: The average rate of helicopter serviceability achieved during the whole period of Exercise Saif Sareea was 54.5 per cent. The overall serviceability of helicopters on the exercise was affected by the requirement to conduct non-exercise related maintenance on a number of airframes. More generally, Exercise Saif Sareea provided our aviation assets with valuable experience of operating in a demanding desert environment. The impact on overall serviceability was one of a number of key factors. There was no single, principal cause of helicopter unserviceability.

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects to publish the conclusions of the evaluation of equipment deployed in Operation Saif Sareea. [13279]

Mr. Hoon: The process of evaluating performance during Exercise Saif Sareea and identifying lessons for our future operations and exercises is already under way, and will address equipment serviceability. Much of the information captured in this process will be of an operationally sensitive nature. Accordingly, there are no plans to publish it.

Sea Harriers

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what representations he has received from ground support staff at Yeovilton about the proposal to relocate the Sea Harriers; and if he will make a statement. [13425]

Mr. Ingram: No representations have been received about the proposal to relocate the Sea Harriers.

Nuclear Installations (Security)

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has to deploy (a) armed forces personnel and (b) reservists for key point duty to guard nuclear power stations; and if he will estimate the full cost of such a deployment over one year. [13278]

Mr. Ingram: Security at nuclear power stations is a matter for the Department of Trade and Industry and the police, who can request the support of the armed forces to guard these and other key points should other resources prove insufficient. There have been no such requests during the last year and costs would, in the event, fall to the requesting authority.

Mr. Collins: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent discussions he has had with the US Defence Secretary on the issue of air exclusion zones over civil nuclear plants; whether there is to be a joint US-UK policy on this issue; and if he will make a statement on current RAF plans to defend the Sellafield nuclear site from aerial attack. [13235]

Mr. Hoon: Since 11 September, Ministers and officials in a number of Government Departments have been in discussions with their US counterparts on a range of domestic security issues, though not specifically about air exclusion zones over civil nuclear plants.

The Royal Air Force has an established and well-practised air defence capability which is ready to detect, deter and destroy any aircraft intending to attack any target within the UK, including civil nuclear plants. Some improvements have been made to our air defence posture since 11 September. I am withholding details of these improvements in accordance with Exemption 1 of the Code of Practice on Access to Government Information. Nor can I disclose the details of security measures taken at individual civil nuclear sites.

Support Amphibious and Battlefield Rotorcraft Project

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects to announce an initial acquisition contract for the SABR project; and if he will make a statement. [13281]

Dr. Moonie: The Support Amphibious and Battlefield Rotorcraft programme is designed to replace the capability provided by the Sea King Mk4 and Puma helicopter around the turn of the decade. The project is in its early stages and we have yet to decide how the capability requirement will best be met. It is too soon, therefore, to say when acquisition contracts might be placed.

Recruitment (Ethnic Minorities)

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement about (a) the composition of and (b) the work of the Specialist Ethnic Minority Recruiting and Diversity Action Teams. [13113]

Mr. Ingram: The Ethnic Minority Recruiting Teams (named 'Diversity Action Team' in the naval service) consist of a mix of ranks, male and female, who are chosen with the aim of providing approachable role models for potential recruits. Team members are based in areas with high ethnic minority populations.

The naval service team consists of two officers, three senior ratings and five junior ratings with two civilians. The Army team consists of one officer and five senior NCOs, supplemented by a further nine junior NCOs who are volunteers from their units and serve on six month attachments. The RAF team consists of one officer, seven senior NCOs and four junior NCOs.

The teams work with the ethnic minority target audience to raise awareness of the armed forces, help to provide individuals with an accurate picture of life in each service, and provide advice on the career opportunities the services offer. They participate in many events and activities across the UK, such as careers fairs, visits to schools and colleges, community cultural and religious centres and youth organisations. They give presentations and talk to ethnic minority youth, offer careers advice and help candidates prepare for interviews, and nurture potential candidates.

European Security and Defence Policy

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps his Department has taken to meet the capability requirement of the European Security and Defence Policy's Headline Goal. [13285]

Mr. Hoon: At last year's Capability Commitments Conference, the UK identified a pool of forces and capabilities as its contribution towards achievement of the Headline Goal. All national contributions to the Headline Goal are made on a voluntary basis. Their commitment to an individual operation would depend on priorities and other commitments at the time.

UK forces can operate across the full range of Petersberg tasks, including the most demanding. In the maximum scale operation envisaged at Helsinki—a corps level deployment of up to 60,000—the UK component could be about 12,500 strong. Maritime and air deployments of up to 18 warships and 72 combat aircraft could be made in addition.

At the forthcoming Capabilities Improvement Conference, I will present further information on UK plans aimed at addressing some of the shortfalls identified since last year's conference. The UK contribution is and will continue to be consistent with our commitments to NATO. It is high quality and focused on key enabling capabilities.

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when the next meeting between the European Security and Defence Policy's political and military committees and their NATO counterparts will take place. [13284]

Mr. Hoon: The EU's Political and Security Committee (PSC) and NATO's North Atlantic Council (NAC) as well as the EU's and NATO's respective Military Committees meet on a regular basis and at least once per Presidency. Further meetings may be requested.

Both of the mandated meetings have already been held during the current Belgian Presidency, although a further meeting between the two Military Committees is provisionally planned for 3 December 2001. Meetings will be programmed during the forthcoming Spanish Presidency between January and June 2002; a PSC/NAC meeting is provisionally planned for 14 May 2002.

Fylingdales and Menwith Hill

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the role of (a) Fylingdales and (b) Menwith Hill in performing communications services in connection with action against terrorism. [12066]

Mr. Ingram: RAF Fylingdales provides the UK with early warning of ballistic missile attack against the UK and Western Europe, and the US with early warning for North America. It does not perform a communications role.

RAF Menwith Hill is an integral part of the world-wide US Department of Defense communications network, which supports UK, US and NATO interests. Information concerning detailed operations at the base, including any role in performing communications services in connection with actions against terrorism, is withheld under Exemption 1 of the Code of Practice on access to Government Information on the grounds of national security.

Defence Aviation and Repair Agency

Mr. John Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the outcome was of the investment appraisal conducted by the Defence Aviation Repair Agency into options to provide modern infrastructure for its Aircraft Business Unit, refer[illegible] to on 20 November 2000, Official Report, column 8W. [12445]

Mr. Ingram: The investment appraisal looking into the infrastructure options for DARA's Fixed Wing Aircraft Business Unit is due to be completed in January 2002.

UK Service Men (Race Relations)

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what advice his Department provides to UK service men to inform them of their rights under the Race Relations Act 1976 when working on sovereign bases overseas; and if he will make a copy available in the Library. [12735]

Mr. Ingram: The armed forces aim to achieve a working environment free from harassment, intimidation and unlawful discrimination wherever personnel are located. Guidance disseminated by the armed services reflects this policy and makes clear that any individual has the right to pursue a complaint through the internal redress procedures. All such complaints are taken seriously and investigated thoroughly. Although the Race Relations Act 1976 may not in all circumstances apply to personnel serving in the sovereign bases overseas, our own policies and internal procedures do not differentiate between service personnel in different locations.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if it is possible for UK service men serving on sovereign bases overseas to bring a case against the Ministry of Defence under the Race Relations Act 1976. [12758]

Mr. Ingram: The Race Relations Act 1976 makes it unlawful for an employer to discriminate on racial grounds against an employee in relation to employment at an establishment in Great Britain. In this context sovereign bases do not form part of the territory of Great Britain.

Section 8 of the Race Relations Act provides that employment will be regarded as being at an establishment in Great Britain unless the employee does his work wholly outside Great Britain. Therefore, whether a member of the armed forces serving on a sovereign base (or elsewhere outside Great Britain) could bring a complaint under the Race Relations Act 1976 would depend upon whether the alleged act or acts of discrimination took place at a time when he or she worked wholly outside Great Britain. If the complaint related to a period when that person did not work wholly outside Great Britain then the Act would be applicable.

Aircraft Carriers

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what allowance he has made for using existing aircraft on the new aircraft carriers. [13007]

Dr. Moonie: The Future Aircraft Carrier (CVF) will be configured to operate the Future Joint Combat Aircraft (FJCA) as its primary aircraft. In addition to FJCA, the current CVF requirement document sets out a number of aircraft which should be considered for operation in a secondary role. This includes existing fixed and rotary wing aircraft which are compatible with carrier operations. Use of existing aircraft will depend, among other things, on their operational capability when CVF enters service—currently planned for 2012.

Gibraltar Regiment

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has to recruit from the Gibraltar regiment in order to offset the shortfall in armed forces personnel. [13010]

Mr. Ingram: There are no such plans.

Armed Forces (Non-married Partners)

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many servicemen and women are living with partners to whom they are not married but who are recognised as falling within the scope of benefits payable under the Armed Forces Pension Scheme. [12641]

Mr. Ingram: None. Unmarried partners are not currently recognised as eligible for benefits under the terms of the Armed Forces Pension Scheme. We have no reliable data on the numbers affected. All three services are currently involved in work to examine whether or not unmarried people living in partnership should receive benefits similar to those received by married couples. This work is designed to provide more factual and authoritative information than is currently available, including on numbers.

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many members of the armed forces occupy married quarters with partners to whom they are not married. [12639]

Dr. Moonie: Entitlement to Service Families Accommodation (SFA) is based mainly on marital status and includes lone parents with dependent children for whom they have prime responsibility. It is also applied to certain single service personnel when serving in specific appointments. Service personnel are not allowed to occupy SFA to cohabit with a partner who is not their legal spouse. If such cases come to light, they are advised that they are in breach of their licence, and unless they regularise the position, they are issued with a notice to vacate the property.

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if the rules governing death-in-service benefits for the non-married partners of servicemen and women are within the scope of the review of the Armed Forces Pension Scheme. [12640]

Mr. Ingram: Following a review of the Armed Forces Pension Scheme, proposals for a new scheme were issued for public consultation in March of this year. These proposals did not specifically cover benefits for unmarried partners though the issue had been considered during the initial stage of the review when it was considered that change was not appropriate. The issue was raised in responses to the public consultation and will be given further consideration as we take the review forward.

HOME DEPARTMENT

HMP Downview

Mr. Blunt: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he will decide on whether HMP Downview will be a local prison; and if he will make a statement. [11639]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 7 November 2001]: The tactical use of the prison estate is a matter for the Director General of the Prison Service. The particular type of prisoner that is held in each prison changes depending on the profile of the national prison population. The Prison Service Management Board regularly reviews the use of the estate. The current pressure on women's prisons means that Downview is being used to hold convicted and sentenced prisoners.

The Prison Service will continue to identify the most suitable accommodation for the projected numbers and types of prisoners; this will include consideration on whether Downview will hold remand prisoners.

I will ensure that the hon. Gentleman is advised if the decision is taken to place remand prisoners into Downview.

Mr. Blunt: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what is his estimate of the costs broken down to include overtime, detached duty allowances and hotel costs arising from employment of female prison staff detached from other prisons to HMP Downview between 17 July and 31 December. [11641]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 7 November 2001]: Regular assessments are made on the continued need for the employment of female staff from other prisons at Downview. The number of staff required is dependent on the need to safely accommodate the numbers of women sent to prison custody by the courts.

Female detached duty staff commenced during October reaching a maximum of 20 officers. Based on this staffing level, the monthly costs are estimated to be £57,000 for detached duty costs (including accommodation costs) and £16,200 for contract hours (overtime). Were this staffing level to remain until 31 December, the estimate for the total costs is £171,000 for detached duty costs and £48,600 for contract hours.

Mr. Blunt: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent estimate he has made of the cost of renovating C wing at HMP Downview to be suitable for female remand prisoners; and what account was taken of such estimates in the advice which he received on converting Downview to a female prison. [11642]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 7 November 2001]: A decision has not yet been taken on whether Downview prison will hold remand prisoners. Initial views are that C wing does not lend itself for an easy or cost-effective conversion to hold remand prisoners. Detailed estimates for such a renovation or for replacing it with a new accommodation block have not yet been carried out.

The decision to select Downview as the prison needing to change function to hold women prisoners was based on a number of criteria including its geographical location, ability to relocate the existing male population and an assessment of the future shape of the prison estate. Funding for a change of function had been secured under a previous spending review settlement; the Prison Service has not requested further funding for this change. I will ensure that the hon. Member is advised if the decision is taken to place remand prisoners into Downview.

Asylum Seekers

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many incidents of racial harassment were reported to the National Asylum Support Service's Investigations Team by asylum seekers, concerning the behaviour of accommodation providers or their agents in (a) 2000 and (b) 2001, broken down by (i) month and (ii) region. [13046]

Angela Eagle [holding answer 7 November 2001]: The number of allegations of racial harassment reported to the National Asylum Support Service Investigations Team concerning the behaviour of accommodation providers or their agents in (a) 2000 and (b) 2001 is as follows:

Year/Month	Number
2000
October	6
November	3
December	3
2001
January	2
February	2
March	4
April	4
May	2
June	1
July	0
August	1
September	4
October	1

The figures are not broken down by region. These figures represent the reports which the Investigation Section received and information on who reported the incident is not recorded. Figures are unavailable for the period before the Investigations Team became fully operational.

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many failed asylum applicants were removed from the UK in each month since 1 April; and how many of these were (a) principal applicants and (b) dependants of a principal applicant. [13050]

Angela Eagle [holding answer 7 November 2001]: The number of asylum seekers who were removed from the United Kingdom in each month from April 2001 onwards is given in the table. Information more recent than June is not yet available.

Month	Total asylum seekers[1] removed[2,3]	Principal applicants removed[2,3]	Dependants removed[2,3]
April	830	780	55
May	915	870	45
June	840	730	115

[1] Persons who had sought asylum at some point.
[2] Provisional figures, rounded to the nearest five. Figures may not sum due to rounding.
[3] Includes persons departing voluntarily after enforcement action had been initiated against them and persons leaving under the Voluntary Assisted Returns Programme.

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many asylum appeals, having been received by the Immigration and Nationality Directorate, are awaiting onward transmission to the Immigration Appellate Authority; and how many asylum appeals, having been forwarded by the Immigration and Nationality Directorate, are awaiting determination by the Immigration Appellate Authority. [13049]

Angela Eagle [holding answer 7 November 2001]: Provisional data indicate that on 31 July 2001 there were approximately 41,000 asylum appeals lodged with Immigration and Nationality Directorate (IND) which had not been sent to the Immigration Appellate Authority (IAA). For every appeal lodged, IND has to review the grounds advanced and may as a consequence need to reconsider all the circumstances of the case. Appeals are not forwarded to the IAA until this consideration has been completed and appeal papers have been prepared.

On 31 July 2001 there were approximately 17,010 asylum cases awaiting determination by the IAA at adjudicator level, 981 cases awaiting leave to appeal to the Immigration Appellate Tribunal and 824 cases awaiting determination by the Immigration Appellate Tribunal.

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many incidents of racial harassment were reported to the National Asylum Support Service's Investigations Team by asylum seekers, concerning the behaviour of resident communities in (a) 2000 and (b) 2001, broken down by (i) month and (ii) region; and if he will make a statement. [13045]

Angela Eagle [holding answer 7 November 2001]: The number of allegations of racial harassment reported to the National Asylum Support Service (NASS) Investigations Team concerning the behaviour of resident communities in (a) 2000 and (b) 2001 is as follows:

	Number
2000
May	'4
June	'19
July	'38
August	'46
September	'36
October	27
November	32
December	25
2001
January	39
February	61
March	44
April	42

	Number
May	56
June	65
July	61
August	96
September	58
October	112

[1] The Performance Monitoring Investigations Section (PMI) became fully operational in October 2000. Figures prior to October 2000 represent those cases reported to the Investigations Sections. Further allegations may have been investigated within the wider Operations Section within NASS but there are no statistics for this.

The figures are not broken down by region. These figures represent the reports which the Investigation Section received and information on who reported the incident is not recorded.

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average time taken from receipt of an asylum appeal to the Immigration Appellate Authority is, (b) determination of the appeal by an adjudicators and (c) final determination of the appeal by the Immigration Appeal Tribunal. [13048]

Angela Eagle [holding answer 7 November 2001]: For the 12 months ending 31 July 2001, data from the Immigration Appellate Authority (IAA) for those cases where data are available indicate that the cumulative average times taken from the receipt of an asylum appeal by the Immigration and Nationality Directorate to:

(a) the receipt of an appeal by the IAA is eight weeks;

(b) the determination by an adjudicator is 24 weeks;

(c) the final determination by the Immigration Appeal Tribunal is 42 weeks.

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many asylum applications are awaiting an initial decision by the Home Office Immigration and Nationality Directorate. [13052]

Angela Eagle [holding answer 7 November 2001]: The most recent available figure shows 43,100 asylum applications awaiting an initial decision at the end of August 2001. This figure has been rounded to the nearest hundred. A physical count was ordered by the Home Secretary to ensure absolute validity of the statistics. Problems with the backlog figures had arisen from an accumulation of errors since the last manual count of outstanding asylum applications in 1996.

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many failed asylum applicants were removed from the UK in each financial year since 1993–94. [13051]

Angela Eagle [holding answer 7 November 2001]: The information requested, where available, is given in the table. These figures exclude dependants. Financial year information prior to 1995–96 is not available.

Year	Asylum seekers[1] removed[2,3]
1995–96	3,540
1996–97	5,705
1997–98	7,010
1998–99	7,185
1999–2000	7,915
2000–01	[4]8,930

[1] Persons who had sought asylum at some point, excluding dependants.

[2] Figures rounded to the nearest five.

[3] Includes persons departing 'voluntarily' after enforcement action had been initiated against them and persons leaving under the Voluntary Assisted Returns Programme.

[4] Provisional figure.

Information on the number of asylum seekers removed from the United Kingdom is published regularly in the annual statistical bulletin "Asylum Statistics", a copy of which is available in the Library, and via the RDS website at http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html.

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what instructions have been issued to National Asylum Support Service caseworkers investigating incidents of racial harassment regarding police reports; if reports by third parties are considered; and if he will make a statement. [13043]

Angela Eagle [holding answer 7 November 2001]: Casework instructions have been issued to the National Asylum Support Service (NASS) caseworkers investigating incidents of racial harassment. All incidents and alleged incidents of racial harassment are taken seriously and are investigated by the Performance Monitoring Investigations Section (PMI) within NASS. All incidents are investigated in the same way irrespective of whether they have been reported directly by the victim, their representative or a third party.

Mr. George Osborne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the administrative costs of the introduction of the voucher scheme for asylum seekers were. [12871]

Angela Eagle: Vouchers were introduced on 3 April 2000 when the National Asylum Support Service (NASS) assumed responsibility for providing support to destitute asylum seekers.

Total staffing and related administrative costs of NASS for the period 3 April 2000 to 31 March 2001, including the costs of processing application forms, allocating accommodation and administering the voucher scheme were £15.6 million[1]. Vouchers are printed and distributed by third party providers under contract to the Home Office and payments made under the voucher contract are included in the administrative costs of NASS. Details of payments made under this contract are commercially confidential.

[1] Figure rounded to the nearest £0.1 million.

Mr. Neil Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what status is given to unaccompanied children seeking asylum in the United Kingdom who are found not to qualify for (a) asylum and (b) exceptional leave to remain for humanitarian reasons but who cannot be removed from the United Kingdom. [13905]

Angela Eagle: It is our policy not to remove a failed asylum seeker from the United Kingdom if he or she is unaccompanied and under 18 years of age unless adequate reception arrangements can be made in the country of origin. Until now, if reception arrangements could not be made, four years' exceptional leave to remain has been granted.

We have now decided that if a failed asylum seeker who has no other basis to remain in the United Kingdom is aged between 14 and 17 at the time a decision is made and adequate reception arrangements cannot be made, he or she will be granted a period of exceptional leave until his or her 18th birthday. He or she will be able to apply for further leave at the end of this period in the same way as anyone else, but will be expected to leave the United Kingdom if he or she does not so apply or any application is rejected.

If a failed asylum seeker, for whom adequate reception arrangements cannot be made, is still aged under 14 at the time the asylum decision is made, he or she will continue to be granted four years' exceptional leave to remain in the United Kingdom in view of age and vulnerability. This will enable Local Authority social services departments to plan for the child's long term future. The child will then be able to apply for indefinite leave to remain in the United Kingdom in the same way as adults who have completed four years' exceptional leave. In this way, we are continuing to protect children while they are in need but closing a loophole which affords settlement in the United Kingdom to those who would not normally qualify.

Immigration Advisers

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) individuals and (b) organisations giving immigration advice for profit are registered with the Office of the Immigration Services Commissioner; and how many such individuals and organisations are in the process of registering with OISC. [13047]

Angela Eagle [holding answer 7 November 2001]: I understand that, as of 5 November 2001, the Office of the Immigration Services Commissioner (OISC) had registered 130 immigration advisers in business for profit. Of these, 83 are sole practitioners and 47 are organisations comprising two or more practitioners. The OISC has under consideration 15 registration applications from sole practitioners and eight from organisations comprising two or more practitioners.

Identity Cards

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the value of (a) compulsory and (b) voluntary identity cards in combating terrorism in the United Kingdom. [13408]

Angela Eagle: The Government have no plans to introduce a compulsory or voluntary identity card scheme as part of their response to the atrocities in the United States on 11 September.

However the policy on identity cards is kept under review and the Government are considering whether a universal card which allowed people to prove their identity more easily and provided a simple way to access a range of public services would be beneficial. Such an entitlement card scheme could also help to combat illegal working which disproportionately affects the poorer sections of our society by undercutting the minimum wage and encouraging unscrupulous employers. It could also reduce fraud against individuals, public services and the private sector.

The Government do not consider that an entitlement card scheme would have a significant effect in combating terrorism in the United Kingdom.

The introduction of an entitlement card would be a major step and the Government would not proceed without consulting widely and considering all the views expressed very carefully.

Rape Crisis Centres

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the funding of rape crisis centres. [12332]

Mr. Denham: The Home Office started to fund the Rape Crisis Federation with effect from 1 April 2001 for its work in supporting the network of rape crisis centres throughout the country. This year's grant is £406,000.

Police Fraud Teams

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what has been the (a) size and (b) case load of police fraud teams in each year since 1996. [12648]

Mr. Denham: (a) I am afraid that this information is not kept centrally and can be obtained only at disproportionate cost. However, for the last two years Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Constabulary has collected data from all forces in England and Wales according to a range of 62 staff functions, one of which is fraud. The staff function for fraud is defined as "staff who predominantly investigate fraud cases (not including staff who are predominantly employed in asset confiscation duties)" and "staff who are predominantly employed to support the investigation of fraud cases (not including staff who are predominantly employed to support asset confiscation duties)". The data are as follows:

	1999–2000		2000–01
Police force area	Police officer	Civilian staff	Police officer	Civilian staff
Avon and Somerset	17	1	15	2
Bedfordshire	8	1	13	3
Cambridgeshire	7	0	6	0
Cheshire	16	0	15	3
City of London	74	12	70	11
Cleveland	10	0	10	0
Cumbria	4	0	4	0
Derbyshire	10	1	12	1
Devon and Cornwall	10	0	18	5
Dorset	13	1	14	2
Durham	5	0	4	0
Dyfed-Powys	7	0	5	1
Essex	0	0	0	0
Gloucester	8	1	8	1
Greater Manchester	36	0	35	0
Gwent	5	0	5	0
Hampshire	11	3	12	3
Hertfordshire	10	0	11	0
Humberside	9	1	10	1
Kent	14	4	13	11
Lancashire	0	0	0	0
Leicester	0	0	7	0
Lincolnshire	7	0	7	0
Merseyside	0	4	0	4
Metropolitan police	118	0	68	2
Norfolk	7	0	7	0
North Wales	9	0	0	0

Police force area	1999–2000 Police officer	1999–2000 Civilian staff	2000–01 Police officer	2000–01 Civilian staff
North Yorkshire	6	0	6	0
Northamptonshire	8	2	8	4
Northumbria	14	0	0	0
Nottinghamshire	11	1	17	1
South Wales	15	2	3	0
South Yorkshire	21	2	20	5
Staffordshire	10	2	10	2
Suffolk	6	0	8	2
Surrey	12	0	17	3
Sussex	2	1	0	2
Thames Valley	15	4	15	5
Warwickshire	1	0	6	1
West Mercia	7	0	5	0
West Midlands	28	12	29	9
West Yorkshire	42	0	43	0
Wiltshire	3	0	4	0
England and Wales	616	55	560	84

(b) I am afraid that this information is not kept centrally and can be obtained only at disproportionate cost. However, the recorded crime figures for fraud and forgery for all police forces in England and Wales between April 1996 and March 2001 are as follows:

Police force area	Fraud and forgery: April 1996 to March 1997	April 1997 to March 1998	April 1998[1] to March 1999	April 1999 to March 2000	April 2000 to March 2001
Avon and Somerset	4,209	3,655	9,950	8,518	9,211
Bedfordshire	2,027	1,742	4,114	4,760	4,299
Cambridgeshire	1,491	1,375	2,389	3,251	2,780
Cheshire	2,325	1,848	2,146	2,192	2,390
Cleveland	1,350	1,525	2,261	2,744	2,880
Cumbria	946	1,156	1,388	1,310	1,094
Derbyshire	1,400	1,271	4,200	4,739	4,670
Devon and Cornwall	2,272	2,255	7,064	6,925	6,564
Dorset	1,315	1,264	6,334	5,866	5,045
Durham	1,193	1,163	1,311	1,314	1,394
Essex	2,526	2,458	4,366	5,470	6,615
Gloucestershire	1,551	1,484	2,527	3,284	3,105
Greater Manchester	5,411	6,519	15,830	20,043	18,579
Hampshire	3,998	3,669	5,130	6,393	5,847
Hertfordshire	1,225	1,418	2,312	2,935	3,982
Humberside	2,588	2,381	3,582	3,745	3,787
Kent	2,879	3,034	5,687	7,387	7,965
Lancashire	3,394	3,557	4,446	4,024	5,935
Leicestershire	3,417	2,795	7,227	8,398	6,925
Lincolnshire	1,344	1,144	2,723	1,641	1,662
City of London	384	507	862	1,214	1,145
Merseyside	3,999	4,275	4,884	4,794	5,021
Metropolitan police	41,157	43,437	80,541	105,150	83,453
Norfolk	1,222	1,056	2,488	3,251	2,742
Northamptonshire	1,211	1,230	4,425	4,225	3,661
Northumbria	2,017	2,315	4,991	5,022	5,365
North Yorkshire	989	976	2,563	2,551	2,498
Nottinghamshire	3,223	2,869	4,736	6,195	7,038
South Yorkshire	2,567	2,262	3,951	4,794	5,551
Staffordshire	2,106	2,196	3,830	4,885	6,083
Suffolk	1,302	1,069	2,099	2,182	2,372
Surrey	1,315	1,456	2,994	3,808	5,133
Sussex	2,677	3,059	7,790	8,615	9,886
Thames Valley	4,467	4,016	11,778	14,191	16,085
Warwickshire	932	910	2,401	2,383	2,067
West Mercia	1,960	1,865	3,961	4,210	3,898
West Midlands	5,781	4,987	15,675	26,856	29,322
West Yorkshire	5,034	5,458	10,608	11,533	10,626
Wiltshire	914	824	1,933	2,086	2,200
Dyfed-Powys	621	448	1,402	1,136	1,226
Gwent	1,415	1,402	2,395	2,586	2,532
North Wales	956	841	1,869	1,570	1,777
South Wales	2,865	3,061	6,340	6,597	4,914
England and Wales total	135,975	136,232	279,503	334,773	319,324

[1] New Home Office counting rules were issued for recorded crime on 1 April 1998

Police Authority Vehicles

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidance he gives to police authorities on the purchase and hire of road vehicles. [12911]

Mr. Denham [holding answer 6 November 2001]: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave him on 20 July 2001, Official Report, column 648W.

In 1996 the Police Information Technology Organisation placed a leasing Framework for police vehicles with two suppliers. These arrangements are due to run until July 2002.

Forensic Laboratories

Mr. Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what was the average length of time it took each of the national forensic laboratories to complete an investigation, from referral to conclusion in the last 12 months. [12040]

Angela Eagle: Figures available to the Home Office only include the work of the Forensic Science Service in England and Wales. Response times vary dependent on the offence type. There can be more than one referral in an investigation. The average turn around time for individual referrals was 26 days for the 12-month period from April 2000 to March 2001. In the year to date since March 2001 the average turn round time was 28 days.

Mr. Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many forensic scientists were employed by the national forensic laboratories in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [12039]

Angela Eagle: The average number of forensic scientists employed by the Home Office Forensic Science Service in each of the last five years is:

Year	Number
1996–97	814
1997–98	855
1998–99	1,027
1999–2000	1,221
2000–01	1,603

Departmental Assets

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what stocks of (a) antiques, (b) paintings and (c) fine wines are held by his Department; if he will list such assets sold over the last three years together with the sale proceeds from such transactions; what plans he has to sell further such assets over the period of the current Comprehensive Spending Review; and if he will make a statement. [10833]

Mr. Blunkett [holding answer 31 October 2001]: Within its total estate the Home Office possesses the following recorded stocks of antiques, paintings and fine wines:

Antiques

5 (no.) Pair of chandeliers
5 (no.) Chandeliers
1 (no.) Wall lantern
1 (no.) Hanging lantern
1 (no.) Pair of hanging lanterns
4 (no.) Wall brackets
1 (no.) Card table
2 (no.) Sofa tables
2 (no.) Console tables
2 (no.) Tea tables
1 (no.) Coffee table
1 (no.) Cricket table
5 (no.) Side tables
1 (no.) Refectory table
1 (no.) Pair of refectory tables
1 (no.) Dining table
3 (no.) Billiards tables
1 (no.) Loo table
1 (no.) Armchair
A set of 10 (no.) Side Chairs
1 (no.) Chaise Longue
A set of 12 (no.) Elbow chairs
1 (no.) Pair of Elbow chairs
A set of 6 (no.) Dining Chairs
1 (no.) Long stool
A set of 4 (no.) Benches
A set of 9 (no.) Dining Chairs
1 (no.) Joynt stool
1 (no.) pair of standard chairs
1 (no.) Settle
3 (no.) Display cabinets
3 (no.) Dressers
3 (no.) Coffers
A set of 4 (no.) Applique
A set of 9 (no.) Applique
1 (no.) Copper cistern
A collection of copper and brass pans and bowls
1 (no.) Wall mirror
5 (no.) Pair of antlers on shields
1 (no.) Stag's head on shield
1 (no.) Navel officer's sword and scabbard
1 (no.) Console
1 (no.) Pianoforte
A set of 7 (no.) Candelabrum
1 (no.) Secretaire bookcase
2 (no.) bookcases
1 (no.) Bracket clock
1 (no.) Standish
2 (no.) Sliver chalices
2 (no.) Statues
9 (no.) Pairs of fire dogs
8 (no.) Fire baskets
2 (no.) Fire backs
2 (no.) Persian carpets
1 (no.) Caucasian rug
1 (no.) Turkish carpet
1 (no.) Carpet
2 (no.) Tapestries
3 (no.) Drawings
1 (no.) Coloured print
4 (no.) Engravings

Paintings

12 (no.) Paintings

Fine Wines

Nil.

No antiques, paintings or fine wines have been sold during the past three years and there are no plans to sell any.

None of these items are held centrally by the Home Office, but by those involved in training and service delivery. Some of these items are gifts provided by those visiting or taking part in seminars and conferences from overseas.

Antisocial Behaviour Orders

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has to review the working and implementation of antisocial behaviour orders; and if he will make a statement. [9478]

Mr. Denham: During the passage of the Crime and Disorder Act 1998 a commitment was made by my right hon. Friend the Member for Cardiff, South and Penarth (Alun Michael), the then Home Office Minister, to review antisocial behaviour orders after two years. The review is currently under way.

Fly Tipping

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many individuals were convicted of fly tipping in England in each year since 1997. [12409]

Mr. Denham [holding answer 5 November 2001]: The available information, taken from the Home Office court proceedings database, showing the number of persons convicted of 'fly-tipping' offences in England during the period 1997 to 2000 is given in the table.

Number of persons convicted of the given environmental offence at all courts, England 1997 to 2000

Offence description/principal statute	Number of persons convicted
Prohibition on unauthorised or harmful deposit, treatment or disposal etc. of waste—Environmental Protection Act 1990 sec. 33
1997	113
1998	157
1999	183
2000[1]	199

[1] Excluding any convictions at magistrates courts in Staffordshire

Note:
All data are given on a principal offence basis

Immigration and Nationality Directorate

Ian Stewart: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he will receive a determination on applications M 1103515 and M 1103516 from the Immigration and Nationality Directorate. [12663]

Angela Eagle: The applicants' representative was requested on 19 October to provide additional evidence to enable us to give further consideration to these cases. A decision will be made as soon as possible after this has been received.

Special Constables

Ross Cranston: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he has reviewed the 1997 Her Majesty's inspectorate of contabulary conclusion that special constables should not be paid; and if he will make a statement. [7092]

Mr. Denham: The Home Office funded two recent research studies which have made recommendations on the recruitment and retention of special constables[1].

Voluntary service to the community is a key element of the special constabulary but we are reviewing the allowances paid to special constables and a number of other options for achieving radical improvements in the conditions of service and the management of special constables.

[1] "An Investigation into the Premature Wastage of Special Constables" by Jackie Alexander. Home Office Police Research Unit, May 2000 (www.pras.org); and "Attracting and Keeping Special Constables" by Alan Hedges. July 2000 (circulated to all police forces July 2000).

Race Relations Act

Mr. Neil Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he will make changes to the authorisation under section 19D of the Race Relations Act 1976 concerning discrimination of the basis of ethnic or national origin in the examination of passengers. [13906]

Angela Eagle: My right hon. and noble Friend Lord Rooker has been reviewing the authorisation made on 23 April by his predecessor, my hon. Friend the Member for Hornsey and Wood Green (Mrs. Roche)—the Race Relations (Immigration and Asylum) (No. 2) Authorisation 2001—each month on the basis of statistical evidence and intelligence material produced by the Immigration Service. The authorisation permitted the Immigration Service to pay particular attention to arriving passengers from certain specified ethnic or national groups, namely Afghans, Albanians, Kurds, Pontic Greeks, Roma, Somalis, Tamils and persons of Chinese ethnic origin carrying Japanese or Malaysian travel documents.

My right hon. and noble Friend has amended the authorisation to remove Pontic Greeks from the list of specified groups, on the grounds that while intelligence suggests that members of this group may pose a threat to the United Kingdom's immigration control in future, there is not sufficient evidence at present to maintain their current inclusion in the authorisation. The remaining groups covered by the authorisation remain unchanged.

A copy of the authorisation has been placed in the Library.

SCOTLAND

Parliamentary Questions

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what discussions she had with the hon. Member for Glasgow, Anniesland (John Robertson), prior to Questions to the Secretary of State for Scotland held on 6 November, regarding the content and wording of his supplementary oral question to her. [13541]

Mrs. Liddell: I have regular discussions with back-bench colleagues.

ADVOCATE-GENERAL

Parliamentary Questions

John Barrett: To ask the Advocate-General what discussions she had with the hon. Members for Glasgow, Anniesland (John Robertson) and for Edinburgh, North and Leith (Mr. Lazarowicz), prior to Questions to the Advocate-General for Scotland on 6 November, regarding the content and wording of their supplementary oral questions to her. [13540]

The Advocate-General: I am always personally available to all hon. Members for discussion of any matter of interest to hon. Members, within my responsibilities as Advocate-General.

LORD CHANCELLOR'S DEPARTMENT

Magistrates Courts

Norman Baker: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department when the extended magistrates' sitting hours pilots in Manchester and London are expected to commence; what funding has been identified to facilitate these; and if he will make a statement. [12003]

Mr. Wills: The Government plan to pilot studies to find the most cost-effective means of extending court hours. The aim is to test whether extended hours would have an impact on delays, deter local criminals, improve access to justice and help reassure local communities. Planning is under way involving all criminal justice partners in London and Manchester. The pilots are expected to start next year. Funding of £5.4 million has been identified to facilitate these.

Judiciary

Vera Baird: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department if the figures for women and men barristers who were judicial appointees at each level of the courts in (a) 1999, (b) 2000 and (c) 2001 reflect the proportion of women and men called to the Bar between 10 and 15 years earlier. [12853]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The relevant data are not readily available in the form requested and I will write to my hon. Friend. Statistics from the Judicial Appointments Annual Report for 2000–01 show the overall average years in practice at the time of appointment for the main competitions held was 21.0 years for both barristers and solicitors. Figures from the Bar Council show that 10.8 per cent. of barristers with over 20 years' experience were women. Figures in the Annual Report show that the proportion of women, both barristers and solicitors, appointed in open competitions in 2000–01 was 28.4 per cent.

Vera Baird: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department how many (a) men and (b) women appointees to the judiciary in (i) 1999, (ii) 2000 and (iii) 2001 were Queen's counsel at the time of their appointment. [12865]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The total number of QCs appointed to the judiciary in open competitions in 1998–99, 1999–2000 and 2000–01 was 36, 35 and 53 respectively.

Information on the gender breakdown is not readily to hand but I will write to my hon. Friend with the information.

Vera Baird: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department how many (a) men and (b) women appointees to the judiciary in (i) 1999, (ii) 2000 and (iii) 2001 were solicitors at the time of their appointment. [12849]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The total number of solicitors appointed to the judiciary in open competitions in 1998–99, 1999–2000 and 2000–01 was 294, 211 and 277 respectively. Information on the gender breakdown is not readily to hand but I will write to my hon. Friend with the information.

Vera Baird: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what the average ages were of (a) women and (b) men appointees to the full-time Crown court judiciary in the last 12 months. [12864]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information in the form requested is not readily available. Circuit judges are not generally appointed to sit exclusively in the Crown court. Many sit also in civil and family work and the balance of time spent sitting in the Crown court will vary between appointees and from one year to the next. The average age of candidates approved for appointment for the Circuit Bench in 2000–01 was 51.4 years. I will write to my hon. Friend with further information about appointments made to the Circuit Bench over the course of the last year showing the average age by female and male appointees.

Vera Baird: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department how many (a) men and (b) women appointees to the judiciary in (i) 1999, (ii) 2000 and (iii) 2001 were single parents at the time of their appointment. [12851]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Information about marital status and children is not specifically sought from candidates and therefore no records are held. Members of the legal profession, irrespective of their background or personal circumstances are encouraged to apply for judicial office. Candidates are appointed on merit against the published criteria for appointment.

Vera Baird: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department how many (a) women and (b) men appointed to the judiciary in (i) 1999 and (ii) 2000 had previously taken an employment break in order to care for children. [12850]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Information about employment breaks to care for children is not specifically sought from applicants for judicial office; therefore there are no records available.

Vera Baird: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what plans she has to put in place creche facilities associated with the courts with the aim of encouraging younger women with children to apply for appointment to the judiciary; and what other plans she has to offer such encouragement. [12852]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Lord Chancellor is not aware of a specific demand for such creche facilities. The Lord Chancellor gives general encouragement to women to apply for judicial office. With this in mind, among the initiatives he has introduced are a permanent part-time working facility and flexible part-time sitting arrangements for those who have had career breaks for family reasons. In addition the lower age limits for judicial office are applied flexibly.

Judicial Review

Mr. Paul Marsden: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department how many and what proportion of applications for leave to apply for judicial review were (a) heard in court and (b) upheld in the last year for which data are available; and if he will make a statement. [12672]

Mr. Wills: The following information is based on judicial review cases, both civil and criminal, received between 1 October 2000 and 30 September 2001.

Number of applications received—4,554

Number of substantive applications heard—1,176 (as percentage of applications received)—25.8 per cent.

Number of substantive applications allowed—607 (as percentage of applications received—13.3 per cent.

Hereford Crown Court

Mr. Maples: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department when he intends to renew the lease on Hereford Crown court; and if he will make a statement. [13194]

Mr. Wills: The Court Service has instructed managing agents acting on its behalf to renew both of the two current leases that we hold on accommodation at the Shire Hall, Hereford which expire on 31 December 2001. These negotiations are now proceeding.

TREASURY

Government Debt

6. Stephen Hesford: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his estimate is of the cost of servicing Government debt in each of the last five years. [11331]

Ruth Kelly: As a result of the action this Government have taken to deliver economic stability, such as cutting borrowing, and making the Bank of England independent, Budget 2001 forecast gross debt interest for 2001–02 to be £23.1 billion, £3.0 billion lower than in 2000–01.

The forecast for gross debt interest in 2001–02 is £4.5 billion lower than the cost of debt interest in 1996–97 and £6.2 billion lower than in 1997–98.

Under the last Government, this was money spent on paying the price of economic failure. Under this Government, money saved on debt interest can now be used to invest in Britain's key public service.

Contingency Fund

14. Simon Hughes: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans he has for further allocations to spending Departments from the contingency fund during the remainder of this financial year. [11343]

Mr. Andrew Smith: The Contingencies Fund is used to advance urgent resources to departments pending approval of the spending through estimates in the normal manner. There are therefore no plans to make allocations from it, as it is not a budgeting concept. Allocations may be made from the Departmental Expenditure Limit Reserve to meet genuinely unforeseen contingencies. Any such resources additional to departmental budgets will be reported to Parliament through the Supplementary Estimates procedure in the normal way.

Terrorist Funds

15. Mr. Love: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what measures he is putting in place to tackle the financing of international terrorism. [11344]

21. Mr. Tynan: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the measures taken to cut off the supply of funding to terrorism. [11351]

Ruth Kelly: I refer my hon. Friends to the remarks made by the Chancellor of the Exchequer on 8 November 2001, Official Report, columns 397-52.

Third-world Debt

16. Ms Christine Russell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the role of the UK in pressing for reductions in third-world debt. [11345]

Mr. Boateng: The UK has consistently been at the forefront of the international debate on debt relief for the developing countries. The UK pushed for the Heavily Indebted Poor Countries (HIPC) initiative to be speeded up, and as a result, 23 countries are now receiving debt relief. These countries will receive $54 billion in debt relief, which will reduce their debts to below the developing country average. The UK's 100 per cent. bilateral policy on debt relief means that it stands ready to write off £1.9 billion of debts for all 42 HIPCs. The Chancellor also announced last December that the UK would hold in trust any payments from those HIPCs yet to receive debt relief. We call on other G7 countries to follow our lead.

Student Loans

18. Mr. Illsley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the future of student loans. [11347]

Mr. Andrew Smith: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Education and Skills announced in October that she is leading a review of student funding. This will examine the appropriate balance between the contribution made by students, their families and the state to support our ambitions to widen access and participation in higher education.

Banking Services

19. Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what progress has been made in implementing the findings of the Cruickshank report on UK banking. [11348]

Ruth Kelly: There have been three recent developments.

First, the Julius Review Group published in July its report reviewing the banking codes. The Government are now considering the response of the industry to the report's recommendations.

Second, the Government published their response to consultation on competition in payment systems in August. The Government will bring forward legislation as soon as parliamentary time allows.

Third, the Competition Commission reported to the Chancellor and the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry in October with the findings of its inquiry into the provision of banking services to small and medium sized enterprises. The Government are considering these findings.

Tax and Benefit Integration

20. Roger Casale: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what further plans he has to integrate the tax and benefit systems. [11350]

Dawn Primarolo: The Government are committed to further integration of the tax and benefit system to tackle poverty and to promote incentives to work and save.

Over the last Parliament a number of reforms were introduced, including the introduction of the Working Families Tax Credit, the Children's Tax Credit and the Minimum Income Guarantee for Pensioners.

In the next stage of reform, the Government intend to introduce a new system of tax credits from 2003 which will help to support families, make work pay and tackle child poverty.

The Pension Credit, also introduced from 2003, will help reward saving, support pensioners on low to modest incomes and tackle pensioner poverty.

NHS Investment

22. Mr. Russell Brown: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what representations he has had from health professionals in the NHS on public investment in health services. [11352]

Mr. Andrew Smith: I am always interested in the views of health service professionals and receive regular representations on a range of public service issues.

Discount Rate

23. Mr. Burnett: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer for what reason the Treasury discount rate is set at 6 per cent. in real terms. [11353]

Mr. Andrew Smith: The discount rate is based on several factors, including the cost of public sector capital and the estimated rate of social time preference. The 6 per cent. rate currently recommended was set in 1989 and was derived from the evidence then available. A review is currently under way of the project appraisal and capital appraisal system to ensure it embodies best practice in present circumstances.

27. Paul Holmes: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent analysis his Department has undertaken of the influence on the relative values of public sector comparators and public-private partnership costs of changing the discount rate. [11359]

Mr. Andrew Smith: The project appraisal and capital approval system used in government is currently under review. However, the rationale for any change in the discount rate would have implications for other parts of the appraisal process, so the overall effect would depend on a combination of these factors.

September 11

24. Mr. Khabra: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps he is taking to minimise the impact of the terrorist attacks on 11 September and the bombing of Afghanistan on the British economy and business confidence; and if he will make a statement. [11354]

Ruth Kelly: The Government will publish forecasts for the UK economy and the public finances in the forthcoming pre-Budget report, taking into account all developments and influences on prospects.

29. Tim Loughton: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what revisions he has made to his estimates for economic growth and tax revenues in 2001–02 and 2002–03 following the events of 11 September. [11361]

Ruth Kelly: The Government's latest forecasts for the UK and world economies and the public finances were published in "Budget 2001" (HC279). Updated forecasts will be presented as part of the forthcoming pre-Budget report.

Productivity

25. Mr. Kidney: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent assessment he has made of the competitiveness of the UK economy in terms of productivity. [11355]

Mr. Boateng: The Government make regular assessments of UK competitiveness and productivity and are committed to increasing UK productivity at a faster rate than that of their major competitors. Budget 2001 gave the most recent assessment of UK productivity, and Government policy in this area was set out in "Productivity in the UK: Enterprise and the Productivity Challenge", published in June this year. The forthcoming pre-Budget report will provide a further update on UK productivity relative to our main competitors.

Public-private Partnerships

26. Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent representations he has received from interested organisations regarding public-private partnerships. [11357]

Mr. Andrew Smith: Treasury Ministers receive representations from various organisations and individuals on a wide range of issues.

28. Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the viability of future public-private partnership schemes. [11360]

Mr. Andrew Smith: The Government's approach to public-private partnerships was set out in the Treasury document, "Public-private partnerships: the Government's approach", published in March 2000.

Public Services

30. Mr. Challen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on what recent measures he has taken to promote the improvement of public services. [11362]

Mr. Andrew Smith: The Government's prudent stewardship of public finances since 1997 has made it possible to provide unprecedented levels of investment for key public services. £43 billion of additional funding has been allocated to Departmental Expenditure Limits by 2003–04. Three quarters of these increased funds will be spent in the Government's priority areas of health, education, transport, housing and law and order. This investment in public services is tied to commitments by Departments to deliver improved service standards and key reforms, the targets for which are set out in their public service agreements.

Housing Market

31. Mr. Edwards: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the impact of the level of interest rates on the housing market. [11363]

Ruth Kelly: In August this year mortgage rates averaged 6.0 per cent. This compares with an average of over 11 per cent. during the period 1979–97. As a result, mortgage interest payments on the average mortgage are now over £1,500 a year lower than if interest rates were still at the levels seen from 1979–97.

Regional Development Agencies

32. Mr. Ben Chapman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent research he has commissioned on the impact of his policies on the economic plans of the Regional Development Agencies. [11365]

Mr. Andrew Smith: The Regional Development Agencies are key to meeting economic development challenges faced at the regional level. To support their objectives, the RDAs need a stable national macroeconomic environment in which to operate, which we have provided through the national framework of macroeconomic reforms and policies we have implemented since 1997. Within that framework, we have also given RDAs the flexibility and autonomy they need to address regional priorities and deliver economic growth within and between every region.

To understand more fully the regional impact of national policies, and to ensure that the economic plans of the RDAs can best work within them, the Treasury is supporting through the Evidence-Based Policy Fund a research project, led by DTLR, to identify public expenditure flows into the regions. This project is due to be completed early in 2002.

Single European Currency

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the Government's plans to hold a referendum on joining the single European currency. [11346]

Ruth Kelly: The Government's policy on membership of the single currency remains as set out by the Chancellor in October 1997 and restated by the Prime Minster in February 1999. The Government have said they will complete an assessment of the five economic tests within two years of the start of this Parliament. Once the assessment has been completed, the Government will make a decision on UK membership of the single currency. If the Government recommend UK entry, it will be put to a vote in Parliament and then to a referendum of the British people.

Census Returns

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what percentage of forms from the (a) 2001 and (b) 1991 Census were returned. [11678]

Ruth Kelly: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician. I have asked him to reply.

Letter from Len Cook to Mr. Geoffrey Clifton-Brown, dated October 2001:

As National Statistician and Registrar General for England and Wales, I have been asked to reply to your recent question on the percentage of forms returned from (a) the 2001 and (b) the 1991 Census (11678).

The Office for National Statistics presently estimates that the response rate to the 2001 Census in England and Wales will reach 98 per cent. of households. Around 88 per cent. of the estimated number of households returned forms by post, a further seven per cent. were collected by enumerators and possibly three per cent. were vacant dwellings and second homes. We will not know the precise response rates until all the forms have been processed and analysed.

In the 1991 Census in England and Wales, nearly 98 per cent. of forms for households identified by enumerators as being occupied, were returned.

Charities

Mr. Bruce George: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent measures he has put in place to help charities. [11583]

Mr. Boateng: In April 2000 the Government introduced a number of measures to help charities and to encourage greater charitable giving. The Getting Britain Giving package of measures included improvements to the Gift Aid and Payroll Giving schemes and a new income tax relief for giving shares to charities. The Government are supporting The Giving Campaign, led by the charitable sector, to promote the new reliefs and encourage a culture of giving.

Interest Rates

Mr. Skinner: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent meetings he has had with the Governor of the Bank of England regarding interest rates; and if he will make a statement. [11356]

Ruth Kelly: The Chancellor and the Governor meet regularly to discuss a wide range of issues. The level of interest rates is a matter for the Monetary Policy Committee of the Bank of England.

VAT Fraud

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what evaluation he has made of HM Customs and Excise's strategy to tackle trader-based intra-EU VAT fraud. [9185]

Mr. Boateng: Full details of Customs' strategy to tackle missing trader-based intra-EU VAT fraud will be published at the time of the Pre-Budget report.

Individual Pension Accounts

Mr. Webb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, pursuant to his answer of 5 November 2001, Official Report, column 71W, on individual pension accounts, how many individual pension accounts have been taken out to date. [13294]

Ruth Kelly: This information is not collected by the Government.

Customs and Excise

Mr. Syms: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on HM Customs and Excise proposals to employ staff in mobile anti-smuggling squads; and what assessment he has made of the impact this proposal will have on the port of Poole. [12546]

Mr. Boateng [holding answer 5 November 2001]: HM Customs and Excise keeps under constant review its resource deployment in the light of risk analysis and results. It has for some time used flexible mobile teams to tackle smuggling around the coast and at ports and airports. Deployment changes are intelligence-led and so designed to achieve the greatest possible impact on smuggling.

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many staff were (a) employed in Customs and Excise investigation and fraud teams and (b) engaged in counter-smuggling activities in each year since 1996; and what his estimate is for 2001 and plans for 2002. [12653]

Mr. Boateng [holding answer 5 November 2001]: For the financial years 1996–97 to 1999–2000 the number of Customs' staff employed in Investigation and Anti-smuggling teams were as follows:

	Investigation[1]	Anti-smuggling
1996–97	1,679	2,829
1997–98	1,783	2,854
1998–99	1,864	2,872
1999–2000	1,907	2,877

[1] This includes non-core activity (corporate and support services)

For 2000–01 and 2001–02 Customs were complemented for 3,315 and 3,445 detection staff and 1,864 and 2,101 investigation staff respectively. From 2000–01 the figures for Investigation no longer include the non-core support services activity.

Broadband Tax Incentives

Adam Price: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his policy is on the introduction of regional tax incentives for broadband communications in the Objective 1 areas. [12395]

Mr. Boateng: The Government keep all areas of the tax system under review. The 100 per cent. capital allowances for information and communications technology expenditure by small firms, announced in Budget 2000, include capital expenditure on broadband. These are available in Objective 1 areas as in the rest of the UK.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Parliamentary Questions

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister for what reason guidance to officials in his Department on drafting replies to parliamentary questions requires them to offer commentary on the motivation of the hon. Member asking the question; and if he will make a statement. [10971]

Mr. Leslie: Civil servants are required to draft answers to parliamentary questions in accordance with the requirements of the "Guidance to Officials on Drafting Answers to Parliamentary Questions". A copy of the Guidance is in the Library of the House. In addition, more detailed internal guidance is issued to officials in my Department advising them of Minsters' requirements on layout and style. Officials are asked to set out the background to the parliamentary question and, if known, the reason why the question has been asked. Similar guidance has been issued under successive Administrations. Such information can help to ensure that answers provided to hon. Members are relevant to their concerns.

Cabinet Office Properties

Mrs. May: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will list the number, value and location of properties newly leased in each of the last five years by the Cabinet Office, including and distinguishing between the Department itself, its next step agencies and its non-departmental public bodies, differentiating between purchases made as a result of the creation of new bodies and those purchases made by established bodies. [7809]

Mr. Leslie: Information requested, covering 1996–97 to 2000–01 (inclusive) is as follows:

Year/number/location	Status	Value (£)
1996–97
Number of acquisitions made: 0	—	—
1997–98
Number of acquisitions made: 2
England
Basingstoke	Core department. Established body	355
Birmingham	Executive agency. Established body	3
1998–99
Number of acquisitions made: 0	—	—

Year/number/location	Status	Value (£)
1999–2000
Number of acquisitions made: 5
England
London x 2	Core department. Established body	1,648
Manchester	NDPB. Established body	341
Scotland
Edinburgh	Executive agency. Established body	18
Glasgow	NDPB. Established body	54
2000–01
Number of acquisitions made: 2
England
London	Core department. Established body x 1. New body x 1	2,527

Notes:
Unless otherwise stated, the figures shown in the 'value' column comprise rent, service charges and all other accommodation related running costs incurred in 2000–01.
Figures exclude VAT.
Figures in respect of the Government Offices for the Regions and the Regional Co-ordination Unit have been excluded, as these have been included in the Answer already provided by the Department for Transport, Local Government and the Regions.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Failing LEAs

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will list, for each local education authority found to be failing by Ofsted, (a) the date of inspection, of report, and of receipt of action plan by her Department, (b) the date of second inspection, of report, and of receipt of action plan by her Department, (c) the date of subsequent milestone events such as decisions to involve private partners in the management of local education authority services, to award, implement or terminate contracts with private partners, and to assist in or restructure the local education authority and (d) the names of partners to whom contracts have been awarded. [9909]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 24 October 2001]: There have been 21 authorities in which the Secretary of State has intervened following a critical Ofsted report. The information requested is contained in tables, which have been placed in the Library.

Primary Schools

Mr. George Osborne: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what was the average funding per pupil provided to (a) primary schools in Cheshire, (b) secondary schools in Cheshire, (c) primary schools in Hertfordshire, (d) secondary schools in Hertfordshire, (e) primary schools in England and (f) secondary schools in England in the last financial year. [11079]

Mr. Timms: The information requested is as follows:

£ million

	Primary	Secondary
Cheshire	1,903	2,532
Hertfordshire	1,926	2,639
England	2,010	2,663

The figures do not include School Standards Grant.

GCSE Results

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will list the 100 secondary schools with the worst GCSE examination results in England in order of their performance indicating in each case the responsible local education authority; and if she will make a statement. [11483]

Mr. Ivan Lewis [holding answer 5 November 2001]: The Department will publish 2001 GCSE (and GNVQ equivalent) results for schools in England in the secondary school performance tables on 22 November.

The White Paper "Schools Achieving Success" describes the programme of challenge and support designed to ensure that in all schools at least 25 per cent. of pupils should achieve 5 A*-C grades at GCSE (or equivalent) by 2006. Many of the schools currently below this target are working in deprived areas and adding considerable value given the prior attainment of their intake. We are working with schools and LEAs to identify what support is needed to deliver equality of outcome for their pupils.

Local Education Authorities

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will list the local education authorities which are (a) partly and (b) wholly run by private sector entities; which they are; and if she will make a statement. [11487]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 5 November 2001]: There are 10 interventions that involve private sector companies delivering services or functions under contract. The LEAs still remain responsible and accountable for the services in question.

Intervention authorities where private sector involved in the delivery of services

Bradford
Hackney
Haringey
Islington

Leeds
Sandwell
Southwark
Thurrock
Walsall
Waltham Forest.

State Schools (Private Firms)

Mr. Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which state schools in England have had their management taken over by private firms. [11535]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 31 October 2001]: None. The legal responsibility for managing a school rests with the governing body and head teacher, even where they are supported by expertise from the private sector.

Free School Meals

Mr. Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what percentage of children, on average, were receiving free school meals in (a) specialist schools and (b) other secondary schools in the state sector, on 30 September. [11539]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 31 October 2001]: Free school meals data are not available for September.

The percentages of pupils known to be eligible for free school meals in specialist secondary schools and other maintained secondary schools as at January 2001 are 14.7 per cent. and 16.2 per cent. respectively, and in those specialist secondary schools designated between January and October 2001 is 15.9 per cent.

Independent School Fees

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what recent representations she has received on her policy relating to the provision of support towards the cost of independent school fees by her Department. [12005]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 2 November 2001]: Earlier this year I received representations from the Independent Schools Council and others on proposals for more open access to independent schools. Their proposals sought Government assistance to subsidise the cost of school fees that could not be met by children's parents. However, the Government have a manifesto commitment from 1997 to phase out the Assisted Places Scheme (APS) and to use the available resources to raise standards and enhance opportunities for children in maintained schools. Savings from phasing out the APS are going towards the significant reduction in infant class sizes, as demonstrated in the achievements of the past four years. Any new scheme that would assist relatively few children to attend independent schools would be incompatible with the long-standing commitment to phase out APS.

Teachers

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills, pursuant to her answer of 26 October 2001, Official Report, columns 469–70W, on teacher recruitment, what was the allocation of the recruitment and retention fund, 2000–01 to each local education authority. [12155]

Mr. Timms: A press notice (PN 2001/0191) announcing the details of the fund and the allocations to local education authorities was issued on 2 April 2001. A copy can be found on the departmental website www.dfes.gov.uk.

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills, pursuant to her written answer of 26 October 2001, Official Report, column 461W, on teachers, if she will list the (a) age profile and (b) reasons for leaving of the teachers leaving service in the maintained schools in each of the last four academic years. [12172]

Mr. Timms: Qualified full and part-time regular teachers (headcount) who left service in the maintained schools sector in England are as follows:

1996–97

Age at end of financial year	Age retirement	Ill-health retirement	Premature retirement	All retirements	Left for reasons other than retirement
Less than 25	0	[1]—	0	[1]—	400
25 to 29	0	[1]—	0	[1]—	3,600
30 to 34	0	[1]—	0	[1]—	3,300
35 to 39	0	100	0	100	2,600
40 to 44	0	400	0	400	3,200
45 to 49	0	1,200	0	1,200	3,200
50 to 54	0	1,800	4,500	6,300	1,700
55 to 59	[1]—	1,100	4,500	5,600	700
60 and over	1,700	100	1,300	3,200	200
Total	1,700	4,800	10,300	16,800	18,900

[1] less than 50

1997–98

Age at end of financial year	Age retirement	Ill-health retirement	Premature retirement	All retirements	Left for reasons other than retirement
Less than 25	0	0	0	0	500
25 to 29	0	[1]—	0	[1]—	4,100
30 to 34	0	[1]—	0	[1]—	3,900
35 to 39	0	100	0	100	2,900
40 to 44	0	300	0	300	3,700

1997–98

Age at end of financial year	Age retirement	Ill-health retirement	Premature retirement	All retirements	Left for reasons other than retirement
45 to 49	0	800	[1]—	800	4,200
50 to 54	0	1,300	5,600	6,900	2,300
55 to 59	0	800	4,500	5,200	800
60 and over	1,900	100	1,100	3,100	300
Total	1,900	3,400	11,200	16,600	22,600

[1] less than 50

1998–99

Age at end of financial year	Age retirement	Ill-health retirement	Premature retirement	All retirements	Left for reasons other than retirement
Less than 25	0	0	0	0	500
25 to 29	0	[1]—	0	[1]—	4,600
30 to 34	0	[1]—	0	[1]—	4,000
35 to 39	0	[1]—	0	[1]—	2,900
40 to 44	0	200	0	200	3,300
45 to 49	0	600	0	600	4,100
50 to 54	0	1,000	1,300	2,200	2,800
55 to 59	0	500	1,700	2,100	1,100
60 and over	1,900	100	800	2,900	300
Total	1,900	2,300	3,800	8,000	23,700

[1] less than 50

1999–2000

Age at end of financial year	Age retirement	Ill-health retirement	Premature retirement	All retirements	Left for reasons other than retirement
Less than 25	0	0	0	0	500
25 to 29	0	0	0	0	4,700
30 to 34	0	[1]—	0	[1]—	4,300
35 to 39	0	[1]—	0	[1]—	3,400
40 to 44	0	100	0	100	3,500
45 to 49	0	500	[1]—	500	4,500
50 to 54	0	1,000	1,300	2,200	3,600
55 to 59	0	600	2,000	2,600	1,400
60 and over	2,300	100	900	3,300	300
Total	2,300	2,300	4,300	8,800	26,200

[1] less than 50

The totals may not be the sum of the component parts due to rounding.

The most recent data available are for March 2000.

The figures exclude 10 per cent. to 20 per cent. of part-time teachers not included on the Teacher Pension Scheme records.

The reasons for leaving cannot be broken down accurately into any additional categories.

Some teachers who left service will return subsequently.

Student Statistics

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many students there are in the (a) further education and (b) higher education sector. [12263]

John Healey: There were 4.2 million students in the FE sector in 1999–2000. This figure includes funded and non-funded students in FE colleges and funded students in external institutions, specialist designated institutions and higher education institutions. Data for 2000–01 are not yet available.

Numbers for students in higher education are as follows:

HE students in England—2000–01[1]

Thousand

	Postgraduates	Undergraduates	Total
Full-time	136.1	874.5	1,010.6
Part-time	179.4	461.6	641.0
Total	315.5	1,336.1	1,651.6

[1] Provisional

Note:

The figures cover HE students in HE and FE institutions, including the Open University.

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many higher education students are in their (a) first, (b) second, (c) third and (d) fourth of study. [12264]

Margaret Hodge: The information is given in the following table.

Higher Education Students in the UK[1]—2000–01

Year of study	Full-time	Part-time	Total
1	503.9	285.5	789.4
2	324.6	141.8	466.3
3	253.2	67.2	320.3
4	91.5	40.2	131.7
Other	22.9	71.8	94.7
Total	1,196.0	606.5	1,802.5

[1] Covers all home and overseas postgraduates and undergraduates in HE institutions in the UK.

Higher Education

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many teaching staff have been employed (a) full-time and (b) part-time in higher education in each of the last five years. [12306]

Margaret Hodge: The available data on the number of teaching staff employed in higher education are given in the table.

Academic Staff in UK Higher Education Institutions

	Full-time	Part-time	Total
1995–96	111,460	15,120	126,580
1996–97	110,770	16,790	127,570
1997–98	110,480	17,590	128,080
1998–99	112,370	18,760	131,140
1999–2000	113,790	21,960	135,750

Note:
Numbers have been rounded to the nearest 10
Source:
Higher Education Statistics Agency's Staff Record

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many unfilled vacancies there were in the higher education sector for all grades of lecturer posts in (a) 1995 and (b) 2000. [12308]

Margaret Hodge: This information is not held centrally. Individual universities, as employers, are responsible for monitoring their own vacancies.

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what monitoring is carried out by her Department of the payment by higher education institutions of nationally recommended pay awards. [12309]

Margaret Hodge: The higher education employers and trades unions will monitor the implementation of the pay awards they have agreed. The Government do not play a part.

Universities

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many (a) male and (b) female university teachers are aged (i) 20 to 25, (ii) 25 to 30, (iii) 31 to 35, (iv) 36 to 40, (v) 41 to 44, (vi) 45 to 49, (vii) 50 to 54, (viii) 55 to 59, (ix) 60 to 65, (x) 66 to 70 and (xi) 71 years and over. [12307]

Margaret Hodge: The available data on age and gender of university staff are given in the table.

Academic staff in UK higher education institutions 1999–2000

Age	Female	Male	Total
20–24	1,620	1,520	3,140
25–30	9,100	12,110	21,210
31–35	8,720	13,710	22,430
36–40	7,590	12,120	19,710
41–44	5,760	8,780	14,540
45–49	6,660	11,170	17,830
50–54	5,480	13,000	18,480
55–59	2,590	8,690	11,550
60–65	870	5,190	6,060
66–70	50	390	440
71+	140	220	360
Total	48,580	87,170	135,750

Note:
Numbers have been rounded to the nearest 10.
Source:
Higher Education Statistics Agency's Staff Record.

Mr. Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will make a statement on the (a) recruitment and retention of university staff and (b) total funding figures for universities in England and Wales per university for the last five years. [12321]

Margaret Hodge: The recruitment and retention of staff is a matter for higher education institutions. However, in England the Government are providing £50 million in 2001–02, rising to £110 million in 2002–03 and £170 million in 2003–04. This is to support the initiatives set out in the human resources strategies which each higher education institution has submitted to the Higher Education Funding Council for England, including measures to promote recruitment and retention and modernisation of reward systems. In Wales, these issues are now a matter for the National Assembly.

Data on funding for higher education institutes can be found in the Higher Education Statistics Agency publication "Resources for higher education institutions" copies of which are in the Library of the House.

Teacher Shortages

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if the forthcoming allocation of funds to local education authorities for 2002–03 will be adjusted to reflect cost of living issues and teacher shortages in the south-east. [12743]

Mr. Timms: Education standard spending assessments for 2002–03 will continue to reflect the additional costs faced by local education authorities on the same basis as in 2001–02.

Specialist Schools

Charlotte Atkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many specialist schools there were in each local education authority in (a) 1996, (b) 1998 and (c) 2000; and how many there were in each specialty in 2000. [12966]

Mr. Timms: The number of operational Specialist Schools, as of 1996, 1998 and 2000, by LEA by specialism, is given in the following tables.

Specialist Schools

Number of operational Specialist Schools by LEA by specialism (information given is as of September each year)

Local education authorities	Total secondary schools in LEA	1996
		Arts	Language	Sports	Technology	Total
Barking & Dagenham, LB of	8	—	—	—	1	1
Barnet, LB of	21	—	1	—	1	2
Barnsley	14	—	—	—	—	0
Bath & North East Somerset	13	—	—	—	—	0
Bedfordshire	17	—	—	—	—	0
Bexley, LB of	16	—	—	—	1	1
Birmingham	77	—	—	—	3	3
Blackburn with Darwen	9	—	—	—	—	0
Blackpool	8	—	—	—	—	0
Bolton	16	—	—	—	1	1
Bournemouth	10	—	—	—	—	0
Bracknell Forest	6	—	—	—	—	0
Bradford	27	—	—	—	1	1
Brent, LB of	13	—	1	—	2	3
Brighton and Hove	10	—	—	—	—	0
Bristol, city of	20	—	—	—	—	0
Bromley, LB of	17	—	1	—	3	4
Buckinghamshire	34	—	1	—	1	2
Bury	14	—	—	—	—	0
Calderdale	15	—	—	—	1	1
Cambridgeshire	30	—	—	—	2	2
Camden, LB of	10	—	—	—	—	0
Cheshire	45	—	1	—	1	2
Corporation of London	0	—	—	—	—	0
Cornwall	31	—	—	—	2	2
Coventry	19	—	—	—	1	1
Croydon, LB of	21	—	—	—	—	0
Cumbria	42	—	—	—	2	2
Darlington	7	—	—	—	1	1
Derby, city of	13	—	—	—	2	2
Derbyshire	47	—	—	—	1	1
Devon	37	—	1	—	1	2
Doncaster	17	—	—	—	—	0
Dorset	20	—	—	—	2	2
Dudley	22	—	—	—	1	1
Durham	36	—	—	—	1	1
Ealing, LB of	13	—	—	—	1	1
East Riding of Yorkshire	18	—	—	—	—	0
East Sussex	27	—	—	—	—	0
Enfield, LB of	17	—	—	—	1	1
Essex	79	—	1	—	8	9
Gateshead	10	—	—	—	1	1
Gloucestershire	42	—	1	—	2	3
Greenwich, LB of	13	—	—	—	1	1
Hackney, LB of	9	—	—	—	—	0
Halton	7	—	—	—	—	0
Hammersmith & Fulham, LB of	8	—	—	—	—	0
Hampshire	71	—	1	—	1	2
Haringey, LB of	10	—	—	—	—	0
Harrow, LB of	10	—	—	—	—	0
Hartlepool	6	—	—	—	—	0
Havering, LB of	18	—	—	—	—	0
Herefordshire	14	—	—	—	—	0
Hertfordshire	77	—	3	—	1	4
Hillingdon, LB of	17	—	—	—	—	0
Hounslow, LB of	14	—	—	—	—	0
Isle of Scilly	1	—	—	—	—	0
Isle of Wight	5	—	—	—	1	1
Islington, LB of	9	—	—	—	—	0
Kensington & Chelsea, RB of	4	—	—	—	—	0
Kent	102	—	1	—	5	6
Kingston upon Hull, city of	15	—	—	—	—	0
Kingston-upon-Thames, RB of	10	—	—	—	—	0
Kirklees	25	—	1	—	2	3
Knowsley	11	—	—	—	—	0
Lambeth, LB of	10	—	—	—	1	1
Lancashire	87	—	2	—	9	11
Leeds	43	—	—	—	1	1
Leicester City	16	—	—	—	—	0
Leicestershire	45	—	—	—	1	1
Lewisham, LB of	12	—	—	—	—	0

Specialist Schools

Number of operational Specialist Schools by LEA by specialism (information given is as of September each year)

Local education authorities	Total secondary schools in LEA	1996
		Arts	Language	Sports	Technology	Total
Lincolnshire	63	—	—	—	4	4
Liverpool	33	—	—	—	2	2
Luton	12	—	1	—	1	2
Manchester	23	—	1	—	1	2
Medway	19	—	—	—	2	2
Merton, LB of	9	—	—	—	—	0
Middlesbrough	11	—	—	—	—	0
Milton Keynes	11	—	—	—	—	0
Newcastle upon Tyne	12	—	1	—	2	3
Newham, LB of	15	—	—	—	2	2
Norfolk	52	—	—	—	3	3
North East Lincolnshire	12	—	—	—	—	0
North Lincolnshire	14	—	—	—	—	0
North Somerset	10	—	—	—	—	0
North Tyneside	11	—	1	—	1	2
North Yorkshire	45	—	—	—	1	1
Northamptonshire	38	—	—	—	3	3
Northumberland	15	—	1	—	2	3
Nottingham, City of	19	—	—	—	2	2
Nottinghamshire	50	—	—	—	1	1
Oldham	15	—	—	—	—	0
Oxfordshire	35	—	—	—	2	2
Peterborough, city of	13	—	—	—	1	1
Plymouth, city of	18	—	—	—	1	1
Poole	8	—	—	—	—	0
Portsmouth	10	—	—	—	—	0
Reading	8	—	—	—	2	2
Redbridge	17	—	—	—	2	2
Redcar & Cleveland	11	—	—	—	1	1
Richmond-u-Thames, LB of	8	—	—	—	—	0
Rochdale	14	—	—	—	1	1
Rotherham	17	—	—	—	1	1
Rutland	3	—	—	—	1	1
Salford	14	—	—	—	—	0
Sandwell	19	—	—	—	1	1
Sefton	22	—	—	—	1	1
Sheffield	27	—	—	—	3	3
Shropshire	22	—	—	—	1	1
Slough	11	—	—	—	1	1
Solihull	13	—	1	—	1	2
Somerset	30	—	—	—	1	1
South Gloucestershire	14	—	1	—	—	1
South Tyneside	11	—	—	—	2	2
Southend-on-Sea	12	—	—	—	—	0
Southampton	14	—	—	—	—	0
Southwark, LB of	13	—	—	—	—	0
St. Helens	12	—	—	—	—	0
Staffordshire	55	—	—	—	—	0
Stockport	14	—	—	—	1	1
Stockton on Tees	13	—	—	—	—	0
Stoke on Trent	17	—	—	—	1	1
Suffolk	38	—	—	—	2	2
Sunderland	17	—	—	—	—	0
Surrey	53	—	1	—	6	7
Sutton, LB of	14	—	—	—	—	0
Swindon	10	—	—	—	—	0
Tameside	18	—	—	—	1	1
Telford and Wrekin	13	—	—	—	2	2
Thurrock	11	—	—	—	—	0
Torbay	8	—	1	—	—	1
Tower Hamlets, LB of	15	—	—	—	1	1
Trafford	18	—	—	—	2	2
Wakefield	18	—	—	—	1	1
Walsall	20	—	1	—	—	1
Waltham Forest, LB of	17	—	—	—	—	0
Wandsworth, LB of	9	—	—	—	1	1
Warrington	12	—	1	—	2	3
Warwickshire	37	—	—	—	1	1
West Berkshire	10	—	1	—	1	2
West Sussex	36	—	1	—	—	1
Westminster, LB of	8	—	—	—	—	0

Specialist Schools

Number of operational Specialist Schools by LEA by specialism (information given is as of September each year)

Local education authorities	Total secondary schools in LEA	1996 Arts	Language	Sports	Technology	Total
Wigan	21	—	1	—	2	3
Wiltshire	29	—	—	—	1	1
Windsor & Maidenhead, RB of	9	—	—	—	—	0
Wirral	23	—	—	—	1	1
Wokingham	9	—	—	—	—	0
Wolverhampton	18	—	—	—	2	2
Worcestershire	29	—	1	—	—	1
York, city of	11	—	—	—	—	0
Total[1]	3,152	—	31	—	146	177
Special Schools		0	0	0	0	0
Total		0	31	0	146	177

[1] Excluding special schools

Specialist Schools

Number of operational Specialist Schools by LEA by specialism (information given is as of September each year)

Local education authorities	1998 Arts	Language	Sports	Technology	Total	2000 Arts	Language	Sports	Technology	Total
Barking & Dagenham, LB of	—	—	1	1	2	—	—	1	1	2
Barnet, LB of	—	1	—	1	2	—	1	1	1	3
Barnsley	—	—	—	—	0	—	—	1	—	1
Bath & North East Somerset	—	—	1	1	2	1	—	1	3	5
Bedfordshire	—	—	—	—	0	1	—	—	—	1
Bexley, LB of	—	—	—	1	1	—	—	—	1	1
Birmingham	—	—	—	5	5	2	1	4	13	20
Blackburn with Darwen	—	—	—	1	1	—	—	—	2	2
Blackpool	—	1	—	—	1	1	1	—	—	2
Bolton	—	—	—	—	0	—	1	1	1	3
Bournemouth	—	—	—	—	0	1	1	—	—	2
Bracknell Forest	—	—	—	—	0	—	—	—	—	0
Bradford	—	—	1	1	2	—	1	2	2	5
Brent, LB of	—	1	—	2	3	—	1	—	2	3
Brighton and Hove	—	—	—	1	1	1	—	—	1	2
Bristol, city of	—	—	—	1	1	1	—	—	1	2
Bromley, LB of	—	1	—	3	4	—	1	—	3	4
Buckinghamshire	—	1	1	2	4	1	1	1	2	5
Bury	—	—	—	—	0	—	—	—	—	0
Calderdale	—	—	—	1	1	—	—	—	—	0
Cambridgeshire	1	—	—	2	3	1	1	—	5	7
Camden, LB of	—	1	—	1	2	1	1	—	2	4
Cheshire	—	1	—	2	3	—	1	—	4	5
Corporation of London	—	—	—	—	0	—	—	—	—	0
Cornwall	—	1	2	6	9	—	1	3	5	9
Coventry	—	1	—	3	4	1	1	—	3	5
Croydon, LB of	—	—	—	1	1	—	—	—	1	1
Cumbria	—	2	—	3	5	—	2	—	4	6
Darlington	—	—	—	1	1	—	1	—	1	2
Derby, city of	—	—	—	1	1	1	—	—	1	2
Derbyshire	—	1	—	3	4	—	1	—	3	4
Devon	—	1	2	2	5	—	1	2	3	6
Doncaster	—	—	—	—	0	—	—	—	—	0
Dorset	—	—	—	2	2	—	2	1	2	5
Dudley	—	—	—	1	1	—	—	—	1	1
Durham	1	2	—	3	6	1	2	1	8	12
Ealing, LB of	—	—	—	1	1	—	—	2	1	3
East Riding of Yorkshire	—	—	—	2	2	—	1	—	3	4
East Sussex	—	—	2	—	2	—	—	3	1	4
Enfield, LB of	—	—	—	—	0	—	—	—	—	0
Essex	—	1	1	8	10	1	3	3	9	16
Gateshead	1	—	—	1	2	1	1	1	1	4
Gloucestershire	—	1	—	5	6	—	2	1	8	11
Greenwich, LB of	2	—	—	2	4	3	—	—	2	5
Hackney, LB of	—	—	—	2	2	—	1	—	3	4
Halton	—	—	—	—	0	—	—	—	1	1
Hammersmith & Fulham, LB of	—	—	—	—	0	1	—	—	—	1
Hampshire	—	1	—	1	2	1	3	—	2	6
Haringey, LB of	—	—	—	1	1	—	—	—	1	1
Harrow, LB of	—	—	—	—	0	—	—	—	—	0
Hartlepool	—	—	—	1	1	1	—	—	1	2
Havering, LB of	—	—	—	1	1	—	—	—	1	1
Herefordshire	—	—	—	1	1	1	—	—	1	2
Hertfordshire	—	4	—	1	5	—	5	—	3	8

Specialist Schools

Number of operational Specialist Schools by LEA by specialism (information given is as of September each year)

Local education authorities	1998 Arts	1998 Language	1998 Sports	1998 Technology	1998 Total	2000 Arts	2000 Language	2000 Sports	2000 Technology	2000 Total
Hillingdon, LB of	1	1	—	—	2	1	1	—	1	3
Hounslow, LB of	—	1	—	1	2	—	1	—	1	2
Isle of Scilly	—	—	—	—	0	—	—	—	—	0
Isle of Wight	—	—	—	1	1	—	1	—	1	2
Islington, LB of	—	—	—	—	0	—	1	—	1	2
Kensington & Chelsea, RB of	—	—	—	—	0	—	—	—	—	0
Kent	—	1	—	6	7	—	3	1	6	10
Kingston upon Hull, city of	—	—	—	—	0	—	—	—	1	1
Kingston-upon-Thames, RB of	—	—	—	—	0	—	—	—	—	0
Kirklees	—	1	1	3	5	—	1	1	4	6
Knowsley	—	—	1	—	1	—	1	1	—	2
Lambeth, LB of	1	—	—	1	2	1	—	—	2	3
Lancashire	—	2	—	11	13	—	2	—	13	15
Leeds	1	—	—	1	2	1	1	2	1	5
Leicester City	—	—	—	—	0	—	1	1	1	3
Leicestershire	—	—	1	5	6	2	—	1	5	8
Lewisham, LB of	—	—	—	—	0	—	—	—	—	0
Lincolnshire	—	—	—	4	4	2	—	—	6	8
Liverpool	—	—	—	5	5	—	1	1	4	6
Luton	—	1	—	1	2	1	—	—	1	2
Manchester	—	1	1	2	4	1	1	2	3	7
Medway	—	—	—	2	2	—	1	—	2	3
Merton, LB of	—	—	—	—	0	—	—	—	—	0
Middlesbrough	—	—	—	—	0	—	—	—	—	0
Milton Keynes	1	1	1	1	4	1	1	1	1	4
Newcastle upon Tyne	—	1	1	2	4	—	1	1	5	7
Newham, LB of	—	—	1	2	3	—	—	1	2	3
Norfolk	—	—	—	4	4	1	1	2	6	10
North East Lincolnshire	—	—	—	—	0	1	—	—	2	3
North Lincolnshire	—	—	—	1	1	1	—	—	1	2
North Somerset	—	—	—	1	1	1	1	—	2	4
North Tyneside	—	1	—	2	3	—	1	—	2	3
North Yorkshire	—	—	—	4	4	1	—	—	5	6
Northamptonshire	1	2	—	5	8	1	4	1	6	12
Northumberland	—	1	—	3	4	—	1	1	5	7
Nottingham, city of	—	—	—	2	2	—	—	—	2	2
Nottinghamshire	—	—	1	2	3	—	—	1	2	3
Oldham	—	—	—	—	0	—	—	1	1	2
Oxfordshire	—	1	—	4	5	1	1	1	4	7
Peterborough, city of	—	—	—	1	1	—	—	—	1	1
Plymouth, city of	—	—	—	1	1	2	1	—	3	6
Poole	—	—	—	—	0	—	—	—	—	0
Portsmouth	—	—	—	—	0	—	—	—	—	0
Reading	—	—	—	1	1	—	—	—	1	1
Redbridge	—	—	—	2	2	—	1	—	2	3
Redcar & Cleveland	—	—	—	1	1	—	—	—	1	1
Richmond-u-Thames, LB of	—	—	—	—	0	—	—	—	—	0
Rochdale	—	1	1	1	3	—	1	1	1	3
Rotherham	—	—	1	1	2	—	—	1	1	2
Rutland	—	—	—	1	1	—	—	—	1	1
Salford	—	—	—	—	0	—	1	—	1	2
Sandwell	—	1	1	1	3	—	1	1	1	3
Sefton	—	1	—	1	2	—	1	1	1	3
Sheffield	—	1	—	3	4	—	1	—	3	4
Shropshire	—	—	—	1	1	—	—	—	1	1
Slough	—	—	—	1	1	—	—	—	1	1
Solihull	—	1	—	1	2	—	1	—	1	2
Somerset	1	—	—	3	4	1	1	—	5	7
South Gloucestershire	—	1	—	1	2	—	1	—	2	3
South Tyneside	—	—	—	2	2	—	—	—	2	2
Southend-on-Sea	—	—	—	—	0	—	—	—	1	1
Southampton	—	—	—	—	0	—	—	—	—	0
Southwark, LB of	—	—	—	—	0	—	—	—	—	0
St. Helens	—	—	—	—	0	—	—	—	2	2
Staffordshire	—	—	—	2	2	—	—	—	2	2
Stockport	—	1	—	1	2	—	1	—	1	2
Stockton on Tees	—	—	—	—	0	1	1	1	1	4
Stoke on Trent	—	—	—	—	0	1	—	—	—	1
Suffolk	—	—	—	5	5	—	1	—	7	8
Sunderland	—	—	1	—	1	—	—	1	2	3
Surrey	—	3	—	6	9	—	3	—	7	10
Sutton, LB of	—	—	—	1	1	—	—	—	1	1
Swindon	—	—	—	—	0	1	—	—	1	2
Tameside	—	—	—	1	1	1	—	—	1	2
Telford and Wrekin	—	—	—	2	2	—	—	—	2	2

Specialist Schools

Number of operational Specialist Schools by LEA by specialism (information given is as of September each year)

Local education authorities	1998					2000
	Arts	Language	Sports	Technology	Total	Arts	Language	Sports	Technology	Total
Thurrock	—	—	—	—	0	—	—	—	—	0
Torbay	—	1	—	—	1	—	1	—	—	1
Tower Hamlets, LB of	1	—	—	1	2	1	1	—	1	3
Trafford	—	—	1	2	3	—	—	1	2	3
Wakefield	—	—	—	2	2	—	1	—	2	3
Walsall	—	1	—	—	1	—	1	—	1	2
Waltham Forest, LB of	—	—	—	1	1	—	—	—	2	2
Wandsworth, LB of	1	1	—	1	3	1	1	2	1	5
Warrington	1	1	—	1	3	1	1	—	1	3
Warwickshire	—	—	—	2	2	1	—	—	4	5
West Berkshire	1	1	1	1	4	1	1	1	2	5
West Sussex	—	2	—	5	7	—	2	1	5	8
Westminster, LB of	1	—	—	—	1	1	—	—	—	1
Wigan	1	1	1	2	5	1	1	1	4	7
Wiltshire	—	—	—	5	5	1	1	2	4	8
Windsor & Maidenhead, RB of	—	—	—	—	0	—	—	—	—	0
Wirral	—	—	—	2	2	—	1	—	2	3
Wokingham	—	—	—	—	0	—	1	—	—	1
Wolverhampton	—	1	—	2	3	1	1	—	3	5
Worcestershire	—	1	—	—	1	—	1	2	2	5
York, city of	—	—	—	2	2	—	2	—	2	4
Total[1]	17	57	26	225	325	56	99	65	308	528
Special Schools	0	0	0	0	0	1	0	2	5	8
Total	17	57	26	225	325	57	99	67	313	536

[1] Excluding special schools

Special Educational Needs

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills, pursuant to his answer of 31 October 2001, Official Report, column 711W, on special educational needs, what written responses she has received since 23 October about the further revision of the draft SEN code document. [12967]

Mr. Timms: The Secretary of State has received a letter dated 29 October from the organisation Spearhead (Special Education at Home).

The Department has also received two letters from hon. Members, both dated 26 October, enclosing correspondence from constituents which appears to refer to the earlier draft of the Code placed before Parliament in June, rather than the latest version.

Fast Food and Drinks

Mrs. Calton: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will make a statement on her policy on the provision of fast food and drinks machines in school corridors. [12999]

Mr. Timms: It is for local education authorities and schools in England to determine whether or not there should be any provision for fast food and drinks machines in school corridors.

Publications (Charges)

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will list the publications provided by her Department and the National Centre for Literacy and Numeracy where charges will be levied on schools for the making of (a) overhead transparencies and (b) enlarged copies; and if she will state the level of income received from schools as a result. [13020]

Mr. Timms: The licensing for the copying of extracts from published texts is the responsibility of the Copyright Licensing Agency. The new licence for schools, which took effect from April 2001, automatically includes permission to make overhead transparencies and enlarged copies. There is no requirement for schools to make any separate payment for this or to report such copying.

Publications produced by the National Centre for Literacy and Numeracy on behalf of the Department may be copied free of charge by schools.

Secondary Schools (Norfolk)

Mrs. Shephard: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which secondary schools in Norfolk had unfilled teacher posts at the latest available date. [13239]

Mr. Timms: This information is not collected centrally.

Mrs. Shephard: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which secondary schools in Norfolk had no spare capacity to admit new pupils at the latest available date. [13240]

Mr. Timms: My Department does not collect detailed information on this. It is for local education authorities to plan and keep under review the supply of school places and to ensure that there are sufficient school places. Each year LEAs must publish a School Organisation Plan which sets out how they plan to deal with any surplus or deficit of school places over a rolling five year period.

Where an LEA can demonstrate overall growth in the need for places it may apply to the Department for capital funding.

Pupils (Assaults)

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will list the cases of (a) state primary and (b) state secondary school teachers who have been (i) suspended and (ii) convicted for assault on pupils since the abolition of corporal punishment. [13397]

Mr. Timms: The Department does not collect this information.

Schools Reorganisation (Merton)

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will make a statement on progress by the schools reorganisation programme in the London borough of Merton towards its completion date of September 2002. [R] [12748]

Mr. Timms: The responsibility for the implementation of statutory proposals for school reorganisation rests with local education authorities. Merton local education authority is implementing the reorganisation of schools in the borough from a three to a two-tier system in stages over the academic years 2001–02 to 2003–04, with the new structure effectively in place from September 2002. Officials of the Department are providing support as necessary to the school reorganisation programme and, as recently as 5 November, had a meeting with Merton officers to discuss progress.

Funding (Music)

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what criteria her Department uses to allocate varying levels of support from the Music Standards Fund to local education authorities. [12779]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 6 November 2001]: Music Standards Fund allocations in the current financial year are largely based on the levels established in 2000–01. This is to honour our formal commitment to ensuring that no LEA would receive less money through the Music Standards Fund in 2001–02 than in 2000–01. We also pledged to ensure that no LEA would be required to increase the level of its own match-funded contribution in 2001–02.

The original MSF formula (from which this year's allocations are drawn) was introduced in the second year of the Music Standards Fund. It is made up of three main parts:

an allocation based on each LEA's section 122 return which was intended to protect music services at pre-Music Standards Fund levels, an allocation based on bids made by individual LEAs in 1999–2000 for expanding their existing music services, an allocation based on our assessment of the need in each authority. 'Need' in this context was assessed in terms of the number of pupils in each authority, weighted to take account of socio-economic indicators for deprivation.

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if the amount allocated to local education authorities for Music Standards Fund grants in 2001–02 will be paid in full. [12786]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 6 November 2001]: In general, the Music Standards Fund grant is match-funded. For some LEAs support is provided at 100 per cent. and no match-funding is required. Where match-funding is required the LEAs need to make a contribution if they are to receive DfES grant.

All LEAs required to do so have agreed to make their contributions and so they, together with those funded at 100 per cent., will receive the full grant.

LEAs may retain any grant that remains unspent at the end of the year.

School Provision (Hackney)

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what discussions her Department has had with the Commission for Racial Equality, with regard to the trust which is to run schools in Hackney. [12785]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 6 November 2001]: None on this matter, but there is of course regular communication between my Department and the Commission for Racial Equality across the range of education policy issues.

Skills Councils

Alistair Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which organisations her Department has identified to be approached as possible trailblazer sector skills councils; and what discussions her Department has held with each organisation. [12619]

John Healey: The Department has not approached any organisations about becoming a trailblazer sector skills council. Officials discussed this and other aspects of the sector skills council policy informally with organisations that contacted the Department. These meetings were without commitment by either party. On 2 November I wrote to national training organisations and trade associations inviting them to consider whether they would be interested and able to meet the rigorous requirements for becoming a trailblazer.

Further Education (Lecturers)

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what plans she has to bring further education lecturers' pay into line with that of teachers; and if she will make a statement. [12964]

John Healey: It is for each college to agree annual pay rises and conditions of employment with its staff in the context of the overall resources available to them. We are, however, aware of the funding gap between schools and FE and have pledged to bring up levels of funding and allow upwards convergence over time.

This year alone, an additional £527 million is available for FE, a 12 per cent. real terms increase on last year. Funding will increase again next year by a further 3 per cent. This compares with the period between 1993–94 and 1996–97 when FE funding per FTE student fell by 12 per cent. in real terms.

As part of the planned increases, we are investing more than £300 million in the Teaching Pay Initiative during the next three years to allow colleges, including sixth form colleges, to reward high quality teaching. This is separate from any general pay rise a teacher may receive.

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what plans she has to discourage the practice of employing lecturers on a part-time basis in further education colleges; and if she will make a statement. [12965]

John Healey: None. The recruitment and terms and conditions of staff in general further education and sixth form colleges are matters for college corporations and management to determine in consultation with the relevant unions.

It is only right that colleges have the flexibility to determine the number of full-time and part-time staff they employ in line with local needs and circumstances.

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what research she has evaluated into the effects of part-time lecturers' employment on support offered to students at further education colleges; and if she will make a statement. [12963]

John Healey: Approximately two thirds of college lecturers work part-time. The Further Education National Training Organisation report "An analysis of the part-time lecturing staff in further education colleges in England and Wales (July 2000)" states that 25 per cent. of part-time staff offer extra-curricular assistance to students. In his last report, for 1999–2000, the Further Education Funding Council's Chief Inspector reported that 66 per cent. of colleges have good or outstanding support for students in place. He went on to say that "this aspect of cross-college provision continues to attract a higher proportion of grades 1 and 2 than any other". From the available evidence, colleges in general continue to provide effective student support while employing staff on both part-time and full-time contracts.

Advanced Skills Teachers

Charlotte Atkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many advanced skills teachers there are in each local education authority; and if she will make a statement. [12840]

Mr. Timms: Advanced Skills Teachers (AST) in post in each local authority in January 2001 and the number of teachers who have passed assessment for the AST grade since assessments resumed in May 2001 are as follows:

Local authority	ASTs in post at January 2001	Teachers passing AST assessment (May-September 2001)
Barking and Dagenham	3	0
Barnet	10	8
Barnsley	0	0
Bath and North East Somerset	3	0
Bedfordshire	2	12
Bexley	0	2
Birmingham	19	2
Blackburn with Darwen	0	0
Blackpool	0	1
Bolton	7	5
Bournemouth	6	1
Bracknell Forest	2	0
Bradford	2	0
Brent	0	0
Brighton and Hove	0	0
Bristol, City of	0	0
Bromley	24	0
Buckinghamshire	3	0
Bury	0	0
Calderdale	2	0
Cambridgeshire	4	2
Camden	0	1
Cheshire	0	0
City of London	0	0
Cornwall	7	2
Coventry	3	0
Croydon	6	2
Cumbria	11	9
Darlington	6	0
Derby	0	0
Derbyshire	7	2
Devon	3	2
Doncaster	2	0
Dorset	2	0
Dudley	0	0
Durham	4	0
Ealing	0	0
East Riding of Yorkshire	0	0
East Sussex	2	10
Enfield	2	0
Essex	49	16
Gateshead	0	0
Gloucestershire	14	17
Greenwich	2	4
Hackney	0	0
Halton	1	1
Hammersmith and Fulham	1	0
Hampshire	0	5
Haringey	0	0
Harrow	0	0
Hartlepool	0	1
Havering	0	0
Herefordshire	6	6
Hertfordshire	11	3
Hillingdon	3	9
Hounslow	0	0
Isle of Wight	1	0
Isles of Scilly	0	0
Islington	0	1
Kensington and Chelsea	0	0
Kent	30	16
Kingston Upon Hull, City of	4	1
Kingston upon Thames	0	0
Kirklees	1	1
Knowsley	0	0
Lambeth	3	4
Lancashire	13	1
Leeds	7	43
Leicester	0	0
Leicestershire	2	1
Lewisham	0	1
Lincolnshire	15	23
Liverpool	0	0
Luton	3	0
Manchester	4	1
Medway	2	0
Merton	0	1
Middlesbrough	2	0
Milton Keynes	1	2
Newcastle upon Tyne	0	1
Newham	13	4
Norfolk	3	3
North East Lincolnshire	1	4
North Lincolnshire	0	4
North Somerset	0	0
North Tyneside	0	0
North Yorkshire	7	6
Northamptonshire	18	3
Northumberland	1	0
Nottingham	0	0
Nottinghamshire	7	5
Oldham	0	0
Oxfordshire	21	1
Peterborough	13	2
Plymouth	7	6
Poole	0	0
Portsmouth	3	0
Reading	1	0
Redbridge	0	2
Redcar and Cleveland	3	1
Richmond upon Thames	3	2

Local authority	ASTs in post at January 2001	Teachers passing AST assessment (May-September 2001)
Rochdale	6	0
Rotherham	0	0
Rutland	0	0
Salford	0	0
Sandwell	0	2
Sefton	5	0
Sheffield	0	0
Shropshire	6	1
Slough	6	5
Solihull	3	0
Somerset	8	8
South Gloucestershire	0	0
South Tyneside	4	0
Southampton	0	0
Southend-on-Sea	6	5
Southwark	0	0
St. Helens	0	0
Staffordshire	0	0
Stockport	0	0
Stockton-on-Tees	4	0
Stoke-on-Trent	0	0
Suffolk	1	1
Sunderland	0	12
Surrey	0	0
Sutton	0	3
Swindon	1	0
Tameside	5	3
Telford and Wrekin	1	0
Thurrock	5	4
Torbay	5	1
Tower Hamlets	1	0
Trafford	0	1
Wakefield	0	0
Walsall	6	0
Waltham Forest	3	0
Wandsworth	7	5
Warrington	7	8
Warwickshire	0	0
West Berkshire	2	1
West Sussex	6	7
Westminster	13	2
Wigan	2	1
Wiltshire	3	0
Windsor and Maidenhead	1	1
Wirral	1	0
Wokingham	5	5
Wolverhampton	3	0
Worcestershire	7	2
York	12	21
Totals	563	362

The number of AST assessments between May and September 2001 is equal to 64 per cent. of the January figure of ASTs in post, reflecting the rapidly growing number of teachers interested in becoming ASTs. The Government are committed to the continuing expansion of the AST grade.

Schools

Ms Munn: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills, if she will make a statement on her plans for further public investment in schools. [11358]

Mr. Timms: This Government are investing unprecedented sums to modernise schools. Since 1997, annual capital and recurrent investment in schools has increased by almost £5.5 billion in real terms, from £20.6 billion to over £26 billion. Our plans allow for a further real terms increase of £2.5 billion over the next two years.

Teacher Training

Mr. Tony Clarke: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which schools in Northamptonshire, have been granted funding for teacher training, indicating in each case their (a) phase and (b) location. [11281]

Mr. Timms: The following schools have been granted funding to act as recommending bodies for trainees on the Graduate and Registered Teacher Programmes (GRTP) in Northamptonshire since September 2000:

School name	Phase	Town
Magdalen School	Secondary	Brackley
Lodge Park Technical College	Secondary	Corby
Brooke Western CTC	Secondary	Corby
St. James Infant School	Primary	Daventry
Trinity School	Secondary	Northampton
Mereway Upper School	Secondary	Northampton
Northampton School for Boys	Secondary	Northampton
Headlands School	Primary	Northampton
Prince William School	Secondary	Oundle
Ferrer School	Secondary	Rushden
Rushden School	Secondary	Rushden
Wrenn School	Secondary	Wellingborough

In addition, the following organisations have received funding to train GRTP trainees in schools in Northamptonshire since September 2000.

Centre for British Teachers (CfBT)

Centre for Information on Language Teaching and Research (CILT)

Northampton LEA

Northamptonshire Teacher Training Partnership SCITT.

There are two initial teacher training school-based consortia in Northamptonshire, based at:

Lead school	Phase	Location
Sponne School	Secondary	Towcester
Northampton School for Boys	Secondary	Northampton

University College Northampton also offers primary ITT in partnership with local primary schools. School involvement in teacher training changes from year to year and there is no central list of the schools involved.

As to in-service training, the flexibility within the Standards Funds arrangements should enable schools to meet the key priorities for professional development; it is for schools to decide how much money they spend from the Standards Funds on this area.

Further Education

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many individual courses have been (a) commenced and (b) completed in further education each year since 1997–98. [12566]

John Healey: The information requested is contained in the table:

Total number of qualifications: starts and completions for council-funded provision in FE sector colleges

	Number
1997–98
Starts in the academic year	4,716,573
Completions in the academic year	3,932,800
1998–99
Starts in the academic year	4,497,223
Completions in the academic year	3,599,593
1999–2000
Starts in the academic year	4,463,154
Completions in the academic year	3,581,458

Notes:
1. The data are taken from the Individualised Student Record (ISR)
2. Starts and completions figures are based on a different student cohort—i.e. enrolments that start in a particular year do not necessarily end in the same year

The Learning and Skills Council recently published data on retention rates which are based on qualifications over the whole length of the course, which includes those courses that are longer than one year. Using this definition, the retention rates are as follows:

1997–98: 85 per cent.;

1998–99: 84 per cent.; and

1999–2000: 84 per cent.

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what the cost was of the Further Education Funding Council (a) for all purposes and (b) for administration in the last year of its operation; [12929]

(2) what grants were made to training and enterprise councils (a) for all purposes, (b) for further education and (c) for administration in the last year of their operation; [12928]

(3) what the budget is of the Learning and Skills Councils (a) at national level and (b) at local level for (i) all purposes and (ii) administration (A) in the current year and (B) in the coming year. [12930]

John Healey [holding answer 6 November 2001]: The Learning and Skills Council (LSC) has taken on a range of functions previously carried out by a number of bodies, including the Further Education Funding Council (FEFC), 72 Training and Enterprise Councils (TECs), the Department for Education and Employment (DfEE), Government Offices, and the National Advisory Council on Education and Training Targets (NACETT), as well as new work. For the latest year for which we have robust estimates available (1999–2000), our assessment is that the total spent on administration by the predecessor bodies, in relation to the relevant functions, was between £270 and £280 million.

The LSC's resource budget nationally for the financial year 2001–2002 is £5.5 billion. Of this, local LSCs have so far been allocated £4.955 billion. The LSC anticipates that the majority of the currently unallocated total funds will be directed to local LSCs during the remainder of the financial year. The LSC has been allocated £188 million for administration, of which £144 million has been allocated to local LSCs.

These amounts increase in 2002–2003 to £7.4 billion in total (which includes programme funding of £1.35 billion funding for sixth forms) and £193 million for administration. It is not possible to disaggregate these figures to local level because the LSC has not yet allocated next year's budget to local LSCs.

We do not yet have final expenditure details for further education in 2000–01. Planned total funding for the FEFC for all purposes in 2000–01 was £3,530 million, excluding student support funds and employer contributions, of which £27 million was for administration.

In 2000–2001, the last year of TECs' contracts with Government, the DfES paid them a total of £1,270 million for all purposes in cash terms. There were no specific grants to them for further education. No specific amount was set aside for administration within this figure—it was up to individual TECs to allocate their overall budget according to need. However, we know from the most recent consolidated TEC accounts, that TECs spent over £260 million in total on staffing in 1999–2000.

Written Answers to Questions

Friday 9 November 2001

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Bribery and Corruption

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if she will make a statement on the incorporation into UK legislation of the OECD convention on bribery and corruption. [12909]

Mr. Blunkett: I have been asked to reply.

The United Kingdom ratified the Organisation for Economic Development (OECD) convention in December 1998 and a review of its legislation was published by the OECD in 2000. The Government's White Paper "Raising Standards and Upholding Integrity: the Prevention of Corruption", issued in June 2000 (Cm 4759), took account of that review and made two major proposals which reflect OECD recommendations:

to put beyond doubt that the law of bribery applies to acts involving foreign public officials, Ministers, MPs and judges; and to take jurisdiction over crimes of bribery committed by United Kingdom nationals and United Kingdom companies overseas.

International corruption contributes to the conditions which breed terrorism. I am, therefore, with the support of my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer and my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for International Development, including these measures in the Anti-terrorism, Crime and Security Bill, which will be introduced shortly.

Computer Crime

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many cases of computer (a) hacking, (b) fraud and (c) theft her Department recorded in (i) 2000 and (ii) 2001; and on how many occasions in those years computer systems have been illegally accessed by computer hackers (A) within and (B) outside her Department. [13135]

Clare Short: There were no reported cases of either computer hacking or computer fraud in DFID during 2000 to 2001.

In 2000, four cases of laptop computers being stolen from DFID premises or personnel were reported, and in 2001 five laptop computers were reported stolen. The total value of the loss amounts to about £9,900.

DFID is not aware of any occasions during the last two years of computer systems being accessed illegally by hackers from either inside or outside of the organisation.

Departmental Expenditure

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the total expenditure was on (a) advertising, (b) polling, (c) focus groups, (d) design consultants, (e) caterers, (f) production of departmental publications and (g) photographs/photographers by her Department for each year since 1995 in (i) cash and (ii) real terms; what was (A) the annual percentage increase in spending on each category and (B) spending on each category as a percentage of the total departmental running costs; and if she will make a statement. [6930]

Clare Short: Expenditure in relation to publications, opinion polling and photography in the years in question is as follows:

£000

	Publications[1]	Opinion polling	Photography
1995–96	352	—	4
1996–97	318	—	4
1997–98	166	43	21
1998–99	347	—	23
1999–2000	570	45	10
2000–01	639	58	5

[1] Including design costs

We do not hold a separate advertising budget. However the bulk of our advertising is in relation to recruitment, on which we spend around £1 million to £1.2 million per year.

It would involve disproportionate effort to calculate the total cost of catering services in the years in question since these are not charged to a single budget.The majority of the expenditure set out in the table is charged to programme budgets, and so it is not possible to make a meaningful calculation of its share of our running cost budget.

TRIPS

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if she will make a statement on her policy on trade-related aspects of intellectual property rights. [12903]

Miss Melanie Johnson: I have been asked to reply.

I refer the hon. Member to the statement my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry made on 7 November 2001, Official Report, columns 256–68, covering the UK's position on the fourth ministerial meeting of the World Trade Organisation in Doha, which covered our policy on trade-related aspectsof intellectual property.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of (a) military and (b) civilian casualties as a result of coalition forces bombing in Afghanistan. [11436]

Mr. Hoon [holding answer 30 October 2001]: It is impossible to know for certain how many casualties, either military or civilian, there have been as a result of coalition action in Afghanistan. The Taliban's claims of casualties cannot be taken at face value.

Military action inevitably carries risks, but as I have made clear in the House, our targeting and weapons selection processes are rigorous. Every effort is made to avoid civilian casualties.

HMS Ocean

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence for what reason HMS Ocean has been recalled to the UK; if it is being sent to Devonport for repair; what the (a) nature and (b) cost is of the repair; and to what extent the repair is (i) planned maintenance and (ii) a consequence of failure while on its last operation. [13127]

Mr. Ingram: HMS Ocean is returning to the UK as part of the drawdown of forces following completion of Exercise Saif Sareea 2.

Due to current operational circumstances, the docking period planned for January next year has been deferred. HMS Ocean will, instead, return to Devonport for a shorter assisted maintenance period (AMP), during which some maintenance and defect rectification work will be carried out. The only repair work arising from failure during her last operation will be to some aviation fuel pumps. At this time it is estimated that the AMP will cost in the region of £0.8 million to £1 million.

Army Radios

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what the failure rate was of Clansman radios on Challenger II main battle tanks during exercise Saif Sareea 2 in Oman; [13118]

(2) what the failure rate was of army radios during Exercise Saif Sareea 2 in Oman; and if he will make a statement. [13119]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 7 November 2001]: The limitations of the Clansman radio are well known, hence the current action on procuring a replacement. Information on failure rates of individual radios employed during Exercise Saif Sareea 2 is not available. But indications are that Clansman performed somewhat better than we might have expected during Saif Sareea 2, despite the harsh environmental conditions experienced during the exercise.

Sea Harrier Ferry

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when the Sea Harrier ferry will leave Yeovilton; what discussions he has had with the RAF Association about the move; what the overall cost of the move will be; and how many Sea Harrier pilots resigned their commissions in (a) 2001, (b), 2000, (c) 1999, (d) 1998, (e), 1997 and (f) 1996. [13422]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 8 November 2001]: Following the strategic defence review, the Sea Harrier force is scheduled to relocate to RAF Cottesmore and RAF Wittering in the second half of 2003. The Ministry of Defence has had no discussions with the RAF Association about the move. The cost of the move is estimated to be approximately £21.5 million. The number of Sea Harrier pilots who have taken premature voluntary retirement (PVR) are set out in the table:

Year	Premature Voluntary Retirement (PVR)
1996	5
1997	2
1998	2
1999	6
2000	4
2001	4

NBC Defence

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many and what types of vehicles are used by the armed forces in connection with NBC defence; and of these, how many are operational. [13283]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 8 November 2001]: There are three types of vehicles currently in use by the armed forces that have a specific NBC defence role. The current vehicle holdings are as follows:

Vehicle type	Vehicles held
FUCHS NBC survey vehicle	11
Prototype biological detection system (PBDS)	9
Multi-purpose decontamination system (MPDS)	17

There are other, mainly armoured, vehicles that have a defensive NBC capability. Soldiers can operate within these vehicles in a "collective protection" environment thus avoiding exposure to external biological or chemical threats for a set period of time.

I am withholding the information relating to operational availability under exemption 1 of the code of practice on access to government information.

Drug Testing

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to his answer of 31 October 2001, Official Report, column 662W, on drug testing, if he will make a statement about the actions that follow when a service man or woman tests positive to a compulsory drugs test. [13123]

Mr. Ingram: Each compulsory drug test case is treated on its own merits and the individual concerned may make a representation about the circumstances surrounding the positive result. If it is concluded that the individual misused drugs knowingly, he or she would normally be discharged unless there were exceptional grounds for retention.

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what percentage of compulsory drugs tests in the armed forces were positive in 2000. [13124]

Mr. Ingram: The percentage of compulsory drugs tests in the armed forces that were positive in 2000 were:

Service	Percentage
Royal Navy	0.36
Army	0.52
Royal Air Force	0.12

Ballistic Missiles

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to his answer on ballistic missiles on 6 November 2001, Official Report, column 129W, if he will place a copy of his draft international code of conduct on ballistic missiles in the Library. [13698]

Mr. Hoon: Yes.

Military Maritime Graves

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what conclusions have been drawn on the consultation process into the protection of wrecked military vessels, with special reference to military maritime graves. [14305]

Dr. Moonie: The consultation process on the protection of military vessels, in particular, military maritime graves, ended in August. Following that consultation process it was decided that a small number of wrecks within UK jurisdiction, which are representative of all those lost, will be designated as controlled sites. This means that any activity within a controlled area will require a licence. All other military vessels which meet the criteria as set out in the consultation document, including those in international waters, will be designated as protected places. Those who contributed to the consultation process have been informed of this. A copy of the report will be placed in the Library of the House.

September 11 (Financial Consequences)

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will itemise the additional direct current financial year costs arising from decisions in response to the events of 11 September; and if they will be met from the existing defence budget. [13472]

Mr. Hoon: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 23 October 2001, Official Report, column 114W, to the hon. Member for Lewes (Mr. Baker).

Apache Helicopter

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what formations will be responsible for securing the logistical echelon for the Apache helicopter; and if he will make a statement regarding US studies of this matter in Kosovo. [9677]

Mr. Ingram: The Apache helicopter will be deployed as part of 16 Air Assault Brigade, the UK Army's Air Manoeuvre Formation. Responsibility for protecting units in support of Apache operations will fall to the operational commander. The composition of 16 Air Assault Brigade includes Infantry and Air Defence units, both of which may be used for this purpose.

We always maintain close liaison between US and UK forces. Lessons learned from operations are studied and refinements, where necessary, are made to the way our armed forces operate. Specific lessons learned from US Apache operations in Kosovo are being considered and, where appropriate, used to refine the British Army's doctrine and operating procedures for the training and deployment of Air Manoeuvre units.

Service Personnel (Sex Discrimination)

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if the Sex Discrimination Act 1975 is applicable to service personnel serving on sovereign bases overseas. [12733]

Mr. Ingram: The Sex Discrimination Act 1975 makes it unlawful for an employer to discriminate on sex grounds against an employee in relation to employment at an establishment in Great Britain. In this context sovereign bases do not form part of the territory of Great Britain.

Sections 6 and 10 of the Sex Discrimination Act provide that employment will be regarded as being at an establishment in Great Britain unless the employee does his work wholly outside Great Britain.

Balkans

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what security is offered to UK forces in the Balkans to protect them from possible asymmetric assault. [13280]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 8 November 2001]: Appropriate measures are in place to protect all deployed UK forces. These measures are kept under constant review in order to respond to emerging situations on the ground, but are not made public for reasons of operational security.

Air Traffic Control (West Freugh)

Mr. Peter Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) military and (b) civil air traffic control movements have been handled by the air traffic control centre at MOD West Freugh, Wigtownshire, in each of the last five years. [13686]

Mr. Ingram: The total air traffic control movements are set out in the table:

	Total movements
1997	11,640
1998	11,844
1999	8,388
2000	5,976
2001[1]	3,540

[1] To date

The split between military and civil movements over the last five years is not available as the information is not held in the form requested. It should be noted, however, that civilian flights make up only a small portion of the overall number of movements at the airfield each year.

No-fly Zones

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what measures he has taken to provide for the enforcement of no-fly zones around nuclear power stations. [13834]

Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what measures are being taken to enforce no-fly zones around nuclear installations. [13476]

Mr. Ingram: Security of nuclear installations is a matter for the Department of Trade and Industry. The Royal Air Force has an established and well-practised air defence capability which is ready to detect, deter or destroy aircraft intending to attack any target within the UK, including nuclear installations. Adjustments have been made to our air defence posture since 11 September, but, for obvious reasons, I do not propose to go into detail on the nature of these changes.

Charm 3

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what stocks of the armour piercing Charm 3 round are held. [13763]

Mr. Ingram: Charm 3 is the armour piercing round fired by the Challenger 2 Main Battle Tank. Information relating to the stock levels of operational ammunition are withheld under exemption 1 of the code of practice on access to Government information.

Exercise Saif Sareea 2

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) if local overseas allowances were made available to all personnel in Exercise Saif Sareea 2; [13837]

(2) if concessions were offered in lieu of local allowances overseas in Exercise Saif Sareea 2; and what these concessions were; [13838]

(3) how many of the personnel in Exercise Saif Sareea 2 who were entitled to local overseas allowances or concessions in lieu received them; how many did not and to what units they belonged. [13839]

Mr. Ingram: Personnel deploying on Exercise Saif Sareea 2 were not entitled to Local Overseas Allowances (LOA) or to concessions in lieu of them. Although neither a concession nor a substitute for LOA, a comprehensive Operational Welfare package was made available to deployed personnel. This was in accordance with my predecessor's announcement on 19 March 2001, Official Report, column 12, which covered the welfare arrangements for exercises lasting for two months or more. The package included shower and laundry facilities, 20 minutes of free telephone calls a week, access to free electronic aerograms and free e-mail, television, videos, DVDs, newspapers, books, sports equipment and a Combined Service Entertainment show.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Cold Weather Payments

Mr. Salmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans the Government have to review the eligibility criteria for pensioners' cold weather payments. [13840]

Malcolm Wicks: Cold weather payments provide extra help towards heating costs for the poorest and most vulnerable members of our society in periods of exceptionally cold weather. Pensioners on low incomes are not the only people to benefit from the payments. They are also paid to people receiving income support or income-based jobseeker's allowance who have children under the age of five or who have a premium for disability or long-term sickness. We have no plans to change the eligibility conditions.

Christmas Bonus

Mr. Salmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans the Government have to increase the pensioners' Christmas bonus. [13842]

Mr. McCartney: We have no plans to increase the level of the Christmas bonus.

Winter Fuel Payments

Mr. Salmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans the Government have to review the eligibility criteria for pensioners' winter fuel payments. [13841]

Mr. McCartney: There are no plans to change the existing regulations.

Disability Living Allowance

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what response he has sent to the RNID report "Can't Hear, Can't Benefit" in relation to take-up of disability living allowance by people who are deaf or have hearing difficulties. [11313]

Maria Eagle [holding answer 31 October 2001]: We have noted the issues and concerns raised by the RNID in this report. On 19 October, the president of the Appeals Service and a number of senior officials from the Department for Work and Pensions attended by invitation the RNID's "Breaking The Sound Barrier" Conference. They took part in a session on the "Can't Hear, Can't Benefit" report, and discussed many aspects of it with delegates, including the question of DLA take-up.

Benefits

Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what his latest estimate is of expenditure during the financial year 2001–02 on working families tax credit; and what expenditure was on (a) family income supplement and (b) family credit during their final years of operation at (i) current prices and (ii) 2001 prices; [11674]

(2) how many households are in receipt of working families tax credit; what the take-up rate is; and what the take-up rate was of (a) family income supplement and (b) family credit, in their (i) first and (ii) final years of operation. [11673]

Dawn Primarolo: I have been asked to reply.

The number of families in receipt of working families tax credit (WFTC) is published in the WFTC Quarterly Enquiries, copies of which are in the Library.

Estimating the take-up rate for working families tax credit requires, among other things, detailed household survey data for 2000–01. These are not yet available for analysis.

Estimates of take up rates for income-related benefits for Great Britain are published in the annual statistical series "Income Related Benefits Estimates of Take-Up", which is available in the House of Commons Library. Family income supplement (FIS) was introduced in 1971. Estimates of its take-up rate for 1986 and 1987 are available in the 1987 publication, combined with selected earlier combined years back to 1974–75. FIS was replaced by family credit in 1988. Estimates of its take-up rate in 1988 and 1989 were published in the 1989 edition. Estimates for the final year of family credit were published in the 1998–99 edition.

Table C14 of the Financial Statement and Budget Report contains projections of expenditure on the working families tax credit (WFTC) and disabled person's tax credit made at the time of the Budget, including for 2001–02. Approximately 94 per cent. relates to expenditure on WFTC in Great Britain.

I understand from the Department for Work and Pensions that expenditure on family income supplement in 1987–88 and expenditure on family credit in 1998–99, both in Great Britain, can be found on their website, www.dss.gov.uk/asd/asd4/Expenditure.htm, tables 8 and 9. There are various ways of converting these amounts to constant prices, including adjusting for movements in the gross domestic product deflator, which is published by the Office for National Statistics.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Higher Education Lecturers

Alistair Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the average starting pay for higher education lecturers was in each year of the last 10 years. [10913]

Margaret Hodge: The information is not held centrally. Available figures from the Universities and Colleges Association for the minimum pay of lecturers, senior lecturers and principal lecturers in the pre-1992 universities and in the post-1992 universities and colleges are shown in the following table. However, starting salaries do not necessarily equate with minimum pay, and not all appointments are made to the Lecturer and Lecturer A scales.

Minimum pay for lecturers, senior lecturers and principal lecturers in pre and post-1992 universities and colleges

£ per annum

	Pre-1992			Post-1992
	Lecturer A	Lecturer B	Senior Lecturer	Lecturer	Senior Lecturer	Principal Lecturer
1992	13,400	19,352	25,969	10,902	19,755	23,841
1993	13,601	19,642	26,359	11,067	20,052	24,189
1994	14,756	20,133	27,018	12,756	20,553	24,804
1995	15,154	20,677	27,747	13,100	20,381	25,474
1996	15,593	22,143	29,464	13,480	21,720	26,213
1997	16,045	21,894	30,318	13,871	22,350	26,973
1998	16,045	22,332	30,924	14,148	22,797	27,512
1999	18,185	23,521	31,563	14,398	23,199	27,998
2000	19,482	24,227	32,510	18,769	23,880	29,847
2001	20,066	24,954	33,485	19,191	24,417	30,519
2002	20,470	25,455	34,158	19,575	24,906	—

Teacher Recruitment and Retention

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what recent assessment she has made of the impact of the local cost of living on teacher recruitment and retention. [11125]

Mr. Timms: These factors are under constant review as part of our on-going interest in teacher recruitment and retention. They are also kept under review by the School Teacher's Review Body, which makes recommendations to the Government on school teachers' pay and conditions. London area allowances increased by 30 per cent. in April this year, and schools have wide discretion to pay recruitment and retention allowances.

We are aware of the effect that high accommodation costs, especially in the south-east of England, has on the recruitment and retention of teachers. To help develop a solution, last year, my right hon. Friend the Deputy Prime Minister, in what was then the Department of the Environment, Transport and the Regions, set out policies on home ownership, including proposals for a new initiative to help certain key public sector workers, including teachers, into low cost home ownership. The Government recently announced details of the starter home initiative, funded by £250 million over the years 2001–02 to 2003–04. This scheme will benefit over 10,000 key public sector workers, including 3,500 teachers, helping them to buy homes in urban and rural areas where high prices would otherwise prevent them from living in or near to the communities they serve. Registered landlords, local authorities and other interested parties were invited to bid for a share of this funding.

Teachers (Early Leavers)

Mrs. Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many qualified teachers left the profession, having completed between three and seven years of service in (a) 1999–2000 and (b) 2000–01. [12687]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 8 November 2001]: About 6,200 qualified full and part-time regular teachers (headcount), who had completed at least three but less than seven years service, left the maintained schools sector in England in 1999–2000, the most recent year for which data are available. The figures exclude 10 per cent. to 20 per cent. of part-time teachers not included on the Teacher Pension Scheme records. Some teachers who left service will return after a career break.

Parental Choice (Siblings)

Mr. Edwards: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what guidance is given to education authorities on the rights (a) parents and (b) step-parents have to send their children to the same school as older siblings. [13653]

Mr. Timms: None. Local education authorities are responsible for setting and publishing the admission arrangements for community and voluntary controlled schools, following local consultation each year. These arrangements must include the criteria for allocating places if a school is oversubscribed. There is no requirement for local authorities to use sibling links as an admission criterion, although many choose to do so, deciding their own definition of 'sibling'.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Social Exclusion Unit

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what work the social exclusion unit has carried out in relation to child homelessness. [13756]

Mrs. Roche: The Prime Minister has asked the social exclusion unit to make recommendations to reduce the number of young people running away and ensure that runaways' short and long term needs are met. Approximately 129,000 young people run away each year and one quarter sleep rough. Running away is also a strong predictor of later homelessness. The project will report its recommendations to the Ministerial Committee on Children and Young People at the end of the year.

The social exclusion unit report on rough sleeping published in 1998 found that there were very few rough sleepers aged under 18. None the less, it identified a range of measures specifically aimed at young people. Many of these have now been taken forward by the rough sleepers unit, set up in April 1999 as a result of the SEU report. Examples of this have been work on the Children (Leaving Care) Act 2000 and the setting up, in partnership with the Department of Health and funded by the National Children's Bureau, of a 'Care Leaving Support Service'.

In addition, part of the SEU report on the national strategy for neighbourhood renewal—the Policy Action Team 12 on Young People—looked at how Government could improve co-ordination of policies affecting children and young people and improve services, developing them to help prevent social exclusion. This led to the establishment of the children and young peoples unit in July 2000, based in the Department for Education and Skills. This unit supports cross-Government work on child poverty and youth disadvantage, looking across the full 0 to 19 age range, and is also responsible for implementing and managing the children's fund.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Code of Practice (Retailing)

Mr. Breed: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) what meetings her Department's officials and Ministers have had since March about drawing up the code of practice for retailers' behaviour in relation to their suppliers; what the dates of meetings with external organisations and companies were; and who attended the meetings; [12098]

(2) when the latest version of the draft code of practice for retailers' behaviour in relation to their suppliers will be circulated for consultation; to which organisations and companies it will be sent for comment; and if she will place a copy in the Library. [12097]

Miss Melanie Johnson [holding answer 6 November 2001]: The Director General of Fair Trading consulted with the major supermarkets and over 100 representatives of suppliers on the drafting of the code of practice on supermarkets' relations with their suppliers earlier this year.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry announced on 31 October that she had accepted the Director General's advice on the code and had asked him to seek to obtain undertakings from the four leading supermarket chains to comply with the code. Copies of her announcement and the code have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Ministers and officials at the Department of Trade and Industry have had no meetings since March with interested parties about drawing up the code of practice on supermarkets' relations with their suppliers.

The Director General of Fair Trading was given responsibility for drawing up the code.

Stop Now Orders

Ross Cranston: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) what guidance and training has been given to trading standards officers to enable them to implement Stop Now Orders; and if she will make a statement; [12989]

(2) how many Stop Now Orders have been issued since June; and if she will make a statement; [12987]

(3) what extra resources have been given to local authorities to enable trading standards departments to implement Stop Now Orders; and if she will make a statement. [12988]

Miss Melanie Johnson: Stop Now Orders require traders to cease conduct which is contrary to a wide range of consumer protection legislation and harms the collective interests of consumers. The Orders were introduced in June of this year.

Two local authorities have secured written undertakings under the regulations, and other cases are under consideration.

DTI has agreed with the Department for Transport, Local Government and the Regions, the Scottish Executive and the National Assembly for Wales a transfer of resources to cover the additional costs associated with the enforcement of the Stop Now Order Regulations.

DTI has also funded a series of seminars to train trading standards officers in the legal and administrative requirements of the regulations. Six events were held across the country during September and October.

Legal Profession

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what arrangements have been made to consult on the OFT report on the legal profession; how many representations have been received (a) in support and (b) against the OFT recommendations; and if she will make a statement. [12621]

Miss Melanie Johnson: No final arrangements have yet been made to consult on the OFT report. The Government remain committed to ensure that the professions are properly subject to competition.

Patents (Genetically Engineered Animals)

Mr. Etherington: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what UK patents relating to genetically engineered animals and processes for creating such animals have been (a) applied for and published since 9 July 1999 and (b) granted since 28 July 2000. [12568]

Miss Melanie Johnson: Since 9 July 2000, 17 UK patents relating to genetically engineered animals and processes for creating them have been applied for and published. These were GB 2358865 A, GB 2358400 A, GB 2357768 A, GB 2355718 A, GB 2355459 A, GB 2353282 A, GB 2351496 A, GB 2351494 A, GB 2351152 A, GB 2350613 A, GB 2349885 A, GB 2349150 A, GB 2348701 A, GB 2344344 A, GB 2344107 A, GB 2340493 A and GB 2337519 A.

Since 28 July 2000 there have been 10 UK patents granted relating to genetically engineered animals and processes for creating them. These were GB 2351496 B, GB 2351494 B, GB 2351152 B, GB 2349150 B, GB 2348701 B, GB 2344344 B, GB 2344107 B, GB 2335193 B, GB 2331752 B and GB 2331301 B.

This information does not include applications filed at the European Patent Office which may have the effect of UK patents if granted by that office.

Fireworks

John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what action her Department is taking to ensure that fireworks are not sold to those under the age of 18 years. [12374]

Miss Melanie Johnson [holding answer 5 November 2001]: The Fireworks (Safety) Regulations 1997 prohibit the supply of most fireworks to persons under the age of 18 years. The exceptions to this prohibition are low hazard fireworks, that is caps, cracker snaps, novelty matches and party poppers, which, under the Explosives Act 1875 can be sold to persons over the age of 16 years. We provide information to consumers and retailers reminding them of these restrictions. We also work closely with local authority trading standards departments whose responsibility enforcement is.

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what plans the Government have to review the law on the sale of fireworks; and if she will make a statement. [13184]

Miss Melanie Johnson [holding answer 8 November 2001]: The Fireworks (Safety) Regulations 1997 introduced new controls on the types and sizes of fireworks which can be sold to the public. The situation regarding firework safety continues to be carefully monitored.

South West Regional Development Agency

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how much public money the South West Regional Development Agency has received in each of the last three years. [12298]

Alan Johnson: The South West Regional Development Agency received grant in aid of 344,514,000 in 1999–2000, £62,951,000 in 2000–01 and has a grant in aid allocation of £84,663,000 in 2001–02.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Correspondence

Mr. McLoughlin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when she will reply to the letters of the hon. Member for West Derbyshire dated 18 July and 20 September, concerning the Home Energy Efficiency Scheme. [7971]

Mr. Morley: My right hon. Friend the Minister of State for the Environment replied to the hon. Member's letter on 18 October 2001.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what proportion of correspondence received by her Department from hon. Members did not receive a substantive response within (a) one month, (b) two months, (c) three months, (d) four months, (e) five months and (f) six months in each year since 1997; and if she will make a statement. [9953]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 25 October 2001]: The specific information sought by the hon. Member in relation to DEFRA could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

However, since the creation of DEFRA in June 2001 to the end of October the average length of time taken for the Department to provide replies to letters from hon. Members was 29 working days. Although this is longer than the departmental target of 15 working days we are working hard to ensure that this record is improved and the target met. The Department has suffered severe disruption due to allocating top priority to defeating the foot and mouth epidemic. I accept this is not an excuse for not giving hon. Members good service, and now that normality is returning to the Department one of our urgent priorities is to rectify any weakness in our service delivery.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when she will reply to the letter of 6 August from the hon. Member for North Shropshire concerning the extension to the burning of cattle at Sleap, Shropshire. [12630]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 6 November 2001]: I replied to the letter from the hon. Member for North Shropshire on 7 November 2001.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) when she will reply to the letter of 26 June from the hon. Member for North Shropshire concerning his constituent Mr. Michael Hendry; [12634]

(2) when she will reply to the letter of 12 August from the hon. Member for North Shropshire regarding the access inquiries into foot and mouth will have to confidential documents; [12635]

(3) when she will reply to the letter of 6 August from the hon. Member for North Shropshire concerning his constituent, Piers Bratton. [12631]

Mr. Morley [holding answers 6 November 2001]: I replied to the letters from the hon. Member on 7 November 2001.

Mrs. Shephard: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when she will reply to the letter of 5 September from the right hon. Member for South-West Norfolk (Mrs. Shephard), on the creation of a large disposal site in Norfolk. [13238]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 8 November 2001]: I replied to the right hon. Member on 7 November 2001.

Foot and Mouth

Mr. Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what measures she has taken to identify the source of foot and mouth imported into the United Kingdom. [9429]

Mr. Morley: A great deal of epidemiological research has been conducted into the origins of this outbreak. The current epidemic has been caused by a specific strain of the foot and mouth virus (PanAsian Strain O) which has occurred in a number of countries around the world. The precise means of introduction of the virus is unknown and subject to continuing investigations, but is most likely to have been introduced in illegally imported meat or meat products. It would not be appropriate to comment further on the specific question of the source or sources of the outbreak until all investigations are complete.

Hywel Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on what basis she formulated her policy on implementing a public and independent inquiry into the foot and mouth outbreak. [9268]

Mr. Morley: The Government have already announced the independent "Lessons Learned" inquiry chaired by Dr. Iain Anderson and the Royal Society Study chaired by Sir Brian Follett, along with the Policy Commission on the Future of Farming and Food chaired by Sir Don Curry.

We are satisfied that these two inquiries and the Policy Commission will provide rigorous investigation of the issues in the foot and mouth outbreak and will allow us to identify the best wary forward, quickly and efficiently and that this approach is in the best interests of the public.

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent assessment she has made of the contribution that livestock markets made to the spread of FMD infection. [12295]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 2 November 2001]: Prior to 23 February 2001, infected sheep are known to have been traded through a number of markets in England and Wales resulting in the initial dissemination of disease to farms, dealers and slaughterhouses. Epidemiological investigations indicate that potentially infected sheep passed through six auction markets between 13 and 23 February. Investigations into the role of other markets have not been conclusive but are continuing.

Chemicals Charter

Dr. Tonge: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what progress he has made on adopting the regulations based on the Copenhagen charter on safer chemicals. [8316]

Mr. Meacher [holding answer 23 October 2001]: The Copenhagen charter is a set of principles that a group of European environment and consumer organisations believe should form part of a new European Union chemicals policy. The UK is working to ensure that the regulations which implement the EU Strategy achieve the improvements in protection of people and the environment that the Copenhagen charter seeks.

While the Government support the aims of the charter, we do have reservations about the practicality of some of its proposals. For example, we believe that a system which involved approving all uses of all chemicals should not delay action on the chemicals of most concern. The charter also does not take into account other issues that are important to the UK, such as the need to minimise the extra animal testing that will result from the EU Strategy.

The UK and other EU member states agreed a set of conclusions at the Environment Council in June which incorporated many of the elements of the Copenhagen charter. A copy of the Environment Council conclusions is available in the Library of the House.

River Management

Mr. Grogan: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment she has made of arrangements made by British Waterways to manage flood control on its rivers; and if she will make a statement. [11554]

Mr. Meacher: Where appropriate the Environment Agency has agreements in place with British Waterways on the operation of the latter's navigation infrastructure for flood control purposes. I understand that these arrangements have operated satisfactorily.

Mr. Grogan: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will publish data on volatility and volumetric flows on rivers managed by (a) British Waterways and (b) the Environment Agency. [11556]

Mr. Meacher: This information is not collected by this Department but comprehensive information on river flows is published by the centre for Ecology and Hydrology (formerly the Institute of Hydrology and British Geological Survey) in their publication "Hydrological Data UK: Hydrometric Register and Statistics 1991–95". Information covering the period 1996–2000 will be published next year.

Farm Plastics Waste

Mr. Russell Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what proposals she has to introduce a compulsory system for dealing with the issue of waste non-packaging farm plastics. [11780]

Mr. Meacher: We will be addressing the question of how to deal with waste non-packaging farm plastics in the forthcoming consultation document on agricultural waste. We will consider whether a statutory scheme should be introduced in the light of responses to this consultation exercise.

Hunting

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment

she has made of damage to livestock by fox predation during the suspension of hunting with dogs due to foot and mouth disease; what account has been taken of this in the determination of the time scale for the publication of the Veterinary Risk Assessment report on hunting; and if she will make a statement. [12024]

Alun Michael: The Department has received no evidence of such consequences from the suspension of hunting. Consideration of the time scale for resumption of hunting is based entirely on the veterinary risk assessment and how best to help the countryside return to normal while doing all we can to eradicate foot and mouth disease.

Organic Farming

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what financial help she gives to farmers who wish to switch to organic production. [12078]

Mr. Morley: Aid is available under the Organic Farming Scheme (OFS), which is part of the England Rural Development Programme (ERDP), to help farmers convert to organic farming. £140 million has been committed to funding the OFS over the life of the ERDP.

Aid under the OFS is paid over five years according to the category of land being converted. The rates of aid are as follows:

£ per hectare

	Land eligible for arable area payments and land in permanent crops	Other improved land	Unimproved land
Year 1	225	175	25
Year 2	135	105	10
Year 3	50	40	5
Year 4	20	15	5
Year 5	20	15	5
Total	450	350	50

In addition, each organic unit being converted under the OFS is eligible for payments totalling £600 towards the initial cost of advice and training.

As well as financial assistance for conversion, we also provide other support, for example, through the Department's R and D programme, which includes a large component dealing with research on organic farming, and through the provision of free advice to prospective organic farmers by the Organic Conversion Information Service (OCIS).

EU Enlargement

Mrs. Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions she has had with her counterparts in central and eastern Europe concerning the effect of enlargement of the European Union on agriculture in the United Kingdom. [12805]

Mr. Morley: So far this year, my ministerial colleagues and I have had meetings with our counterparts from Poland, the Czech Republic, and Lithuania. Over the next few months we hope to build on these, and to have dialogue with our counterparts in Hungary and Estonia.

Regional Office (Exeter)

Mrs. Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the complement of staff working at her Department's regional office at Exeter was on (a) 1 November 2001 and (b) 1 August 2001. [12826]

Mr. Morley: Two parts of the Department operate from Clyst House, Exeter: namely the Rural Payments Agency (RPA) and the Foot and Mouth Disease Office.

The RPA office at Exeter had 395 staff on 1 August 2001 and 429 staff on 1 November 2001. The staff numbers were increased over this period to deal with work that was transferred to Exeter from RPA offices at Bristol, Worcester and Reading.

Precise figures for the number of staff at the Foot and Mouth Disease Office at Exeter on the dates specified are unavailable. However, the number of staff was broadly unchanged over the period in question at around 300, approximately two thirds of whom were casual appointments.

Fishing Industry

Mrs. Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will provide aid for the English fishing industry in similar terms to that operated in Scotland. [12811]

Mr. Morley: Grant aid is available in England for similar schemes to those available in Scotland, under the terms of the EU Structural Fund for fisheries including grant for decommissioning fishing vessels.

Countryside Stewardship Schemes

Mrs. Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans she has to increase the area of farmed land subject to Countryside Stewardship schemes. [12810]

Mr. Morley: Our plans for a major expansion of the Countryside Stewardship budget are well known. As part of the England Rural Development Programme (ERDP), expenditure on agri-environment schemes is scheduled to increase from £119 million this year to £197 million in 2006–07. From the total ERDP budget of £1.6 billion, £500 million has been allocated to the Countryside Stewardship Scheme over the period. As a result, each year we will be accepting roughly double the number of applications compared to 1999 and we expect to add over half a million hectares of land to that already covered by the scheme (currently about a quarter of a million hectares) over the last 10 years.

BSE and Scrapie

Mrs. Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps she has taken to publish scientific advice to Ministers relating to BSE and scrapie. [12798]

Mr. Morley: In all matters relating to BSE and scrapie, the Government have been open and transparent. We will continue to put scientific advice to Government in the public domain, encouraging a culture of openness, trusting the public and stimulating informed public debate. To this end the Government's advisory committee on BSE matters

(the Spongiform Encephalopathy Advisory Committee (SEAC)) publishes summaries of all its meetings. These aim to explain the reasoning behind SEAC advice.

Southern Water Supplies

Mr. Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will conduct an inquiry into Southern Water Services Ltd. supplies to Fulston Manor and Higham grammar schools since November 1999. [12423]

Mr. Meacher [holding answer 5 November 2001]: Any customer who has a complaint against a water undertaker should refer it to the Ofwat Customer Services Committee for the appropriate region, although I understand that the problems at Fulston Manor and Higham grammar schools relate not to the supply of water to the premises by Southern Water, but to pipes within the premises, which are the responsibility of the customer.

Domestic Refrigerators

Mr. Viggers: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans she has to encourage environmentally friendly disposal of domestic refrigerators; and if she will make a statement. [11664]

Mr. Meacher [holding answer 5 November 2001]: The disposal of domestic refrigerators is subject to waste management controls, under Part II of the Environmental Protection Act 1990, which are designed to prevent harm to human health and the environment. From 1 January 2002, the EC Regulation on Ozone Depletion Substances will require "controlled substances" (including CFCs) in coolants and in insulating foam to be removed before recycling or reclamation of domestic refrigerator units. The Department will finalise shortly guidance on CFC extraction plant and guidance on the storage of waste refrigeration equipment, prior to CFC extraction.

Livestock Movements

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what financial assistance she makes available for livestock movements; and if she will make a statement. [12350]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 5 November 2001]: The current foot and mouth disease movement controls require that all animals to be moved are inspected by a local veterinary inspector (LVI). These veterinary inspections are carried out at DEFRA's expense.

Movement Licences

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what investigation she has made into the operation of the single occupancy movement licences scheme; and if she will make a statement. [12347]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 5 November 2001]: Sole occupancy movement licences were introduced on 8 October to provide for the regular movement of livestock between premises in the same ownership and occupation within a maximum diameter of 20.0 kms. Licences are issued under the authority of the divisional veterinary manager only after an assessment by a local veterinary inspector. These arrangements were welcomed by the industry and demand for licences was high in the first month of operation. After some initial delays applications are being processed within four to five days and often more quickly.

Flooding

Mr. Sayeed: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much public money was spent on flood (a) defences and (b) prevention measures in the last 12 months, brokendown by (i) county, (ii) local authority and (iii) in London. [12886]

Mr. Morley: Information is not collected in the format requested and could not be obtained without incurring disproportionate cost.

Mr. Sayeed: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much public money has been spent on flood warning systems in the last 12 months. [12887]

Mr. Morley: The Environment Agency is responsible for flood forecasting and dissemination of warnings in England. I understand the Agency spent £23.4 million on this during the last 12 months.

Mr. Sayeed: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what representations she has received from the Environment Agency regarding flood (a) prevention and (b) defences. [12884]

Mr. Morley: The Environment Agency has asked the Government to recognise and commit to meeting the need for a significant further increase in funding on a planned basis to (a) improve flood warnings and (b) maintain and improve the overall standard and extent of flood defence. This will be considered alongside other evidence through the Spending Review 2002 process. Current plans are for this Department's spending on flood and coastal defences for all operating authorities to increase from last year's outturn of £66 million to £114 million in 2003–04.

The Agency has also asked the Government to consider alternative institutional arrangements for delivering the flood and coastal defence service. We are already doing so as part of the present review of funding arrangements.

Mr. Sayeed: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much private money was spent in the last four years on flood defences and flood prevention. [13021]

Mr. Morley: The Government do not collect information on the work undertaken by private individuals to protect their properties against flooding. In some cases beneficiaries of flood defence works undertaken by the operating authorities will make a contribution to those works. Comprehensive information on such contributions is not available in respect of works undertaken by local authorities or internal drainage boards but contributions to the Environment Agency in England were as follows:

£ million

Year
1997–98	0.2
1998–99	0.3
1999–2000	0.5
2001–01	0.3

Mr. Sayeed: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much public funds were spent, broken down by local authorities, agencies and other relevant organisations on flood defences and flood prevention in the last four years; how much public spending on flood defences/prevention is planned for the next two years; and how much additional money she promised in 2001 for flood defences and flood prevention on top of that pledged in the last spending review. [13102]

Mr. Morley: Flood defence is provided by the Environment Agency, local authorities and internal drainage boards. The following table shows expenditure, from all sources, by the different operation authorities.

£ million

Year	Environment Agency	Local authorities	Internal drainage boards[1]	Total
1997–98	255.2	13,0	40.0	308.2
1998–99	247.2	15.0	40.3	302.5
1999–2000	260.3	15.4	40.7	316.4
2000–01	270.4	[2]20.1	41.0	[2]331.5

[1] Estimated
[2] Provisional

The great majority of this expenditure is provided by Government in the form of DEFRA grant (for approved capital and other works) and by DTLR through revenue support grant (which is used by local authorities to fund levies to the Environment Agency, special levies to internal drainage boards and to finance their own spend on flood and coastal defence).The Spending Review 2000 provided for an increase in DEFRA grant of £10 million in 2002–03 and £20 million in 2003–04. It also provided for local authority Standard Spending Assessments for flood and coastal defence to increase by some 4.4 per cent. annually over the period.

A further £51 million of DEFRA support was announced by my right hon. Friend the Deputy Prime Minister on 4 November 2000. This was allocated as follows: £2 million in 2000–01; £17 million in 2001–02; £17 million in 2002–03 and £15 million in 2003–04. A further £6.6 million to assist the Environment Agency to meet its emergency costs was announced in January 2001 and allocated in 2001–02.

The following table sets out total Government funding of flood and coastal defence for the last four years and forecast expenditure for the current and next two years:

Year	£ million
1997–98	312.4
1998–99	315.9
1999–2000	326.3
2000–01	331.7
2001–02	376.9
2002–03	393.5
2003–04	414.2

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what measures she has taken to streamline the agencies that have a responsibility for flooding matters, with particular reference to (a) the Environment Agency, (b) the internal drainage boards, (c) local authorities, (d) British Waterways and (e) other boards. [13415]

Mr. Morley: The Government are considering this issue as part of the current review of funding arrangements for flood and coastal defence.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans the Government have to ensure that flood prevention is not paid for exclusively from council tax. [13385]

Mr. Morley: It is already the case that the great majority of expenditure on flood and coastal defence is currently met out of general taxation.

In the current year DEFRA expects to provide direct funding of some £92 million to the operating authorities while some £264 million is provided to local authorities through DTLR's standard spending assessments which are largely supported by central grant and non-domestic rate income. Local authorities use this to fund levies to the Environment Agency, special levies to internal drainage boards and their own spend on flood and coastal defence.

Warm Front Grants

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what representations she has received regarding the level of Warm Front grants in England; and what plans she has to change the level of the grant. [12438]

Mr. Meacher: [holding answer 6 November 2001]: The Home Energy Efficiency Scheme, marketed as the Warm Front Team, is managed under contract by the Eaga Partnership Ltd. and TXU Warm Front Ltd. Both companies provide regular advice to the Department about the average cost of work under the scheme. This is then used to review the appropriate maximum level set for grant paid to individual householders.

Sovereign Harbour (Eastbourne)

Mr. Sayeed: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what representations the Environment Agency has made with respect to the building of homes at Sovereign Harbour, Eastbourne. [12891]

Ms Keeble: I have been asked to reply.

The Environment Agency has responded to consultations by Eastbourne borough council about planning applications for proposed residential development in the area between the sea defence and the inner harbour. The Agency's responses to such consultations can be viewed at Eastbourne borough council's offices.

TRANSPORT, LOCAL GOVERNMENT AND THE REGIONS

London Underground (SPADs)

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions how many signal passed at danger events there were on the London Underground lines in the past five years for which figures are available. [7448]

Mr. Jamieson: London Underground take SPADs very seriously and are constantly working to reduce the number on their network. Information on the number of SPADs is regularly placed in the Libraries of both Houses. The most recent information, which includes data for SPADs since 1993, was placed in the Library on 7 November.

Departmental Promotions

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions how much his Department spent on information literature, advertising and campaign material in the financial years (a) 1995–96, (b) 1996–97, (c) 1997–98, (d) 1998–99 (e) 1999–2000 and (f) 2000–01; and if he will make a statement. [12259]

Dr. Whitehead: The Department's financial year starts 1 April and runs to 31 March. For each financial year from 1995 the advertising spend, broken down by category, is set out in the table.

£

	Advertising
	Television	Radio	Press	Other[1]	Total
1995–96[2]	—	—	—	—	9,300,000
1996–97	3,836,887	461,937	1,741,197	1,178,979	7,219,000
1997–98	3,154,027	926,232	1,559,001	860,740	6,500,000
1998–99	3,449,938	1,048,951	861,097	640,014	6,000,000
1999–2000	7,457,172	661,303	1,059,974	2,821,551	12,000,000
2000–01	13,475,335	1,932,364	971,796	1,314,395	17,693,890

[1] e.g. posters, leaflets
[2] A breakdown into separate categories would only be possible at disproportionate cost

The increased expenditure on advertising in 1999–2000 resulted from:

(i) An increase of £3.6 million on the "Are you doing your bit" campaign to help people to take action to protect the environment; and

(ii) £2.9 million spent on a campaign to encourage voting in the Greater London Authority elections.

The increase in expenditure in 2000–01 resulted from:

(i) An additional increase of £2 million on the "Are you doing your bit" campaign; and

(ii) A £4 million increase on the campaign aimed at further reducing deaths and serious injuries on our roads.

(iii) Advertising aimed at providing information to the general public on access to the countryside during the foot and mouth disease outbreak.

Train Operating Companies

Mr. Truswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what plans he has to ensure (a) Arriva in West Yorkshire and (b) other train operating companies recruit and retain sufficient drivers to fulfil their timetable commitments. [12533]

Mr. Jamieson: The Strategic Rail Authority (SRA) expects all train operators to recruit sufficient staff, including drivers, to run a reliable train service and meet their timetable commitments.

The SRA has in place performance regimes under which train operators are penalised if they fail to meet certain standards. The SRA can also issue enforcement orders and penalties against operators for continuing poor performance, as it proposes with Arriva Trains Northern.

Kane v. New Forest DC

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will make a statement on the implications of the judgment in the case of Kane v. New Forest DC. [12968]

Ms Keeble: The case was an appeal against the summary dismissal of a claim for damages for personal injuries caused by negligence. The appeal succeeded, so that the substantive claim can now proceed. Pending its conclusion, the matter is sub judice and I cannot comment.

Light Rail Schemes

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what proportion of the investment outlined in the Government's 10-Year Plan is allocated to Light Rail schemes. [12750]

Mr. Jamieson: Light Rail schemes account for about 1.7 per cent. of total spending in our 10-Year Plan for Transport.

Suburban Train Lines (Waterloo)

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will make a statement on how and when the proposed extension of trains and platforms on suburban lines into Waterloo will be financed. [12749]

Mr. Jamieson: Investment in new trains for the Waterloo suburban lines is being made by Angel Trains under a £1 billion deal, announced on 24 April 2001, between the company, Stagecoach Holdings plc and Siemens. It will be recovered through leasing charges paid by the train operator, South West Trains, which will be in receipt of franchise payments from the Strategic Rail Authority. No agreement has yet been reached with Railtrack or with other private investors on the financing of station improvements, including platform extensions, but the investment is similarly likely to be recovered through access charges paid by the train operator.

Railtrack

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions, pursuant to his answer of 25 October 2001, Official Report, column 395W, on Railtrack, if he will list the actions that will be required to secure investment grade ratings for the debt of the company limited by guarantee. [12986]

Mr. Jamieson: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State to the right hon. Member for Wokingham (Mr. Redwood) on 31 October 2001, Official Report, column 671W.

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions, pursuant to his reply of 22 October 2001, Official Report, column 94W, on Railtrack, when he met Mr. Alun Evans to discuss release of the document proposing changes to the Parsons Brinckerhoff report; and to what extent the propriety of the conduct of Ms Jo Moore in respect of the release of this document was discussed with Mr. Evans. [12993]

Mr. Byers: This information is exempted from disclosure under Part 2 of Section II of the Code of Practice on Access to Government Information.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what assessment he has made of the impact on the crossrail project of Railtrack being placed into administration. [12695]

Mr. Jamieson: Work on the development of a crossrail project will continue on the same basis as before Railtrack administration. It has always been expected that a special purpose vehicle would be created to take forward any scheme which might be developed as a result of the current project definition work.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what assessment he has made of the effect on the rail services to and from the Beckenham constituency of the decision to place Railtrack into administration. [12670]

Mr. Jamieson: Rail services will not be affected by the process of administration. The Government will ensure that the administrator has the funds to maintain the full operation of the network.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what the value of the railway stations within the ownership of Railtrack on 4 October was. [13214]

Mr. Spellar: The balance sheet valuation of all of Railtrack Group plc's tangible assets as at 31 March 2001 is shown in their 2000–01 annual report and accounts. Separate accounts for Railtrack plc are held at Companies House.

Railways Act

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will list the occasions since 1997 when section 54 of the Railways Act 1993 has been used. [12740]

Mr. Jamieson: Since 1997, section 54 has been used five times as follows:

March 2000 in respect of 120 vehicles for Connex South Central

March 2001 in respect of 818 vehicles for South West Trains

July 2001 in respect of 240 vehicles for South Central/GoVia

October 2001 in respect of eight new trailer cars and five new four-car units for Arriva Trains Northern

November 2001 in respect of five two-car vehicles for Arriva Trains Northern.

Light Rapid Transport Scheme

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what contribution his Department is making to the light rapid transport scheme for Fareham-Gosport-Portsmouth; how the estimated cost of the scheme is to be financed; and if he will make a statement. [12664]

Ms Keeble: The agreement that the Government have reached with the authorities promoting the scheme provides for the public sector contribution to be shared between central Government and the authorities. This is in line with our general policy that about a quarter of the costs of a major public transport scheme of this kind should be met from local sources. The precise amounts involved will only be determined once the tendering process has been completed.

Affordable Housing

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what checks are made to ensure that affordable housing building takes place by house builders on former English Partnership land. [13004]

Ms Keeble: Each provider of affordable housing on English Partnerships land is contractually obliged to provide an agreed number of units, the delivery of which is confirmed upon practical completion of a particular development site or project.

Special Advisers

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what representations he has received from civil service unions about the conduct of his special advisers since 7 June. [12992]

Mr. Byers: None.

Airlines (Security)

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what representations he has received on (a) the deferred payment of air passenger duty, (b) the extra costs of airline and airport security and (c) maintaining insurance cover to airlines, since 11 September; and if he will make a statement. [R] [12975]

Mr. Jamieson: We have received various representations from the air transport industry on all of these issues. The Government moved quickly to underwrite, on a temporary basis, third party war risk insurance for UK airlines and service providers to the airline industry. The initiative has subsequently been widely copied elsewhere and was recently extended until 23 November. The European Commission has set out guidelines on emergency aid measures which were endorsed at the meeting of European Transport Ministers on 16 October. We will take these guidelines into account in considering whether further aid should be provided to the British airline industry.

Flood Plains

Mr. Sayeed: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what measures he is taking to ensure that house buyers are aware of the risks of purchasing a house built on a flood plain. [12889]

Ms Keeble: In September 1999 the Environment Agency published indicative floodplain maps using the best available current information. These were supplied to local authorities to inform the planning process and are updated annually. In December 2000 the Environment Agency placed these maps on the internet on their website www.environment-agency.gov.uk in the section entitled "What's in your backyard". Prospective home buyers can interrogate this site by postcode to see the area at flood risk. Further, more detailed information can be obtained by writing to the local Environment Agency area office.

Under the Government's proposals for sellers' packs, prospective buyers will be provided with key information about homes marketed for sale. Flood risk information is one of the items being considered for inclusion in the seller's pack. In the meantime, the Environment Agency is engaged in advanced discussions with the Law Society on making an 'Environment Agency Property Search Report', a standard part of the domestic and commercial conveyancing process in England and Wales. A pilot trial is running in North Wales and work is under way to extend this. Each Environment Agency report will include information on flood risk as well as other environmental data for which the agency has responsibility.

Local Government

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what representations he has received about the effectiveness of local authority standards committees; and if he will make a statement. [12323]

Dr. Whitehead: I have not received any representations about the effectiveness of local authority standards committees.

Recycling (London)

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions which London-based organisations have received grants from (a) the single regeneration budget and (b) other sources to promote waste recycling in the past two years; and what the value was of grants in each case. [13277]

Ms Keeble [holding answer 8 November 2001]: Information on individual London-based organisations that received funding to promote waste recycling through the single regeneration budget is held by the SRB partnerships who distribute the funding. However, the London Development Agency, who are responsible for administering the SRB programme in London, have provided details of London SRB schemes that included waste management or recycling projects in their outputs in 1999–2000 and 2000–01. These are at table A. In addition, a SRB round 6 scheme "Re-engineering Secondary Materials for Thames Gateway" was awarded £5.4 million lifetime funding in summer 2000 but did not incur any project expenditure during 2000–01. This is run by London Remade, a strategic partnership between waste management companies, statutory authorities, London boroughs and community organisations, with the principal objective of promoting new markets and secondary industries based on reprocessing and reuse of London's recyclable materials.

The Environmental Action Fund, operated by the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (DEFRA), is designed to help voluntary groups advance the Government's environmental policies to London-based organisations to promote recycling and raise awareness of waste management issues. Table B lists the grants that were issued during 1999–2000, 2000–01 and 2001–02.

The Spending Review 2000 established a fund of £140 million specifically for local authority waste management and recycling. DEFRA will be consulting shortly on proposals for the distribution and use of this fund.

Table A: Number of waste management or recycling schemes in London SRB schemes during 1999–2000 and 2000/01

£

Name of Scheme	1999–2000	2000–01	SRB Lifetime Value[1]
Connecting Communities	1	3	2,099,800
Forest Gate and Plaistow	0	1	21,769,208
Stratford and Temple Mills	—	1	7,834,664
Creekside Renewal	—	2	8,273,500
Canning Town	1	1	21,501,000
Time for Greenwich	—	107	26,969,300
Hackney Wick	1	1	19,234,999
Mile End Park	—	1	2,330,000
New Horizons for Harold Hill	—	1	3,819,378
Northern Wards	—	6	2,814,851
Releasing Local Potential	—	1	29,920,000
South Wandle Regeneration Partnership	—	26	6,397,010
King's Cross Partnership	—	1	37,173,806
West Euston Partnership	—	4	6,546,000
Aylesbury Plus	1	3	4,798,237
Developing Park Royal's Offer	—	17	26,721,833

Table A: Number of waste management or recycling schemes in London SRB schemes during 1999–2000 and 2000/01

£

Name of Scheme	1999–2000	2000–01	SRB Lifetime Value[1]
A New Future for Finsbury Park	—	1	25,000,000
New Opportunities for Walthamstow	—	1	13,997,990
Bridging the Divides	—	48	28,136,192
Cross River Partnership (SBEG)	—	1	7,589,237

[1] Total award of SRB funding is for all the activities within the scheme

Table B: Grants from the Environmental Action Fund

£

Organisation	Project title	Amount
1999–2000
Hackney Community Recycling	Learning from Scrap	48,743
Safe Neighbourhoods Unit	Estate Recycling Support Project	13,534
Waste Watch	3Rs for the 3rd Sector	21,413
Waste Watch	National Waste Awareness Initiative	59,860
Waste Watch	Supporting action on 'Less Waste More Value'	99,000
2000–01
Elephant Jobs	Community Composting	14,500
Elephant Jobs	Office Furniture Fittings	26,108
Hackney Community Recycling	Learning from Scrap	49,439
Safe Neighbourhoods Unit	Estate Recycling Support Project	13,529
Waste Watch	3Rs for the 3rd Sector	21,819
Waste Watch	National Waste Awareness Initiative	55,465
Waste Watch	Supporting action on 'Less Waste More Value'	110,000
2001–02
BioRegional Development Group	An integrated Tree Station for London	59,860
Elephant Jobs	Community Composting	14,500
Elephant Jobs	Office Furniture Fittings	26,108
Hackney Community Recycling	Learning from Scrap	33,250
Waste Watch	National Waste Awareness Initiative	71,680
Waste Watch	Supporting action on 'Waste Strategy 2000'	198,000

Correspondence

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions when he will reply to the questions of 22 October from the hon. Member for Edinburgh, West. [13873]

Mr. Jamieson: I replied to the hon. Member's questions about the Working Time Directive on 6 November 2001, Official Report, column 133W and on 7 November 2001, Official Report, columns 287–88W.

Empty Homes

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will make a statement on the impact of the Government's Flats over the Shop initiative. [13752]

Ms Keeble: The scheme for 100 per cent. capital allowances for flats over shops was introduced in the Budget. Spending on the renovation or conversion of vacant or under-used space above shops or other qualifying commercial premises, to provide flats for rent, can qualify under the scheme from 11 May 2001.

Information about the amount of spending qualifying under the measure will not be available until 2003, when property owners and occupiers who have incurred expenditure have sent in their tax returns for the first tax year in which the scheme has been in operation.

Homelessness

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions how many children were made homeless in (a) 1997 and (b) 2001 to date; and what proposals the Government have to counter this problem. [13754]

Ms Keeble: Summary information on activity under statutory homelessness provisions is reported to the Department by local authorities in England. This includes the number of households accepted under the homelessness provisions of the 1985 and 1996 Housing Acts as being eligible for assistance, unintentionally homeless and in priority need, and identifies those households containing dependent children.

The latest information is as follows:

Homeless households accepted by local authorities in England

	1997	2001[1]
Total households accepted	102,410	59,530
of which containing dependent children	58,780	33,800
Estimated number[2] of dependent children	105,000	58,000

[1] January to June
[2] Rounded estimates—precise data are not collected
Source:
DTLR Quarterly P1(E) housing activity returns

Families with children who are accepted by a local housing authority as unintentionally homeless are provided with accommodation.

Under the Children Act 1989, social services have a duty to assist any child under 16 who is in need. Monitoring by the rough sleepers unit by outreach workers shows there are very few under 18-year-olds sleeping rough. Children under 16 found on the streets by agencies, including police or homelessness workers, are helped from the streets and referred to social services. The social exclusion unit is currently leading an exercise looking at improving services available to young runaways.

Homeless acceptances represent households in need who are helped by local authorities into accommodation. The provisions of the Homelessness Bill will require housing authorities to take a more strategic, multi-agency approach to the prevention of homelessness and the rehousing of homeless households; ensure that everyone accepted by housing authorities as unintentionally homeless and in priority need must be provided with suitable accommodation until they obtain a settled housing solution; and allow housing authorities greater flexibility to assist non-priority homeless households, principally through a new power for housing authorities to secure accommodation for such households where they have the scope to do so.

To support these provisions, investment in new affordable housing through the Housing Corporation will rise to over £1.2 billion by 2003–04—about double the current level.

The Government are currently developing a national strategic framework to help prevent and tackle homelessness throughout the country.

The Code on Guidance on Allocations and Homelessness will be strengthened to ensure that the health needs of children in temporary accommodation are met.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions when the Government will publish (a) a response to the homelessness consultation, (b) the Vulnerable Groups (Definition) Guidelines, (c) proposals to deal with rogue landlords in the social housing sector, (d) proposals to license houses in multiple occupation, (e) proposals on the future of the Rough Sleepers Unit and (f) new regulations to extend the right to priority temporary social housing to those with an institutionalised background. [13758]

Ms Keeble: The Government have recently consulted on proposals for a national strategy to tackle homelessness. A summary of responses will be placed on the DTLR internet site on 7 December. The consultation responses are being considered and the Government will announce their response in due course.

We have consulted on a draft order which would extend the groups of people who have a priority need for housing, under the homelessness legislation. This includes applicants who the local authority are satisfied are vulnerable as a result of an institutionalised background. We are considering the public consultation responses to the order, and will take decisions on implementation shortly. Guidance relating to the priority needs categories will be issued alongside the order.

I believe that the hon. Member has in mind our proposals on dealing with unsatisfactory private landlords, rather than landlords in the social sector. We published on 20 October a consultation paper on selective licensing of private landlords.

We aim to publish around the turn of the year details of our legislative proposals on houses in multiple occupation, taking account of the responses to consultation.

The rough sleepers unit has just completed a written consultation exercise on its future role. An announcement on the conclusions will be made in due course.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what recent research has been carried out by his Department on the causes of homelessness in relation to (a) violence in the home and (b) drug abuse. [13755]

Ms Keeble: This Department has carried out no research recently on the causes of homelessness in relation to violence in the home or drug use.

Planning

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions how many planning decisions the Secretary of State called in from local planning authorities, and in what categories, during the last year. [13751]

Ms Keeble: 127 planning applications were called in between 1 April 2000 and 31 March 2001.

Type of development	Number of applications called-in
Community, health and education	3
Recreation and leisure	14
Industry	1
Mineral extraction/exploration	1
Offices and studios	1
Residences	48
Retail	35
Transport, utilities and communication	12
Wholesale, storage and distribution	3
Others	9
Total	127

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions how many (a) planning appeals before the Planning Inspectorate and (b) planning appeals being considered by the Secretary of State there were in (i) June 1997 and (ii) June 2001; and what was the average length of time taken to determine them in each case. [13750]

Ms Keeble: The figures for each are shown by financial year. Figures for 2001–02 are not yet available.

Planning Inspectorate	Appeals received
1997–98	14,182
2000–01	15,336

Target 1997–98: issue 80 per cent. of appeals decisions within 20 weeks for written representations, 33 weeks for hearings, 44 weeks for inquiries. The Inspectorate's performance for each was 21, 40 and 52 weeks respectively.

Target 2000–01: issue 80 per cent. of decisions within 17 weeks for written representations, 23 weeks for hearings, 33 weeks for inquiries. The Inspectorate's performance against appeals targets for each was 17, 21 and 31 weeks respectively.

Secretary of State	Appeals recovered
1997–98	208
2000–01	163

Target 1997–98: issue 80 per cent. of decisions within eight weeks and 100 per cent. within 13 weeks from receipt of Inspector's report. Performance: 51 per cent. in eight weeks and 76 per cent. in 13 weeks.

Target: 2000–01: issue 80 per cent. of decisions within eight weeks and 100 per cent. within 13 weeks. Performance: 56.4 per cent. in eight weeks and 66.9 per cent. in 13 weeks.

We intend to make dramatic improvements in the time taken to decide recovered appeals.

Bed-and-Breakfast Accommodation

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions how many households living in bed-and-breakfast accommodation there were in the first quarter of (a) 1997 and (b) 2001; what plans he has to reduce this number; and what steps he is taking to ensure that this accommodation is of a reasonable standard. [13761]

Ms Keeble: There were 4,100 households in bed-and-breakfast accommodation at the end of the first quarter of 1997 and 10,830 in 2001. Over the next two years the newly established bed-and-breakfast unit will work with partners to reduce the need to place families in B and B. The unit will be hosting a conference on 20 November to consult on targets and actions for reducing B and B use.

Local authorities are required by law to ensure that any accommodation secured for people accepted as statutorily homeless is suitable. In considering whether accommodation is suitable, local authorities will need, among other factors, to have regard to whether it is of a reasonable standard. Statutory guidance issued by my Department also makes it clear that if authorities do have to use bed-and-breakfast accommodation they should ensure that the accommodation meets statutory standards for houses in multiple occupation.

Local Authority Debt

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will list those local authorities that are (a) debt free and (b) in debt, indicating their level of debt in (i) June 1997 and (ii) June 2001. [13753]

Dr. Whitehead: The 106 English local authorities listed have reported that they had debt-free status as at 30 June 2001:

Barking and Dagenham
Basingstoke and Deane
Bath and North East Somerset
Bedford
Bracknell Forest UA
Breckland
Broadland
Bromley
Bromsgrove
Broxbourne
Chichester
Chiltern
Christchurch
City of London
Congleton
Corby
Cotswold
Crawley
Dacorum
Dartford
Daventry
Dorset
East Cambridgeshire
East Devon
East Dorset
East Hampshire
Eden
Elmbridge
Epsom and Ewell
Forest Heath
Fylde
Hambleton
Harlow
Hart
Havant
Hertsmere
Horsham
Huntingdonshire
Kennet
Lichfield
Malvern Hills
Mid Bedfordshire
Mid Sussex
Mole Valley
North Devon
North Dorset
North Wiltshire
Penwith
Redditch
Reigate and Banstead
Runnymede
Rushmoor
Ryedale
Salisbury
Sevenoaks
South Buckinghamshire

South Cambridgeshire
South Hampshire
South Northamptonshire
South Oxfordshire
South Ribble
South Shropshire
South Somerset
South Staffordshire
Spelthorne
St. Edmundsbury
Staffordshire Moorlands
Stevenage
Stratford-on-Avon
Suffolk Coastal
Surrey Heath
Swale
Tandridge
Tewkesbury
Three Rivers
Tonbridge and Malling
Tunbridge Wells
Tynedale
Uttlesford
Vale of White Horse
Watford
Waverley
Welwyn Hatfield
West Berkshire UA
West Wiltshire
Windsor and Maidenhead UA
Worthing
Wychavon
Wyre
Wyre Forest
Cambridgeshire Police Authority
Dorset Police Authority
Kent Police Authority
Merseyside Police Authority
Suffolk Police Authority
Sussex Police Authority
Wiltshire Police Authority
Dartmoor National Park Authority
Exmoor National Park Authority
Lake District National Park
North York Moors National Park Authority
Northumberland National Park Authority
Peak National Park
The Broads Authority
Yorkshire Dales National Park Authority
North London Waste Authority

Note:

An authority is debt-free if (a) at 30 June 2001, the authority's credit ceiling was nil or a negative amount and (b) at 1 July 2001, the authority had no money outstanding by way of external borrowing other than short-term borrowing or hard to redeem debt, as defined in Regulation 154 of the Local Authorities (Capital Finance) Regulations 1997.

Source:

Capital Payments and Receipts (CPR1) 2001–02.

I am placing in the Library of the House the relevant figures on levels of debt for each local authority in England reported as at 31 March 1997 and 31 March 2001.

Council Housing

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will list those housing authorities that have transferred all or part of their housing stock in a large scale voluntary transfer in the last five years, together with the number of units. [13759]

Ms Keeble: The information requested is as follows.

Authority	Date of transfer	Number of dwellings
Cotswold district council	28 February 1997	4,282
South Staffordshire district council	7 March 1997	5,273
Lichfield district council	19 March 1997	4,921
South Oxfordshire district council	7 July 1997	5,018
Eden district council	22 September 1997	1,510
London borough of Lambeth (Moorlands)	5 January 1998	515
London borough of Bexley (partial)	9 February 1998	4,118
London borough of Bexley (partial)	9 February 1998	4,097
Congleton borough council	2 March 1998	4,061
Oldham borough council (Limehurst)	9 March 1998	642
Liverpool city council (Windermere)	19 March 1998	493
London borough of Merton (Pollards Hill)	23 March 1998	1,018
London borough of Tower Hamlets (Poplar)	23 March 1998	1,852
Kerrier district council	23 March 1998	3,732
London borough of Hackney (Kingsmead)	30 March 1998	951
London borough of Brent (Fortunegate/Church End)	30 March 1998	1,481
Basildon district council (Vange)	30 March 1998	708
West Somerset district council	30 March 1998	1,869
Stoke-on-Trent city council (Bentilee)	31 March 1998	917
Tewkesbury borough council	27 April 1998	3,066
Rother district council	1 May 1998	3,058
London borough of Lambeth (Lansdowne Green)	20 July 1998	681
London borough of Tower Hamlets (Poplar II)	7 December 1998	2,431
Wirral metropolitan borough council (Leasowe)	25 January 1999	1,082
Tameside metropolitan borough council (West Ashton)	1 February 1999	901
West Devon borough council	22 February 1999	1,446
South Somerset district council	1 March 1999	8,883

Authority	Date of transfer	Number of dwellings
East Lindsey district council	1 March 1999	5,102
Liverpool city council (Pinehurst)	5 March 1999	646
Manchester city council (partial)	8 March 1999	1,030
London borough of Hackney (Morningside)	15 March 1999	1,084
South Hams district council	22 March 1999	3,096
London borough of Hammersmith and Fulham (Old Oak)	17 March 1999	668
London borough of Hackney (Upper Clapton)	22 March 1999	1,000
Telford and Wrekin council	25 March 1999	13,081
London borough of Enfield (partial)	29 March 1999	1,194
Worthing borough council	29 March 1999	2,525
Bath and North East Somerset council	29 March 1999	9,887
Manchester city council (East Wythenshawe)	29 March 1999	6,667
London borough of Greenwich (Charlton Triangle)	29 March 1999	1,280
London borough of Hackney (Haggerston)	29 March 1999	661
Allerdale borough council (partial transfer)	31 March 1999	3,704
Allerdale borough council (Salterbeck)	31 March 1999	727
Preston borough council (Avenham)	4 June 1999	1,121
London borough of Lambeth (central Stockwell)	5 July 1999	2,358
Birmingham city council (central areas)	21 June 1999	2,813
London borough of Islington (Barnsbury)	26 September 1999	647
London borough of Islington (10 estates)	26 September 1999	739
Liverpool city council (Speke Garston)	4 October 1999	4,382
West Lindsey district council	18 October 1999	3,929
London borough of Lambeth (St. Martins)	25 October 1999	1,033
Boston borough council	29 November 1999	4,871
Tynedale district council	20 December 1999	3,564
Newcastle under lyme borough council	31 January 2000	9,887
Restormel borough council	7 February 2000	3,577
Manchester city council (Colshaw Farm)	14 February 2000	600
North Devon district council	21 February 2000	3,293
London borough of Hackney (Stamford Hill)	6 March 2000	1,095
London borough of Hackney (Pembury Estate)	6 March 2000	1,241
Burnley borough council	8 March 2000	5,330
Manchester city council (Sale estate)	20 March 2000	1,655
Weymouth and Portland council	20 March 2000	3,105
Huntingdon district council	20 March 2000	6,650
Elmbridge borough council	27 March 2000	4,894
Test Valley borough council	27 March 2000	5,495
Wyre Forest district council	27 March 2000	6,056
Manchester city council (Whitefield Estate)	27 March 2000	1,033
London Borough of Tower Hamlets (Tower Hamlets Community Housing)	27 March 2000	1,551
Tameside metropolitan borough council (north)	27 March 2000	8,532
Tameside metropolitan borough council (south)	27 March 2000	7,934
London borough of Richmond	17 July 2000	7,139
Coventry city council	22 September 2000	20,125
Fylde borough council	2 October 2000	1,905
Chester city council	27 November 2000	7,096
Horsham district council	11 December 2000	4,650
London borough of Tower Hamlets (partial)	12 February 2001	196
East Northamptonshire district council	19 February 2001	3,495
Torbay district council	19 February 2001	2,947
Staffordshire Moorlands district council	23 February 2001	3,132
Calderdale metropolitan borough council	6 March 2001	12,759
Chichester district council	13 March 2001	5,321
Mendip district council	19 March 2001	4,326
West Wiltshire district council	26 March 2001	3,284
West Oxfordshire district council	26 March 2001	3,643
East Staffordshire borough council	26 March 2001	5,637
Manchester city council (Handforth Estate)	26 March 2001	659
Sunderland city council	26 March 2001	36,356
Blackburn with Darwen borough council	28 March 2001	9,886
Shrewsbury and Atcham borough council	1 October 2001	5,500
Mid-Bedfordshire district council	5 November 2001	3,084
Total number transfers—90
Total number dwellings transferred—359,883

Runway Capacity

Mr. David Stewart: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what plans his Department has to increase runway capacity at (a) Heathrow and (b) Gatwick. [13695]

Mr. Jamieson: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Minister for Transport to my hon. Friend the Member for Crewe and Nantwich (Mrs. Dunwoody) on 29 October 2001, Official Report, column 476W.

Mr. David Stewart: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what research his Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the commercial use by regional air services of private and military airports in the London area with runways of at least 1,800 metres. [13692]

Mr. Jamieson: In 1998 my Department commissioned a three-part study of business aviation in the south-east. Part 1 (Demand and Capacity studies) was published in 1998 and Part 2 (The Economic impact of Business Aviation) in 1999. These reports cover a number of airports with runway lengths of at least 1,800 metres. Copies of both are available in the House Libraries.

Work on the final part of the study, Future Capacity for Business Aviation, has been subsumed into the on-going South East and East of England Regional Air Services Study (SERAS). The study will include an assessment of the contribution that smaller airports might make to short haul and domestic services.

Airport Slots (London-Inverness Route)

Mr. David Stewart: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what discussions his Department has had with the Scottish Executive about the use of a public service obligation on the Gatwick to Inverness air route. [13694]

Mr. Jamieson: The DTLR has received a proposal from the Scottish Executive outlining the case for the imposition of a public service obligation on the Inverness to London route. This proposal is being analysed by the DTLR, while taking European Regulation 2408/92 into account. Informal discussions at ministerial level about protection for this route have taken place. In addition, DTLR and Scottish Executive officials recently met to discuss the proposal.

Terminal 5

Mr. David Stewart: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions when his Department will determine the application for terminal 5 at Heathrow. [13696]

Ms Keeble: The Secretary of State will make and announce his decision once he has completed his full and careful consideration of all the issues. The applicants for planning permission and other interested parties will all be told of the decision in the usual way, and an oral statement will be made to inform Parliament.

Air Movement Restrictions

Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what restrictions on air movements in the vicinity of nuclear power stations are in force. [13475]

Mr. Jamieson: Restrictions on overflying are in place in the vicinity of all nuclear power stations.

HEALTH

Care Standards (Young Adults)

Brian Cotter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when the national care standards for younger adults will be introduced. [9499]

Jacqui Smith: The standards for younger adults will be introduced on 1 April 2002, when the National Care Standards Commission starts work. Some of the more challenging standards will not be implemented until some time after that for existing providers to be given realistic timescales in which to meet new standards.

Brian Cotter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if the report findings from the consultation on national care standards for younger adults will be published. [9496]

Jacqui Smith: The Department has received 500 responses to the younger adult and adult placement standards and is in the process of reviewing the standards in the light of the comments that have been received. A summary of these findings will be made available in due course.

Haemophilia

Brian Cotter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the impact of the recent decision by the High Court to award damages under the Consumer Protection Act 1988 to 114 people infected with hepatitis C through blood transfusion; and what implications this will have for haemophiliacs who have been infected by hepatitis C after receiving blood transfusions. [9501]

Jacqui Smith: The recent decision by the High Court has no implications for anyone infected with hepatitis C before the Consumer Protection Act came into force in March 1988. This includes the vast majority of haemophiliacs who were probably infected before that date.

Royal Prerogative

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many ministerial decisions were made where authority for the same derived from the Royal Prerogative for the most recent calendar month for which information is available. [9374]

Ms Blears: Records are not kept of the individual occasions on which powers under the Royal Prerogative are exercised nor could it be practicable to do so.

Cancer Services

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many women have been tested for cervical cancer in Leicestershire in the last 12 months. [10581]

Jacqui Smith: In 2000–01, 65,712 women underwent cervical screening in Leicestershire health authority.

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many pilot areas there are in England for cervical screening; and what the time scale is for these pilots; [10582]

(2) if he will make a statement on the effectiveness of the thin prep pap test; [10583]

(3) what representations he has received on increasing access to the thin prep pap test beyond the pilot areas. [10584]

Jacqui Smith: The pilot of liquid based cytology (LBC) and human papilloma virus testing as triage for women with mild or borderline abnormalities is taking place at three sites; Newcastle, Norfolk and Norwich, and North Bristol. The pilot began in April 2001. The LBC arm of the pilot is being evaluated from October 2001, and results of the evaluation are expected in 2002.

ThinPrep and AutoCyte Prep were the only liquid based slide preparation systems available at the time the pilot was developed. ThinPrep is being used at two of the sites, and AutoCyte prep at the third site. The evaluation of the pilot will gather data on the effectiveness of both systems.

The NHS cancer plan set out the commitment that if evaluation of the pilot is successful we will fund the introduction of LBC across the national health service.

We have had no representations on increasing ThinPrep beyond the pilot areas.

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what is the average cost of the treatment of a cervical cancer patient. [10585]

Jacqui Smith: The cost of treating different patients varies by the type of treatment they receive. The elements of the total cost incurred depend upon the individual components and treatments within the care pathway for that patient. For cervical cancer, a hysterectomy might be performed (£1,861 average cost for elective in-patient in 1999–2000) and/or a course of radiotherapy undertaken, which would vary dependent on the type and classification of the type of cancer involved.

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on the funds allocated to the treatment of (a) breast cancer, (b) cervical cancer and (c) prostate cancer. [11867]

Jacqui Smith: The Department does not collect figures on the cost of national health service services in a way that enables an accurate figure to be calculated for the cost of or investment in a particular disease.

We made available an additional £280 million in 2001–02 for the development of cancer services. This will rise to £407 million in 2002–03 and £570 million in 2003–04. Local health authorities and primary care trusts, with cancer networks, are responsible for determining local priorities in implementing the NHS cancer plan.

Child Abuse

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many pieces of Government-funded research there have been on the subject of abuse of disabled children in the last five years. [11414]

Jacqui Smith: There have not been any Government-funded studies which look specifically at the abuse of disabled children.

However, the Department has recently commissioned a study to consider the symptoms of abuse in people who have severe learning disabilities. The study will examine the nature of the psychological harm caused to people with learning disabilities who are subject to physical and/or sexual abuse. Its aim is to improve the ability of staff and carers to identify and act on abuse, to identify the needs of the victims and to assist them in obtaining access to the judicial process.

We have identified three other current or recent studies from the National Research Register, which are considering or have considered the abuse of children with learning disabilities. Further details of all these studies have been placed in the Library.

There are a number of other studies that look more broadly at all children who are the victims of abuse which also encompass children with disability.

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much related training material has been funded by the Government since the publication of the ABCD Pack in 1992. [11412]

Jacqui Smith: The available United Kingdom evidence on the extent of abuse among disabled children suggests that disabled children are at increased risk of abuse, and that the presence of multiple disabilities appears to increase the risk of both abuse and neglect.

That is why the Department funded, in partnership with the National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, a second training resource pack entitled "Turning Points". It is also why in our "Working Together to Safeguard Children" child protection guidance and in the practice guidance and training pack underpinning the "Framework for the Assessment of Children in Need and their Families" we have been careful to refer to this evidence base and to the need for particular attention to be paid to promoting a high level of awareness of the risks to this group of children and to high standards of practice.

Residential Services (Special Needs)

Mr. Grogan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he plans to publish a consultation document on national standards for residential services for adults with disabilities and special needs. [11551]

Jacqui Smith: Draft national minimum standards for care homes for younger adults were issued for consultation on 29 June 2001. The Department is looking again at the national minimum standards for younger adults and adult placements in the light of the comments that have been received during the consultation process. The standards will be published in due course following completion of the review process.

Heart Disease

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average waiting time was, from diagnosis to treatment for heart disease in each of the last four years. [11866]

Jacqui Smith: The diagnosis and treatment of heart disease may take place within primary, secondary or tertiary health care services. For those patients who require drug therapy to treat their condition, treatment will follow directly on from diagnosis. Patients requiring treatment in hospital who are not diagnosed as an emergency requiring immediate admission will go on a waiting list for in-patient treatment. The average median waiting times, from the date of a decision to admit a patient for treatment for heart disease to the admission date, for the last four years for which data are available, are in the table.

Year	Median waiting time in days
1996–97	57
1997–98	55
1998–99	60
1999–2000	57

The figures are based on hospital in-patients admitted with an OPCS4 procedure code in the range K01 to K71 (heart procedures).

Pharmaceutical Expenditure

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the expenditure per capita was on pharmaceuticals in each of the OECD countries for the most recent year for which figures are available. [11893]

Ms Blears: Expenditure per capita on pharmaceuticals and other medical non-durables in each of the OECD countries for the most recent year for which figures are available is shown in the table.

£

Country	Last available year	Expenditure per capita
Australia	1998	118
Austria	n/a	n/a
Belgium	1997	203
Canada	2000	212
Czech Republic	1999	64
Denmark	1999	155
Finland	1999	160
France	1999	323
Germany	1998	206
Greece	2000	108
Hungary	1999	56
Iceland	1999	258
Ireland	1999	105
Italy	1997	179
Japan	1998	226
Korea	1999	42
Luxembourg	1999	198
Mexico	n/a	n/a
Netherlands	1999	149
New Zealand	1997	115
Norway	1997	157
Poland	n/a	n/a
Portugal	1998	133
Slovakia	n/a	n/a
Spain	1997	126
Sweden	1997	172
Switzerland	1998	176
United Kingdom	1997	149
Turkey	1994	16
United States	1999	296

n/a = Not available

Notes:

1. The table displays figures for the "total expenditure on pharmaceuticals and other medical non-durables", comprising "pharmaceuticals such as medicinal preparations, branded and generic medicines, drugs, patent medicines, serums, vaccines, vitamins and minerals and oral contraceptives plus a wide range of medical non-durables such as bandages, elasticated stockings, incontinence articles, condoms and other mechanical contraceptive devices".

2. The data have been converted from US$ terms into UK£ terms using the exchange rate series published in the same OECD database.

Source:

Figures are taken from OECD Health Data 2001

Electromagnetic Fields

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent assessment he has made of the role of overhead powerlines in causing breast cancer. [12068]

Jacqui Smith: The Department obtains advice on the possible health implications of exposure to electromagnetic fields, including those associated with power lines, from the National Radiological Protection Board (NRPB). The board of NRPB has set up an independent advisory group on non-ionising radiation (AGNIR)

> "to review work on the biological effects of non-ionising radiation relevant to human health and to advise on research priorities".

In March this year, the NRPB's advisory group on non-ionising radiation (AGNIR) published a report on the potential risks of cancer from extremely low frequency electromagnetic fields. Overall AGNIR concluded that

> "Laboratory experiments have provided no good evidence that extremely low frequency electromagnetic fields are capable of producing cancer, nor do human epidemiological studies suggest that they cause cancer in general".

In June, the International Agency for Research in Cancer (IARC) based in Lyon, France brought together an international team of experts to review the evidence for the possible carcinogenic effects of exposure to static and extremely low frequency (ELF) electric and magnetic fields. The IARC working group evaluated ELF magnetic fields as "possibly carcinogenic to humans" based on the statistical association of higher level residential ELF magnetic fields with increased risk of childhood leukaemia. In contrast, there is no consistent evidence that residential or occupational exposures of adults to power frequency magnetic fields increase the risk for any kind of cancer.

Mr. Stevenson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on the conclusions of the California Health Department report on the possible health risks associated with power frequency electric and magnetic fields published in April 2001. [12385]

Jacqui Smith: The Department obtains advice on the possible health implications of exposure to electromagnetic fields, including those associated with power lines, from the National Radiological Protection Board (NRPB). The NRPB's independent advisory group on non-ionising radiation was set up:

> "to review work on the biological effects of non-ionising radiation relevant to human health and to advise on research priorities".

In March this year the advisory group reported that there is some epidemiological evidence that prolonged exposure to higher levels of exposure to power frequency magnetic fields is associated with a small risk of leukaemia in children but this is, however, not conclusive. They also noted that laboratory studies and human adult studies do not suggest that they cause cancer in general.

This view has been supported by a similar opinion expressed in a recent review of extremely low frequency electromagnetic fields and cancer by the International Agency for Research in Cancer, which classified extremely low frequency magnetic fields as "possibly carcinogenic" on the basis of the statistical association noted for children.

The advisory group discussed the report from the California Department of Health Sciences on possible risks from exposure to power frequency electromagnetic fields at its meeting on 30 October 2001. The group has commented that they know of no further scientific evidence published since their most recent report that would alter their opinion regarding evidence concerning exposure to power frequency electromagnetic fields and the risks of cancer as set out in their published reviews. They noted, however, that the California report also examined the possible effects of power frequency electromagnetic fields on a number of other diseases. NRPB is shortly to publish a review by the advisory group on electromagnetic fields and neurodegenerative diseases.

Special Care Baby Units

Mr. Pollard: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what Government initiatives there are to recruit and retain qualified nursing staff for special care baby units; whether there is funding available to recruit and train such staff; what his guidance is on the criteria for closing special care baby units; and if he will make a statement. [12010]

Jacqui Smith: In the first year of the NHS Plan period, the number of nurses employed in the national health service increased by 6,310. We are committed to increasing the number of nurses and are increasing training places, encouraging former staff to return, and increasing international recruitment. The NHS is also changing to become a modern flexible employer.

The staffing of all services should inform a trust's recruitment and retention strategy.

It is for local health communities to decide on the pattern of service provision, including services provided by special care baby units, taking into account the needs of local people, evidence of effectiveness and available resources. The maternity and neonatal work force working group that we set up earlier this year will make recommendations on work force issues and models for configuring maternity services. Its work will feed into the development of the forthcoming national service framework for children and maternity services.

Mental Health

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent assessment he has made of the effect on NHS mental health services of restrictions imposed by councils on the number of placements to be made by social services in nursing or residential homes; and if he will make a statement. [12052]

Jacqui Smith: There has been no specific assessment of the effect on national health service mental health services of restrictions that any local authorities may have chosen to impose on the number of placements to be made by social services in nursing or residential homes. Most people with mental health problems are able to live in the community, and many of those people who are admitted to hospital with mental health problems are able to return to their own homes, or to families, on discharge.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which (a) voluntary and (b) independent sector groups have been involved in the planning and implementation of the national service framework for mental health. [12053]

Jacqui Smith: Many representatives of charitable and voluntary organisations, including representatives of service user and carer groups, were involved in helping to develop the national service framework for mental health through the external reference group and many continue to be involved in implementation, either through project work led by the Department and/or the mental health taskforce.

Care of the Elderly (Buckinghamshire)

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on funding for the care of the elderly in Buckinghamshire. [12390]

Jacqui Smith: I recognise the importance of ensuring that appropriate health and social services are available for older people. Buckinghamshire health authority's spending on packages of care for older people has risen significantly year on year for the past three years. Spending on older people's services within Buckinghamshire social services department is slightly above the average spent on other client groups. The joint review of social services, carried out by the social services inspectorate and the Audit Commission, will be reviewing Buckinghamshire shortly.

On 9 October, my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State announced £300 million extra funding for local authorities to tackle bed blocking. Buckinghamshire was recognised as a local authority needing extra help and this year was given over £700,000 from that extra funding.

Dry Rot

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent guidance he has given to local councils on the treatment of dry rot and on which chemicals are permitted for its treatment. [12893]

Jacqui Smith: The Department has issued no such guidance to local authorities. Pesticide approvals for the treatment of dry rot are the responsibility of the Health and Safety Executive.

Consultation Documents

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many consultation documents were issued by his Department from (a) 15 October to 14 January, (b) 15 January to 14 April, (c) 15 April to 14 July and (d) 15 July to 14 October in each year from 1996. [12902]

Jacqui Smith: During the period 1996–2001, the following number of consultation documents were issued by the Department.

	1996	1997	1998	1999	2000	2001
15 January to 14 April	0	3	2	0	11	12
15 April to 14 July	2	0	4	3	7	7
15 July to 14 October	2	0	3	4	7	25
15 October to 14 January	3	1	1	6	7	[1]4
Total	7	4	10	13	32	48

[1] For the period 15–31 October 2001 only

MMR Vaccine

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the levels of uptake among two-year olds of MMR were in each NHS region in each quarter of the last five years. [12728]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 6 November 2001]: Data on measles, mumps and rubella uptake collected by the Public Health Laboratory service communicable disease surveillance centre are shown in the table.

Percentage

Year and Quarter	Eastern	London	North West	North and Yorkshire	South East	South West	Trent	West Midlands
1995-Q1	93.7	87.2	92.0	93.4	93.3	95.1	92.4	92.7
1995-Q2	93.6	86.5	91.0	92.08	92.9	94.5	93.1	92.1
1995-Q3	92.4	86.5	90.1	91.8	92.3	94.0	93.2	91.6
1995-Q4	92.7	86.7	90.6	90.8	91.9	93.7	92.0	92.5
1996-Q1	92.6	86.6	90.9	91.1	92.6	94.1	92.7	93.0
1996-Q2	92.8	86.2	91.1	91.3	92.4	93.8	93.1	92.8
1996-Q3	92.6	85.9	90.8	91.9	92.4	92.9	92.6	92.7
1996-Q4	93.3	85.8	91.4	92.4	92.0	93.2	93.4	92.2
1997-Q1	93.3	86.0	91.2	91.6	92.2	93.4	92.8	93.0
1997-Q2	92.8	85.0	90.2	91.5	91.4	92.8	89.5	91.8
1997-Q3	92.9	84.9	90.5	91.2	91.4	92.0	88.5	91.7
1997-Q4	92.4	84.4	90.5	91.5	90.8	92.2	87.7	92.2
1998-Q1	90.7	83.7	89.7	90.7	90.1	91.0	88.7	91.5
1998-Q2	89.3	82.2	88.3	89.8	88.6	90.1	88.4	90.1
1998-Q3	89.0	81.6	88.2	89.4	88.2	90.0	88.9	90.7
1998-Q4	88.1	79.8	87.6	88.8	87.9	89.5	90.8	89.5
1999-Q1	88.7	79.7	87.6	89.4	88.3	89.9	90.4	89.3
1999-Q2	88.4	80.0	87.3	88.5	87.8	89.0	91.0	89.4
1999-Q3	88.9	79.3	88.3	89.1	87.9	88.9	91.0	89.2
1999-Q4	89.0	81.6	88.9	90.0	87.5	88.3	90.7	89.4
2000-Q1	89.9	80.0	88.4	89.4	87.6	88.6	91.6	89.3
2000-Q2	89.4	79.2	88.9	89.8	87.3	89.1	91.1	89.3
2000-Q3	89.3	78.8	88.7	89.5	87.5	87.9	91.7	88.7
2000-Q4	87.4	76.4	86.5	88.5	85.9	86.6	90.4	87.8
2001-Q1	85.9	72.3	85.6	85.9	84.0	85.7	88.2	85.7

Note:
Data collected through the PHLS CDSC's cover programme. Data are presented by quarter of the financial year (that is, quarter one runs from 1 April to 30 June, quarter two from 1 July to 30 September and so on).

Consultants

Mr. Jack: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many more consultants, broken down by specialty, will be appointed by 2004, above the number in post in 2000. [13059]

Mr. Hutton [holding answer 8 November 2001]: The NHS plan stated there would be 7,500 more consultants in post in 2004 than in 1999. By September 2000, the number of consultants in post had already increased by 1,100 to around 24,300. The national health service is currently drawing up plans by specialty to deliver the rest of the increase, a further 6,400 posts by 2004, which will be targeted towards the key specialties needed to deliver the commitments in the NHS plan. Information for the year to September 2001 will be available in February 2002.

Mr. Jack: To ask the Secretary of State for Health from which sources extra consultants will come in accordance with targets for 2004 detailed in the NHS Plan. [13060]

Mr. Hutton [holding answer 8 November 2001]: Around 6,500 of the 7,500 increase will come from doctors currently working in the national health service, not in consultant posts. The rest will come from international recruitment and improved retention of existing consultants.

Nursing Care

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) when he expects the assessments to be completed on those patients who were receiving nursing care on 1 October but had not yet been assessed for free nursing care; [13151]

(2) how many patients were estimated to qualify for free nursing care on 1 October; and how many had been assessed for free nursing care by 1 October; [13152]

(3) what reason he has placed (a) an upper fiscal restriction on free nursing care in care homes and (b) no fiscal restrictions where the NHS provides nursing care in other settings; [13155]

(4) what (a) measures he has taken and (b) guidance he has issued to minimise delays in making advance payments in respect of self-funded residents in nursing homes; [13156]

(5) he will make a statement on the processes and procedures that have been adopted to assess people for free nursing care; [13161]

(6) when he expects all of the patients who are expected to have qualified for free nursing care on 1 October to have been assessed for free nursing care; [13162]

(7) what estimates he has made of the number of patients who will have to contribute to the cost of their nursing care because it costs more to provide than the banding system permits. [13241]

Jacqui Smith: The guidance on free nursing care in nursing homes was published on 25 September. This, and the accompanying directions to the national health service, set out the arrangements for health authorities and primary care trusts to carry out determinations of registered nursing care contribution (RNCC) for those eligible for free nursing care from 1 October. They should use their best endeavours to ensure that these are completed by the end of December and should agree the arrangements for making payments to nursing homes in respect of self-funding residents with effect from 1 October. The guidance also emphasised the need to process invoices from nursing homes as promptly as possible.

A survey carried out over the summer by the Department revealed that there were over 42,000 people in nursing homes responsible for funding their own care. While a small number of determinations were planned to take place before 1 October, the vast majority will have taken place after then.

The guidance acknowledges that, in some cases, individuals will be identified through the assessment and RNCC process who have exceptional long term needs for nursing care, both in amount and type, that do not meet local criteria for NHS continuing health care. The national health service has a similar responsibility to arrange or fund the services that individuals in nursing homes need as they would if they were receiving treatment in any other setting.

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if he will make a statement on the type of training being given to nurses responsible for carrying out assessments for free nursing care; and how long the training lasts; [13153]

(2) how many nurses will be required in England and Wales to assess patients' eligibility for free nursing care; [13157]

(3) who, other than a state registered nurse, will be (a) involved in and (b) responsible for determining whether a patient is eligible for free nursing care; [13159]

(4) how many nurses will be (a) involved in and (b) responsible for determining each patient's eligibility for free nursing care. [13160]

Jacqui Smith: A programme of nurse training began in every region of England at the beginning of September and, by the end of October, a total of approximately 800 nurses had received training in carrying out the registered nursing care contribution (RNCC). The training lasted a full day and was supported by a practitioner guide published by the Department.

Apart from these national health service nurses, the guidance on free nursing care in nursing homes sets out the roles of lead nurses and nursing home co-ordinators who will also be involved in the process for implementing free nursing care. In some cases, nurses employed by nursing homes may also be involved in the determination. A single nurse will usually carry out the RNCC unless the individual has specific and special needs. In certain cases, a separate continence assessment may need to be carried out by a continence adviser at a later date.

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Health for what reasons those suffering from dementia and Alzheimer's are not eligible for free nursing care. [13242]

Jacqui Smith: Anyone currently in a nursing home with a need for care from a registered nurse and who is paying towards that care should have it paid for by the national health service following a determination carried out by an NHS nurse under the arrangements for free nursing care introduced on 1 October. This applies equally to those with Alzheimer's disease and dementia as it does to other conditions.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Sexual and Reproductive Health

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on the definition of equal and free access to sexual and reproductive health care as included in the Northern Ireland Human Rights Commission's document, "Making a Bill of Rights for Northern Ireland". [12313]

Mr. Browne: The Northern Ireland Human Rights Commission consultation document refers to:

> "... the right to have equal and free access to sexual and reproductive health care and to information and education relating to sexual and reproductive matters at all levels, free from coercion, discrimination or violence".

Full consideration will be given to the final recommendations made by the Commission when they are presented to the Government next year. If any clarification is needed on any of those recommendations, the Government will seek such clarification at that time.

Abortion

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps he will take to assist the Northern Ireland Human Rights Commission reconcile different views on abortion in the proposed Bill of Rights for Northern Ireland. [12314]

Mr. Browne: In the consultation document published by the Northern Ireland Human Rights Commission on 4 September this year, the Commission specifically excluded the abortion issue from any potential Bill of Rights for Northern Ireland.

Parades Commission

Mr. Donaldson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland who the line manager is for an authorised officer of the Parades Commission. [11934]

Jane Kennedy: Authorised officers are self employed individuals contracted to the Parades Commission. Co-ordination of the authorised officers is carried out at Deputy Principal level within the Secretariat.

Mr. Donaldson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many authorised officers have been remunerated over the past 12 months; how they are appointed; under what terms; and what has been their individual remuneration. [11932]

Jane Kennedy: Over the course of the past 12 months the Parades Commission has remunerated 15 authorised officers. Recruitment was carried out by the Mediation Network for Northern Ireland on behalf of the Parades Commission. Authorised officers are contracted for a minimum of 100 days per annum and their remit includes mediation, education and community development. Remuneration for authorised officers is currently £10,200 plus expenses per annum.

Mr. Donaldson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland who decides the appointment of the Parades Commission commissioners, the length of contract and level of remuneration. [11930]

Jane Kennedy: The appointments process is carried out in accordance with the Peach principles, and includes an external scrutiny element.

The posts are publicly advertised in the press and a selection panel meets to consider the applications received and a decision is taken whether to shortlist the candidates or invite all candidates for an interview. Candidates are interviewed by a selection panel, and a suitability submission is prepared for the Secretary of State's final approval of prospective commissioners.

Under the terms of Schedule 1 of the Public Processions (NI) Act 1998 the Chairman and other members of the Commission shall be appointed for a term not exceeding three years subject to the provisions within the Act.

Also under the terms of Schedule 1 of the Public Processions (NI) Act 1998 the Secretary of State may pay to the Chairman and other members of the Commission such remuneration as the Secretary of State may determine.

Mr. Donaldson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will list the Parades Commission commissioners indicating their background prior to appointment, their other remunerated public or private posts and the time they are expected to commit to the Parades Commission over the period of one year. [11931]

Jane Kennedy: A list of the Parades Commission members and their backgrounds is available in the Parades Commission's Third Annual Report which was published in June, a copy of which is available in the Library of this House.

An update of Parades Commission members' backgrounds and interests is currently being compiled, and will be available at a later date.

Subject to provisions under paragraph 3, Schedule 1 of the Public Processions (NI) Act 1998, a person shall hold and vacate office as a member, or as chairman of the Commission, in accordance with the terms of his appointment. Remuneration as a member of the Parades Commission is for an average of two days per week.

Mr. Donaldson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the travel expenses of the Chairman of the Parades Commission have been since his appointment, broken down by (a) his first year in office, (b) the year to date, (c) travel to/from Northern Ireland and (d) internal travel in Northern Ireland. [11929]

Jane Kennedy: During his first year in office (February 2000-February 2001) £18,546 was incurred on travel. Up to and including 26 October 2001 the figure was £12,449. The amount spent on travel to and from Northern Ireland from the date of his appointment until 26 October 2001 was £21,398. The cost of internal travel in Northern Ireland for the same period was £9,597. These figures do not include travel in London which was unavailable in the format required and would incur disproportionate costs to compile.

Mr. Donaldson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on the procedure for complaint with respect to the work of an authorised officer of the Parades Commission. [11933]

Jane Kennedy: Any complaints about the work of authorised officers should be made, if necessary in writing, to the Parades Commission.

Mr. Donaldson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many nights the Chairman of the Parades Commission has spent in Northern Ireland; and what the estimated cost of the provision of overnight accommodation is. [11928]

Jane Kennedy: Since his appointment the Chairman of the Parades Commission has spent 126 nights in Northern Ireland. Rented accommodation is provided at a cost of £8,340 per annum.

Mr. Donaldson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland when the Chairman of the Parades Commission was appointed; what his (a) length of contract and (b) level of remuneration is; and what criteria will be used to assess whether his time in office has been successful. [11927]

Jane Kennedy: The Chairman of the Parades Commission was appointed on 19 February 2000 for a period of two years. Remuneration for the Chairman is £50,400 plus expenses per annum. The normal range of factors applying to public appointments will be taken into account in assessing the chairman's contribution.

Mr. Donaldson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people the Parades Commission employs, broken down by levels of remuneration. [11926]

Jane Kennedy: The Parades Commission consists of six members each earning £26,000 plus expenses per annum and a Chairman earning £50,400 plus expenses per annum. The Commission is assisted by a Secretariat currently staffed by a total of 11 seconded civil servants. The cost of the Secretariat salaries in 2000–01 was £285,000.

Paramilitary Violence

Rev. Martin Smyth: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many (a) punishment beatings, (b) punishment shootings and (c) murders there were in Northern Ireland in each (i) week and (ii) month from 1 April to 30 September; and if he will indicate for each week and month how many of those crimes were committed by (A) republican, (B) loyalist and (C) other groups. [11992]

Jane Kennedy: Statistics on paramilitary style attacks and murders as a result of the security situation between 1 April 2001 and 30 September 2001 are given in the following tables.

Casualties as a result of paramilitary style attacks and murders by attribution 1 April to 30 September 2001 (weekly)

	Paramilitary style shootings		Paramilitary style assaults		Murders
Week	Loyalist	Republican	Loyalist	Republican	Loyalist	Republican
1 April	0	0	0	0	0	0
2–8 April	4	0	2	2	0	0
9–15 April	2	3	3	0	1	0
16–22 April	3	1	0	1	0	1
23–29 April	3	0	1	0	0	0
30 April-6 May	0	0	2	0	0	1
7–13 May	2	0	1	1	0	0
14–20 May	3	2	0	0	0	0
21–27 May	2	1	4	4	1	0
28 May-3 June	2	0	0	2	0	0
4–10 June	4	1	0	0	0	0
11–17 June	0	0	2	0	0	0
18–24 June	5	2	2	0	1	0
25 June-1 July	5	2	1	2	0	0
2–8 July	1	0	3	0	1	0
9–15 July	2	0	1	1	0	0
16–22 July	2	2	7	0	0	0
23–29 July	3	1	2	0	1	0
30 July-5 August	0	3	0	0	0	0
6–12 August	3	3	1	0	0	0
13–19 August	0	2	1	0	0	0
20–26 August	5	5	1	0	0	0
27 August-2 September	2	1	1	2	0	0
3–9 September	2	5	0	0	0	0
10–16 September	3	2	1	2	0	0
17–23 September	0	2	2	0	0	0
24–30 September	3	1	1	0	1	0

Note:
Statistics for the 2000–02 financial year are provisional at this stage and may be subject to minor amendment at a later date.

Casualties as a result of paramilitary style attacks and murders by attribution 1 April to 30 September 2001 (monthly)

	Paramilitary style shootings		Paramilitary style assaults		Murders
Month	Loyalist	Republican	Loyalist	Republican	Loyalist	Republican
April	12	4	6	3	1	1
May	8	3	7	7	1	1
June	15	5	5	2	1	0
July	8	5	13	1	2	0
August	10	11	3	1	0	0
September	8	11	5	3	1	0

Note:
Statistics for the 2001–02 financial year are provisional at this stage and may be subject to minor amendment at a later date.

Departmental Assets

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what stocks of (a) antiques, (b) paintings and (c) fine wines are held by his Department; if he will list such assets sold over the last three years together with the sale proceeds from such transactions; what plans he has to sell further such assets over the period of the current Comprehensive Spending Review; and if he will make a statement. [10841]

Dr. John Reid: I refer the hon. Member to the National Asset Register (Cm5221 July 2001), which gives full details of departmental asset holdings. A reference to the Northern Ireland Office's pure heritage assets may be found on page 808 of that report.

Computer Crime

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many cases of computer (a) hacking, (b) fraud and (c) theft his Department recorded in (i) 2000 and (ii) 2001; and on how many occasions in those years computer systems have been illegally accessed by computer hackers (A) within and (B) outside his Department. [13131]

Dr. John Reid: There was one case of computer hacking in the Northern Ireland Office in 2000, and there have been two to date this year. Of these, two were perpetrated by insiders, and one was an attack by an outsider on one of the Department's web pages.

There were no cases of computer theft (including fraud) in 2000, and there have been two to date this year. Both of these were perpetrated by outsiders.

Departmental Publications

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much his Department spent on information literature, advertising and campaign material in the financial years (a) 1995–96, (b) 1996–97, (c) 1997–98, (d) 1998–99 (e) 1999–2000 and (f) 2000–01; and if he will make a statement. [12266]

Dr. John Reid: The advertising campaigns for each of the past six years incurred the following costs:

Year	£
1995–96	[1]—
1996–97	135,938.07
1997–98	477,726.16
1998–99	887,303.00
1999–2000	330,630.95
2000–01	85,827.00

[1] Not available

Royal Ulster Constabulary (Overtime)

Mr. Blunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what overtime costs have been incurred each month during 2001 by the RUC dealing with public disorder. [11072]

Jane Kennedy: The table details the monthly overtime cost for the current year to 30 September (regular and full-time reserve). The Police Service of Northern Ireland cannot readily identify that part of the overtime costs which relates to police officers dealing with public disorder. It is intended to introduce activity analysis data collection but this will not be implemented until April 2002.

In the absence of a database, the task of ascertaining definitive figures would represent a major undertaking and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

£000

Month	Overtime
April	3,531
May	3,035
June	4,232
July	4,520
August	7,809
September	5,160
Total	28,287

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Computer Crime

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many cases of computer (a) hacking, (b) fraud and (c) theft his Department has recorded in (i) 2000 and (ii) 2001; and on how many occasions in those years computer systems have been illegally accessed by computer hackers (A) within and (B) outside his Department. [13134]

Mr. MacShane: The number of recorded cases is as follows:

	2000	2001
Hacking	2	3
Fraud	0	0
Theft	7	2

Of the five cases of computer hacking in 2000 and 2001, one was carried out by an insider and the remaining four by persons outside the Department.

Euro

Mr. Bryant: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what information is being provided to British travellers about the effect of the introduction of euro notes and coins. [14306]

Peter Hain: Euro notes and coins will be introduced on 1 January 2002. They will replace national notes and coins in the 12 countries that participate in the single currency. We estimate that in 2002 British citizens will make 40 million visits to those countries. So I am today launching a leaflet that provides basic factual information for UK travellers on the transition to euro notes and coins in the relevant countries. Copies of the leaflet have been placed in the Libraries of the House.

The leaflet is a joint production with HMT and DTI. It will supplement the information already available on the FCO website www.fco.gov.uk.

San Francisco

Mr. Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many Ministers from his Department have visited San Francisco since May 1997; and how many have stayed at the consul general's house. [13526]

Mr. MacShane: Our records show that there have been no FCO ministerial visits to San Francisco since May 1997.

Mr. Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if the Permanent Under-Secretary of his Department has visited San Francisco since his appointment. [13532]

Mr. MacShane: Sir John Kerr has not visited San Francisco as Permanent Under-Secretary, but of course did so when Ambassador to the United States.

Mr. Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many serving Prime Ministers have visited San Francisco since 1979. [13527]

Mr. MacShane: Since 1979, there have been no prime ministerial visits to San Francisco.

Mr. Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what consultations he has undertaken with (a) the local chamber of commerce and (b) other business organisations in San Francisco with respect to the impact of the sale of the consul general's house there. [13529]

Mr. MacShane: Issues relating to the sale of the current house have been covered in correspondence this year between FCO Ministers and officials with the British American Chamber of Commerce, Northern California, which represent many British business organisations in the San Francisco area.

Mr. Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans he has to sell the consul general's house in San Francisco. [13525]

Mr. MacShane: The consul general, in conjunction with Estates Strategy Unit at the FCO, is seeking alternative property opportunities that will not only provide better value for money than the present house, but will also fully support the wider, especially commercial, objectives of the consulate general.

Mr. Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he has consulted the DTI on the forthcoming sale of the consul general's house in San Francisco. [13530]

Mr. MacShane: Yes.

LORD CHANCELLOR'S DEPARTMENT

Departmental Assets

Mr. Laws: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what stocks of (a) antiques, (b) paintings and (c) fine wines are held by his Department; if he will list such assets sold over the last three years together with the sale proceeds from such transactions; what plans he has to sell further such assets over the period of the current Comprehensive Spending Review; and if he will make a statement. [10838]

Mr. Wills: The stocks of antiques, paintings and fine wines held by the Lord Chancellor's Department are as follows:

Antiques: 484 items valued at £1,405,062,65

Paintings: 78 items valued at £395,000

Fine wines: nil.

There have been no disposals in the last three years and no disposals are planned for the next three years. It is not the Department's policy to capitalise non-operational antiques such as paintings and works of art. Such items are not therefore included in our National Asset Register entry. The information given here is taken from a recent valuation exercise, undertaken both to assess the materiality of such items and for stewardship purposes.

Operational antiques are included in the register under furniture and fittings.

Departmental Publications

Dr. Cable: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department how much his Department spent on information literature, advertising and campaign material in the financial years (a) 1995–96, (b) 1996–97, (c) 1997–98, (d) 1998–99 (e) 1999–2000 and (f) 2000–01; and if he will make a statement. [12255]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information requested is not readily available. I shall write to the hon. Member as soon as the information has been collated.

Community Court Order Warrants

Simon Hughes: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department which agency has responsibility for the enforcement of warrants following the breach of a community court order; and if he will make a statement. [13830]

Mr. Wills: According to the Greater London Magistrates Courts Authority and other magistrates courts committees, the numbers of community penalty breach warrants issued between 1 April 2001 and 31 August 2001, which were not executed or withdrawn before 28 September 2001, are:

(a) London—907

(b) West Midlands—494

(c) Greater Manchester—613.

Simon Hughes: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department how many warrants for breach of a community court order issued after 1 April remain unexecuted in (a) the London probation area, (b) the West Midlands probation area and (c) the Greater Manchester probation area; and if he will make a statement. [13833]

Mr. Wills: Warrants are usually addressed to both police constables and persons authorised by the court to deal with enforcement.

Lead responsibility for execution of community penalty breach warrants was transferred from the police to magistrates courts committees on 1 April 2001. Each magistrates courts committee decides its own enforcement strategy. Some committees have elected to employ civilian enforcement officers or approved enforcement agencies to execute warrants; others have contracted this work back to the local police force.

TREASURY

EU Prospectus Directive

Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what the Government's policy is on the proposed EC prospectus directive; and if he will make a statement; [12978]

(2) what representations he has received about the proposed EC Prospectus Directive; and if he will make a statement; [12977]

(3) what estimate he has made of the total cost to business of the proposed EC Prospectus Directive; and if he will make a statement; [12979]

(4) pursuant to the answer of 1 November 2001, Official Report, column 798W, on the EC Prospectus Directive, if he will quantify the likely increase in the disclosure costs of small and medium sized companies. [13218]

Ruth Kelly: An effective single passport for issuers was identified as a priority for completion of the single European market in financial services at the Lisbon Council in spring 2000. The UK Government's policy is that the prospectus directive should achieve this goal; and that it meets the aim of reducing the cost of raising capital for EU companies, especially SMEs.

The directive, as currently drafted, could lead to an increase in the disclosure costs of issuers, and an increase in the cost to UK businesses of accessing capital by issuing securities. However, negotiations are at an early stage, and there are a number of issues that are as yet unclear, such as the directive's relationship with other existing directives, and the way that its provisions will be used. As the negotiations continue, the likely impact of the directive will be kept under close review.

HM Treasury has actively sought the views of interested parties, has received a significant number of submissions from the UK financial services industry, and is engaging with industry practitioners on an ongoing basis through round-table consultation meetings.

Rating Appeals

Mr. Heald: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what steps are being taken by the Valuation Office to reduce delays in rating appeals; [13233]

(2) what the average delay is in valuation officers considering rating appeals (a) in each Valuation Office area and (b) nationally; [13232]

(3) if he will make a statement on the time taken before rating appeals are considered by the Valuation Office. [13234]

Ruth Kelly: So far during the current financial year, a total of 132,847 appeals against the 2000 rating lists have been settled and they took an average of 314 days to settle. The average for each group valuation office area is not readily available.

Rating appeals received by the Valuation Office Agency are considered immediately and categorised accordingly. Where there is a question of hardship (including foot and mouth related appeals) they are given priority. Others are allocated to published programmes, whereby they are dealt with by category and chronology.

The position is continually under review to ensure that appeals are considered as quickly as possible.

Financial Services Authority

Mr. Chope: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what action he took in (a) 1999 and (b) 2000 to assess whether the Financial Services Authority was in compliance with the service level agreement concluded on 18 December 1998; [12818]

(2) how many people in the Treasury are involved in supervising the service level agreement with the Financial Services Authority, dated 18 December 1998. [12819]

Ruth Kelly: Until the implementation of the provisions of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000, interim arrangements have been in place. These are designed to create the benefits of the new regime as far as possible under existing legislation. Under these arrangements, the Treasury has contracted out to the FSA the prudential supervision of insurance companies.

Staff in both the financial regulation industry and corporate services directorates are involved in the service level agreement. Formal quarterly meetings are held to discuss insurance issues. In addition, Treasury and FSA officials meet frequently, either with other colleagues, or bilaterally, to discuss a wide range of issues about the stability and competitiveness of insurance and other markets, and relevant regulation and legislation.

Golden Jubilee

Mrs. Lawrence: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if her Majesty's Government plan to issue a gold sovereign of new design in celebration of the Golden Jubilee of Her Majesty the Queen. [14307]

Mr. Gordon Brown: Her Majesty the Queen has been graciously pleased to approve my recommendation that next year a design showing the Royal Arms within a wreath of laurel should appear on the reverse of the gold sovereign.

The design is inspired by that on sovereigns struck during the first 50 years of the reign of Queen Victoria and for numismatists there will accordingly be a pleasing link between Queen Victoria's Golden Jubilee of 1887 and next year's Golden Jubilee of Her Majesty the Queen. The new design, whose use will be extended to half-sovereigns, double-sovereigns and five-pound pieces, will be adopted only for the Jubilee year, after which the regular design of St. George and the Dragon will be restored.

It is expected that coins with the new design will be available for sale from early next year.

Treasury Supervision (Money Outlets)

Barbara Follett: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans he has to supervise the regulation of (a) bureaux de change, (b) cheque cashers and (c) money transmission agents. [14473]

Ruth Kelly: Regulations are today being laid before Parliament to implement a regulatory regime for bureaux de change, cheque cashers and money transmission agents as recommended in the June 2000 PIU report "Recovering the Proceeds of Crime". The regime will come into force on 12 November.

Job Vacancies

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when, and for what reason, he suspended the publication of job vacancy statistics; and when he expects to resume publication of such statistics. [12656]

Ruth Kelly [holding answer 5 November 2001]: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician. I have asked him to reply.

Letter from Len Cook to Mr. Jim Cousins, dated 9 November 2001:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question relating to the publication of job vacancy statistics. (12656)

The Office for National Statistics (ONS) issued a press release at 9.30am on 11 September 2001 announcing the deferral of Jobcentre vacancy statistics from 12 September 2001. This was due to discontinuities which arose from changes in the Employment Services's methods for recording job vacancies.

'Employer Direct' is being gradually introduced across Great Britain to modernise and enhance the way the Employment Service deals with vacancies to provide a more flexible and convenient service for employers. It involves transferring the vacancy taking process from local Jobcentres to regional customer service centres. Research by the Employment Service shows that it has the following effects on the Jobcentre vacancy data from May 2001:

A temporary reduction in the recorded level of outflows and placings owing to some delays in following up vacancies with employers associated with the introduction of the new arrangements.

An increase in the recorded level of newly notified vacancies.

Both the above effects lead to an increase in the recorded stock of unfilled vacancies.

ONS and the Employment Service are continuing to monitor and review the data with the aim of resuming publication as soon as it is possible to produce consistent statistics.

Mr. Miliband: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many job vacancies there are in (a) South Shields, (b) Tyne and Wear and (c) the north-east; how many there were 12 months ago; and what is the national vacancy rate per 1,000 of population. [13263]

Ruth Kelly: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician. I have asked him to reply.

Letter from Len Cook to Mr. David Miliband, dated 9 November 2001:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent parliamentary question asking for the number of job vacancies in South Shields, Tyne and Wear and the North East 12 months ago; and the national vacancy rate per 1,000 of population. (13263)

Statistics on Jobcentre vacancies are available up to April 2001. Later statistics have been deferred due to discontinuities which arose from changes in the Employment Service's methods for recording job vacancies.

The table below shows the number of unfilled Jobcentre vacancies (not seasonally adjusted) for April 2000 and April 2001 in the South Shields and Tyne and Wear Jobcentre areas, the North East region and Great Britain.

Jobcentre vacancies represent only a proportion of all vacancies in the economy—just those vacancies notified to the Employment Service. The proportion is likely to vary over time, across geographical areas and between different skills and occupations. Expression of such figures as a rate per 1000 population is therefore not appropriate.

Unfilled Jobcentre vacancies

Jobcentres	April 2000	April 2001
South Shields	618	1,032
Tyne and Wear	8,153	11,662
North East Region	17,654	23,586
Great Britain	332,511	362,504

Equitable Life

Mr. Chope: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the impact on the future for Equitable Life Assurance of the society compromise due to be voted on; and if he will make a statement. [13255]

Ruth Kelly: This is a matter for the board of Equitable Life and the members of the society.

Student Loans

Mr. Illsley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the future of student loans. [11347]

Mr. Andrew Smith: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Education and Skills announced on 4 October that she is leading a review of student funding. This will examine the appropriate balance between the contribution made by students, their families and the state to support our ambitions to widen access and participation in higher education.

Limited Companies

Chris Grayling: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer in what circumstances he will provide security for the debt of a company limited by guarantee. [12739]

Mr. Jamieson: I have been asked to reply.

I refer the hon. Member to the replies given by right hon. Friend the Secretary of State to my hon. Friend the Member for Preston (Mr. Hendrick) on 23 October 2001, Official Report, columns 195–97W, and to the right hon. Member for Wokingham (Mr. Redwood) on 31 October 2001, Official Report, column 671W.

European Crime Convention

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the effect of the draft protocol to the 2000 convention on mutual assistance in criminal matters between the member states of the European Union (10076/01; Council) and UK banks; and for what reason Article 50 of the Schengen Convention is repealed thereby. [13001]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I have been asked to reply.

This draft Protocol builds on the European Union (EU) Mutual Legal Assistance Convention 2000. It imposes obligations on member states to respond to requests from other member states for information on bank accounts in the context of criminal investigations. There is a further obligation to establish the ability to monitor transactions within a specified account or accounts. Consideration is taking place as to the practical implications of this draft instrument for the banks and others.

Article 50 of the convention implementing the Schengen Agreement of 14 June 1985 relates only to assistance in the investigation of fiscal and excise offences. It is therefore of narrower scope, and will be superseded by this instrument when it comes into force.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

International Sporting Events (Special Needs Funding)

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what sources of funding are available to enable young people with special educational needs to participate in international sporting events. [10542]

Mr. Caborn [holding answer 26 October 2001]: At present, the main source of funding to athletes with a disability is provided by UK Sport through its World Class Performance Programme (WCPP) for elite athletes. Young people with special educational needs may be eligible for world class funding, provided they are named members of a national governing body's world class performance plan.

Funding is available within each sport's WCPP award for athletes to compete in a programme of international sporting events. These events usually include World Championships, European Championships and any other international events considered to be an important competitive opportunity for the athlete.

The athletes nominated on the WCPP receive individual support through their athlete personal awards. There are learning disability athletes included in two world class performance programmes—swimming and athletics. At present there are five athletes in athletics and six in swimming with learning disabilities. These athletes receive APAs and have access to funding to cover the costs of attending major international competitions, agreed with the performance and technical directors of the sports, within an agreed programme of events for the individuals and the squad.

As part of the world class funding initiatives, Sport England provides the world class start and potential programmes. These are designed to identify and nurture young athletes so they can receive the best possible training and services to enable them to achieve future success. The programmes aim to assist athletes with genuine hopes of success in the future.

Both UK Sport and Sport England have prioritised paralympic competitors for world class funding. Therefore, funds for non-paralympic sports are limited and rely on the network of volunteers and charitable organisations that exist throughout the country.

The Sports Aid Foundation gives awards of £500 to individual athletes nominated by national disability sports organisations who are of international standard although not included on the world class performance programme. The award is intended for domestic training costs but may be used for international travel events if applicable.

Individual governing bodies of sport directly fund athletes and teams to take part in international events. For example, the Football Association funds the England learning disability team and covers costs associated with squad training and major competitions. UK Sport also provides core funding to UK National Disability Sport Organisations such as the UK Sports Association for People with Learning Disability.

National Lottery (Sales Licences)

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) how many shops in England are licensed to sell lottery tickets; and how many of these have had a sales turnover in the last 12 months of less than £52,000; [12763]

(2) if she will prevent lottery licences having a minimum sales requirement included as a condition of those licences; [12761]

(3) if she will make it her policy to prevent retail lottery outlets being required to increase substantially their sales as a condition of renewal of their licences; and if she will make a statement. [12762]

Mr. Caborn: The terms of the contracts between national lottery retailer outlets and the National Lottery operator, Camelot Group plc, are a matter for Camelot.

I understand from Camelot that 24,751 retailers have on-line lottery terminals, and a further 10,439 sell national lottery scratchcards only. Of those retailers with on-line lottery terminals, 1,936 had lottery turnover of less than £52,000 over the last 12 months.

Culture and Audiovisual Council

Mr. Hood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the outcome was of the Culture and Audiovisual Council held in Brussels on 5 November; what the Government's stance was on each issue discussed, including its voting record; and if she will make a statement. [13269]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. and noble Friend the Minister of State for the Arts represented the UK at the Culture and Audiovisual Council.

The Commission presented a communication on the legal aspects of film and audiovisual works which clarified the application of state aid rules in the film and audiovisual sector, and proposed further studies on the legal deposit of audiovisual works, registration of films and a rights-holders database. The Commission also presented a communication on the application of rules on state aids to public service broadcasting which clarified what the Commission expects of member states.

Resolutions were adopted on: encouraging the development of the EU audiovisual sector; the role of culture in a knowledge society, including the need to take advantage of new technologies to increase access to the EU's cultural heritage; a report on the exportation of cultural goods and the return of cultural objects unlawfully removed from a member state; and the role of culture in the development of the European Union.

During a public debate on the role of culture in European development the UK emphasised the importance of culture in promoting social inclusion, cultural diversity and community cohesion, and reinforced the significant economic impact of the creative industries.

Public Sector Broadcasting

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when the Government will fulfil their obligations under the treaty of Amsterdam to define the role of public sector broadcasting. [13223]

Dr. Howells: The treaty of Amsterdam does not impose an obligation to define the remit of public service broadcasters and the interpretative protocol introduced by the treaty makes it clear that such a definition is a matter for member states. In its recent communication on the application of state aid rules to public service broadcasting, the European Commission considers that it is necessary to establish an official definition of the public service remit. The Government believe that the existing broadcasting legislation and licensing system and, in the case of the BBC, the Corporation's Charter and Agreement, clearly set out the remit for United Kingdom public service broadcasters.

British Films

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what European Union funds are available for (a) the production and (b) the distribution of British-made films. [13382]

Dr. Howells: The "i2i" Audiovisual Initiative will make funding of approximately 600 million euros available to the European audiovisual industry over the next few years. The initiative was launched by the European Commission, the European investment bank and the European investment fund in December 2000 and will support a wide range of activities, including production and distribution. Support will be in the form of loans for medium and long-term investments in infrastructure (such as studios); production of film packages and distribution; global loans to the banking sector specialising in audiovisual matters to fund small firms which create or use audiovisual technology and shareholdings in risk-capital funds specialising in the audiovisual sector.

The EU's Media Plus programme runs from 2001 to 2005 and will provide funding of 400 million euros to the European audiovisual industry. At the outset of the programme just over 200 million euros was earmarked for distribution. Media Plus does not provide support for production but is aimed at supporting training, development, promotion and pilot projects, as well as distribution. The "i2i" Audiovisual Initiative has, in part, been developed to complement the Media Plus programme in respect of production.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Money Laundering

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will provide a breakdown of how many convictions there have been for money laundering in total across the EU, and in each individual member state, in each of the last 10 years. [12393]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The term "money laundering" refers to a number of different offences. Information taken from the Home Office court proceedings database showing the number of persons convicted for money laundering offences during the period 1991 to 2000 in England and Wales is given in table 1.

Data for other European Union (EU) states are not collected regularly. The data in table 2 have been produced from a paper produced by the Financial Action Task Force (FATF) and was collected from the mutual evaluations of FATF members of which two rounds have occurred since 1991.

Table 1: Number of offenders convicted at all courts for money laundering offences, by type of offence, England and Wales, 1991–2000[1]

Code	Offence	1991	1992	1993	1994	1995	1996	1997	1998	1999	2000
Drug money laundering offences
93/49	S49 Drug Trafficking Act 194 (previously S14 Criminal Justice (International Co-operation) Act 1990)	[4]—	[4]—	[4]—	1	[4]—	[4]—	4	[4]—	12	5
93/50	S50 Drug Trafficking Act 1994 (previously S24 Drug Trafficking Offences Act 1986)[2] Assisting another person to retain the benefit of drug trafficking	[6]—	[6]—	4	4	3	2	11	9	9	16
93/51	S51 Drug Trafficking Act 1994 (previously S23A Drug Trafficking Offences Act 1986 as inserted by S16 Criminal Justice Act 1993) Acquisition, possession or use of other proceeds of drug trafficking	[5]—	[5]—	[5]—	[4]—	[4]—	3	13	7	9	5
93/52	S52 Drug Trafficking Act 1994. Failure to disclose knowledge or suspicion of money laundering	[5]—	[5]—	[5]—	[4]—	[4]—	[4]—	[4]—	[4]—	[4]—	[4]—
93/53	S53 Drug Trafficking Act 1994 Disclosure of information likely to prejudice an investigation ("tipping off")	[5]—	[5]—	[5]—	[4]—	[4]—	[4]—	[4]—	[4]—	[4]—	[4]—
	Total drug money laundering offences	[4]—	[4]—	4	5	3	5	28	16	30	26
Offence of laundering proceeds of other crime
53/26	S93A Criminal Justice Act 1988[3] as inserted by S29 Criminal Justice Act 1993 Assisting another to retain the benefit of criminal conduct	[5]—	[5]—	[5]—	[4]—	[4]—	2	10	4	4	9
53/27	S93B Criminal Justice Act 1988[3] as inserted by S30 Criminal Justice Act 1993 Acquisition, possession or use of proceeds of criminal conduct	[5]—	[5]—	[5]—	[4]—	[4]—	6	4	2	5	6
53/28	S93C Criminal Justice Act 1988[3] as inserted by S31 Criminal Justice Act 1993 Concealing or transferring proceeds of criminal conduct	[5]—	[5]—	[5]—	[4]—	[4]—	[4]—	1	4	[4]—	9
53/29	S93D Criminal Justice Act 1988[3] as inserted by S32 Criminal Justice Act 1993 Disclose of information likely to prejudice an investigation ("tipping off")	[5]—	[5]—	[5]—	[4]—	[4]—	[4]—	[4]—	[4]—	[4]—	[4]—
	Total for offences of laundering proceeds of other crime	[4]—	[4]—	[4]—	[4]—	[4]—	8	15	10	9	24
Total for all offences		[4]—	[4]—	4	5	3	13	43	26	39	50

[1] Excludes any convictions in Staffordshire

[2] Court Proceedings data prior to 1993 cannot separately identify offences under S24 Drug Trafficking Offences Act 1986 (since consolidated and replaced by S50 Drug Trafficking Act 1994) from other drug offences. For the years 1993, 1994 and 1995, a special exercise was undertaken to identify this specific offence. However as a 100 per cent. response from courts was not achieved 'estimates' for these three years were made.

[3] Sections 93A to 93D Criminal Justice Act 1988 came into force in February 1994.

[4] Nil return

[5] Not applicable

[6] Not available

Note:

All data are given on a principal offence basis

Table 2: Number of convictions for money laundering offences, in certain EU countries

Country	Year	Convictions
Belgium	1994–99	182
Denmark	1994–99	88
Germany	1994	16
	1995	15
	1996	30
Ireland	1995–99	11
Italy	1994	125
	1995
	1996

Source:
Financial Action Task Force

Overstayers

John Cryer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many applications were made under the regularisation scheme for overstayers; how many applicants have had their cases decided; and how many cases are (a) under consideration and (b) awaiting action. [12870]

Angela Eagle: A total of 17,120 applications were received for consideration under the regulations of overstayers scheme. Of these 858 applications have so far been decided. Work is under way to validate the status of cases currently under consideration, though early indications are that there are now 4,300 cases in action within the integrated casework directorate. The remaining 12,000 cases are awaiting action.

John Cryer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many caseworkers in the integrated casework directorate are engaged in considering applications under the regularisation scheme for overstayers; and if he has set a target date for the completion of consideration of applications under the scheme. [12804]

Angela Eagle: A dedicated unit in integrated casework directorate (ICD) north, currently comprising a senior caseworker and seven caseworkers, has been trained to consider applications under the regularisation scheme for overstayers. The resources allocated will be monitored closely as details emerge of the complexity of these cases and the productivity of this team. A target date of April 2002 has been set for the identification and consideration of cases where leave to remain can be granted under existing policy concessions. During the next financial year (2002–03) more caseworkers and resources will be devoted to the consideration of the remaining cases. The target date for the consideration of all cases is April 2003.

Incitement to Religious Hatred

Mr. Malins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prosecutions have taken place (a) for acts intended or likely to stir up racial hatred under sections 18, 19, 20, 21 and 22 of the Public Order Act 1986 and (b) under the Race Relations Act 1976; how many convictions resulted; and what were the (i) minimum and (ii) maximum sentences imposed. [12659]

Angela Eagle: The available information, provided by the Attorney-General's Office, relates to England and Wales for the years 1988 to date and is contained in the table. This relates to the number of applications for consent to prosecute for each year and the number of convictions resulting from the prosecutions. The whole of Part III of the Public Order Act 1986 is covered in the table, therefore including section 23 in addition to those sections requested.

The records relate to the year that the application for consent to prosecute was dealt with and so it is not possible to state with any certainty how many prosecutions resulted in convictions in any given year. Also, there are no centrally held records that can provide reliable information as to the minimum and maximum sentence imposed in any given year.

The Race Relations Act 1976 no longer includes provision for prosecuting offences of incitement to racial hatred, this having been transferred to Part III of the Public Order Act 1986.

Consent Applications and Prosecutions Since 1988 Under Part III of the Public Order Act 1986—England and Wales

Year	Number of Attorney-General consent applications (per defendant)	Withdrawn	Not granted	Prosecuted	Convicted (Not necessarily in the same year)
1988	3	—	1	2	2
1989	1	—	—	1	1
1990	2	—	—	2	2
1991	4	—	1	3	1
1992	5	—	2	3	2
1993	2	—	—	2	2
1994	2		—	2	2
1995	8	1	—	7	6
1996	13	1	—	12	9
1997	12		2	10	9
1998	2	1	—	1	1
1999	4		—	4	3
2000	5		—	5	[1]2
2001-to date	8		—	8	[2]—

[1] Two results outstanding

[2] Results awaited

Source:
Attorney-General's Office

Golden Jubilee Medal

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he expects to announce the conclusions of his review of his decision not to award the Golden Jubilee medal to the police; and if he will make a statement. [12667]

Mr. Caborn: I have been asked to reply.

The matter is under consideration and I hope to be in a position to make an announcement shortly.

Passports

Mr. Dobson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many newly issued passports were lost in the post in each of the last five years; how many were subsequently recovered; and how many duplicates were issued. [11959]

Angela Eagle [holding answer 6 November 2001]: The United Kingdom Passport Service only has information available for 1999 onwards on issued passports lost in the post. The figures for passports lost in the post and total passports issued are as follows:

Year	Lost passports	Passports issued
1999	2,359	5,134,172
2000	3,851	5,495,704
2001	[1]1,474	[1]4,890,941

[1] To September 2001

Information on total recoveries of passports is currently not routinely collected.

The figures for passports lost in the post are derived from reports of losses from members of the public and therefore all of these passports should have been replaced. There is an upward trend in the number of passports reported lost and this is of some concern to us.

The new digital passport has enhanced security features. These features would make it extremely difficult for someone who is in possession of a stolen passport to alter the document for use in a false identity.

Correspondence

Mr. Colman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he will reply to the letters of 9 May and 12 July, from the hon. Member for Putney, with regard to his constituent Mr. Rachid Boujelouah (Ref. R349629). [12686]

Angela Eagle [holding answer 7 November 2001]: I wrote to my hon. Friend on 8 November 2001. I am sorry it has taken so long to reply.

Incitement to Religious Hatred

Mr. Malins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the leaders of different faiths with whom he has consulted concerning the proposed law on incitement to religious hatred; and if he will place a copy of their responses in the Library. [13690]

Angela Eagle: I have had a number of discussions on this issue with leaders of different faith groups. However, the importance of acting rapidly in the context of the events of 11 September has meant that a formal consultation process could not take place.

The following Questions should have appeared in the Official Report for 16 October 2001, Volume 372

Police Vehicles

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what plans he has to introduce central purchasing of police vehicles; [6080]

(2) what guidance he issues to police forces concerning the purchasing of UK-made police vehicles. [6081]

Mr. Denham [holding answer 15 October 2001]: I would refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave him on 20 July 2001, Official Report, column 648W.

Written Answers to Questions

Monday 12 November 2001

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Sport

Mr. Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what discussions were held with Sport England on the establishment of the new opportunities fund for sport. [14108]

Mr. Caborn: I and my officials have held a number of meetings and conducted detailed correspondence with Sport England about the new opportunities for PE and school sport initiative.

Mr. Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the (a) start up and (b) operating costs are of the new opportunities fund for sport. [14107]

Mr. Caborn: The new opportunities school sport initiative is one of 13 programmes operated by the fund in the areas of health, education and the environment. The estimated direct costs for this programme to 31 March 2002 are £767,600 of which £97,600 represents start-up costs. Over the lifetime of its programmes, the new opportunities fund aims to keep its running costs within 5 per cent. of its lottery income.

Mr. Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans she has to merge the New Opportunities Fund for Sport organisation with Sport England; and if she will make a statement. [14106]

Mr. Caborn: The new opportunities fund is the body designated in the National Lottery Act 1998 to distribute lottery funds to initiatives concerned with health, education and the environment, one of which is the new opportunities for PE and school sport initiative. I have no plans to merge the new opportunities fund with Sport England.

Departmental Assets

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport, pursuant to his answer of 1 November 2001, Official Report, column 802W, on departmental assets, if he will estimate the value of the Government art collection; and if he will make a statement. [13125]

Dr. Howells: It is not possible to give an accurate estimate of the value of the Government art collection, which, as a non-operational heritage asset, has no current market valuation. The current monetary value of a work of art can be accurately assessed only at the time of its purchase or sale or by professional valuation. The collection is not actively traded, and it would not be a justifiable expenditure of public funds to have the whole collection valued professionally.

However, from 1 April 2000 additions to the collection have been included at cost in the asset register of the Department for Culture, Media and Sport, on the grounds that the purchase price provides a reliable basis for capitalisation. This accounting policy will apply to national museums and galleries and other collections from 1 April 2001. The value of purchased additions to the Government art collection as at 31 March 2001 is £124,000.

TRANSPORT, LOCAL GOVERNMENT AND THE REGIONS

Rough Sleepers Unit

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if the Rough Sleepers Unit will compile information about the number of hotel places in major centres of population. [10780]

Ms Keeble: The Rough Sleepers Unit already compiles information on the hostel bedspaces that it funds. In addition, local authorities around the country hold information on hostel bedspaces in their area.

The RSU required local authorities with significant numbers of rough sleepers to assess the provision of hostel accommodation in their areas in order to develop local rough sleeping strategies. This information is held and reviewed locally but has not been compiled centrally by the RSU.

However, the RSU is now considering its future beyond April 2002 and information on hostel provision will be an important feature of any future work. Therefore such information will be compiled in the new year.

Under the provisions of the Homelessness Bill, local housing authorities would be expected to review the resources available to the authority and its partners in their periodic homelessness reviews: this should include reviews of hostel and other accommodation available to homeless people.

West Coast Main Line

Mr. Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions on how many occasions in (a) 2001, (b) 2000 and (c) 1999 services on the west coast main line have been disrupted owing to collapse or other failure of the overhead power cables; and what average length of delay has been caused to passenger services as a result. [11505]

Mr. Jamieson: The following table from Railtrack shows the disruption to passenger and freight trains on the west coast main line caused by incidents involving overhead lines in 1999, 2000 and 2001. I understand that data are not separately available for passenger services only.

Disruption to WCML caused by incidents involving overhead lines 1 April 1999 to mid-October 2001

	Total minutes delay	Number of incidents
1999	67,019	358
2000	64,965	365
2001	111,971	371

London Underground

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he has asked the National Audit Office to evaluate the PPP bids for the London Underground once the final bids have been prepared; and if he will make a statement. [11614]

Mr. Jamieson: The National Audit Office produced a report into the financial analysis of the London Underground PPPs in December 2000. The NAO has examined the further work London Underground and its advisers are undertaking on the financial analysis of the PPPs, and found that London Underground intends to take the issues raised by the NAO in its earlier report on board. I understand that, while the NAO will continue to monitor the situation, it does not believe that a further report at this stage would be useful.

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions (1) what assumptions regarding the cost to the public sector of cost overruns he is planning to include in the guidance for the public sector comparator for assessing the public-private partnership bids for London Underground; [12387]

(2) what plans he has to make changes to the assumptions underlying the public sector comparator for assessing bids under the public-private partnership for London Underground; and if he will make a statement. [12388]

Mr. Jamieson: The Government's plans for a publicly run, privately built tube will deliver around £13 billion of investment to improve the underground's infrastructure over the next 15 years. The Secretary of State has made clear that he will only be prepared for these plans to go ahead if he is content that they represent value for money.

London Underground is carrying out a thorough evaluation of the value for money of bids, guided by the results of a public sector comparator. The detailed assumptions made in this comparator, including those on cost overruns, have been developed by London Underground, assisted by its engineering advisers Ove Arup and its financial advisers PricewaterhouseCoopers. I understand that London Underground, again assisted by its advisers, is currently reviewing the comparator to ensure that it represents a level-playing-field test for evaluating final bids.

The value for money evaluation of the London Underground PPPs will be made publicly available, but not until London Underground has concluded its negotiations with bidders. To publish the value for money evaluation any earlier would reveal London Underground's negotiating position and so undermine its ability to achieve best value.

Mr. Lammy: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what information he collates on the incidence of crime in underground stations. [13265]

Mr. Jamieson: This is a matter for the British Transport Police (BTP). The BTP collate all data in relation to incidences of crime on London Underground. They publish annual crime statistics for London Underground, using Home Office guidelines, within their annual report. A Crime and Disorder audit is carried out annually for underground stations and this is also provided to the Government, all boroughs in London and the Crime Director for London. The latest such report will be available very early in the new year.

Motorway Speed Limits

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what representations have been made by the police in the past five years in respect of raising the maximum speed limit on motorways in the UK to 80 mph. [12328]

Mr. Jamieson: None.

Area Cost Adjustment

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions (1) what external validation (a) will be and (b) has been applied to the use of New Earnings Survey statistical data used for distribution of the area cost adjustment for 2002–03; [12998]

(2) what steps he (a) will take and (b) has taken to ensure that small sample sizes in the New Earnings Survey data used for distribution of the area cost adjustment for 2002–03 are within acceptable statistical confidence limits; [12997]

(3) what criteria he uses to assess the acceptability of statistical confidence limits for data used for distribution of the area cost adjustment for 2002–03; [12996]

(4) what discussions his Department has had with the Office for National Statistics about the use of the New Earnings Survey in the calculation of the area cost adjustment for 2002–03. [12995]

Dr. Whitehead: The use of New Earnings Survey (NES) data for the purposes of calculating the area cost adjustment have been the same in every local government finance settlement since 1993–94. Ministers at the time, after extensive discussion with local government, decided that the current methodology was the most appropriate use of the data for distributing grant to local government. When the methodology was developed, there was consideration of sample sizes and whether to base the area cost adjustment on one or two years of NES data.

We announced on 20 July that we do not intend to change this long established methodology for 2002–03, while we review the grant distribution formulae as a whole in time for 2003–04. We have made careful checks that we are using the NES data in the usual way for 2002–03. This includes confirming that the NES data supplied to us by the Office for National Statistics (ONS) are correct, and validating the area cost adjustment calculations by ensuring that at least two members of our grant distribution team independently derive the same results. External validation by those outside Government is not possible because of the need to ensure the confidentiality of those included in the survey.

We have also been party to discussions between the ONS and the Association of London Government (ALG), who asked the ONS for an explanation of the movements in the data since last year. The ONS reply to the ALG confirms that the data that underpin the area cost adjustment for 2002–03 are correct. The reply is also a helpful contribution to our formula grant review. For example, it has a bearing on whether we should address possible volatility around small samples by using an average of two or three years of NES data for the area cost adjustment. Smoothing the area cost adjustment in this way is one of the options we are currently discussing with local government.

Dry Rot

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what recent guidance he has given to local councils on the treatment of dry rot and which chemicals are permitted for its treatment. [12892]

Dr. Whitehead: My Department does not provide local councils with guidance on the treatment of dry rot in timber but refers such inquiries to authoritative sources of information such as the Building Research Establishment and the British Wood Preserving and Damp Proofing Association.

Chemicals permitted for treatment of dry rot are approved under the Control of Pesticides Regulations 1986. The labels of approved pesticidal products will state which of these can be used specifically against dry rot. A list of all approved products is published in "Pesticides 2001"; this annually updated publication can be found in the Research Section of the House of Commons' Library.

Working Time Directive

Mr. Chaytor: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will make a statement on the operation of the working time directive in respect of HGV drivers. [10307]

Mr. Jamieson: [holding answer 6 November 2001]: There are two working time proposals that will affect drivers of large goods vehicles. First, parts of the horizontal amending directive (EC2000/34)—due to be implemented by 1 August 2003—will introduce some changes. Drivers will be subject to the 48 hour average working week, four weeks paid annual leave, health checks for night workers and a provision for adequate rest. As with existing working time legislation, workers will be able to sign an individual opt-out if they want to work longer than the 48 hour average.

The second proposal concerns mobile workers in the road transport sector and is still subject to negotiation in Brussels. The directive will only apply to drivers of large vehicles who are currently subject to EC drivers' hours rules (EC3820/85). It is clear that there will be no individual opt-out from the 48 hour average working week, but other significant issues have still to be resolved with the European Parliament. Negotiations should be complete by the end of this year, and we expect the new directive will be adopted in early 2002. Implementation in the UK will be in a further two to three years.

Pedestrian Protection

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what (a) proportion of seriously and fatally injured pedestrians received their injuries from being hit by the fronts of cars and (b) the main types of impacts for pedestrian deaths in serious injuries are. [13417]

Mr. Jamieson: It is estimated that, in 2000, 53 per cent. of all pedestrians fatally or seriously injured in road accidents received their injuries from being hit by the front of a car.

73 per cent. of pedestrians suffering fatal or serious injury in 2000 were hit by a car in a single vehicle accident; 19 per cent. were hit by other vehicles (i.e. not cars) in single vehicle accidents; and 8 per cent. were hit in accidents which involved more than one vehicle.

Noise Mitigation

Mr. Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions when he will publish the timetable for the implementation of the ring-fenced budget for noise mitigation measures. [13217]

Mr. Jamieson: The Government's policy of reducing the effects of traffic noise is being implemented through two programmes.

The Government's "Transport 2010: The 10 Year Plan" gives a commitment to surface at least 60 per cent. of the trunk roads, including all the concrete trunk roads, with quieter materials by 31 March 2011. We have a policy of using quieter surfaces as a matter of course whenever a road needs to be resurfaced and I recently announced the criteria to be used for prioritising the concrete trunk roads to be resurfaced with quieter materials.

The second programme, with an annual £5 million ring-fenced budget, is to provide noise mitigation measures in the most serious and pressing cases where practical and cost-effective measures can be provided.

Strategic Rail Authority

Mr. Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions which light rail projects have received support from the Strategic Rail Authority since it was established. [13146]

Mr. Jamieson: While it is not for the SRA to support particular light rail projects, they have co-operated with franchise operators and local authorities in furthering the development of light rail schemes for Tyne & Wear Metro, Manchester Metrolink, Nottingham Express Transit and the West Midlands Metro. The SRA are also working to facilitate development of the currently proposed project in Bristol.

Methyl Tertiary Butyl Ether

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what information he has collated on the number of US states which have banned the use of methyl tertiary butyl ether; and what discussions he has held with his US counterparts in the use of methyl tertiary butyl ether as a petrol additive. [13253]

Mr. Jamieson: The Department does not hold details on the use of MTBE in the United States. I understand that the US Federal Government is proposing to reduce significantly or eliminate MTBE in petrol due to public concern about MTBE in groundwater. MTBE is used significantly less in the UK and there is no evidence to indicate that contamination of groundwater presents a significant risk here.

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what his policy is on the use of methyl tertiary butyl ether; what plans he has to review the policy; and if he will make a statement. [13227]

Mr. Jamieson: Directive 98/70/EU (enacted by Statutory Instrument 1999 No. 3107) sets a limit of 15 per cent. on ethers containing five or more carbon atoms per molecule—which includes MTBE. For the UK as a whole, usage typically averages less than 0.5 per cent., with most production having none.

The main risk identified with MTBE, particularly in the USA, is to groundwater. In the UK public consultation has recently finished on a draft groundwater protection code for petrol stations and underground storage tanks to be made under Regulation 21 of the Groundwater Regulations 1998. This will provide advice on what processes/precautions need to be in place at petrol stations and other underground fuel storage areas to ensure protection of groundwater and compliance with the Groundwater Regulations.

Translation Services

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what translation services he ensures are available to local authorities in (a) England and (b) Staffordshire. [13500]

Dr. Whitehead: No such services are made available centrally to local authorities. It is up to each local authority to provide such services as are necessary in the light of their local circumstances.

Seller's Pack

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what plans he has to re-introduce legislation to make a seller's pack compulsory. [13807]

Ms Keeble: Legislation will be introduced when parliamentary time allows. In the meantime we are pressing ahead, in consultation with consumer representatives and the professional bodies, with developing the detailed contents of the seller's pack.

Aviation Industries

Paddy Tipping: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what recent discussions he has had with representatives of the airline and aerospace industries. [11335]

Mr. Spellar [holding answer 8 November 2001]: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given by the the Under-Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions, my hon. Friend the Member for Plymouth, Devonport (Mr. Jamieson), on 8 November 2001, Official Report, column 339W.

Central Trains

David Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what proportion of services provided by Central Trains in the last 12 months ran on time. [13460]

Mr. Jamieson: Over the last 12 months 72.5 per cent. of services provided by Central Trains ran on time. Services are deemed punctual if they arrive at their destination within five minutes of the timetable.

Council Housing

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions how many households in (a) council housing and (b) registered social landlord having in each local authority area in London will have target rents set as a consequence of the Government's rent restructuring proposals (i) less than £20 above current rents, (ii) £20 to £30 above current rents and (iii) £30 or more above current rents. [14072]

Ms Keeble: The information is not currently available. Social landlords will only have completed their property valuations and calculated their target rents under the reforms around the end of this calendar year.

Overcrowding (Trains)

Mr. Gordon Marsden: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions (1) what assessment his Department has made of the level of overcrowding on trains on routes between Blackpool and Birmingham; [13920]

(2) what assessment he has made of the adequacy of powers to ensure train operating companies take action to address overcrowding on trains. [13916]

Mr. Jamieson: No specific assessments have been made but all train operators have a general obligation in their franchise agreements to provide sufficient capacity to avoid excessive crowding. In the Metropolitan areas, Passenger Transport Executives specify overcrowding controls for the services they require. One of the aims of the new franchise policy announced by the Secretary of State in July was to instruct the Strategic Rail Authority to reduce overcrowding and negotiate new franchises or extensions to secure the necessary improvement in capacity.

Empty Homes

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what the latest estimate is of (a) the number of empty homes and (b) the number of homeless; and what steps the Government are planning to improve these figures. [13760]

Ms Keeble [holding answer 9 November 2001]: From the latest available information it is estimated that there were 763,900 empty residential properties at the beginning of 2000–01. The majority of these are classified as transitional vacancies.

The number of households accepted by local authorities in England under the homelessness provisions of the 1985 and 1996 Housing Acts as being eligible for assistance, unintentionally homeless and in priority need, in the first six months of 2001 was 59,530.

The Government have introduced a number of measures to reduce the number of empty homes including a reduction in VAT and changes to the way local authorities plan for housing. We will consult shortly on proposals to allow local authorities discretion to remove or reduce the 50 per cent. council tax discount for long-term empty homes.

Homeless acceptances represent households in need who are helped by local authorities into accommodation. The provisions of the Homelessness Bill will:

require housing authorities to take a more strategic, multi-agency approach to the prevention of homelessness and the re-housing of homeless households;

ensure that everyone accepted by housing authorities as unintentionally homeless and in priority need must be provided with suitable accommodation until they obtain a settled housing solution; and allow housing authorities greater flexibility to assist non-priority homeless households, principally through a new power for housing authorities to secure accommodation for such households where they have the scope to do so.

To support these provisions, investment in new affordable housing through the Housing Corporation will rise to over £1.2 billion by 2003–04—about double the current level.

The Government are currently developing a national strategic framework to help prevent and tackle homelessness throughout the country.

Airport Slots

Mr. David Stewart: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what plans he has to submit proposals to the European Commission in relation to regulations 248/92 and 95/93 governing slot (a) allocation and (b) ring fencing at Heathrow and Gatwick. [13697]

Mr. Jamieson [holding answer 9 November 2001]: The Government are currently reviewing whether they should seek to ensure that slots are reserved at London airports for regional services. One possible means of achieving this could be the utilisation of Article 9.1.a of Regulation 95–93. The Government have received a PSO application for the Inverness-Gatwick route from the Scottish Executive and this is under consideration. If the Government decided to impose a PSO, they would need to inform the Commission in accordance with Regulation 2408–92.

Mr. David Stewart: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what research his Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on demand for slots at Heathrow and Gatwick over the next five years. [13693]

Mr. Jamieson [holding answer 9 November 2001]: The Department has commissioned the South East and East of England Regional Air Services study (SERAS), which is considering all aspects of airport capacity in the area, having regard to future forecasts of demand. The study is looking up to 30 years ahead. Consideration of demand for runway capacity at Heathrow and Gatwick forms part of the work.

We expect the study to be completed towards the end of this year. Public consultation on the shortlisted options is due in early 2002.

Health and Safety Laboratory

Mr. Allan: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what estimate he has made of the costs of the Health and Safety Laboratory's estates in Sheffield and Buxton in 2001–02. [13934]

Dr. Whitehead: The Health and Safety Laboratory's estates costs for the current year are estimated to be £3,693,000.

Mr. Allan: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what estimate he has made of the annual costs of the Health and Safety Laboratory's estates under the proposed PFI scheme on the Buxton site. [13933]

Dr. Whitehead: Commercial negotiations for the Health and Safety Laboratory PFI collocation project have not been concluded with the preferred bidder. Any proposed costs relating to this project are therefore commercially confidential and cannot be made available.

Housing Association Schemes

Mr. Chaytor: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions (1) how many do-it-yourself shared-ownership scheme purchases there were by each housing association in each of the last five years; [12463]

(2) which housing associations participated in the do-it-yourself shared ownership scheme; and how many (a) do-it-yourself shared ownership scheme purchases and (b) transactions by shared owners there were in respect of (i) additional shares and (ii) outright purchase in each of the last five years. [12464]

Ms Keeble: Assistance under the do-it-yourself shared ownership (DIYSO) scheme led to 6,712 purchases in the years 1996–97 to 2000–01. Tables showing these purchases by housing association in each year have been placed in the Libraries of the House.

The number of transactions by DIYSO purchasers in respect of the purchase of additional shares and staircasing to outright ownership is not identified separately by housing associations.

Contingency Plans (West Midlands)

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what contingency plans he has made to improve transport services in the west midlands if a national stadium is placed there. [13533]

Ms Keeble: The capability of the transport system to deal with the potential demands of a national stadium in the west midlands are being considered by the project teams and the Government. There are a number of current projects which will improve the performance of the existing network, including the M6 Toll and Active Traffic Management on the M42. If implemented, the recommendations from the West Midlands Area Multi-Modal Study will also significantly improve the transport system. The Football Association have yet to decide whether or not they want a national stadium.

Health and Safety Inspections (Hotels)

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions how many hotels in (a) London and (b) the UK have failed health and safety inspections in the last 12 months; and what mechanisms there are to ensure that health and safety guidelines are adhered to. [13535]

Dr. Whitehead: We do not have any information in respect of the number of hotels in London and the UK that have failed health and safety inspections. Local authorities (LAs) are responsible for the enforcement of health and safety law in hotels throughout GB and LA inspectors will take appropriate enforcement action to ensure that health and safety guidelines are adhered to.

Fire Services

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions how many vacancies there are for fire personnel in the UK; and what steps he has taken to encourage more people into the service in the last five years. [13536]

Dr. Whitehead: Based on annual returns to HM Fire Service Inspectorate, the provisional figures for the establishment and actual strength of the fire service in England and Wales as at 31 March 2001 were as follows:

	Establishment	Strength	Variation
Whole-time	33,640	33,376	−264
Retained	14,960	12,033	−2,927
Control	1,428	1,440	+12
Non-uniformed	6,474	6,071	−403
Totals	56,502	52,920	−3,582

Local fire authorities are responsible for the recruitment and selection of fire service staff. In general the fire service is a popular career choice and applications far exceed the number of vacancies available each year. However, in some areas fire authorities and brigades do experience difficulties in recruiting to the retained (volunteer) sections of the fire service. For more than 10 years the Home Office, which had responsibility for fire service matters prior to the transfer to DTLR in June this year, has helped to encourage people to join the fire service both in a full-time and voluntary capacity by providing recruitment literature and advertising posters for local use.Over the last two years the Home Office, and now DTLR, have been encouraging. Fire authorities to review their recruitment practices in order to ensure they reach groups that are currently under-represented in the service. To help authorities to do this DTLR has developed new national recruitment literature which will be launched shortly.

Train Toilets

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what regulations exist to oblige train operating companies to make working toilets available to passengers on trains; and what plans his Department has to make the provision of toilets on trains an obligation in future train operating franchises. [14706]

Mr. Jamieson: There are no regulations requiring train operators to provide toilets on trains, nor are there any plans for such regulations to be introduced. Train operators will only make the most of their commercial opportunities if they provide the facilities that passengers demand. The Strategic Rail Authority do not think it is a priority for investment to specify the provision of facilities which train operating companies are likely to provide of their own accord. Where train operators provide toilet facilities they are subject to the same environmental health requirements as any other provider of these facilities.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what powers the Strategic Railway Authority has to oblige train operating companies to make working toilets available to passengers on trains. [14704]

Mr. Jamieson: The franchise agreements under which rail services are provided do not require toilets to be provided on trains. Any changes to a franchise agreement would have to be negotiated by the Strategic Rail Authority and the train operator concerned.

Airport Security

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what assessments he has made of security procedures as they apply to (a) general aviation and (b) regional airports within the United Kingdom; and if he will make a statement. [13484]

Mr. Jamieson: My Department lays down the security requirements for the operators of public transport aircraft, both passenger-carrying and all-cargo, and the managers of the aerodromes they operate from. Following the attacks of September 11th these requirements have been extended to general aviation. DTLR inspectors monitor compliance.

Rating Appeals (Hertfordshire)

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what assessment he has made of the cost to industry in Hertfordshire of delays in the consideration of rating appeals in the last three years. [13243]

Dr. Whitehead: I have made no such assessment.

The Valuation Office Agency (VOA), an executive agency of Inland Revenue, is responsible for compiling and maintaining the non-domestic rating lists. Since 1 April 1998, the VOA has received some 1,400,000 appeals challenging the rateable values entered in the rating lists compiled since 1990, including some 800,000 appeals against the rateable values shown in the list that came into force on 1 April 2000. Consideration of this number of appeals inevitably takes time. The VOA publishes programmes setting out when all appeals will be considered; these are reviewed in consultation with ratepayers. If, when an appeal is considered, the VOA and the ratepayer do not reach agreement on the valuation, the appeal will be heard shortly afterwards by an independent Valuation Tribunal. Appeals may be considered earlier than is set out in the programme, if a ratepayer is suffering financial hardship.

When an appeal is made, the ratepayer must continue to comply with the payment schedule as set out in the original demand notice from the local authority. Payments may only be altered following the settlement of an appeal and following the issue of a revised bill by the local authority. In general, the effect of any appeal leading to a change in rateable value will be backdated either to the date that the change in value occurred, or the first day of the financial year in which the appeal was made, whichever is the later. Where an appeal leads to a reduction in the amount due to be paid, any previous overpayment is refunded to the ratepayer with interest.

Railtrack

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions, pursuant to his answer of 6 November 2001, Official Report, column 135W, on Railtrack, what action he will take to ensure the administrators of Railtrack conclude the proposed sale of the Oswestry branch line from Gobowen to Llanymywech to the Cambrian Railways Trust. [13859]

Mr. Jamieson: I understand that Railtrack have proposed a meeting for 16 November with the Cambrian Railways Trust to discuss the proposed sale. The Trust has yet to confirm its availability.

Road Traffic Accidents

Mr. Salmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions how many (a) fatal and (b) serious, road traffic accidents involving monocular commercial drivers there were in each of the last five years where the monocular vision of the driver was a contributory factor. [14267]

Mr. Jamieson: The information requested is not available.

Rosyth Ferry Terminal

Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what assessment he has made of the (a) short-term, (b) medium-term and (c) long-term plans for the proposed Rosyth ferry terminal. [13937]

Mr. Jamieson: The proposal for the Rosyth terminal that was considered for Freight Facilities Grant purposes was the expenditure on works that the port expects to be completed in a matter of months. The service that these works will serve is designed to go on for several years, but no further development at Rosyth has been notified.

Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will place in the Library the proposals for the ferry terminal at Rosyth including (a) the initial investment plans and (b) the (i) short, (ii) medium and (iii) long-term plans. [13936]

Mr. Jamieson: All correspondence between DTLR and the grant applicants is commercially confidential.

Homelessness

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions how many people at or above state retirement were placed in (a) bed-and-breakfast accommodation and (b) temporary local authority accommodation in the last year; how many were (i) permanently rehoused, (ii) placed in long-term residential care and (iii) found intentionally homeless, broken down by (A) sex and (B) age; and what the average length of stay was, in each responsible local authority, grouped by county. [13511]

Ms Keeble: This information is not collected centrally. Information on supported placements in long-term residential care and nursing homes is the responsibility of my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Health.

Abandoned Cars

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what estimates his Department has made of the number of abandoned cars dumped in England in (a) 2000 and (b) 1997. [12571]

Mr. Meacher [holding answer 5 November 2001]: I have been asked to reply.

Although the Department currently holds no central records of the number of vehicles abandoned each year we estimate that some 350,000 cars were dumped in the United Kingdom in 2000. We do not have an estimate of how many were dumped in 1997.

More up to date information on the number of abandoned vehicles removed by local authorities is being collected in the Department's 2000–01 Municipal Waste Management Survey which should be published in July 2002.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Consultation Documents

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many consultation documents were issued by his Department from (a) 15 October to 14 January, (b) 15 January to 14 April, (c) 15 April to 14 July and (d) 15 July to 14 October in each year from 1996. [12896]

Mr. MacShane: The FCO has issued consultation documents as follows:

(a) None

(b) None

(c) One, 1999

(d) Two, 1998 and 2000.

India

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with representatives of the Indian Government since 11 September; and if he will make a statement. [13727]

Mr. Bradshaw: India plays an important role in the international campaign against terrorism. As such, we have had a number of meetings with the Indian Government. The Prime Minister visited India on 6 October and met Prime Minister Vajpayee. Mr. Vajpayee visited London on 12 November for talks with the Prime Minister. The Foreign Secretary and his Indian counterpart, Jaswant Singh, met in London on 3 October and expect to meet again at the UN General Assembly in New York this week.

Pakistan

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on the change in the internal stability of Pakistan since 11 September; and if he will make a statement on the control of Pakistani nuclear weapons. [14244]

Mr. Bradshaw: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Caernarfon (Hywel Williams) on 24 October 2001, Official Report, column 258W. We expect all countries, including Pakistan, to implement stringent safety and security measures at their civil and military nuclear facilities.

Gibraltar

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make it his policy not to alter the sovereignty of Gibraltar without the consent of the people of Gibraltar. [13900]

Peter Hain: I refer my hon. Friend to my statement on 7 November 2001, Official Report, columns 88–92WH. The Government will continue to stand by their commitments to the people of Gibraltar as set out in the preamble to the Gibraltar Constitution.

Foreign Debt (Serbia)

Adam Price: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if it is his policy to support the demands of the Serbian Government to write-off two thirds of the country's foreign debt. [13105]

Mr. Boateng: I have been asked to reply.

The UK Government strongly support the impressive economic reform efforts of the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia (FRY). As a result the UK will be seeking an agreement in the forthcoming negotiations between the FRY and its Paris Club creditors beginning on 13 November that reduces FRY's debt to sustainable levels. On the basis of current IMF projects HMG will advocate debt reduction by official creditors of 75 per cent. Consistent with our policy towards other recipients of debt reduction, any deal should be designed to provide the incentives for continued economic reform in the medium term.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Violent Incidents

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will list the serious violent incidents attributed to (a) the IRA and proscribed Republican groups and (b) proscribed Loyalist terrorist groups over the past 30 years, indicating in each case the (i) date, (ii) location, (iii) number of casualties and (iv) estimated cost of the damage. [12622]

Jane Kennedy: The information requested is not readily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Police Recruitment

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on the most recent recruitment campaign for the Police Service of Northern Ireland. [11493]

Jane Kennedy: The second recruitment competition for the Police Service of Northern Ireland was launched on 12 October, and the closing date for applications is 16 November. By 5 November, Consensia had received 8,700 requests for application packs, and the response in terms of applications received to date has also been encouraging.

Francis Devlin

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what measures will be taken in response to the European Court of Human Rights decision in favour of Francis Devlin on 30 October; what compensation he will pay to Mr. Devlin; how many cases contesting procedures relating to national security exemption certificates are outstanding; and what steps will be taken to settle those cases prior to any court hearing in Strasbourg. [12991]

Jane Kennedy: The European Court of Human Rights delivered its judgment in the Devlin case on 30 October. The court found a breach of article 6(1) because Mr. Devlin had no effective way of challenging the certificate issued under section 42 of the Fair Employment (Northern Ireland) Act 1976 in relation to his discrimination proceedings. The court rejected the Government's argument that Mr. Devlin could not rely on article 6(1) rights in the circumstances of his case. In rejecting this argument the court found a breach in the same terms as those found in the Tinnelly and McElduff cases. Following those judgments in 1998, the Government established a Tribunal, under the Northern Ireland Act 1998, to which an individual can appeal against a section 42 certificate. The remedial action required, should a similar situation to Mr. Devlin's case arise now, is therefore already in place. The court awarded £10,000 to Mr. Devlin and the Government are considering the terms of the judgment and their next steps in relation to this. The Government are aware of only one outstanding case in Strasbourg contesting procedures relating to section 42 certificates and are considering what steps should be taken to seek to settle the dispute.

Criminal Justice Review

Mr. Lyons: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland when he will publish the Government's response to the criminal justice review. [14740]

Mr. Browne: A draft Justice (Northern Ireland) Bill and implementation plan were published today and copies have been placed in the Library. Copies of both documents are also available on the Northern Ireland Office website, along with the outcome of an equality screening exercise.

Many of the recommendations will be implemented through the legislation. The implementation plan sets out the programme of work required to implement the criminal justice review, the time scale for this and who will be responsible for taking it forward. It also states that the Government's target is to devolve policing and justice after the Assembly elections scheduled for May 2003.

There will now be a period of consultation before the legislation is introduced in Parliament. Subject to the outcome of consultation, it is expected that the legislation will be introduced in this Session.

DEFENCE

Territorial Army

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent assessment has been made of the capability of each of the territorial infantry battalions to be deployed on operations as formed units. [R] [9672]

Dr. Moonie: Under the Strategic Defence Review (SDR) the Territorial Army (TA) was restructured to make it more relevant and usable and more fully integrated into our armed forces and defence plans. As a result, more TA units are now held at a higher state of readiness than pre-SDR and we continue to assess that the TA infantry battalions have the capability to be deployed on operations as formed units. As such they are an essential part of the Army's order of battle.

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent assessment has been made of the capability of the TA to provide the framework for the rapid expansion of the forces; and if he will make a statement. [R] [9676]

Dr. Moonie: The national footprint of Territorial Army (TA) units, created following the Strategic Defence Review, continues to provide a sound basis for generating formed units and individuals as an essential part of the Army's order of battle. We are looking at ways of increasing the contribution the TA makes to our defence plans. In line with the strategy for the Army (a version of which was placed in the House Library in March) a range of options is being considered including how the TA may be used in providing assistance to the civil community in an emergency.

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Territorial Army units he has available with anti-aircraft capability. [13835]

Dr. Moonie [holding answer 9 November 2001]: Within the Territorial Army, there are two Air Defence Artillery Regiments equipped with the Javelin air defence missile system, and one Air Defence Artillery Regiment trained in the use of the Rapier air defence missile system and the high velocity missile system. These are available at extended readiness to deploy on operations.

Summer Recess

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) press notices and (b) consultation documents were issued by his Department during the summer recess. [9235]

Dr. Moonie [holding answer 23 October 2001]: During the summer recess, the Ministry of Defence issued a total of 27 press releases (excluding operational notes). No consultation documents were issued during this period. Copies of press releases and consultation documents can be viewed on the MOD's website.

Communications

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment is being made of the impact of improved communications on the ability of subordinates to take the initiative; and if he will make a statement. [11498]

Dr. Moonie: Much work has been done, and more is under way, to ensure that the full potential of improved communications is realised. New technology, including the Personal Role Radio and Bowman, is being introduced in such a way as to enhance the effective exercise of command. Army doctrine will continue to empower subordinates at every level to take the initiative within the framework of their commanders' intent.

Departmental Promotions

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much his Department spent on information literature, advertising and campaign material in the financial years (a) 1995–96, (b) 1996–97, (c) 1997–98, (d) 1998–99, (e) 1999–2000 and (f) 2000–01; and if he will make a statement. [12274]

Dr. Moonie: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. I am therefore unable to provide a substantive answer under the terms of exemption 9 (voluminous and vexatious requests) of the Code of Practice on Access to Government Information.

However, a breakdown of the Ministry of Defence's public relations' expenditure is published in the annual departmental performance report, broken down into categories of Royal Navy, Army, Royal Air Force and civilian recruitment, PR, marketing and business support services, chief of PR, sales promotion, scholarships and national employers' liaison committee.

Medical Preparedness

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will publish in full the Three Services Board of Inquiry report into medical preparedness prepared by the Surgeon General's Department; and if he will make a statement. [11621]

Dr. Moonie: [holding answer 1 November 2001]: I assume the hon. Member is referring to the reports of the three Service Boards of Inquiry into medical preparedness for Op. Palliser. I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 1 February 2001, Official Report, column 262W and to the comprehensive information which has already been provided on the conclusions and recommendations of the three Service Boards of Inquiry. Board of Inquiry reports are internal documents and, given their confidential nature, it is not the practice of the Ministry of Defence to publish them in full.

Defence Diversification Agency

Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list Scottish firms that have had negotiations with the Defence Diversification Agency since its inception. [12187]

Dr. Moonie [holding answer 2 November 2001]: Defence Diversification Agency contacts with Scottish firms are listed. The list includes companies and private sector organisations where discussions are active, assistance has been provided, or discussions have been held but assistance could not be provided. The list covers the period from January 2000 (the agency having been established in the previous year) to date.

Company	Location
Clariant	West Lothian
Gemini	Tayside
Ferranti Photonics	Tayside
ESL	Renfewshire
Kogg Caledonia	Tayside
MacTaggart Scott	Midlothian
Enfocast	London/Scotland
Reign of Sound	Livingston
NMT	Livingston
Motech	Livingston
Tannoy Ltd.	Lanarkshire
New Product Technologies	Lanarkshire
Meiklewall	Lanarkshire
Linn Products	Lanarkshire
REVIVO	Highlands and Islands
Weatherford	Grampian
Stenmar Sonavision	Grampian
Prosyst	Grampian
Leading Edge Advantage	Grampian
IES	Grampian
Westica	Glasgow
Realise	Glasgow
Q1 Biotech	Glasgow
Diagnostic Potentials	Glasgow
Buchanan International	Glasgow
Ascom IT	Glasgow
Adenco	Glasgow
Magnetic Mirror Energy	Fife
ZED Vu	Fife
Viscotest	Fife
Simclar International	Fife
Optima Enclosures Ltd.	Fife
Movi-mail	Fife
Mission Technology	Fife
Mine Ordance	Fife
Miller (Methil)	Fife
Milestone International	Fife
Logistic Systems Ltd.	Fife
IDS Ltd.	Fife
ICM Fortronic	Fife
HCS Fluid Power	Fife
Freeform Technologies	Fife
Forth Ports	Fife
Easy Park	Fife
DNA	Fife
Cyber Frontiers	Fife
Co-drive Technologies	Fife
Cipher Solutions	Fife
Calluna	Fife
Bonnybrae Ltd.	Fife
Babcock	Fife
Alcan	Fife
McGregor Traders	Edinburgh
Image Fusion	Edinburgh
Footle	Edinburgh
Dovetail	Edinburgh
Amey Vectra	Edinburgh
Acuid	Edinburgh
Biotrix	Borders
Vesion 7	Ayrshire
Provan Engineering	Ayrshire
Orcam	Ayrshire
Evolvon	Ayrshire
Chilton	Ayrshire
Alan West Wallacetown	Ayrshire

Consultation Documents

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many consultation documents were issued by his Department from (a) 15 October to 14 January, (b) 15 January to 14 April, (c) 15 April to 14 July and (d) 15 July to 14 October in each year from 1996. [12898]

Dr. Moonie: Since January 2001, the Ministry of Defence has co-ordinated its written public consultation in line with the Cabinet Office's "code of practice" issued in November 2000. The Ministry of Defence issued six consultation documents during the period January 15 to April 14 and one document between April 15 to July 14. No documents were issued between July 15 to October 14. Prior to January 2001 these statistics were not held centrally and to establish accurate figures could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Defence Medals

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will review the criteria for determining the award of a defence medal for service personnel. [13178]

Dr. Moonie: There are no plans to review the qualifying criteria for the defence medal which recognised non-operational service for armed forces personnel and certain specific categories of civilians during the Second World War.

Mr. Gummer: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will instruct the Adjutant General's Office to instigate a review of the rules covering the issue of the defence medal. [13543]

Dr. Moonie: I do not believe there is a requirement for a review of the regulations surrounding the defence medal. In 1946, the Committee on the Grants of Honours, Decorations and Medals discussed the awards, and their qualifying criteria, that should be instituted to reward service in the campaigns, operations and defence commitments during the Second World War. Members of the Committee included senior military and Government officers who had first hand experience and thorough knowledge of the events throughout the war. The regulations governing the qualification requirements for all Second World War medals were finalised in 1948, following approval from His Majesty King George VI, and were announced on 11 June 1948. These regulations have been strictly adhered to ever since.

Mr. Gummer: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will create an accessible Board of Appeal for the award of defence medals, in order that evidence that is acceptable to a Court of Law is not disregarded. [13544]

Dr. Moonie: I do not believe there is a requirement for a Board of Appeal. The authoritative source of an individual's medal entitlement is properly their service record. If an individual disputes the official record then the onus is on that individual to provide official contemporary documentary evidence as proof of entitlement.

Mr. Gummer: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he delegates to the Officer-in-Charge, Army Medal Office, full authority for the decision making process for medal applications. [13542]

Dr. Moonie: The proposed qualifying criteria for medals are submitted to the Committee on the Grant of Honours, Decorations and Medals (HD Committee) for consideration, after which their recommendation is passed to the Sovereign for approval. Following Royal assent the Officer-in-Charge of the Army Medal Office is responsible for ensuring that all applications for Army and Home Guard medals fulfil the relevant qualifying criteria by checking eligibility against official service records. The Navy, Royal Air Force and Royal Marines have their own medal offices with the appropriate delegated authority.

Golden Jubilee Medals

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what representations he has received to grant the Queen's Golden Jubilee Medal to service men who were injured during World War Two; and if he will make a statement. [13225]

Dr. Moonie: The Ministry of Defence has not received any representations requesting an amendment to the qualifying criteria for the Queen's Golden Jubilee Medal to include those service men who were injured during the Second World War.

War Pensions

Mr. Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to his answer of 28 June 2001, Official Report, column 132W, on war pensions, if he will state (a) how many expert caseworkers there are and (b) whether all the caseworkers are qualified medical doctors. [13745]

Dr. Moonie: There are currently five expert caseworkers employed by the War Pensions Agency. All are medically qualified and hold full registration with the General Medical Council.

Saif Sareea

Mr. Menzies Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many missions or training packages involving UK armoured vehicles and tanks as part of Saif Sareea II were (a) cancelled and (b) reduced in package due to (i) serviceability shortfalls and (ii) technical malfunctions in the vehicles; what percentage of missions or training packages involving UK armoured vehicles or tanks this represents; and if he will make a statement. [11769]

Mr. Hoon [holding answer 8 November 2001]: Inevitably on occasions minor technical or mechanical problems temporarily required individual Challenger 2 tanks and other vehicles to undergo short periods of maintenance, but overall the armoured vehicles deployed on Exercise Saif Sareea 2 successfully completed the tasks required of them.

The extent of the involvement of Challenger 2 was, however, adjusted during the exercise as further experience was gained in operating the tank in the harsh desert environment. Previous experience of operating other armoured vehicle types in desert conditions meant that maintenance could be more accurately programmed and no adjustment to their involvement was necessary.

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence for what reason logistical aspects of Saif Sareea 2 were carried out in non-tactical settings. [11748]

Mr. Hoon: The extent to which logistic support to a major exercise is conducted tactically requires a very careful balance to be made between the effective conduct of the wider exercise, the training benefit to be gained and the costs both financial and on military manpower. In the case of Exercise Saif Sareea, the vast majority of logistic support was conducted tactically throughout the exercise play.

The sole major exception to this was third line logistic support to the deployed land forces: logistic support to land forces in the exercise area was conducted tactically, but was non-tactical along the 1,200 kilometre line of communication across Oman. To have deployed tactically at third line would have placed a major additional burden on army logistics staffs, with little or no gain in terms of training benefit.

Afghanistan

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what has been the cost of the munitions used in each week of the Afghanistan campaign. [13523]

Mr. Hoon: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave on 23 October 2001, Official Report, column 114W, to the hon. Member for Lewes (Norman Baker).

Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what proportion of cluster bombs used in Afghanistan did not explode on impact. [14253]

Mr. Ingram: The cluster bombs used in Afghanistan have not been prohibited by any treaty or convention and they are employed only against legitimate terrorist and military objectives where they are the most effective weapon to attack the target concerned. All types of munitions can fail in various ways and cluster bombs are no exception. However, it is not for Her Majesty's Government to comment on the performance of US weapons.

Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what communications have taken place between his Department and operational commanders involved in military actions in Afghanistan in respect of the clear labelling of yellow cluster bombs and yellow food parcels; and what plans there are to halt the use of cluster bombs by the Allied coalition forces involved in operations in Afghanistan. [14265]

Mr. Ingram: We are in close touch with the US on all aspects of the response to the 11 September attacks, including at the military planning level. I understand that the US authorities have recognised that there is a problem with bomblets from cluster bombs and food parcels both being yellow. They have, therefore, dropped leaflets with diagrams of the two explaining which should be approached and which avoided.

Cluster bombs are legitimate weapons that have not been prohibited by any treaty or convention. There are no plans to halt their use against legitimate terrorist and military targets.

Depleted Uranium

Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to his answer of 29 October 2001, Official Report, column 519W, which categories of nuclear weapons contain depleted uranium; and what the purpose is of including depleted uranium in these weapons. [14271]

Dr. Moonie: The UK Trident warheads for our nuclear deterrent contain depleted uranium. The purpose of this material is ultimately associated with the functioning of the warhead and the details are classified. For this reason I am withholding this information under Exemption 1 of the Code of Practice on Access to Government Information.

Procurement Contracts

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence with how many small and medium enterprises his Department has signed procurement contracts. [14115]

Dr. Moonie: The information is not held in the format requested and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. The Ministry of Defence places around 50,000 contracts annually with a total value of around £9 billion.

Smallpox Antidote

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what levels of smallpox antidote are held by his Department. [14120]

Dr. Moonie: The Ministry of Defence does not hold a supply of smallpox vaccine.

Military Supplies

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence by whom the review of military supplies will be conducted; and if he will make a statement. [14124]

Mr. Ingram: The Ministry of Defence has been conducting an extensive review of all its logistic stockholdings to ensure consistency with defence planning assumptions. This work started over 12 months ago. In light of September 11, and as a standard military practice, we have reviewed the validity of that original work.

Bowman

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on what date he expects the Bowman personal role radio to be in service. [14121]

Dr. Moonie: Following the successful employment of personal role radios by 45 Commando RM on Exercise Saif Sareea 2, we expect to meet the declared in-service date by the end of this year, some three months earlier than planned.

Nuclear Warfare Strategy

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the UK's nuclear warfare strategy. [14117]

Mr. Hoon: The Government's nuclear weapon policy was set out in the Strategic Defence Review.

Indirect Fire Precision Attack

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the Indirect Fire Precision Attack project. [14116]

Dr. Moonie: The Indirect Fire Precision Attack (IFPA) project will provide the Army with all-weather, 24-hour Indirect Fire System for the precision attack of targets at extended range. BAE Systems has been selected, after competition, as the preferred bidder to manage the Assessment Phase contract, which is expected to be placed in early 2002.

On current plans we expect to decide whether to proceed into the demonstration and manufacturing stage in 2005. If so the first IFPA capability would be delivered in 2010 and full IFPA capability would then enter service after 2015, incrementally under Smart Acquisition.

UK Airports (Military Protection)

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what military protection is being offered to UK airports; and if he will make a statement. [14125]

Mr. Ingram: Responsibility for airport security rests with the Department of Transport, Local Government and the Regions (DTLR), who are currently working on this issue in consultation with other Departments, including the Ministry of Defence. There are long-standing arrangements for the armed forces to provide support to the DTLR, should a specific threat arise.

Civil National Infrastructure

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has to deploy (a) armed forces personnel and (b) reservists to protect critical elements of the civil national infrastructure, other than nuclear power installations. [14118]

Mr. Ingram: Security of the critical elements of the civil national infrastructure rests with a number of Government Departments. The police may request the support of the armed forces to guard key installations should other resources prove insufficient. While we maintain close contact with the police, there have been no recent requests for this support.

The possible deployment of the Territorial Army and reservists in this role will be considered during the development of the new chapter of the Strategic Defence Review, announced in the House on 4 October. This work will consider the requirement for additional resources, should this and/or other roles be identified, and the cost-effectiveness of the armed forces playing a greater part in this work.

Forces Review

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which divisions of his Department are contributing to the Forces Review; and if he will make a statement. [14119]

Mr. Hoon: As I have made clear, the work we are conducting is not a new Strategic Defence Review. It is more the adding of a further chapter to the existing SDR to ensure that we have the right concepts, forces and capabilities in place to meet the additional challenges posed by asymmetric threats of the kind that we saw on 11 September.

A wide range of individuals are taking part in the work from many areas of the Ministry of Defence, because of their current responsibilities and/or their wider knowledge and expertise. We are also involving other Government Departments and other experts. At this stage, the work is being led by the policy area within the MOD.

Desert Combat Suits

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many desert combat suits are held at command ordnance depots. [14031]

Mr. Ingram: There are currently 53,647 pairs of desert trousers (across 27 sizes) and 118,490 desert jackets (across 13 sizes) held in UK ordnance depots. The Ministry of Defence does not hold information on the number of desert combat suits held in the Commonwealth depots.

Army Foundation College

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which MOD sites are under consideration for the siting of a new Army Foundation College. [13932]

Mr. Ingram: The Army is currently examining options for improving its system of initial training, including the establishment of a second Army Foundation College, together with the provision of improved facilities that are appropriate for the future and for a range of abilities and age groups, to build in the success of the existing college at Harrogate. These options include the provision of a college through partnership with the private sector. As part of this process, the Army is considering options that include existing Ministry of Defence sites, to select a Public Sector Comparator for the project. I am withholding the details of the MOD sites in question in accordance with exemption 7 (Effective Management and Operations of the Public Service) of the Code of Practice on Access to Government Information. If it were decided to pursue the partnership option, this would be announced in the normal way through the Official Journal of the European Communities. It would then be open for any proposals for the college, including its location, to be put forward for consideration as part of the competitive process. We anticipate a variety of sites, including existing MOD and other locations, to be proposed.

A decision on the way forward is unlikely before next year.

Strategic Defence Review

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what procurement spending commitments implicit in the Strategic Defence Review he will meet. [14123]

Dr. Moonie: I refer the hon. Member to the answer which my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Defence gave on 29 October 2001, Official Report, columns 513–14W, to my hon. Friend the Member for Bassetlaw (John Mann).

Defence Imports (Israel)

Mr. Galloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence at what stage is the proposed purchase from Israel of the Gill-Spike anti-tank missile; what the results are of the tests of the missile by his Department in the UK and Canada; and if he will make a statement. [13667]

Dr. Moonie: Gill-Spike is already in service with the Israeli Ministry of Defence. The UK is currently evaluating Spike along with the US Javelin weapon to assess the most appropriate system to meet our requirement for medium range anti-tank guided weapons. The results of the trials will be considered, along with all other relevant factors including cost and time scales, before reaching a final decision. We expect to do so late next year.

Mr. Galloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what is the (a) quantity and (b) category of defence equipment purchased from Israel for each year from 1997. [13671]

Dr. Moonie: Since 1997, five contracts have been placed with prime contractors based in Israel:

Year	Category of equipment	Quantity
1997	Spares: grenade sight caps	Information not held centrally
	Small arms ammunition	In the order of 25 million rounds of ammunition
1998	Manual loader for air-to-ground missile	60
1999	No contracts placed
2000	Concept Study	Not applicable
2001	Anti-tank missile hardware for assessment trials	14 missiles and associated equipment

Overseas Entertainment

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the (a) acts and (b) costs of artists performing for UK forces overseas, in the past five years. [14122]

Mr. Ingram: Information in the precise format requested is not held by the Ministry of Defence. Officials are, however, establishing with the Services Sound and Vision Corporation who organise "Combined Services Entertainment" details of the number of shows performed in each of the past five years, the overall cost for each show and examples of artists who have performed. I will write to the hon. Member and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House. I am withholding costs of the artists performing for reasons of commercial confidentiality in accordance with Exemption 13 of the Code of Practice on Access to Government Information.

RAF Coltishall, Norfolk

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the security of personal items of service men at RAF Coltishall, Norfolk; and if he will make a statement. [14325]

Mr. Ingram: No assessment has been made of the security of personal items of serving personnel at RAF Coltishall, Norfolk. Service personnel are routinely briefed on how to ensure the security of their personal items.

Challenger 2

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if halt drills for Challenger 2 require filters to be cleaned. [13764]

Dr. Moonie: The halt drills for the Challenger 2 main battle tank do not require filters to be cleaned. There is, however, a requirement to check the warning light for the filter indicators and replace filters as required.

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what changes in halt drills have taken place since the introduction of Challenger 2. [13765]

Dr. Moonie: There have been some very minor changes to the halt drills since the introduction of the Challenger 2 main battle tank. These relate to checking the light source for the muzzle reference system and inspection of the main armament at periodic intervals.

TREASURY

Pensioners (Buckingham)

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people of pensionable age there are in the Buckingham constituency. [14210]

Ruth Kelly: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the national statistician. I have asked him to reply.

Letter from Len Cook to Mr. John Bercow, dated 12 November 2001:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your question concerning how many people of pensionable age there are in the Buckingham constituency. (14210)

ONS does not produce population estimates on parliamentary constituency boundaries. The smallest area level for which we produce population estimates is for local authorities.

Mid 2000 estimates of the number of people of pensionable age in local authority areas area available in table 8 on the National Statistics website at: http://www.statistics.gov.uk/downloads/theme population/PENo3/PENo3 v3.pdf

Unemployment (Buckingham)

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the level of unemployment was in the Buckingham constituency in (a) September 2000 and (b) September 2001. [14204]

Ruth Kelly: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the national statistician. I have asked him to reply.

Letter from Len Cook to Mr. John Bercow, dated 12 November 2001:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your parliamentary question concerning the level of unemployment in the Buckingham constituency in September 2000 and September 2001. (14202)

The Office for National Statistics (ONS) compiles statistics for unemployment from surveys following the internationally standard International Labour Organisation definition. However, for the Buckingham parliamentary constituency the survey sample size is too small to provide estimates. ONS also compiles statistics of claimants of unemployment-related benefits. The claimant count consists of all people claiming Jobseeker's Allowance or National Insurance credits at Employment Service local offices. They must declare that they are out of work, capable of, available for and actively seeking work during the week in which the claim is made.

Between September 2000 and September 2001 the claimant count level in the Buckingham parliamentary constituency rose by 25 from 354 to 379.

NIRS2

Mr. Rendel: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he expects the NIRS2 computer system to be fully operational. [11686]

Dawn Primarolo: The NIRS2 computer system is fully operational.

VAT

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much additional VAT revenue was secured by shadow economy teams in (a) 1999–2000, (b) 2000–01 and (c) 2001–02 to date. [12206]

Mr. Boateng [holding answer 6 November 2001]: The information is as follows:

Additional VAT revenue

	£ million
1999–2000	43.6
2000–01	[1]—
2001–02	[1]—

[1] Data not yet available

Customs and Excise

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the average case value was of cases of VAT fraud investigated by HM Customs and Excise under the civil penalty procedure in (a) 1997–98, (b) 1998–99, (c) 1999–2000, (d) 2000–01 and (e) 2001–02 to date; and if he will express the figures both in actual cash terms and in constant prices. [12211]

Mr. Boateng [holding answer 6 November 2001]: The average values for VAT civil evasion cases are as follows:

Year	Number of cases	Actual average value (£)	At constant 2000–01 prices (£)
1997–98	898	28,000	30,000
1998–99	902	32,000	33,000
1999–2000	861	35,000	37,000
2000–01	729	49,000	49,000

These figures are rounded to the nearest thousand. Figures for 2001–02 are not yet available.

Budget Allocations

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what additional budget allocations have been made since 11 September to (a) the UK security services, (b) the Ministry of Defence, (c) the Department for International Development and (d) other Departments; and if he will make a statement; [9952]

(2) what allocations have so far been approved out of the reserves for the financial years (a) 2001–02 and (b) 2002–03; and if he will make a statement. [8931]

Mr. Andrew Smith [holding answer, 25 October 2001]: The Chancellor has made it clear that the Government will meet the costs of measures related to our response to international terrorism, while continuing to deliver our spending plans within the fiscal rules. Any additions to departmental expenditure limits will continue to be reported to Parliament through the supplementary estimates process in the normal way.

Tax Deduction

Derek Conway: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the basis is for the policy of allowing tax deducted from bank and building society deposits to be reclaimed, but not from dividends paid on shares and unit trusts; and if he will make a statement. [14085]

Ruth Kelly: Income tax is deducted at source from bank and building society interest, and the tax deducted can be reclaimed where a saver is not liable to pay it. There is no tax deduction at source from dividends, and so no tax to reclaim. Dividends carry a tax credit which satisfies the tax liability of investors with income up to the basic rate limit, but non-taxpayers cannot claim payment of this tax credit.

Fuel Duties (Greater London)

Mr. Cox: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what representations he has received as to the effect of fuel duties on businesses in the Greater London area in the last 12 months. [13441]

Mr. Boateng: The Chancellor receives many representations covering a wide range of issues including the impact of fuel duties upon the economy. These are given due consideration in the context of the Budget judgment.

Occupational Pension Schemes

Mr. Edwards: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if part-time employees or ex-employees who have been awarded backdated access to their occupational pension schemes, will be permitted to take the relevant tax relief for the year in which the contribution applied; and if he will relax sections 592 and 594 of the Taxes Act 1988 to permit such persons to make a one-off tax-free contribution of greater than the annual permitted amount. [13652]

Ruth Kelly: Part-time employees have always been able to join and contribute to tax approved pensions schemes on the same basis as other employees. Any restriction on the participation of part-time employees in an occupational pension scheme is as a result of scheme rules.

It is up to employers and employees to settle how to give part-timers' rights to retrospective membership in occupational pension schemes, or agree equivalent compensation. In such cases there are no limits on the amounts of contributions which employers and employees may make to defined benefit occupational pension schemes. Employee contributions of up to 15 per cent. of the pay of the year of payment of contributions qualify for tax relief, as do all employer contributions.

Customs and Excise (Officer Suspensions)

Mr. Singh: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many Customs and Excise officers are suspended over allegations relating to a conspiracy to pervert the course of justice; and in which areas of the country they were based. [13715]

Mr. Boateng: Eight officers are suspended: at Leeds (six), Brighton (one) and London (one).

Heroin Seizures

Mr. Singh: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much heroin seized in the last year in the United Kingdom was supplied from Pakistan; and whether this includes controlled deliveries by Customs and Excise from Pakistan to the United Kingdom. [13714]

Mr. Boateng: The complexity of smuggling routes means that Customs does not know the country of origin of all drug seizures. Of the heroin seized in the UK by Customs during the financial year 2000–01, 83 kg is recorded as having Pakistan as the known country of origin. It is not policy to give details of investigative techniques as that could prejudice the investigation and detection of crime.

Customs and Excise (Controlled Deliveries)

Mr. Singh: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many operations conducted by HM Customs and Excise in relation to controlled deliveries are under legal review by independent counsel. [13716]

Mr. Boateng: HM Customs and Excise has asked independent counsel to advise on five controlled delivery cases.

Debt Write-off

Mr. Cox: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans he has to write off debts owed by the poorest countries; and if he will make a statement. [13459]

Mr. Boateng: The UK has consistently been at the forefront of the international debate on debt relief for developing countries. The UK pushed for the heavily indebted poor countries (HIPC) initiative to be speeded up, and as a result 23 countries were receiving debt relief at the end of October. Those countries will receive $54 billion in debt relief, which will reduce their debts to below the developing country average.

The UK's 100 per cent. bilateral policy on debt relief means that it stands ready to write off £1.9 billion of debt to all 42 HIPCs, and is one of the highest contributors to the HIPC trust fund.

In addition, the Chancellor also announced last December that the UK would hold in trust any payments from those HIPCs yet to receive debt relief, and we continue to call on other creditor countries to follow our lead.

Cigarette Imports

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the interpretation of the phrase, for own consumption, when applied to the import of cigarettes from the EU into the United Kingdom. [13193]

Mr. Boateng: The definition of "own use" and the circumstances whereby people travelling to the UK from other EU countries are entitled to bring into the UK without charge cigarettes which they have purchased tax-paid elsewhere in the EU are set out in the Excise Duties (Personal Reliefs) Order 1992.

Equitable Life

Mr. Chope: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the estimate is of the cost of the Penrose inquiry in (a) 2001–02 and (b) 2002–03. [12842]

Ruth Kelly: No firm estimate has been made of the cost of the Penrose inquiry. Whatever resources are required by Lord Penrose will be made available to him.

Mr. Chope: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many staff are employed on the Penrose inquiry (a) full-time and (b) part-time. [12841]

Ruth Kelly: The Penrose inquiry is an independent inquiry and the number of staff employed on it will be determined by the requirements of Lord Penrose. I understand that currently there are seven full-time and two part-time staff employed on the inquiry.

Manufacturing

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what measures are being taken to help improve manufacturing employment and the share of GDP produced by the manufacturing sector. [13002]

Mr. Boateng: The Government are committed to creating and maintaining the right climate for businesses of all kinds to flourish, invest and grow. Since 1997, the Government's central economic objective has been to achieve high and stable levels of growth and employment. To this end, they have pursued macro-economic and enterprise policies which promote business activity, and which should contribute to higher productivity. The Government have been determined that we will not return to the damaging cycle of boom and bust, which created so much uncertainty and trapped businesses in a cycle of low investment and low productivity.

Specific measures of benefit to manufacturing, in support of this objective, have been detailed in successive Budgets, pre-Budget reports and various White Papers, including "Opportunity for All in a World of Change" (Cm 5052) and "Excellence and Opportunity—A Science and Innovation Policy for the 21st Century" (Cm 4814).

Tax Burdens

Mr. Howard: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what (a) discussions he has had with and (b) representations he has received from the social exclusion unit regarding the tax burden on families in the lowest income quintile. [12801]

Mr. Andrew Smith: The Government are committed to helping all families with children through the tax and benefit system, targeting the most support on those who need it most. The Treasury works closely with other Departments, including with the social exclusion unit, to help achieve this aim.

As a result of personal tax and benefit measures since 1997, families with children in the lowest income quintile are on average £1,700 a year better off.

Post Office Closures

Mr. Howard: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the impact on financial exclusion among persons in the lowest income quintile resulting from sub-post office closures in (a) inner-city and (b) rural areas in the past four years. [12803]

Mr. Andrew Smith: The Government have made no such assessment.

Consultation Documents

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many consultation documents were issued by his Department from (a) 15 October to 14 January, (b) 15 January to 14 April, (c) 15 April to 14 July and (d) 15 July to 14 October in each year from 1996. [12894]

Ruth Kelly: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave her on 24 October 2001, Official Report, columns 258–59W, and to the response to the question by the hon. Member for Aylesbury (Mr. Lidington) on 25 October 2001, Official Report, column 377W. Consultation documents from May 1997 are listed on the Treasury public website (www.hm-treasury.gov.uk). Providing information in the format requested and for dates before 1997 would incur disproportionate costs.

Economic Growth

Mr. Howard: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the impact on (a) Government expenditure and (b) tax revenues of a 0.1 per cent. change in the economy's rate of growth (i) in the year in which that change is experienced and (ii) in subsequent years. [12868]

Mr. Andrew Smith: The Treasury's estimates of the impact of the economic cycle on the public finances are set out in the publication, "Fiscal policy: public finances and the cycle", HM Treasury, March 1999.

Privy Council Silver

Mr. Howard: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much Bonham and Brooks charged by way of (a) cancellation and (b) otherwise in respect of the withdrawal from their auction of 30 November of certain items of Privy Council silver. [12867]

Ruth Kelly: The Treasury has engaged Bonham and Brooks to perform a programme of services relating to the valuation of assets as well as their sale. That engagement will continue. The fees payable will reflect the eventual overall outcome of the programme. No cancellation or other fee will be payable as a result of the recent withdrawals from auction.

Graduate Incomes

Lynne Jones: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, pursuant to his answer of 31 October 2001, Official Report, column 888W, to the hon. Member for the Isle of Wight (Mr. Turner), on graduate incomes, if he will give estimate of the average gross weekly earnings of full time employees by age, broken down into (a) graduates and (b) non-graduates and (i) male and (ii) female in each category for spring 2000. [14275]

Ruth Kelly: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician. I have asked him to reply.

Letter from Len Cook to Lynne Jones, dated 12 November 2001:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent question about the average gross weekly earnings of graduates and non-graduates (14275).

The Labour Force Survey (LFS) provides estimates of average gross weekly earnings for graduates and non-graduates. However, it only collects information about qualifications from respondents of working age (men aged 16–64 and women aged 16–59). Therefore, it does not provide estimates for female graduates and non-graduates aged 60 years or over.

Estimates for male and female graduates and non graduates for spring (March to May) 2000 are given in the attached table.

Average gross weekly earnings of full-time[1] employees by age, gender and whether a graduate or non-graduate; United Kingdom; spring (March to May 2000); not seasonally adjusted

£

	All full-time employees of working age[2,3]	Graduates	Non-graduates
Male full-time employees aged:
16–64 years	426	628	370
18 years	152	[5]—	152
22 years	266	300	258
30 years	399	480	372
40 years	490	813	426
50 years	506	746	442
60 years	431	[5]—	382
Female full-time employees aged:
16–59 years	313	455	276
18 years	160	[5]—	160
22 years	229	250	221
30 years	351	450	308
40 years	354	[5]—	313
50 years	322	[5]—	295
60 years[4]	—	—	—

[1] The definition of full-time/part-time is based on respondents' self-assessment
[2] Men aged 16–64 and women aged 16–59
[3] Includes people who did not state their qualifications
[4] Estimates for women aged 60 years are not available because the questions about qualifications only apply to people of working age
[5] Sample size too small for reliable estimate

Source:
ONS Labour Force Survey

Breast Cancer

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the survival rates are for victims of breast cancer in (a) North Yorkshire, (b) Nottinghamshire, (c) Cumbria and (d) the United Kingdom at the latest date for which figures are available. [13381]

Ruth Kelly: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician. I have asked him to reply.

Letter from Len Cook to Miss Anne McIntosh, dated 12 November 2001:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent question concerning the survival rates for victims of breast cancer in North Yorkshire, Nottinghamshire, Cumbria and the United Kingdom at the latest available date (13381).

Figures on survival rates from cancer are not generally available for local authority areas, such as Nottinghamshire and Cumbria. However, the following five-year survival rates for women aged 15–99 diagnosed with breast cancer are available for health authority areas in England:

figures for women diagnosed in the period 1991–1993 can be obtained from the Department of Health website at: www.doh.gov.uk/nhsperformanceindicators/hlpi2000/h1143t.html; and figures for women diagnosed in the period 1992–1994 are being made available at health authority level on the National Statistics website (www.statistics.gov.uk) from Monday 12th November.

Information on five-year survival from breast cancer in the United Kingdom as a whole is not available. Separate figures are available for England, Wales, Scotland, and Northern Ireland, based on women diagnosed during 1992–94, 1985–89, 1991–95, and 1993–96, respectively, and followed up to the end of 1999, 1994, 1998, and 1999, respectively. These are given in the following table. Because of differences in coverage and end of follow-up, and for other reasons, figures for the separate countries are not directly comparable and cannot be made so.

Breast cancer in men is rare. Survival rates for men diagnosed 1986–90 and followed up to the end of 1995 have been published for NHS regions in England, and Wales, in Coleman MP et al., Cancer survival trends in England and Wales 1971–1995: deprivation and NHS Region. Series SMPS No. 61. London: The Stationery Office, 1999.

Survival from breast cancer for women aged 15–99 in the United Kingdom

Percentage

Country	5 year relative survival
England	75
Wales[1]	65
Scotland	75
Northern Ireland	78

[1] Females aged 0–84

Sources:
Office for National Statistics. Cancer survival 1992–1999, England. London: ONS, 31st January 2001
Welsh Cancer Intelligence and Surveillance Unit. Cancer Registration and Survival in Wales 1985–1994. Cardiff: WCISU, 1999
Scottish Cancer Intelligence Unit. Trends in Cancer Survival in Scotland 1971–1995. Edinburgh: Information & Statistics Division NHS in Scotland, 2000
Fitzpatrick DA, Gavin AT. Survival of Cancer Patients in Northern Ireland 1993–1996. Belfast: Northern Ireland Cancer Registry, 2001

Reserves

Mr. Howard: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how much money remains in the reserves; and what plans he has to increase the funds available in the reserves over the course of the current financial year; [10259]

(2) if he will provide a breakdown of how, and in what quantities, money available in the reserves has been spent so far in the current financial year. [10251]

Mr. Andrew Smith: Any additions to departmental expenditure limits will continue to be reported to Parliament through the supplementary estimates process in the normal way. The forthcoming pre-Budget report will set out the latest position on the public finances.

Business Payroll Costs

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he will publish the Carter review of payroll costs to business; and if he will make a statement. [13699]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer the hon. Member to what the Chancellor of the Exchequer said to him at Question Time on 8 November 2001, Official Report, column 363.

Bank Disclosures

Mr. Gareth R. Thomas: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, pursuant to his answer of 23 October 2001, Official Report, column 204W, on bank disclosures, what information he has received on the lending patterns in under-invested communities of (a) Lloyds TSB, (b) HSBC, (c) Nat West and (d) Barclays. [12447]

Ruth Kelly: Information on the lending patterns of banks to under-invested communities is available in the Bank of England's report "Finance for Small Businesses in Deprived Communities" (November 2000). It is a matter for individual banks to decide whether to disclose further information. I am aware that, of the banks mentioned in my hon. Friend's question, Barclays published some data in their "Social and Environmental Report 2000".

Construction and Refurbishment Contracts

Ms Walley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list the top 10 companies to which his Department contracted out their construction and refurbishment work in the last 12 months. [6417]

Ruth Kelly: The information is as follows:

HM Treasury

No such contracts were let in the period concerned.

Office of Government Commerce

Balfour Beatty Refurb. Ltd.
DTZ
Turner & Townsend Proj. Management
Withey Building Services
Cheetham Hill Construction Ltd.
Interior Plc.
VHE Construction Ltd.
Kilby & Gayford Construction
Paragon Interior Group Plc.
Lambert Smith Hampton

OGC Buying Solutions

Spraybake Limited
Hodge Clemco Ltd.

HM Customs and Excise

Interior Design Management
Courtenay Building Cont.
Spectrum Projects Ltd.
Wates Interiors Ltd.
Turner & Townsend Ltd.
Connaught Interiors Ltd.
Rosser & Russell
John Laing Construction
Simpson Ltd.
British Airports Authority

Inland Revenue

HBG Management Ltd.
Semple & Cochrane Ltd.
George S. Hall Ltd.
Instyle Construction Ltd.
Interserve
Drake & Scull Technical Services
Malla Rail
Taylor Woodrow Management Ltd.
Trillium
Bailey Maintenance Services.

Motor Fuel Producers (Tax Income)

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much was raised in tax on motor fuel producers in each year since 1997. [14015]

Dawn Primarolo: Estimates of tax receipts from motor fuel producers are not available.

Business Rates

Mr. Edwards: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans he has to review the method for calculating business rates for small rural public houses. [14007]

Dawn Primarolo: None. Small rural public houses, along with other business properties, are assessed for non-domestic rating purposes by Valuation Officers, appointed by the Commissioners of Inland Revenue, in accordance with the Local Government Finance Act 1988 (as amended). The method of valuation for such properties is a matter for those involved in the assessment process; i.e. Valuation Officers, ratepayers and their professional advisers, and is subject to a right of appeal to an independent tribunal in the event of disagreement.

Mr. James Sharp

Mr. Edwards: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will refer the case of Mr. James Sharp, a constituent, to the Treasury Solicitor. [14005]

Dawn Primarolo: The Inland Revenue Solicitor, not the Treasury Solicitor, advises the Valuation Office Agency on rating litigation and he has been instructed in this case.

Mr. Edwards: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the decision of the East Wales Valuation Tribunal in the case of Sharp v. Valuation Office. [14006]

Dawn Primarolo: The Treasury does not assess decisions of the Valuation Tribunal. Valuation Tribunals are independent bodies set up to deal with disputes in connection with, inter alia, non-domestic rating matters. Appeals against their decisions lie to the Lands Tribunal. It would be inappropriate for the Treasury to intervene with these independent bodies.

ECOFIN Council

Mr. Hood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the outcome was of the ECOFIN Council held in Brussels on 6 November; what the Government's stance was on each issue discussed, including its voting record; and if he will make a statement. [13437]

Dawn Primarolo: I attended the ECOFIN Council.

The Commission presented its communication on company taxation. I made it clear that while the Government might support some action to tackle barriers to cross-border business, they do not support the Commission's proposal for a consolidated company tax base in the EU. The specific proposals contained within the study will be considered in due course.

The Commission presented its progress report on the Risk Capital Action Plan, highlighting the need for the EU to remove barriers to a single EU risk capital market. I stressed the UK's support for the objectives of the action plan, but expressed concern that the proposed prospectuses directive, as currently drafted, would have the effect of reducing the supply, and increasing the cost, of risk capital. The Council agreed that rapid progress on the Risk Capital Action Plan was necessary, in line with the timetable agreed at the Lisbon European Council.

The Council noted Economic Policy Committee reports on the budgetary impact of aging populations and on the measurement of output gaps. It also noted a report from the Economic and Financial Committee on measures to improve the quality and timeliness of Eurozone statistics.

The Council also adopted conclusions with respect to Ireland's compliance with the Council Recommendation of 12 February 2001, which recommended measures to bring the 2001 Irish budget in line with the 2000 Broad Economic Policy Guidelines. The Council agreed that the earlier Recommendation had lost part of its force, mainly due to exogenous shocks that have reduced inflationary pressures in the Irish economy.

ECOFIN agreed that taxation of audiovisual and musical products should be examined by the Commission in the context of its wider review of VAT reduced rates, and not by the Culture Council, as taxation matters are for ECOFIN.

No votes were taken at the meeting.

IR35

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans he has to review the 5 per cent. ceiling for tax exempt expenses under IR35. [13496]

Dawn Primarolo: Service company workers affected by the service company legislation are entitled to all the same expenses as conventional employees. In addition to these expenses, service company workers are also entitled to a 5 per cent. flat rate reduction in recognition of the fact that there are costs associated with running a service company. We have no plans to review the level of this deduction.

Business Compliance Costs

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how the Inland Revenue will measure compliance costs to business as referred to in Cm 407; and if he will make a statement. [10972]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Aylesbury (Mr. Lidington) on 31 October 2001, Official Report, column 746W.

National Insurance Numbers

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many checks on national insurance numbers will have been completed by the end of 2001. [14130]

Dawn Primarolo: During the 1999–2000 tax year, 626,641 payroll items were checked. Of these 288,924 errors were found and 6,223 cases were referred for potential fraud investigation.

During the 2000–01 tax year, 1,035,796 payroll items were checked of which 770,308 were found to contain errors and 22,777 were referred for potential fraud investigation.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Local Education Authorities

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will make a statement on the role (a) the private sector and (b) the not-for-profit sector can play in the running of (i) English schools and (ii) English local education authorities; and if she will make a statement. [11485]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 15 October 2001]: Local authorities and schools can already contract with the private and voluntary sector to support schools. The White Paper "Schools: achieving success" proposes partnerships between schools, local authorities and partners who might in some cases be from the private or voluntary sector. But schools will continue to be managed by the governing body and headteacher, even where they are supported by expertise from other sources. Local education authorities should secure high quality services from the most cost-effective source available, in accordance with best value principles. Sources include the education authority itself, or partnerships with other public, voluntary or private sector bodies, both profit making and not for profit. Individual local education authorities remain responsible and accountable for the services concerned, however they are provided.

Music Standards Fund

Mr. Salter: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many local authorities are receiving grants from the Music Standards Fund to provide instrumental tuition for pupils. [10045]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 5 November 2001]: All 150 local education authorities in England are receiving grants from the music standards fund. LEAs may spend their music standards fund grants in any way which enhances opportunities for pupils to access high quality musical education. This includes instrumental tuition.

Early Years Excellence

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills when she will announce the result of the bid by Somerford Infant School and the Grange Neighbourhood Nursery Partnership for an early years excellence centre. [13029]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 6 November]: 49 early excellence centres are now developing practice in integrated care, education and family services. Working closely with sure start and neighbourhood nurseries, we will create up to 100 centres across the country by 2004. On 27 February we announced an expansion of the programme and invited expressions of interest in joining it. On 1 October we announced 14 new centres—the first in a series of designations resulting from those expressions of interest. The proposal for a centre at Somerford Infant School as part of the Grange neighbourhood nursery scheme was, at this stage, considered not yet ready to join the programme. Along with other proposals in need of further work Somerford Infant School was invited to develop its plans further. We are now considering proposals as part of a next batch of EEC designations and expect to make further announcements in the new year.

GCSE Grades

Mr. Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what proportion of children achieved five or more GCSEs at A* to C grades in (a) schools with sixth forms and (b) schools without sixth forms, in 2001. [11538]

Mr. Ivan Lewis [holding answer 31 October 2001]: The proportion of 15-year-olds that achieved five or more GCSEs at A* to C was (a) 52.2 per cent. in schools with sixth forms and (b) 42.2 per cent. in schools without sixth forms in England in 2001.

Lone Parents

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will give a breakdown of the number of lone parents leaving the New Deal for Lone Parents for employment who have (a) at least one child below the age of five years three months and (b) all children aged over five years three months, for each month since the inception of the New Deal. [9679]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: I have been asked to reply.

The information is in the table.

Numbers leaving the new deal for lone parents into employment Great Britain up to July 2001

Month	Age of youngest child[1] Under 5 years and 3 months	5 years 3 months and over
December 1998	33	34
January 1999	75	73
February 1999	98	98
March 1999	143	138
April 1999	198	227
May 1999	217	247
June 1999	255	312
July 1999	434	559
August 1999	411	524
September 1999	410	507
October 1999	682	919
November 1999	859	1,061
December 1999	1,302	1,643
January 2000	883	1,099
February 2000	707	928
March 2000	1,109	1,368
April 2000	869	983
May 2000	926	1,147
June 2000	1,163	1,319
July 2000	965	1,188
August 2000	907	1,065
September 2000	989	1,131
October 2000	1,148	1,345
November 2000	1,396	1,637
December 2000	1,414	1,689
January 2001	967	1,124
February 2001	815	974
March 2001	1,186	1,359
April 2001	903	1,011
May 2001	1,028	1,123
June 2001	1,192	1,275
July 2001	955	1,052
Total	24,639	29,159

[1] Age of youngest child when attended initial interview

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Civil Service

Chris Grayling: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many full-time employees work in the civil service. [14331]

Mr. Leslie: The most recent data were published on 8 November 2001. This showed that in April 2001 there were 436,400 full-time permanent staff in the civil service. There were also 11,400 full-time staff employed on a casual basis, bringing the total to 447,800.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Computer Crime

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many cases of computer (a) hacking, (b) fraud and (c) theft her Department recorded in (i) 2000 and (ii) 2001; and on how many occasions in those years computer systems have been illegally accessed by computer hackers (A) within and (B) outside his Department. [13133]

Ms Hewitt: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 31 October 2001, Official Report, columns 692–93W.

Sellafield

Mr. Chaytor: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what plans she has to extend the no-fly zone at Sellafield. [13229]

Ms Hewitt [holding answer 8 November 2001]: There are no plans to extend the flying restrictions applying to Sellafield at the present time. Flying restrictions over Sellafield prohibit aircraft from flying over the nuclear installation below a height of 2,200 feet above mean sea level in a two nautical mile radius. The regulations currently applying are the Air Navigation (Restriction of Flying) (Nuclear Installations) Regulations 2001 which came into force on 11 May 2001. The regulations do not prohibit flights for the purpose of landing at or taking off from the helicopter landing area at the installation. Such flights are made with the permission of the person in charge of the installation and in accordance with any conditions to which that permission is subject.

Mr. Chaytor: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if the B215 building at the Sellafield site has been designed to resist a plane crash. [13231]

Ms Hewitt [holding answer 8 November 2001]: All nuclear licensees are required by the Health and Safety Executive (HSE), the safety regulator, to ensure that they maintain valid safety cases for operations on each of their sites. Safety cases need to take due account of external hazards such as plane crashes at nuclear installations. HSE is satisfied that the safety case applying to the Sellafield site, including building 215, took appropriate account of the risks of an accidental air crash.

The UK's civil nuclear sites apply stringent security measures regulated by the Office for Civil Nuclear Security (OCNS), the security regulator. The security regulator works closely with the Health and Safety Executive, the safety regulator, which provides advice on the safety implications of events, including external hazards such as plane crashes, at nuclear installations. Security and safety precautions at nuclear sites are kept under regular review. Both regulators are reviewing all relevant precautions in the light of the recent terrorist attacks in the USA. It is not Government policy to disclose details of security measures taken at civil nuclear sites.

Employment Agencies

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what representations she has received on the draft Conduct of Employment Agencies and Employment Businesses Regulations 2001; what assessment she has made of the effect of such regulations on employment agencies and businesses; and if she will make a statement. [14223]

Alan Johnson: We received representations from workers' organisations, employers' bodies, trade associations, agencies, employment businesses, individuals and other interested parties. The regulatory impact assessment for the draft conduct regulations found that they should reduce recruitment costs for employers across the economy, and make the labour market more efficient and flexible. In addition, clarifying the contractual position of temporary workers will help ensure they get the employment rights to which they are entitled.

Our objective in overhauling the existing regulations, which date from 1976, is simpler, clearer, regulations, which are relevant to the market of today and of the future. The proposed new regulations are in many cases updated versions of existing requirements. They are designed to benefit recruitment agencies, those employed through them and hirers. They will remove unnecessary restrictions on agencies' operations and the services they offer, while protecting the interests of work-seekers and vulnerable groups.

Paternity Leave

Mr. Edwards: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will make a statement about the provision of paternity leave for fathers of multiple births. [13654]

Alan Johnson: The Employment Bill introduced on 7 November includes a new right to two weeks' paid paternity leave for fathers following the birth of their child. The Bill includes provisions for regulations to be made to address cases where more than one child is born as a result of the same pregnancy. Future regulations will cover these special circumstances.

Royal Ordnance (Chorley)

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what priority the Royal Ordnance site has been given in order to promote the use of a brownfield site. [13749]

Alan Johnson: A very high priority has been given to the Royal Ordnance site, which is identified as one of 11 strategic sites in the North West Development Agency's regional strategy. A large part of the site has already been acquired by a development consortium, and Chorley Borough Council are currently in negotiations with the present owner to acquire 50 hectares of the site for re-use as a major inward investment site. This will see the return of one of the largest brownfield sites in Lancashire to productive use.

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment the North West Regional Development Agency has made of the benefits involved with the use of the Royal Ordnance site in Chorley. [13748]

Alan Johnson: Chorley borough council, with the backing of the North West Development Agency, are currently negotiating the purchase of part of the Royal Ordnance site. Officers of the North West Development Agency are working closely with the Council to assess the likely costs and benefits of converting the site to make it suitable for inward investment.

Nuclear Power Stations

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what plans she has for the future use of the site at Bradwell power station. [13378]

Ms Hewitt [holding answer 8 November 2001]: None. The site belongs to BNFL, which has announced publicly its planned lifetime limits for Magnox power stations. The power station at Bradwell is due to stop generating electricity next year.

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what recent representations she has received proposing the building of new nuclear power stations; and what plans she has for the construction of new nuclear power stations. [13271]

Ms Hewitt [holding answer 8 November 2001]: My Department has no plans to build nuclear power stations nor has it received any proposals from electricity generating companies to do so.

Universal Bank

Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if all those in receipt of benefit pension and tax credit payments will be automatically eligible for a Post Office card account after the introduction of the Universal Bank. [12684]

Mr. Alexander [holding answer 6 November 2001]: It is the Government's policy to encourage people to use the type of account which is most appropriate for their needs. The Post Office card account is intended primarily for people who are unable or unwilling to open even a basic bank account, and it is the Government's intention to promote the take up and use of basic and other bank accounts. As a consequence, this matter is being considered within the context of an overall migration and marketing strategy on which a great deal of work is currently under way.

Post Offices

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many post offices there are in each parliamentary constituency; and how many of them derive more than 40 per cent. of their income from the Benefits Agency. [10740]

Mr. Alexander [holding answer 31 October 2001]: I have been advised by Consignia that they do not hold figures on post office numbers by parliamentary constituency. The latest information available remains a special exercise undertaken by the Post Office in 1999 to determine the numbers of post offices in each parliamentary constituency and how many of them derived more than 40 per cent. of their income from the Benefits Agency.

Consignia have not repeated his exercise but the answer was set out in the reply given to the then hon. Member for Birmingham Erdington on 29 November 1999, Official Report, column 22W.

Ilisu Dam

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what discussions she has had with the Prime Minister in relation to export credit guarantee to underwrite the Ilisu Dam project; and when the last discussion took place. [13464]

Ms Hewitt: I have had no discussions with my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister in relation to export credit guarantee to underwrite the Ilisu Dam project.

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) what assessment she has made of the human rights impact of the Ilisu Dam project in Turkey; [13465]

(2) what assessment she has made of the progress made in providing relocation packages for people who would need to be resettled as a result of the Ilisu Dam project in Turkey; [13467]

(3) if she will make a statement on how the Ilisu Dam project in Turkey meets each of the four conditions that the Government have set for export credit guarantees; [13466]

(4) what assessment she has made of the progress made in ensuring that the Ilisu Dam in Turkey will not cut off water supplies to Syria and Iraq in times of drought. [13468]

Ms Hewitt: I have commissioned reports from independent consultants on the environmental impact assessment report and the resettlement action plan prepared in respect of the Ilisu Dam project. These reports, together with comments received from the public, are being considered and discussed with other Government Departments with an interest in the project, in particular the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs and the Department for Culture, Media and Sport. When our consideration is complete, I will make a statement. No date has been set for a decision regarding ECGD support for the project.

Flexible Working Hours

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps she is taking to give employees the right to request flexible working hours; and if she will make a statement. [11696]

Alan Johnson: In my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State's reply to the hon. Member for Preston (Mr. Hendrick) on 28 June 2001, Official Report, column 149W, she announced the formation of the Work and Parents Taskforce to look at how parents and employers can be encouraged to consider flexible working patterns that suit them both. The Taskforce is due to report this month. The Government hope to respond to the Taskforce's recommendations soon after.

Correspondence

Mr. Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will make it her policy to ensure that all letters sent by Ministers in her Department to hon. Members are signed by the Minister replying or by one of his or her private secretaries and that the use of facsimile signatures inserted by computer is abandoned. [13259]

Ms Hewitt: I can confirm that I have asked that all letters sent by Ministers in my Department to hon. Members, other than letters which are going to all or a large number of MPs and communications sent by e-mail, are approved and signed in person by the Minister, or approved by the Minister and signed by their private secretary.

Mr. Salmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when she will reply to the letters dated 21 July and 25 September from the hon. Member for Banff and Buchan regarding Whitelink Seafoods, Fraserburgh. [9983]

Ms Hewitt [holding answer 25 October 2001]: I understand that my right hon. Friend the Minister for Trade replied to the hon. Gentleman's letters of 21 July and 25 September on 7 November.

She will write further to explain why there was such an exceptional delay in this correspondence.

Sub-post Offices

Mr. Viggers: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will make a statement on the funding of sub-post offices. [13061]

Mr. Alexander: To start the implementation of all the recommendations of the Performance and Innovation Unit, the Government have committed £270 million of support over three years for modernisation of the post office network. That ring fenced funding is being allocated in accordance with an agreed robust business case from Post Office Ltd.

£15 million has been earmarked for the Department of Transport, Local Government and the Regions to help sustain and improve post offices in deprived urban areas. Up to £25 million has been allocated this financial year for the Government General Practitioner ("Your Guide") trial in Leicestershire which began in July.

The Government are committed to providing transitional financial assistance to rural post offices and decisions on this will be taken following advice from the Postal Services Commission which is expected in the weeks to come. In addition we have made available a £2 million fund to support volunteer and community initiatives to maintain or reopen post office facilities in rural areas where traditional services would otherwise close.

Royal Mail

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will list those parts of the country in which the Royal Mail has withdrawn a morning collection in the last 12 months. [12590]

Mr. Alexander: Under the terms of the licence issued by the independent regulator, the Postal Services Commission, to Consignia to provide postal services, the company is required to make at least one collection of relevant postal packets every working day from each access point. Subject to this requirement the timing and number of collections is an operational issue for Consignia.

I am advised that changes to the frequency of mail collections are being assessed on an area by area basis and that therefore no national data are available in the format requested.

Nuclear Security

Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps she is taking to ensure the security of nuclear power stations. [13473]

Ms Hewitt [holding answer 9 November 2001]: The UK's civil nuclear sites apply stringent security measures regulated by the Office for Civil Nuclear Security (OCNS), the security regulator. The security regulator works closely with the Health and Safety Executive, the safety regulator, which provides advice on the safety implications of events, including external hazards such as plane crashes, at nuclear installations. Security and safety precautions at nuclear sites are kept under regular review. Both regulators are reviewing all relevant precautions in the light of the recent terrorist attacks in the USA. It is not Government policy to disclose details of security measures taken at civil nuclear sites.

Greenhouse Gases

Mr. Watts: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what progress has been made in setting up a greenhouse gases emissions trading scheme. [12816]

Mr. Meacher: I have been asked to reply.

In August 2001, DEFRA published the Framework for the UK Emissions Trading Scheme, which sets out the structure of the scheme and what firms need to do to participate. The UK scheme will be the first economy-wide emissions trading scheme in the world.

Currently, we are in the pre-registration period. Firms are registering their interest in the scheme and approaching the Department about their eligibility for joining. For those firms taking on voluntary absolute emissions caps, there is also the opportunity to prepare to bid for a share of the up to £43 million per annum incentive offered by Government. The incentive will be allocated via an auction early next year. Emissions trading will go-live in April 2002. Several forward trades have already taken place.

PRIME MINISTER

Renewable Energy

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Prime Minister what recent representations he has received from the Performance and Information Unit regarding progress towards meeting the Government's targets for renewable energy supply; and if he will make a statement. [13273]

Mr. Sayeed: To ask the Prime Minister when the Cabinet Office report on UK energy needs will be published; and if he will make a statement. [13881]

The Prime Minister [holding answer 8 November 2001]: The Performance and Innovation Unit has published its analysis of how to allocate the extra £100 million support to boost the development of the UK renewable energy industry. This money will help us reach our target that 10 per cent. of electricity sales by licensed suppliers will come from renewable sources eligible for the renewables obligation by 2010.

The unit is conducting a wide ranging analysis of the UK's energy needs. It will be presenting its findings to me by the end of the year.

Public Policy

Mr. Maples: To ask the Prime Minister what the (a) names and (b) functions are of the units dealing with the formulation and the delivery of public policy which are answerable to (i) the Prime Minister, (ii) the Deputy Prime Minister and (iii) Ministers in the Cabinet Office. [13181]

The Prime Minister [holding answer 8 November 2001]: For information on my office, I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Nottingham, North (Mr. Allen) on 19 October 2001, Official Report, column 1361W.

For details about the Deputy Prime Minister and Ministers in the Cabinet Office, I refer the hon. Member to the answer that my right hon. Friend the Deputy Prime Minister gave to the hon. Member for South Cambridgeshire (Mr. Lansley) on 11 July 2001, Official Report, column 573W.

On Friday 9 November I announced that Baroness Morgan would join my office as the new Head of Political and Government Relations in Downing Street. My hon. Friend the Member for Hornsey and Wood Green (Mrs. Roche) will take over the Ministerial responsibilities within the Cabinet Office for equal opportunities and the Women's Unit, reporting to the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry as the Cabinet Minister with responsibility for this area. My hon. Friend will continue to report to the Deputy Prime Minister on her existing responsibilities.

Policy Co-ordination

Mr. Maples: To ask the Prime Minister how many civil servants working directly for (a) the Prime Minister, (b) the Deputy Prime Minister and (c) Ministers in the Cabinet Office are responsible for the central co-ordination and progress of policy. [13180]

The Prime Minister [holding answer 8 November 2001]: As at 1 September 2001, there were 27 civil servants and special advisers working in the Policy Directorate, European Adviser's Office and Foreign Adviser's Office in No. 10. In the Cabinet Office, there were 244 in the Cabinet Secretariats; 12 in the Delivery Unit; 20.5 in the Deputy Prime Minister's Central Policy Group; 62 in the Regional Co-ordination Unit; 39 in the Social Exclusion Unit, and 40 in the Women and Equality Unit and the Equality Secretariat.

Departmental Changes

Mr. Maples: To ask the Prime Minister in respect of each Government Department which has been renamed or had its responsibilities altered since the last general election, what the purpose of the changes was; and if he will make a statement. [13182]

The Prime Minister [holding answer 8 November 2001]: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Sutton and Cheam (Mr. Burstow) on 2 July 2001, Official Report, column 31W.

European Leaders

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Prime Minister if he will make a statement on his meeting with European leaders at No. 10 Downing street on 4 November. [13637]

The Prime Minister: This was a useful and productive discussion, and an important part of our effort to keep in close touch with partners in the campaign against terrorism.

Fishery Harbours

Laura Moffatt: To ask the Prime Minister if he will make a statement on departmental responsibility for fishery harbours. [14741]

The Prime Minister: The Transfer of Functions (Fishery Harbours) Order 2001 was laid before Parliament today. It transfers legislative responsibility for English fishery harbours from the Department of Environment, Food and Rural Affairs to the Department of Transport, Local Government and the Regions.

The transfer follows a recommendation of the 1998 Review of Trust Ports, and will improve the efficiency of the Government's involvement in harbour legislation. A consultation exercise showed wide support for the transfer.

Work Force Development

Mr. Chaytor: To ask the Prime Minister when he will publish the Performance and Innovation Unit report on work force development. [14240]

The Prime Minister: The PIU report on work force development is expected to be published by the end of the year.

Voluntary Organisations

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Prime Minister if he will make a statement on the Performance and Innovation Unit's review of the legal and regulatory framework for voluntary organisations. [13897]

The Prime Minister: I announced details of the review in the answer I gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Halton (Derek Twigg) on 3 July 2001, Official Report, column 93W.

As part of the consultation process, public events have been held in London, Manchester, Llandrindod Wells, Edinburgh and Belfast. There have also been a number of seminars with experts in the field. To encourage wider participation the review team is also posting working papers on the Performance and Innovation Unit's website for comment (http://www.cabinet-office.gov.uk/innovation/2001/charity/main.shtml).

HEALTH

Care Standards (Young Adults)

Brian Cotter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the financial impact will be on individual homes and local authorities of implementing national care standards for younger adults. [9498]

Jacqui Smith: It is not possible to quantify the effect on individual homes of implementing the national minimum standards for younger adults. For some there will be none, for some others the effects will be minimal.

The resources provided for personal social services are increasing by, on average, 3.4 per cent. per annum in real terms over the next three years. We expect home owners will cover the costs of meeting the standards through the fees they charge. Local authorities are funded to meet these additional costs.

GPs

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many new GPs were recruited in 1999–2000 and 2000–01. [9092]

Mr. Hutton: The latest data available are for September 2000. Data for September 2001 will be available at the end of January 2002. The information is shown in the table. The number of general practitioners registrars (GPs in training) increased from 1,520 in September 1999 to 1,659 in September 2000, an increase of 9.1 per cent.

Unrestricted Principals and Equivalents (UPEs)[1] analysis of workforce and flows, 1999–2000

England Numbers

		1999–2000
UPEs	27,591[2]		27,704[2]
joiners		1,203
of which:
new joiners		958
re-joiners		245
leavers		1,090
Change in UPEs		113

[1] UPEs includes GMS unrestricted principals, PMS contracted GPs and PMS salaried GPs

[2] Number of UPEs are numbers at 1 October 1999 and 30 September 2000

Other rows relate to changes between successive October/ September censuses

Source:

Department of Health General Medical and Personal Medical Services Statistics

Student Nurses

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on the timetable of his review of funding for student nurses. [10935]

Mr. Hutton: The Department completed its review last year and following this Ministers considered options for amendment of the current support arrangements. Following the announcement in the March 2001 Budget of additional funding for the National Health Service, the decision was made to direct extra money to all NHS funded students, using an across the board increase in basic bursary rates, rather than targeting specific groups. With effect from September this year bursary rates were increased by 10.4 per cent., the biggest increase since bursaries were introduced in the late 1980s.

Head Injury

Mr. Berry: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to commission research into the incidence and prevalence of head injury. [11667]

Ms Blears: The Department has supported, and continues to support, research into head injury through the national health service research programmes. The Department welcomes high quality research applications in response to nationally advertised calls for proposals.

In 1999–2000 the Medical Research Council spent almost £2 million on research related to the area of head injury. Priorities for research are kept under review and reflect analysis of the burden of disease, potential benefits and Government priorities.

Departmental Assets

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what stocks of (a) antiques, (b) paintings and (c) fine wines are held by his Department; if he will list such assets sold over the last three years together with the sale proceeds from such transactions; what plans he has to sell further such assets over the period of the current comprehensive spending review; and if he will make a statement. [10832]

Ms Blears: The Department does not held any stocks of antiques, paintings and fine wines and no such assets have been sold over the last three years.

Eye Tests

Matthew Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to improve access to NHS eye tests. [12377]

Jacqui Smith: Since we extended eligibility to free national health service sight tests to people aged 60 or over, with effect from April 1999, nearly 3 million more people are receiving NHS sight tests each year. We have no plans to extend the eligibility criteria further, but we wish to publicise the benefits to eye health of having a regular sight test and eye examination.

Strategic Health Authorities

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health within which statutory format the proposed strategic health authorities will operate from April 2002. [12367]

Mr. Hutton [holding answer 5 November 2001]: We plan to bring forward a bill in the current Session to provide the necessary powers to introduce strategic health authorities and to reallocate current health authority functions to primary care trusts. Subject to parliamentary approval strategic health authorities will be introduced as soon as possible after Royal Assent.

The reduction in the number of health authorities from April 2002 will be achieved using existing powers under section 8 of the National Health Service Act 1977.

MRI Scanners

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the sources of expenditure were on new linear accelerators and MRI scanners in each of the last two years. [12714]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 6 November 2001]: Some £43 million has been made available for linear accelerators and some £26 million for MRI scanners from the New Opportunities Fund cancer initiative from September 1999 to date. These sums have purchased 57 linear accelerators and 36 MRI scanners. In parallel, the £100 million national health service central fund initiative for cancer diagnostic equipment which began in April 2000 is supporting investment in CT scanners.

These sums are in addition to equipment purchased locally by NHS trusts. Full information is not held centrally, but at least eight linear accelerators and 26 MRI scanners supported by trust funding have been installed over the same period.

Future NHS funding for 45 linear accelerators and 50 MRI scanners is also planned as announced in the NHS Cancer Plan.

NHS Patients

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with which EU nations his Department has had discussions over the treatment of NHS patients. [12704]

Mr. Hutton [holding answer 6 November 2001]: The Department has had discussions with all other member states on the financial consequences of treatments provided under Regulation (EEC) 1408/71, including referrals of individual patients for treatment using the E112 arrangements.

Following recent rulings of the European Court of Justice, my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State notified both the Commission and other member states of his decision to amend domestic legislation to clarify that health authorities and trusts may commission treatment from other member states of the European Economic Area. Officials have since met or corresponded with representatives of hospital providers from Austria, Belgium, France, Greece, the Netherlands, Germany, Portugal, Spain and Norway.

Nursing Care

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Health for what reasons (a) the consultation process on free nursing care arrangements ran for four weeks and (b) the consultations on care standard regulations ran for 10 weeks. [13154]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 9 November 2001]: Consultation on the care standards regulations lasted for a period of 12 weeks and this is the usual amount of time for carrying out a consultation. However, on free nursing care, it was necessary, exceptionally, to reduce the period of formal consultation to four weeks in order to ensure that individuals could benefit financially from these arrangements from 1 October. In recognition of this, extra efforts were made to ensure that those most interested were aware of the consultation. Many organisations were sent copies of the guidance and invited to comment. Requests to extend the deadline from individuals and organisation were viewed sympathetically.

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many health authorities, primary care groups and primary care trusts had not appointed (a) a nursing home co-ordinator and (b) a lead nurse by 1 November. [13158]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 9 November 2001]: As far as we are aware, all the relevant English health authorities and primary care trusts have people in place to fill these roles.

NHS Trusts (Franchises)

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what criteria he will use to determine when an NHS trust might be made subject of a franchise arrangement. [13510]

Mr. Hutton: If a national health service body is not performing one of its functions adequately or at all, or there are significant failings in the way the trust is being run my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has the powers, under section 13 of the Health and Social Care Act 2001, to intervene.

In the case of NHS trusts that have recently received a zero star performance rating they are required to provide an action plan, agreed with the Department, to address the particular areas of performance which they need to improve. Franchise arrangements will only be considered if these trusts fail to make progress against their action plan.

GP Partnerships

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many applicants there were on average for a general practitioner's partnership in 1985; how many there were on average in the last 12 months; what representations he has had from general practitioner about difficulties filling vacancies in their practices; and what is the average time taken to fill such vacancies. [14241]

Mr. Hutton: There were an average of 6.9 applicants per general practitioner vacancy outstanding at some stage during the period 1 April 2000 and 31 March 2001 in England and Wales.

The average time to fill each GP vacancy was 4.8 months.

There is no information available on the average number of applicants in 1985.

The Department regularly meets the General Practitioner Committee of the British Medical Association to discuss issues affecting recruitment and retention.

Nurses

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many low cost housing units for nurses in London have been found by the Department's housing tsar. [14112]

Mr. Hutton: 802 units have been provided so far with agreements signed for a further 120 units due for occupation next year. We are well on target to deliver the additional 2000 units of affordable housing units for national health service staff in London which is the target set in the NHS Plan. We expect to exceed this target.

In addition London NHS trusts are refurbishing 2,500 units in London, and 2,300 units of accommodation will be provided in London as part of the starter home initiative which will benefit some 5,000 NHS key workers. Overall we will have helped 7,500 individual staff in the NHS by mid-2003.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many nursing posts there are (a) in the UK and (b) in London; and how many unfilled vacancies there are. [14111]

Mr. Hutton: As at 31 March 2001 there were 9,000 (3.4 per cent.) qualified nursing and midwifery posts in England which had been vacant for three months or more. The equivalent figure for the London area was 2,960 (6.4 per cent.).

Information on vacancies for Scotland, Wales, and Northern Ireland is a matter for the devolved Assemblies.

Mental Health

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proportion of the NHS budget was spent on mental health in (a) 1997–98, (b) 1998–99, (c) 1999–2000, (d) 2000–01 and (e) the current year to date. [13855]

Jacqui Smith: Spend on mental health services as a percentage of total national health service spend was 12.3 per cent. in 1997–98, 12.1 per cent. in 1998–99 and 12.5 per cent. in 1999–2000. Information from health authorities and NHS trusts for subsequent years is not yet available.

The figure given for 1999–2000 is not directly comparable to previous years or future years, 1999–2000 represents the first year that primary care group expenditure was included in the calculation and the formula used to apportion the expenditure was based on estimated data. In future years the data for primary care groups will be more detailed and the resultant figure for percentage spend will be more accurate.

MRSA

Mr. Viggers: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the incidence of methicillin resistant staphylococcus aureus in hospitals was in each of the last five years. [13504]

Mr. Hutton: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave the hon. Member for Romsey (Sandra Gidley) on 25 October 2001, Official Report, columns 341–42W.

Health Spending

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much the UK is spending on health as a percentage of GDP in the current financial year; and what the comparable figures are for (a) Spain, (b) France, (c) Germany and (d) Italy. [13479]

Mr. Hutton: For the year 2001–02, total health spending in the United Kingdom is estimated to be 7.3 per cent. of gross domestic product.

The best available comparable data for other countries comes from the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development. The latest data for Spain, France, Germany and Italy are for 1998, and in calendar years rather than financial years. The spend as a percentage of gross domestic product of these countries and the United Kingdom can be seen in the table.

	Percentage
Country	1998
Spain	7.0
France	9.3
Germany	10.3
Italy	7.7
United Kingdom	6.8

Source:
OECD Health Data 2001

NHS Trusts (Franchises)

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what performance measures will be used to evaluate the effectiveness of a franchise arrangement. [13509]

Mr. Hutton: If a national health service body is required to enter into a franchise arrangement under Section 13 of the Health and Social Care Act 2001, it will be expected to agree an action plan with the Department that addresses its particular areas of weakness. Successful implementation of the action plan will be the key criterion in evaluating the effectiveness of franchise arrangements.

National Blood Service

Mr. Havard: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when the National Blood Service's appropriate use of blood and blood components group contingency plans for prolonged periods of blood shortages will be published for consultation. [13507]

Mr. Hutton: Consultation is currently taking place with health professionals who use blood to establish what measures are practicable to introduce into the national health service.

Mr. Havard: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how the National Blood Service's appropriate use of blood and blood components group plans to minimize the risk of transfusion-transmitted vCJD. [13506]

Mr. Hutton: The National Blood Service appropriate use of blood group aims to minimise the theoretical risk of transfusion-transmitted vCJD by ensuring that blood and blood components are only ever transfused when clinically indicated. This is in addition to measures introduced by the Government to reduce the theoretical risk of transmitting vCJD through blood—leucodepletion of blood for transfusion and the importation from the United States of America of plasma for fractionation.

Mr. Havard: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what kind of blood substitute therapies and alternatives to blood transfusions the National Blood Service's appropriate use of blood and blood components group is examining; and who it is consulting on these matters. [13505]

Mr. Hutton: The National Blood Service appropriate use of blood group is looking at simple pre-operative measures to avoid the need for transfusion, including assessment of haemoglobin levels to determine whether transfusion is necessary; correcting anaemia with appropriate vitamin and iron supplements; volume replacement with solutions other than blood components and autologous blood transfusion in all its forms.

The group is carrying out wide consultation with experts in the field both inside and outside the National Blood Service including the Jehovah's Witnesses Hospital Liaison branch.

The four United Kingdom Chief Medical Officers held a "Better Blood Transfusion" conference on 29 October 2001. The main aim of the conference was to help set the priorities for blood transfusion in the national health service for the coming three to five years. One of the important issues discussed was how to avoid the unnecessary use of blood in clinical practice in the face of decreasing supplies and numbers of blood donors. We will be taking work forward on this and other issues considered at the conference and further guidance will be issued to the NHS in 2002. Information about the conference is available on www.doh.gov.uk/bbt2

HOME DEPARTMENT

DNA Databases

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what his policy is on the creation, maintenance and retention of DNA databases in combating terrorism in the United Kingdom. [13409]

Mr. Denham: Our policy on DNA is the same for combating all crime. The Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 included an amendment modifying the restriction on the use of DNA taken under the provisions of the Terrorism Act in England, Wales and Northern Ireland, to allow their use additionally for the prevention and detection of any crime, the investigation of any offence or the conduct of any investigation.

The fingerprint and DNA databases are registered with the Data Protection Registrar and information stored on them is covered by data protection legislation. Additional safeguards ensure that this information can only be used for the prevention and detection of a crime, the investigation of an offence and the conduct of a prosecution.

Strangeways

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the handcuffing of a prisoner at Strangeways during his chemotherapy treatment for cancer at North Manchester General Hospital. [13406]

Beverley Hughes: Following a risk assessment, a prisoner receiving treatment at the North Manchester General Hospital was released on temporary licence so that he could receive treatment without escort and without the application of any restraints. However, he breached the conditions of his licence by disappearing from the permitted area of the hospital, and his licence was revoked pending a full reassessment of risk to the public. During this period, lasting six days, he was handcuffed and escorted by prison staff. On completion of the risk assessment, the Governor was satisfied that the prisoner had not deliberately breached his licence conditions. He was therefore again released on licence and all security measures have been withdrawn. It is Prison Service policy that restraints should normally be removed at the request of medical staff. No such requests were made in this case.

Imitation Firearms

Judy Mallaber: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has to restrict the availability of imitation firearms. [13261]

Mr. Denham: There are already serious penalties for threatening someone with an imitation firearm, or for using one to resist arrest or with criminal intent. In view of the considerable legal and practical issues involved the Government are not persuaded that fresh legislative measures are warranted. We will, however, continue to look at what further measures might usefully be taken to tackle misuse.

Anthrax Attacks

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many hoax anthrax attacks have been reported since 11 September; and if he will make a statement. [13026]

Mr. Blunkett [holding answer 6 November 2001]: The Metropolitan Police started recording the number of hoax anthrax attacks on 9 October, with the rest of the United Kingdom's police forces following suit on 19 October.

Since then, there have been 2,700 false alarms, scares, threats and hoaxes relating to suspicious packages and mail items.

With the exception of Halloween, these incidents have dropped significantly since 23 October.

Passport Fees

Derek Twigg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on passport fees. [14334]

Angela Eagle: The Privy Council has made an Order in Council, the Consular Fees (Amendment) Order 2001, which gives authority for an increase in passport fees in the United Kingdom. The increase will take effect on 14 January 2002. The fee for a standard 32 page passport will increase from £28 to £30 and for a 48 page passport from £38 to £40. The fee for amending an existing passport will increase from £17 to £18. The cost of a passport for a child will increase from £14.80 to £16. The additional charge for those making applications in person in the United Kingdom will increase from £12 to £15. The fee for a collective passport, for organised trips for schools and youth groups, will increase from £40 to £42.

Two new services will be introduced for 14 January 2002 at passport office public counters. A one week guaranteed service will cost an additional £15. A same day premium service will cost an additional £30.

This is the first increase in passport fees for two years. In relation to the cost of travel abroad, a fee of £30 for a standard 10 year passport still represents very good value for money.

Departmental Publications

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many publications were issued by his Department in each of the last four years. [11834]

Mr. Blunkett: The number of publications issued each year by the Home Office Communication Directorate (CD) and the Research, Development and Statistics Directorate (RDS) since 1999 are as follows:

Financial year	Total number of publications issued by CD and RDS
1 April 1999–31 March 2000	443
1 April 2000–31 March 2001	439
1 April 2001-to date[1]	373

[1] 31 October 2001

Figures are provided for the period from 1 April 1999. Before this date production was not centralised and it is therefore not possible to provide a complete list of publications prior to this date.

The publications produced reflect the full range of Home Office responsibilities, including for example, police recruitment and crime prevention materials, research reports, publications issued to victims of crime and advice on fire safety issues.

Youth Offender Panels

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has to increase the use of youth offender panels; what steps he has taken to increase participation in the scheme; and if he will make a statement. [13482]

Mr. Denham: Referral orders and their associated youth offender panels have been piloted in seven areas in England and Wales since summer 2000. They are due to be implemented throughout England and Wales on 1 April 2002. The Government and the Youth Justice Board are supporting youth offending teams' preparations, with finance, training and guidance. From 1 April youth courts will refer all young offenders aged 10–17 who plead guilty and are convicted for the first time to a youth offender panel unless the offending is so serious as to warrant custody or the court orders an absolute discharge or makes a hospital order.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department for which offences teenagers may be referred to a youth offender panel. [13480]

Mr. Denham: Under the referral order legislation, the youth court will refer all young offenders aged 10–17 who plead guilty and are convicted for the first time to a youth offender panel, unless the offending is so serious as to warrant custody or the court orders an absolute discharge or makes a hospital order.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the extent is of the powers of youth offender panels; and how binding their judgments are. [13481]

Mr. Denham: Youth offender panels meet young offenders sentenced to referral orders, their parents or guardians and, where appropriate, victims. They agree contracts with the young offenders, including interventions aimed at preventing re-offending and reparation to individual victims or the wider community. The contracts last between three and 12 months, the term of the referral order as set by the court. Offenders who do not agree to contracts or fail to carry out contracts they have agreed may be referred back to the court and an alternative sentence may be given.

Residency

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many applications for residency on behalf of sponsors of British citizens were granted in 2000; how many such applications were received in 2000; how many such applications have so far been received in 2001; how many have so far been granted; and what is the average length of time between such an application being received by the Home Office and its granting; [14242]

(2) how many applications for spouses of British citizens for residency are pending; and how long on average it took between applications being received, and their being opened in the last 12 months. [14243]

Angela Eagle: The latest published information relates to decisions on applications for indefinite leave to remain on the basis of marriage to a British citizen in 2000. Some 34,840 applications were granted on this basis.

Information on the number of applications lodged, average decision time and corresponding data for 2001 is not available. We are also not able to provide information on pending applications for spouse applications and average time between receipt and opening.

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when his officials received an application on behalf of Mrs. Melissa Gryspeerdt of Chippenham, Wiltshire; when they expect to process it; and if he will make a statement. [14246]

Angela Eagle: On the information provided by the hon. Member, I cannot at present confirm the receipt of any application on behalf of Mrs. Melissa Gryspeerdt. If the hon. Member or his constituent is able to provide more detailed information, including Mrs. Gryspeerdt's maiden name, the date of posting and the recorded delivery details, we will make every effort to trace the application as a matter of priority.

Sex Offences

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on his plans in relation to reforming the law on sex offences and the recommendations of the report, "Setting the boundaries: Reforming the law on sex offences". [13892]

Mr. Keith Bradley: We received more than 700 responses to the consultation paper "Setting the Boundaries: Reforming the law on sex offences". We are currently analysing the responses to each chapter and will be making an announcement of our conclusions as soon as this is completed.

Computer Crime

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many cases of computer (a) hacking, (b) fraud and (c) theft his Department recorded in 2000 and 2001; and on how many occasions in 2000 and 2001 computer systems in his Department have been illegally accessed by computer hackers (i) within and (ii) outside his Department. [11002]

Mr. Denham: Official records compiled under the Government scheme for reporting Information Technology (IT) security incidents, the Unified Incident Reporting and Alert Scheme (UNIRAS), show the following figures.

The number of cases of computer hacking detected was 0 in 2000 and 0 in 2001.

The number of cases of fraud detected was 0 in 2000 and 0 in 2001.

Asylum

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many incidents of racial harassment were reported to the National Asylum Support Service's Investigations Team by asylum seekers in (a) 2000 and (b) 2001 broken down by (i) month and (ii) region; and if he will make a statement. [13044]

Angela Eagle [holding answer 7 November 2001]: The number of allegations of racial harassment reported to the National Asylum Support Services (NASS) Investigations Team in (a) 2000 and (b) 2001 is as follows.

Year	Number
2000
May	[1]4
June	[1]19
July	[1]38
August	[1]46
September	[1]36
October	36
November	40
December	32
2001
January	47
February	71
March	66
April	64
May	78
June	74
July	71
August	103
September	72
October	122

[1] The performance Monitoring Investigations Section (PMI) became fully operational in October 2000. Figures prior to October 2000 represent those cases reported to the Investigations Sections. Further allegations may have been investigated within the wider Operations Section within NASS but there are no statistics for this

The figures are not broken down by region. The figures represent the reports which NASS's Investigations Section received and information on who reported the incident is not recorded.

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many Sri Lankans have sought political asylum in the UK in each of the last three years. [13446]

Angela Eagle: The information is provided in the table.

Applications for asylum to the UK, excluding dependents, from nationals of Sri Lanka, 1998–2000[1]

Year	Applications
1998	3,505
1999	5,130
2000[2]	6,395
2001[2,3]	3,060

[1] All data rounded to nearest five
[2] Provisional
[3] January to July

The information is published regularly in the annual statistical bulletin Asylum Statistics United Kingdom, a copy of which is available in the Library, and from the RDS website: http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html

Mr. Malins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many applications for asylum were made in each of the last 12 months by (a) Afghans, (b) Sri Lankans, (c) Somalians and (d) Iraqi Kurds; what proportion were (i) granted and (ii) refused; what proportion were granted exceptional leave to remain; and what proportion have been removed. [14022]

Angela Eagle: The latest available information is provided in the table and relates to the number of applications and initial decisions made under normal procedures for principal applicants. Data on initial decisions are independent of applications data, and do not necessarily relate to applications lodged in the same period. Information on Iraqi Kurds is not available.

Following the initial decision, applicants have a right of appeal to the Immigration Appellate Authority.

Reliable information on the proportion of those refused asylum or exceptional leave to remain in the latest 12 months who were subsequently removed is not available. Information on the nationality of persons removed is not available due to data recording problems.

Information on asylum applications and initial decisions is published regularly in the annual statistical bulletin "Asylum Statistics United Kingdom", a copy of which is available in the Library, and from the RDS website: http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1/html

Applications for asylum to the UK and initial decisions[1] for nationals of Afghanistan, Sri Lanka, Somalia and Iraq, excluding dependents, August 2000 to July 2001[2]

Month	Applications	Initial decisions	Grants of asylum	Percentage of initial decisions	Grant of ELR	Percentage of initial decisions	Refusals	Percentage ofinitial decisions
Afghanistan
August 2000	495	180	15	9	40	23	120	68
September 2000	535	175	10	6	30	16	135	77
October 2000	560	410	45	11	30	7	340	82
November 2000	550	515	115	23	110	22	285	56
December 2000	535	545	130	24	255	47	160	29
January 2001	510	1,020	175	17	555	55	290	28
February 2001	615	1,320	225	17	785	59	310	24
March 2001	680	2,045	375	18	1,215	59	450	22
April 2001	700	930	195	21	550	59	185	20
May 2001	900	1,025	220	22	615	60	190	19
June 2001	910	985	220	22	600	61	165	17
July 2001	810	875	220	25	485	55	165	19
Total	7,790	10,020	1,955	19	5,265	53	2,800	28
Sri Lanka
August 2000	445	470	45	10	25	6	365	78
September 2000	470	405	40	10	15	4	320	79
October 2000	565	675	105	15	10	1	565	83
November 2000	675	895	110	12	10	1	775	87
December 2000	610	770	90	12	20	3	655	85
January 2001	570	1,240	140	11	40	3	1,065	86

Applications for asylum to the UK and initial decisions[1] for nationals of Afghanistan, Sri Lanka, Somalia and Iraq, excluding dependents, August 2000 to July 2001[2]

Month	Applications	Initial decisions	Grants of asylum	Percentage of initial decisions	Grant of ELR	Percentage of initial decisions	Refusals	Percentage ofinitial decisions
February 2001	435	1,495	205	14	40	3	1,245	83
March 2001	410	1,950	260	13	90	5	1,600	82
April 2001	445	865	125	15	60	7	675	78
May 2001	425	805	105	13	40	5	660	82
June 2001	415	695	85	12	30	4	585	84
July 2001	355	565	85	15	30	5	450	80
Total	5,815	10,835	1,395	13	415	4	8,965	83
Somalia
August 2000	615	680	210	31	125	19	325	48
September 2000	545	540	95	18	60	11	360	67
October 2000	485	445	105	23	30	6	315	70
November 2000	435	615	185	30	70	11	360	58
December 2000	420	525	160	30	80	16	285	54
January 2001	500	705	260	37	155	22	295	41
February 2001	380	805	345	43	165	20	300	37
March 2001	470	1,135	390	34	265	24	480	42
April 2001	420	565	240	42	140	25	185	33
May 2001	495	700	290	42	175	25	235	33
June 2001	505	460	180	39	135	29	145	32
July 2001	710	520	185	36	170	33	165	32
Total	5,980	7,690	2,645	34	1,570	20	3,440	45
Iraq
August 2000	870	510	80	15	220	43	210	41
September 2000	1,035	345	45	14	105	30	200	58
October 2000	1,185	490	30	7	15	3	445	91
November 2000	1,205	580	60	10	25	5	495	85
December 2000	695	530	35	7	40	7	455	86
January 2001	755	1,180	65	6	90	7	1,030	87
February 2001	710	890	90	10	110	12	690	78
March 2001	425	1,280	105	8	190	15	985	77
April 2001	295	630	60	10	120	19	445	71
May 2001	340	780	65	8	135	17	580	74
June 2001	440	580	65	11	110	19	405	70
July 2001	580	580	45	8	125	22	410	71
Total	8,535	8,380	740	9	1,285	15	6,360	76

[1] Cases decided under normal criteria. Excludes cases decided under pragmatic measures aimed at reducing the pre-1996 asylum application backlog.
[2] Provisional data.
Notes:
All data except percentages are rounded to nearest five.
Columns may not sum to totals due to rounding.
Percentages may not sum to 100 due to rounding.

Nick Tucker

Mrs. Fitzsimons: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he expects the investigation by the Criminal Cases Review Commission into the case of Mr. Nick Tucker to report. [13440]

Mr. Keith Bradley: The Criminal Cases Review Commission commenced its review of Nicholas Tucker's conviction on 31 May 2001. It has made progress with the case but is unable to say when it will complete its consideration.

Badger Baiting

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make badger baiting a recordable crime. [13891]

Mr. Denham: Convictions, cautions, reprimands and warnings under sections 1(1) and (3), 2 and 3 of the Protection of Badgers Act 1992 are recordable by police forces on the Police National Computer. These include offences of wilfully killing, injuring or taking a badger, cruelly ill-treating a badger, and intentionally or recklessly interfering with a badger sett, including damaging or destroying a sett or causing a dog to enter a sett.

Paramilitary Training

Hywel Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will put in place measures to ensure that children and young people are prevented from participating in paramilitary style training organised by political parties. [13426]

Mr. Denham [holding answer 8 November 2001]: I am aware of the allegations of paramilitary type training for young people being provided and the particular concerns of the honourable member in relation to 'Camp Excalibur' in North Wales. I understand that North Wales Police have conducted a full investigation into such activities. They have assured me that no criminal offences have been committed. It is of course an offence under Section 54 (1) and (2) of the Terrorism Act 2000 to provide instruction or training or to receive instruction or training in the making or use of firearms, explosives, or chemical, biological or nuclear weapons. In addition, under subsection (3) (b) a person commits an offence if he invites another to receive instruction or training and the receipt would constitute an offence under subsection (2) but for the fact that it is to take place outside the United Kingdom. Any concrete and verifiable evidence of such activities will be dealt with immediately.

Criminal Injuries Compensation Scheme

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the impact on the criminal injuries compensation scheme of the decision in R v. CICAP ex parte August and ex parte Brown; and if he will make a statement. [12969]

Mr. Denham: The handling of individual cases, or groups of case, is entirely a matter for the Criminal Injuries Compensation Authority and the independent appellate body, the Criminal Injuries Compensation Appeals Panel. Ministers do not get involved in or comment on those bodies' handling of individual applications or their interpretation of the scheme rules.

However, I understand that in the light of the outcome of this judicial review, the claims officers of the Compensation Authority and the Adjudicators of the Appeals Panel will continue to determine whether an applicant was a non-consenting victim of a sexual offence by considering each case on its facts and circumstances.

Corporate Manslaughter

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on progress in bringing forward proposals for a new offence of (a) corporate manslaughter and (b) corporate killing. [12736]

Mr. Denham: In May 2000 we published a consultation paper "Reforming the Law on Involuntary Manslaughter". This included proposals for a new offence of corporate manslaughter or corporate killing.

The consultation period closed in September 2000 and an interdepartmental working group has been set up to consider the issues raised. We intend to bring forward legislation as soon as parliamentary time allows.

National Black Police Association

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will update the information given in his answer to the hon. Member for Worthing, West of 19 July 2001, Official Report, column 345W, concerning the National Black Police Association. [13708]

Mr. Denham: As you will be aware, an article appeared in the Evening Standard on 8 August which suggested that the written answers which I gave on 19 July 2001, Official Report, column 345W, about the case of Superintendent Dizaei was not correct. As a result, I asked Home Office officials to examine further with the Metropolitan police the information which was provided. As a result, I am satisfied that the information given in the answers, which was based on information provided by the Metropolitan police, gave a misleading impression, for which I apologise. I am satisfied that there was no intention to mislead and that the errors arose because of misunderstanding between officials and the Metropolitan police about the information which the police had provided in order to answer the questions.

I am advised by the Metropolitan police that the full and accurate picture is as indicated in my letter to the hon. Member of 9 November, a copy of which has been placed in the Library. This clarifies the position regarding the telephone calls that Superintendent Dizaei made in connection with his National Black Police Association business.

LORD CHANCELLOR'S DEPARTMENT

Jurors

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department (1) what measures there are to protect the identity of jurors in court; [12426]

(2) what rules restrict the names of jurors being read out in court. [12425]

Mr. Keith Bradley [holding answers 6 November 2001]: In cases where a judge is satisfied that there is a danger that there will be an attempt to intimidate or interfere with a jury, he may order that the names of jurors should be withheld and that they should only be balloted by number.

Libra Project

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department, pursuant to his answer of 31 October 2001, Official Report, column 752W, on the Libra project, how many of the magistrates courts committees with Office Automation will keep their existing dedicated terminals to access the legacy systems until the new Libra software is available; and if he will make a statement. [13197]

Mr. Wills: In all of the Magistrates Court Committees in receipt of the Libra Office Automation service, access to the main legacy system is achieved, for almost all staff, via the Libra terminal on their desks. Access to some other legacy systems used in discrete areas is achieved by a communication link to the legacy network, again using the Libra terminal. Only a minority of staff require this facility. In some cases separate stand-alone terminals have been retained to provide this access, in addition to access for specific local systems where that access was not available on the legacy network, and is not currently available on the Libra service. This mixture of access is replicated in all MCCs.

Money Claims

Harry Cohen: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department if the Lord Chancellor will introduce legislation to change the law so that if a claim is made against a first defendant and a second defendant for the same sum of money the case against the latter is not decided upon until the case against the former is resolved; and if she will make a statement. [13145]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Lord Chancellor has no current plans to change the law on joint or joint and several liability. However, under the general case management powers of the court, the trial judge may consolidate proceedings or direct a separate trial of any issue for the purpose of managing the case and furthering the overriding objective of the Civil Procedure Rules of enabling the courts to deal with cases justly.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Jobcentres (Assaults)

18. Mr. Sayeed: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps his Department plans to take to deal with violent assaults on Jobcentre staff. [11699]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: Violent assaults on Jobcentre staff in our 1,000 plus Jobcentres are extremely rare. In the year to 30 June 2001 out of 137 incidents involving assaults on staff only three were reported as requiring treatment for more than cuts and bruises.

In order to reduce the risk of assaults of any kind to an absolute minimum every Jobcentre is subject to a risk assessment, as a result of which a range of security measures are in force in each office. These can include, security guards, CCTV and panic alarms.

We will take determined action against customers who in any way threaten, attack or abuse our staff.

Learning Disabilities

19. Mr. Mahmood: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what support his Department is giving to help those with learning disabilities to get back into work. [11700]

Maria Eagle: People with learning disabilities have access to the full range of specialist disability employment programmes and support from specialist advisers.

Child Support Agency

22. Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on progress with preparation for the changes to the Child Support Agency which will come into effect in April 2002. [11703]

Malcolm Wicks: Preparations for the introduction of the new child support scheme are progressing in accordance with the planned timetable.

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the qualifications of the Auditor General to the 2000–01 accounts of the Child Support Agency; and if he will make a statement. [7269]

Malcolm Wicks: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive, Mr. Doug Smith. He will write to my hon. Friend.

Letter from Doug Smith to Mr. Mark Todd, dated 9 November 2001.

I am replying to your Parliamentary Question to the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions asking what assessment has been made of the qualifications of the Auditor General to the 2000/2001 accounts of the Child Support Agency.

I very much regret that the Agency's accounts have again been qualified by the Comptroller and Auditor General.

Some of the concern expressed by the Comptroller and Auditor General will be remedied as we implement the new Child Support arrangements from 2002.

Others we can address now and I am doing so through a standard approach to corporate governance, to risk management and to the improvement in the accuracy of work undertaken.

I hope this is helpful.

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much is owed to the Child Support Agency in outstanding child maintenance payments; how much of this is deemed uncollectable; and if he will make a statement. [11060]

Malcolm Wicks: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive, Mr. Doug Smith. He will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Doug Smith to Mr. Laurence Robertson, dated 9 November 2001:

I am replying to your Parliamentary Question to the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions about the Child Support Agency.

You asked what amount is owed to the Child Support Agency in outstanding child maintenance payments; what amount of this is deemed uncollectable; and if he will make a statement.

The amount of debt that was reported in the Child Support Agency's Annual Accounts for the year ending March 2001 is £527.80 million, of which £286.58 million is deemed collectable, £208.72 million is deemed possibly uncollectable and £32.50 million is deferred debt.

In the year 2000/2001 our target was to reduce the amount of outstanding debt by 25%. We realised that target and have set ourselves the same challenge for 2001/2002.

Dr. Stoate: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what the annual budget of the Child Support Agency has been in each year since 1993; [7584]

(2) how many cases the Child Support Agency has handled in the last 12 months; and what the average cost per case over that period was. [7585]

Malcolm Wicks: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive, Mr. Doug Smith. He will write to my hon. Friend.

Letter from Doug Smith to Dr. Howard Stoate, dated 9 November 2001:

I am replying to your Parliamentary Questions to the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions about the Child Support Agency.

You asked what the annual budget of the Child Support Agency has been in each year since 1993. Also how many cases the Child Support Agency handled in the last 12 months; and what the average cost per case over that period was?

The table at Annex 1 shows the Annual Budget of the Agency for each year since 1993.

During the last 12 months the Agency handled 1,555,550 cases.

The average cost per case is £132.17 and is based on the Agency's running costs (excluding the costs associated with the Child Support Reforms) between October 2000 and September 2001 of £205.590 million.

I hope this is helpful.

Annex 1: Annual Budget since 1993

£ million

Year	Budget
1993–94	114
1994–95	184
1995–96	194
1996–97	206
1997–98	207
1998–99	204
1999–2000	207
2000–01	203

Workers (Rehabilitation)

24. Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what recent discussions he has had with private sector insurers about the rehabilitation of workers. [11705]

Malcolm Wicks: We are introducing a Job Retention and Rehabilitation Pilot from next year which will help people at risk of losing their job due to illness or disability to stay in work. We consulted widely on the development of this pilot which attracted interest from a range of groups including insurers.

New Deal

25. Vernon Coaker: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment his Department has made of the impact the new deal has had on youth unemployment. [11706]

Malcolm Wicks: Since 1997, youth unemployment has fallen by over 40 per cent., and long-term youth unemployment has been cut by almost three-quarters.

The new deal for young people has played a major part in this success. Up to August 2001, the programme had helped over 326,000 people into work, and independent research has estimated that, without the new deal, long-term youth unemployment would have been about twice as high.

Linda Gilroy: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the new deal for disabled people. [11704]

Maria Eagle: Early evaluation found that the new deal for disabled people had a positive impact on helping disabled people move towards work.

The pilot phase of the new deal for disabled people helped over 8,200 people move into work and since July we have begun to introduce a network of job brokers nationally.

The new deal for disabled people is just part of the range of help we are providing to help people on Incapacity Benefit move towards work. These include removing benefit barriers to allow people to take part in worktrials and work placements and ensuring that taking up work is worthwhile by introducing the disabled person's tax credit.

Mr. John Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the new deal for 50 plus; and if he will make a statement. [11682]

Mr. Darling: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave my hon. Friend the Member for Gravesham (Mr. Pond) earlier today, at column 556.

Mr. Simon: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment his Department has made of the effect the new deal has had on long-term unemployment in Birmingham, Erdington. [11687]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: In Birmingham, Erdington since 1997, claimant unemployment has fallen by a third and the number of people unemployed for one year plus has been more than halved.

People who have been unemployed for 12 months or more can now benefit from the employment zone operating in Birmingham that has already helped over 2,300 people into work.

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many persons have left the new deal for young people since its inception; how many of them have left to enter (a) jobs lasting less than 13 weeks, (b) sustained jobs and (c) jobs lasting more than 26 weeks; and what is the cost per person into a sustained job. [7982]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: The results of the new deal for young people are contained in the monthly statistical first releases which are available in the Library.

By the end of July 2001, 594,300 people had left the new deal for young people. Of these, 239,500 were to sustained unsubsidised jobs and 190,770 entered unsubsidised jobs and did not return to claim jobseeker's allowance within 26 weeks.

If someone on the new deal for young people moves into a job which lasts less than 13 weeks, they return to the new deal and are not classed as leavers.

The average cost per person into a job on the new deal for young people is around £4,000. This estimate cannot be broken down by the type of job obtained.

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many participants in the new deal for lone parents have obtained places on (a) Employment Service programmes, (b) work based learning for adult programmes and (c) other training programmes since the inception of the new deal; and if he will give a breakdown of the qualifications obtained in each case. [9639]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: The latest information on the number of participants in the new deal for lone parents programme who have taken up education or training is contained in the statistical first release (SFR) which is available in the Library.

Information is not recorded on the type of training undertaken or qualifications gained.

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many places were (a) available and (b) taken up on (i) the employment option and (ii) the full-time education and training option on the new deal for the long-term unemployed in each year since its inception; and what the cost per place in each case was. [9332]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: The new deal for 25-plus provides individually tailored help for long-term unemployed adults. Support through subsidised employment and education and training opportunities (ETO) is provided on the basis of individual need. As a result, the number of places available for subsidised employment or ETO relate directly to the number of participants for whom such provision is the most effective route into sustained, unsubsidised employment.

The table shows the number of subsidised employment and ETO places that have been taken up since July 1998.

Year	Subsidised employment	ETO
From July 1998	1,811	1,381
1999	6,597	3,995
2000	5,692	2,383
January to July 2001	2,051	[1]199
Total	16,151	7,958

[1] Numbers taking up subsidised employment and ETO placements are for pre-April 2001 starts and hence do not include starts to the enhanced new deal 25-plus intensive activity period. The figures are taken from the Statistical First Release (SFR). The number of starts to ETO may be undercounted and future SFRs will show revised figures as necessary

Estimated average unit costs for subsidised employment and ETO are available for 1999–2000 and 2000–01. These are set out in the table.

£

Year	Subsidised employment	ETO
1999–2000	1,402	802
2000–01	1,557	869

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions further to his answer of 15 October 2001, Official Report, column 904, on unemployment advice, what research he has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated into deadweight cost and the new deal. [9528]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: We have commissioned a comprehensive range of new deal evaluation, including that by the National Institute of Economic and Social Research (NIESR) which looked at the overall impact of the programme on the wider economy. This was a valuable piece of research showing that without new deal long-term youth unemployment would be about twice as high.

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many of the long-term unemployed have been subjected to sanctions in respect of the new deal for the long-term unemployed since its inception. [9335]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: Up to September 2001, 50,913 sanctions had been imposed on people participating in new deal programmes. Figures are not available for individual programmes.

Source:

Employment Service Labour Market Statistics

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the total cost to date has been of (a) publications on and (b) advertising of new deal programmes for the unemployed. [11651]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: Figures available are as follows:

Publications[1]—£2,574,69)

Advertising—£17,522,471.

It does not include an element for new deal for lone parents (NDLP). Throughout the period from 1997 to date, publications for NDLP were included in the overall cost of marketing for all advertising campaigns run by the Department of Social Security in each of the relevant financial years. It is not possible therefore to separate out this cost.

[1] This figure covers only publications for new deal for young people, 25 plus, partners of unemployed, 50 plus, disabled people and action teams

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many participants in the new deal to date have been placed on a computer skills course as part of the Ambition: IT partnership. [11649]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: The Ambition: IT initiative is currently being developed. Training will be available from January 2002.

Universal Bank

26. Mr. Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people he estimates will receive benefits through the universal bank. [11707]

Mr. Darling: Universal Banking Services are scheduled to be available when we begin to migrate our customers to payment by automated credit transfer in 2003.

Manufacturing Sector

27. Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on the monthly changes in the number of people employed in the manufacturing sector since 1998. [11708]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: Since 1998 the number of people employed in the manufacturing sector has fallen from 4.5 million to 4.1 million. Over the same period, total UK employment has increased by around 500,000.

Manufacturing is an important sector of the economy, with output at near record levels. But as in other industrialised countries, there are fewer people employed in producing these manufactured goods than 20 years ago. In a dynamic economy jobs are being created and lost all of the time. Where changes in the economy lead to job losses, and to upheavals in individuals' lives, help and support is available so they can find a new job as quickly as possible—wherever they live and whatever part of the economy they work in.

Pensioners Credit Scheme

28. Ian Lucas: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment the Government have made of the contribution the pensioners credit scheme will make to the income of pensioners in the United Kingdom. [11709]

Mr. McCartney: The Pension Credit forms a key part of the Government's overall strategy for tackling pension poverty.

When introduced in 2003 it will mean that no single pensioner need live on less than £100 a week and no pensioner couple need live on less than £154 a week.

Over-50s

29. Mr. Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what strategy his Department is developing to help people aged over 50 into work. [11710]

33. Mr. Crausby: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans he has to help unemployed people over 50 years of age back into work. [11714]

36. Mr. Gordon Marsden: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans he has to help unemployed people over 50 years of age back into work. [11717]

Malcolm Wicks: We are committed to the principle of extending opportunity for all to everyone regardless of age, and tackling age discrimination in the workplace. A key element of this is the New Deal 50 plus which has already helped over 50,000 people move into work since its national launch in April 2000.

We are developing proposals to increase take up of the New Deal 50 plus training provision, and employer involvement in the programme, in the form of 3rd Age Apprenticeships. These will offer work-based training organised on a sectoral basis, making use of existing New Deal 50 plus funding arrangements, particularly the Training Grant.

The on-going Age Positive campaign is challenging workplace attitudes towards age, ensuring employers realise the benefits of employing an age diverse workforce. An extensive direct mailing initiative early in 2001 successfully targeted recruitment agencies, in addition to the Federation of Small Businesses.

Social Deprivation

30. Mr. Watts: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans he has to help people back into work in areas of social deprivation in St. Helens, North. [11711]

Malcolm Wicks: Our welfare to work initiatives are helping people into work in all parts of the country. We have introduced Action Teams for Jobs which are providing tailored help to jobless people in the most employment deprived areas. Action Teams have already helped over 15,000 jobless people move into work.

The Merseyside Action Team, launched in October 2000, covered two areas of Merseyside: Wirral and St. Helens. We increased the number of Action Teams from 40 to 53 on 15 October 2001 and St. Helens now has its own Action Team which will focus even more closely on helping disadvantaged jobless people in the area move into work.

Jobs (Peterborough)

31. Mrs. Helen Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on the impact of measures to create jobs in Peterborough since 11 September. [11712]

Malcolm Wicks: The current labour market position in Peterborough is strong. The claimant unemployment rate in September 2001 was 2.3 per cent., below the national average of 3.1 per cent. Total unemployment in the constituency has fallen by 40 per cent. in the last four years. Over the same period the number unemployed for one year or more has fallen by two thirds, while the number of 18–24 year olds unemployed for six months or more is down by almost 75 per cent.

Our aim remains employment opportunity for all throughout the country. We have put in place a framework that delivers:

a platform of economic stability and low inflation, to promote sustained growth in output and jobs;

investment in education and training so people have the skills they need to take up work;

a labour market policy with a strong work focus so all jobless people have access to vacancies, advice and help with jobsearch;

a range of New Deal programmes which help disadvantaged groups move from welfare into work;

policies such as the National Minimum Wage and Working Families Tax Credit designed to make work pay; and locally focused initiatives designed to tackle the problems of particular areas, such as Action Teams for Jobs.

These policies, alongside continued economic growth, have combined to ensure steady improvement in the labour market.

Jobfinder Plus

32. Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on the role of compulsion in jobfinder plus. [11713]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: In parallel with the introduction of Jobcentre Plus we a requiring new and repeat claimants to working age benefits to attend an interview with a Personal Adviser to ensure that they are aware of the support that is available to help them into work. Other than for claimants of Jobseekers Allowance, to whom the current rules continue to apply, there is no requirement on them to take any other steps to look for work.

Employment Programmes

34. Mr. Mudie: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what discussions he has had recently with employers to discuss the Government's employment programmes. [11715]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: Since June of this year we have met with key employer organisations and many individual employers. Their input is central to the development of our employment policies and to ensuring that our employment programmes meet local labour market needs and employers' recruitment needs.

We have also created the National Employment Panel to ensure that employers, and other key customers, have a strong and permanent voice within the Department. The panel is an employer-led body that will provide independent advice on the design, delivery and performance of our welfare to work initiatives.

Employers have a central role to play in achieving our goal of creating and sustaining employment opportunities for all.

Training Providers

35. Mr. Clelland: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what was the average length of time taken by his Department to release funds to training providers following audit in the latest six-month period for which figures are available. [11716]

Malcolm Wicks: Audits are carried out by the Department, as part of its normal commercial relationships with external providers. Departmental auditors are not empowered to withhold funds which are payable to providers. They will advise on any irregularities that may have been identified during the course of the audit. Contracting teams will decide on any appropriate action in these circumstances.

In the last six months, there are no instances of the Department withholding payment to training providers as a result of audit activities.

Maternity Benefit

37. Mr. Tynan: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on the operation of sure start maternity benefit. [11718]

Malcolm Wicks: The Sure Start Maternity Grant complements the Sure Start programme, which is helping many thousands of children from the most deprived areas to get the best start in life.

The Grant is available to people receiving Income Support, income-based Jobseeker's Allowance, Working Families' Tax Credit, or Disabled Person's Tax Credit. It is worth up to three times as much as the Maternity Payment it replaced and provides more help to those families in most need.

Employment Zones

Mr. McCabe: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on the effectiveness of employment zones in reducing unemployment. [11681]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: Employment Zones are one of a range of initiatives we have introduced to help people move into work. The 15 Employment Zones are performing well and have already helped over 14,500 people into work. We are currently evaluating the Zones before deciding how to take the initiative further.

Tax Credits (Pensioners)

Roger Casale: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what further plans he has to introduce tax credits for pensioners. [11694]

Mr. McCartney: As announced in the Gracious Address, the Government will introduce a Bill to provide for Pension Credit in this session.

The Pension Credit forms a key part of the Government's overall strategy for tackling pensioner poverty.

When introduced in 2003 it will mean that no single pensioner need live on less than £100 a week and no pensioner couple need live on less than £154 a week.

Around half of all pensioners will gain as a result of the introduction of the Credit.

Pensions

Mrs. Lawrence: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his policy is on the status of the basic state pension within overall pension provision in the United Kingdom. [11701]

Mr. McCartney: The basic state pension will remain the foundation of income in retirement. We have increased the rates above inflation this year and we will do so again next year.

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, pursuant to his answer of 24 October 2001, Official Report, column 242W, on pensions, if he will provide quarterly figures on the sales of personal pensions for the last five years. [12449]

Mr. McCartney: The information is in the table:

Thousand

Time period	Number of personal pension and Group Personal Pension contracts sold
1996
Qtr 1	254
Qtr 2	300
Qtr 3	247
Qtr 4	253
1997
Qtr 1	300
Qtr 2	398
Qtr 3	329
Qtr 4	279
1998
Qtr 1	360
Qtr 2	384
Qtr 3	318
Qtr 4	332
1999
Qtr 1	307
Qtr 2	327
Qtr 3	279
Qtr 4	271
2000
Qtr 1	251
Qtr 2	268
Qtr 3	234
Qtr 4	242
2001
Qtr 1	300
Qtr 2	314

Notes:

1. Figures sourced from the Association of British Insurers.
2. The figures include both single premium and regular premium pensions. They do not include additional voluntary contributions.

Winter Fuel Payments

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the feasibility of using the administrative mechanisms that he uses to ensure that women receive their retirement pension as soon as they reach 60 years to allow him to pay winter fuel payments to women who reach 60 years after the qualifying date but before the end of the winter. [14032]

Mr. McCartney: Using a qualifying week allows us to gather and verify household information in order for payments to be made in time for the coldest weather. To do otherwise could compromise our ability to make timely payments to more elderly recipients.

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people have responded to the recent winter fuel payment advertising campaign; and what steps have been taken to evaluate the effectiveness of the campaign. [7913]

Mr. McCartney: Press advertising ran over a two week period at the beginning of August 2001 to support a targeted mailing to those newly eligible for a Winter Fuel Payment from winter 2001.

We measured press advertising specific response (period 2–23 August 2001) as follows:

A total of 27,016 calls to the Winter Fuel Payment Helpline. Of these 9,389 calls quoted specific press adverts.

Press coupons continue to be returned. Up to 5 October 2001:

19,232 press coupons had been returned requesting a claim form.

154,241 completed claim forms had been returned in total.

The campaign for winter 2001 will continue until the end of March 2002. Evaluation takes place on an on-going basis through call centre statistics. It will be assessed later in the campaign if customer interview research needs to be commissioned.

Inter-agency Liaison

Mr. Joyce: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans he has to improve liaison between the Benefits Agency and the Employment Service. [11690]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: The first 49 Jobcentre Plus offices opened on 22 October providing, for the first time, a fully integrated employment and benefit service. First reactions from both individual customers and employers have been overwhelmingly positive. We plan progressively to extend this integration nation-wide beginning later next year.

Pensions Complaints

Mr. Chaytor: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many (a) cases were referred to OPAS, (b) complaints about OPAS were referred to the Pensions Ombudsman, (c) other complaints were referred to the Pensions Ombudsman and (d) complaints were upheld by the Pensions Ombudsman in respect of (i) OPAS and (ii) others and (e) complaints were rejected by the Pensions Ombudsman in each of the last three years. [12104]

Mr. McCartney: The available information is contained in the following table:

	Year ended 31 March 1999	Year ended 31 March 2000	Year ended 31 March 2001
Inquiries and complaints received by OPAS	30,984 (7,176 written)	32,174 (7,304 written)	36,322 (8,415 written)
Inquiries and complaints received by the Pensions Ombudsman	3,067	3,269	3,215
Inquiries and complaints rejected by the Pensions Ombudsman as not suitable for investigation[1]	2,395	2,594	2,409
Complaints upheld by the Pensions Ombudsman to some extent[2] (percentage)	59	49	39

[1] Most rejections are because the case is not within jurisdiction (eg referred to a different ombudsman) or because the matter has not been fully explored with the body complained against, or because OPAS has not been given an opportunity to resolve the matter. The complainant receives a decision in almost all cases which are within jurisdiction and where the matter has been explored/OPAS consulted.
[2] As a percentage of those investigated.

Complaints about OPAS are not within the Pensions Ombudsman's jurisdiction and no specific records are kept of complaints made about OPAS and rejected, but if people are unhappy with the result of inquiries made by OPAS they can refer the matter to the Pensions Ombudsman.

Jobcentre Plus

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what training has been undertaken by staff commencing work in the new Jobcentre Plus offices. [14033]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: I refer the hon. Member to answer given to the hon. Member for Hertsmere (Mr. Clappison) on 8 November 2001, Official Report, column 374W.

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions which Jobcentre Plus offices provide the facility for benefit claims to be made over the telephone; what length of time he estimates such telephone calls to take; and who is responsible for paying for the calls. [14035]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: Customers making new and repeat claims in all of the 15 Jobcentre Plus areas that have been operating since 22 October are encouraged to make initial contact with Jobcentre Plus by telephone. During this call the member of staff will collect initial details about the customer, and subsequently send them the appropriate claim forms. We estimate that the phone call should take no longer than 20 minutes. Customers are told the expected call length at the beginning of the call and can request they are called back by the member of staff.

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many of the new Jobcentre Plus offices (a) have been risk assessed and (b) are awaiting risk assessment to determine the necessary level of security to be employed following the removal of glass screens. [14238]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: All of the Jobcentre Plus offices which are operating the new Jobcentre Plus process have been risk assessed.

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions at what level of risk assessment it will be deemed necessary to provide a Jobcentre Plus office with security staff; and how many security staff he expects will be employed in Jobcentre Plus offices in the next 12 months. [14230]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: Decisions on whether individual offices require security staff have been made on the basis of the recommendations of the risk assessments carried out in each office. Currently, 78 security staff are in place in 28 offices. Further risk assessments are shortly to be carried out in all Jobcentre Plus offices, in the light of experience of their actual operation. Further deployment of security staff will be decided in the light of the recommendations of these assessments.

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what consultation with Benefits Agency staff was undertaken before the decision to remove glass security screens from new Jobcentre Plus offices; and what were the results of such consultation. [14224]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: Jobcentre Plus management have been involved in lengthy discussions nationally with the Public and Commercial Services (PCS) union regarding the layout and furnishings of the new Jobcentre Plus offices including in respect of the Risk Assessment process. Local PCS representatives have also been consulted about the safety arrangements in each of the new Jobcentre Plus offices, including in respect of local Risk Assessments. There have also been frequent and regular communications direct with staff in both the Benefits Agency and the Employment Service.

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions who is responsible for carrying out risk assessments in the new Jobcentre Plus offices; and if this process is subject to reassessment following (a) appeal from office staff and (b) review at designated time intervals. [14237]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: Risk assessments in Jobcentre Plus offices were carried out by specialist staff employed by the Employment Service and the company Land Securities Trillium which is responsible for the Benefits Agency estate.

Further risk assessments are shortly to be carried out in all Jobcentre Plus offices in the light of experience of their actual operation.

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his Department's estimate is of the costs involved in equipping all new Jobcentre Plus offices with (a) CCTV, (b) panic alarms and (c) security staff. [14234]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: The estimated additional costs in respect of these measures in the new Jobcentre Plus pathfinder offices are currently in the order of £1 million–£2 million, which represents a mix of one-off and continuing costs.

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many Jobcentre Plus offices have opened (a) with and (b) without protective screens; and what contingency plans the Government have to ensure that claimants who live in areas affected by industrial action continue to receive their benefit entitlement. [14036]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: All 15 Jobcentre Plus pathfinder areas have screened facilities for the handling of customers or situations likely to give rise to particular risks.

Detailed contingency plans are in place to ensure that, to the maximum extent possible, customers continue to receive the benefits to which they are entitled, notwithstanding the current dispute.

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what personal safety advice has been given to Jobcentre Plus staff following the removal of glass security screens in new offices. [14231]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: A key element in the introduction of the new Jobcentre Plus offices has been intensive training for staff in both interviewing and dealing with difficult situations and customers.

Each office has its own plan in place for handling incidents so that all staff know what action to take should an incident occur.

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions according to what criteria new Jobcentre Plus offices will be risk assessed; and what protection will be offered to staff in offices determined to be high risk. [14226]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: Risk assessments for each of the new Jobcentre Plus offices have been carried out within the framework of a generic risk assessment which was developed earlier in the year in consultation with staff representatives. This generic risk Assessment recommended a wide range of potential risk control measures which risk assessors used as a basis for completing risk assessments at each Pathfinder office. The list of control measures set out in the generic risk assessment is not prescriptive and assessors were free to make whatever recommendations were appropriate to each office.

Drawing on those assessments, and following consultation with local trade union health and safety representatives, a series of extra security measures have been introduced. These include wide coverage by closed circuit television; training for staff in how to handle difficult situations; better management in each office to avoid difficult situations building up; panic alarms; and more visible and effective security guards. Additionally, in each pathfinder area there are screened facilities to deal with individuals and parts of the business which pose a greater risk.

Benefits Agency

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many security staff are employed in Benefits Agency offices; and what assessment his Department has made of the effectiveness of such staff in (a) deterring criminal acts and (b) helping to protect office staff when a criminal act is committed; [14233]

(2) how many old Benefits Agency offices are fitted with CCTV cameras; and what assessment his Department has made of the effectiveness of such cameras in (a) deterring criminal acts and (b) helping to provide evidence following a criminal act. [14232]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: There are currently 387 CCTV systems installed and Land Securities Trillium has 1,179 permanent security staff members deployed in Benefits Agency offices. The number of security staff is supplemented by temporary staff where local needs demand.

The installation of CCTV cameras and the deployment of security staff are based on the recommendations of independent risk assessors in order to reduce risks for staff in those offices. The security teams regularly defuse situations at an early stage and where necessary take action to notify the police. No statistics are available on the number of occasions when security staff intervene or CCTV is used as evidence in a prosecution.

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his Department's policy is for dealing with claimants who act in a threatening or violent manner towards Benefits Agency staff. [14235]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: Ministers and senior management have made clear that we will take determined action against customers who in any way threaten, attack or abuse our staff.

Child Poverty

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what proposals he has to end child poverty; and how many children living in poverty there were in (a) June 1997 and (b) June 2001. [13757]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 9 November 2001]: Child poverty and social exclusion are complex multi-dimensional concepts, affecting many aspects of children's lives—including their living standards, health, housing, the quality of the environment, and opportunities to learn. The third "Opportunity for all" report (Cm 5260) sets out the Government's strategy for tackling child poverty and social exclusion and presents the latest information on the indicators used to monitor progress against this strategy.

Asylum Seekers

Mr. Lilley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he plans to extend the use of the application registration cards for asylum seekers to all benefit claimants. [11741]

Malcolm Wicks: The new application registration card will replace the Home Office standard acknowledgement letter issued to all asylum seekers. The card will only be issued to acknowledge an application for asylum and for no other purpose.

As the application registration card is designed solely for use by asylum seekers, who are not eligible to receive social security benefits, it would be inappropriate to extend its use to non-asylum seekers who claim benefits.

Attendance Allowance (Care Homes)

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the entitlement of self-funded residents of nursing and care homes to receive attendance allowance; and if he will estimate how many self-funded residents of nursing and care homes are receiving attendance allowance in each nation of the United Kingdom. [10915]

Maria Eagle: People who meet the whole cost of their place in a residential care home or nursing home entirely from their own resources and without help from public funds are termed self-funders and may be entitled to continued payment of attendance allowance which is based on care needs. Those self-funders who are entitled to attendance allowance can continue to be paid the benefit subject to their receiving no help from public funds.

We estimate the number of self-funders over the age of 65 in the UK to be:

	Number of self-funders
England	57,000
Scotland	7,000
Wales	6,000
Northern Ireland	2,000
Total	72,000

Notes:

1. Estimates are rounded to the nearest thousand.
2. Data for England, Wales and Northern Ireland to estimate the number of self-funders in receipt of attendance allowance in nursing and care homes were not available. We did have reliable information from the Scottish Executive for Scotland. This was used to then estimate the numbers in the remaining nations.
3. It is assumed that all those self-funders in residential and nursing homes are entitled to attendance allowance or the care component of disability living allowance.
4. It is assumed that the percentage of over 65s in care who are self-funders is the same in England, Wales and Northern Ireland as in Scotland.
5. May 2001 and February 2001 5 per cent. scan of AA and DLA computer systems and Scottish Community Care Statistics 2000 .

Combined Pension Statement

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he intends to introduce the combined pension statement. [7575]

Mr. McCartney: The Department for Work and Pensions will offer a new service to enable people of working age to more effectively plan their retirement incomes through the provision of combined pension forecast statements.

This voluntary service, which is a joint initiative between the Department's pension providers and employers, is being implemented in the three main phases.

Phase 1 saw the development of the service through a series of pilot exercises conducted with the pensions industry. The pilots, which began in January 2000, are now coming to a conclusion.

Phase 2, which commenced on 18 October 2001, sees the formal recruitment and registration of pension providers to the service.

Phase 3 represents the physical production of the new statement by the industry. This phase will take the form of a rolling programme building to a service which will aim to provide 15 million combined statements by 2005–06.

Devolved Administrations

Annabelle Ewing: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his policy is with regard to (a) Ministers and (b) officials in his Department giving evidence to (i) Scottish Parliament, (ii) Welsh Assembly and (iii) Northern Ireland Assembly committees; and to what categories of document he gives (A) full access, (B) restricted access and (C) no access to (w) Scottish Parliament, (x) Welsh Assembly, (y) Northern Ireland Assembly and (z) House of Commons Select Committees. [7021]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by my hon. Friend the Member for Hornsey and Wood Green (Mrs. Roche) on 15 October 2001, Official Report, column 1003W.

Departmental Spending (Staff)

Annabelle Ewing: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will estimate total staff costs for his Department and its agencies by nation and region of the UK; and if he will make a statement. [6847]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: The information requested is in the tables.

The Department for Work and Pensions administers social security and employment services across Great Britain on an integrated basis. Not all staff costs incurred by the Department and its agencies within a nation or region relate to customers within the same nation or region.

Department for Work and Pensions: total and percentage staff costs by grade level and region/nation

Table 1—total staff costs

£

Government office region	All grades	SCS level	Level 6/7	SEO/HEO level	EO level	AO/AA level	Ind/other grade
London	331,901,833	7,739,330	18,922,633	41,029,012	120,116,892	143,646,332	447,634
South East	196,724,201	[1]—	1,819,616	14,061,550	79,226,664	99,956,176	1,660,195
South West	144,022,302	[1]—	1,485,204	12,006,716	53,378,878	76,262,133	735,984
West Midlands	196,304,739	363,181	2,239,319	15,891,457	73,805,047	103,993,203	[1]—
North West	332,157,197	1,226,834	11,705,330	39,142,345	111,808,485	163,571,051	4,703,152
North East	245,071,976	1,378,687	6,319,869	28,017,167	73,061,108	135,318,111	977,034
Merseyside	100,380,994	[1]—	1,306,222	6,952,041	36,263,502	55,821,874	[1]—
Yorkshire and Humberside	255,268,964	3,017,964	13,627,902	48,812,860	94,385,696	95,372,417	52,125
East Midlands	105,249,208	[1]—	1,299,506	7,657,134	41,157,270	54,982,172	70,123
Eastern	96,206,315	[1]—	789,106	5,496,386	34,666,590	55,179,192	[1]—
England Total	2,003,287,729	14,037,429	59,514,707	219,066,668	717,870,132	984,102,661	8,696,138
Wales	116,956,484	[1]—	1,253,113	8,879,369	44,870,553	60,569,941	1,242,775
Scotland	247,708,964	[1]—	3,163,423	19,229,663	93,275,734	129,009,599	2,693,558
GB Total	2,367,953,177	14,515,151	63,931,243	247,175,700	856,016,419	1,173,682,201	12,632,471
Northern Ireland	156,169	[2]—	[2]—	[2]—	[2]—	[2]—	156,169
Grand Total	2,368,109,346	14,515,151	63,931,243	247,175,700	856,016,419	1,173,682,201	12,788,640

Table 2—Percentage of staff costs

Government Office region	All grades	SCS level	Level 6/7	SEO/HEO level	EO level	AO/AA level	Ind/other grade
London	14	53	30	17	14	12	4
South East	8	[1]—	3	6	9	9	13
South West	6	[1]—	2	5	6	6	6
West Midlands	8	3	4	6	9	9	[1]—
North West	14	8	18	16	13	14	37
North East	10	9	10	11	9	12	8
Merseyside	4	[1]—	2	3	4	5	[1]—
Yorkshire and Humberside	11	21	21	20	11	8	0
East Midlands	4	[1]—	2	3	5	5	1
Eastern	4	[1]—	1	2	4	5	[1]—
England Total	85	97	93	89	84	84	68
Wales	5	[1]—	2	4	5	5	10
Scotland	10	[1]—	5	8	11	11	21
GB total	100	100	100	100	100	100	99
Northern Ireland	0	[2]—	[2]—	[2]—	[2]—	[2]—	1
Grand total	100	100	100	100	100	100	100

[1] Because there are three or fewer staff in this category the number and cost have not been separately identified.
[2] Staff costs for Northern Ireland have not been identified by grade because the small numbers in each category could potentially identify individuals and their salaries.

Notes:

1. Staff costs include basic salary and allowances plus employer's contribution to National Insurance and Principal Civil Service Pension Scheme.
2. Staff Costs do not include ancillary matters such as accommodation, office services, stationery etc.
3. The staff data from which these figures derive are as at 31 August 2001 as this represents the correct staffing position of DWP, which was formed in June 2001. Earlier DSS data is not comparable.
4. Employment Service staff are included.
5. War Pensions Agency Staff are included as they are still largely within the overall DWP administrative structure even though WPA is now technically part of the Ministry of Defence.
6. Casual and other staff on temporary contracts are included.
7. The grade groupings include specialist staff such as accountants, lawyers and auditors in their "generalist" grade equivalent.
8. Because the staffing make-up of DWP is different from the DSS, the figures above are not comparable with those provided for DSS in Civil Service Statistics 2000.
9. Overtime costs are not included as it would not be possible to collate the historical data required in sufficient detail in the time available.

Job Losses

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many job losses have occurred in the UK as a result of the terrorist attacks of 11 September. [9885]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: Because normal labour market turnover is so large, it is difficult to assess how much is due to particular changes or events.

Jobcentres (Electronic Services)

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many jobcentres have had electronic jobpoints fitted; how many jobs are accessible through this service; and what assessment has been made of the effectiveness of the service in placing people in employment; [11260]

(2) how much has been spent on the development and installation of jobpoint kiosks in jobcentres across the country. [11255]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: Since the first jobpoints were installed, a little over nine months ago, over 650 offices have been equipped with almost 6,200 machines. By February 2002, when all 1,000 jobcentres will have been fitted with a total of 9,000 jobpoints it will be the largest managed network in the world of this sort of terminal.

The Employment Service typically handles around 400,000 vacancies at any one time and these can be searched on jobpoints by job type, location, hours or other factors. In addition, there are usually more than 10,000 vacancies from other public employment services in the European Economic Area and around 1,500 which are being displayed by a small number of private agencies and recruiters as part of an experiment.

Jobpoints are part of an extensive programme of modernisation of the Employment Service, which also includes vacancies taken through a single national telephone number, an internet job bank and new job matching tools for staff. It is not possible to separate the cost of jobpoints from other elements of the modernisation programme because of the interdependencies within it. As we have said before in a press release dated 31 October 2000 the work is being carried out through an eight year contract with Electronic Data Systems. The first phase of this, which included the jobpoints, is at a total of £470 million. However, a substantial part of these costs will be offset through efficiency savings derived from the whole of the programme.

Evidence from an early evaluation of the Jobpoint Pathfinder offices is available in the House of Commons Library. It shows that the use of jobpoints is encouraging jobseekers to look at a larger range of jobs across wider geographical areas. Jobseekers are finding the machines easy to use and that they improve the effectiveness of their job searching. Evidence is emerging that people are applying for more jobs, and this should increase their prospects of moving from benefits to work, and doing so more quickly.

The effectiveness of jobpoints is currently being further assessed as part of a wider evaluation of the Modernising Employment Service (MES) Programme. Results from the first year of the evaluation will be published in 2002 with final results in 2003.

ONE Service

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the findings of his Department's research report number 149 "The Medium-Term Effects of Voluntary Participation in ONE"; and what steps he is taking to ensure that the findings of the report are acted upon. [11262]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: The evidence from this report suggests that ONE has succeeded in providing a more individually tailored and work-focused service to clients. The report is only based on findings from the voluntary stage of ONE and so it is too early to draw definitive conclusions about ONE until evidence is available from the period when participation in work focused interviews became compulsory. However, emerging findings from ONE evaluation reports are being used to inform the development of the new Jobcentre Plus service.

Job Opportunies (Scotland)

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what action the Government are taking to help create new job opportunities in East Central Scotland. [9656]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: Since 1997, unemployment in the areas of Edinburgh, Fife, Lothian and Dundee has fallen by around a third, and long-term unemployment by around 60 per cent. Our aim is employment opportunity for all throughout the country. We have put in place a framework that delivers:

- a platform of economic stability and low inflation, to promote sustained growth in output and jobs;
- investment in education and training so people have the skills they need to take up work;
- a labour market policy with a strong work focus so all jobless people have access to vacancies, advice and help with jobsearch;
- a range of New Deal programmes which help disadvantaged groups move from welfare into work;
- policies such as the National Minimum Wage and Working Families Tax Credit designed to make work pay; and
- locally focused initiatives designed to tackle the problems of particular areas, such as Action Teams for Jobs, one of which started operations in Dundee on 15 October.

These policies, alongside continued economic growth, have combined to ensure steady improvement in the labour market.

National Insurance Numbers

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if his Department completed the planned checks on national insurance numbers in 2000; and how many of those checks resulted in anomalies that were passed to fraud investigators. [14128]

Dawn Primarolo: I have been asked to reply.

During the 1999–2000 tax year, 626,641 payroll items were checked. Of these 288,924 errors were found and 6,223 cases were referred for potential fraud investigation.

During the 2000–01 tax year, 1,035,796 payroll items were checked of which 770,308 were found to contain errors and 22,777 were referred for potential fraud investigation.

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will estimate how many national insurance accounts exist where no contributions are being made; and what assessment he has made of the actual or potential fraudulent use of such accounts. [14129]

Dawn Primarolo: I have been asked to reply.

There are approximately 14 million national insurance accounts in existence where contributors have made no contributions or received any credits for over 3 years or more.

An assessment shows that there is no evidence to suggest that there is any higher incidence of actual or potential fraud on these accounts compared to any other.

Departmental Staff (Disability)

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what proportion of staff in his Department had a disability in each year since 1992; and what targets are in place to increase the recruitment of people with disabilities. [9809]

Mr. McCartney: The proportion of staff with a disability employed by the Department for Work and Pensions is currently 5 per cent. The proportion of disabled staff employed by the former Department of Social Security and the Employment Service in each year since 1992 (where data are available) is set out in the table.

Percentage

	1996	1997	1998	1999	2000
DSS	6.1	—	4.9	4.7	4.7
ES	—	—	—	6.5	5.8

The figures for previous years omit the relatively small number of staff who have additionally transferred across to DWP from DfEE.

This Department has a range of policies and procedures in place to encourage the employment of people with disabilities covering their recruitment, retention and career development. In addition, this Department participates in the Positive About Disabled People Symbol scheme (known as the "two ticks" symbol) and operates a guaranteed interview scheme for job applicants with disabilities. Equality targets have been put in place to increase the representation of disabled staff at all levels within across the organisation, for achievement by March 2005. Details are set out in the table:

	Percentage of disabled staff as at December 1999	Target percentage by 2005
SCS	1.6	3.2
Grades 6, 7 and SEO	2.2	3
HEO and EO	5.1	6
AO and AA	4.7	6

Key:
SCS: Senior Civil Service.
SEO: Senior Executive Officer.
EO: Executive Officer.
AA: Administrative Assistant.
Grade 6,7: Senior management grades.
HEO: Higher Executive Officer.
AO: Administrative Officer.

Incapacity Benefit

Mr. Win Griffiths: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what estimate he has made of the number of people in (a) Wales, (b) England, (c) Scotland and (d) Northern Ireland who receive incapacity benefit and have an occupational or personal pension income which does not affect their incapacity benefit; [12937]

(2) how many people in (a) Wales, (b) England, (c) Scotland and (d) Northern Ireland in receipt of incapacity benefit since 1 April have had their benefit entitlement reduced; how many of these have had their benefit reduced to nothing; and what percentage of them receiving incapacity benefit since 1 April have had it reduced. [12933]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 7 November 2001]: The available information is in the tables.

People entitled to Incapacity Benefit (IB) whose benefit is affected by their occupational or personal pensions as at 31 May 2001

	IB reduced to nothing	IB Reduced	Percentage reduced[1]
Wales	[2]—	[3]200	4.7
England	[3]200	[3]500	2.0
Scotland	[2]—	[3]100	1.8

[1] Figures refer to the percentage of new and repeat claims to Incapacity Benefit made since 6 April 2001 where Incapacity Benefit was reduced or reduced to nothing.

[2] Numbers are taken from a small number of sample cases and are subject to a high degree of sampling error, they should therefore only be used as an indication of the current situation.

[3] Nil or Negligible.

Notes:

1. Figures are rounded to the nearest hundred.

2. Figures for Northern Ireland are not included. Social Security matters in Northern Ireland are the responsibility of the Northern Ireland Assembly.

Source:

Figures are taken from a 5 per cent. sample of the benefit computer system and exclude a small number of cases held clerically.

Estimated number of people with an occupational or personal pension, which does not affect the rate of Incapacity Benefit they receive as at 31 May 2001

	Recipients
Wales	38,000
England	340,000
Scotland	41,000

Notes:

1. Figures include recipients with an occupational pension in excess of £85.00 per week, whose Incapacity Benefit is not affected because their claim was made for a period which began before 6 April 2001.

2. Figures are rounded to the nearest thousand, although estimates of recipients with occupational and personal pensions cannot be regarded as accurate to this degree.

3. Figures for Northern Ireland are not included. Social Security matters in Northern Ireland are the responsibility of the Northern Ireland Assembly.

Source:

Estimates derived from a 5 per cent. sample of the benefit computer system, excluding a small number of cases held clerically, and the 1999–2000 Family Resources Survey.

Disability Income Guarantee

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans he has to uprate the disability income guarantee in line with earnings; and if he will make a statement. [8967]

Maria Eagle: In line with section 150 of the Social Security Administration Act, my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State is currently reviewing the rates of benefit. He will make an announcement in due course.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Foot and Mouth

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment she has made of the part played by the resistance by farmers to the slaughter of their stock in the spread of the foot and mouth outbreak. [12421]

Margaret Beckett: Resistance to the slaughter of stock on contiguous premises has led to delays in some disease control operations, seriously hampering efforts to bring the epidemic under control. The longer that animals which are believed to have been exposed to the virus remain alive, the greater the risk of them developing disease and spreading infection to neighbouring farms.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans she has to review licensing arrangements for animal movements following the recent foot and mouth disease outbreaks. [8546]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 18 October 2001]: The licensing arrangements for animal movements are kept under constant review and have been regularly amended to reflect the improving disease situation. Once foot and mouth disease has been eradicated, we will need to look closely at the way in which animal movements contributed to the rapid spread of disease. This aspect of the outbreak is likely to be one of the issues that will be examined by Dr. Iain Anderson's independent inquiry.

There have been restrictions on the movement of pigs for many years. Any proposal to retain licensing for other animal movements would need to balance carefully the needs of the livestock industry and the inherent disease control risks associated with animal movements.

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate she has made of the amount of FMD vaccine (a) held in the UK and (b) available from elsewhere in Europe. [12291]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 2 November 2001]: As at the end of October, the Government's commercial supplies of a suitable vaccine to protect against the current strain of FMD virus would be sufficient to vaccinate at least 2.5 million animals. The exact number of doses needed per animal depends on the potency of the final vaccine, the number of doses given and the length of time we wish the animals to be protected. Stocks were increased and kept up to date as part of our vaccination contingency plans.

We also have access to some of the estimated 6 million doses of the relevant vaccine held in the European vaccine bank. We placed a reserve on 125,000 doses in April 2001 as a precautionary measure.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate she has made of the (a) number and (b) value of contracts (i) negotiated and (ii) yet to be negotiated in relation to (A) cleansing and (B) restocking following infection of the foot and mouth disease. [8149]

Mr. Morley: Secondary cleansing and disinfection work required to be undertaken under contracts agreed with contractors and farmers has now been completed on about 5,300 premises. A further 1,400 premises which are subject to similar contractual arrangements are undergoing cleansing and disinfection at present, with another 210 still to be started.

The cost of carrying out contracted work on cleansing and disinfection, based on completed, continuing and a small number of premises still to be started, is estimated to be about £250 million.

Restocking of premises is a matter for the individual owner of the premises and stock and no contractual information is available.

Mr. Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has to lift the three kilometre D notice in the infected area in Leominster. [6662]

Mr. Morley: There have been no infected premises within 10 kilometres of Leominster and therefore there are no three kilometre D notice restrictions in place around Leominster. All protection zone restrictions in Herefordshire have been lifted; the last was lifted on 21 August. However, there is currently sampling and testing of the premises in the three to 10 kilometre surveillance zones in Herefordshire and until this has been completed satisfactorily, the county remains at "at risk" status.

Mrs. Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what is the total number of animals, by species, slaughtered under the Livestock Welfare (Disposal) Scheme since 19 February. [14055]

Mr. Morley: The Livestock Welfare (Disposal) Scheme was opened on 22 March 2001, to deal with severe welfare problems arising from the foot and mouth disease movement restrictions that cannot be dealt with by any other means. As at 7 November, the Livestock Welfare (Disposal) Scheme had dealt with a total of 1,929,891 animals since it opened. Of these, 1,481,049 were sheep (76.7 per cent.), 279,126 were pigs (14.5 per cent.), 166,531 were cattle (8.6 per cent.) and 3,185 were other species (0.2 per cent.).

Chernobyl

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many sheep, on how many farms, are subject to restrictions resulting from the fallout of the Chernobyl nuclear disaster in 1986, broken down by region. [9938]

Ms Blears: I have been asked to reply.

The table shows the current numbers of farms and sheep remaining under restrictions arising from the Chernobyl nuclear disaster in 1986. The figures are presented for England, Wales and Scotland. The last restrictions in place in Northern Ireland were removed in April 2000.

	Farms	Sheep
England	9	11,500
Wales	359	180,000
Scotland	18	38,000
Total	386	229,500

Crustastun

Mr. Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what support her Department is giving to Bristol University and to Silsoe Research Institute in Bedford for the development of the Crustastun. [11198]

Mr. Morley: I have been advised that DEFRA is not supporting the development of Crustastun which is a trade name. DEFRA has supported link projects looking at the use of electric stunning for farmed fish.

Litter

Mr. Blizzard: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what her estimate is of the annual cost of clearing up litter in the UK in each of the last three years. [11968]

Mr. Meacher: The Government do not keep consolidated data on how much each local authority spends on litter removal annually. A recent estimate by the Tidy Britain Group suggests that total annual expenditure on litter removal in England is about £370 million.

Rural Recovery Programme

Mr. Breed: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much of the money committed to rural businesses as part of the rural recovery programme following the FMD crisis has been allotted. [9601]

Alun Michael: All of the £27 million allocated as direct grants to business in May has been committed. Some £21 million has already been approved for payment. Payment is made as soon as possible after a claim is submitted, subject to the usual checks, and it is expected that the full allocation will be used. The submission of a claim depends on the individual business which has received grant approval depending on individual RDA/ Business Link procedures.

Computer Crime

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many cases of computer (a) hacking, (b) fraud and (c) theft her Department recorded in (i) 2000 and (ii) 2001; and on how many occasions in those years computer systems have been illegally accessed by computer hackers (A) within and (B) outside his Department. [13138]

Mr. Morley: There were no cases of computer hacking detected for 2000 and two cases in 2001, to date, perpetrated by persons outside the Department. There were no cases of fraud detected during the same period. The number of computer thefts detected was 19 in 2000 (15 by insiders and the remainder by persons outside the Department) and 16 in 2001, to date, (15 by insiders and the remainder by persons outside the Department). Figures for 2000 and until 11 June 2001 relate to Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food and after that date to Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs.

Energy Efficiency

Mr. Chaytor: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will list those members of the Carbon Trust Board who represent (a) the energy supply industry, (b) the energy efficiency industry, (c) local government and (d) the rest of the public sector. [12102]

Mr. Meacher [holding answer 8 November 2001]: For a full list of Carbon Trust Board Members, I refer my hon. Friend to the reply I gave to him on 5 November 2001, Official Report, column 36–37W. Appointments to the Carbon Trust Board are a matter for the Chairman and the Board. However, Government non-executive directors are appointed to represent the public interest and the interests of their respective Departments and Devolved Administrations.

The independent non-executive directors are appointed on a personal basis and not to represent any particular interest. The aim is to bring the right balance of skills and experience to the strategic direction of the company. The executive team and work programme of the Carbon Trust will be developed to address operational or sectoral needs. In addition the Carbon Trust will be establishing stakeholder advisory groups to establish dialogue with and represent the interests of particular groups.

Mr. Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what was the total level of Government financial support made available to energy efficiency measures in each year since 1990. [12791]

Mr. Meacher [holding answer 7 November 2001]: The funding made available by the Department and its predecessors to support and promote efficiency measures in each year since 1990 is as follows:

Year	£ million
1990–91	18.4
1991–92	39.3
1992–93	49.4
1993–94	60.3
1994–95	102.7
1995–96	128.5
1996–97	116.0
1997–98	110.5
1998–99	109.0
1999–2000	112.0
2000–01	[1]163.5

[1] Estimated

The core of this spend is the Energy Efficiency Best Practice Programme, support for the Energy Saving Trust and the Home Energy Efficiency Scheme. Energy Saving Trust funding for Scotland was devolved from 1 July 1999. Between 1991–99, the Home Energy Efficiency Scheme covered the whole of Great Britain. In July 1999 and April 2000, separate programmes were set up in Scotland and Wales respectively. For these devolved areas, it is the responsibility of the respective Parliaments and Assemblies to comment on the funding situation.

AAPS

John Thurso: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will draw down the EU share, and pay the UK share, of the (a) first and (b) second tranche of aid on AAPS 2000 payments before 31 October. [9709]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 23 October 2001]: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to my hon. Friend the Member for Ealing, North (Mr. Pound) on 31 October 2001, Official Report, column 738W.

Livestock Disease Prevention

Mrs. Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment she has made of the future viability of livestock markets in England and Wales; and what steps she has taken to provide financial assistance for the additional costs involved in implementing extra disease prevention measures. [11421]

Mr. Morley: The Department's immediate priority is to eradicate foot and mouth disease. We have not made a formal assessment of the longer term viability of livestock markets. However, there will be a need to consider the extent to which the movement of animals through markets contributed to the spread of the disease.

There are no plans to provide financial assistance to livestock markets for the costs incurred in relation to biosecurity arrangements. Livestock markets are legally required to carry out cleansing and disinfection at the conclusion of each market and must therefore bear these costs themselves.

Animal Welfare

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will commission a study on the efficacy of marketing animals (a) over the internet and (b) via video link in reducing (i) the cost, (ii) animal suffering and (iii) infection risks of livestock markets. [12283]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 2 November 2001]: It is for farmers to decide how best to market their animals, taking account of costs and animal health and welfare requirements. We are aware of various initiatives by auctioneers to hold video and internet sales and that these have met with a degree of success. Such initiatives are to be welcomed as they provide another option for farmers to market their animals and we will watch developments with interest.

Mrs. Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what response her Department has made to the European Commission's proposal to reclassify medicines for food-producing animals as prescription-only medicines; and what assessment she has made of the consequence for (a) animal health and (b) the agricultural and equine veterinary medicine supply industry. [14063]

Mr. Morley: This proposal forms part of a much wider set of proposals produced by the European Commission to amend the procedures for the authorisation and control of both human and veterinary medicines in the EU. In its present form this particular proposal could result in UK farmers having to pay more by incurring veterinary surgeons' fees when obtaining those medicines that are currently available without veterinary intervention. This may deter farmers from seeking appropriate treatment. Furthermore, the proposal could restrict the number and types of veterinary medicines that may be supplied by registered agricultural merchants and saddlers, to a limited range of products for dogs and cats. This could have significant adverse effects on those businesses.

In considering the proposal the Government have taken account of its likely impact on the supply of veterinary medicines and has agreed that, during negotiations, UK officials should seek to modify the proposal to enable a flexible approach to the distribution of veterinary medicinal products that takes advantage of existing national practices, so long as consumer protection and animal welfare can be demonstrably assured.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessments she has made of the proposals by the European Commission that medicines for food-producing animals will become prescription only medicines; and if she will make a statement on the consequences of this proposal for rural agricultural businesses. [13860]

Mr. Morley: This proposal forms part of a much wider set of proposals produced by the European Commission to amend the procedures for the authorisation and control of both human and veterinary medicines in the EU. In its present form this particular proposal could result in UK farmers having to pay more by incurring veterinary surgeons' fees when obtaining those medicines that are currently available without veterinary intervention. Furthermore, it could restrict the number and types of veterinary medicines that may be supplied by registered agricultural merchants and saddlers, to a limited range of products for dogs and cats. This could have significant adverse effects on those businesses.

In considering the proposal the Government have taken account of its likely impact on the supply of veterinary medicines and has agreed that, during negotiations, UK officials should seek to modify the proposal to enable a flexible approach to the distribution of veterinary medicinal products that takes advantage of existing national practices, so long as consumer protection and animal welfare can be demonstrably assured.

Compensation (Tuna Fishermen)

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent representations she has received regarding compensation for UK fishermen who (a) have had and (b) will have their tuna drift net licences withdrawn. [11590]

Mr. Morley: I have received one such representation this year.

Recycling (Refrigerators)

Mr. Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment she has made of the cost to local authorities involved in storing refrigerators and deep-freezers awaiting recycling (a) by each local authority area and (b) in total. [12032]

Mr. Meacher: The costs of storage will be affected by a range of factors, in particular the environmental protection standards that are set for storage facilities. This Department has been working with stakeholders to assess the appropriate standards for storage of waste refrigeration equipment and will finalise this guidance shortly. We will monitor the costs of such storage over the next few months.

Farm Business Advisory Services

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the waiting time is for access to the three-day farm business advisory services for farmers in (a) England and (b) the west midlands. [13198]

Alun Michael: Waiting lists vary across regions and it is not possible to provide a future for England. The waiting list in the west midlands region is currently open ended. To ease waiting lists we have switched £1.5 million of funding from the five-day "enhanced" service to the three-day service allowing demand for both services to be met. This will reduce waiting times considerably. The west midlands region anticipate that their three-day waiting list will be cleared within five weeks.

Farming (Diversification)

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what funding is available to farmers to diversify into tourism outside objective 1 areas. [13019]

Alun Michael: Outside objective 1 areas, the main source of Government funding for farmers wishing to diversify into rural tourism is the Rural Enterprise Scheme. Rural tourism is a high national priority within the suite of measures supported by RES. The proportion of the £152 million RES budget allocated to rural tourism, like all other measures under the scheme, is determined at the regional level in the light of consultation with local stakeholders. DEFRA also offers assistance in the form of free planning consultancy advice to farmers who intend to pursue an eligible RES diversification project, which may include diversification into rural tourism. The RES is not available in objective 1 areas but equivalent funds are available through the objective 1 Programme for each area. Other funding for farm-based tourism projects which utilise existing farm buildings is available from Regional Development agencies in the form of redundant building grant.

Flooding

Mr. Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment she has made of the steps taken by the public bodies involved to reduce the risk of flooding in the south of Worcestershire since the Easter 1998 floods; and if she will make a statement. [13220]

Mr. Morley: A number of measures have been taken to reduce the risk of flooding in this area since 1998.

Liaison between the Environment Agency, local authorities and emergency services has been considerably strengthened, including a flood emergency exercise conducted in the Upper Severn area.

The south Worcestershire area has also benefited from enhancements to the Environment Agency's Flood Warning service and the national flood awareness campaigns conducted annually. Every property on the 'at-risk' database has been sent flooding information and everyone within telephone Flood Warning service areas has been invited to receive warnings.

The Environment Agency have been investigating flood defence options at five locations which suffered flooding Easter 1998 floods and, where sustainable, works to alleviate flooding have been carried out, or are planned. A new rain gauge has also been installed at Hindlip.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what measures the Government have taken to reduce the risk of flooding to one in 100 in high risk areas. [13006]

Mr. Morley: I am reducing the risk of flooding by investing in effective flood warning arrangements and flood defences in the highest risk areas. Funding for the Department's programme is increasing from £66 million 2000–01 to £114 million in 2003–04.

This Department provides funding to the Environment Agency, local authorities and Internal Drainage Boards for capital flood and coastal works that meet certain criteria. Responsibility for deciding which projects to promote and their timing rests with the operating authorities. The operating authority draws on its local knowledge of the area when deciding what needs to be done, including the design standard of protection within the economic justification of the project.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will provide funding for a flood defence scheme in Milby and Langthorpe. [13384]

Mr. Morley: I understand that the Environment Agency's initial assessment for a flood alleviation scheme in Milby and Langthorpe suggests that it cannot be justified economically. However, if the agency decides to promote a scheme, they can submit an application for grant aid to this Department. Such an application would be considered against our normal criteria for funding flood defences.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what preventive measures she has taken to ensure that the Ouse does not flood as a result of rivers to the north flowing into it. [13415]

Mr. Morley: Operational responsibility for flood alleviation measures rests with local operating authorities, namely the Environment Agency, Internal Drainage Boards and local councils.

I understand that the Environment Agency's preliminary strategic review for the River Ouse catchment is due for completion early in 2002. The findings of this strategy will inform the agency's plans for a prioritised programme of feasibility and capital works in the catchment, including any for rivers flowing into the River Ouse from the north.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) if she will provide funding towards construction of a land drainage pumping station in Rawcliffe; [13386]

(2) what measures she has taken to ensure that Blue Beck in Rawcliffe does not flood and that run-off water will be diverted away from local homeowners. [13416]

Mr. Morley: Operational responsibility for flood alleviation measures rests with local operating authorities, namely the Environment Agency, internal drainage boards and local councils.

The Kyle and Ouse Internal Drainage Board is responsible for the Blue Beck and has commissioned consultants to examine how flood risk can be reduced, including an assessment of the justification of pumping facilities. If the board decides to promote works, they can submit an application for grant aid to this Department. Such an application would be considered against our normal criteria for funding flood defences.

Mr. Sayeed: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will make a statement on flood (a) warning and (b) prevention arrangements. [12885]

Mr. Morley: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave him on 15 October 2001, Official Report, column 1095W.

Livestock Movements

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps she plans to take to enable livestock to reach their winter accommodation before winter weather sets in. [10181]

Mr. Morley: The Department introduced livestock movement arrangements for the autumn on 17 September, in consultation with a wide range of interested parties. The scheme rules have been kept under constant review in light of the changing disease situation across the country and are designed to allow the maximum movement compatible with eradicating foot and mouth disease. Detailed information on the autumn movements arrangements have been placed on the DEFRA website http://www.defra.gov.uk/. A movement licence helpline is also available on 01392 314941 and is open from 8:30–17:30 on weekdays and 9:00–13.00 on Saturdays.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what representations she has received relating to her Department's advice to farmers on the licensing provisions for livestock movements. [10177]

Mr. Morley: The Department has received a range of representations concerning the operation of the autumn livestock movement arrangements. Advice on licensing arrangements has been made available to farmers through leaflets, the DEFRA website and the movement licence helpline. My noble Friend Lord Whitty sent a detailed letter to all livestock farmers in England and Wales about the arrangements on 11 September. We have consulted regularly with stakeholders ever since the licensing scheme was introduced and we are always ready to consider suggestions for improving the way in which we disseminate information to farmers.

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate she has made of the number of animals over 30 months old which have not been transported owing to movement restrictions; and if she will make a statement. [12352]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 5 November 2001]: This information is not currently available. However, I have asked the British Cattle Movement Service to consider whether they can provide statistical information on the movement of over 30 month cattle, registered on the Cattle Tracing System. I will write to the hon. Member with more information as soon as possible.

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what investigations she has carried out into her Department's animal health division with respect to the delay in the granting of movement licences; and if she will make a statement. [12349]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 5 November 2001]: The Autumn Movement Arrangements were introduced in three phases between 17 September and 1 October. The licensing system is dependent upon a database, which gave rise to a number of difficulties. My officials worked, and continue to work, very closely with local authorities and the livestock industry to resolve these difficulties, and I am satisfied that the arrangements are now operating satisfactorily.

The permitted range of movements under the Autumn Movement Arrangements is kept under review in the light of the developing disease situation.

Animal Health Act

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she plans to propose amendments to the Animal Health Act 1981 to give the Government powers to seize and destroy any animal; what right of appeal will be proposed; and what assessment she has made of compatibility with the Human Rights Act 1998. [13846]

Mr. Morley: The Animal Health Bill currently before Parliament does not give Ministers power to seize and destroy any animal. It provides for the Minister to cause animals to be slaughtered with a view to preventing the spread of foot and mouth disease (FMD). The term "animal" is defined in the 1981 Act and the Foot and Mouth Disease Order and the definition of animals for these purposes is restricted to FMD-susceptible animals.

In addition, the Bill contains provisions to extend such powers to other diseases, by Affirmative Resolution Order.

The two avenues of appeal against slaughter that are currently available remain unaffected. These are the ability to ask the local Divisional Veterinary Manager to review the case and to seek judicial review.

Under the scrapie provisions, the Bill provides for Ministers to issue restriction notices requiring that genetically susceptible sheep should be either castrated

(or sterilised) or slaughtered by their keepers/owners, and for Ministers to enforce these provision in the event of non-compliance. Appeals against a restriction notice could be made to an independent assessor.

In my view these provisions, and all others in the Bill, are compatible with the convention rights for the purpose of the Human Rights Act 1998.

Farm Study (Shropshire)

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if a decision has been made to grant a cash contribution to Shropshire county council's Farm Study for Shropshire. [12611]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 6 November 2001]: DEFRA has made a financial contribution to the Shropshire Farm Study via English Nature and the Countryside Agency. Our regional Rural Development Service staff based on Worcester have also provided technical assistance.

Live Animal Exports

Mr. Rendel: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps she is taking to ensure that once the foot and mouth disease export restrictions have been lifted UK animals exported under licence to France and the Netherlands are not then re-exported to southern European countries. [13547]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 9 November 2001]: Animals are not exported under licence although there is EU legislation covering the animal health requirements that must be met before animals move within the Community and the veterinary checks that must take place. EU rules governing animal welfare during intra-community trade in cattle, sheep and pigs lay down specific requirements which must be met during any journey. We enforce these rules rigorously within our jurisdiction. When a journey starts in another member state it is the responsibility of the authorities in that member state to ensure compliance with animal health and animal welfare requirements.

Mr. Rendel: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will make representations to other EU countries to end the payment of export refunds on the export of live cattle from the EU to the middle east and North Africa. [13550]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 9 November 2001]: Export refunds on live cattle exports to Third Countries are a component of the EU's market management measures for the beef sector. No refunds are paid in respect of trade from the UK because of the BSE-related export ban. Nevertheless, a number of member states, the UK included, wish to address the continuing animal welfare problems with this trade.

We have always maintained the UK's preference for a trade in meat rather than live animals. This view was reflected in the Council Resolution on the protection of animals during transport adopted at the June Council. The Resolution not only invited the Commission to produce recommendations to improve implementation and control of current EU animal welfare legislation, but also to report on options for reducing long distance transport of animals for slaughter. We hope the Commission produce their proposals and report soon.

EU Agrimonetary Compensation

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if the Government will claim the available EU agrimonetary compensation for arable farmers before 31 October. [9712]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 23 October 2001]: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to my hon. Friend the Member for Ealing, North (Mr. Pound) on 31 October 2001, Official Report, column 738W.

Dioxins

Mr. Sayeed: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many maximum tolerable daily doses of dioxin, as defined by the WHO, 1.1g represents. [13439]

Mr. Meacher: In June 2001, the Joint Food and Agriculture Organisation/World Health Organisation (WHO) Expert Committee on Food Additives (JECFA) proposed a provisional tolerable monthly intake of 70 picograms (pg) WHO toxicity equivalents (WHO-TEQ) per kilogram (kg) bodyweight for "dioxins" (that is polychlorinated dibenzo-p-doxins, polyclorinated dibenzofurans, and dioxin-like polychlorinated bephenyls). For an adult weighing 70 kilograms, this corresponds to a tolerable daily intake of approximately 160 pg. 1.1 g is 6,875 million times 160 pg.

The 1.1 g figure which I quoted in my earlier response (23 October 2001) represents the emissions of dioxins and furans from municipal solid waste incinerators during 2000. This figure does not refer to human intake so it is not appropriate to make such a comparison with the TDI.

The most recent (1997) estimate of average daily intakes for adults in the UK is 1.8 pg WHO-TEQ per kilogram bodyweight, which (for an adult weighing 70 kg) corresponds to an average daily intake of approximately 130 pg.

The Government believe there is a strong case for reducing emissions to the environment further, and my Department will shortly be consulting on measures to achieve this.

Scrapie

Mrs. Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans her Department has to bring forward legislation to provide for compulsory powers to cull sheep from flocks possessing the genotype susceptible to scrapie. [11211]

Mr. Morley: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to the hon. Member for East Surrey (Mr. Ainsworth) on 5 November 2001, Official Report, column 30W.

Imports

Mrs. Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will make a statement on the volume of (a) food imports and (b) agricultural imports into the United Kingdom in the last three years. [12809]

Mr. Morley: It is not meaningful to combine volumes of different types of products. The table therefore shows the value of UK imports of food and agricultural products between 1998 and 2000.

More detailed information on food and agricultural imports, including volumes, can be found at the DEFRA website (www.defra.gov.uk/esg/work—htm/index/trade.htm and click on the link to "UK trade data in food, feed and drink including indigenity and degree of processing").

Food and agricultural imports 1998–2000

Values in £ million

Group	Category	1998	1999	2000
Live animals	Pigs	9.9	10.0	13.5
	Sheep and goats	3.6	4.5	6.8
	Poultry	4.7	5.5	5.3
	Bovine animals	3.9	2.3	3.6
Live animals Total		22.2	22.4	29.1
Meat	Poultrymeat (inc poultry offal)	523.6	546.7	540.8
	Other meat products	381.1	407.8	473.8
	Beef and veal	395.7	431.8	461.0
	Bacon and ham	375.8	398.9	456.4
	Pork	178.0	215.4	275.2
	Lamb and mutton	203.8	194.3	199.6
Meat Total		2,058.0	2,194.9	2,406.7
Dairy Products and Eggs	Cheese	611.9	630.1	601.0
	Butter	210.1	230.3	234.8
	Yogurt and ice cream	150.1	158.1	173.4
	Eggs and egg products	30.6	31.6	43.6
	Milk and cream	59.6	47.4	41.7
	Other milk products	38.3	39.5	40.9
	Milk powder	32.3	38.2	37.6
	Condensed milk	12.1	12.1	16.6
Dairy Products and Eggs Total		1,144.9	1,187.4	1,189.6
Fish	Fish fresh, chilled or frozen	543.5	589.2	612.3
	Crustaceans	360.1	355.9	403.3
	Fish and crustaceans prepared or preserved	378.6	340.4	306.6
	Fish live	16.5	17.2	16.1
Fish Total		1,298.8	1,302.7	1,338.3
Cereals	Bread and biscuits	445.3	442.6	445.6
	Unmilled cereals	312.5	286.8	286.1
	Rice	173.5	178.8	152.6
	Mixes and doughs for baking	122.8	129.3	112.5
	Milled, rolled or flaked cereals	98.3	97.1	101.3
Cereals Total		1,152.5	1,134.7	1,098.1
Vegetables and Fruit	Fresh fruit	1,653.0	1,572.6	1,531.7
	Vegetables, fresh or chilled	1,071.1	1,053.4	1,090.4
	Vegetables, frozen, prepared or preserved	758.4	816.4	715.4
	Jams	306.4	290.3	274.7
	Fruit juice	268.8	285.3	250.3
	Nuts	111.0	115.4	117.7
Vegetables and Fruit Total		4,168.7	4,133.4	3,980.2
Sugars	Sugar	627.3	583.6	542.1
	Sugar confectionary	130.0	141.6	153.5
	Honey	21.0	16.1	16.4
Sugars Total		778.3	741.2	712.0
Coffee, Tea etc.	Chocolate	332.1	377.5	387.8
	Coffee	385.9	296.8	280.8
	Tea	225.9	204.2	211.3
	Cocoa	298.6	301.6	159.6
	Spices	57.2	54.6	64.0
Coffee, Tea, etc. Total		1,299.7	1,234.7	1,103.6

Food and agricultural imports 1998–2000

Values in £ million

Group	Category	1998	1999	2000
Animal Feed	Oil cake	250.1	256.6	255.2
	Other animal feed	290.1	231.3	254.6
	Dog or cat food	159.9	161.8	194.8
Animal Feed Total		700.2	649.6	704.7
Miscellaneous Total		912.8	963.5	829.0
Beverages	Wine	1,763.0	1,918.3	1,688.5
	Other spirits	279.9	282.2	364.9
	Mineral water	187.3	268.3	289.5
	Beer	315.2	310.1	283.4
	Whisky	50.8	49.5	56.8
	Cider and other fermented beverages	26.6	26.0	23.4
Beverages Total		2,622.7	2,854.5	2,706.4
Oils and Fats	Vegetable oils and fats	755.8	672.6	604.8
	Processed fats and waxes	89.2	84.2	95.3
	Animal oils and fats, not chemically modified	73.2	60.5	59.7
Oils and Fats Total		918.2	817.2	759.8
Total Imports		17,076.9	17,236.2	16,857.5

Source:
HM Customs and Excise

Tenanted Farms

Mrs. Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent assessment she has made of the future viability of local authorities' tenanted farms. [12807]

Mr. Morley: The 47th Annual Report to Parliament on Smallholdings in England was published in 1999. This report which is available in the Library of the House, covered the period to 31 March 1997. This showed that the total expenditure in the year to 31 March 1997, by local authorities with smallholdings, was £16.9 million and total income in the same period was £25.3 million. The Department also conducts an annual survey of tenanted land although this does not separately identify local authority tenanted farms.

We have also commissioned work to establish the role local authority tenanted farms play in providing farming lets to new entrants. A preliminary assessment of the impact of the Agricultural Tenancies Act 1995 was conducted by the University of Plymouth in 1997. This indicated that county smallholdings play an important but reducing role in providing farming lets to new entrants. A full policy evaluation of the 1995 Act is currently under way and this explores this area further. This work should be completed in early 2002.

Ragwort

Richard Younger-Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many horses have died from ingesting ragwort in each of the last 10 years. [13597]

Mr. Morley: This information is not collected by the Department. However I can confirm that where agricultural land, or land used by farmers who have diversified into equine enterprises, is threatened by the spread of injurious weeds such as ragwort the Department will continue to investigate any complaints received. We will also use our links with other organisations such as the British Horse Society to ensure horse owners are aware of the dangers of ragwort.

PRESIDENT OF THE COUNCIL

Legislation

Mr. John Taylor: To ask the President of the Council how many (a) Budgets have been introduced and (b) Government sponsored Bills have reached the statute book since 1997. [13866]

Mr. Robin Cook: The information requested is as follows—(a) Five and (b) 140.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

World Summit on Sustainable Development

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what measures she is taking to ensure that water and sanitation issues are considered by the world summit on sustainable development; and if she will make a statement. [10934]

Mr. Meacher: I have been asked to reply.

To ensure that the UK views on water and sanitation are considered at the world summit on sustainable development (WSSD), I led the UK delegation to United Nations Economic Commission for Europe (UNECE) in Geneva in September. UNECE is the regional preparatory conference at which items for inclusion in WSSD are discussed. The conference agreed that WSSD should develop specific initiatives, building on work undertaken since the 1992 Earth Summit in Rio de Janeiro, in areas such as freshwater and sanitation.

In December this year I will be leading the UK delegation to the International Conference on Freshwater in Bonn at which water and sanitation issues will be further discussed. The discussions at the Bonn conference will be reported to the second preparatory committee for the world summit on sustainable development.

Written Answers to Questions

Tuesday 13 November 2001

TREASURY

Customs and Excise

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the average rate of sickness absence was in HM Customs and Excise in (a) 1999–2000, (b) 2000–01 and (c) 2001–02 to the latest date for which information is available. [9177]

Mr. Boateng [holding answer 19 October 2001]: No accurate figures are available for the average rate of working days lost to sickness absence in 1999–2000 and 2000–01.

The average rate of sickness from 1 April 2001 to 30 September 2001 was 4.6 working days.

Terrorism (Financing)

Mr. Howard: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will provide a breakdown of the expected cost to Her Majesty's Government over the current financial year of the measures to combat the financing of terrorism which he announced on 15 October 2001, Official Report, columns 940–42. [10009]

Mr. Andrew Smith [holding answer 25 October 2001]: The costs of setting up the Terrorist Finance Unit are modest, but the benefits in terms of cutting off the resource available to the perpetrators of acts of international terrorism potentially immense.

Impounded Vehicles (Smugglers)

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer on what legal basis Customs and Excise sell the impounded vehicles of individuals who have used them to breach their personal allowances for the importation of tobacco and alcohol. [12195]

Mr. Boateng [holding answer 5 November 2001]: Where a vehicle has been used for the carriage, handling, deposit or concealment of anything liable to forfeiture, that vehicle is itself liable to forfeiture to the Crown under s141(1)(a) of the Customs and Excise Management Act 1979. Any such vehicle is forfeit once a month has passed and no appeal has been received, or where there is an appeal and the Magistrates find in favour of Customs and Excise. The Commissioners of Customs and Excise will dispose of forfeit vehicles on behalf of the Crown in the most efficient and cost-effective way.

People travelling to the UK from other EU countries are entitled to bring into the UK, without charge, alcohol and tobacco which they have purchased tax-paid elsewhere in the EU, if it is solely for their own use. Customs do not enforce any absolute limits on such purchases, but travellers bringing in goods in excess of the Minimum Indicative Levels, set out in EC Directive 92/12/EEC, may be required to satisfy Customs that the goods are for their own use.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much revenue was derived from selling vehicles impounded by Customs and Excise because they were used to breach personal allowances for the importation of tobacco and alcohol; and how many of such impounded vehicles have been sold, in each year for the past four years. [12218]

Mr. Boateng [holding answer 7 November 2001]: The information is available only in respect of the sale of vehicles seized for all types of Customs offences. The revenue from the sale of such vehicles for the last four years was:

Year	£
1997	43,075
1998	32,585
1999	120,261
2000	523,951

The number of vehicles sold is not recorded.

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many motor vehicles were seized on the grounds that they were being used for the illegal importation of spirits, wines, beer or tobacco products in 2000; and what the total proceeds of sale were. [13264]

Mr. Boateng: Customs record the number of vehicles seized for all Customs offences on a financial year basis. Figures for the number of vehicles seized in 2000–2001 were published in the Government's response to the independent report by John Roques into "The Collection of Excise Duties in HM Customs and Excise" (House of Commons command 5329, July 2001), a copy of which was placed in the Library on 19 July.

The total proceeds of sale from those seized vehicles which were subsequently sold in 2000 was £523,951.

Departmental Underspending

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, pursuant to his answer of 30 October 2001, Official Report, column 642W, on departmental budgets, if he will provide a breakdown for each listed Department of the main items of intended expenditure that were not spent, comprising each of the annual underspend totals. [13201]

Mr. Andrew Smith: The allocation of budgets within Departmental Expenditure Limits is normally a matter for individual Secretaries of State. Under this Government's system of full End-Year Flexibility, unspent provision is available for use in future years. Departmental Appropriation Accounts break down outturn by section of the Vote.

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he plans (a) to introduce corrective procedures for underspend of Final Department Expenditure Limit and (b) to examine the financial procedures in the (i) Department of Health, (ii) Department for Education and Skills, (iii) Ministry of Defence and (iv) Department for Transport, Local Government and the Regions. [13200]

Mr. Andrew Smith: Under this Government's system of full End-Year Flexibility, unspent provision can be carried forward by Departments for use in future years. This removes the incentive, which applied under previous arrangements, to use up budgets wastefully at the end of the financial year. The allocation and management of budget within Departmental Expenditure Limits are in general a matter for individual Secretaries of State.

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Health regarding under-spend in the Department of Health. [13204]

Mr. Andrew Smith: Treasury Ministers meet regularly with the Secretary of State for Health to discuss aspects of the Department of Health's performance and plans.

Public-private Partnerships

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list the projects in his Department which have been considered as potential public-private partnerships since 1997 which have not been undertaken because the public sector comparator had a lower net present value than the public-private partnership proposed; and if he will make a statement. [13453]

Mr. Andrew Smith: In our 1997 reforms of PFI, the Government abandoned the requirement to submit all capital projects to PFI testing. Accordingly, it will be concluded at a very early stage in the option appraisal process whether a PPP approach is likely to deliver value for money (vfm); where it is not, a public sector comparator (PSC) will not be constructed. Only when it is concluded, following careful consideration, that PPP is likely to offer vfm, will a PSC normally be developed.

Against this background, and with the maturing of the PPP process and the PPP market, it is likely that a high proportion of projects which do embark on the PPP route will contract on that basis, with competition helping to secure value for money and the PSC acting as a quantitative aid to informing judgment.

PPP deals continue to account for only a small proportion of the total sums invested to improve the delivery of public services. Public sector gross investment is projected to rise from £19 billion in 2000–01 to £35.2 billion in 2003–04. Over the same period, capital investment by the private sector through PFI will be about £3 billion annually.

So far as the Treasury as a Department is concerned, there have been no projects within the terms of the hon. Member's question.

Private Consultancy Expenditure

Mr. Gardiner: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much the Government have spent on private consultancy since 1997; and what review of such expenditure has been conducted to assess its value for money. [13907]

Mr. Andrew Smith: The information requested is not held centrally.

The National Audit Office published a report in April 2001 (HC 400 Session 2000–01) entitled "Purchasing Professional Services". This set out the results of their examination of Departments' expenditure on professional services including consultancy.

Individual Departments are responsible for ensuring that their expenditure on consultancy represents value for money.

VAT (Nursing Homes)

Mrs. Helen Clark: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement about the impact of the charging of VAT on the residential costs of nursing home care. [12123]

Mr. Boateng: The Government are of the clear view that the care of vulnerable people provided in all residential homes should not be subject to VAT. In May, the VAT Tribunal confirmed that the care provided in residential nursing homes was exempt from VAT. However, the Tribunal also ruled that care provided by a commercial body was not exempt, and Customs and Excise are currently appealing against that ruling. Whatever the outcome of that appeal, the Government will take steps to ensure that residents of care homes and their families do not face increased costs as a result of VAT.

Employee Share Ownership Plans

Mr. Love: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many employees of (a) mutual, (b) co-operative and (c) employee trust award companies would benefit if the present rules were changed to permit such organisations to participate in employee share ownership plans; what plans there are to expand ESOPs in this way; and if he will make a statement. [14464]

Ruth Kelly: Employees of registered industrial and provident societies which are co-operatives are already able to participate in the Share Incentive Plan introduced last year. Companies such as mutual organisations and trust-owned companies that do not issue shares are not able to participate.

We estimate that some 70,000 staff are employed by mutual organisations and around 60,000 are employed by trust owned businesses in the UK. We have not yet been able to devise a way in which the link between share ownership and company performance might be reflected in such corporate structures.

Mr. Love: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many employees in the different sectors of the economy (a) are benefiting from and (b) are entitled to receive money under the employee share ownership plans (i) in total and (ii) as a percentage of employees in that sector; what plans he has to extend ESOPs; and if he will make a statement. [14465]

Dawn Primarolo: Tax advantaged share plans are generally open to employees in all sectors of the economy. However, Enterprise Management Incentives are not open to companies engaged in certain trades considered to involve low financial risk. We estimate that some 2.5 million employees are benefiting from tax advantaged share and share option schemes. Up to March of this year, some 81,000 employees have benefited from the new

Share Incentive Plan introduced last year. Figures are not available on a sectoral basis and the cost of obtaining the information would be disproportionate.

Female Employment (Statistics)

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what proportion of the female population (a) is of working age, (b) is in work or seeking work and (c) is seeking work in each county. [14133]

Ruth Kelly: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician. I have asked him to reply.

Letter from Len Cook to Mr. Andrew Turner, dated 13 November 2001:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question about the proportions of the female population of working age, in work or seeking work, and seeking work in each county.(14133)

Estimates for counties and unitary authorities are available for mid-2000 of all women of working age as a proportion of the total female population. I have deposited a table showing these in the House of Commons library.

The Labour Force Survey (LFS) provides estimates of the economic activity status of people aged 16 years or over. The summer (June to August) 2001 estimates, for counties and unitary authorities where the survey sample size is large enough, of the proportions of women who are (i) in work or seeking work and (ii) seeking work are available on Nomis®, which can be accessed by the House of Commons Library.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Police Service of Northern Ireland

Mr. Donaldson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) how many (a) Protestant and (b) Roman Catholic applicants to the new Police Service of Northern Ireland were successful in being selected for the first batch of recruits; [11938]

(2) how many serving members of the full-time RUC Reserve have applied to joint the new Police Service of Northern Ireland and have been successful in being selected for the first batch of recruits; [11942]

(3) how many female applicants to the new Police Service of Northern Ireland were successful in being selected for the first batch of recruits; [11940]

(4) how many female applicants to the new Police Service of Northern Ireland were successful in being short listed to the final pool prior to the selection of the first batch of recruits; [11939]

(5) how many (a) Protestant and (b) Roman Catholic applicants to the new Police Service of Northern Ireland were successful in being short listed to the final pool prior to the selection of the first batch of recruits; [11937]

(6) how many serving members of the full-time RUC Reserve have applied to join the new Police Service of Northern Ireland and were successful in being short listed to the final pool prior to the selection of the first batch of recruits. [11941]

Jane Kennedy: Around 550 candidates have qualified for entry to the merit pool. Of these, approximately 150 have declared themselves Catholic and approximately 400 have declared themselves Protestant or are non-determined; some 180 are female; and approximately 80 are serving members of the full-time Police Service of Northern Ireland Reserve. Final figures will not be available for some time as a number of candidates are subject to outstanding issues, for example, medical appeals.

Of the first batch of 47 recruits, 24 have declared themselves Catholic and 23 have declared themselves protestant; 14 are female; and 10 are former full-time reserve officers.

TRANSPORT, LOCAL GOVERNMENT AND THE REGIONS

Machinery Operators (EU Legislation)

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what representations he has received regarding proposed EU legislation to prohibit machinery operators from driving plant and equipment for more than two hours per day; what assessment he has made of the cost of this legislation to the British construction industry; and if he will make a statement. [12615]

Dr. Whitehead: There is no proposed EU legislation to prohibit machinery operators from driving plant and equipment for more then two hours per day. The proposed Physical Agents (Vibration) Directive introduces a limit value for exposure to whole body vibration. The European Parliament has proposed an amendment to the common position on the Directive reducing this limit value. This reduced limit value could, in particular circumstances, have the effect of restricting the driving time by individuals of certain equipment to two or three hours.

The Government have received representations opposing this European Parliament amendment from several industry sectors, including agriculture, construction, mining and quarrying and engineering. We intend to defend the common position against the European Parliament amendment.

The Government have not costed the implications of the Directive on individual industry sectors. A Regulatory Impact Assessment of the Directive covering the costs to industry as a whole and the health benefits to workers has been submitted to the European Scrutiny Committee and is available in the Libraries of the House.

Consultation Documents

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions how many consultation documents were issued by his Department and its predecessors from (a) 15 October to 14 January, (b) 15 January to 14 April, (c) 15 April to 14 July and (d) 15 July to 14 October in each year from 1996. [12876]

Dr. Whitehead: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on Tuesday 23 October 2001, Official Report, column 198W, which is unfortunately incorrect. A more extensive search of Departmental records has revealed that the Department issued 33 consultation documents during the summer recess 2001.

Records of consultation exercises have been kept centrally only since the Cabinet Office Code of Practice on Written Consultation became effective on 1 January 2001. In this period, the Department issued 108 consultation documents broken down as follows:

1 January—14 April: 50

15 April—14 July: 16

15 July—14 October: 34

15 October to date: 8.

Affordable Housing

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions when he held talks about affordable housing on the Eaves Green site; and who was involved in the talks. [13003]

Ms Keeble: The public inquiry into the Chorley Local Plan 1991–2006 concluded on 1 October. Officials at the Government Office for the north-west commented on the original and revised deposit drafts of the plan, including its policy on affordable housing but no discussions took place regarding Eaves Green.

Pedestrian Protection

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what the results were of the European new car assessment pedestrian tests based on EEVC Working Group 10 tests. [13419]

Mr. Jamieson: Since the European new car assessment programme was established in 1997, three cars have obtained a three-star rating for pedestrian protection using tests based on the EEVC WG10 proposals; 65 have obtained two stars and 14 have obtained one star.

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions (1) if he will publish the advice available to him from the Transport Research Laboratory on the effects of Phase One of the draft negotiated agreement on pedestrian protection of comparative (a) the bumper test on disabling knee injuries, (b) the head impact test and the proportion of the bonnet area untested or unprotected, (c) the absence of a bonnet leading edge test and femur or pelvic fractures and (d) the influence on car design and effective protection for pedestrians; [13392]

(2) if he will outline the scientific research concerning the 21 degree knee bending angle in the Phase 1 leg protection tests in the draft negotiated pedestrian protection agreement; and if he will publish the Transport Research Laboratory's opinion on the consequences for injury generation. [13391]

Mr. Jamieson: TRL has given only informal advice to my Department on these issues, other than its letter formally responding to our recent consultation exercise on pedestrian protection. A summary of this, and other responses received, has been placed in the House Library. Copies of the full responses can be seen at the DTLR Library. Our understanding of TRL's views, both formal and informal, are as follows:

Bumper test: It is likely that, for some struck pedestrians, the proposed 21 degree bending angle for phase one might encourage technical designs that would cause permanent disabling injuries rather than injuries that will heal without disablement. The TRL view is that, because the whole package, including phase two, will result in considerable overall benefits, the opportunity to have pedestrian protection on vehicles should not be put at risk over this issue.

Head impact test: In the Negotiated Agreement two thirds of the bonnet area would have to meet a HIC limit of 1000; the head protection level normally associated with occupant protection. The other one third could have a HIC limit of 2000. This carries a higher risk of injury. However, it is likely that a combination of manufacturers aiming for better standards in production, and the impossibility of designing a bonnet in practice that has a step change such that it only just met the higher level over the whole one third, means that the average level in that zone would probably be midway between a HIC of 1000 and a HIC of 2000.

In phase one, the adult area will be tested with a child headform. Despite this, the additional protection would still be of benefits to adults in many accidents. However, in some adult accidents the bonnet will be too soft, with a risk of pushing it down on to immovable underlying components.

Bonnet leading edge test: There has been a long term trend towards more streamlined vehicles which has helped reduce femur and pelvic injuries, and this is the lowest priority of the EEVC tests. However, there is a possibility that manufacturers may raise or stiffen the bonnet leading edge to help gain better performance in the legform test; this would increase the risk of femur and pelvis injuries. The current inclusion of the test with performance targets in phase one of the negotiated agreement would allow such a trend to be monitored if it were to occur.

The influence of car design: The effect of the long term change in style towards more streamlined shapes is mentioned above. Also, in TRL's view, designing the bonnet area that is likely to be hit by the adult head using the phase one headform will not help the development of design solutions to meet the adult head requirements of phase two.

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if active pedestrian protection measures offered by car manufacturers are compatible with each of the choices of passive measures under consideration by COREPER and the Council of Ministers. [13387]

Mr. Jamieson: Active protection measures are intended to help reduce the likelihood of accidents whereas secondary safety measures reduce the consequences. There is no fundamental incompatibility; indeed, both approaches contribute to improvements in road safety today.

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions in what year the experimental safety vehicle of the Transport Research Laboratory demonstrated the feasibility of meeting the EEVC Working Group 10 pedestrian sub-system test requirements; and who funded this research. [13388]

Mr. Jamieson: The experimental safety vehicle, a Metro with modifications funded by the Department, was shown at a conference in 1985. However, this car was produced before Working Group 10 existed, and its effectiveness was tested using child and adult pedestrian dummies rather than the WG 10 sub-system tests.

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions in what year in-depth pedestrian accident research work started at the Transport Research Laboratory in contributing to the research EEVC pedestrian protection work; and who funded this research. [13389]

Mr. Jamieson: The Transport Research Laboratory has been contributing to the European pedestrian protection considerations since the 1970s. This early work was funded by the Department of Transport.

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions when the Government first proposed to the European Commission that a directive on safer car fronts for pedestrians and cyclists should be introduced. [13418]

Mr. Jamieson: Formal requests to make car fronts safer for pedestrians were made in 1991 through the UK's involvement in the EEVC.

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what assessment he has made of the ability of the European car industry to achieve working group 17 pedestrian tests requirements at an early date. [13421]

Mr. Jamieson: We have not made a specific assessment of this. However, it is clear that industry continues to see difficulty in meeting the full EEVC criteria as a universal requirement for cars at an early date.

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will estimate the pedestrian fatality reduction potential of the Phase 1 tests in the draft negotiated agreement as a percentage of the potential in the EEVC Working Group 17; and what assessment he has made of the ability of the draft negotiated agreement to meet the level of protection in the harmonisation process required by the Treaty of European Union. [13390]

Mr. Jamieson: It is estimated that Phase 1 would deliver a benefit of around 25 per cent. for fatal injuries and 60 per cent. for serious injuries, relative to the Phase 2 levels associated with the EEVC WG 17 requirements. The negotiated agreement is likely to start delivering two years earlier than a directive, which would itself be likely to be phased.

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions how it is intended that the car industry will work to agreed longer-term targets for pedestrian protection if Phase 2 of the draft negotiated agreement is not specified with Phase 1. [13420]

Mr. Jamieson: Phase 1 and Phase 2 are both specified in the negotiated agreement.

I am satisfied that the technical requirements of the first phase will be operated in a flexible manner, which will allow manufacturers to deliver cars in Phase 1 which incorporate techniques more appropriate for meeting the Phase 2 levels. This will address one of the concerns raised by TRL and others about the headform test in Phase 1.

Millennium Dome

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions when an announcement will be made on the future of the Dome; and what the monthly cost of the Dome is to the Exchequer. [13224]

Ms Keeble: On-going market testing is exploring all avenues, and on the basis of professional advice we are in discussion with a small number of serious contenders. To reveal details of the discussions would not be conducive to a successful conclusion and would be against the public interest. The aim is to secure a sale as quickly as possible, consistent with value for money, securing a worthwhile and sustainable future for the Dome and a deliverable outcome.

From 1 July 2001, when the lease of the New Millennium Experience Company ended, English Partnerships, the Government's regeneration agency, has been incurring an average of £240,000 per month on Dome maintenance and management related costs. English Partnerships also expects to incur expenditure in the order of £9.75 million this year on decommissioning the Dome contents in preparation for a future use and about £1.7 million in relation to the current sale process. Any money spent on these will be recovered from sale proceeds so the cost will not fall to the taxpayer.

Railtrack

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions (1) what advice he has received on the level of payments on debt that would (a) be required annually if the rating of the successor organisation to Railtrack were credit rated at (i) BBB and (ii) single A and (b) be required if it were able to borrow at the rate of Government gilts; and if he will make a statement; [13207]

(2) what advice he has received on the level of payments on debt that would be required annually if the rating of the successor organisation to Railtrack were (a) 1 per cent. higher, (b) 2 per cent. higher and (c) 3 per cent. higher than Government gilts; and if he will make a statement. [13208]

Mr. Jamieson: In relation to the proposal that the Government intend to put to the administrator for a company limited by guarantee, we will be targeting a long-term credit rating of A/A2 or higher, to reflect the financing capacity requirements of the rail infrastructure business. We are confident that this would allow the CLG to raise new debt and service existing debt on an efficient and cost-effective basis.

Telecommunications Masts

Mr. Blunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions how many planning inquiries there have been into applications for telecommunications masts over 15m by commercial operators that seek to replace a mast owned by Railtrack plc with one of their own. [13665]

Ms Keeble: The Department does not hold information on the number of planning inquiries in this form.

Road Surfaces

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions for what reason the Highways Agency no longer takes responsibility for the surfaces of major roads in London; what sum was specifically transferred for this purpose to Transport for London; and if he will make a statement. [13538]

Mr. Jamieson: On 3 July 2000 the Highways Agency's responsibilities for all of its roads in London except for the stubs of the M1, M4 and the M11 were transferred to Transport for London. The Government pay the Greater London Authority Transport Grant to support the whole range of Transport for London's responsibilities. This grant rises from £714 million in 2001–02 to over £1 billion in 2003–04.

Housing Provision (Doncaster/Barnsley)

Jeff Ennis: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions how many council houses were sold in (a) Doncaster and (b) Barnsley in each of the last 10 years. [13659]

Ms Keeble: The number of council dwellings (both houses and flats) sold in each of the last 10 years, as reported by Doncaster and Barnsley metropolitan councils, is in the table.

Number of council dwellings sold

Year	Doncaster metropolitan borough council	Barnsley metropolitan borough council
1991–92	291	350
1992–93	240	205
1993–94	299	177
1994–95	290	212
1995–96	237	111
1996–97	260	153
1997–98	341	195
1998–99	368	202
1999–2000	415	304
2000–01	386	400

Source:
DTLR Housing Activity P1(B) quarterly returns

Tables showing reported information on total council house sales in each English local authority for each financial year from 1979–80 are available in the Library.

Jeff Ennis: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions how many new social rented houses were built in (a) Doncaster and (b) Barnsley in each of the last 10 years. [13660]

Ms Keeble: The numbers of new social dwellings, both houses and flats, built in Doncaster metropolitan borough council area and Barnsley metropolitan borough council area in each of the last 10 years are given in the table. Social dwellings include those built for registered social landlords as well as those built for the councils.

Number of social dwellings built

Year	Doncaster (MBC)	Barnsley (MBC)
1991–92	89	104
1992–93	157	40
1993–94	121	74
1994–95	164	59
1995–96	188	53
1996–97	116	38
1997–98	57	6
1998–99	15	28
1999–2000	42	0
2000–01	27	0

Rent Levels

Mr. Chris Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions at what date the 1 per cent. rise in levels above the rate of inflation will commence under his restructuring proposals for local authority rent levels; if it will apply equally to all local authorities; and whether mitigation will be introduced to dampen the effect where high-level rents are instituted in high-value areas. [13791]

Mr. Byers: Rents for local authority properties are set by the responsible authorities and depend upon decisions taken locally. The proposed 1 per cent. real terms increase in rents is the assumption for the purposes of calculating housing subsidy in England for 2002–03 which was announced at the end of the 2000 spending review. It is independent of our policy on rent restructuring. Ministers are considering how it will apply to each local authority in the light of responses to the consultation on proposals for subsidy changes and will make an announcement soon. We expect rent changes as a result of rent restructuring to be limited to a maximum of £2 per week in any year above normal inflation-related increases. We are considering whether there should also be a cap on the rents of high-value properties which would otherwise attract high rents.

Mr. Chris Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions (1) what his estimate is in relation to his proposals for the restructuring of local authority rent levels, of average rents for (a) London and (b) Inner London on the former Inner London education authority boundaries (i) at April levels, (ii) for the initial restructured levels and (iii) in subsequent years; [13790]

(2) to what extent the average figures he has circulated in relation to his proposals for the restructuring of local authority rent levels reflect (a) reductions in rent levels for smaller properties and for those in less high value areas and (b) significant increases in rent levels for (i) family-sized properties and (ii) for those in higher-value areas. [13789]

Mr. Byers: The information is not available in the form requested.

Mr. Chris Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions under his proposals for the restructuring of local authority rent levels, what account the restructured levels will take of the (a) nature and condition of an estate on which the property is located and (b) broad property values of the overall area. [13788]

Mr. Byers: Under restructuring, social rents will be based on a formula that includes local earnings, property size and relative property value. The property value will reflect the size, location and condition of the property.

Social rents will generally remain well below the levels charged by reputable private landlords for similar properties.

M6 (Morecambe and Heysham Port)

Geraldine Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what plans he has to improve road access to Morecambe and Heysham Port from the M6 Motorway. [13741]

Ms Keeble: Access from Morecambe and Heysham Port to the M6 is the responsibility of Lancashire county council. They have recently conducted a public consultation on the two proposed routes for a Heysham to M6 link road. When the position on the Lancaster district local plan is resolved, it is a matter for the council whether to submit a bid for funding from central Government.

Fire and Civil Defence Authorities

Mr. Truswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what guidance he will issue regarding the level of fire and civil defence authority precepts for 2001–02. [13599]

Dr. Whitehead: None. These are matters for fire and civil defence authorities to decide in consultation with local taxpayers.

Mr. Truswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what assessment he has made of the progress achieved by fire and civil defence authorities in metropolitan areas towards reducing (a) fire-related deaths and (b) malicious false alarm calls. [13600]

Dr. Whitehead: In 2000, an estimated 133 accidental fire related deaths in dwellings were recorded for the seven metropolitan brigades, out of a national total of 326. The number of accidental house fire deaths in metropolitan brigade areas had fallen in recent years from 167 in 1996 to the current estimated figure of 133 for 2000. The downward trend in dwelling fire deaths is reflected nationally for England and Wales. There were 588 dwelling fire deaths in 1996, compared with 516 for 2000.

Malicious false alarms, both for the metropolitan areas and nationally, have been falling steadily over recent years. In 1996 there were 57,100 malicious false alarm calls recorded by the metropolitan areas. In 2000, metropolitan brigades attended a total of 33,800 malicious false alarm calls—a fall of 41 per cent. against the 1996 figures.

These encouraging statistics reflect the merits of the integrated approach adopted by Government, the fire service and fire authorities over the past four years to implement strategies designed to drive down the number of preventable dwelling fire deaths and to educate the public about the dangers of malicious false alarm calls.

Business Rate System

Geraldine Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what representations have been received on the reform of the business rate system. [13734]

Dr. Whitehead: The Green Paper "Modernising Local Government Finance", published 19 September 2000, invited comments on a range of issues relating to reform of business rates. In response to that consultation we received 1,107 non-campaign responses of which the overwhelming majority included responses on business rates. A summary is available on the DTLR website at www.dtlr.gov.uk. We will set out our response to the consultation in the Local Government White Paper later this year.

On 16 February 2001 we issued a further consultation paper on extending the agricultural exemption from rates to machinery rings and share farming enterprises on which we received 34 responses. Again. we will set out next steps in the forthcoming Local Government White Paper.

My Department continuously receives correspondence on the business rates system, which includes representations on reforms to various parts of the rating system.

DVLA

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will review the resources and the priority being deployed by DVLA to answer telephone inquiries from members of the public. [14046]

Mr. Jamieson: The level of resources deployed on telephone inquiries by DVLA is under continuous review in order to meet the level of demand at any given time.

Terrorism

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what the costs have been of operations undertaken by his Department in connection with events following the 11 September terrorist attacks; and if he will list the costs relating to (a) the British Transport police, (b) the aviation industry, (c) emergency planning and (d) other areas; and if these costs will be met from his Department's budget. [13845]

Mr. Byers [holding answer 9 November 2001]: To date my Department has not incurred any costs in connection with events following the 11 September terrorist attacks relating to the British Transport police, the aviation industry or emergency planning. Along with other Government Departments we have reviewed security at our buildings and have incurred extra costs of around £31,000 which will be met from within existing budgets.

We will give due consideration to any requests for financial assistance from those areas for which my Department is responsible.

Regeneration (West Midlands)

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what plans he has to promote the regeneration of deprived areas in the west midlands. [13534]

Ms Keeble [holding answer 12 October 2001]: There are a number of initiatives across the west midlands, which are promoting regeneration of deprived areas.

The key ones are as listed:

£4.2 million over three years from April 2002 for "neighbourhood management" initiatives in Newcastle-under-Lyme and Burton-on-Trent.

Over £3 million through the "Community Empowerment Fund" to help communities get involved in local decision making. Seven areas in west midlands will benefit from this fund. These are Birmingham, Dudley, Coventry, Sandwell, Stoke, Walsall and Wolverhampton.

£1.1 million for "community chests" to support small community projects with grants they can get locally with minimum bureaucracy. Seven areas in west midlands will benefit from this fund. These are Birmingham, Dudley, Coventry, Sandwell, Stoke, Walsall and Wolverhampton.

"New Deal for Community" areas in the west midlands which will benefit from almost £2 billion over the next 10 years. These are:

Sandwell—(Greets Green Partnership)

A further £263.5 million for five Round 2 Partnerships in the west midlands was announced in April 2001. These are:

Birmingham—Aston Pride

Birmingham—Kings Norton, Three Estates

Coventry WEHM

Walsall—New Deal, New Horizons

Wolverhampton—All Saints and Blakenhall

Seven "Neighbourhood Warden schemes" are now operating across the west midlands. The programme is worth £1.027 million.

17 "Street Wardens programmes" have recently been announced in the west midlands. The total value of the scheme is £4.146 million which will be matched by Government funding.

"Neighbourhood Renewal Fund" will provide £121.5 million for three years from April 2001 to improve services in the most deprived neighbourhoods in the west midlands. Areas benefiting in west midlands are Birmingham, Dudley, Coventry, Sandwell, Stoke, Walsall and Wolverhampton. A Local Strategic Partnership in each area will develop a local "neighbourhood renewal strategy" to guide NRF expenditure.

Advantage West Midlands as part of its Economic Strategy has agreed with partners across the region the designation of six Regeneration Zones which cover 111 of the 153 most deprived wards in the region. Advantage West Midlands has undertaken to spend 70 per cent. of its resources in the zones to help achieve these aims.

European Funding

Objective 2 European Structural Funds for the period 2000–06 has earmarked over £100 million to support the regeneration of the most deprived areas in the west midlands. Additionally, the region will benefit from Objective 3 funds worth over £240 million during the same period to help to upskill people and improve their employability.

Terminal 5

Mr. Wilshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what the cost was of the planning inquiry into the application to build a fifth terminal at Heathrow Airport. [14021]

Ms Keeble [holding answer 12 November 2001]: The total costs of the Terminal 5 inquiry to all participants is estimated at over £83 million of which the private sector is estimated to have spent some £64 million with the rest borne by central and local Government.

Heathrow Airport

Mr. Wilshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will make a statement on job losses at Heathrow Airport as a result of the events of 11 September. [14020]

Mr. Jamieson [holding answer 12 November 2001]: BAA plc, as owners of Heathrow Airport, advise they have not cut any jobs at the airport following the events of 11 September. However, their organisation only represents around 5.5 per cent. of the workforce at the airport. We do not yet have firm information about the extent of job losses at Heathrow in other areas of the aviation industry.

I understand that the Job Transition Service is engaging with employers to ensure that those employees adversely affected have access to the fullest possible range of help and advice.

Mr. Wilshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions who (a) was invited to meet and (b) met the Minister of State during his visit to Heathrow Airport on 5 November. [14019]

Mr. Spellar [holding answer 12 November 2001]: I visited Heathrow Airport on 5 November at the request of my hon. Friend the Member for Hayes and Harlington (John McDonnell), who also arranged the other attendance. The meeting was attended by local MPs and numerous representatives of the air transport industry, trades unions and local communities.

London Underground

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what was the average length of the contractual working week for London Underground (a) drivers and (b) station staff in each year since 1991. [14604]

Mr. Jamieson: London Underground has provided the following information:

Year	Train operators contractual weekly hours	Station staff contractual weekly hours
1991–92	[1]38	[1]38
1992–93	[1]38	[1]38
1993–94	38.5	41.25
1994–95	38.5	41.25
1995–96	38.5	40
1996–97	37	40
1997–98	36	40
1998–99	35	40
1999–2000	35	40
2000–01	35	40
2001–02	35	37.5

[1] Plus minimum of one Sunday in two

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what proportion of the annual service charges to be paid by Transport for London for the London Underground public-private partnership contracts will be underwritten by central Government payments made to Transport for London; and for what period such payments will be guaranteed. [14612]

Mr. Jamieson: Subject to its representing value for money, London Underground intends to enter into long-term contracts to deliver a publicly run, privately built tube. These contracts will be between London Underground and the private sector Infrastructure Companies and will not be guaranteed by central Government. However, my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State will allow for the resulting contract payments when setting GLA Transport Grant.

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what was the annual average leave entitlement of London Underground (a) drivers and (b) station staff in each year since 1991. [14602]

Mr. Jamieson: London Underground has provided the following information:

Year	Train operator annual leave	Station staff annual leave
1991–92	[1]25	[1]25
1992–93	[1]25	[1]25
1993–94	[2]34	[2]34
1994–95	[2]34	[2]34
1995–96	[2]34	[2]34
1996–97	[2]34	[2]34
1997–98	[2]34	[2]34
1998–99	[2]34	[2]34
1999–2000	[2]34	[2]34
2000–01	[2]36	[2]36
2001–02	[2]37	[2]37

[1] Plus one day for credit transfer
[2] Inc. B/H

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what arrangements have been put in place to take account of the change in the length of the working week of the managing director of London Underground Ltd. [14585]

Mr. Jamieson: Paul Godier succeeded Derek Smith as full time managing director on Monday 8 October 2001. Derek Smith remains as Chairman of London Underground. London Underground issued a press release on 10 September http://www.thetube/com/content/pressreleases/0109/10.asp setting out details of the new arrangements.

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will ask the National Audit Office to examine the value for money aspects of the London Underground public-private partnership in advance of the contracts being signed; and if he will place in the Library his correspondence with the NAO on London Underground. [14615]

Mr. Jamieson: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Truro and St. Austell (Matthew Taylor) on 12 November 2001, Official Report, column 503W. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has not corresponded with the NAO on the subject of the London Underground.

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions when, for each line of London Underground, new trains will be introduced under the terms of the public-private partnership. [14588]

Mr. Jamieson: The public-private partnership is designed to achieve a comprehensive modernisation of the entire underground network. London Underground is currently negotiating the detailed requirements and will publish details once they have been completed.

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what capacity increase, for each line of London Underground, will be achieved under the terms of the public-private partnership; and in which year this change will occur. [14587]

Mr. Jamieson: The public-private partnership is designed to achieve a comprehensive modernisation of the entire underground network. This is necessarily a long-term programme and there is a limit on the amount of work that can be done simultaneously without causing excessive disruption to the service to the public. The overall requirements have therefore been specified by London Underground to upgrade every line over time, prioritised to deliver the greatest benefits as quickly as possible. The capability of most lines is expected to be increased by around 10–25 per cent. The detailed requirements are currently being negotiated and London Underground will publish details once the negotiations have been completed.

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will publish the names of (a) companies in each of the consortia selected as preferred bidders for each London Underground PPP contract and (b) the board members of each of those companies. [14613]

Mr. Jamieson: Metronet is the preferred bidder for the BCV and SSL competitions. The Metronet consortium consists of Bombardier Transportation (formerly Adtranz), WS Atkins, Balfour Beatty, Seeboard and Thames Water.

Tubelines is the preferred bidder for the JNP competition. The Tubelines consortium consists of Amey, Bechtel and Jarvis.

The board membership of each company will be contained in the companies' annual accounts.

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions how, under the terms of the proposed public-private partnership for London Underground, companies will be incentivised to improve the performance of the underground; what new performance measures will be used; and what financial (a) incentives and (b) disincentives will be employed. [14586]

Mr. Jamieson: The Government's plans for a publicly run, privately built London Underground are designed to deliver at least £13 billion of investment over the next 15 years. The private sector will be incentivised to deliver this investment by contracts that are principally output-based, with payments to the private sector infrastructure companies increasing as they improve capacity, reliability and the quality of the travelling environment on the tube network. The private sector will be similarly financially penalised for poor performance. These penalties will reflect the impact of any delay or disruption to passengers and not be limited by a cap.

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if, under the proposed contracts for the public-private partnership for London Underground, senior managers of Transport for London and London Underground who have been involved in PPP negotiations will be exempt from any subsequent legal challenge other than for fraud or impropriety, as regards the (a) content and (b) operation of PPP contracts. [14608]

Mr. Jamieson: I understand that London Underground does not intend for the PPP contract to exempt London Underground senior managers from legal action by London Transport or London Underground. There will be a waiver in relation to legal action by infrastructure companies or bidders.

The position of Transport for London senior managers is a matter for the board of TfL.

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what is the cost to London Transport of the recent London Underground advertising campaign to promote the public-private partnership for London Underground. [14609]

Mr. Jamieson: This is a matter for London Underground.

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions when he expects to sign the final contracts for the London Underground public-private partnership; and when control of LU will pass to the Mayor of London. [14611]

Mr. Jamieson: The Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions will not sign contracts for the London Underground public-private partnership, which is the responsibility of London Underground. I understand that London Underground expects to sign contracts early next year.

London Underground will transfer to Transport for London once the competitions for the modernisation of the Underground have been completed.

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if (a) his Department, (b) Transport for London and (c) London Underground intend to undertake further advertising to promote the public-private partnership for London Underground; and when it is envisaged that it will commence. [14610]

Mr. Jamieson: The Department for Transport, Local Government and the Regions has no plans to undertake advertising to promote the public-private partnership for London Underground.

Advertising by Transport for London and London Underground is a matter for each of those organisations.

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions how much was spent by (a) his Department and its predecessors, (b) London Transport, (c) London Underground and (d) any other institution (i) controlled and (ii) funded by his Department or its predecessors on all work concerned with the (A) preparations, (B) contracts and (C) other aspects of the London Underground public-private partnership in each year since 1997–98. [14614]

Mr. Jamieson: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Buckingham (Mr. Bercow) on 16 October 2001, Official Report, column 1169W. It is not practicable to provide a breakdown in the form requested by the hon. Member.

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions how many London Underground (a) drivers and (b) station staff there were in each year since 1991. [14603]

Mr. Jamieson: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by my hon. Friend the Member for Streatham (Keith Hill) to the hon. Member for North Essex (Mr. Jenkin) on 9 April 2001, Official Report, column 386W.

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions who are the members of the boards of (a) Transport for London and (b) London Underground, and what are their (i) annual emoluments and (ii) monthly time commitment to LU; when they joined the board; and what are the particular responsibilities of each member as regards the public-private partnership for the underground. [14590]

Mr. Jamieson: Appointments to the Board of Transport for London are a matter for the Mayor of London.

The board members of London Underground Ltd., who are appointed by the Board of London Regional Transport are:

Derek Smith (Chairman)
Paul Godier (Managing Director)
Brian Appleton (Non-executive Director with special interest in safety)
Keith Beattie
Patrick Butcher
Mike Brown
Martin Callaghan
Tony Maguire
Rob Mason
Jon Smith
Mike Strzelecki.

Details of board members' annual emoluments and start dates are included in the relevant annual report and accounts.

All board members of London Underground Ltd., except Brian Appleton and Derek Smith, are full-time executive directors. Brian Appleton works 11 days per month, and Derek Smith 2½ days per week (from 8 October 2001).

The board of London Underground Ltd. considers all significant matters relating to the PPP, but the final decision on the award of any contracts is a matter reserved for the board of London Regional Transport. With the exception of Martin Callaghan, who is the PPP project director and leads on the negotiations with the PPP bidders. No other board members of either London Underground Ltd. or London Regional Transport has specific individual responsibilities in relation to the PPP.

Local Government Modernisation

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions (1) if he will place in the Library all (a) guidance and (b) other documentation

(i) published and (ii) otherwise distributed by the local government modernisation team with respect to ethics in local government; [14545]

(2) if he will place in the Library all (a) guidance and (b) other documentation (i) published and (ii) otherwise distributed to local authorities by the local government modernisation team with respect to the environment. [14557]

Mr. Byers: The purpose of the local government modernisation team is to help to communicate and explain to council members and employees the Government's agenda for the modernisation of local government, and to feed back council's views and experiences to Ministers and Departments.

The role of the members of the team is therefore to contribute their operational knowledge to guidance or other publications prepared by the Department. Examples include contributing to Government Guidance on New Council Constitutions and on Referendums under the Local Government Act 2000 and working with the Improvement and Development Agency in developing their ethical governance audit for local authorities. The remit of the local government modernisation team is primarily in relation to the modernisation of local government and not specifically on environmental issues.

Copies of such Government guidance and documentation are placed in the Library in the usual manner.

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what are the criteria by which members of the local government modernisation team were selected. [14554]

Mr. Byers: To ensure members of the local government modernisation team were recruited on an open basis, consistent with guidelines from the Civil Service Commissioners, advertisements for posts were placed in both the national and local government press. Applications were sought from people with:

Senior local government experience;

the ability to command credibility and respect of members and senior officers;

knowledge of the (local government) modernisation agenda, with experience or expertise in one or more key areas;

excellent communication and presentation skills, and good team players.

A panel including civil servants from my Department and an independent member from the Local Government Association interviewed the applicants and decided the appointments to be made.

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions who are the members of the local government modernisation team; and what are their relevant (a) experience and (b) qualifications. [14550]

Mr. Byers: Current members of the local government modernisation team are:

Avril Atkinson, former Director of Pupils and Services Division, East Sussex CC

Chris Haynes, former Head of Information Age Government, Knowsley

Richard Ollin, former Chief Executive, Stroud DC

Guy Ware, former Director of Finance and Information Services, LB Enfield

Janice Morphet, former Chief Executive, Rutland

Julian Bowrey, former Head of Policy and Review, Cambridgeshire CC

John Haward, former Head of Corporate Strategy, Southwark LB

Mike Reardon, former Council Secretary, Trafford MBC

Pam Fox, former Assistant Chief Executive, Portsmouth City

Peter Murphy, former Chief Executive, Melton BC

Rita Petty, former Executive Director, Kirklees MBC.

All members of the team have been recruited on the basis of ability, qualifications and suitability for the work as a result of an open competition held in line with guidelines set out by the Civil Service Commissioners.

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what is the cost of (a) the establishment of the local government modernisation team and (b) its continuing operating costs. [14555]

Mr. Byers: The local government modernisation team was set up with an annual budget of £1 million which included the cost of establishing the team in the autumn of 1999. This was increased to £1.5 million in 2000–01 to cover new roles, in particular local government on-line.

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what remuneration and superannuation is paid to members of the local government modernisation team. [14556]

Mr. Byers: Members of the local government modernisation team have been appointed on a mixture of short-term secondments or fixed-term contracts, usually of one to two years (full and part-time). Most members are senior civil service equivalents. Remuneration is based on salary before joining the team, and is currently in the range from £45,000 to £80,000 per annum. Members have the option of remaining in the local government pension scheme or joining the principle civil service pension scheme when they join the Department.

Bus Services

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what action he has taken to improve the quality of bus services with respect to (a) reliability of service and (b) the quality of information provided at bus stops since the publication of the bus quality indicators bulletin in September. [14546]

Mr. Byers: The Government want to see more regular and reliable bus services that will attract increasing numbers of passengers. Since the publication of the most recent bus quality indicators bulletin in September, we have commenced powers under the Transport Act 2000 with regard to statutory Quality Partnerships and Quality Contracts. This means that local authorities now have a wider range of powers at their disposal to help them to take steps to improve local bus services.

The Transport Act 2000 also requires all local transport authorities to develop arrangements for ensuring that appropriate bus passenger information is made available, and enables them to step in to provide proper passenger information, at operators' expense, if existing arrangements are inadequate.

We are continuing to discuss with the bus industry realistic targets for delivering improvements in service reliability, including monitoring the provision of passenger information at bus stops.

Deprivation (Lancaster)

Geraldine Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions which are the 12 most deprived wards in the Lancaster City district, with reference to the Index of Local Deprivation. [13767]

Ms Keeble: Table 1 lists the 12 most deprived wards in the Lancaster district, as measured on the Index of Multiple Deprivation 2000. This is one of the main components of the Indices of Deprivation 2000, which is the current measure of deprivation in England.

Ward name[1]	Rank of index of multiple deprivation across England
Alexandra	280
Poulton	759
Skerton Central	795
Skerton East	843
Bulk	1,277
Harbour	1,279
Skerton West	1,290
Heysham North	1,325
Heysham Central	1,476
Heysham South	2,113
Castle	2,282
Victoria	2,417

[1] These are based on ward boundaries as at 1998

The components of the Indices of Deprivation 2000 are:

Separate indices at ward level on each of the six domains of deprivation: Income, Employment, Health Deprivation and Disability, Education Skills and Training, Housing and Geographical Access to Services. This allows all 8,414 wards in England to be ranked according to how deprived they are relative to other areas, for each domain.A ward level index that brings together information from the six domains of deprivation into one overall Index of Multiple Deprivation (IMD 2000). Table 1 is based on this measure.

Six district level summaries of the IMD, which allow all 354 local authority districts to be ranked according to each measure. These summaries take account of the different patterns of deprivation found in different areas.

Table 2 shows how all Lancaster's wards are ranked according to the IMD and the six other ward domains included in the Indices of Deprivation 2000.

Ward Name	IMD 2000	Income	Employment	Health	Education	Housing	Access to Services
Alexandra	280	382	122	184	1,311	1,430	6,526
Arkholme	5,256	6,205	6,118	6,275	5,553	6,229	361
Bolton-le-Sands	6,122	6,947	4,835	4,210	7,724	7,268	1,775
Bulk	1,277	1,569	1,280	990	986	1,791	6,833
Carnforth	4,213	3,640	4,270	3,525	3,456	6,101	3,993
Castle	2,282	2,000	1,594	1,998	4,383	2,821	6,065
Caton	4,295	5,136	3,447	3,160	5,827	7,107	1,524
Ellel	4,490	5,787	4,652	4,736	7,728	2,927	592
Halton-with-Aughton	5,762	6,251	4,380	4,577	7,094	7,525	1,717
Harbour	1,279	755	961	753	3,790	4,828	5,702
Heysham Central	1,476	1,919	882	591	2,279	6,145	5,784
Heysham North	1,325	979	1,004	1,135	2,088	3,174	7,832
Heysham South	2,113	1,610	1,868	1,670	3,327	3,547	5,452
Hornby	5,811	7,440	5,999	5,948	6,709	6,717	380
John O'Gaunt	6,028	5,267	4,236	4,876	5,143	6,102	7,700
Kellet	4,737	4,798	3,639	3,748	6,971	6,071	2,240
Overton	2,924	3,765	3,247	2,669	3,408	1,457	2,392
Parks	4,366	4,690	2,584	1,973	6,686	8,229	6,412
Poulton	759	725	389	377	3,807	1,686	7,881
Scotforth East	6,258	6,376	6,174	5,715	4,558	2,993	4,789
Scotforth West	3,770	3,501	2,704	2,508	4,526	6,551	5,744
Silverdale	5,849	6,002	4,693	3,970	7,876	8,097	1,764
Skerton Central	795	867	1,127	876	336	1,472	7,410
Skerton East	843	815	889	939	440	2,715	7,460
Skerton West	1,290	1,366	1,644	1,873	636	1,366	5,301
Slyne-with-Hest	4,561	6,132	2,768	2,105	7,939	7,237	2,999
Torrisholme	5,156	4,828	3,870	2,673	6,690	7,972	4,729
Victoria	2,417	1,507	2,138	1,608	4,896	4,289	7,118
Warton	3,917	4,502	4,240	3,583	2,707	3,946	2,835

Regeneration (Morecambe and Lunesdale)

Geraldine Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what funding he has provided (a) to encourage employment opportunities and (b) to regenerate industrial estates in the Morecambe and Lunesdale constituency. [13768]

Ms Keeble: The constituency of Morecambe and Lunesdale has benefited from the following funding.

Single Regeneration Budget:

SRB Round One—Turning the Tide: Morecambe

This is a seven year strategy to halt decline and build tourism through comprehensive regeneration of an area of need in the town centre. It builds on pre-existing housing schemes and extends to business, training, and environmental schemes.

SRB Total is £4.3 million.

SRB Round Five—Luneside Regeneration

This seven year scheme seeks to tackle dereliction and draw private investment into key sites in Lancaster, creating new jobs close to the city's inner urban communities.

SRB total is £5 million.

European Regional Development Fund

Much of the constituency is eligible for support under the 2000–06 Objective 2 programme, and can expect to access business support through the wider north and west Lancashire action plan. This has been awarded £14 million for a range of business support activities.

Luneside Industrial Estate

Geraldine Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what discussions he has had with (a) the Government Office for the North West and (b) NWDA about improving access to the Luneside industrial estate. [13770]

Ms Keeble: Ministers have not had discussions with the North West Development Agency about improving access to Luneside industrial estate.

Regional Investment Funding (Lancaster)

Geraldine Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions which wards in the Lancaster City Council District are eligible for Objective 2 priority 3 strategic regional investment funding. [13772]

Ms Keeble: Eligible wards are:

Alexandra
Bulk
Castle
Caton
Heysham central
Heysham north
Heysham south
Overton.

Wessex Rail Franchise

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will make a statement on his proposed timetable for the renewal of the Wessex Rail Franchise. [14295]

Mr. Jamieson: The Strategic Rail Authority has submitted proposals for a revised franchise replacement/extension programme to the Secretary of State for consideration. An announcement will be made in due course.

DEFENCE

QinetiQ

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he plans to divest QinetiQ; and when the funds derived from the sale will be credited to his Department's budget. [14626]

Dr. Moonie: QinetiQ will be floated as soon as its potential is judged to be suitably developed, subject to value for money considerations and provided the organisation has achieved appropriate performance targets. Since vesting of the company on 1 July 2001 work has mainly focused on preparing the company for a future transaction and assessing market conditions. It also remains possible that a strategic partner will be brought in to assist with the commercial development of the company prior to a flotation. The Ministry of Defence is likely to retain an interest in QinetiQ as a means to ensuring that taxpayers receive full value for the investment in past Government funded research. An announcement, hopefully early in the new year, will be made once a decision has been taken on the transaction route, and the proposed timetable.

It has been agreed with HM Treasury that the MOD will receive a credit of at least £250 million in FY 2001–02 in anticipation of a successful PPP. This receipt is not dependent on the actual timing of the final PPP transaction, nor is the figure an indication of the potential value of the transaction.

Veterans Task Force

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement about the Veterans task force meeting held on 7 November. [13766]

Dr. Moonie: At the first meeting of the task force on 6 November, my ministerial colleagues from other Departments with an interest in veterans issues, representatives from the veterans' community and I agreed terms of reference committing us to making our policy development and services responsive to the reasonable needs and concerns of veterans. We agreed a vision focusing on the key themes of partnership, identity, recognition, education and care, and agreed a cross-government action plan to take these themes forward. This work is being undertaken in partnership with experts from veterans organisations and will include reviews of resettlement for the most vulnerable of those discharged from the armed forces, of the educational material on veterans and their achievements provided for Key Stage 3 of the national curriculum and of ways in which we might improve the effectiveness of our communications with veterans. Ministers also agreed to review their relevant public service agreements to identify those in which there was a significant and discrete veterans problem that merited action in its own right. Particular areas to be considered were focused on the most vulnerable and included the levels of service-related problems among the prison population, among marital breakdowns and among the unemployed. Deadlines have been set for action plan work items, and overall progress with the initiative will be considered at the next meeting of the task force in May 2002.

I consider that the task force agreements represent substantial progress towards achieving our objective of raising the profile of veterans' issues in Government and more widely across the nation, and of improving the delivery of benefits to veterans, particularly the most vulnerable.

Afghanistan

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans there are for the inclusion of the Territorial Army in the operations against Afghanistan; and (a) how many will be deployed and (b) how they will be deployed. [13128]

Mr. Ingram: There are no plans to include formed units of the Territorial Army in the operations in Afghanistan. However, a call-out order has been made under section 54 of the Reserve Forces Act 1996 to permit up to 150 individual reservists from all three services to be called out for service in support of the current operation. They are needed to augment headquarters, and provide operational support to the Royal Air Force. Most will be based in the UK. Augmentation of this nature is a routine task for the reserves.

Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans his Department has to disarm unexploded cluster bomblets used by Allied coalition forces in the conflict in Afghanistan. [14266]

Mr. Ingram: The Prime Minister has made it clear that the United Kingdom will not turn her back on Afghanistan and that any political settlement will be supported and sustained through rehabilitation and reconstruction, of which the clearance of unexploded ordnance may form a part.

Aircraft Scrambles

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on how many occasions and in what circumstances planes have been scrambled to deal with perceived emergencies at nuclear or other installations since 11 September. [13720]

Mr. Ingram: Aircraft have been scrambled once to deal with perceived emergencies at nuclear or other installations since 11 September 2001. On 27 October two F3 Tornado aircraft conducted air policing in the vicinity of Sellafield in response to what proved to be a hoax threat telephone call to civilian police.

No-fly Zones

Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many instances there have been in each year since 1991 of military aircraft accidentally breaching no-fly zones over (a) nuclear power plants, (b) nuclear reprocessing plants and (c) military nuclear plants. [14261]

Mr. Ingram: I will write to my hon. Friend and a copy of my letter will be placed in the Library of the House.

Nuclear Installations (Security)

Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what representations his Department has received in respect of the security of nuclear installations since 11 September. [14684]

Mr. Ingram: The security of nuclear installations is a matter for the Department of Trade and Industry. We are in close contact with the DTI and other Government Departments concerning any contribution the armed forces could make in this area, in response to the events of 11 September.

Exercise Saif Sareea 2

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the progress of Exercise Saif Sareea 2 in Oman; and how successful it has been in developing the United Kingdom's Joint Rapid Reaction Force. [13512]

Mr. Ingram: The exercise activity of Exercise Saif Sareea 2 ended on 29 October and the recovery of our forces and their equipment is under way.

The objectives of the exercise were to deploy and sustain a major joint force across strategic distances, and conduct realistic coalition war fighting training in a testing desert environment. As such it was a major test of some of the equipment and personnel that are part of the Joint Rapid Reaction Force.

It will take some weeks to analyse all the results of the exercise and the lessons identified. But it is already clear that the exercise did indeed provide very valuable training and many very useful lessons have already been identified. Overall, our initial judgment is that the exercise has met its aims most successfully. It has demonstrated the ability of the United Kingdom to project forces over a strategic distance, and in doing so reaffirmed UK commitment to the stability and security of the middle east region at an important time.

Chinook Helicopters

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many spare gearboxes for Chinook helicopters are kept in stock; and where the Chinook gearboxes are supplied from. [14352]

Mr. Ingram: There were 30 serviceable gearboxes for Chinook helicopters in stock as at 9 November 2001. These gearboxes were supplied by Boeing.

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Chinook helicopters (a) are in operation, (b) were deployed in Exercise Saif Sareea 2 and (c) are grounded because of a shortage of spare parts. [14630]

Mr. Ingram: As at 9 November, 27 Chinook helicopters were in operation and four were deployed on Exercise Saif Sareea 2. No Chinook helicopters were grounded because of a shortage of spares but a total of 13 aircraft were undergoing scheduled maintenance, repair or modification.

Apache Helicopters

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Apache helicopters there are in the United Kingdom; and how many he plans to buy. [14381]

Dr. Moonie: The Ministry of Defence is contracted to purchase a total of 67 Apache aircraft. Currently we own 17, which are based in the United Kingdom.

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Apache operating manuals there are in the UK; if Apache operating manuals may be consulted by non-military personnel in the UK; and if DERA personnel are authorised to use Apache operating manuals. [14351]

Dr. Moonie: The Apache operating manuals are all computer-based Interactive Electronic Technical Publications (IETPs), which may be loaded onto any computer with the appropriate current user licence. The Ministry of Defence has purchased in the region of 465 laptop computers to receive the software.

Within the Joint Helicopter Command (JHC), both military and non-military personnel are currently authorised to consult the Apache IETPs. The non-military personnel are either civil servants or employees of Westland Helicopters Ltd. (WHL), who are assembling the aircraft under licence from Boeing.

Prior to the vesting of part of the former DERA as QinetiQ plc on 1 July 2001, DERA personnel at the Aircraft Testing and Evaluation (AT&E) facility Boscombe Down, as part of MOD, had access to the Apache operation manuals. However, when these staff transferred to QinetiQ, they were temporarily unable to have access to such proprietary information pending the amendment of WHL's licence with Boeing. The licence amendment was submitted in July and US State Department approval was given on 1 October 2001. Once this approval is implemented, QinetiQ personnel will again be authorised to use the manuals, in support of MOD work.

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if DERA personnel had access to the Apache Operating Manual before DERA was privatised; and if he will make a statement on the changes that have occurred in DERA's security classification since privatisation, with special reference to co-operation with the United States of America. [14354]

Dr. Moonie: Prior to the vesting of part of the former DERA as QinetiQ plc on 1 July 2001, DERA personnel at the Aircraft Test and Evaluation facility Boscombe Down, as part of the Ministry of Defence, had access to the Apache operating manuals and other proprietary information.

QinetiQ's security arrangements are in line with those of other defence contractors, who carry out work on sensitive contracts for MOD, other Government Departments and international collaborative partners, including the United States of America.

Eurofighter

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what British involvement there is in the manufacture of the cockpit frame for Eurofighter; what proportion of the parts of the Eurofighter cockpit are British made; which overseas countries are supplying components to the Eurofighter cockpit frame; which other parts of Eurofighter will be British made, and if he will make a statement. [14353]

Dr. Moonie: The front fuselage of the Eurofighter aircraft, which includes the cockpit frames, is manufactured by BAE Systems Warton as part of the UK's agreed overall aircraft programme work-share of approximately 36 per cent. Eurofighter cockpit equipments are manufactured by various consortia, comprising companies from the four Eurofighter Partner Companies from UK, Germany, Italy and Spain. Work is shared as far as practicable in line with the overall programme work-share. Other parts that are British-made are the front canards, right wing leading edge slats and trailing edge flaps, various avionic equipment and a significant number of major engine parts.

Royal Naval Reserve

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Royal Naval Reserve personnel are serving on operations. [14625]

Dr. Moonie: Twenty RNR personnel have volunteered to be called-out to serve on current operations. This figure excludes naval service reserves engaged on other duties in support of the regular armed forces—eg those serving on full-time reserve service teams in a wide variety of appointments.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Departmental Promotions

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much her Department spent on information literature, advertising and campaign material in the financial years (a) 1995–96, (b) 1996–97, (c) 1997–98, (d) 1998–99, (e) 1999–2000 and (f) 2000–01; and if she will make a statement. [12275]

Dr. Howells: The Department's spending on information literature for the period 1996–97 to 2000–01 is as set out. Figures for 1995–96 are not available in the form requested.

Year	£
1996–97	501,366
1997–98	338,761
1998–99	288,100
1999–2000	448,238
2000–01	448,140

No advertising and campaign material was produced during this period.

Youth Hostels Association

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent representations she has received concerning the financial situation of the Youth Hostels Association; and if she will make a statement. [12148]

Dr. Howells: We have received over 60 representations on the financial situation of the Youth Hostels Association for England and Wales (YHA). On 30 October 2001 I had a productive meeting with representatives of the YHA to discuss their difficulties and possible sources of help. The Government are pursuing several practical options to assist the YHA. We will also respond shortly to the recommendations in the report of the Rural Task Force, "Tackling the Impact of Foot and Mouth Disease on the Rural Economy" published on 18 October 2001.

Royal Palaces

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport, pursuant to her answer of 25 October 2001, Official Report, column 355W, on the occupation of flats in the royal palaces, if she will list the residents. [11798]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 1 November 2001]: The list of persons who occupy residences in the Occupied Royal Palaces other than members of the Royal Family at 31 December 2000 is as follows:

(i) Private Secretaries and Officials in the Queen's Household: 33

(ii) Private Secretaries and Officials in other Households: 6

(iii) Domestic staff in the Queen's Household: 29

(iv) Domestic Staff in other Households: 11

(v) Stables staff looking after the Civil List carriages and carriage horses: 19

(vi) The Queen's private staff and staff who work on the Royal Farms at Windsor: 9

(vii) Chauffeurs in the Queen's Household: 4

(viii) Chauffeurs in other Households: 4

(ix) Staff in the Queen's Household responsible for the maintenance of the Occupied Palaces Estate (including the Director of Property Services): 18

(x) Gardeners in the Queen's Household: 4

(xi) Gatekeepers and security staff: 6

(xii) Firepatrolmen in the Queen's Household: 4

(xiii) Craftsmen and porters in the Queen's Household: 19

(xiv) Royal Collection staff: 4

(xv) Crown Estate gardeners: 2

(xvi) Military Knights at Windsor Castle (Pensioners): 13

(xvii) Pensioners: 43

(xviii) Commercial: 16

Total: 244.

The total of (i) and (ii) is 39 and the list of posts by job title is as follows:

Private Secretaries and Officials in the Queen's Household provided with residential accommodation (i)

1. Assistant Private Secretary to the Queen
2. Keeper of the Privy Purse
3. Comptroller, Lord Chamberlain's Office
4. Crown Equerry
5. Director of the Royal Collection
6. Mistress of the Robes
7. Marshal of the Diplomatic Corps
8. Governor and Constable of Windsor Castle
9. Deputy Treasurer to the Queen
10. Deputy Master of the Household
11. Surveyor of the Queen's Pictures
12. Royal Librarian
13. Equerry in Waiting to the Queen
14. Sub-Dean Chapel Royal
15. Superintendent, Royal Mews
16. Superintendent, Windsor Castle
17. Secretary, Lord Chamberlain's Office
18. Chief Clerk, Master of the Household's Department
19. Chief Correspondence Clerk
20. Deputy Superintendent, Royal Mews
21. Administrator, Royal Collection
22. Superintendent of St. James's Palace State Apartments
23. Deputy Chief Clerk, Royal Mews
24. Assistant Curator, Royal library
25. Archivist, Royal Archives
26. Registrar, Royal Archives
27. Deputy Registrar, Royal Archives
28. Assistant Registrar, Royal Archives
29. Secretary to the Communications Secretary
30. Exhibitions and Maintenance Conservator, Royal library
31. Armourer, Royal Collection
32. Messenger of the Yeoman of the Guard
33. Serjeant of the Vestry, Chapel Royal

Private Secretaries and Officials in Other Royal Households provided with Residential Accommodation (ii)

34. Private Secretary to Queen Elizabeth The Queen Mother
35. Private Secretary to the Duke of Edinburgh
36. Equerry in Waiting to the Duke of Edinburgh
37. Private Secretary to the Prince of Wales
38. Private Secretary to the Duke of York
39. Private Secretary to the Duke of Gloucester.

Television

Mr. Allan: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what action her Department is taking to promote digital television to consumers who do not wish to take out a pay TV subscription. [12339]

Dr. Howells: On 12 October, the Government published a draft Digital TV Action Plan which sets out the issues on which action needs to be taken to enable and encourage take up of digital television. An essential element of the Plan will be the need to raise the awareness and knowledge of consumers including those who want to receive only free-to-view channels.

Creative Partnerships (Disadvantaged Areas)

Mr. Challen: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when the Government will fulfil its commitment to establish creative partnerships linking schools with arts organisations in disadvantaged areas. [13449]

Dr. Howells: The formal launch of creative partnerships will take place as planned in April 2002, when the funds set aside for this initiative start to flow.

The 16 pilot areas for creative partnerships were announced in February 2002. Since then, Peter Jenkinson, the former Director of the New Art Gallery, Walsall, has taken up the post of National Director of Creative Partnerships, and preparations in the pilot areas are now well under way.

BBC Chairman (Ethnic Minority Candidates)

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many black and Asian people were shortlisted for the post of Chairman of the BBC. [13610]

Dr. Howells: In the interests of confidentiality, it is not our policy to release information about individual shortlists.

Seaside Towns

Geraldine Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps she is taking to implement the Resorts Taskforce report on seaside towns, "Sea Changes". [13739]

Dr. Howells: The Government welcomed the English Tourism Council's (ETC) report, "Sea Changes", which was produced in the light of advice from the ETC's Resorts Task Force. The report makes 20 recommendations, which would involve various bodies at a national, regional and local level, as well as the industry itself. This Department has asked the ETC to consider how that report can best be implemented and to what timescale. To that end the ETC is working closely with the British Resorts Association and relevant tourism officers.

Geraldine Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will consider the (a) establishment and (b) funding of a Seaside Regeneration Trust modelled on the Coalfields Regeneration Trust. [13740]

Dr. Howells: The English Tourism Council's report, "Sea Changes", published last February, makes a number of recommendations about how to approach regeneration that could be of use to resort towns.

The Government consider that the prime responsibility for resort regeneration, which often has some tourism focus, lies with those who administer individual resorts—working with local and regional partners. There is a variety of funding and organisational mechanisms now in place to help achieve this, for instance, Neighbourhood Renewal Strategies (for those eligible) and Local Strategic Partnerships. We encourage local authorities to make use of these mechanisms. However, while acknowledging the level of deprivation that has developed in some of our resorts over the years, we do not consider it directly comparable to the sudden and severe impact of pit closures on mining communities, which is what justified setting up the Coalfields Regeneration Trust.

Geraldine Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans she has to improve the infrastructure of British seaside resorts. [13742]

Dr. Howells: The Government believe that the principal responsibility for supporting the infrastructure of British seaside resorts lies with local government, working with other interested parties in the light of a clearly enunciated vision and strategy for tourism and other economic activity. It is also particularly important that aspects of planning and transport, for instance, as well as any overall plan for regeneration, dovetail with wider regional plans which are the responsibility of regional development agencies in England. In Scotland and Wales the infrastructure of seaside resorts is a matter for the relevant Minister in each devolved administration.

New Opportunities Fund

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will make a statement on the number of beneficiaries in the Buckingham constituency from the new opportunities fund. [14010]

Mr. Caborn: To date there have been six beneficiaries in the Buckingham constituency. A list of these awards is set out in the following table.

Total number of New Opportunities Fund awards made to the Buckingham constituency—12 November 2001

Distributing body/recipient	Project title/Desc. Long	Award date	Award amount (£)
New Opportunities Fund
Buckingham After School Teens Club	The grant would be used to extend the group's existing provision (for 5 to 12-year-olds) by providing a total of 60 after school and holiday child care places catering for 11 to 14-year-olds. The schools served would be Buckingham School and Royal Latin School	12 July 1999	19,071
Southcourt and Walton Court Community Project	The applicant is a community project with charitable status in Aylesbury. It is managed by committee and has operated for eight years providing a range of child care as well as advice and activities for adults. It employs four part-time staff	20 October 1999	6,600
Drayton Parslow Playgroup	The grant would be used to provide an extra 24 places at the after-school club for children aged 3 to 4-years-old. The project would be situated in Drayton Parslow Buckinghamshire. School served would be Drayton Parslow County First School	10 December 1999	1,179
Southcourt and Walton Court Community Project	The grant would be used to provide three new breakfast clubs in the Aylesbury area which would create 128 places in total for children between the ages of 4–11 years. The places would benefit children attending three local schools	16 June 2000	20,020
Buckingham After School Club—Winslow	The grant would be used to create 34 after school places for children aged 5 to 11-years-old in Buckingham. School served would be Winslow Combined School, a contribution to the cost of employing a play leader and four play assistants	25 October 2000	18,001
Buckingham Secondary School	Our of School Hours Learning Programme	7 November 2000	42,654
Total value of NOF awards			107,525

Communications White Paper

Mr. Bryant: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when she will publish the Government's response to the Culture, Media and Sport Select Committee's report on the Communications White Paper. [15012]

Tessa Jowell: I have today published the Government's response to the Culture, Media and Sport Select Committee's report.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Holocaust Memorial Day

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what representations he has made to the BBC concerning the televising of Holocaust Memorial Day 2002; and if he will make a statement. [14721]

Angela Eagle: Following their successful collaboration with the Home Office in producing and televising the national ceremony to mark the first United Kingdom Holocaust Memorial Day on 27 January, the BBC have developed plans for covering Holocaust Memorial Day in the future. These will culminate in a major live televised ceremonial event on 27 January 2005, the 60th anniversary of the Liberation of Auschwitz. My officials will take up the BBC's invitation to discuss with them their strategy for covering Holocaust Memorial Day over the next four years, and to include representatives from the Home Office-led strategic group planning Holocaust Memorial Day.

Dr. Evan Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what representations he has received regarding the BBC televising the Holocaust Memorial Day national event; and if he will make a statement. [14501]

Angela Eagle: All those organisations involved in helping the Home Office plan the national event on Holocaust Memorial Day on 27 January 2002 have expressed their disappointment that the BBC have decided to televise the national event every five years only, the next time on 27 January 2005 the 60th anniversary of the Liberation of Auschwitz.

However, the BBC have made an unequivocal commitment to mark Holocaust Memorial Day each year in a range of appropriate ways. They have invited Home Office officials and those organisations involved in planning Holocaust Memorial Day to discuss their strategy for the next four years with them. Their proposed strategy contains a differing mix of documentary, drama, current affairs, children's programming and news coverage each year leading to a major live ceremonial event for 2005.

In January 2002 the BBC have a major original film drama "Conspiracy", starring Kenneth Brannagh, about Reinhard Heydrich and the Wannsee Conference; their television religious strands "The Heaven and Earth Show" and "Songs of Praise" plan to feature Holocaust related material in their programmes on 27 January; the BBC are looking at a special edition of their BBC 2 current affairs programme "Correspondent" during the Holocaust Memorial weekend and it is likely that various programmes from Children's BBC will take up the theme too.

The BBC also intend to cover the national event next 27 January on their news bulletins on BBC 1 and 2 and on News 24, and likely on radio too.

Dr. Evan Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the impact that the televised commemoration of Holocaust Memorial Day had on the understanding of the general public of the issues raised. [14500]

Angela Eagle: There was an estimated audience of 1.2 million for the ceremony televised live on 27 January 2001 which got one of the highest quality ratings for a TV programme. Many people said they found the event both moving and challenging. In addition, many others will have become aware of the purpose of Holocaust Memorial Day through the many local activities around the country, particularly in schools, to mark the day.

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement concerning the local events to be held for Holocaust Memorial Day 2002. [14202]

Angela Eagle: We anticipate there will again be a wide range of local activities around the country to mark Holocaust Memorial Day. Further guidance has been produced to help local authorities and community groups to plan their events; and new material for use in schools has also been produced. In each case the guidance has drawn on good practice from this year and suggestions for improvement identified through surveys of local authorities and schools.

Prisons (Filming)

Mr. Win Griffiths: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many requests have been made in the last two years to visit and film in (a) prisons and (b) institutions for young offenders and other places where young people are in custody; and what the response to the requests was. [13940]

Beverley Hughes: These figures are not collated centrally, and there is no requirement to do so.

The Prison Service receives many hundreds of requests per year from international, national and regional TV companies to film in prisons and Young Offender Institutions for a variety of news broadcasts, dramas and documentary programmes.

Interdepartmental Ministerial Group

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the work of the interdepartmental ministerial group established following disturbances in Bradford, Burnley and Oldham earlier this year; and if he intends to publish the reports of the group. [13895]

Mr. Denham: The ministerial group on Public Order and Community Cohesion expects to complete its work in December. It is intended to publish its report in due course.

Police Pensions

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of policing expenditure in (a) 1992, (b) 1997 and (c) the last year for which figures are available was spent on police pensions; and if he will make a statement. [13894]

Mr. Denham: The figures requested are given in the table.

In recognition of the increased burden of paying police pensions, the proportion of revenue funding allocated to police authorities on the basis of pensions commitments has been increased from 12.9 per cent. in 1997–98 to 14.5 per cent. since 1999–2000. It will remain at this level in 2002–03.

Year	Net pensions expenditure (£)	Net police expenditure (£)	Proportion of police net expenditure spent on pensions (Percentage)
1992–93	456,479	5,621,763	8.1
1997–98	863,131	6,870,093	12.6
2000–01	1,029,454	7,739,163	13.3

Source:
Chartered Institute of Public Finance and Accountancy Police Statistics
(Estimates for 2000–01)

Distraction Burglary Strategy

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list those projects which have been funded by his Department as part of his distraction burglary strategy; what the amounts involved are; and what the time scale is of the funding. [14362]

Mr. Denham: The work of the distraction burglary Taskforce and the two staff seconded for the duration from the police and local government sectors, is being funded through two means: support from utility companies such as the water industry, the Electricity Association, British Gas and British Telecom to the sum of £270,000. The second element is being met through the Crime Reduction Programme to the sum of £1 million.

In addition to the Taskforce, the Government are also separately supporting three police-led initiatives. These are located in Leeds, Sheffield and Alfreton Derbyshire, to the sum of £1,009,765.

These combined elements make up my Department's strategy to tackle distraction burglary. The elements, amounts and timescale for completion are:

	Timescale	Value
Completion of the Taskforce action plan	By end March 2000 with research element completed by June 2002	£1 million
Leeds Distraction Burglary Initiative	By 2003	£554,000
Sheffield Distraction Burglary Initiative	By March 2002	£288,000
Derbyshire Database project	By March 2002	£168,000

Sexual Abuse

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has to introduce legislation to strengthen the law in relation to protecting children and vulnerable people from sexual abuse; and if he will make a statement. [13893]

Mr. Denham [holding answer 12 November 2001]: When the Government set up the Sex Offences Review in January 1999, its terms of reference included "to provide coherent clear sex offences which protect individuals, especially children and the more vulnerable, from abuse and exploitation".

We are committed to introducing strengthened legislation on sex offences, and will announce our conclusions once we have completed our analysis of the responses to the consultation paper 'Setting the Boundaries'.

Category A Prisoners

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) men and (b) women were classified as category A prisoners in prisons in England and Wales on 1 November [13926]

Beverley Hughes: On 1 November 2001, there were 961 men and four women classified as category A prisoners in prisons in England and Wales.

Community Court Order Warrants

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if warrants for breach of a community court order are systematically withdrawn after 12 months have elapsed; and if he will make a statement. [13831]

Mr. Denham [holding answer 9 November 2001]: All cases are considered on their merits and no central policy directions have been given to the National Probation Service, on the period after which a warrant should be returned to the courts for consideration of withdrawal. I am aware that practice does differ across the country and the National Probation Service is currently considering whether further advice should be given in these circumstances.

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many warrants for the breach of a community court order have been withdrawn since 1 January; and if he will make a statement. [13832]

Mr. Denham [holding answer 9 November 2001]: This information is not available centrally.

Bedfordshire Police

Mr. Sayeed: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the effect of salary differences and the free rail travel offer to those officers within a 70-mile radius of Charing Cross station on the number of police officers transferring from Bedfordshire Police to the Metropolitan police. [13438]

Mr. Denham: Officers in the Metropolitan police qualify for a London allowance and London weighting in addition to their basic pay. For officers who were appointed before 1 September 1994 and who receive a housing emolument, the London allowance is worth £1,011 a year. From 1 July 2000, officers who were appointed on or after 1 September 1994 and who are not in receipt of a housing emolument receive a London allowance of £4,338 a year. London weighting was increased to £1,773 a year for all Metropolitan police officers from 1 July this year. In addition, officers in the Metropolitan police have free rail travel to and from work within a 70-mile radius of Charing Cross Station.

From 1 April 2001, officers in Bedfordshire appointed on or after 1 September 1994 who are not in receipt of a housing allowance receive an allowance of £1,000 a year in addition to basic pay.

The increase in the London allowance and the new allowance for officers in Bedfordshire were approved by the then Home Secretary, my right hon. Friend the Member for Blackburn (Mr. Straw), following agreements in the Police Negotiating Board (PNB). PNB is the statutory negotiating body for police pay and conditions which makes recommendations to the Secretary of State. The Secretary of State approved the new allowances in recognition of the recruitment and retention difficulties associated with the higher cost of living in London and Bedfordshire.

Since 1 July 2000, 12 officers have transferred from the Bedfordshire police to the Metropolitan police and two have moved from the Metropolitan police to Bedfordshire police. I will keep the position under review.

Deportations

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been deported from the United Kingdom since 1 January. [13633]

Angela Eagle: I regret that this information is not available.

The only information currently available about the number of people removed in the current year relates to the number of asylum seekers removed in the period January-June. There were 4,660 such removals. Of this number, 2,805 were on-entry removals (persons refused entry to the United Kingdom and subsequently removed) and 2,570 were after-entry removals. It is not possible to say how many of those who were the subject of deportation action were deported, and how many left before a deportation order was actually signed.

Corresponding information on the number of non-asylum removals for the period is not currently available as these data are yet to be quality assured.

Fireworks

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many convictions there were against persons who have injured others with fireworks in each of the last five years in (a) Scotland and (b) the UK; [13163]

(2) how many prosecutions have been brought against persons who are alleged to have damaged property with fireworks in each of the last five years in (a) Scotland and (b) the UK; [13189]

(3) how many convictions have been secured against those prosecuted for sales of fireworks to underage children in each of the last five years in (a) Scotland and (b) the United Kingdom; [13186]

(4) how many prosecutions have been brought against suppliers of fireworks for sales to underage children in each of the last five years in (a) Scotland and (b) the United Kingdom; [13185]

(5) how many convictions have been secured against persons who have damaged property with fireworks in each of the last five years in (a) Scotland and (b) the UK; [13190]

(6) how many prosecutions have been brought against persons who have injured others with fireworks in each of the last five years in (a) Scotland and (b) the United Kingdom. [13187]

Mr. Denham: Information held centrally on the Home Office Court Proceedings Database, relating to England and Wales, does not identify separately the offence of "selling gunpowder to children" under s31 of the Explosives Act 1875, from other summary offences under the Explosives Acts.

Neither does it enable a distinction to be made between prosecutions and convictions for offences connected with personal injury or damage to property with fireworks, as the circumstances of violent and property offences are not collected.

Figures for Scotland and Northern Ireland are matters for the Scottish Parliament and the Northern Ireland Assembly respectively.

Elderly Prisoners

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many frail elderly (a) men and (b) women at present are serving prison sentences in England and Wales. [13447]

Beverley Hughes: The numbers of prisoners aged 60 and over currently serving a prison sentence as at 30 September 2001 are listed in the table. Information about the state of their health is not collected centrally.

	Male	Female
60–69	1,017	3
70–74	163	4
75+	61	0
Total	1,241	7

Disabled Prisoners

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) men and (b) women serving prison sentences in England and Wales are confined to a wheelchair. [13448]

Beverley Hughes: This information is not collected centrally.

Prison Construction

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the prisons being constructed in England and Wales, and the date when these prisons are expected to come into use. [13445]

Beverley Hughes: There are no prisons under construction in England and Wales at present. Two prisons, to be built at Ashford, Middlesex and Peterborough, are under procurement. Construction is planned to start in 2002. The prison at Ashford is due to open in July 2003 and the prison at Peterborough in April 2004.

Al-Muhajiroun

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will investigate (1) the links between (a) Medina Ltd, TransGlobal Security International, Mark Yates and Paul Field and (b) Sakina Security Services Ltd, Al-Muhajiroun, and Omar Bakri Mohammed; and if he will make a statement; [13626]

(2) the activities of TransGlobal Security International; and if he will make a statement; [13625]

(3) the links between Anil Shah and Sakina Security Services; and if he will make a statement. [13627]

Mr. Denham: I have been in close touch with the relevant enforcement units, following their work in monitoring and evaluating any information that might be used in connection with any prosecution. The investigation of any alleged criminal offences is of course entirely a matter for the police. Any information that my hon. Friend is aware of which might assist the police in their investigations should be supplied to my Department immediately.

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will investigate the alleged terrorist training camps (a) in the north of Scotland and (b) at Yetgoch in Hebron, Wales; and if he will make a statement. [13628]

Mr. Denham: I am aware of the allegations of terrorist training camps and the particular concerns of my hon. Friend in relation to the alleged terrorist training camps in Scotland and Wales. I understand that the police have made inquiries: they have advised me that there is no evidence to show that any criminal offences have been committed at either location.

It is of course an offence under section 54 (1) and (2) of the Terrorism Act 2000 to provide instruction or training or to receive instruction or training in the making or use of firearms, explosives, or chemical, biological or nuclear weapons. In addition, under subsection (3)(b), a person commits an offence if he invites another to receive instruction or training and the receipt would constitute an offence under subsection (2) but for the fact that it is to take place outside the United Kingdom. Any concrete and verifiable evidence of such activities will be dealt with immediately.

Immigration Status

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, pursuant to his answer of 24 October 2001, Official Report, column 285W, when he formed his policy of not answering questions on immigration matters. [13521]

Angela Eagle: It has been long-standing Government policy not to disclose details of a person's immigration status to a third party since this is regarded as confidential information.

Vivisection

Vera Baird: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will establish a royal commission into vivisection. [13672]

Angela Eagle: The Government have not ruled out a royal commission, but strongly believe that resources can best be used to make immediate improvements to the operation of the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 and to promote the fullest application of the 3Rs—the replacement of the use of animals with alternative methods; the reduction of the numbers of animals used; and the refinement of the procedures to minimise pain, suffering, distress or lasting harm.

In this context, the Animal Procedures Committee issued a public consultation paper in December 2000 as part of its review of the cost-benefit assessment of applications for authority to conduct scientific research using animals. As part of this work, the Committee plans to produce an authoritative statement on the validity of animal experiments. I understand that the Committee hopes to present its report in the first half of 2002.

The House of Lords have established a Select Committee on the validity of the use of animals in scientific procedures and its work is under way.

Metropolitan Police (Funding)

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much additional funding has been made available to the Metropolitan Police Authority to finance the additional security duties of the Metropolitan police in the capital following events of 11 September. [12413]

Mr. Denham [holding answer 5 November 2001]: I greatly appreciate the immediate response made by the Metropolitan Police Authority and Service after the terrorist attack in the United States of America on 11 September.

I recognise that establishing and maintaining measures to counter increased risks to security has given rise to additional costs. I am considering with the Metropolitan police the financial implications.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

"Your Guide"

Mr. Borrow: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will make a statement on the future funding of the "Your Guide" pilot scheme. [13651]

Mr. Alexander: A total of £35 million over three years has been set aside to pilot the concept of Post Offices as Government General Practitioners. Up to £25 million of this has been made available to cover the cost of the "Your Guide" pilot currently running in Leicestershire and Rutland. Future funding decisions will depend on the outcome of the pilot.

Anthrax (Mail Services)

Mr. Borrow: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what discussions she has had with the Post Office regulator on the impact of anthrax scares on the performance of the Royal Mail. [13650]

Mr. Alexander: My officials are in regular contact with the Postal Services Commission. The Commission has advised me that it is too early to assess the impact of anthrax scares on the performance of the Royal Mail. The situation is being kept under review by the Commission, Consignia and the Consumer Council for Postal Services.

Geraldine Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment she has made of the impact of anthrax scares on Consignia's quality of service targets. [13731]

Mr. Alexander: Quality of services targets are a matter for Consignia and the Postal Services Commission. The Commission has advised me that it is too early to assess the impact of anthrax scares on Consignia's quality of service targets. The situation is being kept under review by Consignia, the Commission and the Consumer Council for Postal Services.

Consignia

Geraldine Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what volume of mail was handled by Consignia and its predecessor in (a) 1996, (b) 1997, (c) 1998, (d) 1999 and (e) 2000. [13744]

Mr. Alexander: This is an operational issue for Consignia.

The company has provided the following information, which can be obtained in its report and accounts.

Million

	Total inland letters (first and second class)[1]	International letters (number of letters posted)[2]
1996–97	16,251	785
1997–98	17,423	815
1998–99	17,934	830
1999–2000	18,738	839
2000–01	19,092	772

[1] The basis of calculation for inland letter volumes has been changed for 2000–01. Previous years' figures have been restated to reflect this change.

[2] Items are outbound from the UK only. For 2000–01 the basis of calculation for international letter volumes has been changed. Previous years' figures have been restated to reflect this change.

Nuisance Calls

Kevin Brennan: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what consultation she has had with (a) Oftel, (b) the Information Commissioner's Office, (c) BT's nuisance calls bureau, (d) NTL's nuisance calls bureau and (e) the Direct Marketing Association about providing telephone users with protection from silent calls by power diallers; and if she will make a statement. [13176]

Mr. Alexander: Oftel and the Information Commissioner's Office both have responsibilities for the consumer protection safeguards that are in place relating to silent calls by power diallers. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry does not have an enforcement role in this area. However, DTI officials are in regular contact with Oftel, the ICO, and the DMA over policy in this area, and recently participated in a working group meeting set up by the DMA to tackle the problems caused by power dialling systems. My officials have consulted with Oftel, the Information Commissioner's Office and the Direct Marketing Association, together with representatives from operators' nuisance call bureaux, to ensure that consumers continue to benefit from the right level of protection.

Retail Petrol Market

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will list by (a) grade and (b) number the officials employed in her Department monitoring the retail petrol market in Scotland. [12690]

Mr. Wilson [holding answer 8 November 2001]: A number of my officials have responsibility for monitoring energy markets generally, including the petrol retail market throughout the United Kingdom.

Post Office

Mr. Chaytor: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many (a) thefts and (b) unexplained losses of (i) letters and (ii) parcels were recorded by the Post Office and how much compensation was paid by the Post Office in each case in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [12765]

Mr. Alexander [holding answer 12 November 2001]: This is an operational issue for Consignia.

I understand that Consignia is currently working with Postwatch on a system for measuring the loss and theft of mail and parcels.

Consignia holds figures on the number of complaints made with regards to alleged loss and theft for the previous two financial years.

Complaints on loss	2000–01	1999–2000
Letters	578,091	557,984
UK standard retail parcels	26,508	25,295
International standard retail parcels	18,510	16,031

Compensation paid (£k)	2000–01	1999–2000
Letters	6,134	5,192
UK standard retail parcels	234	n/a

Caravan Parks

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will publish a regulatory impact assessment of the effect on holiday caravan parks of the proposal by Ofgem to change the arrangements under which caravan parks can pass on electricity charges to their customers. [R] [12764]

Mr. Wilson: This is a matter for Ofgem. I understand that they have issued two consultation documents on this subject and are presently seeking further views from interested parties prior to issuing their final proposals.

End of Vehicle Life Directive

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what her policy is on the application of the End of Vehicle Life Directive to manufacturers whose market share has grown significantly since the introduction of those vehicles which will be affected by the Directive after its introduction. [12742]

Mr. Wilson: No decision has yet been taken on the precise method of transposing and implementing the options in the End of Life Vehicles Directive. The period for responding to the DTI Consultation Paper on options closed on 2 November, and responses are now being assessed. Consideration is being given to the potential impacts on all vehicle manufacturers.

Renewable Energy

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what plans she has to increase investment in renewable energy. [13209]

Mr. Wilson: The Government have put in place a robust policy to increase investment in the development of renewable energy. The single most important mechanism, the new Renewables Obligation (RO) to be introduced next year and lasting right through until 2027, will drive forward investment in renewables. The RO is expected to create long-term support for renewables, worth over £1 billion per year, by 2010. The introduction of the Obligation will be underpinned by direct Government funding for renewables worth over £260 million between 2001 and 2004. This includes the Government's current sustainable energy research and development programme, worth £55.5 million over the next three years.

Other components to this strategy, which will increase investment in the renewable energy sector, include:

exemption of renewables from Climate Change Levy (CCL) payments. This is expected to lead to greater demand for renewable electricity and increased investment;

the Non-Fossil Fuel Obligation (NFFO) Orders supported many renewable energy projects through the previous Non-Fossil Fuel Obligation. We have arranged that existing NFFO contracts will be honoured. We have also announced a proposal for a NFFO locational flexibility Order. Locational flexibility will be available for all NFFO 3, 4 and 5 projects that have not been commissioned, other than mixed waste incineration projects. This Order will allow projects not already built, to identify more appropriate locations, so that they can overcome any problems in securing planning permission. These initiatives are expected to bring forward investment in this sector in the near future;

the Government have also initiated regional assessments throughout all regions of the UK. The majority of these studies have been completed and have identified each region's capacity to generate electricity from renewable sources. Once all the assessments are completed, it is expected that specific regional targets will be adopted across the UK. These targets are expected to attract investment in the resources available in these regions.

Government policy is bringing about a much more positive approach to supporting renewable energy projects. Taking all these measures together, the Government believe the industry is well placed to attract and retain a significant level of investment.

Mr. Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what plans she has to increase the target of energy generated from green sources. [10649]

Mr. Wilson [holding answer 30 October 2001]: The Department of Trade and Industry attaches great importance to green forms of energy and has set ambitious targets. The new Renewables Obligation as well as Scottish R. O. will create a long-term market for renewables which will be worth over £1 billion per year by 2010. The Obligation will be the main mechanism by which we will meet our renewables targets and will be underpinned by direct Government funding worth over £260 million between 2001 and 2004. This will include an extensive capital grants programme for the early development of offshore wind and energy crops, the initial stage of a major photovoltaics demonstration programme and a boost for research and development.

Our target is that by 2010, just over 10 per cent. of electricity sales by licensed suppliers will come from sources eligible for the Renewables Obligation. As set out in our recent statutory consultation document, we have proposed that the level of Obligation will increase from year to year as follows.

Period	Estimated sales by licensed suppliers in GB TWh	Total obligation (GB) TWh	Total obligation as percentage of sales (GB) Percentage
2002–03	313.6	9.4	3.0
2003–04	316.2	13.5	4.3
2004–05	318.7	15.6	4.9
2005–06	320.6	17.7	5.5
2006–07	321.4	21.5	6.7
2007–08	322.2	25.4	7.9
2008–09	323.0	29.4	9.1
2009–10	323.8	31.5	9.7
2010–11	324.3	33.6	10.4

The Obligation will remain in place until 31 March 2027, although to date we have not made any proposals for increasing the target after 2010. This will, however, be reviewed throughout the lifetime of the Obligation in the light of available information on climate change. The target may increase after this time, and this would be effected through an amendment to the Renewables Obligation Order which we aim to put before the House later this year.

While this is a description of the current position the question of the contribution to be made by renewables is part of the PIU's Remit of Energy Policy. If it appears feasible to achieve even more ambitious targets on renewables, I will closely examine the means of doing so.

Financial Assistance (Chorley)

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what (a) financial investment and (b) other assistance the North-West regional development agency has put into Chorley in each of the last three years. [13747]

Alan Johnson: The North-West Development Agency advise that the total financial investment and assistance in Chorley since 1998–99 has been £175,591 broken down as follows:

1998–99: £71,309

1999–2000: £85,269

2000–01: £18,013.

Most of this investment has been through inherited Derelict Land Grant projects. The biggest sum invested in any single project during this period has been £56,000 in 1999–2000 for studies in relation to the Royal Ordnance Site. Of the £18,013 invested in 2000–01, £12,594 was invested in the New Farming Horizons programme.

Unsolicited E-mail

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will make a statement on the Government's position on the Telecoms Data Protection Directive (97/66/EC) in relation to unsolicited e-mail. [12380]

Mr. Alexander: There is on-going debate over the application of the current telecoms data protection directive (97/66/EC) to e-mail, and the Government welcome the European Commission's proposal to clarify the position under the new communications data protection directive which will replace it. The UK Government have argued that member states should be allowed to choose between opt-in and opt-out controls. This would allow an assessment of the situation in the light of working experience of both approaches.

Ministerial Visit (China)

Mr. Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will make a statement about the recent visit to China of the hon. Member for Cunninghame, North (Mr. Wilson). [10119]

Mr. Wilson [holding answer 30 October 2001]: My recent visit to China focused on promoting the UK aerospace and energy industries.

On aerospace, my agenda was to develop good bilateral relations with the Chinese aviation authorities and airlines—particularly in respect of commending the possible purchase of fifty Airbus narrow-body aircraft by China; promoting UK collaboration on developing a domestic Chinese regional jet and encouraging Chinese airlines to firm up outstanding options on the Airbus A340 large aircraft powered by Rolls-Royce engines. (As you will know, Airbus wings are made in the UK, as are Rolls-Royce engines).

As elsewhere, we have found that much of the aerospace business we have secured with China in the past has been dependent upon good, long-standing relations at Government level and with the airline and aerospace manufacturing industry.

China is the world's fastest growing aviation market and looks set to continue to grow rapidly over the next 20 years based on the anticipated expansion of the Chinese domestic economy. This will provide many new opportunities for the UK aerospace industry to benefit from both selling to China and entering into profitable industrial collaboration arrangements with the Chinese aerospace industry.

Current prospects in China remain buoyant, despite the aviation downturn in the West. Airbus has just announced that it is expected to deliver eight A318 aircraft to Air China by 2004 and no Chinese airline customers have postponed Airbus aircraft orders since Sept 11.

The opening up of China's vast western regions also offers enormous opportunities for UK companies to benefit in helping China develop its airport and energy infrastructure. During my visit I also encouraged the Chinese authorities to expand their use of UK companies in the development and upgrading of China's airports, building on the recent success by Ove Arup in winning the contract to design the new terminal building at Chongqing.

On the energy side, China's growing market for gas also offers good opportunities for UK companies. The Chinese Government have decided to develop a pipeline from the western region to the industrialised east. A number of major liquified natural gas (LNG) projects are also under way.

I addressed the Beijing Energy Forum, co-chaired by senior officials of the DTI and their Chinese counterparts. The establishment of the Forum was an important development, especially now that natural gas has been ear-marked as a major source of energy for China.

A newly established China-Britain Natural Gas Working Group will also strengthen links and help to identify opportunities in this area. The Working Group will facilitate the sharing of UK experience and help ensure that the development is both safe and environmentally acceptable. There are four key areas of collaboration—policy creation, gas supply, infrastructure and the utilisation of natural gas in China. The promotion of joint ventures to fill identified capability gaps in China will enable more activity between Chinese and UK businesses.

In Shanghai I launched a new brochure prepared by the British Consulate-General in Shanghai which catalogues current local opportunities for UK companies. The rate of growth in this dynamic region is awesome and the brochure outlines a number of major projects in which British companies could become involved. From my discussions with the Government and Shanghai city authorities it is clear that a higher level of British involvement would be welcomed. One of the major opportunities is presented by BP's involvement in the biggest-ever joint venture in China to build a petrochemicals complex at Caojing, on the outskirts of Shanghai. I held discussions with BP during my visit and asked them to encourage as much British involvement as possible in the supply chain.

Coal

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what quantity of coal was consumed in the UK in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available. [12755]

Mr. Wilson: The information requested is as follows:

	Total inland coal consumption in the UK Million tonnes
1991	107,513
1992	100,580
1993	86,757
1994	81,767
1995	76,942
1996	71,400
1997	63,080
1998	63,152
1999	55,720
2000	58,954

Source:
Digest of UK Energy Statistics 2001 Table 2.11

State Aid

Paddy Tipping: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will set out by (a) colliery and (b) company the amount of state aid made available in (a) 2000 and (b) 2001. [13513]

Mr. Wilson: The tables detail the payments made under the UK Coal Operating Aid Scheme, by colliery and by company, as at 8 November 2001. Payments have been made in respect of two tranches: Tranche 1 (17 April 2000 to 31 December 2000) and Tranche 2 (1 January 2001 to 31 December 2001). Payment dates refer to the tranche to which the payments relate rather than the date on which they were paid.

State aid by colliery for production in 2000 and 2001—as at 8 November 2001

£

	2000	2001
Aberpergwm Colliery	0	1,031,000
Betws Colliery	870,200	1,966,000
Blaentillery No. 2	112,800	217,000
Blenkinsopp Colliery	470,500	1,168,000
East Pit Extension	2,977,500	0
Eckington Colliery	88,200	286,000
Harworth Colliery	14,722,100	0
Hatfield Colliery	3,931,900	3,807,000
Hay Royds Colliery	78,900	264,000
H. J. Banks central mines	661,100	0
H. J. Banks north-east mines	703,200	0
Longannet Mine	19,652,800	21,525,000
Maltby Colliery	13,559,700	0
Rossington Colliery	3,207,200	0
Selby Complex	23,186,500	20,324,500
Tower Colliery	3,317,200	0

State aid by company for production in 2000 and 2001—as at 8 November 2001

£

	2000	2001
Anthracite Mining Limited	0	1,031,000
Betws Anthracite Limited	870,200	1,966,000
Blenkinsopp Colliery Ltd.	470,500	1,168,000
Celtic Energy Limited	2,977,500	0
Coalpower Ltd.	0	951,750
Ffynonau Duon Mines Ltd.	112,800	217,000
H. J. Banks & Co. Ltd.	1,364,300	0
Hatfield Coal Company Ltd.	3,931,900	2,855,250
J. Flack & Sons Ltd.	78,900	264,000
Mining (Scotland) Ltd.	19,652,800	21,525,000
Moorside Mining Co Ltd.	88,200	286,000
Tower Colliery Ltd.	3,317,200	0
UK Coal Plc	54,675,500	20,324,500

Road Fund Licences (Post Office Sales)

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many new contracts for the sale of road fund licences were made with sub-post offices in the last 12 months. [14025]

Mr. Alexander: I have been informed by Post Office Ltd. that when an office selling motor vehicle licences closes, this work is transferred to an alternative office, taking into account both customer demand and the geographical spread of the population. Post Office Ltd. keeps service availability under constant review to ensure that it is best meeting customer demand throughout the 4,000 post offices which offer motor vehicle licences.

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many sub-post offices which sold road fund licences closed in the last 12 months for which figures are available. [14024]

Mr. Alexander: I have been advised by Post Office Ltd. that closure figures of offices selling vehicle licences are not separately maintained. If such an office closes, Post Office Ltd. endeavours to transfer all products and services offered to a new location, thereby maintaining the total number of post offices selling motor vehicle licences.

Airline and Aerospace Industries (Assistance)

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what advice and assistance she is giving to the (a) airline and (b) aerospace industries in coping with the aftermath of 11 September; and if she will make a statement. [13713]

Mr. Wilson: Officials in the Department of Trade and Industry remain in close contact with the UK aviation industry in co-operation with the Department for Transport, Local Government and the Regions.

The Government moved quickly to underwrite, on a temporary basis, third party war risk insurance for UK airlines and service providers to the airline industry, an initiative which has subsequently been widely copied elsewhere. We are considering whether further aid should be paid to the UK airline industry, and will take guidelines issued recently by the European Commission on state aid fully into account in any decision.

The further effects on the aerospace manufacturing industry remain uncertain. The Government and the aerospace industry will continue to work together to ensure a successful future for the industry as the situation becomes clearer.

Regulations

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many regulations her Department has proposed to Parliament since June; what regulatory impact assessments have been made for those regulations her Department have implemented since June; and what plans her Department has to reduce the number of regulations affecting small businesses. [13631]

Ms Hewitt: The Department has proposed 36 regulations to Parliament since June. Of these regulations, more than two thirds were public telecommunications operator licences, amended or simplified regulations or preserved commercial electricity supply agreements.

Regulatory Impact Assessments (RIAs) have to be produced for all new regulations in which the costs and benefits have to be assessed, particularly for small firms. The Department's policy is to "think small first" and the Small Business Service has to be consulted on all RIAs to ensure that the impact on small firms is not disproportionate. The Department is drawing up a Regulatory Reform Action Plan that the Government will publish.

Developing Countries (International Trade)

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many (a) pledge cards and (b) representations she has received from members of the public regarding international trade with developing countries in the last 12 months. [14380]

Ms Hewitt: My Ministerial colleagues and I have received 64 letters from right hon. and hon. Members requesting responses to the pledge card campaign—"Pledge to the World's Poor"—which was focused on MPs.

My Department has separately received over 35,000 representations in the last 12 months regarding international trade with developing countries.

Gas Prices

Mr. Shaw: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what progress has been made on the three-point strategy in relation to gas price increases and their effect upon UK industry. [12448]

Mr. Wilson: The Government's three point strategy to address high gas prices is:

to work for greater market liberalisation in Europe

to work for improvements in the British gas market

to take action against any anti-competitive activity.

As part of our work on improving the British gas market the Government published a consultation document on 2 November "A Consultation on Gas Prices and Possible Improvements to Market Efficiency" which considers various concerns made about the gas market. The document also seeks views on the wider benefits to the gas market of increased information flows between the onshore and the offshore following a seminar held with the United Kingdom Offshore Operators Association on 10 September. Copies of this document are available from the Department of Trade and Industry website www.dti.gov.uk.

There has also been progress with the strategy more generally. In March the EU Commission published proposals for a revised Gas Directive which was a positive step towards greater liberalisation. Interconnector (UK) Ltd now publishes details of flows with a one day lag instead of the previous six week delay. The Government have also been working with IUK and interconnector shippers on improvements to interconnector governance and marketing arrangements. The EU Commission's inquiry into the operation of the interconnector, which was undertaken at the request of the Government, is now reaching its final stages.

Heysham Industrial Estate

Geraldine Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assistance she is providing for the (a) clearance and (b) remediation of (i) derelict and (ii) contaminated land on the Heysham industrial estate. [13769]

Alan Johnson: The North West Development Agency has so far agreed to provide £18,250 preliminary funding for site studies in respect of the remediation of Trimpell Tip on Heysham industrial estate.

Regeneration (Morecambe and Lunesdale)

Geraldine Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what funding has been allocated to the Morecambe and Lunesdale constituency by the regional development agency for economic regeneration. [13773]

Alan Johnson: Funds managed by the North West Regional Development Agency are allocated to specific projects and initiatives rather than to constituencies. The Agency is currently contributing £4.9 million to three major regeneration projects in the Morecambe area.

Luneside East Industrial Estate

Geraldine Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how much funding the North West Development Agency has allocated to Luneside East industrial estate; and for what purpose. [13771]

Alan Johnson: The North West Development Agency has agreed to make up to £130,000 available to support various feasibility studies and investigations, project appraisal and co-ordination, and cost and value estimates in respect of Luneside East industrial estate.

Electricity

Mr. Sayeed: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimate she has made of the cost of electricity generated by nuclear power in pence/kilowatt hour, broken down into (a) building costs, (b) running costs, (c) decommissioning costs on a discounted basis and (d) other costs, identifying the assumptions made; and if she will make a statement. [13270]

Mr. Wilson: The Department has made no recent estimates of the cost of electricity generated by nuclear power. The last study published in 1995 concluded that the levelised costs of nuclear power were around 3.9p/kWh. Studies suggest that capital costs account for about 70 per cent. of total costs, operating and maintenance costs about 20 per cent. and decommissioning and waste costs about 10 per cent.

The Department is contributing to the work of the energy review being undertaken by the Performance and Innovation Unit at the Cabinet Office, which is looking at the cost of new nuclear generation. A copy of their paper which includes estimates of nuclear generation costs can be found at http://www.cabinet-office.gov.uk/innovation/2001/energy/2050.pdf.

Mr. Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what was the (a) total amount of electricity generated from nuclear generators in the UK and (b) proportion of all electricity used in the UK generated from (i) nuclear generation and (ii) UK-based nuclear generation, since 1990. [12788]

Mr. Wilson [holding answer 7 November 2001]: The information requested is as follows:

	Electricity supplied from nuclear sources in the UK GWh	Proportion of total electricity supplied that was from UK nuclear sources (Percentage)	Proportion that was nuclear from all sources[1] (Percentage)
1990	58,664	20	23
1991	62,761	21	25
1992	69,135	23	27
1993	80,979	27	31
1994	79,962	26	30
1995	80,598	25	29
1996	85,820	26	30
1997	89,341	27	31
1998	90,590	26	29
1999	87,672	25	28
2000	78,334	22	25

[1] Assuming that all electricity imported from France was from French nuclear stations.

Source:

Digest of UK Energy Statistics 2001 Tables 5.11 and 5.12.

Climate Change Levy

Mr. Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what representations she has received from the nuclear industry requesting exemption from the Climate Change Levy; and if she will make a statement. [12793]

Mr. Wilson [holding answer 7 November 2001]: The nuclear industry has made a number of representations for exemption from the levy for electricity from nuclear generation.

Nuclear-generated electricity is taxed in the same way as other forms of non-renewable generation as one rate of levy applies to all such electricity.

The PIU (Performance and Innovation Unit) is currently reviewing UK energy policy, and nuclear energy will form part of its consideration.

Nuclear Power

Mr. Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what has been the total installed capacity of nuclear generators in the UK in each year since 1990. [12792]

Mr. Wilson [holding answer 7 November 2001]: The information requested is as follows:

	Capacity of nuclear stations in the UK in DNC[1] terms MW
End March 1990	11,083
End March 1991	11,353
End March 1992	11,353
End March 1993	11,353
End March 1994	11,894
End March 1995	12,037
End March 1996	12,762
End December 1996[2]	12,916
End December 1997	12,946
End December 1998	12,956
End December 1999	12,956
End December 2000	12,486

[1] Declared net capability

[2] In 1996 a change was made to measure capacity at the end of the calendar year rather than at the end of March

Source:

Digest of UK Energy Statistics 2001 Table 5.7 and corresponding table for earlier years

NETA

Mr. Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what recent meetings she has had with the Regulator to discuss the impact of New electricity trading arrangements on (a) the Combined heat and power sector and (b) the renewable sources of energy sector; and if she will make a statement. [12661]

Mr. Wilson: I have had numerous meetings with the Regulator to discuss the impact of NETA on CHP and renewables, most recently on 25 September 2001. My right hon. Friend, the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry will be meeting the Regulator on Thursday 15 November 2001 to discuss this subject, among other matters.

Mr. Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what representations she has received from the British Wind Energy Association regarding the impact of NETA on trading in renewable energy; and if she will make a statement. [12660]

Mr. Wilson: My Department received representations from the British Wind Energy Association regarding the impact of NETA on trading in renewable energy as part of BWEA's response to the DTI Preliminary Consultation on the Renewables Obligation of October 2000. In addition, my Department has had numerous representations from industry on this issue, including the renewables and wind sectors, for example the Confederation of Renewable Energy Associations.

On 1 November, I issued a consultation document in response to Ofgem's reports 'The New Electricity Trading Arrangements—Review of the First Three Months' and 'Report to the DTI on the Review of the Initial Impact of NETA on Smaller Generators' of 31 August 2001. I welcome views and representations from all industry bodies. I hope that the British Wind Energy Association will take this opportunity to respond to our consultation. The consultation document can be accessed at www.dti.gov.uk/consultations/.

Mr. Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what representations she has received from the (a) Combined Heat and Power Association, (b) British Association for Biofuels and Oils, (c) British Photovoltaic Association, (d) British Hydropower Association and (e) Solar Trade Association Limited regarding the impact of NETA; and if she will make a statement. [12673]

Mr. Wilson: I have received numerous representations from the Combined Heat and Power Association on the impact of NETA, most recently at a meeting on 20 September 2001.

I have received no representations from the British Association for Biofuels and Oils, the British Photovoltaic Association, the British Hydropower Association, or the Solar Trade Association Limited.

I have, however, had numerous representations from industry bodies regarding the impact of NETA.

On 1 November, I issued a consultation document in response to Ofgem's reports 'The New Electricity Trading Arrangements—Review of the First Three Months' and 'Report to the DTI on the Review of the Initial Impact of NETA on Smaller Generators' of 31 August 2001. I welcome views and representations from all industry bodies. I hope that the above associations will take the opportunity to respond to our consultation. The consultation document can be accessed at www.dti.gov.uk/consultations/.

Mr. Gareth R. Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will take steps to encourage companies to provide a consolidation service within NETA for small generators; and if she will make a statement. [12732]

Mr. Wilson: On 1 November 2001, I issued a consultation document in response to Ofgem's reports "The New Electricity Trading Arrangements—Review of the First Three Months" and "Report to the DTI on the Review of the Initial Impact of NETA on Smaller Generators" of 31 August 2001.

The Government recognise the issues faced by smaller generators under NETA. The Government's key proposals are, broadly:

To ensure imbalance prices are genuinely cost reflective; and

To ensure that effective consolidation services emerge.

The Government are also inviting views on other proposals put forward by industry.

The Government believe consolidation services are vital in order to establish and foster smaller generation plant. While consolidation services are now starting to emerge in the market, the Government have proposed establishing a working group of smaller generators, the National Grid Company, BSC (Balancing and Settlement Code) participants, Ofgem, the DTI and DEFRA to look urgently at possible structural or regulatory obstacles to consolidation, including the likely time scale on which competitive consolidation services will emerge. The Government will ask this group to provide an interim report by 24 December 2001, and a final report by 31 January 2001.

The consultation document can be accessed at www.dti.gov.uk/consultations/.

Departmental Projects

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will list the projects in her Department which have been considered as potential public-private partnerships since 1997 which have not been undertaken because the public sector comparator had a lower net present value than the public-private partnership proposed; and if she will make a statement. [13431]

Ms Hewitt: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given today by my right hon. Friend the Chief Secretary. In respect of my Department, there have been no potential PPP projects that have not been undertaken because the public sector comparator had a lower net present value than the PPP proposed since 1997.

Embedded Generators

Mr. Gareth R. Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will take steps to introduce electricity Distribution Charging Arrangements which (a) reduce the capital cost of connecting new embedded generators to the distribution network and (b) encourage lower network losses and reduced costs of network investments relating to embedded generators. [12734]

Mr. Wilson: Distribution Charging Arrangements are a matter for Ofgem.

Ofgem's recent consultation paper "Embedded generation: price controls, incentives and connection charging—a preliminary consultation document" considers whether there might be an alternative to the payment of "deep" connection charges up-front. This paper is specifically aimed at moving without delay to a workable interim solution, under the existing pricing control and possibly from 1 April 2002. Ofgem have asked for responses to the consultation by 16 November, and I understand it is their intention to produce a summary of responses before the end of the year.

Embedded generation offers the prospect of a significant reduction in network losses, but more work is needed to understand the best way to achieve this goal. The distribution price control already contains incentives for distribution network operators (DNOs) to reduce network losses, but work on embedded generation presents new opportunities for achieving significant reductions.

An Embedded Generation Coordinating Group (EGCG) is currently being established to ensure that these issues and the wider recommendations outlined in the Report of the Embedded Generation Working Group into Network Access Issues are addressed in a timely and co-ordinated manner. An announcement about the EGCG will be made shortly.

BCCI

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when she next plans to meet the liquidators of BCCI. [13638]

Miss Melanie Johnson: No such meeting is planned. The liquidators report formally to my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry each year pursuant to the provisions of the Insolvency Regulations. Copies of that report are made available to creditors.

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when she will call a meeting of the creditors of BCCI. [13640]

Miss Melanie Johnson: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry has no power to call meetings of creditors in companies in liquidation. Meetings may be called by the liquidator or may be requisitioned by creditors in accordance with the Insolvency Rules.

Sub-post Offices

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many sub-post offices closed in the second quarter of the current financial year. [12588]

Mr. Alexander: I understand from Post Office Limited that total net closures of post offices in the second quarter of the current financial year was 56. These closure figures are net of 51 reopenings.

Glass Industry

Mr. Watts: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment she has made of the impact the (a) aggregates tax and (b) climate change levy have had on the competitiveness of the British glass industry; and what support she is giving to the industry to assist with related increases in business costs. [12813]

Mr. Wilson: Sand and other minerals used in the manufacture of glass will be relieved from the Aggregates Levy under Section 30 of the Finance Act 2001. The Climate Change Levy was introduced only in April and it is too early to assess its impact on businesses in the glass industry. The glass industry has a sectoral negotiated agreement with the Government under which eligible sites are working to deliver energy saving targets in return for an 80 per cent. levy discount.

Job Losses (Relocation)

Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimate she has made of the number of jobs lost this year as a result of UK-based firms relocating production overseas. [13923]

Ms Hewitt: Systematic information is not available from which to derive any reliable estimate.

Fireworks

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many incidents involving injuries with fireworks have occurred in the last five years (a) prior to 5 November, (b) on 5 November and (c) after 5 November in each year in (i) Scotland and (ii) the UK. [13188]

Miss Melanie Johnson [holding answer 8 November 2001]: We collect data of accidental injury cases involving fireworks for a period of four weeks from mid October to mid November, from Accident and Emergency departments in Great Britain. Similar information is collected separately by the Department of Health in Northern Ireland. The GB data is set out in the table:

Firework injuries in Great Britain 1996–2000

	2000	1999	1998	1997	1996
Scotland:
Prior 5 November	29	15	13	15	42
5 November	33	38	33	21	26
Post 5 November	6	29	14	21	17
Total	68	82	60	57	85
England and Wales:
Prior 5 November	482	257	174	324	637
5 November	230	273	208	264	313
Post 5 November	137	444	389	263	198
Total	849	974	771	851	1,148
Great Britain total:	972	1,056	831	908	1,233

Aggregates Tax Fund

Mr. Watts: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what progress has been made in reviewing arrangements to refine the way the aggregates tax fund works. [12815]

Mr. Meacher: I have been asked to reply.

We published a consultation paper on the possible distribution of the Aggregates Levy Sustainability Fund in England on 2 October 2001. A copy is available on the Department's website http://www.defra.gov.uk/ and is also available in the Library of the House.

The consultation paper includes proposals to support work under three objectives and three following initial distribution of funding.

£ million

	2002–03	2003–04
Minimising the demand for primary aggregates	6.5	9.0
Promoting environmentally friendly extraction and transport	6.0	6.0
Reducing the effect of local aggregate extraction	16.5	14.0
Total[1]	29.0	29.0

[1] Totals to be finalised to £29.3 million

The consultation period closes on 27 November.

HOUSE OF COMMONS

House of Lords Reform

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the President of the Council what assessment he has made of the number of MLs who may be appointed under the Government's proposals for reconstituting the upper House, based on the assumptions in the White Paper. [14356]

Mr. Robin Cook: I refer the hon. Member to the statement I gave to the House on Wednesday 7 November 2001, Official Report, columns 239–41.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Lord Ashcroft

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, pursuant to his answer of 20 July 2001, Official Report, column 484W, on Lord Ashcroft, when the official of his Department passed classified documents to an unauthorised person; who the unauthorised person was; when this official was disciplined; what the nature of the disciplining was; what the grade of the official was who was disciplined; and in which country the official was based when the offence occurred. [11617]

Mr. Bradshaw: A Diplomatic Service Officer, in the FCO Senior Management Structure and based in the United Kingdom at the time, passed classified documents to a journalist in 1997. The journalist concerned did not work for the newspapers where leaks later appeared; the official concerned is no longer in government service.

Sierra Leone

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the security situation in Sierra Leone. [13402]

Mr. Bradshaw: The security situation in Sierra Leone has improved dramatically over the past six months. We have continued to play a major role in Sierra Leone during this period. We have completed the initial training of an effective and accountable Sierra Leone Army. We have helped train the Sierra Leonean police force. We have worked with the UN on the Disarmament Demobilisation and Reintegration (DDR) programme and to move forward the deployment of UNAMSIL throughout the country. We have maintained close links with regional leaders, especially Presidents Obasanjo of Nigeria and Konare of Mali, to ensure full and successful implementation of the Abuja Agreement. The Revolutionary United Front is now transforming itself into a political party. As DDR continues, The Government of Sierra Leone are able to extend their authority across the country, ahead of elections now scheduled for 14 May 2002. A sustainable peace is now within our grasp.

But major challenges remain, both before and after the elections. We will continue to work with the Government of Sierra Leone, the United Nations and regional and international partners to help the Sierra Leonean Government consolidated the peace, prepare for and hold free and fair elections, and mobilise resources to rehabilitate Sierra Leone's shattered communities, institutions and economy.

Afghanistan

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the numbers of UK citizens held prisoner by (a) the Northern Alliance and (b) countries neighbouring Afghanistan as a consequence of activities with (i) the Taliban and (ii) al-Qaeda; and if he will make a statement. [13630]

Mr. Bradshaw: We are currently aware of one British prisoner being held by the Northern Alliance. He has been held since 1998, having been fighting for the Taliban. We do not have any Consular representation in Afghanistan and are therefore unable to give any accurate assessment on whether there are any other British prisoners being held there by either side. We are also not aware that any British prisoners are being held in relation to the current conflict in neighbouring countries.

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the numbers of UK citizens killed or injured in Afghanistan while with (a) al-Qaeda and (b) the Taliban; and if he will make a statement. [13624]

Mr. Bradshaw: We have no consular representation in Afghanistan. It is not possible to provide any accurate assessment on the number of UK nationals who may have been killed or injured in Afghanistan.

Soviet Bloc (Weapons of Mass Destruction)

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment his Department has made of the risk of former Soviet bloc (a) nuclear and (b) chemical/biological warfare scientists selling their skills to foreign regimes. [13681]

Mr. Bradshaw: It is estimated that there may be many thousands of Russian nuclear and chemical and biological warfare scientists who have lost their jobs or who face the prospect of losing their jobs in the next few years. The possibility that these scientists may sell their skills to foreign regimes is one that the UK takes seriously. To address this, UK funds are directed, through the European Union, to the International Science and Technology Centre (ISTC). The ISTC was set up in 1994, following an agreement signed by the EU, US, Japan and the Russian Federation, to stem the possibility of recruitment of former Soviet scientists by potential proliferators, through the funding of non-weapons related research at former defence institutes.

Entry Clearance

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the level of staffing is at the Joint Entry Clearance Unit. [13641]

Mr. Bradshaw: The current level of staffing in the Joint Entry Clearance Unit is as follows:

Permanent—69

Temporary (Persons between postings)—3

Retired officers on short-term contracts—2

Homeworkers (Part-time on contracts)—3

Total—77.

Ambassadors

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans he has for advertising the posts of ambassadors. [13642]

Mr. Bradshaw: None.

Mordecai Vanunu

Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he raised the matter of the continued imprisonment of Mordecai Vanunu in his recent meeting with his Israeli counterpart. [14682]

Mr. Bradshaw: We regularly raise Mr. Vanunu's long detention with the Israeli authorities and the British Embassy in Tel Aviv monitor the conditions in which he is held.

UN Sanctions (Amendments)

Gillian Merron: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent changes there have been to United Nations sanctions against (a) Somalia, (b) the former Republic of Yugoslavia and (c) Sudan. [14970]

Peter Hain: With the support of Her Majesty's Government, the range of sanctions imposed against Somalia, the Former Republic of Yugoslavia (FRY) and Sudan has been amended by the United Nations Security Council (the "UNSC").

On 19 June 2001 the UNSC adopted resolution 1356(2001) introducing certain limited exemptions to the arms embargo against Somalia. The arms embargo does not now apply to the temporary export of protective clothing for use exclusively by the UN, media or humanitarian and development workers, nor to supplies of non-lethal military equipment intended solely for humanitarian or protective use.

On 10 September 2001 the UNSC noted that the conditions called for by paragraphs 16(a)-(e) of resolution 1160(1998) had been met by the FRY Government, and subsequently decided to adopt resolution 1367(2001) which terminated the measures called for by resolution 1160(1998).

On 28 September 2001 the UNSC noted the steps taken by the Government of Sudan to comply with the provisions of resolution 1054(1996) and resolution 1070(1996) and agreed to adopt resolution 1372(2001) terminating the measures imposed by those resolutions.

General Affairs Council

Gillian Merron: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the outcome was of the General Affairs Council held in Luxembourg on 29 October. [14971]

Peter Hain: The information is as follows:

General Affairs Council, Luxembourg: 29 October 2001

My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary, Baroness Symons of Vernham Dean and I represented the UK at the General Affairs Council (GAC) on 29 October.

The GAC adopted the 'A' Points listed in document number 13233/01. It also noted the resolutions, decisions and opinions adopted by the European Parliament in its part-session of 19–20 September in Brussels and 1–4 October in Strasbourg listed in document numbers 11049/01 and 12365/01 respectively. Copies of all three documents have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

WTO

The GAC discussed preparations for the WTO Ministerial Conference, due to be held in Doha, Qatar from 9–13 November and agreed conclusions setting out the EU's position for this meeting. The Council conclusions of 26 October 1999 remained the basis for EU efforts to launch a new global round of multilateral trade negotiations, but the Council acknowledged that the final stages of negotiations would call for flexibility on the part of all participants. The Council emphasised the importance of the development dimension, highlighting the need for greater efforts to enhance the negotiating capacity of developing countries, and underlined the importance of the flexibilities of the TRIPS agreement in ensuring poor people in developing countries have affordable access to medicines.

The Council welcomed the European Parliament's resolution of 24 October 2001 on preparations for Doha and stressed the importance of dialogue with civil society, particularly with social partners, on trade issues.

Work in other Sectoral Councils

The Presidency drew attention to the Secretariat's stocktaking report of the main issues being discussed by other sectoral meetings of the Council of Ministers. In particular, the Presidency noted the road-map on implementation of a sustainable development strategy approved by the Gothenburg European Council, looking ahead to the Barcelona European Council on 15–16 March 2002 and the World Summit on Sustainable Development in Johannesburg on 2–11 September 2002.

MEPs' Statute

The GAC approved Presidency proposals, focusing on fiscal/tax issues, allowances and pensions, as a basis for further discussions with the European Parliament.

Funding of European Political Parties

The GAC discussed the draft regulation to establish a temporary, two year regime for the statute and funding of European political parties. Discussion focused on issues including the regulating of donations and the transnationality threshold for qualification as a "European" political party. The Presidency asked Coreper to discuss the issues further.

EU political priorities for 2002

The GAC endorsed a UK Initiative for the GAC to coordinate the EU's overall strategic priorities through annual discussions. Spain, as the future Presidency, will schedule a further debate early next year.

MEPP

The Council issued a declaration on the tenth anniversary of the Madrid Conference. It called on the Israelis and Palestinians, immediately and without pre-conditions, to return to negotiations on the basis of the recommendations in the Mitchell Report and Tenet Plan. It called upon the Israeli authorities to withdraw their troops immediately from the zone that is exclusively under Palestinian administration (Zone A). It called upon the Palestinian authority to do its utmost to arrest those responsible for acts of violence against Israel.

Africa

The GAC agreed conclusions on:

(i) Zimbabwe

The Council reiterated the EU's readiness to help Zimbabwe hold transparent and fair Presidential elections next Spring, including through an exploratory mission and EU observers to monitor them.

The GAC decided to launch the consultation procedure with the Government of Zimbabwe provided for in Article 96 of the Cotonou Agreement. The consultations would address the issues of concern as discussed by the GAC on 25 June, on which there had not been any visible progress to date:

ending political violence;

electoral monitoring;

freedom of the media;

independence of the judiciary;

ending the illegal occupation of properties.

The EU would give strong weight to ensuring co-ordination and complementarity with the efforts of SADC and the Abuja process.

(ii) DRC (Lusaka Process)

The GAC noted the disappointing results of the inter-Congolese dialogue meeting in Addis Ababa (15–21 October). The EU had honoured its financial commitments to help support the process, which was essential for the future of the DRC and the region as a whole. It called on the facilitator of the dialogue and the Congolese parties to set a time and place for substantive talks on the parameters for an inclusive, democratic transition with a realistic timetable.

(iii) Burundi (Arusha process)

The GAC discussed the demarches of facilitator Nelson Mandela to the Presidency and Commission of 15–16 October. President Mandela was seeking EU funding to set up a protection unit to ensure the safety of exiled politicians on their return to Burundi to form the Transitional National Government, starting on 1 November. The GAC agreed the importance of such funding, subject to clear assent of the Burundian parties to the Arusha Agreement, the backing of the UK, and precise details concerning the special unit's mandate and budget. The Council instructed its bodies to work with the Commission to examine President Mandela's proposals and report to the next GAC on 19 November.

(iv) Eritrea

The GAC would discuss Eritrea further at its next meeting, following talks between President Isayas Afewerki and the EU Heads of Mission (HoMs) in Asmara. It had agreed on 8 October, to recall EU HoMs in Eritrea for consultations, given its concerns over the arrest of political figures, the suppression of the independent press and expulsion of the EU Presidency's Representative to Eritrea.

(v) New Partnership for African Development and the Europe-Africa dialogue

The Council reiterated its support for the New Partnership for African Development (NEPAD). It was briefed by the Presidency and the Commission on the meeting on 10 October with the African Heads of State, supporting the NEPAD and on the EU-Africa Ministerial Conference on 11 October 2001. The Council agreed that it would pay particular attention to this significant initiative, above all in the framework of the Europe-Africa dialogue.

EU action following US attacks

The GAC noted the good progress made on the counter-terrorism road map agreed at the European Council of 21 September. It tasked the Committee of Permanent Representatives with the oversight and direction of the road map, paying particular attention to the priorities identified by the European Council:

a European arrest warrant, a common definition of terrorism and freezing of assets;

strengthening cooperation between the relevant authorities responsible for combating terrorism, especially to establish a common list of terrorist organisations before the year-end;

the fight against the funding of terrorism; and the approval, without delay, of Commission proposals relating to aviation security.

The GAC also discussed the situation in Afghanistan and the surrounding region Discussion was informed by reports from the Presidency and Secretary-General/ High Representative (SG/HR) Solana about their recent meetings with the UN Secretary-General and his personal representative, Ambassador Brahimi, and with the former king of Afghanistan, Zahir Shah. They also discussed the situation in central Asia, on the basis of a paper by the SG/HR. The Council welcomed the Troika visit from 30 October to Uzbekistan, Tajikistan and Turkmenistan.

Western Balkans

The GAC adopted Conclusions on:

(i) Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia

It welcomed the progress made on constitutional reform, and all parties' commitment to conclude the parliamentary process on the Framework Agreement rapidly. It repeated that implementation of that Agreement by all parties concerned was the only constructive way forward, including in relation to Macedonia's rapprochement with the EU.

(ii) Kosovo

The Council underlined the importance of the elections on 17 November being conducted properly. The GAC repeated the need for a substantial electoral turnout from all communities, to ensure their representation in the provisional, new, democratically-elected institutions. It had asked the Belgrade authorities to co-operate closely with UNMIK/KFOR and to encourage the Kosovo Serbs to take part in the election.

(iii) Stability Pact

The GAC welcomed the outcome of the Regional Conference of the Stability Pact in Bucharest, which confirmed the EU's commitment to continue playing a leading role in the region, which would be complemented by the continuing role of the Pact. The Council agreed that the EU should review the future role of the Stability Pact in consultation with the other members of the Pact, including the possibility of better integrating the work of the Pact with the EU's Stabilisation and Association Process for the Western Balkans.

(iv) Croatia

The GAC welcomed the signing of the EU/Croatia Stabilisation and Association Agreement and the EC/Croatia Interim Agreement. It also welcomed the approval of the Joint Declaration on political dialogue and the holding of the first meeting of that dialogue.

Voting Record

No formal votes were taken on the points under discussion at the GAC.

Biological and Toxin Weapons Conference

Joan Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what assessment he has made of the failure of the negotiations for a compliance and verification protocol to the Biological and Toxin Weapons Conference; and how he will respond; [14468]

(2) what he aims to achieve at the Review Conference of the Biological and Toxin Weapons Conference. [14467]

Mr. Bradshaw: Following the failure of the 24th Session of the Ad Hoc Group to agree a Protocol text, our aim is now to agree with all States parties, a Final Document at the fifth Review Conference of the Biological Weapons Convention, in Geneva (19 November-7 December) that will lead to sustaining international progress on the further strengthening of the Convention. We welcome proposals that have been made for practical and effective measures to meet the biological weapons threat. We hope that these can be agreed at the Conference.

Joan Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will be attending the Biological and Toxin Weapons Conference in Geneva. [14466]

Mr. Bradshaw: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary currently has no plans to attend the 5th Review Conference of the Biological and Toxin Weapons Convention in Geneva.

Zimbabwe

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the recent actions of Libyan military personnel in Zimbabwe; what role they have; and how many there are. [12147]

Mr. Bradshaw: We have seen media reports of Libyans in Zimbabwe as security advisers for ZANU(PF) officials. These reports have not been substantiated.

PRIME MINISTER

Overseas Visits

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Prime Minister how many overseas visits he has undertaken and to which countries, since 11 September. [13636]

The Prime Minister: I have undertaken five overseas visits as part of the efforts to deepen the international coalition against terrorism. I visited:

Germany

France

United States

Belgium

Russia

Pakistan

India

Switzerland

Oman
Egypt
Syria
Saudi Arabia
Jordan
Israel and the Palestinian Authority.

I also attended the Informal Meeting of EU Heads of Government in Belgium on 19 October.

Meetings

Llew Smith: To ask the Prime Minister which (a) Prime Ministers and (b) heads of state he has met since 11 September; when he met each of them; and where the meetings were held. [14692]

The Prime Minister: The following meetings with Prime Ministers and heads of states have already been announced:

12 September
President Lagos (Chile)—No. 10

17 September
Prime Minister Berlusconi (Italy)—No. 10

19 September
Taoiseach Ahern (Ireland)—No. 10
Chancellor Schroeder (Germany)—Kanzleramt

20 September
President Chirac (France)—Paris
President Bush (USA)—Washington

21 September
European Council meeting—Brussels

1 October
Chancellor Schroeder (Germany)—Brighton

4 October
President Putin (Russia)—Moscow

5 October
President Musharraf—Pakistan

6 October
Prime Minister Vajpayee—India

9 October
Shaikh Zayed, Ruler of Abu Dhabi—Geneva

10 October
His Majesty Sultan Qaboos bin Said al Said—Muscat

11 October
President Mubarak (Egypt)—Cairo

16 October
Prime Minister Rasmussen (Denmark)—No. 10
King Abdullah II of Jordan—No. 10

19 October
President Chirac (France), Prime Minister Jospin (France) and Chancellor Schroeder (Germany)—Ghent
Informal meeting of EU Heads of Government—Ghent

25 October
Prime Minister Verhofstadt (Belgium)—No. 10

28–29 October
President Cardoso (Brazil)—Chequers

31 October
President al-Assad (Syria)—Damascus
King Fahd of Saudi Arabia—Riyadh

1 November
King Abdullah II of Jordan—Jordan
Prime Minister Sharon (Israel)—Jerusalem
Prime Minister Berlusconi (Italy)—Genoa

2 November
Prime Minister Miller (Poland)—No. 10

4 November
President Chirac (France)—No. 10
Prime Minister Jospin (France)—No. 10
Chancellor Schroeder (Germany)—No. 10
Prime Minister Berlusconi (Italy)—No. 10
Prime Minister Aznar (Spain)—No. 10
Prime Minister Verhofstadt (Belgium)—No. 10
Prime Minister Kok (Netherlands)—No. 10

6 November
President Museveni (Uganda)—No. 10
President Kagame (Rwanda)—No. 10

7 November
President Bush (USA)—Washington

8 November
King Abdullah II of Jordan—No. 10
Prime Minister Nastase (Romania)—No. 10
President Musharraf (Pakistan)—No. 10

9 November
Prime Minister Aznar (Spain)—No. 10/Chequers

11 November
Prime Minister Vajpayee—No. 10.

I have also met President Arafat of the Palestinian Authority on 15 October and 1 November.

Kyoto Protocol

Mr. Simon Thomas: To ask the Prime Minister what representations he has made to President Bush about signing up to the Kyoto agreements; and if he will make a statement on the results of these representations. [14456]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave my hon. Friend the Member for Islington, North (Jeremy Corbyn) on 15 October 2001, Official Report, column 820W.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Civil Servants (Remuneration)

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what assessment he has made of the cost of implementing the proposals of the First Division Association for the remuneration of senior civil servants. [14247]

Mr. Leslie: Ministers have agreed a new pay system for the senior civil service, developed as part of the Civil Service reform programme. All senior civil servants and their trade unions were consulted and their views taken into account.

The costs of the proposed system will depend on the recommendations of the independent Senior Salaries Review Body and will be met from within existing departmental expenditure limits.

HEALTH

GP Audit

11. Mr. Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether Swale primary care trusts have undertaken an audit of GP needs in the constituency of Sittingbourne and Sheppey. [12115]

Ms Blears: Swale Primary Care Group recently carried out an audit of local needs. As a result, the Government have provided additional resources to two local practices to fund the recruitment of additional general practitioners into the area.

Whittington Hospital

12. Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he will complete the evaluation of the proposals for refurbishment of the Whittington Hospital. [12116]

Mr. Hutton: The proposals for the rebuilding of a significant part of the Whittington Hospital are expected to be submitted by the Trust in January 2002. It is planned to complete the final approval soon after with the new building becoming fully operational in autumn 2004.

NHS Staff Morale

13. Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what initiatives he has in place to improve the morale of the staff in the health service. [12117]

Mr. Milburn: Staff morale is a key issue for the Government. We are committed to improving morale in the national health service by expanding staff numbers, improving NHS employment practice and giving frontline staff greater control over resources.

NHS (East Lancashire)

14. Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he is taking to ensure the NHS in east Lancashire remains focused on service delivery during the process of organisational changes. [12118]

Mr. Hutton: During the process of devolving more power and responsibility to primary care trusts, the national health service must remain focused on meeting local health needs. To ensure that this happens, all regional offices and health authorities have produced business continuity plans.

In the north-west, three project directors are co-ordinating business continuity arrangements across the region, supported by lead managers who have responsibility for monitoring critical areas of business such as winter, cancer and access.

Heart Operations

15. Jeff Ennis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on the number of heart operations carried out in the NHS in the past 12 months. [12119]

Ms Blears: The National Service Framework for Coronary Heart Disease target of an extra 3,000 heart operations for March 2002 has been met a year early. Provisional figures suggest that between September 2000 and September 2001, there were over 25,000 angioplasty operations and approaching 23,000 bypass operations. An extra £30 million has been allocated this year to further increase the number of heart operations.

Hospital Cleanliness

17. Andy King: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on progress on raising standards of hospital cleanliness. [12121]

25. Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on progress in raising standards of hospital cleanliness. [12130]

Mr. Hutton: The NHS Plan expressed our determination to create real and lasting improvements to standards of hospital cleanliness. Through our Clean Hospitals programme, the number of "red" hospitals has fallen from 253 in autumn 2000 to zero today. Every hospital in England now provides standards of cleanliness which are good or at least acceptable.

NHS Cancer Care

18. Mr. Bailey: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent progress has been made on improvement of diagnosis and treatment for cancer patients in the NHS. [12122]

Mr. Milburn: Good progress has been made in implementing the NHS Cancer Plan. 92 per cent. of people urgently referred with symptoms indicating a possibility of cancer are being seen within two weeks; around 13,000 patients each year will benefit from new treatments for cancer, following their appraisal by the National Institute for Clinical Excellence; and expansion and upgrading of equipment used in the NHS to diagnose and treat cancer is well under way.

TNF Alpha Blockade

19. Clive Efford: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on variations in practice relating to the prescription of TNF Alpha Blockade. [12124]

Mr. Hutton: The two main drugs involved in this therapy, etanercept and infliximab, are currently being appraised by the National Institute for Clinical Excellence. Until NICE has completed its appraisal, national health service bodies have been advised to use their existing arrangements to determine local prescribing policies, using the publicly available evidence to inform their decision.

Care Home Beds

20. Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many beds there were in elderly care homes in (a) 1997 and (b) the last year for which figures are available. [12125]

32. Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many beds in elderly care homes there were (a) in 1997 and (b) on the latest date for which figures are available. [12138]

Jacqui Smith: The Department's figures show that, in 1997, there were 261,600 residential places for older people in residential care homes and 154,200 registered nursing beds for them in nursing homes, private hospitals and clinics. In March 2000, there were 263,200 such places in residential care homes and 149,600 such beds in nursing homes, private hospitals and clinics.

Homeopathic Treatment

21. Mr. Tredinnick: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which health authorities fund GP referrals for homeopathic treatment on the NHS; and what plans he has to improve equality of access for such treatment. [12126]

Ms Blears: There is no central record of national health service referrals for homeopathic treatment. Current NHS reforms will give primary care trusts full responsibility for providing services for local patients. This environment of local autonomy and innovation should have scope for complementary therapies that can prove their worth.

Blood Transfusions

22. Mr. Havard: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much of the national blood supply was used on cancer patients as part of their treatment; and, on average, how old that blood was when it was given to them, in the past 12 months. [12127]

Mr. Hutton: The National Blood Service estimates that approximately 30 per cent. of red cells collected from blood donations are given to patients with cancer-related illnesses.

All fresh blood components in the national health service are used within strict expiry dates.

Private Finance (NHS)

24. Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the use of private finance within the NHS. [12129]

Mr. Hutton: To be approved, the Private Finance Initiative option for every national health service capital investment project must demonstrate, in a full business case, that it provides improved facilities for the NHS and that, overall, it is value for money when compared to the publicly funded alternative, the Public Sector Comparator.

34. Mr. Rendel: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the use of private finance within the NHS. [12140]

Mr. Hutton: To be approved, the private finance initiative option for every national health service capital investment project must demonstrate, in a full business case, that it provides improved facilities for the NHS and that, overall, it is value for money when compared to the publicly funded alternative, the public sector comparator.

Because of PFI, 10 major new hospitals have opened in the United Kingdom and another 17 are under construction, representing capital investment in the NHS of over £2.4 billion.

Nurses

26. Mr. Breed: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on the use of agency nurses in the NHS. [12132]

Mr. Hutton: The Government are aware of the potential value for money and quality issues facing national health service employers using agencies. This is why we are fully committed to NHS Professionals, the non-profit making temporary staffing solution run by the NHS for the NHS. NHS Professionals is being rolled out by all health professionals by 2003.

27. Colin Burgon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent steps he has taken to improve the recruitment and retention of nurses in the NHS. [12133]

Mr. Hutton: In the first year of the NHS Plan period the number of nurses employed in the national health service increased by 6,310.

The Government are fully committed to investing in NHS staff, to raising the number of nurses, increasing training places, encouraging former staff to return, and recruiting more nurses from abroad.

The NHS Plan introduced the Improving Working Lives Standard, a model of good employment practices against which NHS organisations are measured. NHS organisations are required to provide a portfolio of evidence that they are improving the working lives of staff.

Accident and Emergency Departments

28. Richard Ottaway: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on improving the efficiency of accident and emergency departments in London. [12134]

Mr. Hutton: The Government recognise the importance of improving A&E departments. The A&E Emergency Modernisation Programme aims to modernise, upgrade and refurbish all accident and emergency departments that need modernising. A total of £150 million has been invested in A&E in three waves and London has received over £22 million from the Capital Modernisation Fund. This is the biggest investment in A&E services since the start of the NHS.

In October this year the Government announced a £100 million strategy for reducing long waits in A&E departments and ending inappropriate waits altogether over the next three years. London trusts received over £9 million of this funding.

MRI Scanners

29. Phil Sawford: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what action he is taking to ensure that more hospitals have access to an MRI scanner. [12135]

Jacqui Smith: Following past decades of under-investment in cancer equipment and facilities, investment through the New Opportunities Fund and the NHS Plan will provide 86 MRI scanners for the NHS by 2004. These scanners will support the accurate diagnosis and staging of cancer patients, as well as increased access to an MRI scanner for other patient groups.

31. Patrick Mercer: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on waiting times for MRI scans in the hospitals in Newark and Retford. [12137]

Jacqui Smith: Waiting times for MRI scans vary according to the clinical condition being investigated and the demand on the service. A recent survey of MRI waiting times in England showed average waiting times for patients attending for urgent examinations, such as cancer, of approximately two weeks, while the average waiting times for orthopaedic procedures, for example, were in the order of six months with a 10–12 month waiting time not uncommon. 36 MRI scanners are being provided through the New Opportunities Fund. All of these are due for installation by the end of 2002. Under the terms of the NHS Cancer Plan, a further 50 will be installed by 2004.

MRI facilities are not available at the hospitals in Newark and Retford. At present, most Newark residents are referred to the Queen's Medical Centre in Nottingham, where the waiting time for routine appointments is around 18 months. However, Sherwood Forest Hospitals NHS Trust, which has been responsible for Newark Hospital since April 2001, is working to establish better links between Newark and the King's Mill Centre near Mansfield. A mobile scanner already visits the King's Mill Centre and additional sessions will be provided in 2002, thereby reducing waiting times.

Most Retford patients requiring MRI scans are referred to the Royal Hallamshire Hospital in Sheffield where waiting time for a routine referral is around six months. The Health Community in Retford is investigating the possibility of using a mobile scanner or referring patients to Doncaster as a means of reducing waiting times.

For urgent referrals, the waiting times vary from one to 12 weeks depending on clinical priority.

Orthopaedic Waiting Times

30. Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on orthopaedic waiting times. [12136]

Mr. Hutton: We are is determined to reduce waiting times for orthopaedic patients. That is why we have established the "Action On Orthopaedics" programme as part of the modernisation of the national health service. The programme aims significantly to improve access to care and to reduce variations in waiting times through sharing best practice. It will lead the way in piloting new and innovative working practice.

In 2000–01, £9 million was made available directly to NHS practitioners to invest in specialist orthopaedic equipment. In 2001–02 a further £38.5 million was made available. Through this year's investment 23 new orthopaedic theatres will be built to create greater capacity to treat orthopaedic patients, which will facilitate reduced waiting times.

Waiting times for all patients are being reduced. In line with the NHS Plan, the maximum out-patient waiting time will be cut to three months by 2005 and the maximum in-patient waiting time will be cut to six months.

As a first step towards this, the maximum waiting time for an in-patient appointment will be 15 months by the end of March 2002 and the maximum waiting time for a first out-patient appointment will be six months.

Ashworth Hospital

33. Mr. Illsley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on long-term stay patients at Ashworth hospital. [12139]

Jacqui Smith: Our policy with regard to the provision of high-security psychiatric services is to secure the safety of the public, staff and patients, and to ensure that the best possible services are offered to patients who need to receive their care and treatment in a high-secure setting.

School Children (Health)

35. Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he last had discussions with the Secretary of State for Education and Skills about the health of school children. [12141]

Jacqui Smith: We have regular discussions and our respective Departments work very closely to ensure that the health needs of school children are met. We have also launched a number of joint initiatives including the healthy schools programme. Apart from supporting children with health problems we are committed to ensuring the promotion of child health and development through access to high quality physical education. My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister announced in January that all children will be entitled to a minimum of two hours high quality physical education and sport provision within and beyond the formal curriculum. This commitment is also outlined in the White Paper "Schools: Achieving Success" published in September.

Cardio-thoracic Unit

36. Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what needs he has recently identified for a further cardio-thoracic surgical unit in the east of England. [12142]

Jacqui Smith: We are currently developing a national strategy for expanding revascularisation capacity, the aim of which is to deliver the targets of the coronary heart disease National Service Framework.

As part of that strategy the national health service eastern regional office has undertaken an assessment of its needs for cardiac surgery over the next 20 years and has taken many factors into account including the current and future population demands for such services.

The assessment has clearly identified the need for the development of further services for cardiac surgery.

NHS Beds

37. John Cryer: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on the number of (a) general and (b) acute beds in NHS hospitals. [12143]

Ms Blears: In the light of the National Beds Inquiry the NHS Plan set a target to increase the number of general and acute beds by 2,100 by 2004. Latest figures, published in September 2001, show that we are a third of the way towards reaching this target with an increase of over 700 in the number of general and acute care beds in the last year. The number of general and acute beds in national health service hospitals had been declining over the past 40 years. This is a clear indication that the downward trend is being reversed.

For three decades the prevailing orthodoxy in the NHS has been for fewer hospital beds rather than more. Patients see the consequence of that failed policy in unacceptable trolley waits, long waiting times and cancelled operations. Today the NHS is growing again with an expanding number of NHS hospital beds.

Barnet Hospital

23. Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement about Barnet hospital. [12128]

Mr. Hutton: I am aware of and share my hon. Friend's concerns over Barnet and Chase Farm NHS Trust and the need to support improvements in its performance in key areas highlighted by the recent NHS Trust Performance Ratings.

The Trust has formally been given three months from 25 September to produce an action plan focused on areas of poor performance and will receive close support from the Modernisation Agency.

I have already arranged to meet my hon. Friend to discuss these matters.

Psychiatric Hospitals

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people were admitted to psychiatric hospitals in 2000–01. [10514]

Jacqui Smith: There were an estimated 187,600 admissions, under mental illness specialties, to national health service hospitals in England for 1999–2000, the latest year for which data are available. This figure has not yet been adjusted for shortfalls in data and therefore has a provisional status.

NHS Dentistry

Peter Bradley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many patients in Shropshire were registered with a NHS dentist in (a) 1990, (b) 1997 and (c) 2000; and how many remained unregistered in the same year. [9258]

Ms Blears: Registrations of patients in the general dental service (GDS) began in October 1990. Registrations last for a fixed period which is renewed when the patient reattends the dentist. Initially the period for adults was 24 months while for children registrations lasted until the end of the following calendar year.

For new registrations made since September 1996, the registration period is 15 months for both adults and children. This affected registration numbers from December 1997 onwards when the first of the shorter registrations lapsed.

Registration numbers built up over the two years from October 1990. Thus registration figures for 1990 are not typical.

For Shropshire health authority, in the year 1997, the average number of registrations was 217,000 compared to an estimated population at mid-year 1997 of 425,000. In the year 2000, the registration average was lower at 186,000 because of the reduction in the registration period to 15 months. In addition, in the year 2000, 8,000 patients were seen by the personal dental service pilots which started in March 1999. The estimated population at mid-year 2000 was 436,000.

Many people are not registered with the dentist but choose to attend occasionally.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what are the (a) parliamentary constituencies and (b) NHS health trusts in which there are no NHS dentists taking new adult NHS patients; and if he will make a statement. [14131]

Ms Blears: General dental practitioners provide general dental services under arrangements made with health authorities. Some national health service trusts are commissioned to provide national health service dentistry but these services are a minority of what is provided within the NHS. While information on availability of NHS dentistry is not collected on a parliamentary constituency basis, every health authority in England has NHS general dental practitioners willing to treat new adult NHS patients.

We remain committed to ensuring that NHS dentistry is available to all. More treatment than ever before is being carried out by NHS dentists. Systems are in place to enable callers to NHS Direct to obtain information about where they can find NHS dentistry. We will continue to work with the profession to further develop NHS dentistry around patient needs, as part of modern primary care delivered at a local level.

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS dental practitioners there were on the Isle of Wight in each year since 1997. [14355]

Ms Blears: The number of general dental services (GDS) dentists on the Isle of Wight is shown in the table for 30 June in each of the years 1997 to 2001.

June	Number of GDS dentists
1997	38
1998	39
1999	43
2000	39
2001	40

A personal dental service (PDS) pilot, developing new ways of providing national health service dentistry, began in 1999. There were six dentists in June 2000 while in June 2001 there were eight PDS dentists of whom two also worked in the GDS.

Mental Health Services

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS trusts have an advocacy scheme for users of mental health services; and what proportion of trusts this figure represents. [10011]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 29 October 2001]: Very few national health service trusts actually provide advocacy services as it is widely recognised that advocacy services should be independent of provider services.

The Department has commissioned a mental health service mapping exercise from Durham University which will provide an up-to-date picture of where mental health service users have access to an advocacy service. This exercise is expected to report later this year.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health by how much the NHS underspent on mental health in 2000–01. [12050]

Jacqui Smith: There are no expenditure targets relating to mental health, therefore there cannot be any underspend. The national health service does have service targets and in 2000–01 these were met.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of clinical outcomes in mental health in the UK in comparison to other EU countries. [13854]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 12 November 2001]: Currently there is no assessment of clinical outcomes in mental health in the United Kingdom in comparison to other European Union countries. However, there are currently two important initiatives under way that involve the measurement of clinical outcomes for individuals in receipt of mental health services in the UK that will enable comparisons with other EU countries.

One is the outcome measurement implementation programme headed by the national director for mental health, Professor Louis Appleby, who has established an expert group of the leading experts in the field of outcome measurement in the UK. They are advising on and overseeing the selection and the pilot implementation of instrumentation for the routine measurement of outcomes for individuals in terms of mortality, morbidity, quality of life and user and carer satisfaction with services. The evidence base for this approach is substantial and drawn from extensive research conducted in the United States of America, Europe and Australia over many years.

The other initiative is the establishment of the new National Institute for Mental Health for England (NIMH(E)) which I announced in July. NIMH(E) will be the key vehicle, which supports implementation of national mental health policy in England. It will work with all agencies and interests to develop a co-ordinated programme of research, service development, workforce development and support. NIMH(E) will also generate links with organisations responsible for mental health services in other countries. This will offer the opportunity for comparison of services and clinical outcomes, and the promotion of best practice. A consultation document on NIMH(E) was launched on 6 November.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether he supports closer partnership working between statutory services and the Churches in the field of mental health; and if he will make a statement. [13847]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 12 November 2001]: The National Service Framework for Mental Health encourages health and social services to work with individuals and communities to promote mental health. As an integral part of many communities, religious centres and leaders can assist in combating discrimination and social exclusion associated with mental health problems.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what implications the EU working-time directive has for the staffing of acute mental health wards; and if he will make a statement. [13858]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 12 November 2001]: The Working Time Regulations, which implement the European Community Directive into United Kingdom legislation, came into force on 1 October 1998. To implement this in the national health service, the Department made national agreements in the General Whitley Council for GWC staff and with the British Medical Association for Career Grade Doctors which secured maximum operational flexibility. Mental health staff have benefited by having protected rest periods which have reduced the risks of long working hours. Consequently patients have been better safeguarded.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what his assessment is of the number of people with severe mental illness who could benefit from assertive outreach; and if he will make a statement. [13848]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 12 November 2001]: It is estimated that some 20,000 people need assertive outreach and there is a NHS Plan commitment to have 220 assertive outreach teams established by 2004 to provide the necessary services.

Lung Cancer (Photodynamic Therapy)

Mr. Kevin Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to make photodynamic therapy for lung cancer sufferers available throughout the NHS. [12669]

Jacqui Smith: There is currently not enough evidence to support the introduction of photodynamic therapy in the national health service. If photodynamic therapy is considered to be a potentially significant intervention, it can be referred to the National Institute for Clinical Excellence.

Drugs Budgets

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the level of spending against their drugs budget by (a) PCTs and (b) health authorities this year. [12598]

Ms Blears [holding answer 5 November 2001]: Health authorities and primary care trusts are responsible for setting primary care drugs budgets; decisions on the level of funding will depend on local priorities.

Forecasts of prescribing expenditure are provided to health authorities and PCTs and groups and it is for them to monitor this against their prescribing budgets. Prescribing budgets notified to the Department do not include any contingency reserves held locally.

We do take account of prescribing trends and other influencing factors in primary care prescribing when considering the overall levels of allocations that are made to health authorities. The latest national forecast for 2001–02 prescribing expenditure represents a 9.2 per cent. growth on 2000–01 out-turn.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what account he will be taking of the level of spending against their drugs budgets by (a) PCTs and (b) health authorities this year when determining budgets for next year. [12599]

Ms Blears [holding answer 5 November 2001]: Health authorities and primary care trust drugs budgets are not determined centrally. However, the Department issues guidance each year to the national health service with advice about factors that health authorities and primary care trusts should take into account in setting prescribing budgets. The latest guidance was issued in January 2001.

The latest guidance advises that

"over the past five years the average growth in the drugs bill has been around 8 per cent.", and that when setting prescribing budgets,

"discussions should take into account local circumstances, including past trends and spending comparisons with similar areas."

Health authorities and PCTs and groups are also reminded to take account of additional costs from factors that influence prescribing costs, for example, national service frameworks, newly licenses drugs and National Institute for Clinical Excellence recommendations.

Health authorities and PCTs receive unified allocations to cover the costs of hospital and community health services, discretionary funding for general practice staff, premises and computers and primary care prescribing.

It is for health authorities in partnership with primary care groups/trusts and other local stakeholders to determine how best to use their funds.

We do take account of trends in primary care prescribing costs when considering the overall levels of allocations that are made to health authorities.

Electro-convulsive Therapy

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) mental health and (b) other patients, broken down by reason for their admission to hospital received ECT (i) having given informed consent in advance, (ii) not having given consent but having the matter put to a second opinion and (iii) not having given consent and not having the matter referred to a second opinion-appointed doctor, in each quarter over the last nine years; and how many patients for each of the quarters where figures are available were (A) under 16, (B) 16 to 59, (C) 60 to 75 and (D) 75 years and over. [13111]

Jacqui Smith: The information requested is not available.

The most recent information available is contained in a one-off survey covering the period from January 1999 to March 1999, England only, that was undertaken to provide an up to date and accurate snapshot picture of the use of electro-convulsive therapy (ECT). Prior to this survey, the information previously recorded on ECT did not provide an accurate picture on the use of ECT treatment.

The results of the survey are contained in the Department of Health Statistical Bulletin "Electro-Convulsive Therapy: Survey covering the period from January 1999 to March 1999, England", a copy of which is in the Library.

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when his Department last undertook an evidence review into the use and efficacy of ECT that drew on (a) UK and (b) international research. [13110]

Jacqui Smith: The Department has commissioned a systematic review of the effectiveness and safety of electro-convulsive therapy (ECT). This review which covers both United Kingdom and international research led by Dr. John Geddes at the University of Oxford and is expected to report by the end of this year.

The Department has commissioned the Institute of Psychiatry to conduct a review of studies and information on consumers' perspectives on ECT.

The Department's health technology assessment (HTA) programme has commissioned a review, on behalf of the National Institute for Clinical Excellence, on the clinical cost-effectiveness of ECT due to be completed in May 2002. The HTA programme has also commissioned a trial of the clinical effectiveness and cost of repetitive transcranial magnetic stimulation versus ECT in severe depression. This report is due to be published in May 2006.

The National Health Service Centre for Reviews and Dissemination has conducted systematic reviews relating to the effectiveness of ECT including:

Electro-convulsive therapy for depression

Electro-convulsive therapy for schizophrenia

Half a century of ECT use in young people.

The details of these reviews can be found in the Database of Abstracts of Reviews of Effectiveness available at: http://agatha.york.ac.uk/welcome.htm

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidance has been issued to doctors relating to who should (a) administer and (b) receive ECT in hospitals; and if he will make a statement. [13109]

Jacqui Smith: In 1995, the Royal College of Psychiatrists issued guidance on the use of electro-convulsive therapy (ECT) called "The ECT Handbook—The Second Report of the Royal College of Psychiatrists' Special Committee on ECT". This is an important source of guidance to patients and include sections on clinical guidelines; the administration of ECT; the law and consent. The college expects to issue an updated edition of this guidance in 2002.

In September 1998 the Chief Medical Officer and the president of the Royal College of Psychiatrists sent a joint letter to all consultant psychiatrists, health authorities and national health service trusts. Clinicians and mental health trust managers were expected to ensure ECT is administered to patients in accordance with the college's guidance.

Decisions on clinical interventions remain the prerogative of clinical staff. However, evidence and research tends to support the use of ECT treatment on patients with severe depressive illness and puerperal psychosis.

Nutrition

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what targets his Department has set for the reduction of under-nutrition; and what progress has been made to reach the targets; [12915]

(2) what strategies the Government have in place to (a) manage and (b) monitor under-nutrition in (i) hospital, (ii) residential care and (iii) the wider community; and if he will make a statement; [12916]

(3) what measures are being taken to screen patients for under-nutrition in (a) hospitals, (b) residential care and (c) the wider community; and if he will make a statement. [12917]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 6 November 2001]: In the NHS Plan, we made a commitment to reduce under-nutrition by developing a hospital nutrition policy to improve the outcome of care of patients by 2004. A number of measures and strategies are in place to manage, monitor and screen patients for under-nutrition in hospitals, residential care and the wider community. A full list of these initiatives has been placed in the Library.

We recognise that one of the most important factors in aiding hospital patients to gain improved health is through the provision of good quality nutritional food that the patient is able to eat and enjoy. Two reports published last year—from the Nuffield Trust and the British Association of Parenteral and Enteral Nutrition—made recommendations for hospital nutrition services encompassing both hospital food and artificial nutrition.

We are introducing housekeepers on to ward teams to work with the ward sister. One of the key responsibilities of the housekeeper is to ensure that patients are given encouragement and assistance in, not only choosing suitable meals and snacks but also with eating if required. From 14 November, a housekeeping guide will be able on the national health service estates website. This guide has been compiled after consultation with NHS trusts and all staffing groups, ie dieticians, nurses, caterers, facilities, estates and hotel services. Patients have also been involved with the guide and have been instrumental in establishing the 11 patient-focused national service standards for housekeepers.

Ambulance Services

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Health to what extent each ambulance service in England met Government performance targets in the most recent year for which information is available; what the cost of each service was for that year; and what the cost per head of population of providing each service was in that year. [12926]

Ms Blears [holding answer 6 November 2001]: Information about response times to emergency calls for all national health service ambulance trusts is contained in the Department of Health Statistical Bulletin "Ambulance Services, England 2000–01". A copy is in the Library and available at www.doh.uk/public/sb0115.htm.

Information on the cost of each service and the cost per head of population of providing each service is specified in the table (the most recent available figures are for 2000–01).

NHS trust	Expenditure (£000)	Per weighted head population (£)
Avon Ambulance Service NHS Trust	14,522	15.40
Beds and Herts Ambulance and Paramedic NHS Trust	23,902	16.02
Cumbria Ambulance Service NHS Trust	9,753	19.82
Dorset Ambulance NHS Trust	12,575	18.09
East Anglian Ambulance NHS Trust	33,029	16.36
East Midlands Ambulance Service NHS Trust	45,090	16.13
Essex Ambulance Service NHS Trust	27,242	18.24
Gloucestershire Ambulance Services NHS Trust	8,593	16.70
Greater Manchester Ambulance NHS Trust	35,195	12.55
Hampshire Ambulance Service NHS Trust	21,111	13.94
Hereford and Worcester Ambulance NHS Trust	12,080	19.02
Isle of Wight Healthcare NHS Trust	2,455	17.95
Kent Ambulance NHS Trust	21,743	14.46
Lancashire Ambulance Service NHS Trust	27,150	18.02
Lincolnshire Ambulance NHS Trust	17,660	18.80
London Ambulance Service NHS Trust	119,785	15.01
Mersey Regional Ambulance Service NHS Trust	30,248	12.01
North East Ambulance Service NHS Trust	29,127	17.47
Oxfordshire Ambulance NHS Trust	9,900	18.27
Royal Berkshire Ambulance Service Trust	13,970	19.19
S Yorks Met Amb and Paramed Serv NHS Trust	16,848	12.04
Shropshire's Community and Mental HS NHS Trust	6,340	15.87
Staffordshire Ambulance Service NHS Trust	16,218	16.09
Surrey Ambulance Service NHS Trust	19,518	20.55
Sussex Ambulance Service NHS Trust	27,872	18.19
Tees East and Nth Yorkshire Amb Serv NHS Trust	32,276	17.33
Two Shires Ambulance NHS Trust	18,835	16.75
Warwickshire Ambulance Service NHS Trust	9,328	20.34
West Midlands Ambulance NHS Trust	39,167	14.21
West Yorkshire Ambulance Service NHS Trust	45,173	20.82
West Country Ambulance Services NHS Trust	40,493	19.97
Wiltshire Ambulance Service NHS Trust	9,744	17.99

Hearing Aids

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, (1) pursuant to his answer to the hon. Member for North Devon (Mr. Harvey), on 25 April 2001, Official Report, columns 171–72W, on hearing aids, what plans his Department has to ensure funding for the continued provision of digital hearing aids under the modernising NHS hearing aids services project throughout the financial year 2002–03; [13779]

(2) pursuant to his answer to the hon. Member for Stafford (Mr. Kidney) of 11 July 2001, Official Report, column 508, on digital hearing aids, at what date

following the presentation of the Institute of Hearing Research's final evaluation report he will make an announcement about extending changes in hearing aid services to all NHS audiology departments. [13746]

Jacqui Smith: The evaluation of the modernisation project will be taken into account when considering further investment next year in a national health service hearing aid service, which includes the provision of digital hearing aids. The Department has received interim evaluation reports from the Institute of Hearing Research, and will continue to be updated on progress. Planning and decisions on modernisation and associated funding and resources are being kept under review until further data can start to be taken into account.

National Blood Service

Mr. Havard: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which organisations and individuals make up the National Blood Service's appropriate use of blood and blood components group. [13508]

Mr. Hutton [holding answer 12 November 2001]: The membership of the National Blood Service Appropriate Use of Blood group is:

Chairman:

Dr. Angela Robinson—Medical Director, National Blood Service

Members:

Dr. Paula Bolton-Maggs—Consultant Haemotologist, Alder Hey Hospital

Carol Cantwall—Chief Biomedical Scientist, St. Mary's Hospital, London

Prof. Marcela Contreras—National Blood Service

Jan Gordon—Transfusion Nurse, Chelsea and Westminster Hospital

Dr. Virge James—National Blood Service

Charles McCollum—Professor of Surgery, Manchester

Prof. Paul McMaster—Hepatobiliary and Transplant Surgeon, Birmingham

Dr. Mike Murphy—National Blood Service

Stuart Penny—National Blood Service

Dr. Fiona Regan—National Blood Service

Liz Reynolds—National Blood Service

Dr. Clare Taylor—National Blood Service

Dr. Dafydd Thomas—Consultant, Morriston Hospital

John Thompson—Royal Devon and Exeter Hospital

Dr. Dorothy Stainsby—National Blood Service

Brian Chaves—National Blood Service

Dr. Liz Love—National Blood Service

John McCoy—National Blood Service.

Traditional Medicines Directive

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representation he intends to make to the European Commission about the proposed traditional medicines directive. [13851]

Ms Blears [holding answer 12 November 2001]: The United Kingdom comments on early drafts of the proposal for a directive on traditional medicinal products were set out in letters from the Medicines Control Agency (MCA) to the European Commission dated 18 December 2000 and 30 April 2001. Copies of these letters have been placed in the Library. The Commission has indicated that it expects shortly to adopt proposals for new provisions on traditional herbal medicinal products. We will decide what further representations may be required once we have assessed these updated proposals.

Psychosis

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if it is his policy that by 2004 all young people who experience a first episode of psychosis should be offered the choice of being prescribed atypical medicines. [13849]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 12 November 2001]: As indicated in the mental health policy implementation guide, early intervention in psychosis teams should use either low dose traditional or atypical antipsychotics in first line treatment and they should involve service users in decision making and monitoring of effects. The NHS Plan states that by 2004 all young people who experience a first episode of psychosis, such as schizophrenia, will receive the early and intensive support they need.

Governing Bodies

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he last met the (a) chairman of the council of the BMA, (b) president of the Royal College of Physicians, (c) president of the Royal College of Surgeons, (d) president of the Royal College of Psychiatrists, (e) president of the Royal College of General Practitioners, (f) president of the Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists and (g) president of the Royal College of Nursing. [13857]

Ms Blears [holding answer 12 November 2001]: Dates of the latest meetings with my right hon. Friend are shown. Where there have been no meetings with my right hon. Friend, the latest meetings with other ministerial colleagues are shown.

(a) Chairman of the Council of the BMA: 11 July 2001

(b) President of the Royal College of Physicians: 10 July 2001

(c) President of the Royal College of Surgeons: 19 July 2001 (my noble Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary (Lords), Lord Hunt)

(d) President of the Royal College of Psychiatrists: 18 July 2001 (my right hon. Friend the Minister for Health (Mr. Hutton))

(e) President of the Royal College of General Practitioners: 10 July 2001

(f) President of the Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists

(g) President of the Royal College of Nursing.

NHS Budget (Hertfordshire)

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what his estimate is of the amount by which Hertfordshire will overspend on the NHS budget in the current financial year. [13244]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 12 November 2001]: The estimated projected overspend across Hertfordshire in 2001–02 is £8 million of which £5.1 million is for East and North Hertfordshire National Health Service Trust and £2.9 million in respect of prescribing. There are long standing financial issues that affect Hertfordshire and the NHS eastern regional office is actively involved in agreeing a financial recovery plan.

Hampshire and Surrey Ambulance Services

Mr. Viggers: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the cost was of the consultation exercise on the proposed merger of Hampshire and Surrey ambulance services. [13503]

Ms Blears [holding answer 12 November 2001]: The information requested is not available.

Smallpox

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions he has had with the World Health Organisation regarding contingency plans for combating an outbreak of smallpox in the UK. [12253]

Jacqui Smith: Ministers and officials have frequent formal and informal contacts with the World Health Organisation on a range of health-related topics including issues around the health threats posed by a bioterrorist threat. Within the framework of these ongoing contacts, we have had no specific discussions on contingency planning for combating an outbreak of smallpox in the United Kingdom, although we are aware of the guidance WHO has published on these matters. As part of our contingency planning we will keep open our contacts with WHO so that we can call upon their advice and technical assistance as necessary.

Stoke Mandeville Merger

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what is his policy towards the proposed merger of the Stoke Mandeville Hospital and South Buckinghamshire NHS Trust. [14710]

Ms Blears: The merger of Stoke Mandeville Hospital national health service trust and South Buckinghamshire NHS trust has been proposed by the trusts and Buckinghamshire health authority. The proposal is currently with Ministers for consideration.

Primary Care Trusts

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what arrangements have been made for the transfer of funding streams from district health authorities to PCTs . [14340]

Mr. Hutton: At present my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State allocates resources to health authorities. Health authorities then allocate resources to their primary care trusts. In the future, as part of our programme to devolve power to frontline organisations, we intend that the Secretary of State will allocate resources direct to primary care trusts. The National Health Service Reform and Health Care Professions Bill, currently before Parliament, seeks to give effect to this.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what arrangements have been made to ensure the continuity of employment of staff transferring from district health authorities to component PCTs. [14341]

Mr. Hutton: For staff transferring from health authorities to primary care trusts under Transfer of Undertakings Protection of Employment (TUPE) Regulations 1981 or by terms reflecting TUPE principles (Transfer Orders), continuity of service will automatically apply. This means that there will be no break in service and existing pay and terms and conditions of employment will be protected at the point of transfer.

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he expects to make decisions regarding the confirmation of primary care trusts in Cambridgeshire. [14023]

Mr. Hutton: The process of approving applications for primary care trust status is contained in Health Service Circular 1999/167. Primary care trust applications are currently being assessed and will be considered for approval against the published national criteria over the next two months.

Social Services Staff Training

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to overhaul training courses available to social services staff. [14343]

Jacqui Smith: Guidance on the training and qualifications that all social care staff should undertake is given in the National Training Strategy document: "Modernising the Social Care Workforce" which the National Training Organisation for Social Care published, with endorsement from the Minister of State, my right hon. Friend the Member for Barrow and Furness (Mr. Hutton), in July 2000.

In March 2001 we also announced the development of a three-year degree level qualification in social work to replace the current two-year Diploma course. The degree level qualification will be introduced in England from September 2003.

GP Recruitment (Financial Incentives)

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) for what reason Worthing is not included in areas eligible for his new incentive scheme for recruiting GPs to work in areas of high shortages; [14345]

(2) if he will list those areas eligible for his scheme to provide financial incentives to general practitioners to work in areas of high shortages; and what sums are available in each. [14344]

Mr. Hutton: There are incentives for all areas of up to £5,000 per eligible general practitioner. Those areas deemed as underdoctored will attract an additional payment of up to £5,000 more per eligible GP.

The primary care trusts/groups eligible for the underdoctored additional payment are those that have fewer than the national median number of GPs (GP principals or equivalent on whole-time equivalent basis) per 100,000 weighted population. The national PCT/G median is 52.695 GPs per 100,000 weighted population, Worthing PCG has 54.35 GPs per 100,000 weighted population and therefore each newly appointed GP will receive up to £5,000.

There is no cap to the amount of money available to any area under this scheme.

The list of areas eligible to receive the additional payment for being an underdoctored area, along with guidance on the golden hello scheme is available on the Department of Health website at www.doh.gov.uk/pricare/goldenhello. A copy is also available in the Library.

Public-private Projects

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list those public-private projects being negotiated within the national health service. [14338]

Mr. Hutton: Many contracts are negotiated every year between national health service bodies and private sector suppliers for a wide range of services and equipment. Information is only held centrally on private finance initiative (PFI) projects with a capital value of £1 million or greater. These are listed in the table (in negotiation is interpreted as any stage between OJEC notice and financial close).

Region/Trust	Project description
Northern and Yorks
Newcastle-upon-Tyne Hospitals NHS Trust	Completion of Reconfiguration of Acute Hospital Services in Newcastle
Leeds Teaching Hospitals NHS Trust	Implementation of Leeds Acute Services Reconfiguration Strategy
North Durham Health Care NHS Trust	Chester-le-Street Community Hospital
Huddersfield and Calderdale NHS Trusts	EPR (Electronic Patient Record) scheme
Leeds Teaching Hospitals	EPR scheme
Bradford Hospitals NHS Trust and Airdale NHS trust	EPR scheme
Trent
Southern Derbyshire Acute Hospitals NHS Trust (2, 3)	Acute Reconfiguration
Nottingham Healthcare NHS Trust	Elderly Mental Health
Doncaster and South Humber NHS	Mental Health Services
Nottingham City Hospital NHS Trust	Staff residences
Eastern
East and North Hertfordshire NHS Trust	Ambulatory Care Centre
Princess Alexandra Hospital NHS Trust	Staff accommodation
London
Havering Hospitals NHS Trust	Redevelopment of Hospital Facilities
Newham Healthcare NHS Trust	Rationalisation
The Whittington Hospital NHS Trust	Redevelopment of Acute Hospital Services
Parkside Health NHS Trust	Willesden
West London Pathology Consortium	Pathology Systems
Havering Hospital NHS Trust	EPR scheme
King's Healthcare NHS Trust	EPR scheme
Guy's and St. Thomas' Hospital NHS Trust	EPR scheme
Lewisham Hospital NHS Trust	EPR scheme
South East
Portsmouth Hospitals NHS Trust	Acute rationalisation
Oxford Radcliffe Hospitals NHS Trust	Radcliffe infirmary relocation to John Radcliffe Hospital Site
Stoke Mandeville Hospital NHS Trust	Partial Redevelopment
Newbury Primary Care NHS Trust	Consolidation of sites in Newbury
Nuffield Orthopaedic Centre NHS Trust	Orthopaedic/Medicines redevelopment
Northamptonshire Healthcare NHS Trust	Mental Health Acute Hospital reprovision
East Kent Community NHS Trust	West View Reprovision Joint NHS/Local Authority
Brighton Health Care NHS Trust	Renal Unit Reprovision
Northampton Community Healthcare NHS Trust	Danetre Community Health Centre Joint NHS/Local Authority
Invicta Community Care NHS Trust	Mental Health Reprovision
Northamptonshire Healthcare NHS Trust	Acute Mental Health Ward reprovision
Brighton Health Care NHS Trust	Brighton Education Centre
Bournewood Community and Mental Health NHS Trust	Walton and Chertsey Health Centres
Ashford and St. Peter's NHS Trust	Energy Management Scheme
Mid-Sussex NHS Trust	Low Secure Unit
Royal Berkshire and Battle Hospitals NHS Trust	RBBH Pas
Royal Surrey County Hospital	EPR scheme
Heatherwood and Wexham Park NHS Trust	EPR scheme
Milton Keynes General NHS Trust	EPR scheme
South Buckinghamshire NHS Trust	EPR scheme
Stoke Mandeville NHS Trust	EPR scheme
North Staffordshire Hospital NHS Trust	EPR scheme
South West
Gloucestershire Royal NHS Trust	Site re-development
Exeter and District Community Health Services NHS Trust	Tiverton Hospital
Cornwall Healthcare NHS Trust	Western Mental Health, Cambourne and Redruth
Wiltshire and Swindon Health Care NHS Trust	Bradford-on-Avon Hospital
South West Regional Procurement	EPR systems
Swindon and Marlborough	EPR scheme

Region/Trust	Project description
West Midlands
University Hospitals Warwickshire and Coventry NHS Trust	New DGH
City Hospital NHS Trust	Ambulatory Care Centre
Mid-Staffordshire General Hospitals NHS Trust	EPR scheme
North West
Central Manchester Healthcare NHS Trust	Service Reconfiguration
Blackburn, Hyndburn and Ribble Valley Healthcare NHS Trust	Site Rationalisation
Countess of Chester Hospital NHS Trust	Staff Residential Accommodation
Christie NHS Trust	EPR scheme
Blackburn NHS Trust	EPR scheme
Burnley NHS Trust	EPR scheme
North Manchester NHS Trust	EPR scheme
Chorley and Preston NHS Trust	EPR scheme
Salford Mental Health NHS Trust	EPR scheme

General Practice Nurses

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many practice nurses worked in general practice surgeries in each of the last five years; and what were their full-time working equivalents. [14346]

Mr. Hutton: Figures showing the number (headcount) and whole-time equivalent for practice nurses employed by unrestricted principals and equivalents in each of the last five years are shown in the table.

Practice nurses employed by unrestricted principals and equivalents (UPEs)[1] as at 1 October 1996–99 and 30 September 2000—England

	Headcount[2]	Whole-time equivalent
1996	17,900	9,820
1997	18,390	10,080
1998	18,890	10,360
1999	19,500	10,690
2000	19,200	10,710

[1] UPEs includes GMS unrestricted principals, PMS contracted GPs and PMS salaried GPs.

[2] Headcount data were not collected in 1998 and 1999; data for these years have been estimated from whole-time equivalents (wte) using the 1997 wte to headcount ratio.

Note:

Data are rounded to the nearest ten.

Source:

Department of Health General and Personal Medical Services Statistics.

National Clinical Director for Children

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on the change of name to the National Clinical Director for Children. [14339]

Jacqui Smith: Professor Al Aynsley-Green's appointment was announced in July this year, following the publication of the report from the Bristol Royal Infirmary Inquiry. The term "National Director for Healthcare services" originated in a recommendation in that report.

However, Professor Aynsley-Green's role includes chairing the Children's Taskforce, and leading work to develop the Children's National Service Framework. Both of these roles require an overview across health and social care services.

The title of "National Clinical Director for Children" recognises Professor Aynsley-Green's particular expertise as a clinician, but does not limit the type of services in which he takes an interest. This formulation matches that used for many other national directors.

New Hospitals

Mr. Andrew Mitchess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many new hospitals and significant hospital buildings, as defined by his Department, were (a) in progress in May 1997 and (b) opened during 1997. [14538]

Mr. Hutton: The Department's definition of a significant hospital building development is any capital investment scheme with a total cost of over £25 million. No such publicly funded schemes started construction in 1997 until the private finance initiative began to deliver, with the Dartford and Gravesham scheme in August 1997 and the Carlisle scheme in November 1997. Since 1 May 1997, 64 such schemes have been given approval to proceed under the private finance initiative.

In May 1997, 12 significant publicly funded schemes were in progress, having started construction several years previously. Eight such schemes reached completion during 1997.

LORD CHANCELLOR'S DEPARTMENT

Jury Service

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what is the Government's policy on the eligibility for jury service of hon. Members and Members of the House of Lords. [14711]

Mr. Denham: I have been asked to reply.

The right to be excused jury service was considered by Sir Robin Auld as part of his independent review of the criminal courts. He recommended that no-one should be excusable from jury service as of right, only on showing good reason for excusal. His report is the subject of public consultation until the end of January 2002, and the Government will give careful consideration to these issues in the light of comments received.

Freedom of Information Act

Tony Wright: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department when he will bring the Freedom of Information Act 2000 into force. [15143]

Mr. Wills: I have today placed in the Library of the House a paper, containing a Schedule of organisations and dates, that sets out the Government's plans for implementing the Freedom of Information Act 2000.

Lord Chancellor's Apartments

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department how much money has been raised for charity by granting permission for outside bodies to use the Lord Chancellor's apartments in each year since 1997. [13634]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Since March 1998 there have been about 150 charitable receptions in the Lord Chancellor's official residence. The following figures are a break down of the amount of money raised for charity between March 1998 and October 2001.

Financial year[1]	£
1997–98	541,650
1998–99	472,279
1999–2000	368,715
2000–01	711,667
2001–02	2,281,000
Total	4,375,311

[1] 1 April to 31 March

Law Society

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department when he next plans to meet the President of the Law Society. [13635]

Mr. Wills: I last met the President of the Law Society on 29 October but neither I nor any of my ministerial colleagues have appointments arranged with him at present. However, meetings with the President take place on a fairly regular basis and it is likely that further appointments will be arranged in the future.

Terence MacSwiney

Harry Cohen: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department if she will arrange for the release of all official documents relating to Mr. Terence MacSwiney, former Lord Mayor of Cork; and if she will make a statement. [13539]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Records relating to Terence MacSwiney have been transferred to the Public Record Office by the Home Office, the Metropolitan Police and the Judge Advocate General's Office. Those that were closed under the guidelines that obtained before the 'Open Government' White paper 1993 (Cm 2290) will now be reviewed by the transferring departments under current guidelines. This is in accordance with standard practice, which is to undertake re-review of specific historical records on request.

Researchers who require access to closed records held by the PRO or to historical records still held by departments should write to the Departmental Record Officer of the department that created the records (or its successor) quoting the PRO reference where this is known. Requests for review of access restrictions are handled in the order in which they are received, regardless of the source of the inquiry or its subject matter. The only exception to this is where the information is urgently required for legal purposes.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Livestock Movements

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment she has made of the impact on animal welfare of the implementation of the licensing provisions for the movement of livestock. [10178]

Mr. Morley: The movement licence provisions were drawn up in close co-operation with the farming industry. They permit as much movement of live animals as possible consistent with the overall objective of containing and eradicating foot and mouth disease. The arrangements are kept under review in the light of the developing disease situation.

Cases for exceptional movements on the ground of welfare needs are considered on a case-by-case basis. The Livestock Welfare Disposal Scheme is available as a last resort to those farmers who face unavoidable welfare difficulties.

Sheepmeat

Mrs. Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what (a) additional finance and (b) new marketing initiatives her Department is providing to reinforce consumer confidence in the purchase and consumption of lamb, sheepmeat and related products. [11215]

Mr. Morley: Subject to state aids clearance, DEFRA will contribute match-funding of £2.72 million towards the Meat and Livestock Commission's autumn campaign to promote lamb consumption.

Hunting

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when she plans to publish the veterinary risk assessment report on the risk of spreading foot and mouth disease via the activities of hunts; and if she will make a statement. [12021]

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when she plans to publish the veterinary risk assessment report on the effect of foot and mouth on a recommencement of hunting. [10392]

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when she intends to publish the results of the veterinary risk assessment of hunting with dogs. [10561]

Mrs. Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when she will publish the veterinary risk assessment on hunting with hounds; and when she will lift the restrictions placed on hunting with hounds as a consequence of the outbreak of foot and mouth disease. [14270]

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when the risk assessment report on the resumption of hunting with dogs will be published; and for what reason she has not published it to date. [13478]

Mr. Cameron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when she plans to publish the veterinary risk assessment into restarting hunting; and if she will make a statement. [13469]

Alun Michael: This veterinary risk assessment raises a number of complex issues regarding the future of foot and mouth disease related restrictions on hunting and such matters involve a careful balance of risks. It will be published as soon as Ministers and DEFRA officials have completed their consideration of the document. An announcement on the future of foot and mouth disease controls on hunting will be made as soon as possible.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans she has to propose legislation in respect of hunting with dogs. [11806]

Alun Michael [holding answer 6 November 2001:]: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave to him on 20 July 2001, Official Report, column 635W.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when she will lift the restrictions placed on hunting with dogs as a consequence of the outbreak of foot and mouth. [13477]

Alun Michael [holding answer 9 November 2001]: This veterinary risk assessment raises a number of complex issues regarding the future of foot and mouth disease related restrictions on hunting and such matters involve a careful balance of risks. It will be published as soon as Ministers and DEFRA officials have completed their consideration of the document. An announcement on the future of foot and mouth disease controls on hunting will be made as soon as possible.

Regional Office (Exeter)

Mrs. Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) on what date she was informed of (a) missing equipment and (b) the suspension of personnel at her Department's regional office at Exeter; and on what date the equipment was first found to be missing; [12828]

(2) if she will list the items discovered missing from her Department's regional office at Exeter; what data are contained on the equipment; and to what the data on the equipment related; [12830]

(3) on what date the Devon and Cornwall constabulary was informed of (a) missing equipment and (b) the suspension of staff from her Department's regional office at Exeter; [12829]

(4) for what reasons staff have been suspended from their posts at her Department's regional office at Exeter on

1 November; whether these suspensions are on a permanent or temporary basis; and if she will state the seniority and role of the members of staff involved. [12827]

Mr. Morley: 18 members of staff who had been based at Exeter are suspended from duty while the Department carries out its own internal criminal investigation concerning expenses claims. An investigation into missing equipment is also being carried out. The police have not been advised as my staff have the power to deal with criminal matters.

As the investigations are on-going it would be inappropriate for me to comment further at this time.

Farm Diversification

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans she has to encourage more diversification of farmed land into (a) fuel growing, (b) aqua culture, (c) coppicing, (d) organic and biomass farming and (e) leisure uses in the next five years; and what changes she expects in the levels of employment as a result. [13717]

Alun Michael: All the activities listed by my hon. Friend are potentially eligible for support under the England Rural Development Programme (ERDP), either as farm diversification projects or under specific schemes, such as the Organic Farming or Energy Crops Schemes. Encouragement of uptake under the ERDP is being promoted through a variety of routes, including in national and regional media, through the Department's presence at agricultural and similar shows providing the opportunity for direct contact with potential grant recipients, through revised specialist literature, and through the work of partner organisations and others providing business advice to farmers. Some crops grown for energy purposes may alternatively receive support under the Arable Area Payments Scheme.

As far as changes in employment levels are concerned, the ERDP was developed as a significant tool for the long-term regeneration of rural areas and the encouragement of an environmentally sustainable and economically diverse countryside. While the programme does include targets for numbers of jobs sustained or created under some of the measures, the impact of the programme on the rural economy and environment overall is potentially of greater significance than the single indicator of levels of employment.

Live Animals (Export)

Mr. Rendel: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps she is taking to ensure that all livestock vehicles transporting animals for over eight hours are required to install a forced ventilation system. [13549]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 9 November 2001]: Correct ventilation, control and monitoring of the conditions in livestock vehicles is important to maintain animal welfare. Discussions are continuing in the context of the European Commission's proposal for a revision of the EU regulation which sets standards for over eight hour livestock vehicle ventilation.

Flood Risk

Mr. Sayeed: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what representations the Government have received on the level of insurance premiums being demanded of homeowners whose property lies in an area classified as a high flood risk; and if she will make a statement. [13911]

Mr. Morley: The Government maintain close links with the insurance industry to help ensure continued availability of affordable flood cover. Together with the flood defence operating authorities, we are reducing the risk of flooding and are communicating this to the industry. However, it must be recognised that insurance companies need to take a commercial decision as to what risk they will cover and on what terms.

The agreement among ABI members is that they will continue to provide flood cover, except in exceptional circumstances, for domestic properties and small businesses which they currently insure, during 2001 and 2002. My hon. Friend the Economic Secretary to the Treasury and I met the Association of British Insurers on 5 September to discuss our mutual aim of ensuring that affordable flood insurance cover continues to be generally available after December 2002. Further discussions between officials have taken place.

In relation to the concerns expressed by the ABI, the Government are acting to reduce flood risk, through substantial increases in investment in flood and coastal defence (which now totals over £400 million a year). Flood defences are being repaired, renewed, maintained and improved. Flood warning arrangements are continually being improved. The Government have issued strengthened guidance to local planning authorities on control of development in flood risk areas, and are reviewing the financial and institutional arrangements under which the flood defence service is delivered.

Mr. Sayeed: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment she has made of the efficacy of the flood risk area analysis, conducted by the Environment Agency; and if she will make a statement. [13890]

Mr. Morley: No formal assessment has been made by my Department. The Environment Agency flood plain maps are completed on the basis of the best information available. They are indicative only. A party seeking a more specific site related flood risk analysis should seek further, more detailed, local information from the Environment Agency, and/or carry out further investigations to determine the nature and extent of flood risk within a particular area. The maps are continuously improved and updated on an annual basis as better information is gained.

The agency is currently in the process of extending the scope of this mapping to provide an indication of an extreme flood outline for the whole of England and Wales which will give a better indication of the range of potential flood risk in many areas. It is expected that these maps will be published before the end of 2002.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Departmental Properties

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will list the number, value and location of properties newly leased in each of the last five years by his Department, broken down by those leases by the Department itself, its next step agencies and its non-departmental public bodies, differentiating between purchases made as a result of the creation of new bodies and those purchases made by established bodies. [7822]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: Tables of information have been placed in the Library. The tables include details of both the freehold and leasehold accommodation that has been acquired by the former Employment Service (ES) in the last five years. Information about "PRIME leases" taken on by the former Department of Social Security (DSS) is provided from 1 April 1998, as details are currently available only from when the PRIME contract commenced. The PRIME PFI contract transferred the ownership of the former DSS freehold properties and all obligations for leasehold accommodation to our private sector partners Land Securities Trillium.

As modern leases have no intrinsic value as such, the rental cost of the former ES accommodation is given together with the market value of the freehold accommodation where appropriate. For the former DSS, details of the Facilities Price that we pay to Land Securities Trillium for the additional serviced office accommodation that has been taken on is provided. The Facilities Price covers not only the space we occupy but also a large number of building related services such as building management and maintenance, internal and external cleaning, and security.

The only additional accommodation that has been taken on as a result of the creation of a new body is for the Pension Service.

While we have taken on new accommodation in recent years, the flexibility in the PRIME contract has allowed us to reduce overall office space on the former DSS part of the estate from 1,488,701 sq m to approximately 1,300,000 sq m, as at October 2001. Taking the average 2001–02 Facility Price of £182 per square metre, this equates to a saving of approximately £34.34 m per annum.

National Insurance Numbers

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many surplus national insurance numbers have been removed from his Department's Central Index since 1997; and what plans he has to tackle the problem of bogus and surplus numbers. [7477]

Malcolm Wicks: The Departmental Central Index (DCI) Data Cleaning Project removed 100,000 surplus duplicate National Insurance numbers (NINOs) from the DCI between April 1997 and March 2001.

To prevent the creation of further bogus and duplicate NINOs, the Enhanced NINO allocation process was introduced nationally from April 2001.

Stakeholder Pensions

Jeff Ennis: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) by what means he will ensure that smaller companies provide stakeholder pensions to their employees; [10436]

(2) how many companies with 50 or fewer workers have registered to provide stakeholder pensions. [10382]

Mr. McCartney: Employers are required to provide employees with access to a stakeholder pension scheme. Employers are not themselves required to set up a pension scheme or to contribute to it.

Regulation of compliance with the requirement for employers to designate a stakeholder pension scheme for their employees will be undertaken by the Occupational Pensions Regulatory Authority (Opra).

The number of employees in companies that have designated stakeholder pensions schemes for their staff is not available. However, figures from the Association of British Insurers show that the end of September this year, 212,242 employers of all sizes had designated stakeholder pension schemes for their workforces.

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what action he is taking to improve access to free or low-cost advice to those intending to take out stakeholder pensions. [13901]

Mr. McCartney: Stakeholder pensions are designed to be simple. Many pension providers currently offer basic advice within the 1 per cent. annual management charge cap for stakeholder pensions. Additionally, the Financial Services Authority has produced decision trees to assist consumers.

Benefit Fraud

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what measures he has taken to ensure that local authorities have implemented their action plans drawn up in response to reports by the Benefit Fraud Inspectorate. [11816]

Malcolm Wicks: Shortly after the publication of a Benefit Fraud Inspectorate (BFI) report, the local authority concerned is invited to respond to the BFI's findings, giving its proposals for improvement. Where the response indicates that the actions the authority has already taken or plans to take to improve its performance are satisfactory, the Department monitors the performance of the authority through the management information they provide and their performance against Best Value performance indicators.

Where there are continuing concerns, authorities are asked to submit progress reports to ensure that their planned improvements are being implemented and achieved. If it is thought necessary to gain additional assurance that improvements have been implemented, the BFI may be asked to undertake a further inspection.

Benefit Appeals

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many (a) appeals and (b) successful appeals there were in respect of each centre processing (i) disability benefit claims and (ii) incapacity benefit claims (A) in 2000–01 and (B) since April. [11907]

Maria Eagle: The information is in the table.

The number of appeals cleared for disability benefits and incapacity benefit in respect of each appeals service regional centre and the number found in favour of the appellant for 2000–01 and 2001 (year to date)

	1 April 2000 to 31 March 2001		1 April 2001 to 30 September 2001
Appeals service regional centre/disability benefit	Appeals cleared at hearing	Appeals found in favour of the appellant	Appeals cleared at hearing	Appeals found in favour of the appellant
Birmingham
Attendance Allowance	1,056	399	413	165
Disability Living Allowance	7,191	3,126	3,475	1,576
Incapacity Benefit	2,771	983	1,333	533
Industrial Injuries and Disability Benefit	1,273	526	541	262
Severe Disablement Allowance	172	62	75	33
Cardiff
Attendance Allowance	1,266	516	725	311
Disability Living Allowance	11,696	5,685	6,422	3,426
Incapacity Benefit	4,761	1,777	2,667	1,111
Industrial Injuries and Disability Benefit	2,546	956	1,416	569
Severe Disablement Allowance	295	118	163	78
Glasgow
Attendance Allowance	2,215	1,026	1,210	632
Disability Living Allowance	13,691	7,115	7,254	4,180
Incapacity Benefit	5,136	2,169	2,549	1,098
Industrial Injuries and Disability Benefit	3,241	1,261	1,767	795
Severe Disablement Allowance	238	83	123	50
Leeds
Attendance Allowance	1,035	407	468	194
Disability Living Allowance	7,668	3,681	3,508	1,775
Incapacity Benefit	4,846	1,913	1,886	743
Industrial Injuries and Disability Benefit	2,857	659	1,526	315
Severe Disablement Allowance	185	41	59	10
Liverpool
Attendance Allowance	869	345	304	129
Disability Living Allowance	9,755	4,697	3,940	1,935
Incapacity Benefit	4,785	2,115	1,980	961
Industrial Injuries and Disability Benefit	1,597	606	749	309
Severe Disablement Allowance	135	63	89	34
Newcastle
Attendance Allowance	790	347	315	148
Disability Living Allowance	7,162	3,337	3,540	1,727
Incapacity Benefit	2,801	1,002	1,404	545
Industrial Injuries and Disability Benefit	2,583	1,311	1,485	730
Severe Disablement Allowance	100	47	71	30
Nottingham
Attendance Allowance	1,462	668	680	289
Disability Living Allowance	10,356	4,957	5,614	2,800
Incapacity Benefit	5,000	1,761	2,016	694
Industrial Injuries and Disability Benefit	2,733	1,277	1,554	726
Severe Disablement Allowance	392	135	192	77
Salford
Attendance Allowance	455	183	208	84
Disability Living Allowance	5,220	2,498	2,699	1,279
Incapacity Benefit	2,866	1,036	1,325	460
Industrial Injuries and Disability Benefit	824	380	342	140
Severe Disablement Allowance	69	33	53	27
Sutton
Attendance Allowance	999	625	642	400
Disability Living Allowance	6,095	3,990	3,613	2,439
Incapacity Benefit	4,626	2,432	2,154	1,145
Industrial Injuries and Disability Benefit	944	498	330	177
Severe Disablement Allowance	255	124	96	38

Source:
Generic Appeals Processing System

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what were the total running costs in respect of each centre of (a) processing disability benefit appeals and (b) processing incapacity benefit appeals in (i) 2000–01 and (b) 2001. [11908]

Maria Eagle: The information is in the tables:

Total running costs in respect of each appeals service regional centre for disability benefits (disability living allowance and attendance allowance) and incapacity benefit for 2000–01 and 2001

£

	1 April 2000 to 31 March 2001
Appeals service regional centre	Disability benefits[1]	Incapacity benefit
Birmingham	1,298,036	582,388
Cardiff	2,095,244	1,332,337
Glasgow	2,517,265	1,183,681
Leeds	1,111,209	1,026,671
Liverpool	1,449,165	1,359,845
Newcastle	1,352,022	708,351
Nottingham	1,926,581	985,176
Salford	1,037,612	665,707
Sutton	1,484,387	1,298,467

£

	1 April 2001 to 30 September 2001
Appeals service regional centre	Disability benefits[1]	Incapacity benefit
Birmingham	669,145	300,225
Cardiff	1,272,719	809,305
Glasgow	1,396,331	656,590
Leeds	599,987	554,341
Liverpool	662,309	621,487
Newcastle	791,802	414,840
Nottingham	1,191,271	609,168
Salford	533,631	342,365
Sutton	830,748	726,607

[1] Only Disability Living Allowance and Attendance Allowance

Minimum Income Guarantee

Mr. Challen: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many pensioners in Morley and Rothwell are receiving the Minimum Income Guarantee; and how many pensioners he estimates are entitled to it. [13450]

Mr. McCartney: Estimates of the numbers of people who may be eligible for, but who have not claimed Minimum Income Guarantee (MIG) are not available below national level.

As at May 2001, there were an estimated 2,600 MIG recipients in the Morley and Rothwell constituency.

Agency Costs

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on the cost of the launch of the new agency to bring together the work of the Employment Service and parts of the Benefits Agency. [14095]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Havant (Mr. Willetts) on 28 June 2001, Official Report, column 160W.

Carers' Benefits

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he will lay the orders implementing changes in carers' benefits. [13903]

Maria Eagle: We propose to make the changes by Regulatory Reform Order, to be introduced in the House as soon as possible.

Pension Funds

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if his Department will hold discussions with the Law Commission on a review to clarify the ownership and distribution of pension fund surpluses. [14349]

Mr. McCartney: Officials have been exploring the matter with the Law Commission.

Housing Benefit

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions which Scottish local authorities had received a report from the Benefit Fraud Inspectorate on the administration of housing benefit by 8 November. [14348]

Malcolm Wicks: Benefit Fraud Inspectorate reports have been published[1] on the Scottish local authorities as listed:

Angus
Dundee
East Dunbartonshire
East Lothian
East Lothian (second inspection)
Edinburgh
Glasgow
Highland
Inverclyde
Scottish Borders
South Ayrshire
Stirling.

Copies of the reports can be found in the Library.

[1] The list does not include those authorities which have been inspected but the report has not yet been published.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Student Funding

Mr. Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the projected funding levels are per full-time student in (a) sixth forms and (b) further education colleges for each of the next two years. [6683]

John Healey: The latest estimate of the average delegated funding per sixth form student in schools is for 2000–01 and is £3,230. On this basis, projected average funding for 2001–02 is £3,330, rising to £3,430 in 2002–03. The total funding per full-time equivalent student in FE sector colleges in 2000–01 allocated by this Department is £3,420 rising to £3,660 in 2001–02, and £3,760 in 2002–03. However, these figures are not directly comparable, as the FE unit funding figures include total public funding allocated for further education, while the schools' figures are based only on delegated funds and exclude other funding which the school receives centrally from LEAs which impact on post-16 students.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much her Department has spent per student in higher education in each year since 1990, excluding contributions from outside the public sector. [11127]

Margaret Hodge: The available data for England are shown in the table.

Publicly planned funding for higher education institutions in England[1]

Year	Funding per FTE student[2]
1991–92	5,300
1992–93	5,060
1993–94	4,900
1994–95	4,830
1995–96	4,750
1996–97	4,580
1997–98	4,580
1998–99	4,700
1999–2000	4,810
2000–01	4,860
2001–02	5,020
2002–03	5,140
2003–04	5,290

[1] Unit funding is based on HEFCE/TTA recurrent grant and plus tuition fees, divided by the number of full time equivalent students. It excludes capital, funding for widening access and all student support

[2] Figures are rounded to nearest £10

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what is the timetable for an announcement on the new proposals for higher education funding; if representatives of the National Union of Students are being consulted under the review; and whether the present system of tuition fees will be abolished. [13000]

Margaret Hodge: We need to ensure that we have an appropriate balance between the contribution made by students, their families and the state to support our ambitions to widen access and participation in higher education. A range of policy options is being considered and no decisions have been taken.

We plan to consult widely on any proposals for change and would expect the National Union of Students to contribute. No decisions have been taken yet on the timing of an announcement.

Individual Learning Accounts

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many individual learning accounts have been opened (a) in total and (b) in each region and nation of the United Kingdom, (i) in absolute numbers and (ii) per capita of the population of working age. [11267]

John Healey: As at 31 October, an overall 2,529,609 people in England had opened an Individual Learning Account through the national framework, launched in September 2000[1].

The breakdown supplied of membership by region in the table excludes 86,355 cases for which postcode details are not held.

Area	Number of Individual Learning Accounts opened to 28 October 2001	Per capita of working age population[2] Per cent.
England	2,529,609	7.0
East Midlands	208,064	8.0
East of England	202,124	6.0
London	466,982	9.0
North East	92,103	6.0
North West	262,094	7.0
South East	346,929	7.0
South West	234,055	8.0
West Midlands	438,331	13.0
Yorkshire and the Humber	191,643	6.0

[1] Prior to the national ILA framework, 202,654 members applied via TECs. Of these, 79,901 transferred their membership to the national framework and are therefore included in the overall total; 122,753 did not.

[2] Source—Labour Force Survey, Summer 2001.

Alistair Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills, pursuant to her answer of 30 October 2001, Official Report, column 620W, on Individual Learning Accounts, on what date her Department first received a complaint about the operation of the individual learning account scheme; and if she will provide a monthly breakdown of all subsequent complaints received to date. [12290]

John Healey: The Individual Learning Account (ILA) Centre received five complaints in September 2000. Between 4 September 2000 and 30 September 2001 the ILA Centre received a total of 6,053 complaints. At the end of October, taking account of complaints received direct by the Department, the total number of complaints was 8,448 against a backdrop of 2,529,609 Individual Learning Accounts opened. Around a quarter (2,314) of these related to learning providers not following the rules of the programme correctly. It is important to note that the complaints recorded are wide ranging and include issues such as the ending of the £150 opening offer as well as service provision and providers. The October figure relates to those received at the ILA Centre and by the Department. The table provides a breakdown of this figure by month and cumulatively.

Month	Accounts opened (cumulative)	Complaints received (cumulative)	Percentage complaints (cumulative)	Percentage complaints (in-month)
September 2000	109,564	5	—	—
October 2000	214,880	365	0.16	0.35
November 2000	292,641	744	0.25	0.49
December 2000	347,175	930	0.26	0.34
January 2001	446,724	1,066	0.23	0.14
February 2001	556,928	1,320	0.23	0.23
March 2001	661,558	1,492	0.22	0.16
April 2001	781,572	1,748	0.22	0.21
May 2001	988,539	2,019	0.20	0.13
June 2001	1,276,275	2,365	0.18	0.12
July 2001	1,578,014	3,096	0.19	0.24
August 2001	1,941,468	4,304	0.22	0.33
September 2001	2,386,238	6,053	0.25	0.39
October 2001	2,529,609	8,448	0.33	1.67

The Department set up a Compliance Unit on 25 September, and figures provided for October, include complaints received by the Unit as well as more general complaints received by the ILA Centre. Also in October figures are 754 letters and recorded telephone complaints the Department received directly since the programme began, and not previously included.

Alistair Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills, pursuant to her answer of 30 October 2001, Official Report, column 619W, on Individual Learning Accounts, what evaluation she has made of the system she introduced to monitor the operation of the individual learning account scheme. [12287]

John Healey [holding answer 2 November 2001]: We published our first stage evaluation of the Individual Learning Account programme this September. In addition, we recently completed a follow-up survey which we expect to publish by the end of December.

Departmental Promotions

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much her Department spent on information literature, advertising and campaign material in the financial years (a) 1995–96, (b) 1996–97, (c) 1997–98, (d) 1998–99, (e) 1999–2000 and (f) 2000–01; and if she will make a statement. [12273]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: For each of the years requested, the Department's spend on advertising and on publications is as follows:

£ million

	Advertising spend	Publication spend
1995–96
Employment Department	7.5	n/a
Department for Education	0.3	n/a
1996–97	7.5	2.5
1997–98	10.0	2.1
1998–99	15.7	0.8
1999–2000	11.9	2.8
2000–01	29.0	2.3

n/a = not available

Student Maintenance Grant

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what estimates she has made of the cost of reintroducing a student maintenance grant; and at what levels. [12744]

Margaret Hodge: We will consider the costs of making changes to the current system of student support as part of the review my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State announced in October.

Higher Education

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what percentage of pupils entered higher education at 18 (a) in authorities which retain grammar schools and (b) in authorities which are fully comprehensive, at the latest date for which figures are available. [11630]

Margaret Hodge [holding answer 5 November 2001]: The latest available data on the proportion of 18-year-olds from each local education authority in England entering full-time undergraduate courses in the UK via the Universities and Colleges Admissions Service (UCAS) are given in the table. The student figures in the table are based on the home domicile of 18-year-olds, but it should be noted that pupils will not always attend a school or college in the same authority as the one in which they live.

English domiciled students aged 18 accepted to full-time undergraduate courses in the UK via UCAS, autumn 2000 entry

Local education authority	Population	Acceptances	Percentage
Barking and Dagenham	1,963	198	10.1
Barnet[1]	4,060	1,196	29.5
Barnsley	2,681	412	15.4
Bath and North East Somerset	2,061	405	19.7
Bedfordshire	4,714	1,131	24.0
Bexley[1]	2,620	472	18.0
Birmingham[1]	13,888	2,255	16.2
Blackburn with Darwen	1,959	384	19.6
Blackpool	1,574	263	16.7
Bolton	3,457	750	21.7
Bournemouth[1]	1,710	358	20.9
Bracknell Forest	1,315	272	20.7
Bradford	6,812	1,147	16.8
Brent	3,255	924	28.4
Brighton and Hove	2,686	341	12.7
Bromley[1]	3,189	929	29.1
Buckinghamshire[1]	6,089	1,760	28.9
Bury	2,306	578	25.1
Calderdale[1]	2,302	442	19.2
Cambridgeshire	7,148	1,397	19.5
Camden	2,150	364	16.9
Cheshire	7,963	2,432	30.5
City of Bristol	4,843	664	13.7
City of Derby	2,903	498	17.2
City of Kingston upon Hull	3,264	288	8.8
City of London	41	22	53.8
City of Westminster	2,347	295	12.6
Cornwall	5,854	1,298	22.2
Coventry	4,182	715	17.1
Croydon	4,065	1,013	24.9
Cumbria[1]	5,565	1,213	21.8
Darlington	1,257	243	19.3
Derbyshire	8,376	1,744	20.8
Devon[1]	8,347	1,676	20.1
Doncaster	3,761	585	15.6
Dorset	4,544	956	21.0
Dudley	3,587	744	20.7
Durham	6,568	1,106	16.8
Ealing	3,637	951	26.1
East Riding of Yorkshire	3,911	880	22.5
East Sussex	5,492	1,156	21.0
Enfield[1]	3,014	802	26.6
Essex[1]	15,281	3,241	21.2
Gateshead	2,496	423	16.9
Gloucestershire[1]	6,876	1,724	25.1
Greenwich	2,800	344	12.3
Hackney	2,447	285	11.6
Halton	1,733	238	13.7
Hammersmith and Fulham	1,520	251	16.5
Hampshire	15,553	3,442	22.1
Haringey	2,432	452	18.6
Harrow	2,750	963	53.0
Hartlepool	1,201	188	15.7
Havering	2,775	478	17.2
Herefordshire	1,982	503	25.4
Hertfordshire	11,947	3,250	27.2
Hillingdon	3,026	637	21.0
Hounslow	2,537	644	25.4
Isle of Wight	1,428	295	20.7
Isles of Scilly	28	4	14.3
Islington	1,917	298	15.5
Kensington and Chelsea	1,821	305	16.7
Kent[1]	15,954	3,575	22.4
Kingston upon Thames[1]	1,629	441	27.1
Kirklees[1]	4,952	1,025	20.7
Knowsley	2,213	266	12.0
Lambeth	2,840	412	14.5
Lancashire[1]	14,565	3,303	22.7
Leeds	8,831	1,567	17.7
Leicester City	3,870	689	17.8
Leicestershire	7,583	1,710	22.6

English domiciled students aged 18 accepted to full-time undergraduate courses in the UK via UCAS, autumn 2000 entry

Local education authority	Population	Acceptances	Percentage
Lewisham	2,800	446	15.9
Lincolnshire[1]	7,498	1,602	21.4
Liverpool	6,197	953	15.4
Luton	2,430	395	16.3
Manchester	6,327	693	11.0
Medway Towns[1]	3,125	543	17.4
Merton	1,944	439	22.6
Middlesbrough	2,056	340	16.5
Milton Keynes	2,855	497	17.4
Newbury	1,964	439	22.3
Newcastle upon Tyne	3,517	609	17.3
Newham	3,361	599	17.8
Norfolk	9,094	1,538	16.9
North East Lincolnshire	2,022	311	15.4
North Lincolnshire	1,896	397	20.9
North Somerset	2,242	492	21.9
North Tyneside	2,399	474	19.8
North Yorkshire[1]	7,295	1,826	25.0
Northamptonshire	7,768	1,524	19.6
Northumberland	3,814	946	24.8
Nottingham City	3,828	352	9.2
Nottinghamshire	8,861	1,813	20.5
Oldham	2,912	502	17.2
Oxfordshire	7,868	1,662	21.1
Peterborough	2,157	322	14.9
Plymouth[1]	3,556	513	14.4
Poole[1]	1,630	313	19.2
Portsmouth	2,306	269	11.7
Reading[1]	1,701	293	17.2
Redbridge[1]	2,884	895	31.0
Redcar and Cleveland	1,852	302	16.3
Richmond upon Thames	1,899	541	28.5
Rochdale	2,863	482	16.8
Rotherham	3,175	484	15.2
Rutland	690	113	16.4
Salford	2,781	353	12.7
Sandwell	3,686	474	12.9
Sefton	3,567	916	25.7
Sheffield	6,171	951	15.4
Shropshire	3,641	867	23.8
Slough[1]	1,394	304	21.8
Solihull	2,428	704	29.0
Somerset	5,949	1,264	21.2
South Gloucestershire	2,691	565	21.0
South Tyneside	1,950	330	16.9
Southampton	2,749	319	11.6
Southend[1]	1,990	346	17.4
Southwark	2,588	333	12.9
St. Helens	2,263	496	21.9
Staffordshire	9,818	2,256	23.0
Stockport	3,483	902	25.9
Stockton-on-Tees	2,481	550	22.2
Stoke on Trent[1]	3,101	382	12.3
Suffolk	7,816	1,657	21.2
Sunderland	3,812	572	15.0
Surrey	12,760	3,429	26.9
Sutton[1]	1,953	524	26.8
Swindon	2,157	376	17.4
Tameside	2,791	440	15.8
Telford and the Wrekin[1]	1,970	354	18.0
Thurrock	1,597	168	10.5
Torbay[1]	1,452	264	18.2
Tower Hamlets	2,565	341	13.3
Trafford[1]	2,710	699	25.8
Wakefield	3,863	610	15.8
Walsall[1]	3,227	560	17.4
Waltham Forest	2,549	514	20.2
Wandsworth	2,216	461	20.8
Warrington	2,252	506	22.5
Warwickshire[1]	5,937	1,360	22.9
West Sussex	8,422	1,808	21.5
Wigan	3,864	673	17.4
Wiltshire[1]	5,240	1,194	22.8
Windsor and Maidenhead	1,775	454	25.6
Wirral[1]	4,210	1,043	24.8
Wokingham	1,837	588	32.0
Wolverhampton	3,193	625	19.6
Worcestershire	6,283	1,487	23.7
York	2,280	468	20.5
Not known	—	90	—
Total	606,687	123,708	20.4

[1] Authorities with grammar schools

Note:

Population figures are based on estimates as at 1 January 2001, with age as at 31 August 2000. Acceptance figures based on age at 30 September 2000.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many students are in full-time studies in universities in England and Wales. [12745]

Margaret Hodge: The available data are given in the table.

Full-time higher education students in England and Wales[1], 2000–01

	Number
Postgraduate	143,623
Undergraduate	933,265
Total	1,076,888

[1] Home and overseas students in HE and FE institutions, and the Open University

Consultation Documents

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many consultation documents were issued by her Department and its predecessors from (a) 15 October to 14 January, (b) 15 January to 14 April, (c) 15 April to 14 July and (d) 15 July to 14 October in each year from 1996. [12897]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The answer is as follows.

	Number of consultation documents
1996
15 January to 14 April	4
15 April to 14 July	7
15 July to 14 October	6
1996–97
15 October to 14 January	5
15 January to 14 April	14
15 April to 14 July	19
15 July to 14 October	27
1997–98
15 October to 14 January	21
15 January to 14 April	40
15 April to 14 July	46
15 July to 14 October	36
1998–99
15 October to 14 January	38
15 January to 14 April	51
15 April to 14 July	49
15 July to 14 October	49
1999–2000
15 October to 14 January	42
15 January to 14 April	13
15 April to 14 July	23
15 July to 14 October	14

	Number of consultation documents
2000–01
15 October to 14 January	22
15 January to 14 April	25
15 April to 14 July	18
15 July to 14 October	17

Student Finance

Kevin Brennan: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what consultations she has had with the devolved Administrations about her review of student finance; and if she will make a statement. [13177]

Margaret Hodge: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has written to Ministers responsible for higher education matters in Scotland, Wales, and Northern Ireland, to advise them that a review is taking place. We plan to consult with devolved Administrations in due course.

Age Discrimination

Ms Atherton: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what measures the Government are taking to combat age discrimination in the provision of skills training. [13171]

John Healey: The Government are committed to tackling age discrimination wherever it is found, and is a signatory of the EU Employment Directive on Equality, which commits the UK to introduce legislation to combat such discrimination in employment, vocational training and guidance by 2006. The Government have asked the Learning and Skills Council—as the body responsible for planning, funding and improving the quality of post-16 learning outside higher education—to promote age diversity and tackle age discrimination when translating its commitment to equality of opportunity into effective strategies and actions. The Employment Service, which operates training programmes including Work Based Learning for Adults, Work Trials and Programme Centres, is committed to equal opportunities and encourages employers to make effective use of the skills, experience and reliability that older people can contribute.

Class Sizes

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will make it her policy to publish data on class sizes in league tables of school examination results. [13393]

Mr. Timms: There are currently no plans to publish class size data along side the performance tables.

Mr. Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what funding she has set aside for (a) 2001–02, (b) 2002–03 and (c) 2003–04 to reduce class sizes in primary schools; [14583]

(2) if funding for lower class sizes in primary schools will be ring-fenced until 2003–04. [14584]

Mr. Timms: We have made £177 million available to reduce infant class sizes and £73 million to make progress on junior class sizes in 2001–02. Up to £180 million will be available to reduce class sizes in 2002–03. Funding levels for 2003–04 will be decided in the Spending Review 2002.

Class size grant will be paid to local education authorities as a ring-fenced grant through the Standards Fund in 2001–02 and 2002–03.

Special Educational Needs

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what changes have been made to the criteria qualifying primary school children for special needs status in (a) 1997, (b) 1998, (c) 1999, (d) 2000 and (e) 2001. [13814]

Mr. Timms: It is for Local Education Authorities and maintained schools to identify and make suitable provision for all children who may have special educational needs in the light of the provisions of Park IV of the Education Act 1996, the Education (Special Educational Needs) Regulations 1994, and the statutory advice contained in the "Code of Practice on the identification and assessment of Special Educational Needs", published in 1994. This situation has remained unchanged between 1997 and 2001. From January 2002 a revised Special Educational Needs Code of Practice, which was approved recently by both Houses of Parliament, amendments to Part IV of the Education Act 1996 brought about by the SEN and Disability Act 2001 and revised Special Educational Needs Regulations will come into effect.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the funding regime for primary school pupils with special needs status was in (a) England and (b) Shropshire in (i) 1997, (ii) 1998, (iii) 1999, (iv) 2000 and (v) 2001. [13810]

Mr. Timms: Some special educational needs (SEN) funding is delegated to primary schools by local education authorities (LEAs) in budget shares, with amounts calculated for each school on the basis of factors which measure need either directly or indirectly. Other SEN funding is held centrally by LEAs and spent as required on pupils, for example on extra support for pupils with statements of SEN. This basic pattern has obtained in all five years mentioned, although the proportion of funding held centrally has declined since Fair Funding succeeded Local Management of Schools in 1999. In Shropshire, funding for primary age pupils with statements of SEN was held centrally before 2001, but some is now delegated to schools on the basis of eight bands of need. In 1997 and 1998 SEN funding for pupils with SEN but without statements was based on the proportion of pupils eligible for free school meals; from 1999 a further indicator—the number of pupils on the SEN register at stages 2–4 of the SEN Code of Practice—has been used. From 1997 to 2000 schools with SEN units received place-led funding for such units; in 2001 this was subsumed into delegated funding for pupils with statements.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what the average percentage of children with special needs status in (a) English and (b) Shropshire primary schools was in (i) 1997, (ii) 1998, (iii) 1999, (iv) 2000 and (v) 2001; [13809]

(2) how many special needs status primary school children there were in (a) the UK, (b) England and (c) Shropshire in (i) 1997, (ii) 1998, (iii) 1999, (iv) 2000 and (v) 2001. [13813]

Mr. Timms: The available data are shown in the following table.

Number and percentage of pupils with statements of special educational needs in maintained primary schools

	UK[1]		England		Shropshire[2]		Shropshire[3]		Telford and Wrekin[2]
	Number	Percentage	Number	Percentage	Number	Percentage	Number	Percentage	Number	Percentage
January each year
1997	75,400	1.4	63,551	1.4	885	2.3	[3]—	[3]—	[3]—	[3]—
1998	79,300	1.5	67,014	1.5	894	2.3	[3]—	[3]—	[3]—	[3]—
1999	82,100	1.5	69,797	1.6	[3]—	[3]—	553	2.4	337	2.2
2000	84,900	1.6	72,525	1.6	[3]—	[3]—	529	2.3	311	2
2001[4]	88,200	1.7	75,300	1.7	[5]—	[5]—	[5]—	[5]—	[5]—	[5]—

[1] For Scotland, pupils with a Record of Needs
[2] As a result of local government reorganisation in April 1998, Shropshire local education authority divided to form the following local education authorities: Shropshire LEA and Telford and Wrekin LEA
[3] Not applicable
[4] Special educational needs figures from the annual schools census for January 2001 are known to be incomplete. In order to provide reasonably comparable figures to previous years an estimate has been made based on the annual schools census returns for January 2000 and January 2001. These estimates are robust at national and Government Office region but are not available at local education authority level
[5] Not available

Education (Leeds)

Mr. Mudie: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what is the cost to Leeds City council of the contract awarded to Capita. [13736]

Mr. Timms: The cost of Capita's contract is a matter for Leeds City council, Education Leeds and the contractor.

Mr. Mudie: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what additional financial support will be awarded to Leeds City council to implement Capita's educational policies. [13738]

Mr. Timms: No additional funding will be awarded to Leeds City council to implement the education policies for which it is responsible and accountable beyond that derived from the Standard Spending Assessment and Standards Fund grants.

Mr. Mudie: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what is the salary paid to Mr. Peter Ridsdale in his capacity as Chairman of Education Leeds. [13737]

Mr. Timms: Education Leeds is a company wholly owned by Leeds City council. Mr. Ridsdale's level of remuneration is a matter for Mr. Ridsdale and the council.

Internet Access

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will make a statement on the cost of internet access so far achieved in (a) primary and (b) secondary schools in the last 12 months. [14249]

Mr. Timms: The Department for Education and Skills does not collect data on the cost of internet access. Internet costs are dependant upon the supplier, the bandwidth and the level of service and the cost therefore varies from school to school. However, I can report that the average annual school spend in England, as from January 2001, on ICT for teaching and learning was £8,500 in primary schools and £49,600 in secondary, this compares with averages of £6,800 and £41,800 in January 2000. Substantial progress has been made towards the Government's target for every school to have access to the internet with over 99 per cent. of secondary and 96 per cent. of primary schools connected as of January 2001.

Literacy/Numeracy Strategies.

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the cost is of the (a) National Literacy Strategy and (b) National Numeracy Strategy in 2001–02. [14103]

Mr. Timms: The Government are supporting expenditure, through the Standards Fund, of £103 million on each of the two strategies in 2001–02.

Schools Adjudicator

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the cost is in 2001–02 of the office of the schools adjudicator. [14081]

Mr. Timms: The cost in 2001–02 will be known only after the end of the financial year. Expenditure in 2000–01 was £442,000 for adjudicators' costs (mainly fees and expenses) and £355,000 for support staff. We expect expenditure in 2001–02 to be lower than 2000–01 as the number of cases referred to the adjudicator has fallen.

Teachers (Pay Structure)

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what is the cost of the new pay structure for teachers; and what effect it has had on recruitment and retention of staff. [14080]

Mr. Timms: Over 200,000 teachers in England applied to cross the performance threshold in the first round, some 80 per cent. of those who were eligible to apply. Of these, nearly 195,000 were assessed as meeting the threshold standards and are now receiving over £400 million per year in associated pay increases.

We intend to introduce a new grant to contribute towards performance points for leadership group members, post-threshold teachers and high performers on the main scale. We intend to make available £100 million in financial year 2002–03 and £150 million in 2003–04, in addition to existing threshold funding.

The future cost of the new pay structure will depend on the number of teachers applying for and crossing the threshold, and being awarded performance points.

The long-term effect of pay restructuring is not yet clear, but the impact of the Government's policies as a whole is that we had 11,000 more teachers in January 2001 than in 1997.

National College for School Leadership

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will make a statement on the cost of the national college for school leadership. [14222]

Mr. Timms: The cost of the new residential training headquarters for the national college for school leadership will be £25 million.

Fast-track Scheme

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will make a statement on the cost of the fast-track scheme. [14091]

Mr. Timms: In the financial year ending 31 March 2001 we invested £4.6 million to establish the fast-track teaching programme, which will attract high calibre graduates, career changers and serving teachers and support their development into leaders of the teaching profession.

The fast-track scheme is not designed to increase the number of classroom assistants. With local education authorities we are investing £350 million in the three years from 1999–2000 to 2001–02 to increase the number of teaching assistants; and we have recently announced a further £198 million for the financial year 2002–03. There are now 25,000 more teaching assistants in post than in January 1999.

Teacher Training

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the cost is in 2001–02 of the funding of initial teacher training recruitment. [14079]

Mr. Timms: £173 million is available in recurrent grants to provide initial teacher training places. A further £169 million in total is available for teacher training bursaries and the Graduate and Registered Teacher Programmes in 2001–02.

Child Care Places

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will make a statement on the cost of the 350,000 child care places planned for 2003. [14207]

Mr. Timms: £170.5 million is available through the New Opportunities Fund Out of School Hours Childcare Programme for the creation of 350,000 out of school child care places in England by 2003. £55 million has also been made available from April 2001 to provide additional funding for disadvantaged areas and this will create at least an extra 10,000 places.

Education Maintenance Allowances

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will make a statement on the cost of the pilots of education maintenance allowances. [14251]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: We expanded the education maintenance allowance pilot scheme to cover 56 LEA areas from September 2000. Planned expenditure in this financial year is £156 million with over 100,000 young people expected to benefit.

Public Service Agreement

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the cost will be of the public service agreement target of increasing provision of nursery places for three year olds from 34 per cent. to 66 per cent.; and if it will be achieved by 2002. [14090]

Mr. Timms: Many local authorities provide funding for nursery education on top of resources the Government make available through direct grant to provide nursery education places. The Government have increased the under 5s sub-block within Education Standard Spending (ESS) by more than the level of inflation which has increased the resources available for this and other purposes. However, it is not possible to identify separately the total amounts spent specifically on three-year-olds.

We have made £390 million of direct grant funding available between 1999–2000 and 2001–02 to help increase the number of three year olds with access to a free early education place from 34 per cent. to 66 per cent. by March 2002. The target will be met in full.

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) if she will make a statement on progress made on the public service agreement targets for objective 2 which are described on page 8 of the departmental report 2000; [14089]

(2) on progress towards meeting the public service agreement targets of (a) an increase in the proportion of people aged 19 years who have achieved national vocational qualification level 2 or equivalent from 72 per cent. to 85 per cent. by 2002, (b) a reduction by one third in exclusions by 2002, (c) a reduction by one third in school truancies by 2002 and (d) increasing provision of nursery places for three-year-olds from 34 per cent. to 66 per cent. by 2002. [14049]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: While we are making good progress in increasing the achievement of level 2 by 19-year-olds which is based on current trends, it is apparent that the target may not be reached. We are working closely with the Learning and Skills Council to ensure maximum progress is made towards achieving this target.

LEA Expenditure

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will make a statement on expenditure per pupil in (a) Buckinghamshire local education authority and (b) other local education authorities in England and Wales in the last 12 months. [14252]

Mr. Timms: Information for the financial year 2000–01 is not yet available for England. I will write to the hon. Member when it has been collected. Responsibility for education matters in Wales rests with the National Assembly for Wales.

Qualifications Budget

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the cost is in 2001–02 of the qualifications budget. [14082]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The qualifications budget for 2001–02, at 1 April 2001, was £102 million. Expected receipts for the year total £334,000. The majority of this money (£69 million at 1 April 2001) comprises grant in aid for the Qualification and Curriculum Authority. The remainder of the budget is used mainly for development work. The costs of the qualifications themselves are met by schools, colleges and others through the payment of fees.

Sixth Forms

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills, pursuant to her answer to the hon. Member for Epsom and Ewell of 7 November 2001, Official Report, column 246W, if she will make a statement on the circumstances that led to those closure proposals. [14676]

Mr. Timms: Seven proposals were decided by the Secretary of State. The circumstances varied in each case. Some were published by the LEA, or school governors, to address changes in local demand for sixth form places, some featured as part of a wider reorganisation of schools in the area, others arose from the need to rationalise places to deliver more cost effective provision. The remaining six proposals were published after September 1999 and were decided under local decision making arrangements, introduced by the School Standards and Framework Act 1998. Under these arrangements those publishing or deciding proposals are not required to send details of the background to the proposals to the Department, and we therefore cannot comment on the circumstances leading to these proposals.

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what plans she has to allow schools with sixth forms to make direct representations to local Learning and Skills Councils regarding sixth form funding. [14567]

Margaret Hodge: This is a matter for the Learning and Skills Council. I have therefore asked John Harwood, the council's chief executive, to write to the hon. Member with the information requested and to place a copy of his reply in the Library.

Student Finance Review

Alistair Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what submissions she has received for the review of student finance following her announcement of such a review; if she will list those submissions; and if they will be taken into account before she publishes her proposals to reform student finance. [14540]

Margaret Hodge: Consultation on the review of student finance will begin next year. We shall take account of consultation responses when reaching a decision about the future of student finance.

Alistair Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will call for submissions to her review on student finance from (a) the National Union of Students, (b) Universities UK, (c) the Association of Colleges, (d) the Student Loan Company, (e) the Association of University Teachers, (f) the National Association of Teachers in Further and Higher Education, (g) the Standing Conference of Principals, (h) the National Bureau for Students with Disabilities and (i) others; if she will publish their submissions; and if she will make a statement. [14543]

Margaret Hodge: We plan to consult widely on any proposals for change that may result from the review.

Alistair Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what discussions she has had with other Government Departments in relation to her review of student finance; if she will place such submissions in the Library; and if she will make a statement. [14541]

Margaret Hodge: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has written to Ministers responsible for higher education in Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland, and to Ministers in other Government Departments, to advise them that a review is taking place. Treasury and the Inland Revenue are represented on the review. We plan to consult on any proposals to emerge.

Student Loans

Alistair Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what submissions she has received recently on the student loans system; if she will list such submissions; and if she will make a statement. [14539]

Margaret Hodge: We receive submissions, correspondence, etc., from a range of individuals and organisations, on a regular basis. It is not our practice to make correspondence with the Department public. We will be consulting on proposals that emerge from the review of student finance.

Basic Needs Grants

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what criteria are used by her Department for the allocation of basic needs grants to schools. [14561]

Mr. Timms: Basic need is the requirement for additional school places in areas of population growth.

Funding for this is normally provided through the allocation of Basic Credit Approvals to local education authorities or grant to the governors of voluntary aided schools.

The criteria used by the Department to assess basic need are contained in the "Guide for the Schools Capital Allocation Round" issued to local education authorities annually, copies of which have been placed in the Library.

State Schools (Private Management)

Mr. Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what are the statutory provisions that govern schools in the state sector being run by private sector firms. [14578]

Mr. Timms: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave him on 5 November 2001, Official Report, column 46W.

Mr. Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which schools in the state sector are run by private firms. [14576]

Mr. Timms: No schools in the state sector are run by private firms. The legal responsibility for running a school rests with the governing body and head teacher, even where they are supported by expertise from the private sector.

Mr. Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what representations she has received in the last year from local education authorities wanting to hand the running of a state school over to the private sector. [14577]

Mr. Timms: There have been no representations in the last year from local education authorities wanting to hand over the running of a state school to the private sector. State schools cannot be run by the private sector, although local education authorities and schools may enter into contracts for support to governing bodies.

Performance-related Pay (Teachers)

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what plans she has to allocate funds for schools to pay teachers awards on the upper spine of performance-related pay. [14566]

Mr. Timms: We intend to introduce a new grant to contribute towards performance points for leadership group members, post threshold teachers and high performers on the main scale. We believe their skills, expertise, commitment and leadership are crucial to the success of the teaching profession. We propose to make available £100 million in financial year 2002–03 and £150 million in 2003–04, in addition to existing threshold funding.

We will be consulting shortly on the details of the new grant to support the cost of performance points. Details of the consultation will be posted on the DfES website to enable schools to comment on the proposals.

School Threshold Payments

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will guarantee funding of threshold payments to schools beyond 2004. [14563]

Mr. Timms: Crossing the threshold gives teachers a substantial and permanent pay increase by moving them to an upper pay scale. The Government have always accepted that this means a substantial and permanent increase in the overall cost of teachers' pay. Our financial planning will continue to take account of that.

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills in what proportion of cases the threshold assessment made by a head teacher has been overturned. [14564]

Mr. Timms: Verification of threshold assessments involves professional dialogue between heads and assessors about assessment methods and individual applications. Assessors overturn heads' judgments only when it is impossible to reach agreement. In the first round of threshold applications this happened in only 0.2 per cent. of cases—a clear indication that the system worked.

Learning Support Units

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many learning support units for children with challenging behaviour there were in schools in 1997. [14137]

Mr. Timms: The Department was carrying out a pilot of 41 learning support units in schools in 1997. This lasted from 1996–97 to 1998–99. The units were funded by the predecessor of our "Social Inclusion Pupil Support" Standards Fund grant.

There are now over 1,000 learning support units in schools, both within Excellence in Cities authorities and elsewhere.

Re-marked Exam Papers

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will state the percentage of re-marked papers at (a) GCSE, (b) AS-level and (c) A-level which resulted in marks being (i) increased and (ii) decreased in each of the last three years. [14562]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: In 1999 the awarding bodies were asked to re-mark 0.5 per cent. of GCSE papers, of which 11 per cent. resulted in a change of grade; and 3.3 per cent. of GCE A-level papers, of which 13 per cent. resulted in a change of grade. In 2000 the awarding bodies were asked to re-mark 1 per cent. of GCSE papers, of which 11 per cent. resulted in a grade change; 3.8 per cent. of GCE A-level papers, of which 16 per cent. resulted in a grade change; and 1.5 per cent. of AS-level papers, of which 15 per cent. resulted in a grade change. All of these grade changes were upwards as until 2001, grades could only be raised or remain the same as a result of a re-mark.

Figures for 2001 are not available at this stage as the inquiries on results and appeals process is not yet complete.

Pupil Sickness Rate

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment she has made of levels of sickness among pupils at key stages four and five since the introduction of the AS-level syllabus. [14560]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: None.

Data on authorised absence from schools are collected centrally only for pupils of compulsory school age. They do not distinguish between pupils of different ages, nor do they distinguish between sickness and other forms of authorised absence.

Value-added Measures

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what is the basis on which value-added measures have been developed for pilot publications in 2001–02. [14136]

Mr. Timms: Our proposals in respect of value-added measures were set out in detail in the Publication of School and Performance Tables in 2001 consultation document which issued on 30 March this year, copies of which have been placed in the Library. We are now working with some 200 volunteer schools on a pilot programme for the calculation of measures of progress made from Key Stage 2 to key Stage 3 and from Key Stage 3 to GCSE/GNVQ.

The results of the pilot will be published on 22 November with a full explanation of the methodology used. This pilot publication will be placed in the Library and will also be available on the DfES website at www.dfes.gov.uk/performancetables along with a questionnaire seeking the views of readers on all aspects of the pilot. This will be used as part of the evaluation of the pilot which, along with further consultation early next year, will inform final decisions on the publication of these two measures for all secondary schools in the 2002 performance tables.

LEA Intervention (Costs)

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what was the (a) direct cost and (b) the cost of external contractors and advisers to her Department of each local education authority intervention in the last 12 months. [14135]

Mr. Timms: The direct cost to the Department of local education authority interventions is the staff time of the officials concerned. The cost of individual contracts with external contractors and advisers for intervention work is commercial in confidence.

Written Answers to Questions

Wednesday 14 November 2001

HOUSE OF COMMONS

Lager Sales (Refreshment Department)

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Chairman of the Catering Committee how many barrels of Carlsberg Lager and Carlsberg Export Lager were sold by the House of Commons Refreshment Department in 2000. [14139]

Mr. Dennis Turner: It is difficult to give a precise answer to my hon. Friend's question, as figures are not kept in the form requested. However, I am able to inform him that in the 12-month period from April 2000 until March 2001, the House of Commons Refreshment Department purchased 210 11-gallon barrels of Carlsberg Lager. Barrels are purchased in response to demand, and it is reasonable to assume that the number of barrels sold is similar to the number purchased.

The Commons Refreshment Department does not sell draught Carlsberg Export Lager.

TRANSPORT, LOCAL GOVERNMENT AND THE REGIONS

Walton Group Plc

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions how much money is owed to his Department by Walton Group Plc in respect of Exchange Flags Liverpool; and if he will make a statement. [12620]

Ms Keeble: The Department is pursuing a civil claim against the Walton Group plc and Todd and Benn (Contractors) Ltd. to recover the full city grant value of £4,444,782. In addition, it is seeking interest totalling £2,603,062 as of 9 November 2001, and a claim for legal fees, costs and expert fees that are estimated at 8 November 2001 to be £280,000 (inclusive of VAT).

Yellow School Bus Pilot

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions (1) what plans he has to extend the yellow school bus pilot; and if he will make a statement; [12305]

(2) what research has been conducted (a) by and (b) on behalf of his Department on the yellow school bus pilot scheme; and when the results are to be published; [12303]

(3) in which local authorities the yellow school bus pilot scheme is in operation; and if he will make a statement; [12302]

(4) how much his Department has spent on the yellow school bus pilot scheme in financial years 2000–01 and 2001–02; and how much expenditure is projected for financial years 2002–03 and 2003–04; [12304]

Mr. Edwards: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will make a statement about the pilot project for the introduction of yellow buses for home-to-school transport. [12317]

Ms Keeble: My Department has facilitated the introduction of American-style yellow school buses by agreeing to grant exemption from some of the provisions of the Public Service Vehicles Accessibility Regulations to enable pilot schemes to operate. The first such scheme is expected to start in Calderdale in the new year. My Department will collect base line data near the start of pilot schemes, and will evaluate them, probably after about a year's operation. The results of the evaluations will be published. The Department has incurred no costs so far other than staff time in considering the case for exemptions from regulations. Future costs will be staff time plus consultancy fees for data collection and evaluation. The level of these costs will depend on the number of pilot schemes, which will be a matter for agreement between local authorities and operators.

PowerShift Register

Mr. Chaytor: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions when he will publish the amended version of the PowerShift Register to incorporate the extension of the LPG conversion grant scheme to include vehicles up to five years old; and if he will make a statement. [12093]

Mr. Jamieson [holding answer 5 November 2001]: The PowerShift programme is administered on behalf of my Department by the Energy Saving Trust. The updated version of the PowerShift Register, now covering vehicle models up to five years old, is available on the Trust's website at www.est-powershift.org.uk. Grants for these vehicles are now available and the website provides full information on how they can be claimed. Information is also available on the Trust's telephone hotline on 0845 602 1425.

New Deal for Communities

Vera Baird: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what plans he has for a further round of New Deal for Communities funding to assist the regeneration of post-industrial areas of intense social deprivation. [13673]

Ms Keeble: There are no plans for a third round of New Deal for Communities (NDC) funding. The Government are fully committed to the NDC programme and to tackling multiple deprivation in some of the most deprived neighbourhoods in the country, including many in post-industrial areas, to bridge the gap between these neighbourhoods and the rest of the country.

The Neighbourhood Renewal Unit is in the process of rolling out a range of programmes that will build on the lessons learned through NDC and strengthen and improve core public services in deprived areas.

Concessionary Fares (Coaches)

Mr. Blizzard: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what recent meetings he has had with representatives of coach operators to discuss proposals for a half-fare concessionary scheme for pensioners on long distance coach journeys; and if he will make a statement. [13684]

Ms Keeble: We announced on 5 November our approval in principle of a proposal from the Commission for Integrated Transport under which coach operators would offer half-price fares to older and disabled passengers on long distance scheduled coach services in England. In return operators would—for the first time—receive Fuel Duty Rebate.

My Department has already had initial discussions with the Confederation of Passenger Transport about this proposal and we look forward to further discussions with them shortly on the details of its implementation.

Local Government Pension Scheme

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions, pursuant to his answer of 24 October 2001, Official Report, column 228W, on best value, how many building direct labour organisations transferred to the private sector have been given admitted-body status to the local government pension scheme; and what pension provision will be made for those which will not remain in the LGPS. [13811]

Dr. Whitehead: Information about the transfer of building direct labour organisations (DLOs) to the private sector is not held centrally. When a local authority function is outsourced and the new contractor chooses not to seek admitted-body status within the local government pension scheme, transferred employees should be offered broadly comparable pension arrangements.

Mr. Flight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what plans he has to reform local government final salary pension schemes. [14696]

Dr. Whitehead: There are no plans to change the current benefit package provided by the local government pension scheme.

Mr. Flight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what was the total cost of local government final salary pensions in the last financial year. [14697]

Dr. Whitehead: In 2000–01, pensions paid to members of the local government pension scheme totalled £3.5 billion.

Public-Private Partnerships

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will list the projects which have been considered as potential public-private partnerships since 1997 which have not been undertaken because the public sector comparator had a lower net present value than the public private partnership proposed; and if he will make a statement. [13455]

Dr. Whitehead: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him by my right hon. Friend the Chief Secretary to the Treasury on 13 November 2001, Official Report, column 607W. There are no cases of potential PPP projects within my department, or the former DETR, not being undertaken because the public sector comparator had a lower net present value.

English Partnerships Land Holdings

David Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what the scale of English Partnerships land holdings is; and which proportion is earmarked for new housing in (a) Telford and (b) England. [13462]

Ms Keeble: In September 2001, English Partnerships owned a total of 5,700 hectares of land in England, 820 hectares (14 per cent.) of which was in Telford.

Of the overall total, 970 hectares (17 per cent.) is designated for housing in planning terms (ie it either has specific planning consent or is designated as such in the local plan). In Telford, 216 hectares (3.8 per cent.) were designated for housing.

Planning Applications

Richard Younger-Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what was the average period for a planning application from date of application to decision by the local authority over the last five years. [R] [13596]

Ms Keeble: The information available from the Department is the percentages of applications for planning permission and related consents which are decided within eight weeks, between eight and 13 weeks and in more than 13 weeks. These are shown in the table.

Local authority performance: England, 1996–97 to 2000–01

Percentage

	Decisions within eight weeks	Decisions in eight to 13 weeks	Decisions exceeding 13 weeks
1996–97	64	21	15
1997–98	62	22	16
1998–99	62	21	17
1999–2000	63	21	16
2000–01	63	20	17

Richard Younger-Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will list the latest annual figures for the number of planning applications under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 in England and Wales by (a) region, (b) the number of applications passed, (c) the number sent to appeal and (d) the number of successful appeals; and if he will provide the same figures for the previous 10 years. [R] [13595]

Ms Keeble: The information for England is in the table. Figures for Wales are not held centrally on a consistent basis and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Thousands/percentage

Government office region	Planning applications[1] Decided	Granted	Refused	Appeals against refusal[2] Received	Decided	Allowed	Percentage of appeals allowed
1992–93
North East	16.7	15.1	1.6	0.4	0.4	0.2	39
North West	44.3	38.6	5.7	1.5	1.4	0.6	40
Yorkshire and the Humber	35.9	30.9	5.0	1.3	1.2	0.4	31
East Midlands	33.4	29.2	4.2	1.2	1.1	0.4	34
West Midlands	35.4	30.2	5.2	1.3	1.1	0.4	31
East of England	44.5	37.8	6.7	2.1	1.9	0.6	33
London	38.6	31.3	7.4	1.9	1.7	0.6	36
South East	68.0	57.0	10.9	3.6	3.2	1.1	34
South West	48.7	41.3	7.3	2.4	2.2	0.7	32
England	365.4	311.4	54.0	15.7	14.2	4.8	34
1991–92
North East	17.3	15.5	1.9	0.5	0.4	0.1	34
North West	49.3	42.0	7.3	1.8	1.6	0.6	36
Yorkshire and the Humber	40.9	34.4	6.5	1.6	1.4	0.4	30
East Midlands	36.7	31.1	5.6	1.5	1.4	0.5	33
West Midlands	39.0	32.6	6.4	1.7	1.4	0.4	30
East of England	49.7	40.8	8.9	2.7	2.5	0.8	31
London	42.5	33.5	9.0	2.2	2.0	0.7	35
South East	74.6	60.5	14.1	4.5	4.0	1.3	33
South West	54.1	44.1	10.0	3.1	2.8	0.9	32
England	404.2	334.5	69.7	19.5	17.5	5.7	32
1990–91
North East	17.5	15.5	1.9	0.5	0.5	0.1	30
North West	53.0	44.2	8.8	2.0	1.8	0.7	38
Yorkshire and the Humber	42.7	34.9	7.8	1.7	1.5	0.5	32
East Midlands	40.1	33.0	7.2	1.7	1.5	0.5	33
West Midlands	41.5	34.0	7.5	1.8	1.6	0.5	32
East of England	55.3	43.5	11.8	3.3	2.9	0.9	32
London	44.8	34.6	10.3	2.5	2.2	0.8	36
South East	82.6	65.0	17.6	5.3	4.6	1.5	32
South West	60.7	47.7	13.1	3.6	3.2	1.0	32
England	438.3	352.4	85.9	22.4	19.7	6.5	33

[1] Section 70 planning applications, i.e. excludes applications for listed building, advertisement and conservation area consents.
[2] Figures relate to the number of appeals against section 70 planning applications refused in the year, not the number of appeals received in the year

Richard Younger-Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what was the average period for the consideration of an appeal to a planning application, up to a refusal to grant consent, under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 over the last five years. [R] [13593]

Ms Keeble: The provision of information on planning appeals is the responsibility of the Planning Inspectorate. I have asked the inspectorate's Chief Executive, Mr. Chris Shepley, to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from C. J. Shepley to Richard Younger-Ross, dated 14 November 2001:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your Question about the average time taken to determine planning appeals.

The average times, in weeks, are:

Period	Written representations	Hearings	Inquiries
1996–97	22	41	45
1997–98	19	35	41
1998–99	16	23	32
1999–2000	16	19	28
2000–01	16	19	26
2001–02[1]	16	20	27

[1] April to September

Richard Younger-Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what the average cost is to the Government of hearing planning appeals under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990; and what is the (a) maximum and (b) minimum cost, for each of the last five years. [R] [13594]

Ms Keeble: The Planning Inspectorate has calculated the average unit cost of processing a section 78 inquiry by written representation in each of the last five financial years to be as follows:

Year	£
2000–01	1,188
1999–2000	1,047
1998–99	854
1997–98	669
1996–97	635

The Inspectorate also effects section 78 appeals through hearings and inquiries. Unit costs for these activities have only been calculated for the previous two financial years, and are as follows.

	£
Section 78 hearings
2000–01	1,977
1999–2000	2,135
Section 78 inquiries
2000–01	5,967
1999–2000	5,617

Current methods of recording inspectorate activity do not provide for the calculation of a minimum and maximum cost in these periods.

Speed Cameras

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions which local authorities do not have (a) speed cameras and (b) plans for their early introduction. [13494]

Mr. Jamieson: The numbers and locations of speed cameras in police force areas are not held centrally. A funding system is now available nationally that covers the cost of the purchase and operation of speed cameras and, therefore, removes the key obstacle for camera deployment. It is expected to take around two years for all police force areas wishing to join the scheme to do so.

Street Warden Funding

Mr. Borrow: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions which local authorities in the north-west of England were successful in bidding for Street Warden funding; and which were unsuccessful. [13647]

Ms Keeble: The Government office for the north-west received 46 Street Warden bids. Nineteen bids, totalling more than £2.9 million and benefiting each of the region's five counties, received approval.

Organisations other than local authorities, eg housing associations, were eligible to apply under this DTLR-funded pilot scheme. The table shows the successful and unsuccessful bids, the lead agency and the bid area.

Lead agency	Bid area
Successful bids
Bury MBC	Whitefield
Chester Community Safety Partnership	Blacon and Lache
City of Salford	Winton and Little Hulton
Collingwood Housing Association	Spath Lane and Knowle Park
Congleton BC	Alsager
Derwent and Solway Housing Association	Workington
Hyndburn FIRST	Hyndburn
Initiative Burnley	Burnley
Irwell Valley Housing Association	Sale West and Manor Avenue Estates
Lancaster City council	Morecambe
Liverpool Housing Trust	Windmill Hill, Runcorn
New East Manchester Ltd.	Ancoats and Miles Platting
Preston council	Callon, St. Matthews and Ribbleton
Riverside Housing Association	Palacefields, Murdishaw, Halton Brook and Halwood Park, Runcorn
South Liverpool Housing	Speke and Garston
Stockport MBC	Stockport borough
Tameside MBC	Tameside
Trafford MBC	Lostock, Sale Moor, Broomwood
Vale Royal BC	Vale Royal
Unsuccessful bids
Blackpool BCI	Grange Park, Mereside and George St./Caunce St.
Bolton Town Centre Ltd.	Bolton
Bury MBC	Huntley/Topping Fold
Carlisle City council	Botcherby, Raffles and Petterill Bank
CDS Housing Association	Castlefields, Runcorn
Chester Community Safety Partnership	Chester
Copeland BC	South Whitehaven
Eden BC	Eden
Fylde BC	St. Annes, Lytham and Kirkham
Groundwork Blackburn	Blackburn
Home Housing Association	Maryport
Impact Housing Association	Workington
Knowsley MBC	Kirkby
Liverpool City council	North Liverpool
Macclesfield BC	Knutsford, Macclesfield and Wilmslow
Manchester City council	Manchester
Manchester Housing	Cheetham
Metropolitan borough of Wirral	Bidston, Hoylake and Rockferry
Oldham council	Oldham
Poynton and Worth parish council	Poynton
Riverside Housing Association	Linacre
Rochdale MBC	Rochdale, Middleton, Heywood and Pennines
South Ribble BC	South Ribble
St. Helens BC	West Sutton, Parr and Hardshaw and Grange Park
Tranmere Housing Regeneration Partnership—Maritime Housing Association	Tranmere
West Lancs DC	West Lancs
Wigan MBC	Wigan and Leigh

Polling Stations

Mr. Gummer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will review the advice to returning officers regarding conduct at polling stations to accommodate the beliefs of members of the Assembly of Yahweh. [13522]

Mr. Raynsford: Guidance to returning officers on electoral procedures is now a matter for the Electoral Commission. In addition to voting at polling stations any elector may now vote by post and we are inviting local authorities at the May 2002 local elections to pilot such innovations as voting by telephone or on line.

Homelessness (West Wiltshire)

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will make a statement on homelessness in west Wiltshire. [13680]

Ms Keeble: 332 households in west Wiltshire were accepted as being homeless in 2000–01. As at 31 March 2001, there were 90 households in temporary accommodation and 15 households in bed-and-breakfast accommodation.

Mobile Phone Masts

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will take steps to give local people stronger powers to block the inappropriate siting of mobile phone masts. [13862]

Ms Keeble: The changes to the planning procedures and guidance for telecommunications mast development which we introduced on 22 August this year greatly strengthen public consultation requirements on mast proposals of 15 metres and below (subject to a process of prior approval by Local Planning Authorities) so that they are the same as for planning applications. This gives local people a much better opportunity to have a say on mast proposals. Local Planning Authorities already have the ability to turn down mast applications where the do not consider amenity aspects have been adequately addressed. Our guidance also advises telecommunications operators to consult local people and Local Planning Authorities before submitting applications for masts of any size.

Formby Fire Station

Mr. Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will make a statement on the implications of the findings of the National Joint Council on Formby Fire Station for that at Heswall. [13871]

Dr. Whitehead: The Merseyside Fire and Civil Defence Authority's application for my right hon. Friend's approval, under section 19 of the Fire Services Act 1947, to change the duty system at Heswall Fire Station remains under consideration. He will not grant approval unless he is satisfied that the Authority has consulted and, on advice from HM Fire Service Inspectorate, that national standards of fire cover will be maintained.

The National Joint Council for Local Authorities' Fire Brigades' Scheme of Conditions of Service provides for consideration of proposed changes in duty systems at fire stations. This is a separate procedure, but my right hon. Friend will wish to consider the implications of the recent adjudication in respect of Formby Fire Station.

Rail Services (North Kent)

Clive Efford: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions when work will begin to improve the electricity supply to allow 12-car trains to run on the North Kent rail lines. [13982]

Mr. Jamieson: Railtrack is undertaking a review of Power Supply capability for the Southern Region and is in discussions with the Strategic Rail Authority to address the issue in relation to Mark 1 replacement.

Clive Efford: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will list the railway stations in the North Kent lines that need to be lengthened to accommodate 12 car trains; and when this work will be carried out. [13981]

Mr. Jamieson: Stations on the North Kent line which would require platform lengthening include Abbey Wood, Deptford, Erith, Gravesend, Greenhithe, Greenwich, Higham, Maze Hill, Northfleet, Plumpstead Rochester, Slade Green, Strood, Swanscombe, Westcombe Park, Woolwich Arsenal, and Woolwich Dockyard. The work to lengthen platforms is primarily dependent on the implementation of Thameslink 2000 and discussions with the incumbent franchisee.

Motorways

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will arrange for every registered keeper of a motor vehicle to be invited to take part in consultations in respect of future motorway building, improvement and widening schemes. [14045]

Mr. Jamieson: There are a number of opportunities for registered keepers of vehicles and other road users and interested parties to take part in consultations on motorway building, improvement and widening. Public consultation takes place during studies such as the multi-modal and road-based studies, and prior to a preferred route announcement, and on the publication of draft orders. We do not propose to consult on a national scale with registered keepers of vehicles as this would not be cost effective.

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what the cost is of the consultation taking place on the future of the M1 motorway; who is carrying out the consultation process; and what safeguards are in place to ensure that the views of road-users are heard. [14044]

Mr. Jamieson: A number of Multi-Modal Studies and Roads-Based Studies are currently being carried out which include sections of the M1 motorway within their remit. Consultation is undertaken at key stages of the studies to ensure that the views of road users, local public, businesses, environmental interests, transport users, operators and other regional interests are taken into account. The consultation process is overseen by the Study Steering Groups and carried out by the appointed consultants for each study. These arrangements ensure that road users and other interests have the opportunity to express their views.

Final figures for the costs of consultation will not be available until the studies are completed. However, the average total cost of a study, including the cost of consultation, is approximately £1.5 million.

Departmental Service Standards

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what monitoring arrangements are in place to ensure that his Department and its agencies give prompt and proper attention to inquiries received from members of the public. [14047]

Dr. Whitehead: The centre of the Department and each of its agencies have set targets for each of the "Six Service Standards for Central Government". Performance against these targets is monitored annually and published in a Cabinet Office report (copies are available in the Libraries of the House).

Additionally, a quarterly report is presented to the Board of the Department detailing performance in handling correspondence.

Travellers

Mr. Lepper: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions when he will publish the results of research by Heriot-Watt University into the effectiveness of the Government office guidance on managing unauthorised camping by travellers; and when he will publish revised guidance. [13864]

Ms Keeble: My Department published a summary of the research findings on 2 November. A copy has been placed in the Libraries of the House. We plan to publish a revision of the current Good Practice Guide on Managing Unauthorised Camping by Gypsies and Travellers early next year.

Overcrowding (Trains)

Mr. Gordon Marsden: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what assessment his Department has made of the safety risks posed by overcrowding on trains. [13917]

Mr. Jamieson: The Health and Safety Executive (HSE), the Department's advisers on railways safety matters, have advised that all rolling stock is designed to operate safely even when fully loaded, and passenger loading does not affect the train's stopping performance or its structural integrity.

Train Crime

Mr. Gordon Marsden: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions how many offences were recorded on trains from Preston to Blackpool in the most recent year for which figures are available; and how many of those were alcohol related. [13919]

Mr. Jamieson: The British Transport Police, who are responsible for policing the railways, have provided me with the following figures. In the period between 1 April 2000 and 31 March 2001, a total of 354 offences were recorded on the railway routes between Preston and Blackpool and at least 19 of these were alcohol related. These figures include offences committed on the trains and at the stations.

Mr. Gordon Marsden: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what assessment his Department has made of the need to control drunkenness on trains. [13918]

Mr. Jamieson: We recognise the effect that anti-social behaviour, including drunkenness, can have on both train staff and other passengers' perceptions of their personal security. We are working with transport operators, local authorities, the police and others to improve personal security on transport, through such means as publishing good practice guidance and improving the ability of the British Transport Police (BTP) and train operators to deal with crime and anti-social behaviour. The BTP work closely with the train operators to identify hot spots of disorder. If necessary measures such as increased patrolling and special operations will be undertaken to control the problem.

Road Clearance

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will introduce a mandatory requirement for highway authorities to publish a winter plan listing the roads it intends to keep clear of ice and snow. [13992]

Mr. Spellar: The Code of Practice for Maintenance Management "Delivering Best Practice in Highway Maintenance" published on 10 July already strongly recommends that highway authorities should publish a winter service operational plan after consultation with users and key stakeholders.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions whether highway authorities in England and Wales will continue to hold responsibility for keeping roads safe in winter through pre-salting and snow clearance. [13995]

Mr. Spellar: The House of Lords judgment last year in the case of Goodes v. East Sussex was that there was no duty on local highway authorities under the Highways Act 1980 to prevent ice from forming on highways. Nevertheless, we strongly recommend highway authorities in England to implement winter service provisions on their roads in accordance with the Code of Practice for Maintenance Management "Delivering Best Practice in Highway Maintenance" published on 10 July.

Guidance to highway authorities in Wales is a matter for the National Assembly for Wales.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will issue guidance to highway authorities in England and Wales on the importance of pre-salting roads in winter. [13991]

Mr. Spellar: Guidance on pre-salting roads in winter is contained in the Code of Practice for Maintenance Management "Delivering Best Practice in Highway Maintenance" published on 10 July.

Guidance to highway authorities in Wales is a matter for the National Assembly for Wales.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what recent discussions he has had with highway authorities to take reasonable steps to pre-salt roads in winter and clear snow. [13993]

Mr. Spellar: Highway authorities throughout the United Kingdom participated in producing the guidance on winter service contained in the Code of Practice for Maintenance Management "Delivering Best Practice in Highway Maintenance" published on 10 July.

Railtrack

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions (1) when Ernst and Young LLP was approached about the possibility of giving advice on Railtrack; [13996]

(2) if he will list the (a) discussions and (b) meetings between Ernst and Young LLP and his Department on the rail industry prior to 24 August; [13990]

(3) what terms of reference were given to Ernst and Young LLP on their engagement by his Department to advise on possible options for Railtrack. [13997]

Mr. Spellar: The possibility of Ernst and Young LLP giving advice on Railtrack was first discussed at a meeting on 23 August. They were appointed on 24 August. On engagement, their remit was to provide advice on the general process of administration; and accountancy advice on possible options for Railtrack.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will deposit in the Library a list of all the stations owned by Railtrack and their estimated value. [14783]

Mr. Jamieson: My Department does not hold this information.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he ordered the drafting of legislation (a) prior to and (b) following his meeting with the Rail Regulator on 5 October to remove the power from the Regulator to hold an interim financial review. [14785]

Mr. Jamieson: Details of internal communications are exempt from disclosure under section 2 of Part II of the code of practice on access to government information.

Mr. Hogg: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions when, after 1 August, his Department received advice from the Treasury that it was unlikely that additional public funding for Railtrack would be approved. [13471]

Mr. Spellar [holding answer 9 November 2001]: I refer the right hon. and learned Member to the statement made to the House by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State on 13 November 2001, Official Report, columns 723–35.

No-fly Zones

Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions how many instances there have been in each year since 1991 of (i) commercial and (ii) privately operated aircraft accidentally breaching no-fly zones over (a) nuclear power plants, (b) nuclear reprocessing plants, (c) nuclear fuel production plants, (d) uranium enrichment plants and (e) military nuclear plants. [14262]

Mr. Jamieson: Since 1991, there have been four reported breaches of the restricted airspace around military nuclear plants (one in each of 1993, 1995, 1996 and 2000). There have been also two reported breaches of the restrictions around Sellafield (one in 1993 and 1999), which is both a nuclear reprocessing and fuel production plant.

Car Registration Revenue

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions how much has been raised in each year since 1998 from the first licence fee payable at the first registration of a new car. [14014]

Mr. Jamieson: The fee for the first registration of vehicles in the UK was introduced on 1 April 1998. The amounts raised each year since 1998 are £67,654k, £68,573k and 70,503k respectively.

Fire Services (Merseyside)

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will call for a report from Her Majesty's Fire Services Inspectorate on management practices in the Merseyside Fire Authority and their impact on the delivery of fire services. [14274]

Dr. Whitehead: HM Fire Service Inspectorate has recently conducted an inspection of the Merseyside Fire Service. The report will be published in due course.

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what assessment he has made of the recommendations in the National Joint Council report on the staffing arrangements proposals put forward by Merseyside Fire Authority. [14273]

Dr. Whitehead: The National Joint Council for Local Authorities' Fire Brigades' Scheme of Conditions of Service provides for consideration of proposed changes in duty systems at fire stations. This is a separate procedure to the requirements of section 19 of the Fire Services Act 1947 in respect of variations to a fire authority's establishment. My right hon. Friend will, however, wish to consider the implications of the recent adjudication in respect of Formby Fire Station.

Central Railway

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will place in the Library the report he received from the Strategic Rail Authority on the proposed lorries-on-trains freight railway put forward by Central Railway plc. [14707]

Mr. Jamieson: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 23 October 2001, Official Report, column 200W.

Terrorism

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what assessment he has made of the impact of the events of 11 September on insurance premiums to be paid by local authorities. [13898]

Dr. Whitehead [holding answer 12 November 2001]: We are working with local government in assessing all new and increasing pressures on local authorities as part of SR2002. The LGA has identified insurance premiums as an area which it wants, to look at during the review.

London Underground

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if London Underground is a member of the COMET international metro benchmarking network; and what are the rules under which information the network collects can be published. [14598]

Mr. Jamieson [holding answer 13 November 2001]: I understand that London Underground is a member of the COMET international metro benchmarking network. The rules under which it collects and publishes information are a matter for COMET.

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what was the average rate of staff absenteeism among London Underground (a) drivers and (b) station staff in each year from 1991. [14605]

Mr. Jamieson [holding answer 13 November 2001]: London Underground has provided the following information showing the percentage absenteeism rate:

Calendar year	Train staff[1]	Station staff
1991	5.39	10.13
1992	5.09	7.94
1993	6.60	7.23
1994	5.61	6.36
1995	5.41	7.16
1996	5.16	6.15
1997	5.64	6.71
1998	5.22	6.43
1999	5.83	6.39
2000	7.23	7.17

[1] Includes guards

Bus Services

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions when the next issue of the Bus Quality Indicators Bulletin will be published. [14547]

Mr. Byers [holding answer 13 November 2001]: My Department intends to publish the next issue of the Bus Quality Indicators Bulletin in January 2002.

Departmental Public Relations

Mr. Norman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions (1) what are the terms of the brief given to the Finsbury Public Relations firm in relation to his Department's relations with the City; [14460]

(2) when he decided to employ Roland Rudd of Finsbury Public Relations to advise on his Department's relations with the City; [14463]

(3) what the expected monthly cost is to his Department of the cost of employing Finsbury Public Relations. [14459]

Mr. Jamieson [holding answer 13 November 2001]: Finsbury Public Relations are not employed by DTLR.

Council Tenants (Cash Incentive Scheme)

Mrs. Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions how many council tenants in England have taken advantage of cash incentive scheme payments in order to buy a home in the private sector in 2000–01; what restrictions there are on the amount of grant that may be made available in (a) Poole and (b) London and the South East; and what the maximum amount of grant allowed is, as a proportion of average house prices in (a) and (b). [14375]

Ms Keeble: 827 Cash Incentive Scheme grants have been made to council tenants in England in 2000–01 to buy their own home.

The maximum grant in Poole is £10,000 which equates to around 7 per cent. of average house prices in the area.

The maximum grant payable in London and the south east is 80 per cent. of the average Right to Buy Discount in the authority in question. The limit on the overall RTB discount in those regions is £38,000. 80 per cent. of the £38,000 is £30,400. This equates to around 20 per cent. of average house prices in London and the south east.

Planning Guidance (Flooding)

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what recent discussions he has had with the Environment Agency regarding planning policy guidance on building in areas subject to flooding. [14839]

Ms Keeble: The Chairman and Chief Executive of the Environment Agency have had three recent meetings with Ministers in this Department that included discussion of a range of issues, including planning and flooding.

In addition, officials meet and discuss regularly with their colleagues in the Environment Agency the implementation and effectiveness of the planning policy guidance on "Development and flood risk" published in July 2001.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what criteria he uses to determine the calling in of planning applications, with specific reference to development in the flood plains. [14838]

Ms Keeble: My right hon. Friend's policy on calling in planning applications remains as stated by the then Minister for Planning on 16 June 1999, Official Report, column 138W. His policy is to be very selective about calling in planning applications. He will, in general, only take this step if planning issues of more than local importance are involved.

With specific reference to development on flood plains, such cases could include, for example, those which, in his opinion:

significantly conflict with national policies as expressed in Planning Policy Guidance Note 25 on "Development and flood risk"; could have significant effects on flooding beyond their immediate locality; or give rise to substantial regional or national controversy.

Each case will continue to be treated on its merits. However, the maintenance by the Environment Agency of an objection on a flood-risk ground to significant development proposals in flood plains would clearly influence the decision whether or not to call in an application. Call-in would be more likely if there was any evidence that the Agency's objection was likely to be over-ruled by the local planning authority without sufficient counter-balancing reasons having been taken into account.

Ebley Wharf

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will publish the reasons for the decision not to call in the planning application of Ebley Wharf in Stroud. [14840]

Ms Keeble: No. The Government's policy is not to give reasons for decisions in cases where the Secretary of State has declined to intervene in particular planning applications.

Social Housing Provision

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what level of social housing provision there was in each of the last 10 years. [14837]

Ms Keeble: Estimates of the stock of social housing in England in the latest 10 years for which data are available are given in the table. Social dwellings include houses and flats owned by registered social landlords and by council.

Numbers of social dwellings

Thousand

Year	Social dwellings
1 April 1991	4,507
1 April 1992	4,490
1 April 1993	4,474
1 April 1994	4,445
1 April 1995	4,421
1 April 1996	4,412
1 April 1997	4,390
1 April 1998	4,358
1 April 1999	4,340
1 April 2000	4,290

Ministerial Meetings

Mr. Mark Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will publish the minutes of his meeting with the Rail Regulator on 5 October. [14784]

Mr. Jamieson: Details of internal communications are exempt from disclosure under section 2 of Part II of the code of practice on access to government information.

Electoral Commission

Mr. Gardiner: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what progress has been made on the transfer of the functions of the Local Government Commission for England to the Electoral Commission; and if he will make a statement. [15463]

Mr. Raynsford: I have today laid a draft of an Order which, subject to parliamentary approval, I intend to make under section 18 of the Political Parties, Elections and Referendums Act to provide for the transfer of functions of the Local Government Commission for England, together with the associated functions of the Secretary of State on electoral arrangements, to the Electoral Commission with effect from 1 April 2002. Our aim is to secure a well, planned transfer which avoids any disruption to the current programme of periodic electoral reviews being undertaken by the LGC or to the work programme of the Electoral Commission.

DEFENCE

Departmental Spending

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the total expenditure was on (a) advertising, (b) polling, (c) focus groups, (d) design consultants, (e) caterers, (f) production of departmental publications and (g) photographs/photographers by his Department for each year since 1995 in (i) cash and (ii) real terms; what was (A) the annual percentage increase in spending on each category and (B) spending on each category as a percentage of the total departmental running costs; and if he will make a statement. [6938]

Dr. Moonie: This information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. I am therefore unable to provide a substantive answer under the terms of exemption 9 (voluminous and vexatious requests) of the Code of Practice on Access to Government Information.

However, a breakdown of the Ministry of Defence's public relations' expenditure is published in the annual Departmental Performance Report, broken down into categories of RN, Army, RAF and civilian recruitment, PR, marketing and business support services, Chief of PR, sales promotion, scholarships and National Employers' Liaison Committee.

The Government are committed to using only whatever channel is judged to be the most cost-effective way to deliver the publicity necessary to support the implementation of policy. Paid advertising is resorted to only after careful consideration of the cost benefits.

Defence Medical Services

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make statement on the quinquennial review of Defence Medical Services. [13701]

Dr. Moonie: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 17 October 2001, Official Report, column 1224W, to my hon. Friend the Member for Great Yarmouth (Mr. Wright). A quinquennial review of the Defence Medical Agencies and some other aspects of defence medical arrangements is currently under way. The first phase of the review has been completed and a summary has been placed in the Library of the House.

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when Brigadier Tim Taylor's report on Deployable Medical Capability will be complete; and if he will place a copy in the Library. [13702]

Mr. Ingram: We are currently, as part of our normal routine, undertaking work to develop options on how to provide and deliver an effective and efficient future medical capability required to deploy in support of operations. A report on this work will be produced for internal planning purposes during autumn next year.

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place a copy of the report, "Defence Medical Services, Strategy for the Future", in the Library. [13703]

Dr. Moonie: The work undertaken, in the wake of the Strategic Defence Review, on a strategy for resolving problems facing the Defence Medical Services, constitutes internal discussion and advice and is withheld from publication under exemption 2 of the Code of Practice on Access to Government Information. A summary of the findings entitled "The Defence Medical Services—A Strategy for the Future" was placed in the Library of the House in December 1998.

Gibraltar

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the strategic role of Gibraltar. [14293]

Mr. Ingram: Gibraltar has been and continues to be an important overseas base for the British Armed Forces, and contains valuable support, logistic, communications and training facilities.

Nuclear Bunker, Cotswolds

Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions he has had with English Heritage over conferring listed status to the former Government's nuclear control and operations bunker in the Cotswolds. [14681]

Dr. Moonie: I will write to my hon. Friend and a copy of my letter will be placed in the Library of the House.

Eurofighter

Mr. Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he made of the effect of the removal of the cannon from the Eurofighter on the RAF's future capability to deter civilian aircraft from hazardous flight paths; and if he will make a statement. [14821]

Mr. Ingram: Eurofighter will be equipped with highly capable air-to-air missiles. We do not consider that the absence of a cannon from Eurofighter will have any material effect on the ability of the RAF to deter civilian aircraft from hazardous flight paths.

Afghanistan

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what military airlift provision is directed to delivering aid to Afghanistan. [14624]

Mr. Ingram: Three coalition C-17 aircraft are directed to delivering aid to Afghanistan. They have been flying nightly since the start of the campaign and, so far, have delivered approximately 1.3 million humanitarian daily rations.

Search and Rescue Helicopters

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has to provide search and rescue services through a private finance initiative when the helicopters used in SAR operations are replaced. [14623]

Mr. Ingram: The existing Sea King fleet (which includes the Search and Rescue aircraft) is due to be replaced in 2010–15. A full range of potential strategies are being evaluated to meet the search and rescue requirement, one of which is the potential for Public-Private Partnership/Private Finance Initiative.

Arms Trafficking

Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the annual report on the implementation of the EU joint action, of 17 December 1998, on the European Union's contribution to combating the destabilising accumulation and spread of small arms and light weapons (199/34/CFSP) and the EU programme on illicit trafficking in conventional arms of June 1997. [14259]

Mr. Bradshaw: I have been asked to reply.

The Government had an opportunity to comment on the draft of the annual report on the implementation of the EU joint action, of 17 December 1998, on the European Union's contribution to combating the destabilising accumulation and spread of small arms and light weapons (1999/34/CFSP) and the EU programme on illicit trafficking in conventional arms of June 1997, as did all other EU member states. The report is entirely consistent with the Government's policy on Small Arms and Light Weapons. It provides a detailed account of action taken by EU member states at the national level and in international forums to combat the dangerous proliferation of small arms. The report also sets out priorities for a more systematic approach to EU assistance in this crucial area of work. The Foreign and Commonwealth Office submitted the report for parliamentary scrutiny on 14 June.

The Government are committed to tackling the scourge of small arms proliferation. The need to eradicate the illicit trade in small arms has a particular urgency in the context of the war against terrorism. The annual report predates the first ever UN Conference on the Illicit Trade in Small Arms and Light Weapons in All Its Aspects, held in New York in July 2001. The Conference adopted a Programme of Action which commits States politically to put in place export control mechanisms, measures to ensure small arms traceability and to control brokers, and to destroy surplus weapons. There will be a Review Conference in 2006. It is vital that countries sustain the political momentum built up at the Conference to implement the programme of Action. The UK will continue to co-operate with our EU partners, within the framework of the EU's Joint Action on Small Arms and the EU Programme on Illicit Trafficking, to address these issues as a matter of priority.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Zimbabwe

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations he has made to the Government of Zimbabwe about terrorist acts against landowners. [13400]

Mr. Bradshaw: We regularly raise our concerns with the Government of Zimbabwe on continuing rural violence and the breakdown in the rule of law. At Abuja on 6 September, the Government of Zimbabwe made a commitment to end occupations of farm land and to remove illegal occupiers. My noble Friend Baroness Amos accompanied Commonwealth partners to Zimbabwe on 25–26 October, to assess implementation of the Abuja Agreement and to urge the Government to abide by their commitments.

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of sanctions which could be imposed by (a) the UK and (b) the Commonwealth against the Zimbabwe Government. [13398]

Mr. Bradshaw: The UK introduced a national arms embargo on Zimbabwe in May 2000. The UK is working closely with EU partners on Zimbabwe. At the 29 October General Affairs Council, EU Ministers decided to open Article 96 consultations with the Government of Zimbabwe. This gives Zimbabwe 60 days to address EU concerns. Any action by the Commonwealth is a matter for the Commonwealth as a whole.

International Criminal Tribunal for the Former Yugoslavia

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assistance his Department has given to the International War Crimes Tribunal in The Hague in connection with the recent trials of Bosnian Serbs. [13401]

Peter Hain: The Government are committed to assisting the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia in its aim of bringing justice and stability to the peoples of the region. The Foreign and Commonwealth Office contributes through the United Nations to the running expenses of the Tribunal and, together with other Government Departments, provides practical assistance in personnel and expertise. Where we provide material or witnesses in connection with a trial, this is done in accordance with established standards and practices agreed between the Government and the Tribunal.

The Government provide assistance to the Tribunal in all cases, regardless of the ethnicity of the accused.

Israel (British-made Military Components)

Mr. Galloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of whether British-made components are being used in the Israeli-occupied territories by the Israeli Defence Force on (a) Apache helicopters, (b) Merkava tanks, (c) Huey helicopters, (d) armoured personnel carriers and (e) F16 jets; and if he will make a statement. [13669]

Mr. Bradshaw: We have no evidence that equipment or components manufactured in the UK and licensed for export by this Government have been used by Israeli forces against civilians in the occupied territories during the recent and continuing violence. We would be concerned if such evidence came to light.

We look at all export licence applications to Israel on a case-by-case basis against the consolidated National and EU criteria, taking careful account in each case of the nature of the equipment and the proposed end-use and end-user in light of the circumstance prevailing at the time. This means inter alia we will not issue licences where there is a clear risk that the equipment might be used in internal repression, international aggression, adversely affect regional stability or prolong internal conflict. We are keeping the situation under close review.

Mr. Galloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the system for monitoring the end-use of British-made military components and equipment exported to Israel. [13668]

Mr. Bradshaw: We are keeping the situation under close review. We have no evidence that equipment manufactured in the UK and licensed for export by this Government has been used by Israeli forces against civilians in the occupied territories during the recent and continuing violence. We would be concerned if such evidence came to light.

We use information supplied by a number of sources to check that British equipment is not being used against Palestinians in the occupied territories, including information gathered by our embassy and non-Governmental organisations, among others. We have received an assurance from the Israeli Government that no UK manufactured equipment or components are used against Palestinian civilians in the occupied territories.

Overseas Territories (Reciprocal Rights)

Mr. Chidgey: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which overseas territories have agreed to offer reciprocal rights for UK citizens to work and reside in UK territories. [13915]

Mr. Bradshaw: None. The grant of British citizenship to British Dependent Territories citizens from qualifying Territories who do not already enjoy it, will be on a non-reciprocal basis.

Overseas Prisoner Repatriated

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many UK nationals detained in overseas prisons have been repatriated to the UK in the last 12 months. [13928]

Mr. Bradshaw: Since 1 November 2000, 38 British nationals detained in prisons overseas have been repatriated to the United Kingdom.

Afghanistan

Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans Her Majesty's Government have to provide economic compensation to surviving family members of non-combatant civilians killed by accident by allied munitions used in the conflict in Afghanistan. [14260]

Mr. Bradshaw: UK military operations are conducted in accordance with international law. Compensation for any casualties as a result of action undertaken in accordance with those requirements would be inappropriate.

Joan Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what resolution he proposed on Afghanistan at the session of the UN Security Council on Tuesday 13 November. [14858]

Mr. Bradshaw: On 13 November, a UK/French draft Security Council resolution on the future of Afghanistan was circulated among Security Council members. The draft will be discussed in informal consultations of the Security Council today. We hope the resolution will be adopted by the Security Council as soon as possible. A copy of the agreed resolution will be placed in the Libraries of the House.

Dr. Tonge: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the recent decision by the EU to lift the arms embargo on the Northern Alliance in Afghanistan. [14415]

Peter Hain: The EU (Common Position 96/746/CFSP) imposed an embargo on the export of arms to Afghanistan. In December 2000, the United Nations Security Council adopted Resolution 1333, which imposed a mandatory arms embargo only on the territory of Afghanistan under Taliban control. On 5 November the EU embargo was brought into line with the mandatory UN embargo (Common Position 2001/771/CFSP).

Vietnam

Mr. Colman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the case of Miss Truong Vy Pham, Hanoi (Ref. P402281). [13904]

Mr. Bradshaw: It is not our policy to comment on individual visa cases in a public forum. I will write to my hon. Friend shortly.

Biological Weapons Convention

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what his Department's policy is on the establishment of national oversight mechanisms for (a) security and (b) genetic engineering of pathogenic organisms; [13947]

(2) what plans he has with regard to the development of a code of ethical conduct for bioscientists; [13946]

(3) what United Nations procedures exist for investigating (a) suspicious outbreaks and (b) allegations of biological weapons use; [13949]

(4) what plans he has for the promotion of responsible conduct in the (a) study, (b) use, (c) modification and (d) shipment of pathogenic organisms; [13953]

(5) what proposals his Department has (a) to improve international disease control and (b) to enhance mechanisms for sending expert response teams to cope with outbreaks. [13948]

Mr. Bradshaw: These are among a number of new ideas intended to complement the implementation of the Biological Weapons Convention (BWC). We have been discussing these and other options with other States Parties since the end of the negotiations on a BWC Protocol in August. All are at an early stage of development. We expect them to be further discussed at the 5th Review Conference of the BWC in Geneva (19 November to 7 December). We welcome proposals that have been made for practical and effective measures to meet the biological weapons threat. We hope that these can be agreed at the Conference.

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions his Department has had with its United States counterparts with regard to the United States' recent proposals to strengthen the biological and toxic weapons convention. [13945]

Mr. Bradshaw: We are in frequent contact with the United States, and other States Parties to the Biological Weapons Convention, on our respective ideas for strengthening the Convention. The Foreign Secretary discussed the subject with the US Secretary of State during his visit to Washington in October.

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) if he will make a statement on his Department's policy at the forthcoming biological and toxic weapons convention Review Conference; [13951]

(2) what steps he will take to ensure that international progress towards the strengthening of the biological and toxic weapons convention is sustained following the BTWC Review Conference. [13950]

Mr. Bradshaw: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to my hon. Friend the Member for Lewisham Deptford (Joan Ruddock) on 13 November 2001, Official Report, column 668W.

Government Wine Cellar

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his estimate is of the number of bottles of (a) wine and (b) other alcoholic beverages contained within the Government wine cellar, managed by his Department; what his estimate is of the value of the Government wine cellar; and if he will make a statement. [13517]

Mr. MacShane: The Government Wine Cellar contains a mixture of fine wines, reception or drinking wines and spirits and liqueurs. Stock levels vary according to the number of Government functions at any given time. Generally the cellar contains approximately 37,000 bottles, the majority of which are wine. The value of the stock is subjective, depending on the vagaries on the wine market, and bears no relation to the purchase costs. The current value is estimated to be in the region of £1.5 million.

SCOTLAND

Prestwick Air Traffic Control Centre

Mr. Peter Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what the most recent projection of the number of jobs that would be created by the completion of the new air traffic control centre at Prestwick airport is. [9200]

Mrs. Liddell [holding answer 22 October 2001]: NATS staff will transfer from the existing centre at Prestwick to the new centre when it is completed. It is not anticipated that any new jobs will be created by the completion of the project. There will be some additional short-term employment opportunities during the construction and commissioning phase.

Mr. Peter Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what the projected capital cost of the proposed new air traffic control centre at Prestwick airport is; and how much of this budget had been spent as at 16 October. [9201]

Mrs. Liddell [holding answer 22 October 2001]: Although construction of the new air traffic control centre at Prestwick is being deferred, contracts for the design of the building and initial site works are in progress and will be completed. The value of these contracts is a commercial matter between NATS and the contractors. Construction of the building and the design and installation of equipment systems will be subject to a competitive procurement process, which will determine the total costs of the new centre.

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what financial assistance the Government allocated for the building of the new air traffic control centre at Prestwick airport (a) before and (b) following the confirmation of a delay. [11243]

Mrs. Liddell: The Government have not made any allocation of financial assistance for the new air traffic control centre at Prestwick.

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what recent assessment the Government have made of the delay in building the new air traffic control centre at Prestwick on (a) Ayrshire's economy and (b) local unemployment. [11247]

Mrs. Liddell: Recent changes to airline operations and consequent reductions in air traffic has led to temporary deferral of work to create the new air traffic control centre at Prestwick. Air traffic control services for Scottish and North Atlantic airspace will continue to be provided by NATS staff from the existing centre at Prestwick. The main effect on the local economy of deferring work on the new centre will be to delay creation of short-term employment opportunities on the construction and commissioning of the new centre. The Government remain closely in touch with the industry with a view to securing the shortest possible delay.

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many meetings she has had with the Department for Transport, Local Government and the Regions regarding the delay in building of the new air traffic control centre at Prestwick. [11244]

Mrs. Liddell: I have regular discussions with my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions on a wide range of transport issues which affect Scotland, including matters relating to the new air traffic centre at Prestwick.

My hon. Friend the Minister of State, Scotland Office will shortly meet the Minister for Transport to discuss a number of items including the new NATS centre at Prestwick.

Scottish Executive

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what her policy is regarding consultations prior to the publication of proposals involving the transfer of powers to the Scottish Executive by (a) primary legislation and (b) order in Council. [13818]

Mrs. Liddell: Any transfer of powers to the Scottish Executive takes place following agreement between the Administrations. If conferred by primary legislation, by convention the Scottish Executive first seeks the approval of the Scottish Parliament. If by secondary legislation, the order follows the procedures set out in the Scotland Act, such orders require approval by both Houses of Parliament and also the Scottish Parliament.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Al-Jazeera

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what arrangements are in place for the al-Jazeera television station to be broadcast in this country with English subtitles; and if she will make a statement. [12257]

Tessa Jowell: Al-Jazeera is an Arabic language channel aimed at Arab-speaking communities across a wide geographic area. English subtitling would be an editorial matter for the channel to consider.

Lottery Grants (Morley and Rothwell)

Mr. Challen: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many applications for lottery grants have been made, in each year since 1997, by organisations and individuals based in Morley and Rothwell constituency. [14337]

Mr. Caborn: Comprehensive information on applications for lottery grants is not centrally held at the Department for Culture, Media and Sport.

Football Dispute

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what discussions she has had with (a) the Premier League and (b) the Professional Footballers

Association regarding the dispute between the two bodies; what role her Department can play in resolving the dispute; and if she will make a statement. [14292]

Mr. Caborn: Neither my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State nor I have discussed this issue with the Premier League or the Professional Footballers Association (PFA). Although the Government hope that a satisfactory settlement may be reached without the need for industrial action, the dispute must be resolved through a free process of negotiation. My Department has no plans to intervene.

Football Clubs (Financial Support)

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many football clubs have received financial support from Sport UK in the last 12 months. [14290]

Mr. Caborn: None. UK Sport does not provide funding for football. UK Sport's support for training, competition and coaching facilities for elite sports people is, in the main, provided to UK-wide governing bodies. In view of the administrative structure of football in the UK, applications for lottery funding from the sport's clubs and governing bodies are made to Sport England, or to its equivalents in the other home nations.

Elite Sports Funding Review

Mr. Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps she is taking to implement the findings of the Cunningham report; and if she will make a statement. [14286]

Mr. Caborn: The Elite Sports Funding Review chaired by Dr. Cunningham identified over 40 recommendations, many of which are for the Sports Councils and National Governing Bodies of sport to take forward. The current position of the Sports Councils in respect of the recommendations was presented at the recent Sports Cabinet meeting. They have accepted and are implementing the overwhelming majority of the recommendations. The Government will provide their detailed response to the report in due course.

Sport England

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will make a statement on the funding and role for Sport England within the regions. [14846]

Mr. Caborn: Sport England's future role in the regions, which will include arrangements for the distributions of funding, is one of the issues being considered in the current quinquennial review of Sport England.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what resources were available to Sport England from (a) the Exchequer and (b) the lottery in each region in each of the last two years. [14851]

Mr. Caborn: Sport England's allocation of grant in aid for 2000–01 was £38 million and for 2001–02 is £43.2 million. The budget for each region is set out in the table.

£000

Region	2000–01	2001–02
North East	886	1,169
Yorkshire	1,105	1,528
East Midlands	1,096	1,340
East	1,180	1,314
London	1,301	1,694
South East	2,014	2,215
South West	1,139	1,413
West Midlands	1,161	1,537
North West	1,365	1,801

Sport England's income from the National Lottery for 2000–01 was £223.5 million and the forecast income for 2001–02 is £214,233 million. The total amounts awarded in each region are set out in the table:

£000

Region	2000–01	2001–02[1]
North East	11,853	5,573
Yorkshire	30,048	3,920
East Midlands	21,606	12,484
East	9,750	6,696
London	16,880	16,056
South East	28,227	7,962
South West	18,561	8,658
West Midlands	14,612	3,132
North West	21,168	7,093

[1] At November 2001

Sports Schools and Colleges

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will make a statement on the role of her Department in the development of specialist sports schools and colleges; and what help it is giving to the development of the Sports Co-ordinator Programme. [14850]

Mr. Caborn: The Department works in partnership with the Department for Education and Skills (DfES) on aspects of the development of Specialist Sports Colleges. The Department sits on the management board of the School Sport Co-ordinator programme which is run by our sponsored body, Sport England.

Sports (Community Development)

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps she plans to take and with which other Government Departments she is co-operating in order to enhance community development in relation to sport. [14848]

Mr. Caborn: I chair monthly meetings bringing together Ministerial colleagues from the Department for Education and Skills and the Department of Health with Sport England to make sure that the potential of sport to drive forward the wider Government agenda is realised. My officials and I are working closely with our colleagues in DLTR on sports planning and regeneration issues, most notably the redrafting of PPG 17, which will be the strengthened framework in which the provision of sports facilities will be delivered. Because we recognise the potential of sport as a means of improving health, diverting young people from crime, drugs and antisocial behaviour and engaging disaffected learners in education and employment we are working jointly with the Department for Education and Skills, the Department of Health, the Department for Work and Pensions and the Home Office to ensure that people of all ages in our communities benefit fully from sport development opportunities and initiatives.

Sports (Participation)

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how her Department measures participation rates in sport; and what information she collates on (a) an age related and (b) a regional basis. [14847]

Mr. Caborn: Adult (aged 16+) rates of sports participation are measured through the General Household Survey (GHS), a continuous survey carried out by the Office for National Statistics across Great Britain. Questions relating to sport are included on the survey once every three years, the last being 1996 and the next being due 2002 (in 1999, the GHS was not carried out).

Sport England has also measured participation rates for adults with disabilities (carried out in 2000–01) and for people from Black and Ethnic minority communities (carried out in 1999) through specially commissioned large-scale surveys using the same methodology and questions used in the GHS.

Ages of participants can be analysed in a variety of ways, as respondents are asked their actual age. Overall participation rates can also be reported at a regional level.

Participation by young people is measured in Sport England's Survey of Young People which has now been carried out twice (1994 and 1999). The survey, which in 1999 was carried out by MORI on behalf of Sport England, is school based and involves a representative sample of around 4,000 young people aged six to 16 across England. This survey also enables analysis by age. Sport England has also undertaken a large scale survey of young people with disabilities using the same sports participation questions as in the wider 1999 survey (carried out in 2000).

Sports (Co-ordination)

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent discussions she has had to ensure that there is greater co-ordination within different sports at (a) international, (b) national, (c) regional and (d) local levels. [14849]

Mr. Caborn: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has had no recent discussions to ensure greater co-ordination within different sports at the various levels. However, she is aware that the Sports Councils work closely with the national governing bodies of sport continually to examine improved methods of co-ordination across all sports and all levels.

Sports (Rural Regeneration)

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will make a statement on the role of sport in regeneration, with specific reference to rural areas. [14845]

Mr. Caborn: The Government fully recognise the important role that sport can play in the regeneration of both urban and rural areas and in addressing a whole range of social issues such as better health, reduced crime and social inclusion. Both the report of Policy Action Team 10 and the Government's Plan for Sport highlight how sport can be used to tackle neighbourhood renewal, social exclusion and community development. Among the initiatives included in the plan are the creation of the Community Sport Alliance which brings together key stakeholders of all levels to identify the key challenges facing sport in the community; the promotion of sport in regional policy making through contributions to the work of regional agencies such as the Regional Cultural Consortiums; and ensuring that equity principles are at the heart of all the Government's and Sport England's policies for the promotion and development of sport. In particular the Policy Directions issued to Sport England in respect of the distribution of the Lottery Sports Fund require it, in deciding applications for funding, to have regard to the scope for reducing economic and social deprivation, the need to promote access to sport for people from all sections of society and the need to further the objectives of sustainable development taking into account social and community progress and employment opportunities created by sports projects. Sport England has also introduced a number of other specific initiatives aimed at the regeneration of deprived areas including Sport Action Zones, one of which is Cornwall, its Priority Areas Initiative and the establishment of a Regeneration Policy Advisory Group.

Playing Fields

Mr. Hawkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport, pursuant to the Minister for Sport's answer to the hon. Member for Surrey Heath on 5 November 2001, Official Report, column 4, what was the basis of the analysis her Department used for the calculation of numbers of playing fields disposed of during the period 1992 to 1997. [14844]

Mr. Caborn: Public concern about the loss of school playing fields led directly to the introduction in October 1998 of section 77 of the School Standards and Framework Act 1998. Before section 77 was introduced, only grant-maintained schools were required to seek consent from the Secretary of State before selling land, including areas of their playing fields. Local authorities and other schools that owned their own playing fields were free to sell without restriction. The then Department for Education and Employment estimated that an average of 40 playing fields a month were sold in this way before October 1998. Their estimate is based on the number of playing field disposals at grant-maintained schools between April 1996, when the previous Government further encouraged the disposal of playing fields by relaxing the Local Authority Capital Finance Regulations which governed the use of sale proceeds, and 1 October 1998, when section 77 took effect. During this 30-month period, some 64 grant-maintained schools were given approval to dispose of areas of playing field, which is an average of over two a month. Using the proportion of grant-maintained schools at that time compared with the number of other schools, the Department for Education and Skills estimate the total number of playing field disposals each month to have been around 40.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Fireworks

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) what plans she has to heighten public awareness of (a) the dangers of fireworks and (b) the effects of fireworks on animals; [9240]

(2) what plans she has to restrict the decibel level of fireworks; [9242]

(3) what plans she has to review firework legislation; and if she will make a statement; [9243]

(4) what control the Government have over fireworks bought on the internet; and if she will make a statement; [9244]

(5) what plans she has to restrict the use of fireworks to a limited time period. [9241]

Miss Melanie Johnson [holding answer 24 October 2001]: The Department has recently launched this year's fireworks safety campaign informing the public of the dangers posed by fireworks. The theme of this year's campaign, is to urge children and young people to take care when using or being near fireworks. As part of the campaign, around 2,000 information packs to help mount local safety campaigns have been distributed to trading standards, fire brigades, health promotion units, environmental health officers and police forces. In addition over 25,000 special information packs have been distributed for use in schools.

The public is warned of the effects of fireworks on animals through the fireworks code, which advises pet owners to keep pets indoors. Each pack of fireworks on sale contains a copy of the code.

Fireworks on sale in the United Kingdom are required under the Fireworks (Safety) Regulations 1997 to adhere to British Standards BS 7114 which restrict the size and weight of fireworks. I have no plans to change this at present, although we are involved in the proposed European Standard which is likely to specify sound levels for certain fireworks.

We have no plans to restrict the use of fireworks to a limited time period. The working of regulations safeguards is kept under regular review.

United Kingdom based firework companies selling over the internet are subject to the provisions of the Fireworks (Safety) Regulations 1997.

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps her Department has taken to reduce accidents from fireworks. [10473]

Miss Melanie Johnson: The comprehensive measures introduced under the Fireworks (Safety) Regulations 1997 are again being supplemented by a robust, targeted firework safety campaign. The measures include controls on the types and size of fireworks which can be sold to the public, and prohibiting sales to those under 18 years of age.

The emphasis of this year's campaign, is that children and young people should take care when using or being near fireworks. As part of the campaign, around 2,000 information packs to help mount local safety campaigns have been distributed to trading standards, fire brigades, health promotion units, environmental health officers and police forces. In addition over 25,000 special information packs have been distributed for use in schools.

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) how many reported incidents involving injuries with fireworks in each of the last five years have involved (a) minors and (b) adults as the alleged perpetrators of the incidents in (i) Scotland and (ii) the UK; [13164]

(2) how many reported incidents involving injuries with fireworks in each of the last five years have involved (a) minors and (b) adults as victims of the incidents in (i) Scotland and (ii) the UK. [13165]

Miss Melanie Johnson [holding answer 8 November 2001]: The following data were collected from Accident and Emergency Departments in Great Britain over the firework season. Data are collected separately by the Department of Health in Northern Ireland. These figures are recorded cases of accidental injury involving fireworks. We have no statistics relating to alleged perpetrators of incidents.

	Scotland		England and Wales
Year	Under 18	Over 18	Under 18	Over 18
2000	49	19	508	396
1999	45	37	549	425
1998	47	13	414	353
1997	35	22	439	412
1996	61	24	647	501

Mr. Blizzard: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what further plans she has to regulate the sale and use of fireworks for purposes other than organised displays. [13984]

Miss Melanie Johnson: We have no plans further to regulate the sale and use of fireworks.

Coal

Mr. Kevin Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will make a statement on the circumstances in which she will accept continued state aid from the EU for the UK coal industry. [10376]

Mr. Wilson: The EU must approve state aid paid by the Government to the UK coal industry, but it does not itself pay such aid.

The DTI is currently reviewing the rationale for the business support it gives, and so it would be premature to give a definitive view on the circumstances in which we would continue to subsidise the UK coal industry. However, as a general principle we would need to be convinced that the benefits of continued subsidy (for example in energy supply, economic or social terms) would outweigh the costs of that subsidy.

Manufacturing

Mr. Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what measures she has taken to support the competitiveness of British manufacturing since 7 June. [10991]

Mr. Wilson: We are strengthening assistance to manufacturing industry through our increased support for the regional development agencies to raise innovation, enterprise and skills. We are taking forward the announced initiative to provide a manufacturing advisory service, based on provision of services on a regional basis. We are also introducing measures to help workers develop their skills and increase their prospects of finding new, better employment if they lose their jobs. These and other issues will be discussed at the manufacturing summit in Birmingham on 5 December.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what measures have been undertaken by her Department since 1997 to assist British manufacturing. [13502]

Mr. Wilson [holding answer 12 November 2001]: Since 1997 we have established a favourable macro-economic framework to ensure the future competitiveness of British manufacturing. We have built on this support with policies to foster productivity and help firms innovate and grow. We have established regional development agencies to raise innovation, enterprise and skills in every region. We are improving university and industry links to bring new products and processes in key industrial sectors to market. We are helping established industries to modernise through adopting best practice in production and supply chain management. We have strengthened the knowledge base for manufacturing through increased investment in the science infrastructure. We are creating a manufacturing advisory service, based on a centre for excellence in every region to help firms to innovate and improve their productivity. We are also introducing measures to help workers develop their skills and increase their prospects of finding new, better employment if they lose their jobs.

Electricity Trading Arrangements

Mr. Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will make a statement on the new electricity trading arrangements. [10646]

Mr. Wilson [holding answer 30 October 2001]: Ofgem published on 31 August a review of NETA's performance over the first three months. Their key findings were that:

> Wholesale electricity prices are 20–25 per cent. below prices that would have been produced under the pool.
>
> Market liquidity has been established with a threefold increase in the volume of trades, and a doubling of the number of contracts struck compared to this time last year under the pool.
>
> The National Grid Company is working well to keep the electricity system in balance. Its daily costs of balancing the system have halved, which will also benefit customers.

In a competitive market, we expect changes in wholesale prices to feed through to final customers. Domestic customers are seeing lower electricity prices with prices down by around three per cent. as are industrial customers with prices down around 11 per cent. We expect that further prices reductions will take place as wholesale prices feed through fully.

The impact of NETA on smaller generators continues to be a concern. Ofgem also published a report on the impact of NETA on smaller generators in the first two months of its operation. This report highlighted the areas where further action was needed to assist smaller generators. A consultation document was issued on 1 November 2001 aimed at addressing these concerns.

BSkyB

Mrs. Lawrence: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether the initial findings of the Office of Fair Trading's inquiry into BSkyB's position in the pay TV market will be made public. [12091]

Miss Melanie Johnson [holding answer 2 November 2001]: The conduct of Competition Act inquiries and the publication of their findings are a matter for the Director General of Fair Trading.

Gas Prices

Mr. Shaw: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment she has made of the effect of increased gas prices on (a) the expansion of combined heat and power plants and (b) future emissions targets. [12442]

Mr. Wilson: The DTI's energy projections published in November 2000 included projections of CHP capacity based on assumptions about future oil and gas prices. Those assumptions are still reasonable in the longer term but the Government recognise that high gas prices this year have reduced substantially the attractiveness of investment in new CHP plant in the short term. The Government remain committed to their CHP target of at least 10,000 MWe capacity by 2010, as well as their emission targets. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs will be issuing a draft CHP strategy in the coming months that will set out how the target will be achieved.

Nuclear Power

Mr. Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what was the total level of Government financial support to the nuclear industry in each year since 1990, including (a) research grants, (b) transfer of debt from privatised utilities, (c) non-fossil fuel levy, (d) investment in BNFL facilities, (e) running costs of UKAEA and NIREX and (f) other sources. [12789]

Mr. Wilson [holding answer 7 November 2001]: Funding to the UK nuclear industry has been provided primarily in the form of grant and grant-in-aid to the United Kingdom Atomic Energy Authority (UKAEA). This funding has been primarily to enable the UKAEA to discharge historic nuclear liabilities arising form past civil nuclear research programmes and to decommission those research facilities and restore sites to normal use—with the exception of funding in respect of the UKAEA nuclear fusion research programme at Culham which complements the UK's participation in the European Union's Framework Programme V.

In the period 1999–2000, the DTI (Department of Energy prior to May 1992) provided grant/grant-in-aid to the UKAEA as follows:

£ million

Year	Grant and grant in aid[1]	Fusion	Other nuclear
1990–91	94.3	26.9	—
1991–92	68.7	20.7	—
1992–93	[2]126.2	16.3	—
1993–94	[2]128.7	16.3	—
1994–95	[2]131.3	15.7	—
1995–96[3]	199.3	15.9	—
1996–97	166.5	12.1	—
1997–98	174.5	16.6	8.5
1998–99	285	12.6	5
1999–2000	194.4	14.4	3.3
2000–01	223.4	14.3	3.5

[1] Grant in aid to the UKAEA includes provision for its running costs
[2] Grant payment
[3] Prior to 1995 the UKAEA was a trading fund with a negative external financing requirement
Note:
Figures are from Government Expenditure Plan Reports

As regards the privatisation of the nuclear industry (which included both AEA Technology, and British Energy respectively) arrangements at the time included provision for debts to be included in the privatised companies balance sheets and for those debts to be paid back to the Government at fixed periods.

Turning to the non-fossil fuel obligation (NFFO), this obliged electricity suppliers to buy a certain proportion of their electricity from non-fossil sources (nuclear and renewables). Nuclear Electric plc received a premium over and above the market price for electricity in the period 1990–96, as follows:

£ million

Year	Premium income
1990–91	1,265
1991–92	798
1992–93	864
1993–94	895
1994–95	892
1995–96	699

These additional costs incurred by electricity suppliers in meeting their NFFO obligations were reimbursed through the fossil fuel levy on electricity supplied in England and Wales.

BNFL, as a commercial company, does not receive investment capital from Government, although Ministers have provided assurances from time to time in respect of the Government's willingness to accept responsibility for any future liabilities which might arise.

The costs of UK NIREX are met by subscriptions from its members (UKAEA, BNFL, British Energy).

Financial Aid

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what is the total amount of public money given to support (a) farming, (b) the steel industry and (c) all manufacturing industries in each of the last 10 years. [13718]

Mr. Wilson: The primary responsibility for farming support rests with my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, and with the devolved administrations in Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland. I understand from colleagues that information on public expenditure under the Common Agricultural Policy and on national grants and subsidies is contained in the publication "Agriculture in the UK", and that copies of this publication are available in the Library of the House. My Department provides support for farming under the small firms loan guarantee scheme. The amounts paid against claims relating to farming under the guarantee since 1991 are as follows:

Year	Amount paid (£)
1991	nil
1992	37,336.41
1993	15,671.86
1994	94,179.59
1995	219,391.52
1996	242,017.49
1997	228,727.59
1998	131,508.71
1999	19,947.17
2000	39,647.41
2001	nil to date
Total	1,028,427.75

The provision of state aid to steel companies which produce products covered by the European Coal and Steel Community (ECSC) treaty is governed by the Steel Aid Code of the treaty. This code permits aid, only in limited circumstances, for research and development, environmental protection and the permanent closure (not rescue) of a steel company. The only instance of aid to a company covered by the treaty was in the mid-nineties when British Steel was provided with aid of around £180,000 towards a research and development project under the Link programme. Further details on aid to this industry could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The Department currently spends around £1 billion a year in support for business of which a very significant proportion directly and indirectly benefits manufacturing industry. Because of the wide-ranging nature of DTI support quantifying the exact proportion of public money given to support particular industries (e.g. manufacturing or farming) in each of the last 10 years would raise problems of definition and would also incur disproportionate cost.

End of Life Vehicles Directive

Mr. Sayeed: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment she has made of the cost implications of the End of Life Vehicles Directive for car manufacturers; and if she will make a statement. [13884]

Mr. Wilson: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Buckingham (Mr. Bercow) on 6 November 2001, Official Report, column 159W.

Mr. Sayeed: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment she has made of the implications of the End of Life Vehicles Directive; and if she will make a statement. [13883]

Mr. Wilson: The Directive is complex, with implications for car and component manufacturers, importers, dismantlers, shredders, materials reprocessors, and car owners. The DTI consultation paper on options for implementing the Directive, which included a partial regulatory impact assessment, had resulted in around 100 responses by the closing date of 2 November. These responses are now being assessed, and will be taken into account when deciding on the precise method of implementation.

Structural Funding

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what (a) amount and (b) proportion of overall EU objective 1 budget for the UK has been (i) committed and (ii) spent according to the latest records in each of the four objective 1 regions. [14452]

Alan Johnson: The figures in the table are the latest available commitments and payments made under the EU structural funds for each of the objective 1 regions. Payments under the programmes lag behind commitments because the fund regulations require ERDF expenditure to be defrayed before it is claimed. ESF projects may receive an advance payment at the beginning of the project but subsequent ESF payments take place after expenditure has been defrayed.

The management of the objective 1 programme for West Wales and the Valleys is a matter for the National Assembly for Wales. However, I understand from the National Assembly that the figures for this region are as set out in the table.

Region	Committed grant (£ million)	Spent grant (£ million)	Proportion of regional objective 1 budget (Percentage)
Cornwall and the Scilly Isles	60	5.98	19.53/1.95
Merseyside	164.73	30.68	20.14/3.75
South Yorkshire	92.5	13.046	12.86/1.81
West Wales and the Valleys	260	30.4	24/2.7

Equal Pay

Jeff Ennis: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many equal value claims have failed for being over the six-month time limit rule since the Equal Pay Act 1963 became law. [14287]

Alan Johnson: It would not be possible to provide the number of equal value claims that have failed for being over the six month time limit rule since the Equal Pay Act became law.

Such information is not available from the Employment Tribunals Service database, which only records the outcome of each case and not the reasons for the outcome.

Source:

Employment Tribunals Service

Photovoltaic Energy

Mr. Win Griffiths: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will make a statement about the sale price of photovoltaic energy for national grid purposes; and how this price compares with those in other EU member states. [14372]

Mr. Wilson: In our liberalised energy market, the price paid to generators for electricity, including electricity from photovoltaics (PV), is a matter for negotiation between the generator and the supplier, and is subject to market fluctuation. We therefore have only limited and anecdotal information about prices paid to generators for PV energy. The best price recently mentioned to the Department has been 6.5p per kilowatt hour paid by a company offering a "net metering" deal, that is a deal in which the supplier buys PV energy from generators at the same price that they would charge them for electricity purchases. The best price obtainable at any time will vary with the market.

Some European countries have taken steps to encourage net metering, and some, notably Germany and Spain, have gone further by legislating for the utilities to pay renewable generators a premium price for all the electricity they wish to export to the network. In the case of PV, this is about 33p per kilowatt hour in Germany and 25p per kilowatt hour in Spain.

The Government are encouraging the uptake of PV in the UK through both domestic and large-scale field trials, soon to be followed by a major PV demonstration programme to rival the German and Japanese PV roofs programme. It is also working to overcome infrastructural barriers through simplified grid-connection, fairer tariffs and more positive planning guidance.

Employment Tribunal Claims

Mr. Win Griffiths: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will make a statement on the number of employment tribunal claims in the last five years; and what steps her Department is taking to reduce the extent of non-compliance with regulations by employers. [14374]

Alan Johnson: The number of applications were:

1996–97: 88,961

1997–98: 80,435

1998–99: 91,913

1999–2000: 103,935

2000–01: 130,408.

The Employment Bill, introduced in Parliament on 7 November 2001, aims to reduce recourse to employment tribunals through a better understanding of employment rights and responsibilities. In particular, the Bill will set new minimum standards for dealing with workplace disputes and a penalty on employers for failure to comply with the requirement to provide a written statement of employment particulars. The changes will be supported by advice and guidance to help employers meet the requirements of the law.

Routes to Resolution

Mr. Win Griffiths: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will list the responses received to her consultation document, "Routes to Resolution". [14373]

Alan Johnson: The respondents to the "Routes to Resolution: Improving Dispute Resolution in Britain" consultation are listed in Annexe B of "Routes to Resolution—the Government Response" issued on 8 November 2001. A copy is lodged in the House of Commons Library. The text is also available on the DTI website at www.dti.gov.uk/er/individual/etresponse.pdf. Copies of individual responses are held in the DTI and House of Commons Libraries. I am grateful to those who responded.

WALES

Bus Travel

8. Donald Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what discussions he has had with the First Secretary of the National Assembly for Wales about co-ordinating measures to facilitate bus travel for pensioners and the disabled. [12474]

Mr. Paul Murphy: I meet the First Secretary on a regular basis and discuss a range of issues, including transport.

As the Prime Minister stated during his address to the Assembly, policy on concessionary travel was made in Wales and is now being extended to England.

27. Mrs. Betty Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what discussions he has had with the First Secretary of the National Assembly for Wales about measures to facilitate bus travel for pensioners and the disabled. [12495]

Mr. Touhig: My right hon. Friend meets the First Secretary on a regular basis to discuss a range of issues, including transport.

As the Prime Minister stated during his address to the Assembly, policy on concessionary travel was made in Wales and is now being extended to England.

From 1 April this year free passes have been available to pensioners and disabled passengers guaranteeing at least 50 per cent. concessions on local buses, a move estimated to have benefited some 600,000 pensioners and disabled passengers. From 1 April 2002 these passes will guarantee free local bus travel for pensioners and disabled people.

A Bill is currently progressing in the House of Commons to equalise the entitlement to concessionary travel for men and women at the age of 60. It is estimated it will bring to some 8 million nationwide the number of people who benefit from the Government's statutory requirements for travel concessions, including some 75,000 men in Wales. It is currently planned to introduce these measures in England in April 2003. The Assembly will have its own commencement powers and could introduce earlier if it wished.

Special Educational Needs

10. Patrick Mercer: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what discussions he has had with the First Secretary of the National Assembly for Wales concerning the influx from English border areas of pupils with special needs into north Wales schools. [12476]

Mr. Touhig: Although my right hon. Friend and I have regular meetings with the First Secretary to discuss a range of issues relating to educational provision in Wales, the influx from English border areas of pupils with special needs into north Wales schools has not been raised.

I am, however, aware that the National Assembly for Wales places a high priority on achieving the best possible opportunities for children with special educational needs in order to give them a rewarding school life and to equip them for adult life.

Manufacturing Employment

11. Mr. Peter Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what discussions he has had with the First Secretary of the National Assembly for Wales about levels of manufacturing employment in Wales. [12477]

Mr. Paul Murphy: I meet the First Secretary regularly to discuss a range of issues, including manufacturing employment in Wales. Some 7,500 jobs have been announced in the manufacturing sector in Wales in the past 12 months. This is particularly welcome in the context of severe losses in the steel sector.

Objective 1

12. Adam Price: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what recent discussions he has had with the Treasury with regard to the Government's policy on the provision of investment aid in the west Wales and the valleys objective 1 programme area; and if he will make a statement. [12478]

Mr. Paul Murphy: I meet Treasury colleagues regularly to discuss a variety of issues.

All representations in advance of the 2002 Budget will be considered carefully in the normal way.

Health (Waiting Lists)

13. Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what recent discussions he has had with the Secretary for Health and Social Services in the National Assembly regarding the number of people waiting for treatment in Wales. [12479]

Mr. Touhig: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State and I meet regularly with the National Assembly First Minister and Health Minister to discuss a range of issues including the number of people waiting for treatment.

Crime

15. Mark Tami: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will make a statement on the measures taken by the Government to tackle crime in Wales. [12482]

16. Mr. Win Griffiths: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will make a statement on the measures taken by the Government to tackle crime in Wales. [12483]

26. Mrs. Lawrence: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will make a statement on the measures taken by Government to tackle crime in Wales. [12494]

Mr. Touhig: The Government's partnership approach to fighting crime is making a significant difference in communities across Wales. With funding running into millions of pounds, local crime and disorder reduction partnerships are implementing projects targeted at crime hotspots, domestic violence and drug related crime. Much of this funding is being channelled specifically into the most deprived communities and is going a long way towards building safer and more inclusive communities.

QinetiQ (Aberporth)

17. Mr. Simon Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what discussions he has had with Government and National Assembly Secretaries regarding the future of QinetiQ, Aberporth. [12484]

Mr. Paul Murphy: I meet both Government and Assembly Ministers regularly to discuss a range of issues.

The Government have provided funding for the September 2001 apprentice intake at Aberporth. Future arrangements for apprentices at QinetiQ sites depend on the Ministry of Defence review of Ranges and Test Evaluation provision. The MOD expects to have agreed a procurement strategy for this business by the end of the year.

Wrexham Incinerator

18. Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what discussions he has had with members of the Assembly about the proposed Wrexham incinerator and its potential cross-border effect on English constituencies. [12485]

Mr. Paul Murphy: I have had no direct discussion on this subject with Assembly Members as any planning proposal is a matter for the relevant local authority and the National Assembly for Wales.

I understand that the Assembly has received a number of requests for the planning application to be called in and consideration is currently being given to these requests. The Assembly's approach is not to interfere with a local planning authority's jurisdiction unless an application involves planning issues of more than local importance.

Livestock Movements

19. Hywel Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on the operation of the autumn movement of livestock scheme in Wales. [12486]

Mr. Paul Murphy: I have regular meetings with the Secretary of State for the Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on a wide range of issues, which have of course included matters related to foot and mouth disease. I understand that in respect of this scheme there is close and effective operational liaison between the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs and the National Assembly.

Manufacturing Industry

20. Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what recent representations he has received concerning the future of manufacturing industry in Wales. [12487]

Mr. Paul Murphy: I meet, visit and correspond regularly with representatives of the Welsh manufacturing industry. Some 7,500 jobs have been announced in the manufacturing sector in Wales in the past 12 months. This is particularly welcome in the context of severe losses in the steel sector.

New Deal

21. Julie Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will make a statement on the operation of the new deal in Wales. [12488]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The new deal has been a success story in Wales. 81,500 people in Wales have benefited from the scheme so far and 42 per cent. of those have now found jobs. Since the launch of the scheme in Wales there has been a 68 per cent. fall in the number of 18 to 24-year-olds claiming jobseeker's allowance for six months or more and the number of people over 25 claiming jobseeker's allowance for two years or more has fallen by 45 per cent.

Further and Higher Education

22. Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what discussions he has had with the First Secretary concerning further and higher education in north-east Wales. [12489]

Mr. Touhig: My right hon. Friend and I have had a number of meetings and discussions recently to discuss education in Wales. These discussions have included the provision of higher education.

The Assembly's Education and Lifelong Learning Committee is conducting a comprehensive policy review of higher education in Wales, to inform a 10-year strategy for the sector. The review's findings are expected later this year.

Barnett Formula

23. Mr. Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what discussions he has had with the First Secretary about the operation of the Barnett formula relating to health provision. [12490]

Mr. Touhig: The operation of the Barnett formula has no direct effect on health provision in Wales. Therefore, I have not discussed this with the First Minister.

Farmers Assistance

24. Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what discussions he has had with the Chancellor of the Exchequer regarding extra funds for the National Assembly for Wales to assist those farmers in Wales suffering losses resulting from animal movement restrictions and poor trading conditions. [R] [12491]

Mr. Paul Murphy: I have regular discussions with my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer on a number of issues.

I welcome the re-establishment of Welsh lamb and beef in domestic markets, and the recent announcement that the export of sheep and goat meat can resume from parts of Wales. The Government have extended the Livestock Welfare Disposal Scheme in order to pre-empt problems arising this winter for lambs that would, under normal trading conditions, be sold and moved off farms.

I understand that the Assembly is making strenuous efforts to deal with both long-term issues in Welsh agriculture and the current difficulties affecting the market and farmers' incomes this autumn. Both the Assembly and the Welsh Development Agency stand ready to assist the livestock industry with marketing and processing grants for viable projects.

School Transport

25. Mr. Edwards: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will meet the First Secretary of the National Assembly to discuss the legal obligations placed on local authorities relating to home-to-school transport. [12492]

Mr. Touhig: I have written to the Assembly Minister for Education and Lifelong Learning on this matter, with particular reference to the issues raised by my hon. Friend in the debate on Transport to School, on 30 October 2001, Official Report, columns 243–50WH. Local education authorities (LEAs) have a statutory duty to decide how best to meet their home to school transport obligations. LEAs are obliged to provide free transport to the nearest school for pupils under eight-years-old who live more than two miles from the school, and for pupils above the age of eight who live more than three miles from the school.

Small Businesses

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what recent meetings he has had with UK Government Departments to represent the interests of small businesses in Wales. [12469]

Mr. Paul Murphy: I meet my colleagues in UK Government Departments regularly to discuss a range of issues, including small businesses in Wales.

Violent Crime

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what recent discussions he has had with the Home Secretary about tackling violent crime in Wales. [12480]

Mr. Touhig: My right hon. Friend meets regularly with the Home Secretary to discuss a range of issues affecting Wales.

The Government are committed to increasing the reporting and recording of violent crime. Violent crime represents a relatively small proportion of crime, but it is recognised that it includes those crimes that cause people most concern.

We have put in place a comprehensive package of measures to combat violent crime which is set out in "Fighting Violent Crime Together", published earlier this year.

TREASURY

Departmental Spending (Deprived Areas)

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much of the expenditure by his Department in each of the years (a) 1996–97, (b) 1997–98, (c) 1998–99, (d) 1999–2000, (e) 2000–01, (f) 2001–02 and (g) 2002–03 (estimated) was allocated with reference to the index of multiple deprivation; which expenditure programmes are allocated with respect to this index and other measures of relative geographic deprivation; and if he will make a statement. [8935]

Mr. Andrew Smith [holding answer 25 October 2001]: HM Treasury has had a modest programme budget, none of which is allocated with reference to the indices of multiple deprivation.

Impounded Vehicles

Mr. Heath: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what guidance is given to Customs and Excise officials on the (a) impounding and (b) disposal of impounded vehicles used to breach personal allowances for tobacco and alcohol; and if he will make a statement. [14076]

Mr. Boateng: The Customs and Excise Management Act 1979, section 141(1)(a), allows Customs to seize vehicles that have been used for the transport of anything liable to seizure. As part of the tackling tobacco strategy, and following recommendations from Martin Taylor, the independent tobacco evaluator, Customs strengthened their approach to anyone using vehicles to smuggle goods including alcohol and tobacco.

Seized vehicles are stored until condemnation proceedings are completed giving Customs the legal right to dispose of them as they see fit. Customs will dispose of the vehicles in a cost-effective manner most beneficial to the UK Exchequer.

Mr. Heath: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what sites are used to store vehicles impounded by Customs and Excise officials on the grounds that they were being used to breach personal allowances for the importation of tobacco and alcohol; and if he will make a statement. [14075]

Mr. Boateng: A number of sites are used around the UK. These are made available as part of the contract arrangements Customs has in place to provide storage facilities for both vehicles and goods. For security reasons the specific details of these sites cannot be disclosed.

Staff Shortages

Llew Smith: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, pursuant to his answer of 23 October 2001, Official Report, column 202W, how many instances have been brought to his attention by Her Majesty's Customs and Excise where appeals and reviews have been cancelled owing to staff shortages. [14276]

Mr. Boateng: Customs endeavour to complete all reviews within the statutory period of 45 days. Where for any reason they cannot do so, such as at particularly busy periods, section 15(2) of the Finance Act 1994 states that if Customs do not carry out the review within the 45 days from when the review was required they shall be assumed to have confirmed the decision. Where Customs cannot complete a review within the statutory period, the appellant still has the right to go to a tribunal.

Automotive Fuel

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much tax was raised in each year since 1997 from the retail sale of automotive fuel. [14011]

Mr. Boateng: The information is not available.

Motor Vehicles (Tax Income)

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much tax was raised in each year since 1997 from (a) the sale, maintenance and repair of motorcycles and related parts and accessories, (b) the sale of motor vehicle parts and accessories, (c) the maintenance and repair of motor vehicles and (d) the sale of motor vehicles. [14012]

Mr. Boateng: The estimated amount of VAT raised from the maintenance and repair, including parts and accessories, of motor vehicles and motorcycles since 1997 is:

Year	£ billion
1997	1.7
1998	1.9
1999	2.0
2000	2.0

It is not possible to estimate the Government's income from VAT on the sale of motor vehicles and motorcycles except at disproportionate cost.

Public Sector Pay

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the impact of the growth of public sector pay in 2001 on the level of public expenditure. [14212]

Mr. Andrew Smith: Public sector pay costs have been accommodated within the agreed public spending totals, in accordance with normal prices.

Civil Service Pay Negotiations

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the impact on (a) public expenditure and (b) recruitment and retention within the civil service of the devolution to individual Government Departments and agencies of responsibility for pay negotiations. [14213]

Mr. Andrew Smith: On public expenditure, the position continues to be that Departments are expected to meet pay costs from within their public spending allocations. The flexibilities under the delegations allow Departments to structure their pay arrangements to meet their own particular circumstances and requirements, including dealing more effectively with recruitment and retention issues.

Afghanistan

Llew Smith: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the impact on public expenditure on non-military priorities of the commitment to military expenditure in the conflict in Afghanistan. [14257]

Mr. Andrew Smith: The Chancellor has made it clear that the Government will meet the costs of measures related to our response to international terrorism, while continuing to deliver our spending plans within the fiscal rules.

Climate Change Levy

Mr. Watts: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps the Treasury is taking to monitor the impact of the climate change levy on (a) manufacturing industry and (b) the service sector; and if he will publish the results. [14333]

Mr. Boateng: The climate change levy package is broadly revenue neutral for services and manufacturing but the impact on any specific sector will depend on a number of factors, including:

- The future energy consumption of firms in the sector and the use they make of levy funded energy efficiency support.
- Employment levels in those sectors and the benefits received from the levy funded reductions in employers' National Insurance Contributions.
- The number of energy intensive firms in that sector that are eligible to receive a discount on the main rates of the levy by signing up to an energy efficiency agreement.
- What use firms in that sector make of electricity generated from levy exempt sources such as new renewables and combined heat and power.

As with all taxation, we will monitor revenue and sectoral impacts. Revenue receipts are published in the Financial Statement and Budget Report.

Mr. Barnes: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans he has to exclude the nuclear power industry from the climate change levy. [14138]

Mr. Boateng: The climate change levy is designed to encourage energy efficiency across the business and public sectors and to increase the use of sustainable forms of energy. The Government have no plans to exclude the nuclear power industry from the levy.

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what percentage of the climate change levy is paid by engineering; and if he will estimate the percentage of economic output produced by engineering; [14431]

(2) if the climate change levy is revenue neutral for the engineering sector. [14424]

Mr. Boateng: The climate change levy is designed to be broadly revenue neutral across both the manufacturing and service sectors. The impact of the levy on any particular sector will be determined by a number of factors, including

- The future energy consumption of firms in the sector and the use they make of levy funded energy efficiency support.
- Employment levels in the sectors and the benefits received from the levy funded National Insurance contribution cuts.
- The number of energy intensive firms in the sector that are eligible to receive a discount on the main rates of the levy by signing up to an energy efficiency agreement.
- What use firms in that sector make of electricity generated from levy exempt "new" renewable sources of energy and combined heat and power.

On the most recently available figures, engineering represents an estimated 6 per cent. of gross domestic product.

Corporation Tax

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many firms have paid corporation tax at no more than the 10p rate in each year since its introduction. [14421]

Dawn Primarolo: It is too early to say. The 10p rate was introduced from the 2000–01 tax year, and small companies do not have to pay their corporation tax until nine months after the end of their accounting periods. But we estimate that about 150,000 corporation tax payers will be at 10 per cent. (with a further 150,000 paying at an average rate between 10 per cent. and 20 per cent.).

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans he has to simplify the administration of corporation tax. [14422]

Dawn Primarolo: The Government keep the whole tax system under review, acting where possible to change tax rules to minimise burdens on business, while still meeting the Government's objectives for a fair and efficient tax system. The administration of corporation tax is one of a number of areas covered by current or recent reviews.

Regulation

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will introduce targets for reducing the number of regulations issued by his Department over the next four years. [14429]

Dawn Primarolo: The Government's policy is to regulate only when necessary, ensuring that regulations are fair and effective, so that they protect the vulnerable but do not stifle competitiveness or productivity.

New processes including the Regulatory Reform Act give us powerful tools to help cut down over-complex, over-lapping and over-burdensome regulatory regimes.

The Prime Minister has asked all Whitehall Departments to identify by the end of this year areas of legislation that are ripe for reform under this and other procedures. A Government-wide action plan will then be published containing firm commitments to specific reforms and initiatives which will aid both business and the public sector.

The Chancellor's Departments (along with Department's across Government) continue to explore ways of reducing regulatory burdens. There are no plans to introduce targets for reducing the number of regulations issued.

Income Tax

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the level of higher rate taxation as a factor in attracting senior management to the UK (a) public and (b) private sectors. [14426]

Dawn Primarolo: We are pledged not to raise the top rate of tax in this Parliament. It is 40 per cent. and compares favourably with our competitors' equivalent rates.

Stamp Duty

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans he has to introduce new anti-avoidance measures in respect of stamp duty. [14439]

Ruth Kelly: The Government regularly review the adequacy of legislation to counter avoidance of all taxes, including stamp duty.

Pension Credit

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what representations he has received from interest groups representing the elderly regarding (a) the marginal tax rate in the pension credit and (b) the pension credit savings limit. [14445]

Dawn Primarolo: Treasury Ministers receive a wide range of representations on a variety of issues.

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions regarding pre-Budget representations received from interest groups representing the elderly concerning the pension credit. [14446]

Ruth Kelly: The Chancellor of the Exchequer meets regularly with Cabinet colleagues to discuss a wide range of issues.

Insurance Premium Tax

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much has been raised on insurance premium tax in each year since May 1997. [14394]

Ruth Kelly: Figures for receipts of insurance premium tax are shown in the Office for National Statistics publication "Financial Statistics".

Private Medical Insurance

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much has been raised by the abolition of tax relief on private medical insurance in each year since its abolition. [14393]

Ruth Kelly: Annual estimates of the yield from the abolition of tax relief on premiums for private medical insurance for the over-60s were given in the July 1997 Financial Statement and Budget Report (FSBR). No further estimates have been made.

Employee Share Ownership

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much money was raised in the last financial year from penalties imposed on firms where employees have cashed in employee share ownership schemes too early. [14442]

Ruth Kelly: No penalties are imposed on firms, but employees may be liable to tax and national insurance contributions on shares granted under the share incentive plan if they withdraw from the plan early. Returns have only just been received from companies reflecting their first year's operation of the plan, so it is too early to estimate the amounts which may be involved.

Prospectus Directive

Mr. Lazarowicz: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what representations he has made to the European Commission regarding the proposed Prospectus Directive. [14405]

Ruth Kelly: The Economic and Finance Council of Ministers discussed the risk capital action plan, of which the proposed Prospectus Directive is a part, on 6 November. The United Kingdom argued that substantial work on the directive is required to deliver the risk capital action plan's objectives to increase the availability of risk capital in the EU.

HM Treasury is in regular contact with all levels of the Commission, and has communicated the United Kingdom Government's reservations about the directive, as currently drafted, on many occasions.

Hawala

Mr. Love: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what action is being taken to bring the Hawala exchange system within the scope of his new arrangements to combat the funding of international terrorism; and if he will make a statement. [14382]

Ruth Kelly: On Monday 12 November, regulations came into force to give Customs new powers to enter and inspect money service businesses, including Hawala, Hundi and other alternative remittance agents, to ensure that they are compliant with the 1993 Money Laundering Regulations. Where they find a breach of these regulations, Customs will be able to prosecute.

Share Incentive Plan

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of how employee share ownership can be encouraged in sectors of the economy with relatively high employee turnover. [14441]

Ruth Kelly: The share incentive plan and enterprise management incentives introduced in Finance Act 2000 were developed on the basis of extensive consultation. This ensured the design of both was flexible to enable companies in all sectors, including those with relatively high employee turnover, to adapt the schemes to suit their particular needs. For the share incentive plan companies can set a qualifying period of service for employees to benefit from the plan. They can also include forfeiture and pre-emption conditions if they wish.

The new plans are being closely monitored to assess how far they are meeting the needs of companies of all sizes and sectors.

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent representations he has received on, and what plans he has to reduce, the qualifying period for SIPs. [14440]

Ruth Kelly: The share incentive plan was introduced to encourage greater share ownership among employees. Employees must retain their shares in the plan for five years to earn full exemption from tax and national insurance contributions. We have received one representation to reduce this period from five to three years. This would work against the aim of encouraging employees to retain shares in the company they work for over the long term, and it would be costly in terms of tax forgone.

There is no requirement for companies to set a qualifying period of service before employees may benefit from the plan although they may do so if they wish, up to a maximum of 18 months.

Occupational Pension Funds Directive

Mr. Lazarowicz: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what representations he has made to the European Commission regarding the proposed directive on occupational pension funds. [14404]

Ruth Kelly: The Economic and Finance Council of Ministers discussed the proposed directive on the activities of institutions for occupational retirement provision on 6 May, Official Report, 10 May 2001, column 284W. Ministers agreed that further work was required. Ecofin on 16 October noted a Presidency report on progress on the draft directive, Official Report, 24 October 2001, column 260W.

Labour Supply

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the effects of national insurance rates on the supply of labour. [14388]

Dawn Primarolo: Reducing national insurance contributions for those on low incomes forms part of the Government's strategy to make work pay. As a result of reforms since 1997, around 1 million lower paid employees have been taken out of having to pay NICs altogether. Cautious estimates show that labour supply has increased by around 160,000 people as a result of the entire package of measures to make work pay since 1997, including the reductions in income tax and national insurance contributions as well as working families tax credit and disabled persons tax credit.

Taxation

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what percentage of the combined burden of taxation on motoring is borne by industry; [14418]

(2) what percentage of the total tax burden was borne by business in each year since May 1997. [14433]

Mr. Andrew Smith: The information requested is not available.

Manufacturing

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many manufacturing jobs have been lost since April. [14392]

Ruth Kelly: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician. I have asked him to reply.

Letter from Len Cook to Mr. John Bercow, dated 14 November 2001:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent question about the reduction in the number of manufacturing jobs since April (14392).

The table below shows the number of employee jobs in manufacturing for April and August 2001 for comparative purposes.

UK	Thousand[1]
April 2001	3,864
August 2001	3,805
Change between April and August 2001	[2]–59

[1] Seasonally adjusted
[2] –1.5 per cent.

These estimates are based on the results of regular sample surveys of employers which count the number of employee jobs. The data are published in Statbase on the National Statistics website www.statistics.gov.uk./statbase/tsdataset.asp?vlnk=342 under series identifier YEJL.

Mortality Statistics

Helen Jackson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people died from (a) meningitis and (b) carbon monoxide poisoning, excluding suicides, in each of the last four years. [14407]

Ruth Kelly: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician. I have asked him to reply.

Letter from Len Cook to Helen Jackson, dated 14 November 2001:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent about the number of people died from (a) meningitis and (b) carbon monoxide poisoning, excluding suicides in each of the last four years (14407).

The data are included in the table below.

Number of deaths in England and Wales from meningitis and carbon monoxide poisoning (excluding suicides), persons, all ages, 1997–2000[1]

Calendar year	Meningitis	Carbon monoxide poisoning (excluding suicide)
1997	466	156
1998	426	150
1999	399	135
2000	405	118

[1] Cause of death in these years was coded to the International Classification of Diseases Ninth Revision (ICD9)

Notes:

The codes used to define the terms used in the table are as follows:
Meningitis—ICD9 underlying cause codes 036, 320–322
Carbon monoxide poisoning—ICD9 nature of injury code 986
Suicide—ICD9 underlying cause codes E950-E959, E980-E989 excluding E988.8

Source:

ONS

Freedom of Information Act

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer on what date his Department established a working group of officials to prepare his Department for the implementation of the Freedom of Information Act 2000; and on what dates this committee has met since it was set up. [14777]

Ruth Kelly: A working group was set up in October to co-ordinate preparations for the Freedom of Information Act. The first meeting of the group will be on 30 November.

Working Hours

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, pursuant to his answer of 6 November 2001, Official Report, column 154W, on excessive working hours, if he will place in the Library the results from the aggregated data for every sub annual period since the data was first collected; if he will place a greater level of detail on his methodology in the Library; and if he will make a statement. [14833]

Ruth Kelly: The information requested by the hon. Member has been deposited in the Library.

Pensions

Paddy Tipping: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he last met trade union representatives to discuss (a) miners' pension issues and (b) pension funds surpluses; and if he will make a statement. [13514]

Mr. Andrew Smith [holding answer 13 November 2001]: Treasury Ministers meet regularly with a wide range of groups of people to discuss a variety of topics.

Professional Contractors Group

Mr. Drew: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many meetings he has had with the Professional Contractors Group in the last 12 months. [14852]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave him on 3 July 2001, Official Report, column 128W.

IR35 (Training Provision)

Mr. Drew: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) if he will make a statement on how IR35 will affect training provision for IT contractors; and what new incentives are available to increase this training; [14855]

(2) what assessment he has made of the impact on IT contractors' training provision of (a) the introduction of IR35 and (b) the ending of individual learning accounts. [14854]

Dawn Primarolo: Employees who pay for their own training are not in general entitled to a tax deduction for this expense. Individuals affected by the 'service company' legislation are in a similar position. However they are entitled to an additional 5 per cent. flat rate deduction for expenses on top of all the other expenses normally available to an employee, which they can use to provide for their training needs if they so wish. The withdrawal of individual learning accounts has had the same effect on all individuals previously eligible for them, and service company workers are not affected any differently from anybody else.

Individual Learning Accounts

Mr. Drew: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what discussions he has had with the DFES regarding the decision to end individual learning accounts, with specific reference to training for IT contractors. [14853]

Dawn Primarolo: The Chancellor of the Exchequer meets regularly with his Cabinet colleagues to discuss a wide range of issues.

Income Tax (Pensioners)

Mr. Cox: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people over the age of 65 years pay income tax. [14944]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer my hon. Friend to "Inland Revenue Statistics", table 2.1. The latest version can be accessed on the Inland Revenue website www.inlandrevenue.gov.uk/stats.

Double Taxation Conventions

Barbara Follett: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he will submit to the House the double taxation conventions that the Government recently concluded with Jordan and Lithuania; and if he will make a statement. [15464]

Dawn Primarolo: The conventions with Jordan and Lithuania were signed on 22 July and 19 March respectively. The texts of the conventions with Jordan and Lithuania have each been published today as a schedule to a draft Order in Council and laid before the House. After signature the texts were deposited in the Library of the House and made available on the Inland Revenue's website.

National Insurance

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will publish figures indicating the effective upper earnings limit on the equivalent of national insurance contributions for each EU member state in the latest year for which figures are available. [14390]

Dawn Primarolo: Information and details about the social security contributions systems of other EU member states, and more generally about other OECD member countries, is published annually in the OECD publication "Taxing Wages". A copy of this publication is available from the House of Commons Library.

Tax/National Insurance Receipts

Mr. Jack: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the receipts of (a) income tax, (b) corporation tax and (c) national insurance for November and December and January 2002. [14300]

Dawn Primarolo: Forecasts of receipts on a monthly basis are not published.

Smuggling (Motor Fuel Products)

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the fuel duty and VAT lost in each year since 1997 through the smuggling of motor fuel products into Northern Ireland. [14013]

Mr. Boateng: Updated estimates will be presented in the forthcoming pre-Budget report.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Ministerial Visit (Pakistan)

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development whom she met and what discussions she had during her recent visit to Pakistan. [12908]

Clare Short: I visited Pakistan from 17 to 19 October. My statement on 24 October 2001, Official Report, columns 284–85, reported on the discussions I had there.

I met President Musharraf, Finance Minister Shaukat Aziz and the Ministers of Health, Education, Northern Areas and Women's Affairs. I met the Governor of the North West Frontier Province and some of his ministers and senior officials. I had informal discussions with local representatives of NGOs, including SCF, Oxfam, CARE and the Iranian Red Cross; and with representatives of the UN agencies. I also had a meeting with the US Ambassador. In Peshawar, I visited the World Food Programme office and food distribution depot.

Caribbean

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if she will set out the conclusions her Department reached in its examination of further support to the CARICOM-sponsored regional plan for tackling HIV/AIDS in the Caribbean; and if she will make a statement. [14412]

Clare Short: We have confirmed our readiness to provide additional support to the regional HIV/AIDS action plan for the Caribbean, particularly in the key area of policy and advocacy support. CARICOM will be convening a meeting of all interested donors in St. Lucia this month to examine the most effective process for turning the action plan into reality.

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if she will set out how the funding for the second phase of the Caribbean Epidemiology Centre Project has been allocated and itemise the purposes to which it has been applied, by island or territory. [14416]

Clare Short: DFID support for the second Phase of the Caribbean Epidemiology Centre (CAREC) project is geared towards the Prevention and Control of AIDS and Sexually transmitted diseases in the Caribbean (£713,564). Specific outputs include:

(a) improved HIV/AIDS/CSTD case management in Caribbean member countries which aims to improve the quality of STD diagnosis and treatment;

(b) the development and implementation of information, education and communication (IEC) interventions aimed at target groups;

(c) improved management of National AIDS programmes in participating Caribbean member countries; and

(d) implementation of sentinel surveillance for HIV, Syphilis and Hepatitis B in six Caribbean member countries.

We are considering a further project with CAREC designed to strengthen its effectiveness as an organisation to respond to the growing incidence of HIV/AIDS in the region.

Ivory Coast

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development which (a) non-Governmental organisations and (b) charities the Government support in the Ivory Coast. [14073]

Clare Short: We are currently supporting the work of four non-governmental organisations in Côte d'Ivoire. Through our Small Grants Scheme we are helping to support the work of the World Wide Fund for Nature, Côte d'Ivoire Ecology, and Afrique Nature International. We are also supporting the work of Action on Disability and Development through the Civil Society Challenge Fund (CSCF).

HOME DEPARTMENT

Ethnic Minority Staff

Ian Lucas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he will publish the second annual report on progress on his race equality employment targets for ethnic minority staff in his Department and its service areas. [15465]

Angela Eagle: I have today published a report entitled "Race Equality—The Home Secretary's Employment Targets—The Second Annual Report on Progress". Copies have been placed in the Library. The targets cover recruitment, retention and career progression for minority ethnic staff in the Home Office, the prison, the police, the fire and the probation services.

Amarjit Singh

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the case of Mr. Amarjit Singh, stating for what reason he has been detained. [12297]

Angela Eagle: I wrote to my hon. Friend about this matter on 14 November.

Downview Prison

Mr. Blunt: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prisoners there were at HMP Downview on 26 October; and, of these, how many were (a) UK and (b) Jamaican citizens convicted of trafficking in illegal drugs. [11935]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 7 November 2001]: On the morning of 26 October 2001, there were 130 female prisoners at Downview prison, rising to 140 by the end of the day. A breakdown of nationality and drug offence for that date is not held centrally. However, provisional data for the morning of 13 November 2001 show that there were 180 female prisoners in Downview prison. Of these, 13 United Kingdom (including prisoners from the Channel Islands and the Isle of Man) and 28 Jamaican nationals were imprisoned for importing/exporting or conspiring to import/export drugs. The population of each prison is shown in the monthly prison population brief available on http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds.

Government Bunkers

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the former Government bunkers sold to private purchasers since 1990. [13413]

Mr. Blunkett: Following the decision of the then Home Secretary in 1992, the Home Office has sold Regional Government Headquarters (RGHQ) bunkers at the following addresses to private purchasers:

1. Shipton by Beningbrough, Near York, North Yorkshire
2. Alemouth Road, Hexham, Northumberland
3. Skendleby, Near Spilsby, Lincolnshire
4. Buder Street, Loughborough, Leicestershire
5. Watton Road, Bawburgh, Near Norwich, Norfolk
6. Day's Lane, Biddenham, Bedford, Bedfordshire
7. Keveldon Hall Lane, Keveldon Hatch, Near Brentwood, Essex
8. RAF Chilmark, Near Salisbury, Wiltshire
9. Crown Building, Soar Gull Perch, Hope Cove, Devon
10. Borras Park Road, Wrexham, North Wales
11. Brackla Tunnels, Bridgend, Mid Glamorgan
12. Longly Lane, Goosnargh, Preston, Lancashire
13. French Lane, Hack Green, Near Nantwich, Cheshire.

Correspondence

Mr. Colman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the hon. Member for Putney will receive a substantive reply to his letter of 8 October, for which he received an acknowledgement on 7 November, on behalf of his constituent Ms Karen Devlin. [14371]

Angela Eagle: My right hon. Friend Lord Rooker has now replied to my hon. Friend.

Nationality Applications

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many applications for British nationality are under consideration by his Department. [13931]

Angela Eagle: I regret that statistics on the number of British nationality applications under consideration are not available.

Since April this year, all new cases are initiated as soon as they arrive. The vast majority of cases awaiting a decision are already in progress, and we aim to start all remaining cases by March 2002. This means that the queue of applications waiting to be considered is getting shorter.

Security Service

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate he has made of the extra cost to the Security Service of activities in connection with events following the 11 September terrorist attacks; and if this cost will be met from the existing Security Service budget. [14078]

Mr. Blunkett: It has long been the policy of this and previous Governments not to comment on the individual budgets of the Security and Intelligence agencies. The impact of the terrorist attacks on 11 September is being taken into account in considering the Security Service budget.

Prison Education

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prison education departments have obtained a Basic Skills Agency Quality Mark. [13958]

Beverley Hughes: Forty-eight prison education departments have obtained the Basic Skills Agency Quality Mark to date.

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many prisoners have achieved (a) Entry Level Wordpower and Numberpower and (b) Level One Wordpower and Numberpower since December 1996; [13959]

(2) how many prisoners have successfully completed the (a) Basic Skills Test in Life Skills, (b) Social and Life Skills Programme and (c) Oxford and Cambridge Board Diploma in Achievement. [13956]

Beverley Hughes: The table shows the number of individual qualifications achieved in various categories since April 2000. Statistical returns allow some desegregation but do not contain separate figures for the Oxford and Cambridge Diploma. We do not recognise Basic Skills Test in Life Skills as a "qualification".

Subject type and the number of qualifications achieved

Subject type and level	Qualifications achieved
Entry level—WordPower	621
Level 1—WordPower	1,007
Entry level—NumberPower	359
Level 1—NumberPower	653
Basic skills test in life skills	—
Social and life skills programme	2,644
Oxford and Cambridge board diploma in achievement	—

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) if he will state the names of contractors (a) providing prison education and (b) who have failed to reach the minimum standard required by the quality monitoring and assessment procedure; and what the grades obtained by each of them were; [13961]

(2) how many contracts for providing prison education have been withdrawn because contractors failed to reach the standards required for consideration in the re-tendering process since 1997. [13955]

Beverley Hughes: December 1988 marked the end of the first five-year tendering period. In April 1997, there were 45 prison education providers. Following completion of the re-tendering exercise the number was reduced to 28 in 1999. The existing contractors are set out in the table. No contracts have been withdrawn since the re-tendering exercise.

The newly founded Prisoners' Learning and Skills Unit located in Department for Education and Skills will be reviewing the funding, procurement and delivery of prison education. The review will draw up a comprehensive improvement strategy which will include the dissemination of existing good practice. It will also challenge and support establishments where education provision gives cause for concern. The unit is leading a review of the present contracting arrangements for that provision.

Education providers/contractors and prison establishments

Company	Establishments
Amersham and Wycombe College	Aylesbury, Belmarsh, Brixton, Cookham Wood, Elmley Grendon/Spring Hill, Holloway, Pentonville, Rochester, Standford Hill, Swaleside, Wandsworth, Wormwood Scrubs
Beverley College	Full Sutton, Wakefield
Blackpool and The Fylde College	Kirkham, Preston
City College, Manchester	Ashwell, Askham Grange, Hatfield, Haverigg, Leeds, Lindholme, Liverpool, Manchester, Moorland, New Hall, Risley, Stocken, Stoke Heath, Styal, Wealstun, Werrington, Wetherby
CfBT Education Services	Huntercombe, Reading
Derby Tertiary College (Wilmorton)	Foston Hall, Sudbury
Dudley College	Birmingham, Brinsford, Brockhill, Featherstone, Hewell Grange, Nottingham, Ranby, Shrewsbury, Whatton
Evesham College	Long Lartin
Filton College	Eastwood Park, Gloucester
Gwent Tertiary College	Cardiff, Swansea, Usk/Prescoed
Highbury College	Haslar, Kingston, Winchester
Isle of Wight College	Albany, Camp Hill, Parkhurst
Kent Adult Education Service	Aldington, Blantyre House, Canterbury, Dover, East Sutton Park, Maidstone
Kingston Upon Hull Community Education Services	Everthorpe, Hull
Lancaster and Morecambe College	Lancaster, Lancaster Farms
Lewes Tertiary College	Lewes
Matthew Boulton College	Bedford, Gartree, Glen Parva, Leicester, Lincoln, Littlehey, Morton Hall, North Sea Camp, Onley, Wellingborough
Milton Keynes College	Bullingdon, The Mount, Woodhill
North East Surrey College of Training (NESCOT)	Coldingley, Downview, Feltham, Highdown, Send
New College, Durham	Acklington, Castington, Deerbolt, Durham, Frankland, Holme House, Low Newton, Northallerton
Northbrook College	Ford
Norwich City Centre	Blundeston, Bullwood Hall, Chelmsford, Highpoint, Hollesley Bay, Norwich, Wayland, Whitemoor
Richmond Upon Thames College	Latchmere House
Runshaw College	Garth, Wymott
Strode College	Bristol, Channings Wood, Dartmoor, Dorchester, Exeter, Portland, Shepton Mallet, The Verne, Weare
Tamworth and Lichfield College	Drake Hall, Stafford, Swinfen Hall
Trowbridge College	Erlestoke, Guys Marsh
Wigan and Leigh College	Hindley, Thorn Cross, Thorn Cross HIT

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proportion of prisoners assessed as having literacy and numeracy skills below level two on entry to prison have achieved nationally accredited qualifications up to level two, since April 2000. [13957]

Beverley Hughes: The information requested is not available in the form requested. Data on prison education do not enable the tracking of individual prisoners. Figures do show that 21,319 prisoners have achieved nationally accredited basic skills qualifications up to level two, since

April 2000. The Prisoners' Learning and Skills unit located in the Department for Education and Skills is looking into ways of improving the collection of data on prison assessments, participation and achievement.

Prison Welfare-to-Work Programme

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proportion of prisons operate welfare-to-work programmes. [13963]

Beverley Hughes: Currently, 11 establishments are delivering the Prison Service's welfare-to-work programme. They are: Cardiff, Deerbolt, Glen Parva, Guys Marsh, Lancaster Farms, Moorland, New Hall, Onley, Portland, Stoke Heath and Usk.

A number of other establishments provide similar pre-release programmes, often in partnership with voluntary sector organisations. For example, the Foundation Training Company delivers an employment training programme at Feltham, Chelmsford, Hollesley Bay, Highpoint and Norwich. The New Bridge provides a careers advice and jobfinding service in 17 establishments. The Headstart pre-release programme operates at Thorn Cross, Hindley and Risley. All of these programmes are geared to helping more prisoners into employment or the new deal on release as a contribution of reducing re-offending.

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proportion of prisoners have successfully completed the welfare to work programme in each year since its introduction. [13962]

Beverley Hughes: The Prison Service welfare-to-work programme began in April 1998. The available information on prisoners starting and successfully completing the programme is shown in the table.

	Number of prisoners:
Period	Starting the programme	Successfully completing the programme	Percentage of prisoners successfully completing the programme
April 1998 to March 1999	2,428	1,625	67
April 1999 to March 2000	2,475	1,944	79
April 2000 to March 2001	1,766	1,476	84
April 2001 to September 2001	1,151	712	62

Immigration and Nationality Directorate

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the backlog of cases is in each division at the Immigration and Nationality Directorate; and what the waiting time is for naturalisation, from application to determination. [13632]

Angela Eagle: Statistics on the number of cases awaiting an initial decision in each division of the Immigration and Nationality Directorate are not currently available, with the exception of asylum applications, as these are subject to rigorous quality checks. The result of a physical count on 31 August 2001 showed that there were 43,100 asylum cases awaiting an initial decision.

Information on the average waiting time for naturalisations are not routinely published. The most recent published information relates to March 2001, when the average waiting time was 11.6 months.

One of the Government's Public Service Agreement (PSA) targets is to reduce the average time taken to grant citizenship (naturalisations and registrations) to six months by the end of 2001–02. It is expected that performance on this target will be reported on in due course after the end of this financial year.

Prison IT Systems

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) prisons and (b) young offenders institutions use IT systems which have not been networked. [13960]

Beverley Hughes: All prisons have a varying degree of Information Technology (IT) provision. The existing provision has been driven by local policy and local, internal networking is quite common. Currently, across the Prison Service as a whole, there is basic e-mail provision. It has been recognised that the Prison Service needs a modern infrastructure with interlinkings. To this end, Her Majesty's Prison Service has entered into a contract, part of which has the requirement to provide the Service with a new infrastructure that will provide common services on a Service-wide network and enable Her Majesty's Prison Service to build an electronic interface with the wider Criminal Justice System. We are on the verge of beginning the implementation of this new infrastructure.

Consultation Documents

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many consultation documents were issued by his Department from (a) 15 October to 14 January, (b) 15 January to 14 April, (c) 15 April to 14 July and (d) 15 July to 14 October in each year from 1996. [12901]

Mr. Blunkett: My Department holds central records on issued consultations from 1997 for the Home Office, its non-departmental bodies and agencies. Between 1997 and 2000 the information is held by year of publication only. Determining all the details contained in the question would require access to archived records at a disproportionate cost. However in order to give the fullest reply I have listed the number of consultations published each year from 1997 to date.

Year	Number of consultations issued
1997	14
1998	23
1999	19
2000	28
2001	20

Details of all Home Office published consultations can be found on the website at http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/atoz/consultpapers.htm. Consultations published after January 2001 are also on the national register of consultations on http://www.ukonline.gov.uk.

PRIME MINISTER

Travel Costs (Concorde)

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Prime Minister what was the cost of his travel on Concorde on 7 November; and if this was at a reduced rate. [13974]

The Prime Minister [holding answer 12 November 2001]: Since 1999 this Government have published a list of all visits overseas undertaken by Cabinet Ministers costing £500 or more during each financial year. The information requested will be published as soon as possible after the end of the current financial year.

All travel was undertaken fully in accordance with the rules set out in the Ministerial Code on Travel by Ministers, copies of which are available in the Library.

US Visit

Mr. Laws: To ask the Prime Minister what is his estimate of the cost of his visit to the United States on 7 November; which officials and Ministers accompanied him; and if he will make a statement. [14140]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I have given to my hon. Friend the Member for Linlithgow (Mr. Dalyell) today Official Report, column 783W.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

People's Panel

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister when the evaluation of the People's Panel will be (a) completed and (b) published. [15042]

Mr. Leslie: A first draft has been received. The final evaluation report will be completed in December and published in January 2002.

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister when the People's Panel's contract with MORI expires. [15043]

Mr. Leslie: The contract with MORI expires at the end of January 2002.

Scottish Devolution

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what his policy is regarding consultations prior to the publication of proposals involving the transfer of powers to the Scottish Executive by (a) primary legislation and (b) Order in Council. [13819]

Mr. Leslie: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to her by my right hon. Friend the Member for Airdrie and Shotts (Mrs. Liddell) on 6 November 2001, Official Report, columns 91–94.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Benefit Fraud

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his most recent estimate is of the value of benefit fraud; and how much fraudulently obtained benefit has been repaid following detection in each year since 1997. [7470]

Malcolm Wicks: Our most recent estimate is that £2 billion is lost annually through benefit fraud. It is not possible to separate the total amount of overpaid benefit recovered into overpayments due to fraud and those due to other reasons.

Widows' Payments

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what plans he has better to publicise the time limit for making applications for widows' payments; [10825]

(2) what plans he has for relaxing the time limit for applications for widows' payments in circumstances where the applicant may be unable to make the application within the normal time limit because of ill health; and if he will make a statement. [10827]

Malcolm Wicks: We are sympathetic to the needs of the recently bereaved and understand that making a claim for bereavement benefits will not be the first priority for people in these circumstances. We believe the three month time limit for claiming bereavement benefits strikes the right balance between allowing people time to grieve and setting a reasonable and appropriate limit on the length of time within which a claim to benefit should be made. The three month time limit for making a claim was introduced in 1997 for the majority of Social Security benefits and we have no plans to change it.

Since March 2000 the Department has issued leaflets on the new bereavement benefits to doctors' surgeries, Post Offices and benefit advisers. Articles explaining the new benefits were placed in a variety of magazines prior to their introduction in April 2001. Claim forms for bereavement benefits also include a clear explanation that claims must be made within three months. In addition, the Registrar of Deaths automatically issues a form to the person registering the death which gives them the opportunity to make a claim for bereavement benefits.

Benefit Services (Performance Standards)

Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions on how many occasions he has used his statutory powers to direct improved standards of performance following persistent failures to deliver acceptable benefit services; and in which local authority areas those powers have been exercised in the last three years. [12940]

Malcolm Wicks: Powers under the Social Security Administration Act 1992 were used to give directions to Northampton borough council in August 2000. In addition, powers under the Local Government Act 1999 were used to give directions in the London borough of Hackney in October 2001.

Employment Advisory Panel

Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what projects will be undertaken by the Employment Advisory Panel; what its budget is; how many support staff it will have; to whom it will report; and when. [12942]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: The National Employment Panel is an employer-led body which provides independent advice to Ministers on the design, delivery and performance of the UK Government's labour market policies and programmes. Its remit encompasses all the new deals and other welfare-to-work activities delivered by the Department for Work and Pensions, Jobcentre Plus and partner organisations at the national and local levels.

Projects will include a review to examine how effectively welfare-to-work programmes are addressing the needs of the most disadvantaged across the new deal programmes; a new skills sub-group to advise on links between welfare-to-work initiatives and work force development; and work to promote equal access to employment for ethnic minorities through a standing Minority Ethnic Advisory Group.

The National Employment Panel is funded by the Department for Work and Pensions. It has a budget of £603,000 per annum. It is supported by 15 staff of whom two are funded by private employers.

The National Employment Panel reports on a regular basis to the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions and the Chancellor of the Exchequer. The skills sub-group will report to the Minister responsible for adult skills, the Under-Secretary of State for Education and Skills, my hon. Friend the Member for Wentworth (John Healey).

Jobcentre Plus

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much unpaid benefit is due in areas where Jobcentre Plus staff are undertaking strike action; and what his Department's estimate is of the amount of benefit that will be owed to claimants if strike action continues for (a) one week, (b) two weeks, (c) a month and (d) more than a month. [14225]

Mr. Nicholas Brown [holding answer 12 November 2001]: Detailed contingency plans are in place to ensure that customers continue to receive the benefits to which they are entitled.

Performance Framework

Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on the principles which underlie the Performance Framework; in what ways it differs from the system of Best Value; and whether it will be piloted in local authority areas. [12939]

Malcolm Wicks: We are committed to a performance framework for the administration of Housing Benefit and Council Tax Benefit (HB/CTB), aimed at driving up standards of administration and counter-fraud activity in all types of local authority. The proposed performance framework will include: national standards which make clear what local authorities are expected to deliver; measurement and inspection, so we know whether local authorities are delivering; and consideration of subsidy incentives that reward improved performance.

As a first step, we are defining national performance standards which build on and go beyond the measures established by Best Value but do not replace them. The standards are based on Benefit Fraud Inspectorate findings, Audit Commission observations and reports, National Audit Office reports and academic research. They define an effective and secure HB/CTB service—addressing strategic management; customer service; speed, accuracy and security in the processing of claims; work with landlords; internal security; counter fraud; and overpayments.

The standards have already been tested in a pilot exercise over the summer in 14 local authorities. We are formally consulting the local authority associations on performance standards as part of the performance framework, and a copy of the consultation paper has been placed in the Library.

We recognise that working to meet these standards will be a gradual process and that effective implementation of the performance framework means phased implementation.

ONE Pilots (Benefits)

Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what lessons he has drawn from the ONE pilots about the administration of housing benefit and council tax benefit; and what new guidance to local authorities is being proposed. [12941]

Malcolm Wicks: The ONE evaluation did not focus on the administration of Housing Benefit and Council Tax Benefit. This would have been impractical as there are wide variations in practices among local authorities in ONE pilot and control areas. However, research from the ONE pilots did show improvements to customer service arising from working in close partnership with local authorities. These partnerships will be a key requirement of Jobcentre Plus, and we will be discussing with local authorities how we can jointly guide and support our staff to deliver a cohesive, responsive service to our customers.

Benefit Systems

Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what representations he has received from local government ombudsmen in England, Wales and Scotland about the administrative complexity of the housing benefit and council tax benefit systems; [12947]

(2) what plans he has to discuss with local government ombudsmen in England, Wales or Scotland the administrative complexity of the housing benefit/council tax system. [12948]

Malcolm Wicks: In the last year, the Department has received two reports from the Local Government Ombudsman in England. One concerned Housing Benefit claim form NHB1 which is produced by the Department; the other referred to an apparent ambiguity in the Department's guidance to local authorities on operating the Verification Framework. No representations have been received in respect of Wales or Scotland.

Ministers and officials regularly meet with stakeholders in the Housing Benefit scheme and other interested parties to discuss issues of interest or concern. Such a meeting between one of our officials and one of the three Local Government Ombudsmen for England took place in April this year.

Appeals Service (Housing Benefit)

Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the impact of the transition from housing benefit review boards to the Appeals Service. [12957]

Malcolm Wicks: The Appeals Service took over responsibility for hearing Housing Benefit and Council Tax Benefit appeals on 2 July 2001. By the end of September, local authorities had submitted 1,484 appeals to our Appeals Service.

Many local authorities have welcomed the introduction of tribunals. However, as the number of appeals which have passed through the new system is still low it is too early to reach any firm conclusion on the impact of the transition from review boards.

Source:
100 per cent. download of the Generic Appeals Processing System. Figures are provisional.

Housing Benefit

Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans he has to fix housing benefit awards for set periods. [12949]

Malcolm Wicks: As with all benefits, we keep all aspects of Housing Benefit claims under review.

Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what plans he has made to simplify the non-dependent deduction scheme; [12950]

(2) what plans he has to reform the rate at which housing benefit is withdrawn as earnings rise; [12954]

(3) what plans he has about increasing earnings disregards for housing benefit. [12953]

Malcolm Wicks: We keep all matters relating to benefit under review. Our proposals in respect of Housing Benefit were set out in our policy statement "Quality and Choice: A decent home for all—The way forward for housing" (December 2000).

Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the reform of the housing benefit extended payment scheme. [12952]

Malcolm Wicks: The reformed Housing Benefit extended payment scheme was introduced on 9 April 2001 and it is too early to assess the effectiveness of the new scheme. However, work in progress includes interviews with clients who have received extended payments since April 2001 and with staff responsible for administering and promoting the reformed scheme.

Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what plans he has to simplify the rent limitations mechanism in the private rented sector; [12951]

(2) what plans he has to reduce the number of transitional protection schemes that different housing benefit recipients are on. [12959]

Malcolm Wicks: From 2 July 2001 the definition of the Single Room Rent was broadened to reflect better the type of accommodation available in the market to young single people.

Our response to consultation on the Housing Green Paper—"Quality and Choice: A decent home for all—The way forward for housing" (December 2000)—explained that we would look further at the scope for simplifying the different protection schemes which restrict Housing Benefit in the private rented sector. We have commissioned a research project to inform this work, which is now starting its fieldwork stage.

Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the effect of the introduction of the housing benefit verification framework on the increase in formal complaints of maladministration. [12956]

Malcolm Wicks: Formal complaints about maladministration of the Housing Benefit scheme are made to the Local Government Ombudsman. Information from the Local Government Ombudsman on the number of complaints where the Verification Framework has been cited as a contributory factor is not available.

Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans he has to divide the housing benefit caseload into age-related client groups. [12958]

Malcolm Wicks: We are reforming the welfare system so that welfare services will meet the different needs of our client groups: pensioners, people of working age and children.

We will ensure that the Housing Benefit scheme supports our strategy to transform the services we provide through the development of Jobcentre Plus and the Pension Service. For those of working age, we intend to streamline the claims process to enable people to claim Housing Benefit at the same time as other benefits, without having to give the same information twice.

And we are considering how Housing Benefit for pensioners should fit into the new, simplified framework of the Pension Credit from 2003.

Integrated Inquiry Service

Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on the reasons for abandoning the Integrated Inquiry Service. [12943]

Malcolm Wicks: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to the hon. Member for Hertsmere (Mr. Clappison) on 24 October 2001, Official Report, column 242W.

Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what level of fees he expects to have to spend to commission alternative proposals to the Integrated Inquiry Service; and who has been commissioned to produce these proposals. [12955]

Malcolm Wicks: Affinity, the Department's lead IT service provider, has been commissioned at a cost of approximately £4,000 to explore the options for an alternative to the Integrated Inquiry Service.

LORD CHANCELLOR'S DEPARTMENT

Inquests

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department (1) when the Legal

Service Commission will publish its guidance on the circumstances in which legal aid funding may be made available for representation at inquests; and if he will make a statement; [12737]

(2) when he plans to issue his consultation paper on the funding for representation at inquests; and if he will make a statement. [12738]

Mr. Wills: The Lord Chancellor recently authorised the Legal Services Commission to decide applications for exceptional funding in inquests without reference to Ministers. At the same time, new guidance has taken effect in which the Lord Chancellor slightly amended the way applications in inquests would be dealt with. I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave my hon. Friend the Member for Milton Keynes, North-East (Brian White) on 1 November 2001, Official Report, column 856W. The Commission is preparing additional guidance for practitioners on the making of applications, which it intends to publish on 15 November in the next issue of "Focus". The text is already available on the Commission's website, www.legalservices.gov.uk. In the circumstances, we have no plans to issue a consultation document in the near future.

Translation Services

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what translation services the Lord Chancellor ensures are available to courts in (a) England and (b) Staffordshire. [13499]

Mr. Wills: The Immigration Appellate Authority (IAA) books and pays for interpreters where necessary for people attending IAA hearings. Within the criminal justice system, a national agreement for obtaining foreign language interpreters exists and applies equally to the Crown court, Court of Appeal and the magistrates courts. The agreement requires the courts to arrange and pay for an interpreter for the defendant.

In the Supreme Court and county court, foreign language interpreters are provided free of charge for civil committal hearings and for hearings in cases involving children or domestic violence. Interpreters will be provided for other types of hearings if it can be shown that a failure to do so would interfere with the individual's rights under the European Convention on Human Rights.

The county courts also use a national telephone interpreting service. Sign language interpreters and other forms of communication support are provided free of charge to any party that requires it. A number of different agencies, national and local, are used to arrange this support.

All these arrangements apply equally to England and Wales. There is no regional breakdown of the service provided.

In all courts it is the responsibility of the parties involved in the case to arrange for the translation of documents.

Departmental Projects

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department if he will list the projects in his Department which have been considered as potential public-private partnerships since 1997 which have not been undertaken because the public sector comparator had a lower net present value than the public-private partnership proposed; and if he will make a statement. [13434]

Mr. Wills: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him on 13 November 2001, Official Report, column 607W by my right hon. Friend the Chief Secretary to the Treasury. The Lord Chancellor's Department has not rejected any proposed public-private partnership for the reason stated in the hon. Member's question.

HEALTH

Biological Agents

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what contingency plans he has developed to protect the public against anthrax, botulism and attacks with other biological agents; and if he will make a statement. [11894]

Mr. Hutton: The Department has extensive contingency planning in place. This includes arrangements to mitigate the effects of a terrorist act and to ensure response and recovery in conjunction with other Government Departments, the National Health Service and key public health agencies. Stocks of vaccine and antibiotics are available.

The Public Health Laboratory Service has issued interim guidance, for healthcare professionals and the public, on the deliberate release of a number of biological agents including anthrax, smallpox, botulism and plague and this is available on their website.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what public health measures there are to deal with large-scale anthrax contamination in the UK; and what consideration has been given to the use of a vaccination. [13483]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 12 November 2001]: Plans are in place to enable appropriate measures to be taken to protect the health of the United Kingdom population, should such an attack occur, or be suspected. These plans are under constant development and review. Interim guidelines for action in the event of a deliberate release of anthrax can be found on the website of the Public Health Laboratory Service.

Anthrax vaccine is currently only given to the public for protection against occupational exposure where this is considered likely to occur.

Breast Screening

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what measure she is taking to assess the efficacy of the breast screening programme. [12863]

Mr. Hutton: It is the role of the Advisory Committee on Breast Cancer Screening (ACBCS) to consider all research papers published on the subject of breast cancer screening. The national health service breast screening programme is kept under constant re-examination and vigilance. The ACBCS met on 31 October 2001, and in light of recent publications in the medical journals, agreed to review the evidence in the Forrest Report[1], on which the NHS breast screening programme was based. The committee last reviewed this evidence formally in 1991.

The review will be led by Professor Valerie Beral, Chair of the committee, in conjunction with the Institute of Cancer Research and the NHS cancer screening programmes. A first draft of the report will be presented at the committee's next meeting on 15 May 2002.

[1] Breast Cancer Screening Report to the Health Ministers of England, Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland by a working group chaired by Professor Sir Patrick Forrest (HMSO 2986).

Waiting Times (Bath)

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on trends in waiting times for (a) orthopaedic out patient appointments and (b) orthopaedic operations at the Royal United hospital, Bath in the last 12 months. [12856]

Ms Blears: The latest published information shows that in the year to the end of September 2001 the percentage of patients waiting for orthopaedic inpatient and day case treatment who were seen in under 12 months remained the same. The proportion of orthopaedic outpatients who have waited over 26 weeks has increased over the same period.

The Royal United hospital, Bath national health service trust is taking a number of measures to ensure that the number of patients who have to wait for an outpatient appointment or for treatment is reduced. The number of orthopaedic clinics is being increased and an additional 1,000 new patients will be seen between now and the end of March 2002. This action is designed to ensure that no patients are waiting over 26 weeks for an outpatient appointment by the end of March 2002.

The trust is also taking measures to ensure that the number of patients waiting over 12 months for inpatient or day case treatment is reduced in line with the Government's target. An additional orthopaedic consultant will be appointed shortly. An additional three orthopaedic recovery beds opened at the end of October providing high care for patients following major surgery. Eighteen extra beds have also been opened on a temporary basis at St. Martin's hospital for the rehabilitation of orthopaedic patients. Additional weekend elective orthopaedic operating lists have been running throughout this year. The trust has already commissioned 100 orthopaedic cases at the local private hospital and is making arrangements with the private sector for an additional 400 patients to be seen this year.

Nurses

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many nurses were (a) employed by the NHS, (b) recruited and (c) left the NHS in (i) 1993, (ii) 1997 and (iii) 2001. [13379]

Mr. Hutton: The number of nurses employed by the National Health Service in 1993, 1997 and 2000 is shown in the table.

A new system of classification of the non-medical workforce was introduced in 1995. Therefore, the figure given for 1993 is not comparable with those collected after this date.

Information regarding the number of nurses recruited into and leaving the NHS is not collected centrally.

Hospital and community health service qualified nursing, midwifery and health visiting staff including practice nurses as at 30 September

Year	Headcount
1993	310,900
1997	318,860
2000	335,950

Notes:
Figures are rounded to the nearest ten
A new classification of the non-medical workforce was introduced in 1995. Information based on this classification is not directly comparable with earlier years
Source:
Department of Health Non-Medical Workforce Census
Department of Health General and Personal Medical Services Statistics

Waiting Lists

Dr. Evan Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the in-patient waiting list is, expressed as per 1,000 head of weighted population, for (a) each health authority and (b) in total in England for the last two years for which figures are available. [13617]

Mr. Hutton: The number of in-patients waiting at end March 2001 and March 2000 are shown in the table, (March 2001 data are the most recent data available).

In-patient waiting list per 1,000 head of weighted population

Health authority	March 2001	March 2000
Avon	20.7	20.9
Barking and Havering	24.8	25.8
Barnet	15.8	15.8
Barnsley	17.2	16.9
Bedfordshire	19.8	18.5
Berkshire	18.9	18.8
Bexley and Greenwich	17.0	19.0
Birmingham	12.8	12.7
Bradford	19.3	19.9
Brent and Harrow	17.1	17.6
Bromley	20.8	22.0
Buckinghamshire	21.8	20.7
Bury and Rochdale	22.1	22.9
Calderdale and Kirklees	16.8	18.9
Cambridgeshire	21.0	21.5
Camden and Islington	10.5	12.1
Cornwall and Isles of Scilly	24.6	25.1
County Durham and Darlington	16.5	17.4
Coventry	13.3	12.8
Croydon	20.0	19.3
Doncaster	12.1	12.5
Dorset	12.7	13.3
Dudley	16.5	14.5
East and North Hertfordshire	24.4	26.3
Ealing, Hammersmith and Hounslow	16.6	18.0
East Kent	26.6	27.0
East Lancashire	21.2	22.0
East London and City	14.4	14.4
East Riding and Hull	20.1	20.4
East Surrey	22.9	24.4
East Sussex, Brighton and Hove	23.2	23.7
Enfield and Haringey	19.9	19.7
Gateshead and South Tyneside	18.5	19.8
Gloucestershire	15.1	16.0
Herefordshire	16.9	19.1
Hillingdon	15.5	15.2
Isle of Wight	24.8	25.7
Kensington, Chelsea and Westminster	8.5	9.2
Kingston and Richmond	20.7	18.6

In-patient waiting list per 1,000 head of weighted population

Health authority	March 2001	March 2000
Lambeth, Southwark and Lewisham	17.9	19.2
Leeds	18.4	19.1
Leicestershire	18.8	18.5
Lincolnshire	24.3	25.4
Liverpool	20.1	20.9
Manchester	20.4	21.2
Merton, Sutton and Wandsworth	15.1	15.3
Morecambe Bay	20.3	20.0
Newcastle and North Tyneside	13.9	15.0
Norfolk	25.8	25.4
North and East Devon	23.7	23.3
North and Mid Hampshire	22.3	22.3
North Cheshire	28.4	27.4
North Cumbria	22.5	23.1
North Derbyshire	22.1	23.1
North Essex	25.6	27.3
North Nottinghamshire	19.2	19.8
North Staffordshire	10.7	13.4
North West Lancashire	22.2	22.9
North Yorkshire	18.7	21.1
Northamptonshire	25.9	25.7
Northumberland	15.4	15.9
Nottingham	16.7	18.1
Oxfordshire	19.2	19.1
Portsmouth and South East Hampshire	20.6	19.7
Redbridge and Waltham Forest	22.5	23.8
Rotherham	14.4	14.3
Salford and Trafford	24.0	25.8
Sandwell	13.2	13.6
Sefton	24.9	25.2
Sheffield	17.8	18.0
Shropshire	16.9	17.1
Solihull	17.6	17.8
Somerset	24.2	24.7
South and West Devon	21.8	23.1
South Cheshire	21.7	21.7
South Essex	24.1	24.1
South Humber	24.0	27.6
South Lancashire	28.2	29.3
South Staffordshire	24.6	25.3
Southampton and South West Hamptonshire	26.4	28.1
Southern Derbyshire	21.9	22.4
St. Helens and Knowsley	23.3	23.6
Stockport	23.8	24.0
Suffolk	24.2	24.0
Sunderland	18.3	18.4
Tees	17.6	17.0
Wakefield	19.7	21.2
Walsall	9.7	9.5
Warwickshire	22.2	22.4
West Hertfordshire	20.0	20.6
West Kent	26.5	28.3
West Pennine	25.2	25.3
West Surrey	25.7	27.1
West Sussex	25.1	26.2
Wigan and Bolton	21.2	22.7
Wiltshire	22.0	24.8
Wirral	14.0	14.0
Wolverhampton	13.9	14.3
Worcestershire	20.0	20.6
England	20.0	20.6

Note:
Population is weighted for age, additional need (over and above that accounted for by age) and variations in the unavoidable cost of providing healthcare (market forces factor etc.)
Source:
QF01 waiting times returns/FD Resource Allocation 2 population data

Cancelled Operations

Dr. Evan Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) cancelled operations in total, (b) operations cancelled on the day of operation and (c) operations cancelled and not readmitted within one month there were in each health authority in England in each quarter during the last two years for which figures are available. [13611]

Mr. Hutton: The latest published figures are for quarter one 2001–02. Copies of quarterly statistics on cancelled operations by health authority for the last two years are available in the Library.

Data are collected on the number of operations cancelled at the last minute. Data are not broken down into whether the operation was cancelled on the day of surgery or the day of admission to hospital.

Rural Recruitment (Consultants)

Mr. Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he is taking to recruit (a) general consultants and (b) consultants in neurology in rural areas. [13492]

Mr. Hutton: The NHS plan states there will be 7,500 more consultants in post in 2004 than in 1999. By September 2000 the number of consultants in post had already increased by 1,100 to around 24,300. The national health service is currently drawing up plans by specialty to deliver the rest of the increase, a further 6,400 posts by 2004. We will ensure that these plans target areas of the country which are under-doctored relative to their weighted population.

In 2000 the number of consultant neurologists was 688, an increase of 31 (4.7 per cent.) over 1999. As well as the NHS plan consultant increases we aim to achieve a 54 per cent. expansion in training neurology specialists by 2010.

Private Treatment

Mr. Steinberg: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many private beds were available in each of the last five years; [13602]

(2) how many private hospitals there were in each of the last five years. [13601]

Mr. Hutton: The table sets out the number of independent acute medical and surgical hospitals and beds in the United Kingdom from 1997 to 2001.

	Hospitals	Beds
1997	227	11,100
1998	229	10,852
1999	228	10,565
2000	225	9,980
2001	222	9,834

Source:
Laing's Healthcare Market Review 2001–2001, Laing and Buisson

Mr. Steinberg: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many patients have been admitted to NHS hospitals from non-NHS hospitals in the last five years. [13604]

Mr. Hutton: The table sets out the number of admissions from non-national health service run hospitals to NHS trusts in England, 1995–96 to 1999–2000.

Year	Admissions
1995–96	[1]21,160
1996–97	5,153
1997–98	7,050
1998–99	7,241
1999–2000	6,934

[1] A breakdown by type of non-NHS institution was not available prior to 1996–97, so the figure for 1995–96 is for total admissions to NHS trusts from non-NHS institutions, including, but not exclusively, hospitals.

Source:
Hospital Episode Statistics (HES), Department of Health

Chiropodists and Podiatrists

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if chiropodists and podiatrists in private practice will be represented on the Health Professions Council; and if he will make a statement. [13729]

Mr. Hutton: All registered professionals, whether they work in the private sector or not, will be represented on the new council. The council will also be able to recruit additional members to its committees including its professional advisory panels, and will be encouraged to cover all sectors of the professions.

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if podiatrists and chiropodists in private practice will be recognised for the purposes of state registration; and if he will make a statement. [13730]

Mr. Hutton: The new Health Professions Council will determine arrangements for the admission to its register for each of the professions it regulates. Chiropodists and podiatrists who meet the council's standards for registration will be recognised as state registered.

Special transitional arrangements will enable those whose training and competence do not meet the council's standards to be recognised for registration purposes.

Contaminated Blood Transfusions

Brian Cotter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the recommendations of the Scottish Executive's Health and Community Care Committee regarding financial assistance to haemophilia sufferers infected with hepatitis C as a result of receiving contaminated blood transfusions. [13700]

Mr. Hutton [holding answer 12 November 2001]: The devolved Administration in Scotland is considering these recommendations. We currently have no plans to compensate haemophiliacs who become infected with hepatitis C through national health service blood products.

NHS (Overseas Staff)

Mr. Jon Owen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of how many (a) refugees and (b) those with special immigration status with medical qualifications have been prevented from working in the national health service by their inability to speak English to an adequate level in the last five years. [14315]

Mr. Hutton: All doctors from outside the European Economic Area (EEA) need to pass the International English Language Testing Service (IELTS) test before they can be registered with the General Medical Council (GMC). The majority of doctors who took their primary medical qualification outside the EEA also need to pass the Professional and Linguistic Assessment Board (PLAB) test of medical and linguistic competence before registration is granted.

Passing the PLAB test is a pre-condition of registration for those doctors required to take it. Doctors are entitled to five attempts at the test. Those who fail it five times are prevented from registering with the GMC, and thus prevented from practising medicine in the national health service.

The GMC's records do not show how many of the doctors who fail the PLAB test five times are, in fact, from the refugee community. There is therefore no way of telling whether any refugee doctor has been prevented from getting work in the NHS by his or her ability to speak English.

Mr. Jon Owen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the contribution that could be made to the national health service by (a) refugees and (b) those with special immigration status holding medical qualifications. [14314]

Mr. Hutton: The NHS plan holds a commitment to provide extra doctors to the national health service, and we believe it makes moral and economic sense to use the skills of doctors in the refugee community to the best advantage of the NHS.

A Government funded database, developed and run by the Refugee Council and the British Medical Association, shows that there are nearly 400 refugee doctors who want information about retraining to work in the United Kingdom. More are expected to come forward as word gets around about the availability of Government funded counselling and training to help those wanting careers in the NHS becomes more widely understood.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Education Rights

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which categories of person having regard to age, marital status, duration of residence in the UK, immigration status, nationality and other characteristics, are eligible for (a) free statutory-age schooling, (b) free nursery education, (c) free education in colleges of further education and (d) education in higher education institutions, free other than through contributions to home students' tuition fees. [7951]

Mr. Ivan Lewis [holding answer 16 October 2001]: Any child of compulsory school age living in England is entitled to free education. All four-year-olds are entitled to three terms of free, good quality, part-time nursery education before they reach compulsory school age regardless of duration of residence in the UK, immigration status, nationality or any other characteristics.

Three-year-olds are entitled to a free, good quality, part-time nursery education place depending on their age and their local early years development and childcare partnership's allocation criteria. Early years development and childcare partnerships must allocate places based on social need.

The Learning and Skills Council is responsible for determining when tuition fees are to be charged for further education courses. Advice to institutions for the current academic year is that, subject to residency requirements, tuition fees should not be charged to any learner aged 16 to 18 on either a full-time or part-time course. Other groups not charged tuition fees include: those receiving jobseekers' allowance (JSA); those receiving a means-tested state benefit; unwaged dependants (as defined by the Benefits Agency) of those listed above; people on adult basic education or English for speakers of other languages programmes; asylum seekers in receipt of the equivalent of a means-tested benefit (assistance under the terms of the 1999 Immigration and Asylum Act), and their dependants; and, certain learners participating in Council funded projects (only where identified in the project specification).

Higher education institutions, as independent, self-governing bodies, decide whether to charge students tuition fees at the 'home' rate or the higher 'overseas' rate using the Education (Fees and Awards) Regulations 1997, (as amended). To be eligible for home fee status, students usually need to have 'settled status' in the UK and have been ordinarily resident here for three years before their course starts, except where this was solely or mainly to receive full-time education. Students meeting these requirements will be classed as "home" students for tuition fee purposes. Broadly speaking, these will include, in most cases, UK and other European Union students, students with recognised refugee status, other students granted the right to enter or remain and who meet the UK residence requirement, and migrant workers from the European Economic Area. Students not meeting these requirements may be charged fees at the 'overseas' rate.

Early Excellence Centres

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will list the location of the early excellence centres which (a) are in operation, (b) are in the process of implementation and (c) are planned, and what are the criteria for locations to be included in each element of the programme. [14132]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 13 November 2001]: The Early Excellence Centre (EEC) programme is at the forefront of our policies to develop practice in integrated care, education and family services.

(a) The early excellence centres which are in operation are in:

Bath and North East Somerset
Bolton
Bradford
Bristol
Camden
Coventry
Cumbria
Cornwall
Derbyshire
Gateshead
Greenwich
Hammersmith and Fulham
Hampshire
Haringey
Hertfordshire
Kirklees
Leeds
Liverpool
Manchester
Newham
North Tyneside
North East Lincolnshire
Northamptonshire
Northumberland
Oxfordshire
Portsmouth
Richmond-upon-Thames
Rotherham
Sheffield (2)
Somerset
Stockport
South Tyneside
St. Helens
Westminster
Wirral.

(b) On 1 October we announced 14 new centres in Birmingham, Cornwall, Derby, Hackney, Herefordshire, Hillingdon, Islington, Kingston-upon-Thames, Lewisham, Rotherham, Surrey, Wirral and two projects working with the NHS, newborn hearing screening programme (NHSP) in Stockport and Waltham Forest. We are working with these centres to implement their proposals. At the same time we are continuing to receive further expressions of interest in joining the programme and to discuss with a number of individual centres how their plans could be developed further.

(c) Working closely with sure start and neighbourhood nurseries, we plan to have up to 100 centres across the country by 2004. The criteria for joining the programme are set out in the latest invitation to join the programme sent to all local authorities, early years development and childcare partnerships and other partners on 1 October. Location is not the prime criterion: quality of provision is, but our plans for the programme do include achieving good geographic spread.

Teachers (Ethnic Minorities)

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills, pursuant to her answer of 5 November 2001, to the hon. Member for Harrogate and Knaresborough, Official Report, column 54W, on teachers from ethnic minorities, how many teachers from ethnic minorities have (a) started training, (b) completed training and (c) started teaching, for the last two years for which figures are available. [14616]

Mr. Timms: The Teacher Training Agency's (TTA) performance profiles collects information about initial teacher trainees at institutions in England. The most recent figures relate to the academic year 1999–2000. The following table shows the numbers and relevant proportions of first year trainees from an ethnic minority in the years 1998–99 and 1999–2000.

Number of first year trainees

Year	From an ethnic minority	Ethnicity undisclosed
1998–99	1,634 (6%)	1,951 (7%)
1999–2000	1,701 (7%)	934 (4%)

Source:
Teacher Training Agency, Performance Profiles

The TTA's Performance Profiles also collect information relating to final year trainees. The most recent figures relate to final year trainees in academic year 1999–2000. The following table shows the numbers and relevant proportions of trainees awarded qualified teacher status (QTS) that are from an ethnic minority for final year trainees in 1998–99 and 1999–2000.

Number of final year trainees awarded QTS

Year	From an ethnic minority	Ethnicity undisclosed
1998–99	1,388 (6%)	1,940 (8%)
1999–2000	1,260 (6%)	901 (4%)

Note:
Figures relate to the numbers of trainees that gained QTS by 31 July of their final year of training (i.e July 2000 for final year trainees in 1999–2000)
Source:
Teacher Training Agency, Performance Profiles

The TTA's performance profiles also collects information about the movements of final year trainees that gain QTS into the teaching profession. The following table shows the numbers and relevant proportions of trainees that were awarded QTS and were subsequently recorded as entering a teaching post in England, that are from an ethnic minority.

Number of final year trainees awarded QTS and entered teaching

Year	From an ethnic minority	Ethnicity undisclosed
1998–99	1,027 (6%)	1,509 (8%)
1999–2000	959 (5%)	692 (4%)

Note:
Figures relate to the numbers of qualified trainees that were in a teaching post by 3 January following their final year of training (i.e. January 2001 for final year trainees in 1999–2000).
Source:
Teacher Training Agency, Performance Profiles

Teacher Vacancies

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the teacher vacancy rate was in (a) nursery/primary schools, (b) secondary schools and (c) all schools in (i) the constituency of South Suffolk, (ii) the constituency of West Suffolk (iii) the constituency of Ipswich, (iv) the constituency of Suffolk, Coastal, (v) the constituency of Central Suffolk and Ipswich, North, (vi) the constituency of Bury St. Edmunds, (vii) Suffolk local education authority, (viii) East Anglia and (ix) England in (A) 1997–98, (B) 1998–99, (C) 1999–2000 and (D) 2000–01. [11575]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 31 October 2001]: Information on teacher vacancies by constituency is not collected centrally. Teacher vacancy rates in the maintained nursery, primary, secondary and special schools sector from 1998 to 2001, in Suffolk, the east of England government office region and England were as follows:

Percentage

	January 1998	January 1999	January 2000	January 2001
Nursery and primary
Suffolk	0.4	0.7	0.4	2.2
East of England	0.7	0.8	0.9	1.7
England	0.8	0.8	0.8	1.2
Secondary
Suffolk	0.5	0.6	0.4	1.6
East of England	0.7	0.7	0.8	1.7
England	0.6	0.5	0.7	1.4
Maintained nursery, primary, secondary and special sector
Suffolk	0.5	0.8	0.5	1.8
East of England	0.8	0.8	0.9	1.7
England	0.7	0.7	0.8	1.4

Foreign National Teachers (Surrey)

Mr. Wilshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many foreign nationals were employed as (a) primary and (b) secondary school teachers in Surrey during the (i) 2000–01 academic year and (ii) previous four academic years. [11193]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 30 October 2001]: The information is not held centrally.

Teacher Vacancies (Surrey)

Mr. Wilshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many (a) primary and (b) secondary teacher vacancies there were in Surrey on 1 September in each year since 1997. [11191]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 30 October 2001]: The information is not available in the form requested. Nursery, primary and secondary full-time teacher vacancies in Surrey in January of each year since 1997, reported by the local education authority, were as follows:

Year	Nursery and primary	Secondary
1997	18	19
1998	27	14
1999	11	9
2000	13	24
2001	25	62

Performance-related Pay

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what guidance she has issued to schools regarding assessment of teachers for the upper spine of performance-related pay. [14565]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 13 November 2001]: The Department's guidance on School Teachers' Pay and Conditions of Employment 2001 includes a section entitled "Threshold and Upper Pay Scale" and Annexe A includes a section entitled "Handling Performance Pay". The Secretary of State will soon launch a consultation on the mechanism for specific funding to contribute towards the cost to schools of awarding performance pay points to teachers.

Teachers (Maintained Schools)

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what estimate she has made of the number of permanent teaching posts in maintained schools which were not filled on the first day of the current term; and what percentage this is of the total number of permanent teaching posts. [7490]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 15 October 2001]: It is estimated, based on a telephone survey conducted on 6–7 September 2001, that there were about 2,000 full-time vacancies (0.6 per cent. of posts) in nursery, primary and secondary schools.

These figures were obtained from a telephone survey of nearly 1,500 schools conducted by DfES. Teacher vacancies are measured using the standard DfES definition, which excludes posts filled by a full-time teacher on a contract of one term or more.

Ministerial Travel

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills, pursuant to her written answer of 7 November 2001, Official Report, columns 245–46W, on ministerial travel, what was the (a) purpose, (b) duration and (c) cost of each of the ministerial visits. [14569]

Mr. Ivan Lewis [holding answer 13 November 2001]: The purpose, duration and cost of each of the ministerial visits since 1 May 1997 are set out in the following tables. Recurrent meetings are given in the first table; one off trips in the second.

Purpose	Average duration (days)	Average cost (£)
Attending Social Affairs Council Meeting x 25	1	1,600
Attending Education Council Meeting x 7	2	1,000
Attending OECD Conference Meeting x 6	1	1,400
Attending G8 Conference x 5	4	6,350
Attending ILO Conference x 4	2	1,100
Attending Youth Council Meeting x 4	1	800
Attending Higher Education Conference x 4	3	1,050
Attending UNESCO Conference x 2	1	1,000
Promoting Higher Education and Vocational Education x 2	8	10,600
Attending Skills Olympics x 2	4	4,400
Promoting Education Exports x 2	8	10,900
Attending European Higher Education Meeting x 2	2	925
Attending Meeting of Employment and Social Policy Council x 2	2	1,600

Purpose	Duration (days)	Cost (£)
Attending Commonwealth Ministers Conference	8	15,600
Meeting to discuss Disability and New Deal Schemes	4	11,000
Attending Meeting with French Minister	1	850
Promoting Apprenticeship Schemes (BMW)	1	1,200
Attending European Employment Week Conference	1	550
Attending Meeting with Swedish Labour Minister	1	1,050
Attending Meeting with Dutch Minister	1	850
Attending European Policy Conference	2	550
Attending Meetings with Representatives of the European Parliament	1	950
Attending Meeting with European Ministers	1	2,400
Attending Labour Standards Symposium	1	900
Attending Meeting with Spanish Ministers of Education and Employment	1	1,650
Attending Equal Opportunities Conference	4	2,050
Attending EU Employment Ministers Conference	3	2,000
Attending School Reform Conference	4	8,450
Attending Disability Conference	1	750
Delivering Speech to Quandt Foundation	1	750
Attending Meeting to Discuss National Parliaments Action Plans	1	700
Attending Joint EC and Eastern Europe Education Council	3	1,150

Purpose	Duration (days)	Cost (£)
Meeting to Discuss European Voluntary Service Conciliation	1	1,200
Attending Anglo-Italian Seminar	1	1,250
Attending European Commission Annual Forum	1	1,450
Attending Human Rights Conference	10	23,450
Attending Bilaterals with Education and Employment Ministers	1	2,300
Attendance at Lifelong Learning Conference	3	8,950
Attending Anglo-Spanish Employment Conference	2	1,300
Attending Education Conference	2	650
Attending BTI Conference	1	5,500
Attending Education and Employment Conference	1	3,200
Participating in Education Bilateral	1	1,550
Promoting Education and Training	7	7,700
Attending Meeting with EU Labour Ministers	2	0
Attending People and Politics Seminar	1	750
Attending Head Teachers Conference	1	450
Visiting Centre for Income and Work	1	950
Attending Conference and Undertaking School Visits	11	9,900
Attending Meeting with Finnish Ministers	1	1,550
Attending Meeting with Polish Employment Ministers	1	1,400
Attending Meeting of Social Affairs Ministers	2	1,850
Attending Meetings on Disability, Childcare and Equal Opportunities	7	11,900
Attending Meetings with EU and Central and Eastern European Ministers	2	650
Promoting Modern Apprenticeships	2	1,800
Attending CERI Governing Board Meeting and Conference on Harnessing the Potential	1	1,100
Attending Welfare to Work Conference	8	12,600
Attending Meeting for Portuguese Presidency	2	650
Attending "One" Workshop	1	900
Attending Europe Globalisation and Future of Social Policy Conference	1	1,450
Attending European School Net Conference	1	250
Attending World Social Summit	1	1,400
Attending Work, Culture and Identity Conference	1	1,250
Attending Meeting with Swedish Employment Ministers	1	1,050
Attending Ageism Conference	1	950
Attending Conference for Finnish Presidency	2	650
Attending European Diversity in the Workplace Conference	4	1,050
Attending NAHT Annual Conference	1	850
Attending Meeting to Discuss Anglo-Sino Education Agreement	7	20,300
Attending Meeting with Russian Education Ministers	4	4,050
Meeting with British Council and Undertaking School Visits	6	11,350
Meeting to Discuss Article 13	1	750
Promoting Early Years Providers	4	2,400
Attending Ministers Conference in France	1	500
Attending Learning Communities Conference	8	6,600
Attending Middle East Education and Labour Conference	4	4,800
Promoting Early Years and Employment Programme	2	2,600
Attending EU Education and Employment Conference	2	850
Attending Education Conference	6	9,850
Attending EU, Latin American and Caribbean Conference	1	950
Attending Mobility Meeting	1	450
Undertaking Visit to Institute of Florence	2	600
Forum on Education and Employment	1	350
Promoting British Education System	8	12,050
Attending Meeting with British Council	2	700
Attending Work Life Balance Conference	1	1,500
Promoting Education, Employment and Training	1	3,950
Attending Meeting with EU Education Ministers	2	900
Attending Meetings of Ministers for Telecommunications and Employment	1	2,600
Attending Meeting with Higher Education Ministers	1	700
Attending Club 3 Conference	2	500
Attending NASUWT Conference	1	650
Attending EU Education and Youth Conference	1	500
Attending Meeting to Discuss the Delivery of Employment Services	1	550
Attending EU Education Ministers Conference	2	2,950
Attending ICT Conference	4	250

Note:

All travel complied with the requirements of the "Ministerial Code" and "Travel by Ministers".

Staff Retention (Secondary Schools)

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what estimate she has made of the rates of staff retention in (a) secondary schools with sixth forms and (b) secondary schools without sixth forms. [14559]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 13 November 2001]: This information is not held centrally.

Qualified Teacher Status

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills, pursuant to her written answer of 31 October 2001, Official Report, column 714W, how many full-time equivalent teachers there were without qualified teacher status in maintained schools in each of the last five years, broken down by (a) those on the graduate teacher programme, (b) those on the registered teacher programme, (c) those on the licensed teacher programme, (d) those on the overseas trained teacher scheme, (e) instructors and (f) other teachers without QTS. [12424]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 5 November 2001]: The number of teachers on each of the programmes specified are not identified separately. Numbers of teachers without qualified teacher status (QTS) working in the maintained schools sector in England between January 1997 and January 2001 were as follows:

(full-time equivalents)

	1997	1998	1999	2000	2001
Teachers on routes to QTS[1]	460	570	470	580	1,280
Instructors and other teachers without QTS[2]	2,480	2,640	3,070	3,240	4,340
Total	2,940	3,220	3,540	3,820	5,620

[1] Those on the graduate teacher programme, registered teacher programme, licensed teacher scheme and overseas trained teacher scheme
[2] Includes overseas-trained teachers employed on contracts of at least one month and not currently seeking QTS.
Note:
Totals may not equal the sum of their component parts due to rounding. All figures have been rounded to the nearest 10.

When deciding whether to employ an instructor without QTS, headteachers take into account the fact that they can often bring valuable skills and experience to the classroom, particularly in subjects that have a high practical content. Instructors also include teachers without qualifications obtained overseas who are not currently seeking QTS.

There were 410,200 regular teachers in maintained schools in England in January 2001, 11,000 more than in January 1997.

Overseas Teachers

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what estimates she has made of the number of teachers in maintained schools who were not British citizens in each term of the last four years. [7271]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 15 October 2001]: Information on teachers who are not British citizens is not collected centrally.

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many overseas teachers employed in maintained schools are not covered by the overseas trained teacher scheme. [12364]

Mr. Timms: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Teachers (Huntingdon)

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many (a) primary and (b) secondary teacher vacancies there were in Huntingdon (i) on 31 March and (ii) in each year since 1996. [6163]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 16 October 2001]: The information requested for Huntingdon is not held centrally.

Full-time vacancies for teachers in maintained nursery, primary and secondary schools in the former Cambridgeshire local authority area were as follows:

	Nursery/primary		Secondary		Total
	Number of vacancies	Vacancy rate (percentage)[1]	Number of vacancies	Vacancy rate (percentage)[1]	Number of vacancies	Vacancy rate (percentage)[1]
Cambridgeshire
January[2]
1996[3]	3	0.1	10	0.4	13	0.3
1997[3]	2	0.1	4	0.2	6	0.1
1998[3]	1	0.0	6	0.3	7	0.1
1999	1	0.1	0	0.0	1	0.0
2000	0	0.0	0	0.0	0	0.0
2001	2	0.1	1	0.1	3	0.1
Peterborough
January[2]
1996[3]	n/a	n/a	n/a	n/a	n/a	n/a
1997[3]	n/a	n/a	n/a	n/a	n/a	n/a
1998[3]	n/a	n/a	n/a	n/a	n/a	n/a
1999	0	0.0	2	0.3	2	0.1
2000	0	0.0	0	0.0	0	0.0
2001	3	0.5	4	0.6	7	0.5

	Nursery/primary		Secondary		Total
	Number of vacancies	Vacancy rate (percentage)[1]	Number of vacancies	Vacancy rate (percentage)[1]	Number of vacancies	Vacancy rate (percentage)[1]
Total
January[2]
1996[3]	3	0.1	10	0.4	13	0.3
1997[3]	2	0.1	4	0.2	6	0.1
1998[3]	1	0.0	6	0.3	7	0.1
1999	1	0.0	2	0.1	3	0.1
2000	0	0.0	0	0.0	0	0.0
2001	5	0.2	5	0.2	10	0.2

[1] The vacancy rate is calculated by dividing the number of vacancies by the sum of full-time qualified regular teachers plus teachers on full-time secondment for a term or more

[2] Details of teacher vacancies at 31 March of each year are not available

[3] Cambridgeshire local authority was affected by the local government re-organisation (LGR) on 1 April 1998, when it became two authorities, Cambridgeshire and Peterborough. Figures for 1996 to 1998 are for the Cambridgeshire local authority prior to LGR

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many (a) primary and (b) secondary school teachers were employed in Huntingdon (i) on 31 March and (ii) in each year since 1996. [6164]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 16 October 2001]: The information requested for Huntingdon is not held centrally.

Full-time equivalents of regular teachers (excluding short term supply) employed in maintained nursery, primary and secondary schools in the former Cambridgeshire local authority area were as follows:

January[1]	1996	1997	1998	1999	2000	2001
Cambridgeshire[2]
Nursery/primary	2,740	2,690	2,600	1,950	1,990	2,040
Secondary	2,630	2,500	2,570	1,800	1,810	1,840
Total	5,360	5,190	5,170	3,740	3,790	3,880
Peterborough
Nursery/primary	n/a	n/a	n/a	680	720	720
Secondary	n/a	n/a	n/a	810	820	730
Total	n/a	n/a	n/a	1,490	1,540	1,450

January[1]	1996	1997	1998	1999	2000	2001
Total
Nursery/primary	2,740	2,690	2,600	2,630	2,710	2,760
Secondary	2,630	2,500	2,570	2,600	2,630	2,570
Total	5,360	5,190	5,170	5,230	5,340	5,330

[1] Details of teachers in service at 31 March of each year are not available.

[2] Cambridgeshire local authority was affected by the local government re-organisation (LGR) on 1 April 1998, when it became two authorities, Cambridgeshire and Peterborough. Figures for 1996 to 1998 are for the Cambridgeshire local authority prior to LGR.

Teachers (Age Profile)

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many (a) male and (b) female teachers in each year between 1990 and 2001 were aged (i) under 25, (ii) 25 to 29, (iii) 30 to 34, (iv) 35 to 39, (v) 40 to 44, (vi) 45 to 49, (vii) 50 to 54, (viii) 55 to 59, (ix) 60 to 64, (x) 65 years plus and (xi) unknown. [7973]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 15 October 2001]: Full-time regular teachers in the maintained schools sector of England, excluding sixth form colleges, 1990 to 2000 (the last year for which data of teacher characteristics are available), by sex and age, are shown in the table[1]:

Thousand

	1990	1991	1992	1993	1994	1995	1996	1997	1998	1999	2000
Men
Under 25	1.9	1.8	1.7	1.9	2.3	2.7	2.8	2.9	3.0	2.9	2.7
25–29	9.3	9.0	8.9	8.8	9.2	9.9	10.6	11.4	12.3	12.5	12.6
30–34	16.1	14.2	12.9	12.2	12.0	11.9	12.0	12.2	12.4	12.7	13.0
35–39	29.3	26.2	23.3	20.8	18.6	16.9	15.3	14.3	13.6	13.2	13.2
40–44	33.5	34.5	33.3	31.9	30.6	28.3	25.8	23.3	20.9	18.5	16.8
45–49	21.1	22.0	25.0	27.5	29.1	30.6	32.0	31.1	29.8	28.4	26.1
49–54	14.2	13.8	13.9	14.3	14.4	15.2	15.6	17.2	18.3	21.1	23.3
55–59	7.7	7.2	7.1	6.8	6.3	6.1	5.7	5.3	5.1	6.1	7.2
60–64	2.4	2.2	2.0	2.0	1.6	1.4	1.3	1.2	1.1	1.1	1.1
65 and over	0.1	0.1	0.1	0.1	0.1	0.1	0.1	0.1	0.0	0.1	0.0
Women
Under 25	10.1	9.3	9.1	9.5	10.6	11.9	12.4	13.3	14.0	13.6	13.8
25–29	26.8	27.5	28.5	29.5	30.6	31.9	33.4	35.8	38.5	40.5	42.2
30–34	27.6	25.0	23.4	22.5	22.7	24.0	25.4	26.9	27.8	28.5	29.2
35–39	41.9	40.4	38.2	35.5	32.6	29.7	27.0	24.9	23.4	22.9	23.3
40–44	48.3	51.1	52.0	52.0	51.5	50.0	47.7	44.9	41.8	37.7	34.0
45–49	35.7	36.6	40.7	44.2	47.1	50.4	53.5	54.2	53.8	53.2	51.1
49–54	28.5	27.4	27.0	27.3	27.4	28.4	29.1	31.6	33.2	37.4	41.1
55–59	15.7	15.1	14.9	14.7	13.9	13.6	12.8	11.8	11.3	12.9	14.5
60–64	3.0	3.0	2.9	2.8	2.6	2.4	2.2	2.1	1.9	1.9	1.9
65 and over	0.1	0.1	0.1	0.1	0.1	0.1	0.1	0.1	0.1	0.1	0.1

Thousand

	1990	1991	1992	1993	1994	1995	1996	1997	1998	1999	2000
Men and women
Under 25	12.0	11.1	10.8	11.4	12.9	14.5	15.2	16.2	17.1	16.5	16.5
25–29	36.2	36.4	37.4	38.4	39.9	41.9	43.9	47.1	50.8	52.9	54.8
30–34	43.7	39.2	36.3	37.4	34.6	35.9	37.4	39.2	40.3	41.2	42.2
35–39	71.2	66.6	61.5	56.3	51.2	46.6	42.3	39.2	37.0	36.1	36.5
40–44	81.8	85.6	85.3	83.9	82.0	78.2	73.6	68.2	62.7	56.2	50.7
45–49	56.8	58.6	65.7	71.7	76.2	81.0	85.5	85.3	83.5	81.6	77.1
49–54	42.7	41.2	40.8	41.5	41.8	43.7	44.7	48.8	51.5	58.5	64.5
55–59	23.4	22.3	21.9	21.5	20.2	19.6	18.5	17.0	16.5	19.0	21.7
60–64	5.4	5.2	5.0	4.7	4.2	3.8	3.4	3.2	3.1	3.0	3.0
65 and over	0.2	0.2	0.2	0.2	0.1	0.1	0.1	0.1	0.1	0.1	0.1
Age and sex not known[2]	0.0	2.8	1.8	4.0	5.5	4.3	4.3	3.5	3.2	2.6	2.9
Part-time (fte)[2,3]	24.2	25.5	27.2	27.5	28.5	29.9	30.8	31.2	32.0	33.3	34.7
Full-time and part-time (fte)	397.6	394.8	394.0	395.9	397.0	399.6	399.8	399.2	397.7	401.2	404.6

[1] Totals may not be the sum of the component parts because of rounding
[2] For 1990 to 1992 the not known and part-time figures are estimated
[3] Age and sex details of part-time teachers have not been given because about 10 per cent. to 20 per cent. of part-timers are not recorded on the Teachers' Pension Scheme, from which the data are obtained

Pupil Funding

Mr. Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what was the average revenue funding per pupil in (a) foundation and (b) voluntary aided schools in (i)1997, (ii) 1998, (iii) 1999 and (iv) 2000. [14570]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 13 November 2001]: Data are not collected separately for foundation schools (this status has been in existence since September 1999) and voluntary aided schools.

Sixth Forms

Mr. Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will maintain funding for school sixth forms in real terms in 2003–04. [14571]

Mr. Ivan Lewis [holding answer 13 November 2001]: This Government remain committed to the real terms guarantee for school sixth form funding.

Mr. Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills to whom indicative budgets for individual school sixth forms in Worcestershire have been made available; and if she will publish them by 5 November. [12459]

Mr. Ivan Lewis [holding answer 5 November 2001]: The first provisional allocations for school sixth forms will be notified to LEAs and made public by the Learning and Skills Council in December 2001. The baseline data on which the real terms guarantee for sixth forms will be calculated was the subject of consultation between the DfES and local education authorities in August. Schools also received the relevant provisional baseline data on which the Department consulted in early September as part of a guidance pack published by the Learning and Skills Council.

Teachers' Salaries

Dr. Tonge: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will publish the average (a) starting and (b) top scale teachers' salaries in real terms in each of the last 20 years, in (i) primary and (ii) secondary schools. [14413]

Mr. Timms: I will write to the hon. Member enclosing this information as soon as possible, and place a copy of my letter in the Library.

Dr. Tonge: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will publish comparative figures for (a) starting and (b) top scale teacher salaries in Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development countries, in (i) primary and (ii) secondary schools. [14414]

Mr. Timms: The information requested, which is published in the OECD annual "Education at a Glance", is shown in the following table and refers to 1999, the latest year for which information is available.

Teacher statutory salaries by whether working in primary or secondary: 1999
Annual statutory pay, excluding bonuses converted to US dollars based on purchasing power parities

	Primary		Lower secondary		Upper secondary
	Minimum	Maximum	Minimum	Maximum	Minimum	Maximum
Australia	25,661	37,502	26,658	37,577	26,658	37,577
Austria	21,804	44,159	22,421	46,735	24,027	54,443
Belgium (Fl)	22,901	36,594	23,428	40,017	29,075	40,461
Belgium (Fr)	22,043	35,685	22,561	39,115	28,151	49,581
Czech Republic	6,806	12,103	6,806	12,103	8,052	14,316
Denmark	28,140	32,684	28,140	32,684	29,986	42,672
England	19,999	33,540	19,999	33,540	19,999	33,540
Finland	18,110	25,615	20,394	29,530	21,047	31,325
France	19,761	39,271	21,918	41,537	21,918	41,537
Germany	29,697	38,996	33,196	43,945	35,546	49,445

Teacher statutory salaries by whether working in primary or secondary: 1999
Annual statutory pay, excluding bonuses converted to US dollars based on purchasing power parities

	Primary		Lower secondary		Upper secondary
	Minimum	Maximum	Minimum	Maximum	Minimum	Maximum
Greece	19,327	28,027	19,650	28,987	19,650	28,987
Hungary	5,763	11,105	5,763	11,105	6,908	13,217
Iceland	19,939	25,377	19,939	25,377	20,775	30,954
Ireland	21,940	40,141	23,033	40,532	23,033	40,523
Italy	19,188	28,038	20,822	31,062	20,822	32,602
Korea	23,759	62,281	23,613	62,135	23,613	62,135
Mexico	10,465	22,345	13,357	27,643	n/a	n/a
Netherlands	25,896	37,381	26,874	41,066	27,133	54,720
New Zealand	16,678	32,573	16,678	32,573	16,678	32,573
Norway	22,194	27,453	22,194	27,453	22,194	27,453
Portugal	18,751	50,061	18,751	50,061	18,751	50,061
Scotland	19,765	32,858	19,765	32,858	19,765	32,858
Spain	24,464	37,317	26,669	40,082	29,058	43,100
Sweden	18,581	n/a	18,704	n/a	20,549	n/a
Switzerland	33,209	51,813	39,162	60,165	46,866	70,548
Turkey	9,116	11,541	8,144	10,568	8,144	10,568
USA	25,707	43,094	25,155	44,397	25,405	44,394

Notes:
1. The OECD asks for statutory salary scale points but, where these are not available, countries can use survey data on actual salary and use approximations to identify equivalents to bottom and top of the scale.
2. Some countries pay different salaries to teachers in primary and secondary schools although there is no such distinction in England. 'Lower secondary' is, broadly the 11–15 age range and upper secondary is 16–19.
3. These salary comparisons can be only broadly indicative. Thus, they exclude extra allowances and yet, in England, many teachers at the top of the scale would also get management allowances. The figures pre-date the introduction of performance related pay but the OECD definition would exclude that too. There are other differences, for example in the treatment of employer social security payments.
4. The time taken to get to the top of the scale varies markedly between countries and so, for example, a country with a high top scale point might require many years service to reach this and so the top point is not representative of the pay of most teachers.
5. 'Purchasing power parties' are different from currency exchange rates and aim to reflect differences in price levels between countries and are more appropriate for those comparisons. Teacher salaries will also reflect the overall levels of national incomes and wages in national economies which is one reason why the range of salaries is so wide. There will be other such factors such as the average age of entry to teaching of new qualifiers. Salary will also reflect non-pay elements of remuneration and features of the teaching job such as hours, workload, job security, status all of which might vary between countries.

Source:
Tables D1.1a-c, OECD "Education at a Glance" 2001, published by OECD, Paris.

Early Years Education

Mr. Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what proportion of early years settings employ a qualified teacher; and what the cost would be of placing a qualified teacher in every early years setting. [14579]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 13 November 2001]: Approximately 35,000 early years settings are registered to deliver Government funded nursery education. Of these, around 50 per cent. are local education authority maintained primary schools and nursery schools, all of which directly employ qualified teachers.

We have asked local early years development and child care partnerships (EYDCPs), in association with their local education authorities, to ensure that a ratio of one teacher with qualified teacher status to every 10 early education settings in the private, voluntary and independent (PVI) sector is achieved by 2004.

The approximate cost of placing a qualified teacher in every PVI sector setting would be £435 million per annum. We have no present plans to do this.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Haskins Report

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which hon. Members were given (a) notice of and (b) briefing on the content of Lord Haskins report prior to 12.30 pm on 18 October. [9951]

Margaret Beckett [holding answer 24 October 2001]: I am not aware that any hon. Members were given advance notice of and briefing on the content of Lord Haskins report prior to 12.30 pm on 18 October. My noble Friend launched his report at 10.30 am on that day.

Agrimonetary Compensation

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans she has to claim agrimonetary compensation from the EU; and if she will make a statement. [12356]

Mr. Russell Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans she has to claim further agrimonetary compensation. [12419]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 5 November 2001]: Since 1997, a total of £785 million has been announced in agrimonetary compensation for farmers. Of this, £256 million has been optional. We have no plans to claim any agrimonetary compensation from the EU. Any future payments of agrimonetary compensation, to which the Exchequer would have to contribute at least 71p in every pound, must be balanced against the needs of other sectors and taxpayers.

Mink Farms

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many mink farms were operating in England and Wales on 28 February; and if she will list their locations by county. [13805]

Mr. Morley: As at 28 February 2001, there were the following licensed mink farms in England:

County	Number
Cornwall	1
Dorset	1
Hampshire	1
Isle of Wight	1
Lancashire	4
Northumberland	1
Staffordshire	1
South Yorkshire	1
West Yorkshire	1
Total	12

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will list all movements of farmed mink that took place in England and Wales during (a) 2000 and (b) 2001. [13802]

Mr. Morley: There is no requirement to inform the Department of the movement of mink. Under the Mink (Keeping) Regulations 1975 (as amended), such movements must be carried out in closed cages or other containers which prevent mink from escaping. The movement of farmed mink in Wales is a matter for the National Assembly for Wales. However, I understand that there have been no licensed mink farms in Wales for some years.

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on what dates each of the mink farms operating in England and Wales were inspected during 2001; and what plans there are to inspect farms after 30 September. [13801]

Mr. Morley: Mink farms in England were inspected on the following dates in 2001:

County	Date of security inspections	Date of welfare inspections
Cornwall	—	30 January
Dorset	27 June	—
Hampshire	27 June	26 January
	16 July	2 February
	24 October
Isle of Wight	14 June	—
Lancashire	3 April	—
	4 April
Northumberland	22 February	—
South Yorkshire	1 May	—
West Yorkshire	13 September	—

Due to the outbreak of foot and mouth disease, a number of planned mid-year security and welfare inspections could not be made. However, the usual programme of inspections will now continue for those mink farms still in operation.

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many (a) breeding female and (b) other mink were present at each of the mink farms operating on 28 February; and if she will show the figures by (i) farm and (ii) county. [13804]

Mr. Morley: We estimate, following visits by independent consultants engaged by the Department, that in February 2001 a total of 30,000 female and 6,000 male mink were being kept in England. I am unable to release details by farm because of commercial confidentiality.

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many mink farms were operating and contained live mink in England and Wales on 1 October; and if she will list their locations by county. [13803]

Mr. Morley: As at 1 October 2001, three mink farms in England were licensed and contained live mink, two in Lancashire and one in Hampshire.

Energy Performance (Buildings)

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many responses were received to the Government's consultation on the proposed EU directive on the energy performance of buildings; and how many of these responses welcomed the proposal. [12756]

Mr. Meacher: Approximately 150 written responses were received in response to the Government's consultation on the proposed EU directive on the energy performance of buildings. The consultation closed on 26 October and the responses are currently being analysed, but an initial review of the responses so far indicates that all but three were broadly supportive of the proposed directive. A summary of responses will be published on the DEFRA website in due course.

Foot and Mouth

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what her estimate is of the percentage of FMD cases where transmission of the disease was (a) from animal to animal, (b) airborne, (c) from contact with persons who had handled infected animals, (d) from contact with persons who had no contact with infected animals and (e) due to other causes. [12293]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 2 November 2001]: Investigations into the epidemiology of the outbreak are continuing and a number of publications are planned. The following interim results are minimum estimates for the single cause of infection.

	Number of cases	Percentage of cases
(a) Animal to animal	92	4.5
(b) Airborne	18	0.9
(c) and (d) Personal contact	73	3.6
(e) Other causes[1]	1,840	90.9
Total	2,023	—

[1] See breakdown in following table

Breakdown of (e) 'other causes'

	Number of cases	Percentage of cases
Local transmission	1,587	78.4
Dairy tanker	13	0.6
Other fomite	12	0.6
Other vehicles	29	1.4
Under investigation	199	9.9

Notes:

1. Figures do not distinguish between those persons who handled infected animals and those who did not.
2. Many infected premises had multiple possible sources of infection. If investigations reveal that there was more than one potential source within the appropriate time frame and the case falls within 3 kilometres of an earlier premises, the cause is recorded as 'local' transmission.
3. A fomite is defined as any inanimate object capable of carrying the virus.

Diana Organ: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what differences there are between the guidance given to Herefordshire council about grants to assist businesses affected by foot and mouth disease and that issued to Business Link and the Forest of Dean council and to Gloucestershire council. [6468]

Alun Michael: Within the guidelines it was left to individual regional development agencies to decide how to manage and prioritise the assistance given. Officials have looked at the way this has been dealt with by south-west regional development agency and Advantage West Midlands and are satisfied that although differing in detail both are consistent with the guidelines. I will write to my hon. Friend with further details.

Mr. Sayeed: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate she has made of the number of jobs lost in the agricultural sector as a result of the foot and mouth outbreak. [7749]

Alun Michael: The Department does not have statistics which could accurately reflect any job losses in the agricultural sector resulting from foot and mouth disease. As part of our efforts to properly interpret the social and economic impact on rural areas we are currently running a telephone survey of a sample of farmers who have been directly or indirectly affected by foot and mouth disease. This survey includes questions relating to the employment effects of the outbreak.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what requirements farms must comply with in order to qualify for (a) cleansing and (b) restocking following a foot and mouth outbreak; [8147]

(2) if she will make a statement on her policy on (a) cleansing and (b) restocking of farms infected by foot and mouth; [8146]

(3) if she will make a statement on how the restocking procedure following the foot and mouth outbreak will be implemented and the criteria governing this programme. [8153]

Mr. Morley: Cleansing and disinfection and restocking are key stages in the FMD eradication process.

Our policy is to ensure that cleansing and disinfection is carried out thoroughly and efficiently while at the same time ensuring the best use of public funds. Preliminary cleansing and disinfection (C and D) is carried out during the slaughter and disposal stage on all premises known, or believed to be contaminated with foot and mouth disease in order to minimise the risk of the virus spreading to neighbouring farms. Twenty-four hours after this stage has been completed, secondary C and D can commence, the purpose of which is to reduce the risk of recrudescence and allow for restocking. Restocking can commence once the farmer has a certificate stating the C and D has been satisfactorily completed.

The Department will normally pay the costs of secondary C and D providing farms are (a) in a reasonable state of cleanliness and repair, (b) there are no health and safety implications for those involved in the cleansing operation and (c) that the costs incurred are proportionate to the individual farm situation. Since 5 August, contractual arrangements have been tightened and farmers encouraged to undertake secondary C and D themselves, wherever possible.

Restocking must be accomplished in such a way as to balance the needs of the livestock industry and the veterinary and scientific advice as to the disease control risks involved in this process. The key elements of our restocking policy are as follows:

Secondary C and D must take place and a period of 21 days allowed to elapse prior to restocking.

If secondary C and D does not take place, a period of 12 months must elapse prior to restocking.

Movements of stock on to the farm must be licensed by DEFRA.

The numbers of livestock permitted for initial restocking must be set out in the premises restocking plan, which must be approved by the divisional veterinary manager.

Depending on the origin of sheep, testing of the flock of origin and all the sheep to be moved may be required. This will give valuable surveillance data on the prevalence of disease in the national flock.

Animals are to be inspected regularly for four weeks. Sheep and goats will be blood tested after 28 days. If all clear, restrictions can be lifted.

Further advice on restocking is available to farmers on the DEFRA website http://www.defra.gov.uk/.

Sheep and Goats

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions he has had with (a) the National Farmers Union and (b) others about the National Farmers Union's proposals for individual identification of sheep and goats; and if he will make a statement. [13952]

Mr. Morley: The NFU has not put forward proposals for compulsory individual identification of sheep and goats.

My officials have had initial discussions with industry representatives, which included NFU, about the future identification requirements for sheep and goats. Individual identification was one of the options discussed and we are now considering the views expressed by industry before a final decision is taken.

Agriculture Revenue

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the income of the United Kingdom Agriculture industry was that derived from (a) EU common agricultural policy funds, including intervention sales, (b) UK funds and product sales, and (c) other sources, expressed in (i) cash and (ii) percentage terms, in the last 12 months. [12881]

Mr. Morley: Estimates of the revenue to the agricultural industry broken down by source for the calendar year 2000 are given in the table.

Revenue to the UK agricultural industry in the year 2000

	£ million	Percentage
Total revenue[1]	15,587	100
of which:
CAP support—EU funded[2]	2,432	16
UK Exchequer funding[3]	144	1
Product sales[4]	11,613	75
Taxes	−103	−1
Other sources[5]	1,501	10

[1] Gross output at basic prices plus other subsidies less taxes on production

[2] Excludes indirect market support such as intervention purchases but includes payments for over-30-month scheme

[3] Includes CAP support measures funded by UK Exchequer

[4] Includes the effects of indirect market support which cost £497 million in 2000–01

[5] Includes transactions between farms and revenue from non-agricultural activities on the farm

Entrust

Mr. Sayeed: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when and how often Entrust provides financial reports to HM Customs and Excise. [13876]

Mr. Boateng: I have been asked to reply.

Customs has direct online access to Entrust's accounting database which contains detailed reports from environmental bodies. In addition Entrust provides Customs with its annual audited company accounts and an annual report containing statistical information about the landfill tax credit scheme.

Mr. Sayeed: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans she has for the future role of Entrust, as a result of the proposed reform of the landfill tax credit scheme. [13875]

Mr. Boateng: I have been asked to reply.

As stated in Budget 2001, we are attracted to replacing all or part of the landfill tax credit scheme with a public spending programme to direct resources towards Government priorities on sustainable waste management. The Government, together with the devolved Administrations, are developing options for a spending programme for consideration as part of the spending review 2002. Maintaining the current scheme, potentially with minor modifications, will also be reviewed. The Government will consult with interested parties on the future of the scheme and the transition to any replacement. The role of Entrust will be determined by the outcome of this consultation.

Mr. Sayeed: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what measures are taken by Entrust to conduct audits into applications for grants for environmental projects as part of the landfill tax credit scheme; and if she will make a statement. [13877]

Mr. Boateng: I have been asked to reply.

Entrust is responsible for enroling environmental bodies and checking that they meet qualifying criteria. It monitors the spending of these bodies through a risk based audit programme and notifies Customs where money has not been properly spent.

Mr. Sayeed: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what remuneration packages are available to executives of Entrust; and if she will make a statement. [13878]

Mr. Boateng: I have been asked to reply.

As a private sector company, details of the salaries and benefits of its employees are a matter for Entrust.

Zoo Animals

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will make a statement on (a) the conditions in which zoo animals are kept and (b) the consequences for the safety of their keepers. [13816]

Mr. Morley: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State's Standards of Modern Zoo Practice provide comprehensive guidance on best practice for keeping animals in zoos (this document can be obtained from DEFRAs website at www.defra.gov.uk/wildlife-countryside/gwd/zooprac/index.htm). They set out the basic principles that zoos need to observe to secure the proper care and well-being of the animals in their care, and they form the basis on which zoo inspections are carried out on behalf of local authorities under the Zoo Licensing Act 1981.

The health and safety of zoo employees is provided for by a separate inspection process under the Health and Safety at Work etc. Act 1974 and is a matter for the Health and Safety Executive. Although the inspection regimes are quite separate, the local authorities often co-ordinate the inspections as benefits can arise from conducting them together.

Landfill Tax

Mr. Sayeed: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment she has made in financial terms of abuse related to the landfill tax credit scheme. [13910]

Mr. Boateng: I have been asked to reply.

Because of on-going investigations no accurate financial assessment of abuse in the landfill tax credit scheme is currently available.

Flooding

Linda Perham: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assistance she is providing to the (a) London borough of Redbridge and (b) Environment Agency to protect properties at risk from flooding. [13976]

Mr. Morley: DEFRA provides grant aid for flood defence capital works, and associated studies, which meet essential technical, economic and environmental criteria and achieve an appropriate priority score.

DEFRA has recently approved for grant aid two studies, the Seven Kings Water and Cran Brook Hydraulic Studies, being undertaken by the London borough of Redbridge. The estimated cost is £44,000 and the council has been awarded a grant rate of 45 per cent.

The Environment Agency has extended flood warning arrangements and are also undertaking studies and maintenance in the area, but have not sought DEFRA funding as yet.

Hunting

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when she expects to allow fox hunting to resume; and if she will make a statement. [12337]

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will make a statement on when hunting will recommence in Wales following the foot and mouth outbreak. [12838]

Mr. Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment she has made of the veterinary risk of resuming hunting in Worcestershire; and if she will make a statement. [12678]

Alun Michael [holding answer 6 November 2001]: The veterinary risk assessment raises a number of complex issues regarding the future of foot and mouth disease related restrictions on hunting and such matters involve a careful balance of risks. It will be published as soon as Ministers and DEFRA officials have completed their consideration of the document. An announcement on the future of foot and mouth disease controls on hunting will be made as soon as possible.

Radioactive Waste

Mr. Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what percentage of the total UK volume of radioactive wastes has been produced by the nuclear power sector in the last five years. [13289]

Mr. Meacher [holding answer 8 November 2001]: Approximately 93 per cent. of the total volume of radioactive wastes produced in the last five years has arisen from the nuclear power sector and its associated research and development activities.

Movement of Livestock Scheme

Hywel Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs at what dates and times the autumn movement of livestock scheme website has been unavailable; and if she will make a statement on the impact on applicants of the unavailability of that website. [12543]

Mr. Morley: Information on the livestock movement scheme is held on the DEFRA website http://www.defra.gov.uk. This site has been continuously available since the scheme was introduced.

Fox Control

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what risk assessments have been completed on the recommencement of fox control in Wales following the foot and mouth outbreak; and if she will place copies of the risk assessments in the Library. [12839]

Alun Michael: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave the hon. Member for Banff and Buchan (Mr. Salmond) on 31 October 2001, Official Report, columns 735–36W.

Beef Consumption

Mrs. Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what percentage of beef consumption was (a) UK produced and (b) imported in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available. [14061]

Mr. Morley: Estimates of the breakdown of UK beef consumption between imported and UK produced beef are given in the table:

United Kingdom beef consumption

Unit[1]

Year	Total available for UK consumption	Of which: imports[2]	As a percentage of total consumption	Of which: UK produced beef	As percentage of total consumption
1991	995	204	20	791	80
1992	993	206	21	788	79
1993	921	209	23	712	77
1994	969	190	20	778	80
1995	903	212	24	691	76
1996	732	169	23	563	77
1997	857	217	25	640	75
1998	858	152	18	706	82
1999	934	183	20	751	80
2000[3]	915	197	21	718	79

[1] Thousand tonnes carcase weight equivalent

[2] Assumes all imports are consumed in the UK and all imports during a particular year are consumed in that year

[3] Provisional data

Source:

Prepared by: Statistics (Commodities and Food) Division, Economics and Statistics Directorate, DEFRA

Vets

Mrs. Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many vets were employed by the state veterinary service in each year since 1997. [14058]

Mr. Morley: The number of veterinary surgeons employed by the state veterinary service at 1 January each year since 1997 is given in the table.

Of the 286 full-time equivalent veterinarians employed by the state veterinary service, 220 are employed as field veterinary officers. The work of these officers is supplemented by about 100 temporary veterinary inspectors (TVIs) from the private sector in normal times.

Year	Number of vets
1997	289.5
1998	302.0
1999	283.0
2000	284.0
2001	286.0

Sheepmeat Exports

Mrs. Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when she expects the commencement of sheepmeat exports; and if she will list those countries free from foot and mouth disease from which sheepmeat destined for export can be derived. [14060]

Mr. Morley: It is anticipated that the mechanisms for the recommencement of exports of sheepmeat will be in place by 19 November 2001. The areas where the sheep may be sourced are available in the Library of the House.

GM Crop Trials

Mr. Yeo: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) if she will make it her policy that no new farmscale GM crop trials will be licensed within cross-pollination distance of Ryton Organic Gardens; [275]

(2) what powers the Government have to intervene in the licensing of the farmscale GM crop trials once they have been approved by SCIMAC and the Scientific Steering Committee. [289]

Mr. Meacher [holding answer 25 June 2001]: The crops grown in the programme of farmscale evaluations (FSEs) are at two different stages in the authorisation process. The powers to intervene in the licensing of the FSEs depend on the authorisation status of the GM crop concerned.

The oil seed rape and beet are authorised by my Department for growing in the evaluations under UK legislation implementing Part B of European directive 90/220 on deliberate release of GMOs. The consent is underpinned by a risk assessment and permits the GM crops to be grown in the evaluations on any arable land where rape or beet would normally be grown. The consent holder has to notify the Department of the locations of proposed sites prior to sowing together with a statement indicating whether the risk assessment remains valid for the new site and, if not, provide further evaluation. The consent holder may proceed to sow the crop unless he receives written indication from the Department that the new site does not comply on safety or other grounds with the conditions of the consent and the risk assessment.

The GM maize has Europe-wide approval for cultivation under Part C of Directive 90/220 granted in August 1998 by the French competent authority on behalf of the EC. However, this approval imposes no restrictions or conditions on the locations where the maize can be grown. For this crop, therefore, the Department has no statutory powers to intervene over the location of trial sites. However, before the GM maize could be grown commercially individual varieties will require listing on the National List of Seeds or the European Common Catalogue. In addition, under our voluntary agreement with the industry body SCIMAC, this GM crop will not be grown commercially in the UK until the completion of the evaluations and only then if it is assessed as causing no unacceptable effects on the environment.

The evaluations are being undertaken by an independent research consortium and overseen by the independent Scientific Steering Committee. SCIMAC provide the fields of crops for study. The steering committee has set overall criteria for the conduct of the evaluations and requires a representative distribution of sites. SCIMAC find farmers who may be willing to host an evaluation and draw up a list of potential farms from which the researchers select sites to meet the SSC criteria. Ministers are not involved in this process.

Given the public reaction to the proposal to locate an evaluation close to Ryton Organic Gardens last spring, the Government will use their influence to seek to ensure that no FSE site is chosen in future within cross-pollution distance of Ryton Organic Gardens.

Written Answers to Questions

Thursday 15 November 2001

DEFENCE

Territorial Army

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement about the role of the Territorial Army in guarding UK installations against terrorist attack. [13679]

Mr. Ingram: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 8 November 2001, Official Report, column 377W, to the hon. Member for North Essex (Mr. Jenkin).

Porton Down

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library copies of correspondence between his Department and the Medical Research Council prior to 21 November 2000, relating to the proposal to seek its advice on the feasibility of an epidemiological study into volunteers who took part in experiments at the chemical defence establishment, Porton Down. [14743]

Dr. Moonie: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 13 December 2000, Official Report, columns 163–64W. There is no such correspondence on this matter other than that which was placed in the Library of the House.

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many officials in his Department are employed to carry out the comprehensive survey of the service volunteer programme at the chemical defence establishment, Porton Down announced on 1 May; what grade each of these officials is; and on what date each started work on the comprehensive survey. [14748]

Dr. Moonie: With effect from 28 February 2001 the historical survey has been undertaken by a Principal (Grade B2) working for the Gulf Veterans' Illnesses Unit. Additional support has been provided, as required, by staff based at Porton Down and within the Gulf Veterans' Illnesses Unit.

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will issue a press release announcing the winners of the contract to carry out the epidemiological study to explore the health of volunteers who took part in experiments at the chemical and biological defence establishment, Porton Down; and when the winners will be chosen. [14749]

Dr. Moonie: At the request of the Ministry of Defence the Medical Research Council (MRC) invited proposals for such a study and these are now under consideration. Recommendations about which proposals are suitable for funding by the MOD are expected after the next meeting of the MRC's Physiological, Medicine and Infections Board in January. I expect to be in a position to make an announcement about which proposals will be taken forward shortly after that.

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many staff are employed in his Department's Gulf Veterans' Illnesses Unit specifically to deal with issues relating to Porton Down volunteers. [14753]

Dr. Moonie: At present, four Gulf Veterans' Illnesses Unit staff deal full time with issues relating to Porton Down volunteers; a further six staff assist with these issues on a part-time basis as required.

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many service personnel who took part in experiments at the chemical defence establishment, Porton Down, have been referred to the medical assessment programme since 21 November 2000; and how many of these have been seen by the medical assessment programme. [14762]

Dr. Moonie: During the period 21 November 2000 to 8 November 2001, 94 former Porton Down volunteers have been referred to the MAP. Of this number 88 have been seen.

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many teams of scientists and academics have expressed an interest in carrying out the epidemiological study to explore the health of volunteers who took part in experiments at the chemical defence establishment, Porton Down, since 21 June; if he will list these teams; and if he will place in the Library copies of the submissions of interest of those teams which have now withdrawn from the competition to conduct this study. [14757]

Dr. Moonie: This is a matter for the Medical Research Council (MRC), which has invited research proposals on behalf of the Ministry of Defence and will make recommendations about which proposals merit funding early next year. The MRC treats competing applications for peer review in strict confidence and therefore details of the proposals may not be released. However, we have been advised by the MRC that they received 15 expressions of interest, of which seven were shortlisted. Subsequently five research proposals were received from four United Kingdom groups.

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on what dates officials in his Department have held meetings with the Medical Research Council since 5 April, to discuss the epidemiological study into volunteers who took part in experiments at the chemical defence establishment, Porton Down. [14744]

Dr. Moonie: Meetings between Ministry of Defence staff and the Medical Research Council to discuss epidemiological research into Porton Down volunteers took place on 30 May, 2 August, and 3 August.

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many questionnaires have been sent out to former service personnel by his Department's officials conducting the comprehensive survey of the service volunteer programme at the chemical defence establishment, Porton Down; and how many questionnaires have been returned by former service personnel who took part in the experiments. [14755]

Dr. Moonie: Some 726 questionnaires seeking recollections from former participants of the Porton Down Service Volunteer programme have been distributed by the Gulf Veterans' Illnesses Unit via the Wiltshire police and the Medical Assessment Programme. As at 13 November 2001, 400 questionnaires had been returned.

Freedom of Information Act

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on what date his Department established a working group of officials to prepare his Department for the implementation of the Freedom of Information Act 2000; and on what dates this committee has met since it was set up. [14769]

Dr. Moonie: Following Royal Assent in November 2000, officials in the relevant Ministry of Defence policy branch began making initial preparations for implementation of the Freedom of Information Act 2000. This has involved an ad hoc programme of briefings, meetings and workshops to heighten awareness and improve understanding of the Act. As a result, the main defence management areas and policy branches were asked in August 2001 to nominate representatives to participate in the principal Freedom of Information (FOI) working group, which has responsibility for ensuring smooth implementation of the Act across the MOD. The FOI Working Group had its inaugural meeting on 17 October and it will meet again in mid-December.

Afghanistan

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what instructions have been given to service personnel engaged in Afghanistan in the event of them encountering UK citizens fighting for (a) the Taliban and (b) al-Qaeda; and if he will make a statement; [13629]

(2) what instructions have been issued to UK forces in Afghanistan in the event of them taking prisoner a UK citizen fighting for (a) the Taliban and (b) al-Qaeda; and if he will make a statement. [13623]

Mr. Hoon: Wherever they are engaged, British forces are required to act in accordance with national and international law. Any prisoners taken would be treated in accordance with the Geneva Conventions.

Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if cluster bomblets are defined as precision munitions in the conflict with the Taliban and Al-Qaeda network in Afghanistan. [14263]

Mr. Ingram: Cluster bombs rely on a ballistic delivery—for example, on the skill of the crew to ensure accuracy—and neither the bombs nor the bomblets that they release are laser guided. They are used with discretion and proportionality as international law requires, and against legitimate and appropriate terrorist and military targets that are selected with great care. Our targeting and weapons selection processes are rigorous with every effort made to avoid civilian casualties.

Ex-prisoners of War

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many claims for ex gratia payments for former captives of the Japanese have been refused; and what the circumstances of those applicants were. [13972]

Dr. Moonie: As at 12 November 2001, 3,741 claims for ex gratia payments for former captives of the Japanese have been refused. The circumstances of those applicants vary widely, but include civilian internees who did not meet the criteria of being a British subject either born in the UK or having a parent or grandparent born in the UK, those not interned and children of former prisoners of war of the Japanese.

Nuclear Submarines (Secondment)

Mr. Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if the two nuclear submarines that may be allocated to the European Peacekeeping and Peacemaking Corps, include types capable of firing (a) tomahawks and (b) nuclear missiles. [14826]

Mr. Hoon: There is no European Peacekeeping and Peacemaking Corps. The UK has offered to provide two nuclear-powered attack submarines to the pool of forces and capabilities required to meet the EU's Helsinki Headline Goal. These submarines are capable of firing Tomahawk missiles. No nuclear forces have been offered.

MOD Police

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many redundancies have taken place within the MOD police in each of the last three years; and how many MOD police have been transferred to the police service. [15167]

Dr. Moonie: Eleven Ministry of Defence Police (MDP) officers, through a limited mobility waiver scheme, accepted voluntary redundancy on compulsory early retirement/compulsory early severance terms during financial year 1998–99. There were no such redundancies during financial years 1999–2000 and 2000–01. The number of officers who have resigned from the MDP and joined Home or Scottish Office forces are shown in the table:

Year	Number resigned
1998–99	1
1999–2000	8
2000–01	34

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions he has had on the merger of MOD police and the atomic energy police. [15168]

Dr. Moonie: The respective Quinquennial Reviews of the Ministry of Defence Police and the United Kingdom Atomic Energy Authority Constabulary are considering a range of options in regard to these organisations. The outcome of these reviews will be made known in due course.

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the cost of running the MOD police was in the last 12 months. [15170]

Dr. Moonie: The total net operating cost of the Ministry of Defence Police Agency for financial year 2000–01 was £151.869 million.

Defence Aviation Repair Agency

Mr. John Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when the Chief Executive of the Defence Aviation Repair Agency met the First Minister to discuss the relocation of the fixed wing aircraft repair business from RAF St. Athan to Cardiff International Airport. [15157]

Mr. Ingram: Defence Aviation Repair Agency records show that the meeting with the First Minister took place on 28 March 2001.

Projects

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on progress on projects (a) Connaught and (b) Allenby. [15070]

Dr. Moonie: The management of Project Allenby and Connaught has been combined. The project's feasibility studies into the Army's accommodation and support service requirements for garrisons around the Salisbury Plain and in Aldershot were completed in the summer and their recommendations are being considered by Ministers.

Churches

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has to make funding available to carry out essential repairs to the Royal Garrison Church, Aldershot. [15068]

Dr. Moonie: A total of £18,000 will be spent on planned maintenance and unforeseen repairs to the Royal Garrison Church, Aldershot in this financial year. Of this, some £4,000 has already been spent.

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many churches in the United Kingdom are maintained by his Department; and if he will list their locations by denomination. [15071]

Dr. Moonie: I will write to the hon. Member and a copy of my letter will be placed in the Library of the House.

Proposed Payment System

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the proposed Ministry of Defence payment system and the role of prime contractor EDS. [14629]

Mr. Ingram: The delivery of armed forces pay under the new arrangements introduced by Pay 2000 involved rebuilding the core of the three single service pay systems. Since 1 April 2001, 95 per cent. of our regular armed forces have been paid under these systems. The remainder will be transferred by April 2003. The Armed Forces Personnel Administration Agency (AFPAA) has a PFI partnering arrangement with Electronic Data Systems (EDS) for the delivery of information systems and information technology in support of the personnel administration and pay of service personnel.

Reservists

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many reservists, called up in the last month, have reported for duty; and if he will make a statement. [15185]

Mr. Ingram: During the past month 118 reservists were called out and all have reported for duty. This reflects the success of our policy of seeking volunteers to be called out. They are serving in a variety of locations including the former Yugoslavia and Sierra Leone and in support of operations resulting from the terrorist attacks in the United States of America on 11 September.

Ballistic Missiles

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to his answer of 9 November 2001, Official Report, column 434W, on ballistic missiles, when he will place a copy of the code of conduct in the Library. [15182]

Mr. Hoon: A copy of the draft International Code of Conduct on Ballistic Missiles was placed in the Library of the House today.

September 11 (Financial Consequences)

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to the answer of 9 November 2001, Official Report, column 435W, on the cost of Operation Veritas, for what reason he has referred the hon. Member for North Essex to an answer to a previous question, referring to a letter to the hon. Member for Lewes (Mr. Baker), 23 October 2001, Official Report, column 114W, which has not been sent; and when he will (a) give and (b) publish in the Official Report a substantive answer to the question from the hon. Member for North Essex. [15275]

Mr. Hoon: The financial data required to provide a substantive answer on the costs to date of Operation Veritas are still being gathered. I hope to be able to provide the information requested in due course.

TRANSPORT, LOCAL GOVERNMENT AND THE REGIONS

Railtrack

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions on what date he instructed officials to draw up draft legislation to prevent the Rail Regulator performing an interim financial review on Railtrack. [10404]

Mr. Spellar: Details of internal communications are exempt from disclosure under paragraph 2, part II of the Code of Practice on Access to Government Information.

Mr. Norman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions (1) if he contacted (a) the Chairman and (b) directors of Railtrack plc on Saturday 6 October to ask whether the Board accepted that Railtrack plc was insolvent; [14461]

(2) if he will list the contacts made by (a) him and (b) his officials with the Board of Railtrack Group plc on Saturday 6 October. [14462]

Mr. Jamieson [holding answer 13 November 2001]: There were numerous contacts at various levels between my Department and Railtrack plc and our respective legal and financial advisers on Saturday 6 October.

Scottish Devolution

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what his policy is regarding consultations prior to the publication of proposals involving the transfer of powers to the Scottish Executive by (a) primary legislation and (b) Order in Council. [13826]

Dr. Whitehead: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Scotland, on 14 November 2001, Official Report, column 748W.

Home Condition Inspections

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what his estimate is of (a) the number of home inspectors who will be needed to enforce the proposals in the seller's pack and (b) the cost to the taxpayer of policing compliance with the seller's pack. [13808]

Ms Keeble: Home condition inspection should not be confused with enforcement. The home condition report will be a standard mid-level survey that we propose should be a mandatory part of the seller's pack. This survey will be carried out by accredited professionals who may be surveyors, buildings inspectors or any other professional who satisfies the accreditation body that they have the necessary skills and knowledge.

We anticipate that some 7,000 to 9,000 people will need to have been accredited through the certification regime in order to provide home condition reports. The vast majority of these will be currently practising professionals.

The cost of enforcement would depend on the regime agreed by Parliament. But the assessment provided by L.A.C.O.T.S. of the costs arising from the proposals in the 2000 Homes Bill suggested an average of around £5,000 per annum for each local authority to meet the costs of enforcement work by trading standards officers.

Fire and Civil Defence Authorities

Mr. Truswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what plans he has to mitigate the reductions in the 2001–02 budgets of fire and civil defence authorities arising from the fire call element of the standard spending assessment. [13598]

Dr. Whitehead: All metropolitan fire authorities received an increase in grant in 2001–02 and will receive an increase in grant, as a result of the floor and ceiling mechanism, in the 2002–03 local government finance settlement.

We recognise that the fire calls element of the fire Standard Spending Assessment is a perverse incentive and are committed to removing this indicator as part of the current review of local government finance. That review, which is being undertaken in partnership with local government, is looking at a number of ways in which the fire calls indicator might be replaced from 2003–04.

Swimming Pools

Vera Baird: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what financial support he gives for the construction of swimming pools in partnership with local and regional authorities. [14040]

Dr. Whitehead: This Department makes no specific financial provision available for construction of swimming pools. However local authorities may use their non ring-fenced basic credit approvals, which are issued by this Department, to support borrowing for any capital projects. The majority of capital funding for sport is channelled through the sports councils. Sport England is the distributor for the Lottery Sports Fund, to which local authorities may apply, which provides funding for a range of community sports facilities, including swimming pools.

Access Road (Norfolk and Norwich University Hospital)

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what plans he has to provide a second access road to the new Norfolk and Norwich University hospital. [13863]

Mr. Jamieson: None. South Norfolk district council are currently considering an outline planning application for residential development at Cringleford together with a new link road between the A11 and Colney Lane. The new link road would have the potential to provide an alternative route to the new Norfolk and Norwich hospital.

It is for Norfolk county council, as the local highway authority, to consider the question of a second access for the hospital. The Highways Agency looked at the acceptability of allowing direct access to the hospital from the A47 and concluded that an additional junction between the B1108 Watton road and the A11 would affect the safe and efficient operation of this section of the A47. Subsequently a technical assessment of a direct link between the A47 and the hospital was commissioned by Norfolk county council and the Highways Agency is currently examining proposals received from the county council on 1 November.

Connex South Eastern

Dr. Ladyman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what subsidies have been paid to Connex South Eastern to assist them with the purchase of new trains; when these payments were made; what Connex is required to do as a consequence of accepting these payments; how many confirmed orders for new trains Connex has informed his Department it has made; and how many trains Connex has accepted. [13874]

Mr. Jamieson: Between 13 October 1996 and 31 March 2001, the following amounts of franchise support were paid to Connex South Eastern by the franchising director and, since 1 February 2001, by the Strategic Rail Authority (SRA).

Year	Cash price (£ million)
1996–97	58
1997–98	115
1998–99	86
1999–2000	64
2000–01	43

Franchise support for Connex South Eastern is the franchising director's and the SRA's contribution to funding all the company's expenditure under its franchise agreement, including expenditure on new trains. Under the agreement, the company is required to use all reasonable endeavours to introduce new trains on time. I understand that the company has ordered 210 vehicles, 16 of which are in passenger service.

London Underground

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what are London Underground's estimated (a) passengers, (b) passenger kilometres operated, (c) gross operating costs, (d) total income from fares and (e) gross operating margin for 2001–02. [14606]

Mr. Jamieson [holding answer 13 November 2001]: The budgeted information for 2001–02 for London Underground Ltd. (including the InfraCos) is as follows:

(a) Fare paying passenger journeys—975 million;

(b) Passenger kilometres operated—7,518 million;

(c) Gross operating costs—£1,387 million;

(d) Total fare income—£1,175 million; and

(e) Gross operating margin—(£122 million).

The actual figures for 2001–02 will be published in due course as part of the London Transport Annual Report 2001–02.

Brownfield Development

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will make a statement on targets for development on brownfield sites, with specific reference on how to prevent town cramming. [14841]

Ms Keeble [holding answer 14 November 2001]: Our national target is that by 2008, 60 per cent. of additional housing should be provided on previously developed land and through conversions of existing buildings.

Regional planning bodies should propose land recycling targets to be set in regional planning guidance, drawing on the urban housing capacity studies undertaken by their constituent local authorities. These targets should contribute to achieving the national target. Local planning authorities should adopt their own land recycling targets in development plans which will contribute to attaining the regional target and which are consistent with data from their urban housing capacity studies.

Good design and layout of new development can help to achieve the Government's objectives of making the best use of previously developed land and improving the quality and attractiveness of residential areas.

Gayton Level Crossing

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions when work to replace the Gayton level crossing on the West Coast Main Line with a bridge will be (a) initiated and (b) completed. [15008]

Mr. Jamieson: I am not aware of any proposal to replace this level crossing. This would be a matter for Railtrack in the first instance, who are responsible for maintaining the network infrastructure.

Homelessness

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions how many people over retirement age were made homeless in (a) 1997 and (b) 2001 to date; and what proposals the Government have to counter this problem. [15199]

Ms Keeble: Homeless acceptances represent households in need who are helped by local authorities into accommodation. Information reported to the Department by local authorities for total acceptances and those where a member of the household is identified as vulnerable due to old age are as follows:

	1997	2000
Total	102,410	111,550
Of which vulnerable due to old age	4,220	4,050
Percentage	4	4

The Government have introduced the Homelessness Bill whose provisions will require housing authorities to take a more strategic, multi-agency approach to the prevention of homelessness and the re-housing of homeless households;

ensure that everyone accepted by housing authorities as unintentionally homeless and in priority need must be provided with suitable accommodation until they obtain a settled housing solution; and allow housing authorities greater flexibility to assist non-priority homeless households, principally through a new power for housing authorities to secure accommodation for such households where they have the scope to do so.

To support these provisions, investment in new affordable housing through the Housing Corporation will rise to over £1.2 billion by 2003–04—about double the current level.

Additionally, the Government have been consulting on their overall approach to tackling homelessness and are considering a number of constructive suggestions.

Fire Service Personnel

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what the shortfall is in the number of Fire Service personnel in the UK; and what plans he has to encourage more people into the service. [12960]

Dr. Whitehead: Based on provisional figures taken from annual returns to HM Fire Service Inspectorate, the difference between establishment and actual strength of the fire service in England and Wales, as 31 March, was 3,582.

To help encourage people from all backgrounds to join the fire service, officials from my Department have been working in collaboration with stakeholders from all parts of the fire service to produce effective and informative national recruitment literature. This literature will be produced centrally for use by fire authorities in their recruitment activities. The production of this literature forms part of a strategic approach to recruitment across the fire service which aims to raise awareness among under-represented groups of the fire service as a career choice.

We will be launching the first of the recruitment publications shortly.

Green Spaces

Ms Bridget Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what progress has been made in delivering the Government's proposals for improving the quality of urban parks and green spaces. [15791]

Ms Keeble: The Urban Green Spaces Taskforce was set up in January 2001 to advise the Government on its proposals for improving the quality of our urban parks, play areas and green spaces.

The taskforce has, today, published its interim report: "Green Spaces, Better Places". The report describes the taskforce's work, some preliminary findings, and how proposals are being developed. Copies of the report are available in the Libraries of the House.

The final report of the taskforce will be published in April 2002.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

Cluster Bombs

Llew Smith: To ask the Solicitor-General, pursuant to her answer to the hon. Member for Birmingham, Selly Oak (Lynne Jones) of 5 November 2001, Official Report, column 1W, on cluster bombs, if she will make it her policy to change the convention covering advice given by the Law Officers; and if she will set out the reasons for the current policy of non disclosure of Law Officers' advice. [14691]

The Solicitor-General: The Ministerial Code provides that the fact and content of advice given by the Law Officers, either individually or collectively, must not be disclosed outside Government without their authority. This long-standing convention, observed by successive Governments, protects the confidentiality of the legal advice given to the Government. There are no plans to change Government policy on this matter but we keep under continuing review all arrangements relating to our work.

Internet Fraud

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Solicitor-General how many investigations were conducted by the Serious Fraud Office into alleged fraud on the internet in the last 12 months for which figures are available; and if she will make a statement. [14383]

The Solicitor-General: The SFO is currently investigating one case where the internet was the principal medium through which the fraud was carried out. There are a number of other SFO cases where the internet has been used, but not as the principal medium for the fraud. The SFO does not record these separately.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Compensation Agency

Colin Burgon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he has made a decision about the future of the Compensation Agency. [15302]

Dr. John Reid: I have agreed that the executive agency status of the Compensation Agency should be continued until 31 March 2004. My decision follows the completion of stage 1 of a quinquennial review which examined the past performance of the agency and the other organisational arrangements available for the administration of compensation schemes. Stage 2 of the review will look at ways of improving the delivery of services.

Copies of the report of stage 1 have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Trial by Jury

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps he has taken to set mechanisms in place for the re-introduction of trial by jury following the most recent report of General de Chastelain. [13913]

Jane Kennedy: The mechanism for reviewing trials without jury in Northern Ireland is already in place. The Northern Ireland specific emergency provisions as contained at part VII of the Terrorism Act 2000 (which came into force on 19 February 2001) are time-limited to five years and subject to annual renewal; its provisions can be phased out by order, individually if appropriate, as soon as the security situation allows. Section 75 of the Act relating to mode of trial on indictment which falls within part VII is therefore subject to this process.

Influencing factors relating to the re-introduction of trial by jury will be the risk of juror intimidation; the subsequent risk of perverse verdicts; and an assessment of the level of threat/security situation. The annual report(s) of the independent reviewer of the Terrorism Act 2000 will assist in informing future decisions and parliamentary debates on part VII of the Act.

PRESIDENT OF THE COUNCIL

Computer Crime

Mr. Burstow: To ask the President of the Council how many cases of computer (a) hacking, (b) fraud and (c) theft his Department recorded in (i) 2000 and (ii) 2001; and on how many occasions in those years computer systems have been illegally accessed by computer hackers (A) within and (B) outside his Department. [13139]

Mr. Robin Cook: None.

House of Lords Appointments Commission

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the President of the Council when the House of Lords Appointments Commission will publish its annual report. [13870]

Mr. Robin Cook: My understanding is that the Commission will publish its annual report in the new year.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Afghanistan

Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he was informed of the Russian submission to the United Nations Security Council in March on Al-Qaeda's infrastructure; and what action he took. [12180]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 2 November 2001]: We have no knowledge of any submission by Russia on the infrastructure of Al-Qaeda in March this year to either the Security Council or the Afghanistan sanctions committee.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what information he has received concerning the Shelter Now aid workers imprisoned by the Taliban regime in Afghanistan since August. [14786]

Mr. Bradshaw: We welcome the liberation of all the Shelter Now International (SNI) workers on 15 November.

Entry Clearance

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many visa applications refused by entry clearance officers were subsequently granted on appeal in each of the last five years. [13643]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Home Office has provided the following statistics. The outcome of entry clearance appeals to immigration adjudicators is:

	Total dealt with	Outcome Allowed	Dismissed	Withdrawn
1996	7,320	1,790	4,200	1,330
1997	8,760	2,670	4,110	1,970
1998	7,600	2,200	4,100	1,200
1999	5,800	2,070	3,280	450
2000	6,650	2,360	3,690	600

The source of these statistics is the "Control of Immigration Statistics United Kingdom 2000" copies of which are available from the Libraries of the House.

Overseas Territories

Mr. Chidgey: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with representatives from overseas territories with regard to the reciprocal rights to reside and work in (a) the UK and (b) those territories of the citizens of both categories. [13914]

Mr. Bradshaw: Discussions have been held with the overseas territories on a regular basis since the preparation of the 1999 White Paper on the relationship with the overseas territories, "Partnership for Progress and Prosperity".

Mr. Nigel Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will list the nature and extent of British military presence in British territories overseas. [13980]

Mr. Bradshaw: There are 5,132 British military personnel deployed in British overseas territories and sovereign base areas. They are deployed to maintain garrison facilities and provide on-going defence to the British overseas territories.

Human Rights

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on what dates the (a) Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of the Crime of Genocide, 1948, (b) International Labour Organisation Migration for Employment Convention (Revised), 1949 (No. 97), (c) Convention for the Suppression of the Traffic in Persons and of the Exploitation of the Prostitution of Others, 1949, (d) Convention relating to the Status of Refugees of 1951, and its 1967 Protocol, (e) International Labour Organisation Discrimination Convention (Employment and Occupation), 1958 (No. 111), (f) Convention against Discrimination in Education, adopted on 14 December 1960 by the General Conference of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organisation, (g) Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women 1979, with a view to achieving universal ratification within five years, and its Optional Protocol of 1999, (h) Convention on the Rights of the Child in 1989 and its two Optional Protocols of 2000, and the International Labour Organisation Minimum Age Convention, 1973 (No. 138) and Worst Forms of Child Labour Convention, 1999 (No. 182), (i) International Labour Organisation Migrant Workers (Supplementary Provisions) Convention, 1975 (No. 143), (j) International Labour Organisation Indigenous and Tribal Peoples Convention, 1989 (No. 169) and the Convention on Biological Diversity, 1992, (k) International Convention on the Protection of the Rights of All Migrant Workers and Members of Their Families, 1990, (l) Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court, 1998, (m) United Nations Convention against Transnational Organised Crime, the Protocol to Prevent, Suppress and Punish Trafficking in Persons, Especially Women and Children, supplementing the Convention and the Protocol against the smuggling of Migrants by Land, Sea and Air, supplementing the Convention, 2000 and (n) the Declaration on the Elimination of All Forms of Intolerance and of Discrimination Based on Religion or Belief, proclaimed by the General Assembly in its resolution 36/55, of 25 November 1981 instruments were (i) signed and (ii) ratified; and what further progress he expects to make with these in the next 12 months. [13924]

Peter Hain: (a) The United Kingdom acceded to the Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of the Crime of Genocide, 1948 on 30 January 1970.

(b) The UK signed the International Labour Organisation Migration for Employment Convention (Revised), 1949 (No. 97) on 1 July 1949 and ratified on 22 January 1951.

*(c)*The UK is not party to the Convention for the Suppression of the Traffic in Persons and of the Exploitation of the Prostitution of Others, 1949.

(d) The UK signed the Convention relating to the Status of Refugees of 1951 on 28 July 1951 and ratified on 11 March 1954. The UK acceded to the 1967 Protocol on 4 September 1968.

(e) The UK ratified the International Labour Organisation Discrimination Convention (Employment and Occupation), 1958 (No. 111) on 8 June 1999.

(f) The UK accepted the Convention against Discrimination in Education, adopted on 14 December 1960 by the General Conference of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organisation, on 14 March 1962.

g) The UK signed the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women 1979 in July 1981 and ratified on 7 April 1986. The UK is not party to the Optional Protocol of 1999.

(h) The UK signed the Convention on the Rights of the Child on 19 April 1980 and ratified on 16 December 1991. The UK signed the two Optional Protocols (2000) to the Convention on 7 September 2000. The UK ratified the International Labour Organisation Minimum Age Convention, 1973 (No. 138) on 7 June 2000 and ratified the Worst Forms of Child Labour Convention, 1999 (No. 182) on 23 March 2000.

(i) The UK is not party to the International Labour Organisation Migrant Workers (Supplementary Provisions) Convention, 1975 (No. 143).

(j) The UK is not party to the International Labour Organisation Indigenous and Tribal Peoples Convention, 1989 (No. 169). The UK signed the Convention on Biological Diversity, 1992 on 12 June 1992 and ratified on 3 June 1994.

(k) The UK is not party to the International Convention on the Protection of the Rights of All Migrant Workers and Members of Their Families, 1990.

(l) The UK signed the Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court on 30 November 1998 and ratified on 4 October 2001.

(m) The UK signed the United Nations Convention against Transnational Organised Crime, the Protocol to Prevent, Suppress and Punish Trafficking in Persons, Especially Women and Children, and the Protocol against the Smuggling of Migrants by Land, Sea and Air, on 14 December 2000.

(n) The UK supported the adoption by consensus of the Declaration on the Elimination of All Forms of Intolerance and of Discrimination Based on Religion or Belief, proclaimed by the General Assembly in its resolution 36/55, of 25 November 1981.

Over the next 12 months, the UK will be working for early ratification of the two Optional Protocols to the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child, the United Nations Convention Against Transnational Organised Crime and the two Optional Protocols supplementing the Convention.

September 11

Hywel Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his latest estimate is of the number of British subjects killed in the terrorist attacks on 11 September. [14199]

Mr. Bradshaw: To date, four British nationals have been positively identified as among the dead. A further 74 people are identified as missing. This number includes 56 British nationals, four dual nationals and 14 foreign nationals with close links to the United Kingdom.

Zimbabwe

Mr. Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the Zimbabwean Government's plans for foreign and independent monitoring of the upcoming presidential elections; and what plans he has to help ensure free and fair elections in that country. [14395]

Mr. Bradshaw: We are following the Zimbabwean Government's plans for monitoring and observation of the forthcoming presidential elections closely. We have made clear repeatedly to the Government of Zimbabwe our view that the presence of international election observers is a key element in creating a climate conducive to free and fair elections. We support the initiative of President Obasanjo of Nigeria to seek agreement from President Mugabe to allow access for international election observers. We shall work with our partners in the EU, the Commonwealth, the Southern African Development Community (SADC) and the US to urge the Government of Zimbabwe to admit international observers.

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what attempts he is making to ensure that foreign observers will be present to monitor the lead up to the elections in Zimbabwe. [14522]

Mr. Bradshaw: We continue to urge the Government of Zimbabwe to admit international election observers in the lead up to, and during the forthcoming Presidential elections. Most recently my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary raised this matter with the Zimbabwean Minister of Foreign affairs, Mr. Mudenge, in New York on 10 November. We shall also work with our EU partners to press for early access for international observers in the pre-election period, in particular during forthcoming consultations with the Government of Zimbabwe under Article 96 of the Cotonou Agreement.

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what efforts he is making to ensure that foreign observers are present to monitor the registration of voters in Zimbabwe. [14523]

Mr. Bradshaw: We continue to urge the Government of Zimbabwe to admit international observers and to create a climate conducive to free and fair elections. Most recently my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary reiterated this when he met Zimbabwe's Foreign Minister, Stan Mudenge, on 10 November in New York. We shall, with our EU partners, also focus on the electoral process during forthcoming consultations with the Government of Zimbabwe, under Article 96 of the Cotonou Agreement.

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to ensure that the registration of voters in Zimbabwe is free and fair. [14524]

Mr. Bradshaw: We continue to urge the Government of Zimbabwe to create a climate conducive to a free and fair election including the registration of voters. We are also working with our EU colleagues to encourage a free and fair electoral process and will continue to do so in the context of consultations with the Government of Zimbabwe under Article 96 of the Cotonou Agreement.

Dr. Tonge: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the Zimbabwe Government concerning the forthcoming presidential elections; and if he will make a statement. [14739]

Mr. Bradshaw: We continue to urge the Government of Zimbabwe to admit international election observers and to create a climate conducive to free and fair elections. Most recently, my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary reiterated this when he met the Zimbabwean Foreign Minister, Stan Mudenge, on 10 November in New York.

British Council Offices

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will list the new offices of the British Council opened in each of the last three years. [14736]

Mr. MacShane: The British Council has opened the following offices in the last three years.

April 1998 to March 1999:

Curitiba (Brazil)
Mandalay (Burma)
Havana (Cuba)
Auckland (New Zealand)
Gilgit (Pakistan)
Sochi (Russia)
Yaroslavl (Russia)
Sharjah (UAE)

April 1999 to March 2000:

Ramallah (East Jerusalem)
Brasov (Romania)
Yuzhno-Sakhalinsk (Russia)
Pristina (Yugoslavia)

April 2000 to March 2001:

Chongging (China)
Chandigarh (India)
Tehran (Iran)
Tripoli (Libya)
Multan (Russia)
Irkutsk (Russia)
Samara (Russia).

Jedda

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the Saudi authorities concerning the arrest and continuing incarceration of Christians in Jedda. [15194]

Mr. Bradshaw: We are aware of the cases of a number of Christians of various nationalities (none British) arrested in Jedda. Saudi law prohibits the practise of any religion other than Islam. The British Consulate-General in Jedda has discussed these cases with EU partners and other diplomatic representatives. All those detained have received visits from their own diplomatic representatives. We raise our concerns about human rights with the Saudi authorities on a regular basis.

China

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if UK approval for China's application to join the World Trade Organisation was contingent on an improvement in human rights within (a) China and (b) Tibet. [15195]

Peter Hain: As the WTO accession process is primarily dependent on fulfilling trade-related and economic objectives, this was the basis of the approval of China's application for WTO membership. The UK will encourage China to implement its WTO obligations in ways which respect international human rights standards. We believe that closer integration of China into the international community will make an important contribution to improving the human rights situation in China over the longer term.

Refugees (Zakynthos)

Dr. Tonge: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the Government of Greece regarding the condition of the Afghan, Iraqi Kurds and Pakistani refugees who recently disembarked on the island of Zakynthos. [14738]

Peter Hain: The Government have made no representations to the Government of Greece about the condition of refugees recently disembarked on the island of Zakynthos.

HM Government wholly condemn the people-traffickers who cause the kind of human suffering witnessed in this incident and are working energetically with colleagues, including EU colleagues, to crack down on this evil trade.

TREASURY

Taper Relief

Mr. Flight: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with reference to Tax Bulletin Issue No 53, (a) in the context of taper, what the Inland Revenue defines as "security", (b) for what reasons the Inland Revenue regards not all debentures as securities and (c) what guidance has been issued to relevant inspectors of taxes when considering the question as to whether a particular instrument was a security. [9759]

Dawn Primarolo: (a) For capital gains tax taper relief, "security" takes its ordinary meaning. In addition, certain earn-out rights under section 138A of the Taxation of Chargeable Gains Act 1992 may be treated as securities for the purposes of the whole Act, and thus for taper relief.

For planned changes to the meaning of "security" for the purposes of taper relief, I refer the hon. Gentleman to my written answer to his question on deemed securities.

(b) Whether a debenture is a security depends on the characteristics of the individual instrument.

(c) Tax Bulletin 53 states that the Inland Revenue will accept that any debt instrument which has the characteristics of a "debt on a security", as that term has been explained in judicial decisions, is a security for taper purposes. Guidance on the meaning of the expression "debt on a security" is given in the Capital Gains Manual which is available to both tax offices and the public.

Mr. Flight: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans he has to extend section 251 (6) of the Taxation of Chargeable Gains Act 1992 to apply as a definition of security in the context of taper relief. [9760]

Dawn Primarolo: In order to simplify capital gains tax (CGT) and reduce uncertainty, especially in take-overs and company reconstructions, the Government will introduce legislation to provide that debentures that are deemed to be securities under section 251(6) of the Taxation of Chargeable Gains Act 1992 are also treated as securities for CGT taper relief.

The new provision will take effect for holding periods from 6 April 1998 and for disposals from 6 April 2001.

Climate Change Levy

Mr. Howard: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the impact of the climate change levy on manufacturing productivity. [R] [10256]

Mr. Boateng: The climate change levy is a broadly revenue neutral instrument which will raise the relative price of energy but lower the relative cost of employment.

The impact on any specific sector or industry will depend on a number of factors including:

The future energy consumption of firms in the sector and the use they make of levy funded energy efficiency support.

Employment levels in those sectors and the benefits received from the levy funded reductions in employers' national insurance contributions.

The number of energy intensive firms in that sector that are eligible to receive a discount on the main rates of the levy by signing up to an energy efficiency agreement.

What use firms in that sector make of electricity generated from levy exempt sources of energy such as new renewables and combined heat and power.

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans he has to widen the discount schemes for the climate change levy. [14432]

Mr. Boateng: The Government have no plans to amend the eligibility criteria for businesses entering into negotiated agreements for improving energy efficiency in return for 80 per cent. discounts of the climate change levy.

Customs and Excise

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list the statutory instruments affecting the working of HM Customs and Excise that have come into force since 31 March 1999. [11174]

Mr. Boateng [holding answer 5 November 2001]: Statutory instruments that affect the work of the Department can be found listed in the HM Customs and Excise annual reports. The next report is due to be published at the end of November.

Public-private Partnerships

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, pursuant to his answer of 30 October 2001, Official Report, column 623W, on the Mott MacDonald study, if any public-private partnerships will be examined by the study; for what reasons he is unable to place the terms of reference in the Library; and if he will make a statement. [13456]

Mr. Andrew Smith: The study is intended to inform risk assessment in future publicly procured projects. For this reason, the study is confined to conventional procurement, as per the terms of reference, which are available in full in the Library.

Intellectual Property Rights

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which organisation owns the intellectual property rights to (a) the Inland Revenue proprietary system for processing tax returns, (b) the National Insurance Recording System 2 and (c) Customs and Excise proprietary systems; and if he will make a statement. [14742]

Dawn Primarolo:

(a) Inland Revenue—Under the strategic partnership contract with EDS, the Inland Revenue owns all the Intellectual Property Rights (IPRs) created as part of the delivery of IT services to the Department.

(b) NIRS 2—The NIRS 2 deal with Accenture (then Andersen Consulting) is a Private Finance Initiative (PFI) and accordingly the IPRs were granted to Accenture.

The PFI deal permits IR to have 'licence to use' the IPRs in perpetuity for a sliding scale of charge.

(c) Customs and Excise—All IPRs in Customs and Excise propriety systems are owned by the Department.

Child Care Tax Credits

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many families in (a) England, (b) Wales, (c) Scotland and (d) Northern Ireland are eligible for (i) the working families tax credit and (ii) the child care tax credit. [15147]

Dawn Primarolo: The number of families in receipt of the working families tax credit (WFTC) in each country are shown in the WFTC quarterly inquiries, copies of which are in the Library.

The following are estimates of the number of families in each country in receipt of the child care tax credit within WFTC at May 2001:

Country
(a) England	119,400
(b) Wales	6,900
(c) Scotland	14,200
(d) Northern Ireland	3,900

Note:
The figures for England, Wales and Scotland are estimates based on a 5 per cent. sample of awards, and are therefore subject to sampling error. In addition, there were a small number of families for which the country was not known from the data used to compile these estimates.

Tax Receipts

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what impact the reduced rate of output in manufacturing since January has had on (a) corporation tax receipts and (b) VAT receipts. [14423]

Mr. Andrew Smith: An updated projection for corporation tax and VAT receipts will be presented in the forthcoming pre-Budget Report.

British Petroleum

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent representations he has received from BP; and if he will place them in the Library. [14443]

Mr. Boateng: Treasury Ministers receive a large number of representations from a wide range of organisations on a wide range of subjects.

Company Cars

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the total cost to business that will result from the changes to company car tax from April 2002. [14391]

Mr. Boateng: The Inland Revenue estimates that employers will pay around £25 million less in national insurance contributions over the first three years of the new system as a result of the reforms to company car tax.

The Inland Revenue also estimates that employers will save around £20 million per year in recurring compliance costs as a result of the reforms. A Regulatory Impact Assessment document looking in detail at the impacts of the company car tax changes on employers' compliance costs is on the Inland Revenue's website.

Customs and Excise (Rosyth)

Pete Wishart: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many Customs and Excise officers the Rosyth ferry terminal will employ; and what special measures will be included in their roles to prevent smuggling and the entry of illegal immigrants. [13938]

Mr. Boateng [holding answer 12 November 2001]: It is a matter for the Commissioners of HM Customs and Excise where and how they deploy their staff. They continually keep the position under review and will deploy staff based on the assessed level of risk and results from smuggling.

The Immigration Service rather than Customs and Excise are responsible for preventing the entry of illegal immigrants.

NHS Funding Review

Dr. Fox: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will publish the result of the review of the future funding of the NHS, commissioned from Derek Wanless, upon receipt of the report in April 2002. [15054]

Mr. Andrew Smith: Budget 2001 announced that Derek Wanless had been asked to carry out a review to examine the technological, demographic and medical trends over the next two decades that may affect the health service in the UK as a whole. I confirm that the Government intend to publish his report when it is completed.

Capital Modernisation Grant Scheme

Annabelle Ewing: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer to which nations and regions of the United Kingdom the Government capital modernisation grant scheme is applicable. [15067]

Mr. Andrew Smith: The capital modernisation fund applies to all parts of the United Kingdom for non-devolved functions and to England for devolved functions. Where money is allocated to English Departments, corresponding allocations are made to the devolved Administrations in Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland based on the usual Barnett formula. The amounts allocated to the devolved Administrations from the fund are set out in the table 1.12 of the Public Expenditure Statistical Analyses 2001–02.

Pre-Budget Report

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he will publish his pre-Budget report; and if he will make a statement. [14145]

Mr. Andrew Smith: The Chancellor will present the pre-Budget report on 27 November.

Illegal Food Imports

Norman Baker: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent assessment he has made of the adequacy of customs resources available to control the importation of illegal food. [15197]

Mr. Boateng: The lead responsibility for controls on imported food lies with the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (DEFRA) and agencies acting on its behalf. Customs has both provided support to these agencies and dealt with illicit meat detected as part of Customs normal control activities on imports. It is examining with DEFRA how it can best contribute to the overall Government response to the risks presented by illegal meat imports.

Refurbishment Project

Ms Walley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what (a) building and (b) refurbishment projects are planned by his Department in (i) the current year and (ii) the next financial year; and what the costs are of each project. [6523]

Mr. Andrew Smith: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Preseli Pembrokeshire (Mrs. Lawrence) on 5 May 2000, Official Report, column 231W.

Approved Pension Schemes (Tax Relief)

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much of the total cost of tax relief for approved pension schemes in the last financial year was provided to higher rate taxpayers. [14417]

Ruth Kelly: The estimates available for 2000–01 are as follows:

Cost of relief at 40 per cent. on pension contributions paid by employees and self-employed—£3.5 billion.

Cost of relief at 40 per cent. on pensions contributions paid by employers in respect of higher rate employees—£4.6 billion.

The employers' component is estimated on the basis that under present arrangements, employers' contributions are not taxable as a benefit in kind of the employees. The estimates assume that the proportion of total employers' contributions related to higher rate taxpayers is the same as that observed for employees' contributions. It is not possible to apportion the other elements of the total cost of tax relief between higher rate taxpayers and others.

Estimates are provisional, based on the Survey of Personal Incomes 1999–2000.

Departmental Secondments

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many secondees in his Department are paid by (a) their previous employer and (b) his Department. [14702]

Ruth Kelly: There are currently 20 people seconded to HM Treasury from outside the civil service. In each case the Treasury meets the salary cost by reimbursing the employer.

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is the term of secondment of each secondee in his Department; and if they are renewable. [14701]

Ruth Kelly: Details of the people seconded from outside the civil service are set out in the table:

Name	Start date	End date
Trevor Ashenden	3 April 2000	2 April 2002
Rachel Austin	24 September 2001	23 September 2003
Paul Bilton	13 August 2001	12 February 2003
Dee Bingham	24 September 2001	28 December 2001
Nick Bloom	24 September 2001	23 April 2002
Graeme Brown	26 February 2001	31 August 2002
Tony Burdon	3 September 2001	2 September 2002
Nick Buxton	5 June 2000	4 June 2002
Steven Cain	4 January 2000	3 January 2002
Nigel Fawcett	12 February 2001	30 November 2001
Paul Gregg	24 May 1999	23 May 2002
Robert Jennings	3 October 2001	2 April 2002
Paul Kennedy	15 November 1999	1 December 2001
Birone Lynch	23 April 2001	30 November 2002
Richard Maddison	26 October 2000	30 November 2002
Ciaran Martin	10 January 2000	9 January 2002
Simon Pink	6 August 2001	5 February 2003
Colin Stratton	8 January 2001	7 January 2003
David Watkins	10 January 2000	9 January 2002
Peter Westaway	1 September 2001	31 December 2001[1]

[1] Four days per week.

Secondments are not renewable but may be extended by mutual agreement.

All secondments in HM Treasury operate in accordance with Civil Service Commissioners Recruitment Code, which states that periods of secondment may be granted up to three years and extended to a period not exceeding five years.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Steel Industry

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what discussions she has had with Corus management in the last six months regarding the future of the steel industry; and if she will make a statement. [13728]

Mr. Wilson: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry met Corus management recently for a general discussion. The Government attach great importance to the steel industry and will maintain close contact with Corus and other key players in order to maintain its future.

Terrorist Threat

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the cost is of additional security arrangements at nuclear installations since 11 September; and what her calculation is of the annual future costs of these arrangements if they are continued. [13719]

Mr. Wilson: Robust security arrangements were already in place at civil nuclear installations before the events of 11 September. Security at nuclear sites is kept under regular review. The additional costs to the operators of increased security has not been collated centrally.

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what her policy is on the protection of (a) nuclear power stations and (b) road and rail bridges from terrorist attack. [13411]

Mr. Wilson: The Government's policy on the protection of nuclear power stations is to maintain an independent regulatory authority and provide it with regulatory powers. The Government's security regulator is the Office for Civil Nuclear Security (OCNS), which is responsible for setting security standards and enforcing compliance under the Nuclear Generating Stations (Security) Regulations 1996 made under the Health and Safety at Work, etc. Act 1974. OCNS ensures that levels of protection at nuclear power stations is adequate, taking into account the likely level of threat against them.

In respect of road and rail bridges, security policy is the responsibility of my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions.

Nuclear Energy

Mr. Sayeed: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the Government plans are with regard to nuclear energy; and if she will make a statement. [13885]

Mr. Wilson: Nuclear power currently produces about 25 per cent. of electricity generated in the UK, and with almost zero carbon emissions is contributing to the achievement of UK and international carbon emissions targets. Existing nuclear stations are expected to continue to contribute to our energy requirements, provided they meet the stringent safety and environmental standards currently required. The Cabinet Office's Performance and Innovation Unit review of energy policy announced by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister on 25 June is looking at the objectives of energy policy to develop a strategy that ensures current policy commitments are consistent with longer-term goals. To achieve its aim, the review is considering all sources of energy including nuclear. At this stage, there is no presumption of any change in nuclear industry policies. The review is due to report to my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister at the end of the year.

Sellafield

Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will list each of the buildings at Sellafield which have facility arrangements and particular safeguards provisions in place for the application of international safeguards; and, for each building or group of buildings, when the safeguards provisions came into effect. [14688]

Mr. Wilson: The European Commission has provided particular safeguards provisions for a total of 28 Material Balance Areas at the BNFL Sellafield facility. Facility Attachments for the two parts of the BNFL Sellafield facility (Special Nuclear Materials Store 9 and the THORP Plutonium Product Store) that the IAEA has designated for routine inspection have been drawn-up with the European Commission and the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA). Under Exemption 1.1 of the Code of Practice on Access to Government Information, disclosure of detailed information on nuclear material accountancy arrangements, including the description and location of Material Balance Areas, would harm national security and would not be in the public interest.

Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what is the annual cost of storing plutonium at Sellafield; and what proportion of the cost is recovered from overseas customers. [14693]

Mr. Wilson: This is a commercial matter for BNFL and its customers, under Exemption 13—Third Party's Commercial Confidences—of the Code of Practice on Access to Government Information.

Regional Development Agencies

Mr. Woodward: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what (a) financial investment and (b) other assistance the North-west Regional Development Agency has put into St. Helens in each of the last three years. [14718]

Alan Johnson: The North-west Development Agency has invested in a range of projects in St. Helens during the last three years. Expenditure breaks down as follows:

Year	£ million
1998–99	7.2
1999–2000	7.3
2000–01	8.9

Total investment during the current financial year is expected to be approximately £7.1 million. The agency also works closely with St. Helens metropolitan borough council and other partners to provide advice and guidance on economic development and regeneration issues.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

South Africa (AIDS)

Mr. Simon Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much financial aid the UK Government have allocated to help combat the AIDS epidemic in South Africa. [14455]

Clare Short: DFID is currently designing a new multi-sectoral HIV/AIDS programme, due to start next year, with an anticipated budget of £40 million over four years. Since 1994, the UK Government have allocated £19 million to help combat the HIV/AIDS epidemic in South Africa.

Mr. Simon Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps she has taken to help combat the AIDS epidemic in South Africa. [14454]

Clare Short: DFID's co-operation with South Africa includes support to the Government's National HIV/AIDS and STD programme, finance for a national condom social marketing programme and assistance to various NGOs to help promote behaviour change and improve HIV/AIDS-related services. We are now working with South African partners to design a substantial new initiative which will extend our support to include the education system and the private sector.

Democratic Republic of Congo

Dr. Tonge: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if she will make a statement on progress made by the UN panel in Zimbabwe on the report into resource exploitation in the Democratic Republic of Congo. [14401]

Clare Short: The final report of the UN panel into resource exploitation in the Democratic Republic of Congo has not yet been published. The report is due to be published in the near future. We are not aware of the contents of the final report.

Commonwealth Scholarships

Dr. Tonge: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many students from southern Sudan have been awarded Commonwealth scholarships in 2000–01. [14400]

Clare Short: Sudan is not a member of the Commonwealth and is not eligible for such awards.

Dr. Tonge: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many Commonwealth scholarships have been awarded to students who were nominated by bodies other than the student's own Government in 2000–01. [14399]

Clare Short: In 2000–01, 241 individuals took up places under the Commonwealth Scholarship and Fellowship plan, 134 of whom were nominated through agencies appointed by the governments of their respective countries. 107 were also nominated directly from their universities, except in the case of the Indian sub-continent, where nominations come from the national university authorities of the countries concerned.

World Trade Summit

Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development which non-Governmental organisations she has invited to accompany the United Kingdom delegation to the world trade negotiations in Doha. [14683]

Clare Short: The official UK delegation included representation from the Confederation of British Industry, the Trades Union Congress and the UK NGO Trade Network.

Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if she will set out the policies she plans to put forward at the world trade summit in Doha; and if she will place in the Library copies of all documents (a) submitted by the United Kingdom to the Doha summit and (b) distributed at Doha by (i) other countries and (ii) international bodies. [14694]

Clare Short: I advocated the launch of a 'Development Round' in which cuts are made to the tariffs and subsidies which act as barriers to the exports of developing countries, and in which the problems developing countries face in implementing WTO agreements are addressed.

I will have the documents submitted by the UK to the WTO Ministerial placed in the Library. However, I regret that the other documents requested are not available to me.

Uganda/Rwanda

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if she will make a statement on the outcome of the talks between the presidents of Uganda and Rwanda on Tuesday 6 November. [14534]

Clare Short: This was an important and fruitful meeting. The two Presidents signed an Understanding not to interfere in each other's affairs and to set up mechanisms to monitor this with the UK acting as Third Party. The Prime Minister briefly joined the talks.

Sex Trade (Africa)

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what actions the Government are taking to reduce the sex trade in young girls in (a) the Ivory Coast and (b) Africa. [14074]

Clare Short: The Government have signed the optional protocol to the Convention on the Rights of the Child that strengthens the protection it gives against the sale of children, and child prostitution, and also the new convention against transnational crime that includes a protocol on trafficking of women and children.

Our support for the work of the International Labour Organisation is focused on eliminating such worst forms of child labour.

We are working with European partners and African states on this issue. It was one of the most important issues tackled at the recent Africa-EU summit. The states in the region are making serious efforts to counter it.

Consultation Documents

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many consultation documents were issued by her Department and its predecessor office from (a) 15 October to 14 January, (b) 15 January to 14 April, (c) 15 April to 14 July and (d) 15 July to 14 October in each year from 1996. [12900]

Clare Short: The following consultation documents were issued by my Department:

One in the period 15 July 20 14 October 1997;

Two in the period 15 April to 14 July 1999;

Three in the period 15 October 1999 to 14 January 2000;

One in the period 15 January to 14 April 2000;

Two in the period 15 April to 14 July 2000;l

One in the period 15 October 2000 to 14 January 2001; and

One in the period 15 January to 14 April 2001.

Records of its predecessor office do not list consultation documents.

HEALTH

Cardiologists

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many qualified cardiologists there were in (a) 1996–97 and (b) 2000–01. [15144]

Mr. Hutton: The information requested is provided in the table. Data for 2000 are the latest available.

Hospital medical staff within the cardiology specialty, England at 30 September

Number

	1996	1997	1998	1999	2000
All staff	1,020	1,080	1,220	1,220	1,340
Consultants	390	400	460	470	550

Note:
Figures are rounded to the nearest ten.
Source:
Department of Health medical and dental workforce census

Nurses

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what is the baseline year for measuring the extra numbers of nurses recruited to meet the target contained in the National Plan. [15053]

Mr. Hutton: The baseline for the NHS Plan workforce targets is the 1999 workforce census.

Student Nurses

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what grants are available to student nurses on (a) diploma and (b) degree courses. [14141]

Mr. Hutton: National health service bursaries are available to those accepted onto NHS-funded pre-registration nurse training programmes at both diploma and degree levels.

Those undertaking the diploma-level qualification receive a non-means tested bursary (currently £5,305 (£6,232 in London)), while those on the degree-level programme receive a means tested bursary (current rate £2,098 (£2,578 in London)) and student loan. Degree-level students receive additional payments to take account of the longer length of academic year undertaken by health professional students and for both groups additional allowances are available to older students, single parents and others with dependants.

In addition the NHS meets all students' liability for a tuition fee contribution (currently £1,075) on their behalf, in full and without means testing.

With effect from September the basic bursaries were increased by 10.4 per cent. coupled with a 2.4 per cent. inflation increase in the additional allowances and other elements of the bursary scheme. This is the biggest increase since the introduction of the bursary more than 10 years ago.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what arrangements exist to help student nurses complete their courses in the event of financial hardship. [14142]

Mr. Hutton: National health service-funded students studying at degree-level who have taken out their full entitlement to a bursary and loan and who find themselves in financial difficulty can apply through their university/college for additional help in the form of hardship loans. Degree-level students who have exhausted all other sources of financial help may, in exceptional circumstances be eligible for an NHS hardship grant.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Education and Skills announced on 4 October 2001 that there would be a review of student funding policy, to include consideration of hardship support. The Department will consider the findings of the review in relation to NHS-funded students.

Health Care Professions (Discipline)

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list the bodies responsible for disciplinary matters in the (a) medical profession, (b) nursing profession and (c) other professions allied to medicine or associated with healthcare. [15049]

Mr. Hutton: Disciplinary matters in the national health service are dealt with by managers at a local level in the first instance. Some consultant doctors have a right of appeal to my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State against dismissal; the NHS Plan made a commitment to remove this. General practitioners can appeal to a Family Health Services Appeal Authority (FHSAA) against a decision that they have breached their terms of service. A separate NHS Tribunal decides if a GP can be suspended or disqualified. The NHS Tribunal will be abolished later this year and its powers transferred to health authorities, with a right of appeal to an independent FHSAA.

If a person's fitness to practise their profession is called into question, this will be dealt with by the regulatory body responsible for regulation of that profession.

The eight regulatory bodies responsible for regulation of healthcare professionals are:

General Medical Council

United Kingdom Central Council for Nursing, Midwifery and Health Visiting

Royal Pharmaceutical Society of Great Britain

General Dental Council

General Optical Council

General Osteopathic Council

General Chiropractic Council

Council for Professions Supplementary to Medicine

NHS Staff (Pay)

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to move away from annual pay rounds for health service staff. [15048]

Mr. Hutton: There are no current plans to move away from the annual pay round. We are keeping under review the possibility of longer-term pay deals where these would be of benefit to the national health service.

Regulatory Bodies

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list the regulatory bodies in the (a) NHS social care and (b) private health social care spheres. [15274]

Mr. Hutton: Local authorities are responsible for the regulation of residential care homes provided by national health service trusts. Both local authorities and health authorities are currently responsible for the regulation of private health social care services depending on whether personal care, nursing care or both are provided in such settings. This responsibility will be taken over by the National Care Standards Commission (NCSC) from 1 April 2002. NHS care homes providing nursing come within the scope of the Commission for Health Improvement (CHI). We expect the NCSC and CHI to work together to ensure that consistent standards are applied across these services.

Waiting Times

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which trusts have achieved (a) the six month, (b) the 12 month and (c) the 15 month in-patient waiting targets. [15063]

Mr. Hutton: The NHS Plan, published in July 2000, sets out our plans to reduce maximum in-patient waiting times from 18 months now to 15 months by March 2002. Maximum in-patient waiting times will continue to fall to six months by March 2005.

The trusts with no in-patients waiting over six, 12 and 15 months at 30 September 2001 are given in the tables, copies of which are in the Library.

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list in (a) rank and (b) alphabetical order of NHS trust in London region, the (i) proportion and (ii) number of patients waiting (A) over 12 months and (B) over 18 months or more for in-patient treatment (1) at the latest available date, (2) in March 1997 and (3) in June 1997. [15286]

Mr. Hutton: Since the start of the waiting list initiative in 1998 London has made very significant progress. In-patient waiting lists have fallen by a quarter from 216,000 to 159,000. This marks the largest reduction in the country.

Furthermore, since March 1998 the number of patients in London waiting over 12 months for treatment has reduced by nearly half from 17,500 to 9,500 and, before the end of March 2002 no patient should be waiting over 15 months for treatment.

The information requested has been placed in the Library.

Outcome Indicators

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what recent discussions he has had with European Health Ministers on ways to develop common sets of outcome indicators; [15060]

(2) what steps he is taking to develop clinical outcome measurements for (a) cancer, (b) coronary heart disease and (c) other conditions which allow comparison with European outcome indicators. [15058]

Mr. Hutton: The Department participates in the following initiatives involving the European Community which look at the quality of healthcare:

Under the auspices of the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) officials have been exploring the feasibility of developing common outcome indicators for some or all of the OECD's member countries.

The European Union Diabetes Indicator Project is developing and piloting a set of indicators for monitoring diabetes and outcomes across all EC countries.

Inter-consultant Referrals

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many patients there are waiting on out-patient lists as result of inter-consultant referrals. [15059]

Mr. Hutton: Data are not collected on the number of out-patients waiting as a result of inter-consultant referrals. Data are collected only on the number of first out-patient referrals from general practitioners.

Government Statistical Service

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which health Minister is responsible for checking statistics issued by the Government Statistical Service. [15183]

Mr. Hutton: Department of Health statistics are prepared by the Government Statistical Service and issued on the authority of the Director of Statistics.

NHS Leadership Agency

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will outline the senior management structure of the NHS Leadership Centre. [15278]

Mr. Hutton: The national health service Leadership Centre forms part of the NHS Modernisation Agency which was established in April 2001. Barbara Harris is the Director of the Leadership Centre and is accountable to David Fillingham, Director of the NHS Modernisation Agency who in turn is accountable to Nigel Crisp, Permanent Secretary of the Department of Health and Chief Executive of the NHS.

An interim senior management structure is in place for the Leadership Centre comprising staff from the pre-existing NHS Leadership Programme, and clinicians and managers on secondment from the NHS and the Department of Health. A permanent structure will be finalised early in 2002.

Operation Cancellations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what (a) geographical, (b) financial and (c) provider restrictions there are on the range of hospitals patients can choose to utilise, should their operations be cancelled at the last minute and not rescheduled within 28 days. [15050]

Mr. Hutton: From April 2002, when a patient's operation is cancelled by the hospital on the day of surgery for non-clinical reasons, the hospital will have to offer another binding date within a maximum of the next 28 days or fund the patient's treatment at the time and the hospital of the patient's choice. Patients may choose national health service or private treatment and the NHS will fund the operation. Trusts will met the cost from their existing budgets.

Ward Beds

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which trusts have not conformed to the standard of four beds per ward. [15047]

Mr. Hutton: There is no absolute standard that states that trusts must have a maximum of four beds in a ward bay. National Health Service Estates issues guidance on design of wards and departments, and this suggests a number of possible configurations, including multi-bed bays and single rooms. Health Building Note 4 states

"a preference is emerging for a four-bedded room with designated sanitary facilities for each bedroom"

but this does not rule out other configurations.

A variety of factors govern the layout of any particular ward, including patient preference and clinical caseload and mix. Whatever the layout, it is important that privacy and dignity are maintained. The Department has issued guidance in this area, including "Essence of Care" benchmarks which support staff in developing best practice in fundamental nursing care. Privacy and dignity is one of these benchmarks.

We have issued £40 million this year to help eliminate Nightingale wards for older people. This will involve refurbishment of existing wards to smaller bed bays, with a number of single rooms.

Team Bonuses Projects

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which trusts are operating pilot team bonuses projects. [15056]

Mr. Hutton: The following national health service trusts have been selected to take part in the first wave of NHS team bonus pilots, which was launched in October.

Location/Trust

Bedfordshire and Hertfordshire Ambulance Trust

Bradford City Primary Care Trust

Bradford Hospitals and Bradford South and West PCT

Calderstones Learning Disabilities Trust

Lincolnshire Ambulance Trust

Newham Primary Care Trust

Northumbria Healthcare NHS Trust

Norfolk and Norwich Health Care NHS Trust

South Devon Health Care NHS Trust.

A further wave of team bonus pilots will be announced shortly.

Private Hospitals

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) in each of the last five years, what has been the cost of publicly funded treatments for patients in (a) United Kingdom private hospitals and (b) overseas hospitals; [7220]

(2) how many patients have been treated in private hospitals, funded by the NHS, in each of the last five years. [7219]

Mr. Hutton [holding answer 15 October 2001]: The table sets out the total amount of national health service funds spent by health authorities in England outside the NHS. These figures include expenditure on treatment for NHS patients in private hospitals, local authorities and the voluntary sector.

£ billion

Year	Spend
1996–97	0.87
1997–98	1.08
1998–99	1.25
1999–2000	1.41
2000–01	1.47

Source:
Department of Health Common Information Core, Out-turn

United Kingdom residents are personally liable for costs of hospital and other medical treatment overseas unless there are reciprocal health agreements under which the costs are assumed by Governments. Since many of these agreements are on a cost-waiver basis, information on the cost of patients treated in overseas hospitals is not available.

A meaningful time series of data on the number of NHS patients treated in private hospitals is not available.

Press Release

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which Minister (a) considered and (b) approved the press release, reference 2001/0530. [15198]

Mr. Hutton: Ministers do not approve statistical press releases issued by the Government Statistical Service. They are issued on the authority of the Director of Statistics. As soon as the error was identified, a corrected version was issued by the Government Statistical Service.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Skills and IT Training

Ms Atherton: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what information her Department has evaluated regarding age discrimination in the provision of skills and IT training. [13170]

John Healey: The Government support a wide-ranging research programme to inform the development of their education and training policies, including those relating to participation in learning by older people. In addition to survey data and academic and action research, we consult with the providers of education and training, employers, trade unions and, of course, older learners themselves.

Following the launch of the Code of Practice on Age Diversity in Employment, the Government undertook a comprehensive evaluation programme. This involved an evaluation of the "employment cycle" including training and development within work; and a qualitative study into the effectiveness of three Government training programmes to help unemployed older people into work. The results from this research have been used to develop policy on combating age discrimination. For example, the evaluation of the Age Diversity Code led to an enhancement of the "Age Positive" campaign, which promotes the benefits of an age diverse workforce to employers; and it also helped to target the campaign effectively on small and medium sized employers.

School Buildings

Vera Baird: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment she has made of the impact of devolving financing of school buildings on head teachers' ability to carry out their core educational work. [13251]

Mr. Timms: School buildings that are well maintained and are suitable for delivering the curriculum are a key element supporting improvement in educational standards in schools. In January this year the Department published findings from an initial evaluation study, which supported this view.

Since school buildings are key to raising standards, we believe that head teachers and their governing bodies should be able to play a decisive role in the management of their school buildings. To help schools do this, consistent delegation of all revenue funded repairs to school buildings was introduced for all schools from April 1999, and each school has been allocated a devolved capital budget since April 2000. Most capital funding, for major work to repair, improve or expand school buildings is still managed by local authorities. But we believe giving schools their own capital budgets as well means that decisions about smaller works are improved, since they are taken by those who best know where their impact can increase standards. They also enable schools to influence local authority decisions about major capital investment.

Modern Apprenticeships

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will make a statement on the cost of (a) advanced modern apprenticeships and (b) foundation modern apprenticeships in the last 12 months. [14221]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information requested is not available. Training and Enterprise Councils were not required to supply such breakdowns. However, the total amount spent by TECs in the 12 months ending 31 March 2001 on work based training for young people, which included advanced modern apprenticeships, foundation modern apprenticeships, lifeskills training and other training, was £811 million.

Skills Shortages

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will make a statement on skills shortages in the Buckingham constituency. [14208]

Mr. Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will make a statement on skills shortages in the Wycombe constituency. [14874]

John Healey: Data on skills shortages are not collected on a constituency basis by the Department. However, the Employers Skill Survey 2001, which was funded by the Department, provides estimates within Local Learning and Skills Council boundaries. In this survey, skill shortage vacancies were reported by five per cent. of employers in the Oxfordshire, Milton Keynes and Buckinghamshire Local Learning and Skills Council area. This compares to a national average of four per cent. and a high of eight per cent.

Pre-school Education

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the cost is of the effective provision of pre-school education project. [14098]

Mr. Timms: The total cost of the effective provision of pre-school education research project, as agreed in the project's contract, for the period 1 September 1996 to 31 August 2003 is £1,858,419.

Public Service Agreements

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will make a statement on the public service agreement target for costs of contracted inspections in (a) 1999–2000 and (b) 2000–01. [14102]

Mr. Timms: These are matters for HM Chief Inspector of Schools and I have therefore asked Mike Tomlinson to write to the hon. Member and to place a copy of his letter in the Library.

Mentors/Support Units

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the cost is in 2001–02 of the learning mentors and learning support units. [14105]

Mr. Timms: We have allocated just over £100 million to support learning mentors and learning support units in Excellence in Cities and Excellence Clusters this financial year. An additional £21 million has been allocated for learning support units outside the areas covered by Excellence in Cities and Excellence Clusters. Schools are free to use their other sources of funding to pay for additional learning mentors and learning support units.

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the cost is in 2001–02 of her Department's support for the national mentoring network. [14084]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: My Department's general financial support to the national mentoring network in 2001–02 is £600,000. This funding is used to promote and develop high quality volunteer mentoring programmes to help young people. In addition the Department is providing the national mentoring network with £30,000 a year for two years specifically to co-ordinate the membership of Excellence in Cities Learning Mentors and to develop relevant networks and activities for them.

Literacy/Numeracy

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will make a statement on the (a) number and (b) cost of family literacy and numeracy initiatives in the last 12 months. [14219]

John Healey: Family literacy and numeracy is a key element of Skills for Life, the national strategy for adult literacy and numeracy, which was launched in March 2001 by the Prime Minister. This is a national initiative to enable parents and their children to improve their literacy and numeracy skills, learning together.

Funding of £7 million through the Standards Fund will reach up to 20,000 families in 2001–02. An additional sum of £10 million will also be made available in 2001–02 to widen access to family literacy and numeracy programmes to reach at least 64,000 parents and 28,000 children.

Mr. Sayeed: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what her estimate is of the number of children who are not educationally sub-normal and who left school in each of the last five years unable to (a) read and write and (b) undertake simple arithmetic; and if she will make a statement. [14069]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The number and percentage of 15 year olds achieving, and not achieving, a GCSE pass (A*- G) in English or Mathematics in the last five years are listed in the following tables.

Number and percentage of pupils achieving A-G in maths or English*

	Percentage		Number
	English	Maths	English	Maths
1996–97	89	87	522,221	510,486
1997–98	89	87	511,936	500,432
1998–99	90	89	522,874	517,955
1999–2000	91	90	528,157	522,353
2000–01[1]	91	90	622,246	615,408

[1] 2001 figures are based on provisional data

Number and percentage of pupils not achieving A-G in maths or English*

	Percentage		Number
	English	Maths	English	Maths
1996–97	11	13	64,544	76,279
1997–98	11	13	63,273	74,777
1998–99	10	11	58,097	63,906
1999–2000	9	10	52,235	58,039
2000–01[1]	9	10	54,340	60,378

[1] 2001 figures are based on provisional data

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment she has made of literacy problems in England in the last three years; and what progress she has made with tackling illiteracy in that period. [13516]

John Healey [holding answer 14 November 2001]: Lord Moser's 1999 Report, "A Fresh Start", notes that perhaps as many as 7 million people (roughly one in five adults) in England have difficulties with functional literacy and numeracy. We are commissioning a new survey next year to provide an up-to-date assessment of the scale of basic skills need in England.

The Government are fully committed to helping those who do not have adequate literacy skills. For adults, my right hon. Friend the Prime Minster launched Skills for Life, the national strategy for improving adult literacy and numeracy in England on 1 March 2001. New national standards, a core curriculum for literacy and numeracy, teacher training and national tests in literacy and numeracy are all now available nationally after a successful pilot. A national promotional campaign is currently boosting demand. We are working across Government and with key partner organisations to ensure that all those who can help adults with literacy and numeracy skills needs are able to do so. Our target is that 750,000 adults improve their literacy and numeracy by 2004. More than 70,000 adults have already gained literacy and numeracy qualifications since April 2001.

We are also committed to raising literacy standards for all children. The national literacy strategy, introduced in all primary schools in September 1998, is raising literacy standards for all primary aged pupils. This year 75 per cent. of 11 year olds achieved Level 4 or above in the Key Stage 2 English tests, a 10 per cent. point improvement since 1998. Literacy standards are also rising consistently at Key Stage 1.

Learndirect

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will make a statement on the cost of the Learndirect development centres. [14220]

John Healey: We made available £44 million in 1999–2000 and £74 million in 2000–01 to support the development and operation of Ufi Ltd. This money was used by Ufi to support a wide range of developmental activities including the Learndirect development centres.

Ofsted

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will make a statement on the performance target of (a) transferring staff from local authorities to Ofsted and (b) providing initial training by September. [14067]

Mr. Timms: This is a matter for Ofsted to comment on and I have asked HM Chief Inspector of Schools, Mike Tomlinson, to write to the hon. Gentleman and to place a copy of his letter in the Library.

School Funding

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what the cost is in 2001–02 of the ethnic minority and traveller achievement grant; [14088]

(2) what the cost is in 2001–02 of expenditure through the standards fund to raise standards in literacy and numeracy; [14097]

(3) what the cost is of the early years training and development standards fund in 2001–02; [14099]

(4) what the cost is in 2001–02 of the social inclusion: pupil support standards fund; [14104]

(5) what the cost is of standards fund grants in England in 2001–02 for (a) improving adult pupil ratios in reception classes, (b) the supported early retirement scheme for heads, (c) administrative support in small schools, (d) performance management and threshold assessment training, (e) the working environment fund, (f) the small school support fund, (g) teaching assistants, (h) support for parent governor representatives, (i) teaching incentives for new maths and science teachers, (j) education and health partnerships, (k) local authority support for lifelong learning, (l) protecting and expanding local education authority music services, (m) school security and (n) the learning mentors and learning support units programme; [14200]

(6) what the cost is of standards fund grants in England in 2001–02 for (a) gifted and talented children, (b) the access fund for 16 to 19-year-olds, (c) social inclusion pupil support, drug prevention and youth service, (d) special educational needs, (e) study support, (f) playing for success, (g) family literacy and family numeracy, (h) year of literacy and numeracy booster classes, (i) summer literacy and numeracy skills, (j) early excellence centres, (k) early years training and development, (l) specialist and beacon schools, (m) advanced skills teachers, (n) initial teacher training schools, (o) the new national curriculum, (p) qualifications, (q) school leadership and (r) school improvement. [14201]

Mr. Timms: The cost of these grants in 2001–02 are shown in the table. Administrative support in small schools and the small school support fund have combined into the small schools fund. The working environment fund was for 1999–2000 and 2000–01 only. Support for parent governor representatives is included in the School Improvement Grant for 2001–02. Local authority support for lifelong learning is funded through the Learning and Skills Council for 2001–02. Access funding for 16 to 19-year-olds of £10 million has been made available by the Government for 2001–02, but is no longer part of the Standards Fund.

£ million

Grant name	Total allocation	DfES contribution	LEA contribution
Ethnic minority achievement	153.9	81.6	72.4
Traveller children achievement	15.6	8.3	7.4
National literacy strategy	74.8	51.4	23.4
National numeracy strategy	74.8	51.4	23.5
Key stage 3	63.2	38.4	24.8
Literacy and numeracy summer schools	22.0	11.7	10.3
Family literacy and numeracy	6.9	3.6	3.2
Early years training and development	13.5	7.2	6.3
Social inclusion: pupil support	161.9	85.8	76.1
Adult:Pupil ratios in reception classes	27.8	14.7	13.1
Supported early retirement scheme for heads	9.2	4.9	4.3

£ million

Grant name	Total allocation	DfES contribution	LEA contribution
Small schools fund	78.4	41.6	36.9
Performance management and threshold assessment	28.0	28.0	0.0
Teaching assistants	197.2	104.5	92.7
Teacher recruitment measures (golden hellos)	0.5	0.5	0.0
Education health partnerships	5.7	5.7	0.0
LEA music services	50.0	50.0	0.0
School security	21.5	11.4	10.1
Learning support units	21.0	21.0	0.0
Excellence in cities: gifted and talented children, learning support units and learning mentors	127.8	127.8	0.0
Gifted and talented summer schools	3.8	3.8	0.0
Drug prevention	12.5	9.0	3.5
Youth service	2.0	1.1	0.9
Special educational needs	73.0	38.7	34.3
Study support	67.1	41.2	25.9
Playing for success	4.6	2.4	2.1
Booster classes	46.0	46.0	0.0
Early excellence centre	4.1	4.1	0.0
Specialist schools	79.1	79.1	0.0
Beacon schools	30.6	30.6	0.0
Advanced skills teachers	29.0	15.4	13.6
Training schools	4.4	4.4	0.0
National curriculum	17.9	9.5	8.4
Qualifications	2.9	1.6	1.4
School leadership	26.2	21.6	4.6
School improvement, including support for parent governor representatives	206.9	110.5	96.3

Mr. Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what plans she has to review the national schools funding formula. [15046]

Mr. Timms: There is no national formula for funding schools, and there are no plans to introduce one. We confirmed in the Green Paper "Modernising Local Government Finance", published in September 2000, that the allocation of funds between schools would remain a local responsibility.

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will make a statement on the cost of the (a) Standards Fund for further education and (b) first 15 beacon colleges. [14250]

Margaret Hodge: The standards fund for further education is £160 million in 2001–02—twice the amount available in 2000–01. Every beacon college, and there are now 18, is eligible for £50,000 from the standards fund to help them promote and disseminate examples of their good practice.

Departmental Name Change

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the cost has been to public funds of re-branding her Department to accommodate its name change following the last general election. [14435]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given on 11 July 2001, Official Report, column 554w.

Local Government Finance

Peter Bradley: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will list the amount of each item of funding outside the revenue support grant which her Department has made available to (a) Telford and the Wrekin council and (b) Shropshire county council in 2001–02 to date. [14475]

Mr. Timms: The tables show the Department's allocated grants to Telford and Wrekin and Shropshire local education authorities in 2001–02.

Telford and Wrekin local education authority

	£
Standards Fund Grant	4,523,820
Teachers Pay Reform Grant	1,122,193
Nursery Education Grant (3-year-olds)	1,700,000
Early Years Development and Childcare Partnership Grant	575,952
School Standards Grant	2,313,000
Education Budget Support Grant	310,000
Capital	7,810,000

Shropshire local education authority

	£
Standards Fund Grant	6,164,397
Teachers Pay Reform Grant	1,798,619
Nursery Education Grant (3 Year Olds)	888,000
Early Years Development and Childcare Partnership Grant	766,232
School Standards Grant	3,588,000
Education Budget Support Grant	100,000
Capital	7,353,000

Key Stage 2 (Cheating)

Mr. Chaytor: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what discussions she has had with the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority with respect to their procedures relating to allegations of cheating in Key Stage 2. [14502]

Mr. Timms: I have received a report on incidents of malpractice in this year's National Curriculum Assessment Tests and their outcomes. I am pleased to note that the majority of reported incidents were minor, with 24 being sufficiently serious to warrant the schools' results being adjusted. Of these, two were whole school annulments, seven were partial annulments in one or more subjects and 15 were cases where individual pupils results were adjusted.

Student Finance

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills for what reasons student loans are provided at a lower than commercial rate of interest. [14535]

Margaret Hodge: The costs of higher education are shared between the state, parents and graduates, given the clear evidence that the graduates benefit financially from their higher education. Student loans are provided at a zero real rate of interest as part of the Government's contribution to the costs of higher education.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the average annual (a) subsistence and (b) study costs were of taking a degree at (i) Oxford, (ii) Cambridge, (iii) London and (iv) other English universities in the most recent year for which figures are available. [14536]

Margaret Hodge: The Department's latest student income and expenditure survey of a representative sample of higher education students shows the following figures for students' reported expenditure in the academic year 1998–99:

Average expenditure of full-time undergraduate and PGCE students, 1998–99

£

	London	Other England
Living costs[1]	4,109	4,094
Accommodation costs[2]	1,534	1,279
Participation costs[3]	824	780
Expenditure on children	65	48

[1] Includes food, household goods, personal items such as toiletries, clothes and tobacco, entertainment including alcohol, non-course related travel and other general expenditure.
[2] Includes rent, mortgage, retainer fee paid over the vacation, council tax, household insurance and utility bills.
[3] Includes students' personal contribution to fees, books, equipment and stationery, travel to and from college and childcare costs.
Source:
Changing student finances: income, expenditure and the take-up of student loans among full- and part-time higher education students in 1998–99, by Claire Callender and Martin Kemp, DfEE Research report 213, December 2000

Figures are not available for Cambridge and Oxford universities separately from 'Other England'. Cambridge university was not among the institutions selected to take part in the survey, and the sample of students at Oxford university was too small to provide reliable data.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills when she will publish the Student Funding review. [14532]

Margaret Hodge: The outcome of the Student Funding review will be announced next year. We will be consulting on proposals for change before any decisions are made.

Terrorism

Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what guidance has been issued by her Department to (a) local education authorities and (b) teachers in respect of discussion of (i) the global campaign against terrorism and (ii) the use of military force in Afghanistan. [14687]

Mr. Timms: Guidance was recently made available to local authorities and local education authorities relating to the events of September 11 and the subsequent conflict. It can be accessed from the home page of the DfES website and on Teachernet. The guidance does not specifically inform teachers how to address discussion of the global campaign and the use of military force in Afghanistan. Its purpose is to help teachers allay the fears of pupils and to offer examples of good practice to ensure the emotional and physical well being of both pupils and staff. It recognises that schools have done a great deal already and that heads and teachers have the professionalism and expertise to deal with issues as they arise. It reminds them of existing sources of help and encourages a local response and co-operation with local agencies. The guidance is work-in-progress and will be regularly updated in response to comments received and changing circumstances.

Freedom of Information Act

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills on what date her Department established a working group of officials to prepare her Department for the implementation of the Freedom of Information Act 2000; and on what dates this committee has met since it was set up. [14766]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department's strategy paper for implementation of the Freedom of Information Act includes provision for a forum of officials to help in formulating policy and guidance especially involving their own areas of work. The intention is to establish the forum early in the new year.

In the meantime, the Department has been active in preparing for implementation by developing and commencing a training and awareness programme, setting up a dedicated intranet site, alerting our non-departmental public bodies to their legal responsibilities, and holding discussions with key stakeholders on the development of the publication scheme.

Individual Learning Accounts

Mr. Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will publish the correspondence she received from training providers offering views on the pilot programmes of individual learning accounts. [14581]

John Healey [holding answer 13 November 2001]: No. The Department only publishes correspondence if it has invited stakeholders to specifically write or feed back on an issue and that the information supplied will be placed in the public domain. Correspondents with the Department would not expect to see the contents of their correspondence published, except in these circumstances. Such a process was not undertaken in 1998, 1999 or 2000 prior to the national framework, nor in relation to the pilot or development work.

Any relevant material will be made public through the forthcoming Public Accounts Committee hearing on ILAs.

Mr. Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what advice she has received from the police in the last three months on the extent of fraud in connection with individual learning accounts. [14582]

John Healey [holding answer 13 October 2001]: My Department has received no direct advice from the police on the extent of fraud in connection with ILAs. At the end of October, the police were carrying out formal investigations into four learning providers (although only three of these have claimed funds from the Department) and are making preliminary inquiries into a fifth learning provider.

My Department's special investigations unit is currently conducting enquiries into a further nine learning providers which may potentially become police cases and will be considering, with the police, any lessons learned.

Mr. Caton: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment she has made of the number of jobs that will be lost as a result of the suspension of the individual learning accounts programme from 7 December, in England. [12394]

John Healey: I appreciate the business concerns expressed by some learning providers. However, we have given more than six weeks' notice of the suspension of the ILA programme. Eligible learning from existing ILA holders booked in advance with the ILA Centre by 7 December will attract the discounts from the scheme and that learning can start within a period of up to six months later. This will give learning providers a period of time in which to adjust their business plans.

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what level of fraud involving individual learning accounts has been detected in the London borough of Sutton. [12525]

John Healey: Complaints received from individuals about alleged fraudulent activities are not recorded by geographical area.

Alistair Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills, pursuant to her answer of 30 October 2001, Official Report, column 618W, on Individual Learning Accounts, when she first received complaints from individuals alleging that providers had claimed individual learning account incentives without their knowledge. [12289]

John Healey [holding answer 2 November 2001]: The first ILA provider to have been suspended because of a number of such complaints was on 25 June 2001. On 11 June 2001 the Department received the first letter in relation to this particular case, about incentives claimed without the knowledge of the account holder. From July of this year the Department received an increasing number of similar complaints from individuals and local Trading Standards Officers.

Mr. Chaytor: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will make it her policy to provide funding to support the programmes of community-based learning providers where these are affected by the decision to suspend individual learning accounts. [13245]

John Healey [holding answer 14 November 2001]: We have supported five community-based ILA pilot projects of which two were in Liverpool and one each in Sheffield, London, and Kent. These were originally due to end in June but were extended to end on 28 December 2001.

We have given more than six weeks notice of the suspension of the ILA programme. Eligible learning booked by existing ILA holders with the ILA Centre by 7 December will attract the discounts from the scheme as long as the start date of the learning is within six months of the registration. It is likely that the impact on the pilots of the decision to suspend ILAs will be small but officials are meeting with the local providers concerned.

Mr. Chaytor: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what discussions she has had with representatives of community-based learning providers in respect of the impact on their provision of the suspension of individual learning accounts. [13246]

John Healey [holding answer 14 November 2001]: During the recent debate in the House on 6 November 2001, I said I would look into the effect on some organisations of the withdrawal of the ILA programme. My officials are now arranging meetings with those most affected.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has had no discussions with representatives of community-based learning providers although officials met the five community based organisations who are running ILA pilots yesterday.

Nursery Places

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what progress is being made in ensuring a nursery place is available for every three and four-year-old whose parents require it. [14725]

Mr. Timms: Since September 1998 all four-year-olds have been able to access a free, part-time early education place.

Around 62 per cent. of all three-year-olds currently have access to a free, part-time, early education place. We expect this to rise to 66 per cent. by March 2002, with every three-year-old, whose parents want one, entitled to a place by September 2004.

Teachers (Early Retirement)

Mr. Caton: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what percentage of requests for ill health early retirement under the Teachers' Pensions Regulations were agreed on application in each of the last three years; and what percentage of appeals against refusal were successful over the same period. [14724]

Mr. Timms: Applications for ill health benefits are considered on the medical evidence provided in support of the application. There is no time limit on appeals and they are often therefore associated with the submission of further medical evidence. The percentages of all recommendations leading to acceptance in the last three years are:

	Percentage
April 1998-March 1999	79
April 1999-March 2000	78
April 2000-March 2001	75

Separate figures for appeals are only available from 2000–01. Of the 47 per cent. of teachers who appealed against the rejection of their application, 65 per cent. were ultimately awarded ill-health retirement benefits.

Asset Management Plans

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills, pursuant to her answer of 26 October 2001, Official Report, column 468W, on asset management plans, when in November the results will be published. [13112]

Mr. Timms: The Department will be publishing the information at the end of November.

Pupil Achievement

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will make a statement on the achievements of pupils of comparable ability in areas of (a) selective secondary education and (b) comprehensive secondary education. [10074]

Mr. Timms: GCSE results (based on grades and average point scores) for 15-year-olds in grammar schools are, broadly speaking, similar to the top 25 per cent. in comprehensive schools. 25 per cent. reflects the proportion of pupils typically admitted by grammar schools in fully selective LEAs.

Skills Councils

Alistair Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) when she will invite applications from existing national training organisations to become trail-blazer sector skills councils; [10930]

(2) what criteria she will use in approving the trail-blazer sector skills councils; [10928]

(3) what plans she has to issue provisional licences to trail-blazer sector skills councils. [10929]

John Healey [holding answer 29 October 2001]: Trail-blazer sector skills councils will provide an early assessment of the impact of influential employer-led bodies in sectors with an employment base of economic or strategic significance. Up to six trail-blazers will be chosen to offer a mix of sectors with a range of different needs and experiences. The trail-blazers will be announced by mid December and will receive provisional licences. In addition to meeting the criteria for being licensed as a Sector Skills Council, trail-blazers will have the capacity to become operational in the spring of 2002.

I have written to the existing National Training Organisations and other sector based employer groups about expressing an interest in becoming a trail-blazer.

When the proposed trail-blazer SSCs are approved, my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Education and Skills will issue licences on behalf of the UK lifelong learning Ministers.

Free School Dinners

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will rank the top 30 local education authorities according to the percentage of day pupils eligible for free school dinners. [14070]

Mr. Timms: The data requested on the percentage of day pupils eligible for free school dinners in England for January 2000 have been placed in the House of Commons Library. Data for January 2001 will be placed in the Library as soon as they are available.

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what percentage of school children eligible for free school dinners attend schools in each region of England and Wales. [14071]

Mr. Timms: Information on school meal arrangements for maintained nursery and primary, maintained secondary and special schools by local education authority area in England for January 2000 has been placed in the House of Commons Library. Data for January 2001 will be placed in the Library as soon as they are available.

For information on school meals in Wales, I refer my hon. Friend to the National Assembly for Wales.

Local Education (Leeds)

Mr. Mudie: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will list the contracts and their financial value awarded by (a) her Department and (b) the local education authorities to Capita. [13735]

Mr. Timms: Any contracts between local education authorities and Capita are a matter between the parties concerned and not the Department.

The Department has contracts with Capita for the administration of the Teachers' Pension Scheme, individual learning accounts, implementation of the Connexions Card and provision of general management consultancy support.

The financial value of individual contracts between the Department and Capita is commercial in confidence.

Higher Education Students

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if she will reconsider the criteria relating to the award of bursaries to higher education students so that students living in Excellence in Cities areas and attending further education colleges outside that location are not excluded from eligibility. [13778]

Margaret Hodge: Eligibility for Opportunity Bursaries depends on whether a student is attending one of the schools or further education colleges covered by the Excellence Challenge programme. The programme is being piloted over the next three years in Excellence in Cities (EiC) Phase 1 and 2 areas and Education Action Zones (EAZ). Local EiC Partnerships and EAZ Forums have determined whether to include further education colleges located outside these areas within their Excellence Challenge plans.

There is £93 million available within the Access and Hardship Funds in 2001–02, over four times the amount provided in 1997–98. Higher education institutions are encouraged to use part of this money to provide bursaries for students who do not meet the criteria for an Opportunity Bursary.

Political Subjects

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what guidance she gives to teachers and head teachers to maintain political impartiality when controversial political subjects are discussed in school; [13395]

(2) if she will make a statement about the wearing of political badges by teachers and head teachers in school. [13394]

Mr. Timms: The law guards against biased or unbalanced teaching. Teachers must take "reasonably practicable steps" to ensure that, where political or controversial issues are brought to pupils' attention, they are offered a balanced presentation of opposing views (Section 407 of the Education Act 1996).

Practical advice on how to teach controversial issues has been sent to all schools (Citizenship at Key Stage 3 Teachers Guide). We trust the professionalism of teachers to work within the framework of the school's values in relation to their expressing political opinions in class.

There is no other legislation or guidance issued from the Department which covers the wearing of political badges by school staff. The head teacher of a school has day-to-day responsibility for the conduct of the school and of staff and we would expect them to take a common sense view when dealing with staff whose attire indicates a particular political view. Where it is the head teacher who is visibly demonstrating political allegiance, it would be for the governing body, which is ultimately responsible for the direction of the school, to intervene, again taking a common sense view and taking account of local circumstances.

Section 11 Funding

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much section 11 funding is allocated to each of the London borough authorities. [14942]

Mr. Timms: The education element of the Home Office's Section 11 Grant scheme ceased on 31 March 1999. It was replaced with the Ethnic Minority Achievement Grant, which is administered by my Department. For 2001–02 £153,914 is available nationally to improve attainment of minority ethnic pupils. The amounts allocated to London boroughs are set out in the table.

LEA	Ethnic minority achievement grant
Corporation of London	107,415
Camden	2,931,900
Greenwich	1,912,505
Hackney	4,299,222
Hammersmith and Fulham	1,202,577
Islington	2,529,175
Kensington and Chelsea	1,164,506
Lambeth	3,402,055
Lewisham	2,698,457
Southwark	2,053,869
Tower Hamlets	8,044,136
Wandsworth	2,332,179
Westminster	2,136,538
Barking	634,870
Barnet	1,913,572
Bexley	273,969
Brent	2,991,961
Bromley	112,808
Croydon	2,107,095
Ealing	3,701,735
Enfield	2,476,533
Haringey	3,599,985
Harrow	1,263,821
Havering	109,926
Hillingdon	792,240
Hounslow	2,360,138
Kingston-upon-Thames	312,690
Merton	989,608
Newham	1,410,781
Redbridge	2,417,966
Richmond-upon-Thames	142,621
Sutton	229,067
Waltham Forest	2,557,579

Note:
All figures include both DfES grant and LEA contribution

Class Sizes

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what action her Department is taking to monitor the number of classes with over 30 pupils in Key Stage 1 and to deal with such cases. [15009]

Mr. Timms: Infant class size counts currently take place in January, as part of the Annual Schools Census, and September. From this September local education authorities and schools have been responsible for ensuring that infant classes for five, six, and seven-year-olds comply with the School Standards and Framework Act 1998 requirement to contain 30 or fewer children except in certain limited circumstances.

In January 1998, 29 per cent. of all infants were in classes of 31 or more. Figures published this morning show that in September 2001 after taking out the permitted exceptions allowed by law there are now less than 0.1 per cent. of the 63,000 infant classes that have extra children.

Special Needs Pupils

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment she has made of the impact of special needs pupils on primary school SATs results for (a) England and (b) Shropshire. [14791]

Mr. Timms: The Department does not collect separate data on the performance of pupils with SEN and it is not therefore possible to assess their impact on the National Curriculum Assessment Tests.

We have made no specific assessment of the position of pupils with SEN on primary school National Curriculum Assessment Test results in Shropshire. The percentage of pupils with SEN in maintained primary schools in that LEA was 21.1 per cent. in January 2000, compared to the corresponding national figure of 21.6 per cent.

The Department established an SEN Data Strategy Group which, earlier this year, recommended a number of improvements to the collection of data on pupils with SEN. We are now considering how best these recommendations could be implemented, including developing appropriate data collection software and taking the views of schools and LEAs.

Primary School Therapists

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the waiting time is and how many are on the waiting list for (a) behavioural therapists and (b) speech therapists for primary school children in (a) England and (b) Shropshire. [14790]

Mr. Timms: This information is not collected centrally.

Under the Standards Fund 2001–02, support is available to local education authorities to enhance speech and language therapy services in conjunction with the NHS and the voluntary sector. This support will be extended to other therapies in the 2002–03 round.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Government Office for London

Mr. Rosindell: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many people were employed by the Government office for London in (a) May 2000, (b) November 2000, (c) May 2001 and (d) November 2001. [15044]

Mrs. Roche: The Government office for London employed approximately 375 people in May 2000, 270 in November 2000, 245 in May 2001 and 255 in November 2001.

UK Online Project

Ms Buck: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will list the allocations this year to each London local authority area under the UK online project. [13661]

Dr. Whitehead: I have been asked to reply.

As part of the wider drive to get the UK online, some £25 million has been made available to support 25 local authority e-government pathfinders for 2001–02, in a programme of innovation and shared learning. Five of these pathfinders are London boroughs and their individual allocations are set out in the table.

£

Local authority	Amount of funding
London borough of Brent	1,050,000
London borough of Bromley	1,550,000
London borough of Camden	1,810,000
London borough of Newham	1,150,000
London borough of Wandsworth	883,000

Written Answers

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will issue guidance to Departments to require that answers to written questions which are replied to by letter during a parliamentary recess are sent for publication in the Official Report for the following sitting day. [12073]

Mr. Robin Cook: I have been asked to reply.

I welcome the hon. Lady's suggestion. My office has today issued guidance to all Whitehall parliamentary clerks setting out new standing instructions.

This guidance states that when a written question is replied to by letter during a recess a copy of the parliamentary question and the reply must be sent to Hansard, in order for it to appear in the Official Report the next sitting day.

SCOTLAND

Energy Efficiency Week

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what action her Department took in recognition of Energy Efficiency Week. [11515]

Mrs. Liddell: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Minister for the Environment on 30 October 2001, Official Report, column 592W.

Scottish Estuary Forums

Mr. Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what support is provided by the Crown Estate to each of the Scottish estuary forums. [11547]

Mrs. Liddell: The Crown Estate provides funding and other support to each of the Scottish estuary forums. In addition, it has one member of staff on secondment to the Scottish Coastal Forum of which it is a member and participates in the management groups of the Tay, Forth, Cromarty Firth, Clyde and Solway Forums.

Parliamentary Questions

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland when she will reply to the questions tabled by the hon. Member for Edinburgh, West on 29 October. [13872]

Mrs. Liddell: I replied to the hon. Member on 14 November 2001, Official Report, columns 747–48W.

Electoral Registration (Ethnic Minorities)

Mr. Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what steps she took prior to 1 July to encourage members of ethnic minorities in Scotland to register to vote. [14327]

Mrs. Liddell: The Scotland Office's publicity campaign in February this year operated in tandem with the Home Office's campaign on new electoral arrangements. It included a number of initiatives which specifically targeted people from ethnic minority communities across the United Kingdom. In particular, notices and material were placed in UK-wide publications and other media specifically aimed at ethnic minority groups, and it was arranged for the organisation's Operation Black Vote to use its database of ethnic minority contact points throughout the country, including Scotland, to distribute information leaflets.

Cohesion Report

Mr. Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what response she is making to the Scottish Executive's discussion paper on Scottish economic development in light of the cohesion report. [14406]

Mrs. Liddell: The paper to which my hon. Friend refers is one of a series of discussion papers produced by the Scottish Executive Economist Group.

It will be a matter for my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry to consider whether to respond on the policy issues raised in this particular paper.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Islamic Society of Britain

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of links between the Islamic Society of Britain and (a) Muslim fundamentalist extremists and (b) anti-Zionist activism. [14842]

Angela Eagle [holding answer 14 November 2001]: We are not aware of any links that give rise to any criminal or security concerns, but if the hon. Member has any evidence to the contrary he should pass it to the police.

Asylum Seekers

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department under what circumstances an immigrant or asylum seeker is able to have visits from family members abroad. [10111]

Angela Eagle: The Immigration Rules make provision for visits to the United Kingdom. To qualify for entry as a visitor, applicants must demonstrate that they are genuinely seeking entry as a visitor for the period stated, that they have sufficient funds to support and accommodate themselves and any dependants without working or recourse to public funds, and that they will leave the United Kingdom at the end of the visit. The maximum period allowed for a visit is six months.

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people seeking asylum have been dispersed to other areas of the UK from London in each of the last three years. [14730]

Angela Eagle: The information is not available in the form requested.

Asylum seekers were not dispersed centrally before April 2000.

Information recorded by the National Asylum Support Service (NASS) shows that as at the end of July 2001, 28,130[1,2] asylum seekers, including dependants, were being supported in NASS accommodation outside of London after dispersal.

The number of these asylum seekers who were in London prior to dispersal is not available. NASS currently does not hold statistics on the location of asylum seekers before they are dispersed by NASS. Statistics are only available on the areas that asylum seekers are dispersed to.

[1] Figure rounded to the nearest 10

[2] Cases which have had their support terminated are excluded from this figure

Denzil Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many applications for political asylum in the United Kingdom were made in the three months to (a) 1 October 2001 and (b) 1 October 2000. [14310]

Angela Eagle: The table provides the information requested for the latest three months for which data are available, and for the corresponding period in 2000.

Applications for asylum to the United Kingdom, excluding dependants, May-July 2000 and May-July 2001[1,2]

Month	Applications
2000
May	6,725
June	6,545
July	6,870
Total May–July	20,140
2001
May	5,290
June	5,300
July	5,975
Total May–July	16,570

[1] All data rounded to nearest 5. The monthly data shown may not sum to three-monthly totals due to rounding.
[2] Provisional

Information on asylum applications and initial decisions is published regularly in the annual statistical bulletin "Asylum Statistics United Kingdom", a copy of which is available in the Library of the House, and from the Research Developments and Statistics (RDS) website http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html. Data for the period July to September 2001 will be published on 30 November. Revised monthly data for 2000 are available at http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs/asylumrev2k.pdf.

Mr. Jon Owen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what assessment he has made of how many (a) refugees and (b) those with special immigration status in each of the last five years have medical qualifications; [14313]

(2) what plans he has to fast-track (a) refugees and (b) those with special immigration status with medical qualifications through English language classes; [14316]

(3) what assessment he has made of the cost of a fast-track system to teach (a) refugees and (b) those with special immigration status with medical qualifications to speak English. [14317]

Angela Eagle: We are aware that a number of the refugees who come to the United Kingdom are highly skilled and many have professional experience in the medical sector. However, asylum applications are judged solely on the basis of whether the applicant is genuinely fleeing persecution. Information about professional skills which are not relevant to the asylum claim, are not therefore collected on arrival.

We have no current plans to fast-track refugees or those with exceptional leave to remain, with medical qualifications, through English language classes. But we want to be able to identify the types of intervention that will assist people to gain employment quickly in their field of expertise, if they are given the right to remain in the United Kingdom.

There is close co-operation between the Home Office and the Department of Health and other agencies to look at how we can do more to identify people with medical qualifications at an early stage. For example, over the last year, the Department of Health has worked with the Refugee Council to set up a voluntary refugee doctor database, which now contains the details of over 400 refugee doctors. In addition, the British Medical Association has been encouraged to prepare guidelines for clinical attachments for overseas and refugee doctors. This will help to provide valuable experience of the national health service and help preparations for language and clinical skill tests.

Mr. Woodward: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many asylum seekers, previously under care of local authorities while under 18 years of age, upon reaching 18 have been dispersed to each of the NASS-designated dispersal areas. [14717]

Angela Eagle [holding answer 15 November 2001]: The information requested is not available. The figures recorded by National Asylum Support Service (NASS) for the dispersal of asylum seekers do not show the number of asylum seekers who were previously treated as an Unaccompanied Asylum Seeking Child (UASC).

Under the Children (Leaving Care) Act 2000, local authorities continue to have duties and powers in respect of UASCs who have been accommodated under section 20 of the Children Act 1989 until they are at least 18 and to assist them until they are at least 21. The Government's policy of dispersing asylum seekers would have made these duties difficult to implement. It has therefore been agreed that with effect from 1 October 2001, except in exceptional circumstances, NASS will not seek to disperse those young people who have been accommodated by the local authority under section 20 of the Children Act 1989 and who reach the age of 18 without a final decision being reached on their asylum claim.

Mr. Woodward: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, pursuant to his answer to the hon. Member for Hull, North (Mr. McNamara), 3 July 2001, Official Report, column 100W, on asylum seekers, what assessment he has made of the reasons for the increase between 1999 and 2000 of refusal of asylum applications on the basis of non-compliance. [11974]

Angela Eagle [holding answer 5 November 2001]: A higher proportion of applications were refused on grounds of non-compliance in 1999 and 2000 than had previously been the case. The increase was due partly to the stricter enforcement of the 10 day deadline for return of the Statement of Evidence Form (SEF) and partly to administrative problems which led to a backlog of correspondence within the Immigration and Nationality Directorate and some flawed refusals as a consequence. We have made a number of changes over the past 12 months to improve our administrative processes and reduce flawed refusals. These include the introduction of a dedicated PO Box for the return of completed SEFs, and adjustments to internal procedures to ensure that the receipt of SEFs is registered on a database.

We have also taken steps to improve asylum applicants' understanding of the asylum process and of the importance of meeting the time limit. We have done this by simplifying the explanatory leaflet which is sent out with the SEF, and by making it available in the 33 languages spoken by most asylum seekers in the United Kingdom. The SEF form has also been simplified. Non-governmental organisations were consulted about these improvements.

Al-Muhajiroun

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has to proscribe al-Muhajiroun; and if he will make a statement. [12160]

Mr. Blunkett: The Government are well aware of the statements made by the al-Muhajiroun organisation and any suggestion that these statements breach the law will be thoroughly investigated. To qualify for proscription under the Terrorism Act 2000, I must be satisfied in accordance with section 3 of the Act that an organisation is "concerned in terrorism". The Government are keeping under close review whether the activities of al-Muhajiroun bring that organisation within the requirements for proscription set out in section 3 and, if the conclusion is that this organisation is concerned in terrorism, I will give full consideration as to whether it is appropriate to recommend their proscription to Parliament.

Revenue Support

Peter Bradley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the amount of each item of funding outside the revenue support grant which his Department has made available to (a) Telford and the Wrekin council and (b) Shropshire county council in 2001–02 to date. [14476]

Angela Eagle: I will write to my hon. Friend and place a copy of my letter in the Library.

Landmark/Inn on the Park

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what issues were raised in the representations received by (a) him and (b) NASS in relation to (i) Landmark and (ii) Inn on the Park in Everton, Liverpool. [14457]

Angela Eagle: Issues raised in representations received by Home Office Ministers and the National Asylum Support Service (NASS) in relation to the Landmark and Inn on the Park buildings have included the quality of the accommodation, concern over public order and allegations about the treatment of asylum seekers.

Full consideration has been given to all the issues raised in representations, and the allegations surrounding the treatment of asylum seekers housed by NASS in the Landmark building have been thoroughly investigated by the police and by the Head of NASS's Investigations section. Those investigations and an on-going programme of contract management control by NASS, have indicated areas for improvement in the provision of Landmark's delivery of their contract and these either have been or are being dealt with. NASS continues to monitor all of its providers and where contractual obligations are not met the ultimate sanction is termination of the contract.

Correspondence

Mr. Colman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the hon. Member for Putney will receive a substantive reply to his letter of 21 September, for which he received an acknowledgement on 7 November, on behalf of his constituent Mrs. Olga Brown. [14370]

Angela Eagle [holding answer 14 November 2001]: I wrote to my hon. Friend on 15 November 2001. I am sorry I did not reply sooner.

Ports of Entry

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people seeking entry into the UK at ports of entry were refused and immediately removed in 2000. [13927]

Angela Eagle: 38,275 persons seeking entry into the United Kingdom at ports of entry were refused leave to enter and subsequently removed in 2000. Information about the interval between arrival and eventual removal is not collected centrally, and could only be established by reference to individual records. It is therefore not possible to say how many were removed immediately.

Immigration Law

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) men and (b) women were held in custody under UK immigration law, on 1 November, broken down by nationality. [13925]

Angela Eagle: The requested information on persons detained under Immigration Act powers as at 30 June 2001 is given in the table. The table excludes persons detained at Oakington Reception Centre, for which gender information is not available, but includes persons detained in prison establishments under dual Immigration Act and other powers.

More recent information is not currently available. We plan to publish data on immigration detention on 30 November on the Home Office Research Development and Statistics Directorate website http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html, relating to persons detained as at 30 September.

Immigration Act detainees as at 30 June 2001 [1,2]

Nationality	Male detainees	Female detainees
Afghanistan	25	—
Albania	70	*
Algeria	75	—
Angola	10	—
Bangladesh	45	—
Cameroon	15	*
China, People's Republic of	65	5
Colombia	15	*
Czech Republic	15	—
Gambia	10	*
Ghana	30	5
India	100	*
Iran	15	—
Iraq	15	—
Ivory Coast	10	—
Jamaica	105	5
Kenya	15	5
Latvia	10	—
Lithuania	20	—
Moldova	10	*
Morocco	15	—
Nigeria	80	5
Pakistan	115	*
Poland	15	*
Romania	30	*
Russia	15	—
South Africa	10	5
Sri Lanka	65	—
Turkey	35	—
Uganda	15	—
Ukraine	40	*
Yugoslavia, Federal Republic of	120	5
Zimbabwe	85	10
Other nationalities	130	10
Total	1,440	55

[1] Figures rounded to the nearest five, with * = one or two, and exclude persons detained in Oakington Reception Centre and police cells. Figures may not sum due to rounding
[2] Figures include 245 persons detained in prison establishments under dual Immigration Act and other powers
[3] Other nationalities with five or fewer detainees

Rats

Jane Griffiths: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what powers he has to regulate the transport of caged rats; and if he will make a statement. [R] [14068]

Angela Eagle: The Home Office has responsibility for the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986. Under section 21 of that Act, a Code of Practice for the Housing and Care of Animals in Designated Breeding Establishments is in place, which covers best practice for the care of laboratory animals during transport. Failure to comply with this Code of Practice does not, however, render a person liable to criminal or civil proceedings.

The Welfare of Animals (Transport) Order 1997 applies to all vertebrates transported for commercial purposes, and under the Protection of Animals Act 1911 it is an offence to convey a captive or domestic animal in such a way as to cause it unnecessary suffering. These pieces of legislation are the responsibility of the Secretary of State for the Department of Environment, Food and Rural Affairs.

Afghanistan (Media Guidelines)

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidance he has given to the UK news media on the handling of sensitive security issues during the conflict in Afghanistan. [13675]

Mr. Blunkett: There are well-established arrangements with the news media for the discussion of hoaxes, false alarms, and the handling of public safety information. These are co-ordinated by the Civil Contingencies Secretariat of the Cabinet Office, and have recently covered suspected anthrax incidents.

Additionally, No. 10 spoke informally to selected broadcasters about the potential dangers of broadcasting material issued by bin Laden.

Antisocial Behaviour Orders

Mr. Stinchcombe: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what higher court judicial decisions have been made as to the admissibility of hearsay evidence in proceedings seeking Antisocial Behaviour Orders; and if he will make a statement. [12027]

Mr. Denham: In R. (on the application of McCann and Others) v. Manchester Crown court, the Court of Appeal held that applications for Antisocial Behaviour Orders are made in civil proceedings, and that therefore the civil standard of proof applied (although that standard is a flexible one) and hearsay evidence was admissible.

Departmental Spending (Deprived Areas)

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much of the expenditure by his Department in each of the years (a) 1996–97, (b) 1997–98, (c) 1998–99, (d) 1999–2000, (e) 2000–01, (f) 2001–02 and (g) 2002–03 (estimated) was allocated with reference to the index of multiple deprivation; which expenditure programmes are allocated with respect to this index and other measures of relative geographic deprivation; and if he will make a statement. [8941]

Mr. Blunkett [holding answer 25 October 2001]: In 2001–02, £2.9 million for a scheme to improve the security of local shops in deprived areas has been allocated by reference both to the indices of deprivation compiled by the Department of Transport, Local Government and the Regions and to the Welsh index of deprivation. We plan to allocate a further £5.8 million under the scheme by reference to those indices in 2002–03. Police grant and probation area funding are also allocated on the basis of formulas that take account of relative deprivation. In the current financial year, police grant is expected to be approximately £3,995 million and grant to local probation boards approximately £500 million.

Mobile Phones

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent discussions he has had with (a) telecoms companies and (b) mobile phone manufacturers concerning the redesigning of mobile phones to make inadvertent 999 calls less likely. [10391]

Mr. Denham: The Police Information Technology Organisation (PITO) and the Association of Chief Police Officers (ACPO) have been working together to address the issue of inadvertent silent 999 calls from mobile phones.

British Telecom and Cable and Wireless carry all emergency 999–112 calls. Following a successful trial with the Metropolitan police, ACPO have arranged for British Telecom and Cable and Wireless to route all silent 999 calls for England, Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland through a switch that engages a recorded message. This message states that the emergency services have been called, but that no voice connection has been detected, and that the number "5" on the keypad should be pressed twice if the emergency services are required.

This service came into effect nationally on 1 October 2001 and will remove silent calls that were previously routed to police command and control rooms throughout the country. These accounted for approximately 20 per cent. of all 999 calls and their removal will improve the efficiency of control rooms and their ability to deal with genuine emergency calls.

Oftel are currently working with manufacturers to improve the design of mobile phones to reduce problems. These changes should be introduced from 2003 onwards. Interim solutions are being sought from manufacturers to provide specific key protection around the "9" and "1" keys to prevent accidental activation.

Communications Data Access

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if it is his policy to allow law enforcement agencies access to all communications data of every UK telephone and Internet user; and if he will make a statement. [15186]

Mr. Blunkett: Access to communications data may be sought only for specified purposes (including, for example, investigation of crime) under the Data Protection Act 1998 or the Telecommunications Act 1984. It may additionally be supplied in obedience to court orders.

Chapter II of Part I of The Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 (RIPA) will provide a more regulated structure for access requests and create a system of safeguards.

A test of necessity (for example in the interests of national security or for the purpose of preventing or detecting crime) must be met before any communications data are obtained under Chapter II. An authorising officer must also consider the conduct involved in obtaining the communications data to be proportionate to what it seeks to achieve.

The use of powers to access data will be subject to oversight by the Interception Commissioner.

Security Appeals Tribunal

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he expects to respond to the decision of the National Security Appeals Tribunal, dated 1 October, in respect of the hon. Member for Lewes (Norman Baker) and MI5; and if he will make a statement. [15276]

Mr. Blunkett: I expect by the end of November to have decided on a course of action in response to the determination of the National Security Panel of the Information Tribunal on the appeal by the hon. Member for Lewes against a Data Protection Act 1998 national security exemption certificate covering the security service.

Protection of Badgers Act

Ian Lucas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he plans to change the way in which offences committed under the Protection of Badgers Act 1992 are recorded by the Criminal Records Office. [12692]

Mr. Denham: In common with all other offence provisions which carry the possibility of imprisonment, convictions, cautions, reprimands and warnings under sections 1(1) and (3), 2 and 3 of the Protection of Badgers Act 1992 are recordable by police forces on the Police National Computer. These include offences of wilfully killing, injuring or taking a badger, cruelly ill-treating a badger, and intentionally or recklessly interfering with a badger sett. There are no plans to change these arrangements.

Firearms Act

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has to set a minimum age requirement for (a) possession of and (b) use of weapons under (i) section 1 of the Firearms Act 1968 and (ii) section 2 of the Firearms Act 1968. [7247]

Mr. Denham [holding answer 15 October 2001]: As indicated in the Government's response to the Home Affairs Select Committee's (HAC) second report on Controls over Firearms, we do not believe there is a need for a minimum age limit for the possession and use of a firearm providing that young people below a certain age are under proper adult supervision. The present legal position is complex, and different age limits apply to different types of firearms according to the circumstances in which they are used and the degree of supervision. We have therefore asked the Firearms Consultative Committee to look at this issue in the context of the Government's response to the HAC and to advise on the detailed implications of any changes.

National Asylum Support Service

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what facilities he has to conduct independent investigations into the National Asylum Support Service's monitoring of the contracts it has awarded in relation to accommodation and support for asylum seekers. [10824]

Angela Eagle: The work of the contract management staff of the National Asylum Support Service (NASS) is overseen by the Head of Procurement who reports to the Director, NASS. The service is an integral part of the Immigration and Nationality Directorate of the Home Office and its work is subject to the normal management, audit and complaints procedures of that Directorate.

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many complaints were submitted to the National Asylum Support Service in its recent investigation into management and support service at Landmark and Inn on the Park in Everton, Liverpool. [10989]

Angela Eagle: Twelve such complaints from asylum seekers were received during the investigation.

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he will publish the results of his Department's recent investigation into management and support services at Landmark and Inn on the Park in Everton, Liverpool. [10974]

Angela Eagle: The National Asylum Support Service (NASS) investigation was internal and there are no plans to publish a report.

Terrorism Act

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what arrangements he has made for the review of the Terrorism Act 2000; and how observations from (a) interested persons and (b) organisations may be submitted for consideration. [15789]

Mr. Blunkett: I am pleased to say that Lord Carlile of Berriew QC has accepted my invitation to carry out the annual review of the Terrorism Act 2000.

Written observations about the operation of the Act should be submitted to Lord Carlile, c/o 6 Floor, West Wing, Home Office, 50 Queen Anne's Gate, London SW1H 9AT by 31 December 2001.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Public-private Partnerships

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will list the projects in her Department which have been considered as potential public-private partnerships since 1997 which have not been undertaken because the public sector comparator had a lower net present value than the public-private partnership proposed; and if she will make a statement. [13452]

Dr. Howells: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Chief Secretary to the Treasury on 13 November 2001, Official Report, column 607W.

There have been no projects considered by my Department and the Royal Parks Agency as potential public-private partnerships which have not been undertaken because the public sector comparator had a lower net present value than the public-private partnership proposed.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Recycling

10. Angela Watkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will estimate the level of usage of recycled materials as a proportion of the volume collected in the last 12 months. [13073]

Mr. Meacher: In 1999–2000, 11 per cent. of municipal waste in England and Wales was collected for recycling or composting. The Department does not hold information on the level of usage of materials as a proportion of the amounts collected for recycling.

37. Mr. Bill O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans she has to involve the public in decisions on waste recycling and disposal; and if she will make a statement. [13101]

Mr. Meacher: Both waste recycling and disposal are covered by statutory performance standards set using the Best Value regime which requires that local authorities' services are subject to regular reviews which must involve consultation with local people.

Fodder

15. Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will make a statement on the cost and availability of fodder. [13079]

Mr. Morley: The Arthur Rank Centre, RSPCA, ADAS and industry bodies have been examining the prices and availability of fodder and grazing throughout the country. The foot and mouth disease culls and movement restrictions have resulted in some farmers having fodder and bedding in surplus and others having an unexpected need for it. The Department has been discussing the work of charities in brokering fodder supplies between farmers. My right hon. Friend the Minister for Rural Affairs was pleased to announce on 6 November a further £2 million to help address the problems farmers and rural communities are facing as a result of foot and mouth disease restrictions. The money will be largely channelled as matched funding through the Addington Trust Fund and other charities to help them meet these needs.

Energy Efficiency

16. Mr. Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will make a statement on her policy to promote energy efficiency in UK companies. [13080]

Mr. Meacher: The Government are committed to improving energy efficiency as a highly cost-effective way of achieving our climate change goals. The Energy Efficiency Commitment will, from next April, provide a substantial boost to domestic energy efficiency activity. The Energy Saving Trust and Carbon Trust receive over £66 million from the Department to promote domestic, business and public sector energy efficiency and the take-up of low carbon technology. The climate change levy, and its associated voluntary agreements, are an important spur to business energy efficiency.

30. Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment she has made of the contribution that more efficient use of energy can make in the reduction of greenhouse gas emissions. [13094]

Mr. Meacher: Energy efficiency outside the transport sector is expected to contribute more than 50 per cent. of the CO_2 reductions outlined in the Government's climate change programme and about 45 per cent. of the total greenhouse gas reductions. These figures increase to around 75 per cent. and 65 per cent. respectively if more efficient use of energy in transport is included. Assessments made by my Department for the PIU Energy Review covering the period up to 2050 suggest that there is substantial scope for further cost-effective energy efficiency savings across the economy.

Climate Change

17. Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will make a statement on the progress of the climate change negotiations at Marrakesh. [13081]

Margaret Beckett: UK Ministers, officials and experts played a leading role in the negotiations in Marrakesh. We believe the agreement reached should now pave the way for ratification and entry into force of the Kyoto Protocol. The UK intends to ratify, along with our EU partners, in time to allow entry into force before the World Summit on Sustainable Development next September.

Waste Management

18. Mr. Lloyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what structures are being put in place to help local authorities achieve their statutory waste targets. [13082]

Mr. Meacher: We are helping councils deliver their Statutory Performance Standards for recycling and composting through major extra funding from the Spending Review 2000. By 2003–04 revenue support will have risen by £1.1 billion over current provision; there is £220 million for PFI waste schemes over the spending review period; and there is a £140 million ring-fenced fund for waste and recycling over the next two years. £50 million of New Opportunities Fund moneys will also be available over the next two years to support community sector work on recycling in the UK.

The Government have also established the Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP), a company with £40 million funding to help to overcome market barriers to recycling. It will operate across all waste streams to foster markets for recycled materials.

We view the statutory targets we have set for local authority recycling and composting of household waste as a major priority. Where authorities fail to deliver those targets the Secretary of State has powers to intervene under Section 15 of the Local Government Act 1999.

A protocol has been agreed with the Local Government Association setting out the principles under which these powers will be used. These could range from inviting the authority to submit an action plan setting out how it proposed to meet the statutory recycling targets by a given deadline, to at the other end of the scale, removing the management of the waste function from the authority completely and asking another agent to conduct the waste service on their behalf.

Genetically Modified Organisms

19. Mr. Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what progress has been made in implementing the new EU directive on deliberate releases of GMOs. [13083]

Mr. Meacher: Consultations with stakeholders on the broad issues raised by the new Directive were completed in England on 26 October. The Department is currently analysing the 43 responses received, and will make this analysis and copies of the responses available to the public and to Parliament (unless specifically asked to treat responses in confidence).

We will consult further on draft implementing regulations early in the new year, with a view to laying them before Parliament by June 2002.

The Scottish Executive, the National Assembly for Wales and the Department of Environment for Northern Ireland will make separate implementing regulations on issues for which they have devolved powers.

Diversification

20. Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what financial and technical assistance is offered by her Department to farmers who wish to diversify their operations; and if she will make a statement. [13084]

Alun Michael: The Department provides grants for farmers in England for good diversification projects through the Rural Enterprise Scheme, and skills training to support those projects through the Vocational Training Scheme, both of which are part of the England Rural Development Programme. Funds are also available from the Regional Development Agencies to renovate redundant farm buildings. Technical assistance is provided by the Rural Development Service and through the Farm Business Advice Service.

35. Charlotte Atkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what financial assistance is available to hill farmers to diversify their businesses. [13099]

Alun Michael: The Rural Enterprise Scheme (RES), which is a part of the England Rural Development Programme, provides grants for all types of farmers, including hill farmers, seeking to pursue good diversification projects. The RES has a total budget of £152 million between 2001 and 2006. Financial assistance is also available for planning consultancy advice for viable diversification projects under the RES. Other funding is available from Regional Development Agencies in the form of Redundant Building Grant. Additional measures, such as the Vocational Training Scheme and the Farm Business Advice Service, also offer relevant support.

Flood Prevention

21. Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much was spent by central Government, local government and agencies on flood defences and flood prevention in (a) 1997–98 and (b) 2000–01; and what the estimated spending is for 2001–02. [13085]

Mr. Morley: Flood defence is provided by the Environment Agency, local authorities and internal drainage boards. The table shows expenditure by the Environment Agency in England, by English local authorities and estimated expenditure by internal drainage boards.

	1997–98	2000–01
Environment Agency	255.2	270.4
Local authorities	13.0	[1]20.1
Internal Drainage Boards	[2]40.0	[2]41.0
Total	308.2	331.5

[1] Provisional
[2] Estimate

It is not possible to provide a fully broken down estimate of expenditure in 2001–02 but DEFRA grant will increase by some £26 million and levies to the Environment Agency increased by some £19 million indicating that overall expenditure could increase by some £45 million on the 2000–01 figure.

Mr. Sayeed: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans she has to implement the recommendations of the National Audit Office to increase levels of investment in capital and maintenance in preparation for floods; and if she will make a statement. [13882]

Mr. Morley: Operational responsibility for flood alleviation measures rests with local operating authorities, namely the Environment Agency, local authorities and Internal Drainage Boards. This Department provides funding on capital works and the provision available for flood and coastal defence has already been increased from last year's outturn of £66 million to £114 million in 2003–04. The operating authorities' maintenance and operational programmes are funded largely through local government funding arrangements. Currently some £264 million a year is provided through Standard Spending Assessments which are largely supported by central grant and non-domestic rate income. Further increase in both funding streams will be considered in the Spending Review 2002 process.

Sewage

23. Vera Baird: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what her policy is on the placing of combined sewage overflow tanks; and if she will make a statement. [13087]

Mr. Meacher: The siting of combined sewer overflow tanks is subject to local authority planning development control.

Local Farm Produce

24. Mr. Pickthall: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions she has had with large retailers about developing more local sourcing of farm produce. [13088]

Alun Michael: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has not had any recent meetings with large scale retailers about local sourcing of farm produce. However, Food from Britain, whom we grant aid, have been working with the major supermarkets to encourage them to source more local produce and we are aware that there has been a considerable expansion in local sourcing in recent years.

CHP

25. Mr. Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps the Government are taking to ensure that the target for combined heat and power is reached by 2010; and what assessment has been made of the impact upon capacity of the introduction of the new electricity trading arrangements in March 2001. [13089]

Mr. Meacher: The Department is developing, in close collaboration with other Departments, a draft CHP strategy, which will set out the measures needed to achieve the Government's target of at least 10,000 MW of installed CHP electrical capacity by 2010. I expect to issue the draft strategy for consultation around the turn of the year.

The recent report by the Office of Gas and Electricity Markets, 'Report to DTI on the Review of the Initial Impact of NETA on Smaller Generators', issued in August, indicated that the export of power from CHP has reduced by around 60 per cent. since the introduction of NETA. The Government have issued a response to Ofgem's review and through this are consulting on a number of specific points to address the issues that CHP generators face under NETA.

Kyoto Protocol

26. Mr. Jack: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will make a statement on those countries who are signatories to the Kyoto agreement and whose carbon dioxide emissions are increasing. [13090]

Mr. Meacher: As of 28 September, there were 84 signatories to the Kyoto Protocol. Nearly 40 of these are developed countries with emissions reduction or limitation targets. Carbon dioxide emissions in about two thirds of these countries increased between 1990 and 1999, which is the most recent year for which data are available, but total emissions from developed countries (including the US) were about the same as in 1990.

The Protocol gives developed countries considerable flexibility as to how they meet their Kyoto targets, including using international emissions trading and projects to reduce emissions in other countries to supplement domestic action. The Protocol also allows countries to count increased carbon uptake by forests and soils (so-called "sinks"), and to make reductions across a basket of six greenhouse gases, not just carbon dioxide.

BSE

28. Clive Efford: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what tests for BSE are carried out on livestock destined for human consumption; and what plans she has to review this in the future. [13092]

Mr. Morley: The EU surveillance programme for TSE's requires testing for BSE in all cattle over 30 months destined for human consumption. In the UK, this applies only to a small number of animals belonging to Beef Assurance Scheme herds which can be sold for human consumption up to 42 months old. These cattle have been tested since January this year.

The EU programme has been extended to cattle aged 24–30 months which have died on farm or in transit and are casualties. A small proportion of casualties will be eligible for human consumption and arrangements are being made for them to be tested.

In line with EU requirements, arrangements are also being made to test 20,000 sheep aged over 18 months.

The Commission will be reviewing the testing programme in the light of results from member states.

Online Services

29. Mr. Allan: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment she has made of her Department's progress in meeting the Government's targets for making all its services available online. [13093]

Mr. Morley: Regular progress reports are made to the Office of the e-Envoy. The latest figures submitted in October show that 53 per cent. of DEFRA's services are available electronically.

Rights of Way

31. Helen Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what progress she has made in identifying and mapping public rights of way under the Countryside and Rights of Way Act 2000. [13095]

Alun Michael: The Countryside and Rights of Way Act 2000 provides for a cut-off date in 25 years time for the recording of certain rights of way on definitive maps and the extinguishment of those not so recorded by that date. In order to ensure that the definitive maps are as complete as possible by this date, we have asked the Countryside Agency to consider ways of co-ordinating the efforts of user groups in researching any, as yet, undiscovered rights of way.

The Countryside Agency is currently in phase 1 of this project, which will assess the scale of the task. The contractors (made up of a consortium led by Cheltenham and Gloucester College of Higher Education) will be consulting all interested parties on the best way of supporting the research and on providing information and training. The aim is that by spring 2002 the Agency will have sufficient information to put in place a mechanism for managing grant aid to provide support and training and for undertaking research.

The Countryside and Rights of Way Act 2000 does not include a separate requirement to identify and map public rights of way. Definitive maps of public rights of way were first required to be produced under the National Parks and Access to the Countryside Act, 1949. They are the responsibility of the local highway authority who (under the Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981) have a duty to keep the definitive map and statement under continuous review and to make such modifications as they deem necessary.

Foot and Mouth

32. Mr. Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when she expects to receive the reports of the independent inquiries into foot and mouth disease; and if she will make a statement. [13096]

Mr. Morley: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to the hon. Member for mid-Bedfordshire (Mr. Sayeed) on 1 November 2001, Official Report, column 804W.

34. Mr. Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will make a statement on the extent of the foot and mouth epidemic. [13098]

Mr. Morley: The last confirmed case of foot and mouth disease was on 30 September. We have made progress on lifting infected area restrictions and most counties are now classified as foot and mouth disease free. However, there is no room for complacency and we may yet identify isolated pockets of remaining infection as our testing programme proceeds. Any relaxation of restrictions must be proportionate to the risks involved.

36. Michael Fabricant: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will make a statement on the report by Devon county council on the Government's handling of the foot and mouth outbreak. [13100]

Mr. Morley: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by my noble Friend the Under-Secretary on 31 October 2001, Official Report, column 1416 in another place.

Mrs. Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what evidence she has collated recently of meat from animals vaccinated against foot and mouth disease entering the UK from (a) France, (b) Holland, (c) other EU countries, (d) Argentina and (e) South Africa. [14057]

Mr. Morley: None. Within the EU the Netherlands was the only country that vaccinated against foot and mouth disease (FMD). However, the vaccinated animals were subsequently slaughtered and meat from them was not exported.

The importation into the UK of fresh meat derived from FMD susceptible animals originating in Argentina is currently prohibited. Prior to the prohibition, meat from vaccinated animals could be imported from Argentina, but had to be deboned and fully matured so as to remove any risk of the live FMD virus being present. Following outbreaks of FMD in South Africa, the UK prohibited imports of fresh meat with effect from January 2001. Following an improvement in the FMD situation in South Africa, and appropriate guarantees from the South African authorities, this prohibition was lifted in June 2001 in line with EC law. This meant that meat originating in certain areas of South Africa which are FMD free can be imported into the UK. Imports of meat from vaccinated animals in South Africa is not permitted; however, meat imports must still be deboned and matured.

End of Life Vehicle Directive

33. Barbara Follett: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans her Department has to assist local authorities with the implementation of the European end of life vehicle directive. [13097]

Mr. Meacher: Local authorities are not intended to have any direct responsibility for implementing the European end of life directive.

The directive requires producers to be responsible for all or a significant part of the costs of take-back and treatment of end of life vehicles from 2007. These arrangements should help to ease the situation for local authorities in dealing with abandoned vehicles. It has not yet been decided how take-back and treatment of end of life vehicles between 2002 and 2007 will be funded.

Foxhunting

14. Mr. Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when she will publish the veterinary risk assessment report commissioned by her into the resumption of foxhunting. [13078]

Mr. Morley: The Veterinary Risk Assessment has been placed in the Library of the House and published on the DEFRA website http://www.defra.gov.uk/.

The Government issued a document this morning on proposals to replace the current blanket ban on hunting in England and Wales. The proposed new arrangements permit certain forms of hunting with dogs to recommence under a permit issued by a Divisional Veterinary Manager, in foot and mouth disease free counties. All forms of hunting will remain prohibited in foot and mouth disease infected areas as does the hunting of deer in the whole of England and Wales.

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans she has to lift the suspension on fox hunting with dogs; and if she will make a statement. [14403]

Alun Michael: The Veterinary Risk Assessment has been placed in the Library of the House and published on the DEFRA website http://www.defra.gov.uk/.

The Government issued a document this morning on proposals to replace the current blanket ban on hunting in England and Wales. The proposed new arrangements permit certain forms of hunting with dogs to recommence under a permit issued by a Divisional Veterinary Manager, in foot and mouth disease free counties. All forms of hunting will remain prohibited in foot and mouth disease infected areas as does the hunting of deer in the whole of England and Wales.

Sheep Identification

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans she has for an individual identification system for sheep. [13086]

Mr. Morley: If we are to free up movements of sheep for the spring we must put in place arrangements that will enable us to trace sheep movements in the event that there is a resurgence of foot and mouth disease. We have had initial discussions with industry representatives, which covered individual identification. We are now examining a number of points on which they expressed concern. Officials will be considering these further with them, before coming to a final decision.

I am aware that industry would prefer to move straight towards electronic identification. Electronic identification also remains the Department's objective but it would take time to implement and would not deal with immediate problems.

Bee Diseases

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will meet representatives of Bee Diseases Insurance Ltd. to discuss measures to control bee diseases. [12757]

Mr. Morley: The Department held its annual meeting with the beekeeping sector on 8 November. Bee Diseases Insurance Ltd. was among the organisations that sent representatives. The meeting discussed a range of issues affecting the sector, including measures to control bee diseases.

Fuel Poverty

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will include an aim to deal with fuel poverty within her Department's aims and objectives. [11790]

Mr. Meacher [holding answer 1 November 2001]: The Department's overall aim is sustainable development, and its responsibilities are broad, encompassing the food chain and farming, environmental protection and the well-being of the economy and communities in rural areas. Reference to each and every specific policy area is therefore not written into the Department's general aim and objectives. I remain fully committed however, to implementation of the Government's fuel poverty strategy, the final version of which will be published shortly, and which will provide the framework for ending the blight of fuel poverty for vulnerable households by 2010. The Department's overall objectives enhance this priority.

Recycling (Refrigerators)

Mr. Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate she has made of the number of (a) refrigerators and (b) deep-freezers local authorities will have to store in the years (i) 2001–02 and (ii) 2002–03, before they can be recycled. [12034]

Mr. Meacher: It has been estimated that up to 3 million domestic refrigeration units are disposed of in the UK each year. The number that will require storage prior to recycling depends on the construction of suitable facilities for the recovery of ozone depleting substances. Some of these could be operational as early as spring 2002. The Department estimates that up to 750,000 units will need to be stored in 2001–02. Many of these will be stored by, or on behalf of, local authorities. It is more difficult to estimate storage requirements for 2002–03, although the requirement for storage will decrease as recovery and recycling facilities become operational. It is estimated that of the 750,000 units stored, 540,000 would be fridges, 120,000 fridge-freezers and 90,000 freezers.

Wildlife

Mr. Wilkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will review her Department's guidelines to safeguard the wilflife in south-east England. [13071]

Mr. Meacher: We have recently improved protection of wildlife and their habitats across England and Wales, through provisions in the Countryside and Rights of Way Act 2000, the first major wildlife legislation for 20 years. Work continues to review and develop nature conservation policy, guidelines and legislation and we have consulted widely on a revised Code of Guidance to English Nature, which we aim to publish shortly.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Child Support Agency

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average time taken by the CSA in the last 12 months to obtain an attachment of earnings order from the date of application to the courts is; what the upper decile time is; and how many orders are in the upper decile. [14357]

Malcolm Wicks: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive, Mr. Doug Smith. He will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Doug Smith to Mr. Andrew Turner, dated 14 November 2001:

I am replying to your Parliamentary Questions to the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions about the Child Support Agency.

You have requested average times for obtaining Attachment of earnings orders from the date of application to the courts.

The Child Support Agency does not make Attachment of earnings orders. The Child Support Agency has provision to make Deduction from Earnings orders which do not require court action.

A Deduction from earnings order is a legally binding instruction to an employer to deduct child maintenance and arrears from a non resident parent's earnings and to pay it to the Child Support Agency.

Deduction from earnings orders are an effective way of ensuring payment of child support where a non-resident parent chooses to pay in this way, or where other methods have failed. In cases where a non-resident parent refuses to pay child support, a deduction from earnings order is often the best way to ensure regular and reliable maintenance is paid.

In May 2001, 141,600 non resident parents were paying child support via deduction from earnings orders.

I hope this is helpful.

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average time taken by the CSA in the last 12 months to determine an absent parent's contribution to child support is; what the upper decile time is; and how many determinations are in the upper decile. [14358]

Malcolm Wicks: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive, Mr. Doug Smith. He will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Doug Smith to Mr. Andrew Turner, dated 14 November 2001:

I am replying to your Parliamentary Questions to the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions about the Child Support Agency.

You asked what the average time is for the CSA in the last 12 months to determine a non resident parent's contribution to child support; what the upper decile time is; and how many determinations are in the upper decile.

The information you have requested is not available in the format requested. The information that is available is provided at Appendix A.

I hope this is helpful.

Appendix A:

Time taken to make child support assessments (November 2000-October 2001)

Time taken	Number of cases assessed	Percentage
Less than 20 weeks	49,165	48.5
Between 20 and 52 weeks	32,115	31.6
Over 52 weeks	20,156	19.9
Total	101,436

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average time taken by the CSA in the last 12 months to recover underpayments by absent parents is; what the upper decile time is; and how many vacancies are in the upper decile. [14359]

Malcolm Wicks: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive, Mr. Doug Smith. He will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Doug Smith to Mr. Andrew Smith, dated 14 November 2001:

I am replying to your Parliamentary Questions to the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions about the Child Support Agency.

You asked what the average time is for the CSA in the last 12 months to recover underpayments by Non resident parents.

The information you have requested is not available as it is not collected in the format you have requested.

Maintenance that is due but not paid is collected as arrears. Clients are asked to pay arrears in a lump sum, or to agree to make regular payments towards arrears in addition to regular maintenance. Agreements follow negotiations which take into account the non resident parent's ability to pay and the need for maintenance to reach the parent with care as soon as possible. If no agreement can be reached between the Agency and the non resident parent the case is subject to enforcement action.

I hope this is helpful.

Jobcentre Plus

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the feasibility of bringing responsibility for Housing Benefit claims within the (a) remit and (b) locality of the new Jobcentre Plus offices; and if he will make a statement. [14297]

Malcolm Wicks: There are no plans to bring responsibility for Housing Benefit claims into Jobcentre Plus. We expect Jobcentre Plus and local authorities to work closely together to provide a coherent service for customers. We are aligning Jobcentre Plus district boundaries with local authority boundaries so as to manage the interaction between the two more effectively.

Income Support

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people were in receipt of income support payments under the preserved rights scheme in each year since 1997; and how many were (a) under 65 and (b) over 65 years in each case. [15180]

Malcolm Wicks: The information is in the table.

Thousand

Year	All preserved rights customers	Aged under 65	Aged 65 and over
1997	123.7	40.6	83.1
1998	103.6	38.4	65.2
1999	86.2	36.0	50.1
2000	74.3	34.0	40.3
2001	65.1	31.9	33.1

Notes:
1. Figures are based on 5 per cent. sample and are therefore subject to a degree of sampling error.
2. Figures have been rounded to the nearest hundred and are expressed in thousands.

Source:
Income Support Quarterly Statistical Inquiries, May 1997–May 2001.

Rented Accommodation

Mr. Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will monitor the impact (a) nationally and (b) regionally of the revised definition of the single room rent on access to, and affordability of, privately rented accommodation for young people aged under 25 years. [11501]

Malcolm Wicks: The revised definition of the single room rent was introduced from 2 July 2001. We are currently considering options for monitoring the effect of the new definition.

WALES

Water Supply (Ceredigion)

Mr. Simon Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will make a statement on water supply in Ceredigion. [13063]

Mr. Paul Murphy: That is a matter for the National Assembly for Wales. However, I refer the hon. Member to the comments my hon. Friend the Under-Secretary addressed to him in the debate in Westminster Hall on 14 November 2001, Official Report, column 296–97WH.

Chernobyl

Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what area of land in Wales is affected by the radioactive fallout from the 1986 Chernobyl nuclear accident; and what estimate he has made of how long it will take for all restrictions arising from Chernobyl to be lifted. [14685]

Mr. Paul Murphy: Information about the land area affected by the radioactive fallout is not held centrally. However, 5,000 farms across Wales were placed on restriction following the Chernobyl accident. Of those, 360 remain on restriction. Monitoring is carried out continually and the Food Standards Agency will take scientific advice as to when restrictions can be relaxed.

LORD CHANCELLOR'S DEPARTMENT

Statutory Bereavement Payment

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what plans he has to increase the statutory bereavement payment in fatal accident cases; and if he will make a statement. [14203]

Mr. Wills: Consideration is being given to both the costs and benefits of an increase. A regulatory impact assessment has been completed, analysing the effects of increasing the level of bereavement damages. Any increase would have an impact on business and other Government Departments, and before an announcement can be made the Lord Chancellor will need to consult his colleagues.

An announcement on whether or not an increase will be made is expected by March 2002.

Magistrates Courts

Mr. Watson: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department, pursuant to his answer of 31 October 2001, Official Report, column 754W, if he will publish the full results of the pilot study run in nine magistrates courts committee areas between 2 April and 29 June; and if he will make a statement. [14458]

Mr. Wills: I have today placed a copy of the evaluation report prepared following the pilot scheme run in the nine magistrates courts committee areas in the Library of each

House. This report includes the national results for the pilot period. The scheme for cracked, ineffective and vacated trials has been endorsed for national roll-out in January 2002.

Freedom of Information Act

Norman Baker: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department if it is his policy that the Freedom of Information Act 2000 is to be implemented in stages. [15196]

Mr. Wills: The Freedom of Information Act will be fully implemented by January 2005, 11 months before the timetable set out in the Act itself. The publication scheme provisions will be implemented first, on a rolling programme, starting with central Government in November 2002. A full schedule of organisations and dates of implementation was placed in the Libraries of both Houses on 13 November. This roll-out will be completed in June 2004 and the individual right of access to information held by all public authorities will be implemented in January 2005.

Written Answers to Questions

Friday 16 November 2001

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

Fair Trade

Mr. Weir: To ask the Solicitor-General what her Department's policy is in relation to departmental spending for supplies concerning the purchase of Fair Trade goods. [15210]

The Solicitor-General: I refer the hon. Member to the answer by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for International Development. The Law Officers' Departments aim to support ethical trading wherever practicable in the conduct of its business.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Burns: To ask the Solicitor-General what proportion of those named day parliamentary written questions that received a holding answer between 15 October and 5 November received the substantive answer (a) within three parliamentary days, (b) within seven parliamentary days, (c) within 10 parliamentary days, (d) within 15 parliamentary days and (e) over 15 parliamentary days after the holding answer was issued. [13296]

The Solicitor-General: I gave no holding replies during this period.

Mr. Burns: To ask the Solicitor-General how many named day parliamentary written questions were tabled to her Department between 15 October and 5 November; and what proportion of these have received holding answers. [13295]

The Solicitor-General: Five named day questions were tabled to me during this period. None received a holding reply.

PRESIDENT OF THE COUNCIL

Fair Trade

Mr. Weir: To ask the President of the Council what his Department's policy is in relation to departmental spending for supplies concerning the purchase of fair trade goods. [15214]

Mr. Robin Cook: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of state for International Development, today, at column 931W.

The Privy Council Office however does not have a refreshment facility in which it could stock fair trade goods.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Burns: To ask the President of the Council what proportion of those named day parliamentary written questions to his Department that received a holding answer between 15 October and 5 November received the substantive answer (a) within three parliamentary days, (b) within seven parliamentary days, (c) within 10 parliamentary days, (d) within 15 parliamentary days and (e) over 15 parliamentary days after the holding answer was issued. [13319]

Mr. Robin Cook: None.

Mr. Burns: To ask the President of the Council how many named day parliamentary written questions were tabled to his Department between 15 October and 5 November; and what proportion of these have received holding answers. [13300]

Mr. Robin Cook: Seven named day parliamentary written questions were tabled to the Privy Council Office between 15 October and 5 November.

No such questions received a holding answer.

PRIME MINISTER

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Burns: To ask the Prime Minister (1) how many named day parliamentary written questions were tabled to his Department between 15 October and 5 November; and what proportion of these have received holding answers; [13297]

(2) what proportion of those named day parliamentary written questions to his Department that received a holding answer between 15 October and 5 November received the substantive answer (a) within three parliamentary days, (b) within seven parliamentary days, (c) within 10 parliamentary days, (d) within 15 parliamentary days and (e) over 15 parliamentary days after the holding answer was issued. [13316]

The Prime Minister: Thirty-seven named day written parliamentary questions were tabled for answer in the specific period. Of these seven received holding replies. I provided substantive answers for five of these questions within three parliamentary days, and two within seven parliamentary days.

TRANSPORT, LOCAL GOVERNMENT AND THE REGIONS

Railtrack

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will make a statement on Government representation on the board of the successor company to Railtrack. [12149]

Mr. Jamieson: It will be for the Railway Administrator to put a proposal to the Secretary of State for a scheme to transfer the network operator out of administration. We have indicated that we will be making a proposal for a company limited by guarantee to take over Railtrack's role, but the Secretary of State will consider any proposal put to him by the administrator to transfer the railway assets out of administration as a going concern. The composition of the board of Railtrack's successor will therefore depend on the eventual scheme put to us by the administrator.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions, pursuant to his oral answer of 23 October 2001, Official Report, column 195, on documents relating to the Railway Administration Order of 7 October, if he will make a statement about the level of the proposed payments to Railtrack under the RenewCo scheme. [11800]

Mr. Jamieson [holding answer 1 November 2001]: No structure could be found for a RenewCo vehicle that successfully met all of the conditions set out in the 2 April agreement between Government and Railtrack.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions, pursuant to his answer of 1 November 2001, Official Report, column 781W, what advice the agencies gave officials about their requirements to give investment grade rating to the proposed successor to Railtrack. [14678]

Mr. Jamieson: Officials have discussed the Government's proposals for a company limited by guarantee (CLG) with credit rating agencies. Proposals for a CLG will be targeting a long term credit rating of A/A2 or higher, to reflect the financing capacity requirement of the rail infrastructure business.

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions how many save as you earn schemes are held by employees of Railtrack. [14438]

Mr. Jamieson: My Department does not hold this information. It is a matter for the company.

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what estimate he has made of the impact on take-up of employee share ownership schemes resulting from the devaluation of employee share schemes held by employees of Railtrack. [14437]

Mr. Jamieson: It is for employees to consider the strength of their company when participating in employee share schemes.

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will place the notes of his meetings with (a) the Chairman of Railtrack on 25 July and (b) the Rail Regulator on 5 October, in the Library. [15499]

Mr. Byers: Details of internal communications are exempt from disclosure under section 2 of Part II of the code of practice on access to Government information.

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will place copies of his Department's correspondence with the Strategic Rail Authority regarding negotiations on the development of RenewCo and the payment of funds to Railtrack under (a) the resettlement procedure and (b) the arrangement for payment of network grant proposed by the Rail Regulator in October 2000 and agreed by Railtrack in January 2001, in the Library. [15500]

Mr. Byers: The criteria required RenewCo to be successfully established were stated in the 2 April agreement between Government and Railtrack.

Central Trains

Mr. Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what discussions he has had with Central Trains about providing an improved service between Grantham and Skegness. [13493]

Mr. Jamieson: We are aware of the desire to improve this service. The Rail Passenger Partnership fund administered by the SRA would be a possible source of support for an increased local service. Bids can be made individually or by consortia which could include the train operator and local authority.

London Underground

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what was the estimate of the interest charged to support the PPP for the London Underground at 1 October; and what is the current estimate. [13989]

Mr. Spellar: London Underground is currently negotiating the contracts to deliver this investment. To estimate at this stage of the negotiations what rate of interest the private sector infrastructure companies might be charged on the debt they raise would undermine London Underground's commercial position and jeopardise its ability to deliver best value.

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions when he expects the Health and Safety Executive to complete consideration of the safety case for the PPP for London Underground. [14492]

Mr. Jamieson: The independent Health and Safety Executive is responsible for the timetable for consideration of London Underground's safety case. They will reach a decision after considering all the relevant issues.

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions at what level of cost overrun under the PPP for the London Underground infracos will be able to demand additional financial support; and if he will make a statement. [14482]

Mr. Jamieson: The modernisation contracts provide for an "extraordinary review" if costs are increased by more than £200 million despite the infrastructure company carrying out the investment in an economic and efficient way. This is aimed largely at external events, which the infrastructure companies might be unable to bear and which could arise in any long-term contractual relationship.

Mr. Coleman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions (1) how the budget for London Underground step-in inspection and maintenance powers will be set; who will be responsible for funding that budget; and if he will make a statement; [14518]

(2) how long infracos will be allowed to comply with a notification of the need for safety works, before London Underground can invoke its step-in works to default powers under the PPP arrangements; and if he will make a statement; [14516]

(3) if he will make a statement on the arrangements that London Underground will have available to them to inspect the tube for safety concerns under the (a) proposed works in default and (b) step in powers process under the PPP arrangements; [14517]

(4) how many staff will be employed in (a) the inspection team and (b) the maintenance team available to London Underground to carry out its step in powers under the PPP arrangements; and if he will make a statement. [14513]

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will make a statement on the detailed arrangements under the works in default step-in powers for (a) notifying infracos of the need to take action on safety grounds and (b) performing works not carried out by infracos under the London Underground PPP. [14480]

Clive Efford: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions how disputes between Transport for London and infracos as to the exercise of step-in powers by London Underground will be resolved; and if he will make a statement. [14495]

Mr. Jamieson: London Underground will have a range of methods under the contracts for checking whether the infrastructure companies are carrying out their obligations. The contracts will require the private companies to provide asset management plans and detailed information on asset condition on an open book basis. London Underground will have rights to audit or inspect work and records at short notice.

Where London Underground finds a safety concern it will be able either to direct action from the infrastructure company or to step in itself, whether or not the infrastructure company has complied with its obligations. This step-in power allows London Underground to do the work itself or to employ an outside contractor or another infrastructure company. In either case, if the infrastructure company has breached its obligations, the work will be done at the expense of the infrastructure company that failed to meet its obligations. If action is determined by London Underground in these circumstances to be needed, it can be taken immediately with any disputes resolved later. In such cases London Underground does not need to give notice of its intended step-in.

It is for London Underground to determine the appropriate number of staff to be employed for inspection and step-in, and to set the relevant budgets.

Mr. Coleman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will deem approval by the HSE of the safety case for the London Underground PPP arrangements to be a guarantee that the PPP regime is safe; and if he will make a statement. [14519]

Mr. Jamieson: It is the responsibility of London Underground Ltd. under health and safety legislation to ensure safety on the underground network. It is the role of the Health and Safety Executive to assess and consider for acceptance London Underground's safety case, and to inspect for compliance as necessary. Acceptance of London Underground's safety case would mean that London Underground had made a satisfactory case under the Railway Safety Case Regulations 2000 to give confidence to the HSE that it has the ability, commitment, and resources to properly assess and effectively control risks to the health and safety of the public, staff and contractors.

Mr. Coleman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what proposals he has to request the National Audit Office to review, prior to the award of the contracts, the value for money of the proposed PPP for the London Underground; and if he will make a statement. [14514]

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions when he expects the NAO to report on the London Underground PPP; and if he will make a statement. [14485]

Mr. Jamieson: I refer my hon. Friends to the answer given to the Member for Truro and St. Austell (Matthew Taylor) on 12 November 2001, Official Report, column 503W.

Mr. Coleman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions under the (a) actual and (b) proposed (i) contracts and (ii) understandings, what level of compensation will be payable to the infracos who have submitted bids for the PPP for London Underground in the event of the PPP Scheme being found not to represent value for money; and if he will make a statement. [14512]

Mr. Jamieson: No compensation will be payable to bidders in the event of bids for the modernisation plans for the underground being found to be not value for money.

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what definition of a fair return on investment is being used for the private sector infracos investing in the London Underground PPP; and if he will make a statement. [14488]

Mr. Jamieson: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given to my hon. Friend the Member for Leyton and Wanstead (Harry Cohen) on 23 October 2001, Official Report, column 186W. The rate of return will be determined by the fair and rigorous competitions that London Underground are conducting.

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what projections he has made as to fare increases after the London Underground PPP contracts are signed; and if he will make a statement. [14489]

Mr. Jamieson: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given to the Member for North Essex (Mr. Jenkin) on 26 April 2001, Official Report, column 312W. Fare decisions on the London Underground are now a matter for the Mayor of London.

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what assessment he has made of (a) the management structures proposals for London Underground PPP from the point of view of safety and (b) the conclusions reached by

Sir Desmond Fennell in his report on the King's Cross fire as to the management structure operated by London Underground. [14490]

Mr. Jamieson: As the Duty Holder under the relevant legislation, London Underground is responsible for ensuring that safety risks are reduced to as low as reasonably practical. The independent Health and Safety Executive is responsible for safety regulation of London Underground.

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what contingency plans he proposes to put in place in the event of insolvency by one or more of the infracos in the London Underground PPP; and if he will make a statement. [14487]

Mr. Jamieson: The Greater London Authority Act 1999 contains specific provisions to protect the public interest should an infrastructure company perform poorly and be at risk of becoming insolvent (sections 220–224).

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will indicate (a) for each year of the first seven and a half year period and (b) for the total of the first seven and a half years of the infraco contracts for the PPP of London Underground, what proportion of investment will come from (i) the private sector and (ii) the public sector; and if he will make a statement. [14484]

Mr. Jamieson: The plans for the modernisation of the Underground will deliver around £13 billion of investment to improve the underground's infrastructure over the next 15 years. London Underground is in the process of negotiating the contracts to deliver these plans. It is currently estimated that in the first seven and a half years some 25 per cent. of finance for these plans will be provided by the private sector, with the remainder coming from London Underground fares and Government grant.

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what discussions he has had with London Underground on the future membership of its board post PPP; and if he will make a statement. [14491]

Mr. Jamieson: The board of London Regional Transport is responsible for considering and approving appointments to the board of its subsidiary, London Underground Ltd. This responsibility will remain with London Regional Transport until London Underground Ltd. transfers to Transport for London.

Clive Efford: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will make a statement as to the phasing of works under the London Underground PPP between different tube lines and between (a) stations, (b) track and signalling infrastructure and (c) rolling stock. [14494]

Mr. Jamieson: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given to my hon. Friend the Member for Leyton and Wanstead (Harry Cohen) on 18 July 2001, Official Report, column 195W. Bidders have said that in the first period of the Tube modernisation plans: over 60 miles of track will be repaired or replaced; over 500 carriages will be replaced or refurbished; over 50 stations will be modernised; new signalling will be installed on the Northern and Victoria lines, with improvements elsewhere; and CCTV will be installed to improve security in trains and stations.

Clive Efford: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will make a statement as to the guarantees under the London Underground PPP which will ensure (a) replacement and (b) upgrading of the tube infrastructure. [14498]

Mr. Jamieson: The public private partnership is designed to achieve a comprehensive modernisation of the entire underground network. The infrastructure companies will be contractually required to deliver specified upgrades of each line by dates set by London Underground. In addition infrastructure companies must meet specified levels for the condition of all underground assets, comply with London Underground standards and the requirements of their safety case.

Clive Efford: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what discussions the Government have had with the National Audit Office over the value for money of the London Underground PPP; and if he will make a statement. [14493]

Mr. Jamieson: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given to the hon. Member for Truro and St. Austell (Matthew Taylor) on 12 November 2001, Official Report, column 503W. My Department's officials have had numerous meetings with the National Audit Office on the value for money evaluation of the Government's plans for London Underground.

Clive Efford: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will make a statement as to which risks will be transferred to the private sector under the London Underground PPP, and the extent to which those risks will be transferred. [14497]

Mr. Jamieson: In line with Treasury guidance, the Government's plans for the London Underground follow the principle that risks should be allocated to whoever is best able to manage them. The aim is not to transfer risk for its own sake, as this would lead to a decline in value for money, but rather to optimise the transfer of risk.

Transport for London

Clive Efford: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what the credit rating is of Transport for London; and if he will make a statement. [14496]

Mr. Jamieson: Transport for London's credit rating is a matter for Transport for London.

Departmental Name Change

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what the total cost has been to public funds of re-branding his Department to accommodate its name change following the last general election. [14450]

Dr. Whitehead: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 10 July 2001, Official Report, column 438W.

Westminster City Council

Mr. Mark Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what has been the cost to public funds of the Westminster Auditor's inquiry into Westminster city council's designated sales policy for the period since 30 April 1999; [14329]

(2) what the cost to public funds of the Westminster Auditor's inquiry into Westminster city council's designated sales policy was from 18 July 1989 to 31 October 2001. [14328]

Dr. Whitehead: We are advised by the Audit Commission that the auditor's costs for the investigation, up to and including the publication of his report in 1996, was £3,017,905, which has been met by Westminster city council.

The Commission has a responsibility to indemnify the auditor for the cost of any proceedings resulting from such investigations. Under the indemnity the Commission had met, up to 30 April 1999, costs of £2,997,000 incurred by the auditor, his solicitor and barrister, in relation to the inquiry. The total litigation costs, including those of some of the appellants whose appeals were successful in the Divisional Court, amounted to £3,705,000 in the same period.

The auditor's costs (including those of his solicitor and barrister) incurred since 30 April 1999, indemnified by the Audit Commission, amount to £1.75 million to 31 October 2001, including the costs of the remaining successful appellant (£514,265), which were not paid over until after 30 April 1999, but exclude any costs borne by Westminster city council since 30 April 1999.

Train Toilets

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what powers the Rail Regulator has to oblige train operating companies to make working toilets available to passengers on trains. [14705]

Mr. Jamieson: This is a matter for the train operating companies.

Rosyth Ferry Terminal

Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions on what date his Department first informed the European Commission of plans for the Rosyth ferry terminal; what correspondence took place between his Department and the European Commission; and if he will place copies in the Library. [13935]

Mr. Jamieson [holding answer 12 November 2001]: The Commission has been aware of plans for the Rosyth ferry terminal for some time, and a meeting was held to discuss the state aids issues on 9 November.

Millennium Dome

Mr. Yeo: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what estimate the Government have made of the value of the Millennium Dome site. [14503]

Ms Keeble: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave to the hon. Member for East Surrey (Mr. Ainsworth) on 25 June 2001, Official Report, column 21W.

Mr. Yeo: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if the Government will publish the requirements for potential buyers of the Millennium (a) Dome and (b) site. [14504]

Ms Keeble: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave him on 26 October 2001, Official Report, column 43 1W.

Mr. Yeo: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions by what date the Government expect to have sold the Millennium Dome. [14511]

Ms Keeble: The aim is to secure a sale as quickly as possible, consistent with value for money, securing a worthwhile and sustainable future for the Dome and a deliverable outcome.

Mr. Yeo: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions (1) what plans the Government have to allow residential building on the Millennium Dome site; [14510]

(2) what plans the Government have to dismantle the Millennium Dome. [14505]

Ms Keeble: None.

Mr. Yeo: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions (1) what assessment he has made of the factors which will influence the costs incurred by the Millennium Dome after 31 December; [14507]

(2) what estimate the Government have made of the costs that will be incurred by the Millennium Dome after 31 December. [14506]

Ms Keeble: English Partnerships, as owners of the Dome, are continuously revising their estimates of costs in the light of changing circumstances, and are making every effort to keep costs down. The average monthly maintenance cost has fallen to £240,000, including security, rates and services. These costs, together with the costs of any additional works required in preparation for a future Dome use, will be kept under review, and budgets adjusted accordingly.

Mr. Yeo: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what plans the Government have to regenerate the Greenwich peninsula; and what role it expects the Millennium Dome to play in this regeneration. [14509]

Ms Keeble: The regeneration of the Greenwich Peninsula is a key element in developing this part of east London, and driving the transformation of the Thames Gateway.

The development of the 300 acre peninsula site is creating a template for future mixed use development and is bringing unprecedented regeneration benefits to a part of London which was inactive for many years. In doing so, English Partnerships, the Government's regeneration agency, has transformed one of the largest tracts of derelict land in Europe. The development area, which also contains the new North Greenwich Interchange, includes the United Kingdom's first Millennium Village; Britain's first low energy Sainsbury's food store; Britain's largest B&Q store; Europe's first round multiplex cinema; a fully integrated school and health centre and a 162-bed hotel.

In addition there are 50 acre of parks, open spaces and new river walks and cycle path, together with a new river pier and a new yacht club.

Like many others, including the London borough of Greenwich, the Government are committed to the Dome staying in Greenwich. It is an important landmark on the London skyline which has hastened the regeneration of Greenwich peninsula and more widely and has added to the quality and variety of world-famous structures that were already so prominent in the area. Delivering a successful future for the Dome will build on this, ensuring continued recognition world-wide and enabling the regeneration momentum that has been established to continue.

Runway Capacity

Ms Atherton: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what steps he will take to make runway capacity available for increased regional air (a) services and (b) routes. [14321]

Mr. Jamieson: The South East and East of England Regional Air Services study (SERAS) is considering runway capacity issues. The forthcoming consultation documents on air services in the south-east of England and regional air services will present a range of runway capacity options.

Airport slots are allocated in accordance with EC Regulation 95/93. Ministers are currently considering policy options for the protection of slots at London airports for regional access.

Regional Air Travel

Ms Atherton: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what change there has been in the amount of regional air travel in the last six weeks. [14322]

Mr. Challen: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what assessment he has made of the market for regional air services after the events of 11 September. [14336]

Mr. Jamieson: Over the last six weeks air services across the UK have been in a state of flux. Routes have been cancelled, put on hold, reduced in terms of frequency, moved between airports and put back on by another airline.

BAA reported that at their airports their worst affected routes were the North Atlantic down 25.9 per cent. in September (38 per cent. in the period after the 11 September). However growth has continued in Scotland, figures for October show Edinburgh up 13 per cent. and Glasgow up 7 per cent., Stansted has also recorded growth of 5 per cent. These increases are largely the result of the continued development of low cost airlines.

The Government are working hard to help return the aviation industry to business as usual as quickly as possible. We are carrying out a fundamental review of aviation security to ensure that air travel is as safe from terrorist attacks as we can make it while, at the same time, balancing security with our freedom to travel.

Air Passengers (Security)

Mr. Challen: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what assessment he is making of the impact of low-cost airlines on the running costs of airports; and what impact this has had on the provision of security for passengers. [14335]

Mr. Jamieson: This is primarily a commercial decision for airlines and airports. The CAA as the economic regulator of airports can also consider complaints. Low cost airlines have no impact on the security of passengers as the security measures required by DTLR do not depend on whether an airline is low cost or high cost.

Homelessness (Greater London)

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions how many homeless people there are in the Greater London area; and what the figure has been in each of the last three years. [14733]

Ms Keeble: Information reported to the Department by London boroughs on the number of households accepted under the homelessness provisions of the 1985 and 1996 Housing Acts as being eligible for assistance, unintentionally homeless and in priority need, in each of the last three years, is as follows:

Year	Number
1998–99	26,470
1999–2000	28,440
2000–01	29,630
2001–02[1]	7,350

[1] First quarter

Source:
DTLR P1(E) housing returns (quarterly)

National and regional summaries of local authorities' activity, including a table presenting figures on homelessness acceptances as reported by each London borough, are provided in a quarterly Statistical Release published by the Department. Copies are available in the Library, and also via the Department's website. The latest edition, published on 12 September, presents statistics up to the end of June 2001.

Stagecoach Bus Service (Monmouth)

Mr. Edwards: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if she will request (a) the Health and Safety Executive and (b) the Vehicles Inspectorate to undertake an assessment of overcrowding on the Stagecoach 69 bus service between Llandogo and Monmouth carrying pupils to and from school. [15243]

Ms Keeble: As I said in my answer of 6 November 2001, Official Report, column 138W, to my hon. Friend, the primary responsibility for ensuring that a bus is not overcrowded lies with the driver. The driver or conductor should not allow more passengers than the bus is certified to carry, and may limit the number of passengers below that if the number being carried at the time is detrimental to safety.

It is not the responsibility of the Health and Safety Executive to investigate overcrowding on buses. However, the Vehicle Inspectorate would follow up specific complaints or reports of known regular incidents of overcrowding. To do so they will need detailed information of the times, date and location and if possible the vehicle registration. This information on the case referred to in this instance should be forwarded to The Senior Traffic Examiner, Dave Rhys, at the Vehicle Inspectorate, School Road, Miskin, Pontyclun, Mid Glamorgan, CF72 8YR.

Port Health

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will give a breakdown of the spending on Port Health in each of the last three years for which centrally collected data are available. [15055]

Mr. Raynsford [holding answer 15 November 2001]: English local authorities have reported the following expenditure on Port Health:

Port Health net current expenditure by local authority: 1995–96 to 1997–98

£000

Local authority	1995–96	1996–97	1997–98
City of London	1,878	2,173	2,191
Birmingham	1	1	1
Gateshead	17	10	13
Leeds	3	3	3
Liverpool	82	84	95
Manchester	36	37	38
Newcastle upon Tyne	28	16	21
North Tyneside	44	26	33
Salford	36	37	38
Sefton	47	49	55
Solihull	−1	0	0
South Tyneside	44	26	33
Trafford	9	9	9
Wirral	61	64	70
Bristol UA	95	84	89
East Riding of Yorkshire UA	—	35	34
Hartlepool UA	8	0	10
Kingston upon Hull	215	n/a	n/a
Middlesbrough UA	38	0	0
North Lincolnshire UA	—	35	0
Poole UA	9	7	19
Portsmouth UA	76	90	98
Redcar and Cleveland UA	—	41	41
Southampton UA	340	375	258
Stockton-on-Tees UA	38	41	44
Allerdale	3	2	2
Barrow-in-Furness	2	2	2
Blyth Valley	40	40	44
Boothferry	31	—	—
Boston	2	8	6
Caradon	12	16	16
Carrick	107	107	107
Cleethorpes	62	—	—
Colchester	3	2	2
Crawley	107	185	173
Dover	103	64	53
Easington	−3	0	0
Ellesmere Port and Neston	9	9	9
Gillingham	3	3	3
Glanford	31	—	—
Great Grimsby	25	—	—
Great Yarmouth	10	11	14
Halton	9	9	9
Holderness	15	—	—
Ipswich	0	1	0
Kerrier	15	15	15
King's Lynn and West Norfolk	8	1	0
Lancaster	21	22	24
Langbaurgh-on-Tees	39	—	—
Lewes	63	67	66
Plymouth	104	103	105
Purbeck	2	2	3
Rochester upon Medway	6	4	5
Scarborough	3	3	3
Selby	18	14	15
South Kesteven	1	0	0
Stroud	11	13	14
Suffolk Coastal	196	130	−1
Teignbridge	1	−1	1
Tendring	69	42	44
Vale Royal	9	9	10
Wansbeck	40	40	44
Warrington	9	8	8
Waveney	13	13	11
Weymouth and Portland	22	28	28
Wyre	10	11	12
Total	4,335	4,226	4,040

Note:
1. Authorities are listed within class as follows:
(a) Shire counties
(b) Unitary authorities
(c) Shire districts

The structure of local government has changed over the period, with the staged establishment of unitary authorities. Where these exist they took on, for their area, the function of the old shire county and district.

Where relevant, shire districts pre-reorganisation have been placed on the same line as the post-reorganisation unitary authority.

A dash denotes an authority did not exist during the financial year and a negative figure would represent a net income.

Airline Industry

Alistair Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what recent representations he has received from the airline industry on levels of employment following the incidents of 11 September; and if he will make a statement. [15665]

Mr. Jamieson: We have received numerous representations from the airline industry and others on the effects of the events of 11 September.

The Government recognise the importance of the aviation industry to the UK economy and is therefore paying close attention to the industry's current problems. We moved quickly to underwrite, on a temporary basis, third party war risk insurance for UK airlines and service providers to the airline industry. The initiative has subsequently been widely copied elsewhere. The European Commission has set out guidelines on emergency aid measures which were endorsed at the meeting of European Transport Ministers on 16 October. We support the Commission's stance and are actively considering whether further aid should be paid to the British airline industry in accordance with the guidelines.

Housing Capital Resources

Geraint Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions when he will announce the results of the consultation exercise on the needs indices to be used in the allocation of 2002–03 housing capital resources to local authorities and registered social landlords. [15790]

Ms Keeble: Decisions have now been taken about the needs indices to be used in the allocation of housing capital resources for 2002–03. I am arranging for details of the indices to be placed in the Library of the House.

The Department issued a consultation paper in July seeking views on the development of the indices, including some specific proposals for changes to the indices for 2002–03. Some 80 responses were received. A list of the respondents is available in the Library of the House and individual responses can be viewed in the Department's Library.

The responses reflect the difficulty of striking the right balance over the differing housing needs around the country. Responses from London argued that the revised indices would not give sufficient weight to the need to provide additional affordable housing in areas of high demand; those from northern regions raised concerns that the proposed changes do not adequately reflect the problems of area renewal and housing market failure.

The Indices of Deprivation 2000 (ID2000) were adopted last year as the basis for the future allocation of resources to deprived areas. The consultation paper set out a proposal for moving to base the targeting of housing capital resources on the most deprived areas as identified in ID2000. We have decided to proceed with this change. ID2000 is a more up to date, broader based measure and is a clear improvement on the largely, 1991 Census-based Index of Local Conditions on which the targeting is currently based. Work is either planned or being undertaken to address the acknowledged weaknesses in the housing element of ID2000 and the absence of a crime measure.

Most LAs are unaffected by moving to use ID2000 but a small number of authorities face sizeable shifts in index shares. We will, as indicated in the consultation paper, apply transitional arrangements to phase the impact of this change in over three years.

We have also decided to proceed with the three other proposed changes—the introduction of a low demand indicator into the LA index; the increase in the share of the LA index accounted for by the LA stock indicator; and the revised basis for the index used to allocate Disabled Facilities Grant resources. The transitional arrangements will also apply to these changes.

The housing capital resources for LAs for 2002–03 will be allocated through the Single Capital Pot (SCP). The performance-related component (5 per cent.) within this is much less than has applied to housing allocations in earlier years (50 per cent.). The consultation paper indicated that we did not consider it right for the better performing authorities to face the whole impact of this in one year. The consultation paper proposed that the transitional arrangements should be applied in a way which also covered the reduction in the size of the performance element. We have decided to address this in a different way by allocating a part, one third, of the formulaic housing element of the SCP on the basis of performance assessments. This has the advantage of much greater transparency and it also reflects the latest performance assessments rather than being fixed on the 2000 assessments as would have been the case under the initial proposal.

Pedestrian Protection

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he will estimate the additional average cost of providing pedestrian protection in the Honda Civic car, which car has the best pedestrian protection rating to date in the European New Car Assessment Programme; and which cars have been assessed at 65 per cent. or above in the EEVC Working Group 10 tests. [15679]

Mr. Jamieson: The Honda Civic has the best Euro NCAP pedestrian protection result to date, with a score of 72 per cent. We estimate that the additional vehicle manufacturing cost of the Honda Civic relating to pedestrian protection to be around £6.50. We have made no specific estimate of the extra running costs linked to pedestrian protection.

The Euro NCAP pedestrian test currently allows a mix of best and worst positions, chosen by manufacturers and Euro NCAP respectively.

However, we believe that significant further modification would be required for the vehicle to meet the full EEVC WG10 or the later WG17 requirements, resulting in a further increase in manufacturing and running costs. In a separate series of DTLR funded research tests using the EEVC WG17 procedures and criteria, the Honda Civic was subject to 19 tests. The results are summarised below.

		WG17 requirements
Test	Total tests	Met	Not met
Child head	12	2	10
Upper leg	3	2	1
Full leg	4	2	2
Total	19	6	13

This should not detract from the significant achievements by Honda on pedestrian protection in relation to other cars. Published results of Euro NCAP tests show that no other cars have scored 65 per cent. or above.

Roadworks (Essex)

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions (1) what plans his Department has for road works on the A12 between Hatfield Peverel and Mountnessing in the next 12 months; [14962]

(2) what action he will take to alleviate the traffic jams on the A12 north of Boreham at Hatfield Peverel while the road works are in progress; [14964]

(3) when the road works on the A12 to the north of Boreham at Hatfield Peverel will be completed; and when the A12 will return to normal traffic flows; [14963]

(4) if he will make a statement on the traffic jams being caused by road works on the A121 north of Boreham at Hatfield Peverel; and what has been the average time it takes vehicles to travel through the road works in each week since their establishment. [14965]

Mr. Jamieson: I have asked the Chief Executive of the Highways Agency, Tim Matthews, to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Richard Thorndike to Mr. Simon Burns, dated 15 November 2001:

Tim Matthews has been asked by the Transport Minister, David Jamieson, to reply to your recent Parliamentary Questions about planned and proposed roadworks on the A12. I am replying as Tim Matthews is currently away on business.

I am sorry that the resurfacing of the A12 near Hatfield Peverel is causing problems for road users. We expect the work to be completed around the middle of February, although to minimise delays over Christmas, the traffic management will be suspended between noon on 19 December and noon on 7 January.

We have not recorded details since work started of the delays for each week. Although we know there have been delays of over an hour particularly when there have been accidents. However, on average in the morning it takes about 10–15 minutes longer to travel southbound and about 5–10 minutes longer to travel north.

We have no plans for major roadworks on the A12 between Hatfield Peverel and Mountnessing during the next 12 months. We are, however, planning to resurface part of the Brentwood Bypass next September which will involve some work at the Mountnessing Interchange. Details will be published nearer the time.

If you would like more details, the Agency's Project Manager, James Hassall would be happy to discuss the scheme. His telephone number is 01234 796094.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions (1) what proportion of those named day parliamentary written questions to his Department that received a holding answer between 15 October and 5 November received the substantive answer (a) within three parliamentary days, (b) within seven parliamentary days, (c) within 10 parliamentary days, (d) within 15 parliamentary days and (e) over 15 parliamentary days after the holding answer was issued; [13326]

(2) how many named day parliamentary written questions were tabled to his Department between 15 October and 5 November; and what proportion of these have received holding answers. [13307]

Dr. Whitehead: In the period 15 October to 5 November, my Department answered 261 named day parliamentary questions, of which 81 (31 per cent.) received holding answers.

Of the 81 that received holding answers, 72 (89 per cent.) received substantive answers within three parliamentary days (of which 29 (36 per cent.) received substantive answers within one day); and 9 (11 per cent.) received substantive answers within seven parliamentary days.

Physical Agents Directive

Mr. Salmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what recent meetings he has had with representatives of the (a) haulage, (b) construction and (c) engineering sectors regarding the European Commission's proposed physical agents directive; and if he will make a statement. [15687]

Dr. Whitehead: The Health and Safety Executive has had several meetings with industry sectors about the two physical agents directives on vibration and noise. The most recent meeting with construction sector representatives was on 14 November and with engineering sector representatives on 1 November. They will be meeting representatives of the haulage industry on 20 November.

Fair Trade Goods

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions what his Department's policy is in relation to departmental spending for supplies concerning the purchase of Fair Trade goods. [15216]

Dr. Whitehead: The Department's procurement policy is about the achievement of value for money. The Department does not have a specific policy requiring the purchase of fair trade goods. Purchasing Officers are expected to consider each case on its merits with particular regard to the need for any products purchased to represent value for money. However, this Department does have available in the main staff restaurant fair trade beverages and confectionery and only provides fair trade beverages for official meetings. In addition, this Department's policy is to purchase timber and timber products only from sustainable and legal sources.

Local Government Finance Settlement

Jim Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions when he will make a statement on the Provisional Local Government Finance Settlement 2002–03. [16241]

Mr. Raynsford: Subject to the progress of parliamentary business, we expect to make an announcement to the House on Thursday 29 November.

New Track

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions if he intends to allow assets of the not-for-profit company known as New Track to be made available as security to bankers in order to secure funding for the company. [11221]

Mr. Spellar: A substantial portion of the income for a company limited by guarantee would be covered by stable long-term contracts. These would form the basis for an investment grade credit rating to secure funding for the company.

TREASURY

Departmental Underspending

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what discussions he has had with the Prime Minister regarding underspend in the Department of Health; [13206]

(2) what measures he is taking to reduce underspend in the (a) Department for Education and Skills, (b) Department of Health, (c) DETR main programmes, (d) Ministry of Defence and (e) Home Office; [13203]

(3) if he will provide a breakdown of the main items of intended expenditure that were not spent comprising the underspend arising from the difference between the

Final Department Expenditure Limit and Provisional Outturn for 2000–01 for the (a) Department for Education and Skills, (b) Department of Health, (c) DETR main programmes, (d) Ministry of Defence and (e) Home Office. [13202]

Mr. Andrew Smith: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to him on 13 November 2001, Official Report, columns 606–07W.

Scottish Devolution

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his policy is regarding consultations prior to the publication of proposals involving the transfer of powers to the Scottish Executive by (a) primary legislation and (b) Order in Council. [13823]

Mr. Andrew Smith: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to her by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Scotland on 14 November 2001, Official Report, column 748W.

Income Tax

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will quantify in real cash terms the total change in the amount of income tax paid by higher rate taxpayers between May 1997 and the latest date for which information is available. [14425]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer the hon. Member to "Inland Revenue Statistics", table 3.4, copies of which are available in the Library of the House. The latest version of the table can be accessed on the Inland Revenue website www.inlandrevenue.gov.uk/stats.

Mr. Watts: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make an assessment of the cost of lowering the higher rate of income tax by 1 pence. [15395]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer my hon. Friend to "Inland Revenue Statistics" table 1.6, a copy of which is available in the Library of the House. The latest version can be accessed on the Inland Revenue website www.inlandrevenue.gov.uk/stats.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Burns: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many named day parliamentary written questions were tabled to his Department between 15 October and 5 November; and what proportion of these have received holding answers. [13299]

Mr. Boateng: 86 of the 143 named day questions tabled to the Treasury in the period concerned were answered substantively on the nominated day.

Mr. Burns: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what proportion of those named day parliamentary written questions to his Department that received a holding answer between 15 October and 5 November received the substantive answer (a) within three parliamentary days, (b) within seven parliamentary days, (c) within 10 parliamentary days, (d) within 15 parliamentary days and (e) over 15 parliamentary days after the holding answer was issued. [13318]

Mr. Boateng: Of the 75 named day questions to which holding answers were given in the period concerned, 53 received substantive answers within three sitting days, 12 within seven days, five within 10 days and five within 15 days.

Combined Heat and Power

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans he has to improve fiscal incentives for the development of combined heat and power plants. [15512]

Mr. Boateng: Gas or coal used by good quality combined heat and power systems is exempt from the climate change levy. Electricity produced by such systems is also exempt if it is used on the site where it is generated or if it is sold through a bilateral contract to another end user. Good quality CHP systems are also eligible for 100 per cent. enhanced capital allowances as part of the Government's climate change levy package. The Government are considering how best to encourage CHP and will be publishing proposals in the form of a CHP strategy in the coming months.

Illegal Drugs (Hull)

Mr. Battle: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps he is taking to (a) increase and (b) improve illegal drugs interception by Customs and Excise at the Port of Hull; and if he will make a statement. [15690]

Mr. Boateng: Greater flexibility in the deployment of officers enable Customs in Hull to respond more quickly to smuggling threats. The Customs drug dog unit in Hull has been expanded and from the new year an X-ray scanner will be based in Hull to greatly increase the number of freight examinations.

Aggregates Levy

Mr. Heath: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent discussions he has had with representatives of the quarrying industry on the design of the proposed aggregates levy. [15340]

Mr. Boateng: I and my officials have had meetings with various representative bodies for the aggregates industry, and other interested parties throughout the development of the levy.

Illegal Food Imports

Norman Baker: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many, and what percentage of flights arriving at (a) Heathrow, (b) Gatwick, (c) Stansted and (d) other airports in the UK were checked, in the latest year for which figures are available, for the presence of food intended for illegal importation; and of those flights checked, on how many occasions such food was found. [15192]

Mr. Boateng [holding answer 15 November 2001]: The lead responsibility for controls on imported food lies with the Department for the Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (DEFRA) and agencies acting on its behalf. Customs has provided support to these agencies and participated in a number of joint exercises at airports to address the risk of illegal meat imports. Application of normal Customs controls to incoming flights is based on assessment of a range of risks and no figures exist of how many flights were checked for the purpose of detecting illegal importation. Where illegal food is found during Customs examination appropriate action is taken. Seizures in the year 1 April 2000–31 March 2001 were:

Heathrow: 217

Gatwick: 73

Stansted: 5

Other airports: 94.

This does not include seizures made in joint exercises with the lead enforcement agencies where they take the seizure action.

Advanced Corporation Tax

Mr. Flight: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what has been the total cost to local government pension schemes resulting from the abolition of advanced corporation tax relief on pension funds. [14698]

Dr. Whitehead: I have been asked to reply.

The LGA estimated that the net effect of the 1997 decision to abolish advance corporation tax relief on local authority pension funds was £130 million. The Government specifically took account of this estimate in the spending plans set by the 1998 Comprehensive Spending Review.

Radio Spectrum

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the possibility of selling or licensing the military spectrum to the private sector. [14419]

Mr. Alexander [holding answer 12 November 2001]: I have been asked to reply.

My right hon. Friends, the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry and the Chancellor of the Exchequer commissioned earlier this year an independent review of radio spectrum management, led by Professor Martin Cave, to advise on the principles which should guide future management of the spectrum, to help derive most value from this national asset. One of the issues which the review is exploring is how best to improve the arrangements for facilitating access, for commercial uses, to any defence spectrum which would not compromise any legitimate current or future defence needs. The review is due to report to Ministers by the end of 2001.

Freedom of Information

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer on what date his Department established a working group of officials to prepare his Department for the implementation of the Freedom of Information Act 2000; and on what dates this committee has met since it was set up. [14775]

Mr. Blunkett: I have been asked to reply.

In May this year, the Home Office established a Board level Senior Group to steer departmental progress towards implementation of the Act. The group first met on 8 May. Pending a decision on the timing of implementation, it has not met since, but is now scheduled to meet on 29 November 2001.

The Senior Group is supported by a working-level Practitioners Group, which met on 14 May and 17 September 2001.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Direct Selling (Utilities)

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what plans she has to tighten the regulation of direct selling by utilities. [12152]

Mr. Wilson: Direct selling is regulated under a range of consumer legislation. The Consumer Protection (Cancellation of Contracts Concluded away from Business Premises) Regulations (The Doorstep Selling Regulations), govern doorstep sales and were strengthened in 1998. New Distance Selling Regulations, governing telephone and internet sales, came into force in October 2000. Local Trading Standards departments are responsible for the enforcement of these regulations. Breaches of the regulations that result in harm to the collective interests of consumers could also be grounds for the courts to make a Stop Now Order requiring the company concerned to cease the offending conduct. Under The Stop Now Order (E. C. Directive) Regulations, which came into force on 1 June 2001, the power to apply for such Orders is held by the Director General of Fair Trading, local authority trading standards officers, and sectoral regulators.

In the case of gas and electricity, the Office of Gas and Electricity Markets (Ofgem) introduced a Marketing Licence Condition in 1998 that governs the sales and marketing practices of suppliers. The Licence Condition was strengthened in January 2001. Ofgem closely monitors the sales and marketing activities of suppliers, and, where necessary, it will take formal action against individual suppliers.

In addition, I have recently written to all gas and electricity suppliers to express my concern about the distress caused by incidences of sales malpractice and demand that suppliers improve their performances. Consumers affected by sales malpractice not only form a negative view of an individual company, but also of the competitive market as a whole. It is in suppliers' own interests to maintain the highest possible sales standards, to resolve problems rapidly where they occur and to ensure that the consumer is content with the outcome.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many named day parliamentary written questions were tabled to her Department between 15 October and 5 November; and what proportion of these have received holding answers. [13313]

Ms Hewitt: 104 named day questions were tabled, 52 per cent. received a holding reply.

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what proportion of those named day parliamentary written questions to her Department that received a holding answer between 15 October and 5 November received the substantive answer (a) within three parliamentary days, (b) within seven parliamentary days, (c) within 10 parliamentary days, (d) within 15 parliamentary days and (e) over 15 parliamentary days after the holding answer was issued. [13332]

Ms Hewitt: The information is as follows.

(a) 91 per cent.

(b) 98 per cent.

(c) 100 per cent.

(d) 0 per cent.

(e) 0 per cent.

Energy Sector

Mr. Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what was the total (a) direct and (b) indirect Government support for the energy sector, excluding oil and gas production, in each year since 1990. [13287]

Ms Hewitt [holding answer 8 November 2001]: The information is set out in the table.

Government financial support for the energy sector, excluding oil and gas

£ million

	Total support
Year	Direct	Indirect
1990–91	283.5	127.1
1991–92	571.2	809.7
1992–93	814.1	892.9
1993–94	595.8	963.1
1994–95	372.5	988.4
1995–96	236.8	793.5
1996–97	197.1	112.8
1997–98	215.5	126.5
1998–99	317.0	127.0
1999–2000	227.0	56.4
2000–01	334.1	64.9

Notes:

1. The figures for direct support include:

(a) direct Government funding for research and development on renewable energy through the DTI's Sustainable Energy Programme and through Research Councils via the Science Budget

(b) support for the coal industry but excluding the impact of debt write-offs and proceeds at the privatisation of British Coal and payments made in respect of historic liabilities retained in the public sector, such as health claims

(c) support for nuclear based on the funding to the UKAEA details of which were included in the reply to a parliamentary question from the hon. Member for Hazel Grove (Mr. Stunell) on 14 November 2001, Official Report, columns 756–57W.

2. The figures for indirect support include:

(a) expenditure through the Non Fossil Fuel Obligation (NFFO), the Scottish Renewables Obligation and the Northern Ireland NFFO funded by the electricity consumer through the Fossil Fuel Levy in Great Britain and variant arrangements in Northern Ireland.

(b) the premium received by Nuclear Electric plc over and above the market price for electricity in the period 1990–96 details of which were provided in the reply to the hon. Member for Hazel Grove (Mr. Stunell) on 14 November 2001, Official Report, columns 756–57W.

Postcomm

Geraldine Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many licences have been issued by Postcomm within the reserved area; and what assessment she has made of their impact on Consignia's ability to meet its universal service obligations. [13743]

Mr. Alexander: To date, following consultation, Postcomm has issued a licence to Consignia plc, a condition of which requires the provision of a universal postal service, and four other licences.

Postcomm's primary duty is to exercise its functions in the manner which it considers is best calculated to ensure the provision of a universal postal service. Subject to this duty Postcomm shall exercise its functions in the manner which it considers is best calculated to further the interests of users of postal services, wherever appropriate by promoting effective competition between postal operators.

Consignia

Geraldine Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what action Consignia is taking to improve recruitment and retention in areas where this is more difficult. [13733]

Mr. Alexander: As an operational matter, this is an issue for Consignia management.

Consignia is aware that there is a particular problem around staff turnover in the first few months of employment within areas where alternative employment is readily available. In response, with the active support of the Communication Workers Union, the company is trailing a new approach that includes mentoring of new entrants and retention payments.

I am advised that the results of these trials will be available in the new year.

Postal Services Regulatory Regimes

Mr. Borrow: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what representations she has received on the services condition of the European Union and UK postal services regulatory regimes. [13649]

Mr. Alexander: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry routinely receives formal and informal representations on different aspects of developments in the United Kingdom and European postal markets including regulatory regimes.

Fur Products

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) what measures exist to ensure that consumers are not sold items made of or containing domestic (a) dog and (b) cat fur by (i) mistake and (ii) fraudulent practices; [13794]

(2) what measures are in place to combat potential consumer fraud with regard to the sale of fur (a) garments and (b) items; [13796]

(3) how many people are employed by her Department to ensure that fur products on sale in the United Kingdom are accurately described; and what is their annual budget; [13795]

(4) what information (a) is given and (b) has to be given by law to consumers regarding the origin by (i) species and (ii) country of (A) fur garments, (B) garments containing fur trim and (C) items made from fur in the United Kingdom; [13793]

Miss Melanie Johnson: The Department does not enforce legislation which protects consumers from misleading statements about products. Trading standards officers who are employed directly by Local Authorities enforce the Trade Descriptions Act 1968. The Control of Misleading Advertisements Regulations 1988 place the duty to investigate under the Regulations on the Director General of Fair Trading.

It is a criminal offence under the Trade Descriptions Act 1968 for a person in the course of a trade or business to apply, by any means, false or misleading statements to goods, including statements about their composition. Additionally, the Director General of Fair Trading can take injunctive action under the Control of Misleading Advertisements Regulations 1988 (as amended) to prevent misleading advertisements. The regulations define an advertisement widely, as any form of representation which is made in connection with a trade or business in order to promote the supply or transfer of goods.

The Trade Descriptions (Sealskin Goods) (Information) Order 1980 requires goods made wholly or partly of, or derived wholly or partly from, sealskin to be legibly and conspicuously marked with, or accompanied by, information to the effect that the goods are made of sealskin and where the seals were taken.

The Department is not aware of any other legislation that requires fur products to be labelled with information.

Nuclear Installations (Security)

Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what consultations her Department has had with independent experts in respect of the security of nuclear facilities since 11 September. [14277]

Mr. Wilson: The Office for Civil Nuclear Security (OCNS) within my Department is the Government's security regulator for the civil nuclear industry. OCNS has operational and regulatory autonomy in setting security standards and ensuring industry compliance. OCNS and DTI officials liaise with their counterparts in other agencies at home and abroad and with industry experts in the civil nuclear industry.

Community Post Offices

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will make a statement on the role of community post offices in the post office re-invention programme. [13762]

Mr. Alexander [holding answer 9 November 2001]: Among the Performance and Innovation Unit report recommendations, all of which were accepted by Government, was that there should be a programme of modernisation and reinvention of the urban network. This reinvention programme will not be relevant to community post offices, defined by Post Office Ltd. as small rural offices with restricted opening hours, which fall within the rural network of offices serving settlements with less than 10,000 residents.

Postal Deliveries

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many first class letters from (a) the PO postcode area and (b) the Isle of Wight achieve delivery (i) by first post the following day and (ii) within 24 hours; and how many to London in each category achieve delivery by each of those times. [14364]

Mr. Alexander [holding answer 13 November 2001]: This is an operational issue for Consignia.

I have been advised by the company that it does not hold all this information. However, for the financial year 2000–01 the company has provided the following information:

89 per cent. of first class letters were delivered the next day from the PO postcode area of posting.

92 per cent. of letters from the PO postcode area reached neighbouring areas the next working day.

86 per cent. of letters from the PO postcode area of posting reached distant areas the next working day.

Road Fund Licences (Post Office Sales)

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimates he has made of the costs associated with allowing all post offices to sell road fund licences. [14026]

Mr. Alexander [holding answer 13 November 2001]: I have been informed by Post Office Ltd. that it acts as agent for the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency (DVLA) in issuing motor vehicle licences through 4,000 post offices. In order to safeguard the interests of taxpayers, DVLA has to ensure that the relicensing service is cost effective. Under the present arrangements, increasing the number of post offices offering the facility increases the costs without increasing the total revenue collected. With the completion of the Horizon automation programme, we are considering the scope for extending the facility more widely without additional cost to DVLA.

Postmasters (Compensation)

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what plans she has to (a) assist and (b) compensate sub-postmasters in Northern Ireland, with special reference to owners of rural post offices, affected by the phasing out of the old system of benefit payments in favour of the automated credit transfer system. [14977]

Mr. Alexander: Benefit and pension recipients who wish to collect their benefits in cash at post offices will continue to be able to do so after the change in payment arrangements, beginning in April 2003, by means of Universal Banking Services.

The Government remain committed to maintenance of a nationwide network of post offices and has committed £270 million of support over the next three years to start the implementation of the Performance and Innovation Unit's recommendations, all of which the Government accepted, for modernisation of the post office network.

The PIU report recommendations include financial support for modernisation of the urban and rural networks. Post Office Limited's objective for the urban network of the future is to establish bigger, better, brighter post offices based on viable businesses that deliver adequate returns to subpostmasters. The Government are also committed to providing transitional financial assistance to the rural network and will shortly receive advice from the Postal Services Commission on the best way of channelling assistance to rural post offices.

Sub-post Offices (London)

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many sub-post offices have been (a) opened and (b) closed in each of the London borough authorities in each of the last three years; and if he will list them. [15336]

Mr. Alexander: I understand from Post Office Limited that data on the post office network are not held on a local authority basis. From the financial year 2000–01, network data have been compiled on a regional basis and in that year there were 10 net closures of post offices in the London region.

Regional Development Agencies

Mr. Woodward: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how much Government investment there was in the north-west Regional Development Agency (a) in 1999, (b) in 2000, (c) in 2001 and (d) is projected for 2002. [14716]

Alan Johnson [holding answer 15 November 2001]: The north-west Development Agency's net budgets for these years are as follows:

North-west Development Agency budgets

	£000
2002–03 (gross indicative)[1]	276,600
2001–02 (net allocated)[2]	[3]276,215
2000–01 (net actual)[2]	[4]206,962
1999–2000 (net actual)[2]	141,337

[1] Only gross figures (including receipts) are available for 2002–03.
[2] Actual net figures (excluding receipts) available for 1999–2000 and 2000–01. Latest net allocation figures (excluding receipts) available for 2001–02.
[3] Includes additional funding for the Business Recovery Fund in response to foot and mouth disease, and the Rapid Response Fund.
[4] Includes funding for additional activity.

Mr. Woodward: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if she will make a statement on levels of Government investment in all regional development agencies in (a) 2000, (b) 2001 and (c) 2002. [14719]

Alan Johnson [holding answer 15 November 2001]: The Regional Development Agencies' budgets are as follows:

Regional development agencies' budgets

£000

	2002–03 Gross indicative[1]	2001–02 Net allocated[2]	2000–01 Net actual[2]
One North East	183,400	157,755	123,492
North West DA	276,600	276,215	206,962
Yorkshire Forward	221,900	218,134	172,668
East Midlands DA	95,200	86,717	75,497
Advantage West Midlands	185,700	159,801	135,897
East of England DA	71,600	58,247	42,582
South East of England DA	102,200	97,851	80,850
South West of England DA	92,400	84,663	68,468
London DA	298,100	277,142	270,860
Total	[3]1,527,100	[3]1,416,525	1,177,276

[1] Only "gross" figures (including receipts) are available for 2002–03.
[2] Actual net figures (excluding receipts) available for 2000–01. Latest net allocation figures (excluding receipts) available for 2001–02.
[3] Includes additional funding for the Business Recovery Fund in response to foot and mouth disease, and the Rapid Response Fund.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Al-Qaeda

Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what evidence he has that the hijackers who crashed the commercial airliners in the United States on 11 September were trained in al-Qaeda training camps in Afghanistan. [14256]

Mr. Bradshaw: Al-Qaeda, harboured by the Taliban regime, have for some time run training facilities in Afghanistan. Prior to the current military action against al-Qaeda targets, there were at least 12 camps across Afghanistan, of which at least four were used for training terrorists. Following military action none of these camps are operational.

Most of the nineteen 11 September hijackers were al-Qaeda associates. A senior UBL associate has claimed to have trained some of the hijackers in Afghanistan. We know that al-Qaeda terrorists who carried out a failed attack on a US Navy destroyer in January 2000 had trained in camps in Afghanistan.

Organised Crime (Russia)

Mr. Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what resources have been offered to the Russian Government to help it to combat organised crime in Russia. [14729]

Peter Hain: The UK is keen to assist Russian efforts to combat organised crime. We have signed two memorandums of understanding to facilitate co-operation between UK and Russian law enforcement agencies. The National Criminal Intelligence Service has provided advice and consultants to a Russian project to establish a financial intelligence unit, an essential element in tackling money laundering.

With our international partners, we participate in Operation Millennium, an Interpol initiative sponsored by the G8 to share intelligence on Eastern European, including Russian, organised crime. We also contribute to the Joint EU/Russia Action Plan on combating Russian organised crime, focusing on judicial co-operation in criminal matters and on law enforcement co-operation.

EU (New Members)

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which countries seeking membership of the European Union he has visited during the last 12 months. [14734]

Peter Hain: Since his appointment in June, the Secretary of State has visited Warsaw on 30 September and Ankara on 17–18 October. The Secretary of State has also met his Czech, Hungarian, Romanian, Bulgarian and Cypriot counterparts. I visited both Prague and Budapest in September, and have plans to visit more candidates early next year. I have also met the Foreign Ministers or chief negotiators of most of the candidate countries.

European Union Chapters

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many European Union chapters have been approved by the EU in each of the countries seeking membership; and if he will list them. [14735]

Peter Hain: Of the 31 chapters of the European Union acquis communautaire (EC legislation), Cyprus has provisionally closed 23, Hungary 22, Czech Republic 21, Slovenia 21, Slovakia 20, Estonia 19, Latvia 18, Lithuania 18, Poland 18, Malta 18, Bulgaria 12, and Romania eight. The FCO has deposited with the Commons Library a table detailing which chapters have been provisionally closed by each of the candidates.

Your Britain, Your Europe Project

Mr. Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will list all publications issued under the Your Britain, Your Europe project; and what the (a) print run and (b) cost has been in each case. [14824]

Peter Hain: According to our latest and statistical information, the following publications bearing the Your Britain, Your Europe logo were issued during the lifetime of the Your Britain, Your Europe initiative:

Leaflet	Cost (£)	Print run
Your Britain, Your Europe	3,863	7,000
What has the EU ever done for us?	2,834	8,000
Europe Day Programme	2,342	10,000
The Treaty of Nice	2,618	13,200
Future of Europe	1,417	10,000
Want to know more about Europe	2,783	11,000
Regional Factsheets	1,408	2,200
Five editions of the newsletter	18,568	50,000

Bird Protection (Cyprus)

Mr. Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the Government of the Republic of Cyprus regarding the trapping and eating of protected migrant birds; and what steps he plans to take to support improved enforcement of bird protection legislation in Cyprus. [14803]

Peter Hain: The Government remain concerned that this activity continues to take place in Cyprus, and welcome the inclusion of the issue on the agenda of the forthcoming Berne Standing Committee meeting. For our part, the Sovereign Base Area police have for a number of years put considerable effort into anti-poaching measures. Recently there has been an especially robust campaign including the expansion of anti-poaching patrols. The SBA police also work in close co-operation with the Cyprus Game and Fauna Service. In addition, as part of a larger initiative, the Berne Convention on the Conservation of European Wildlife and Natural Habitats is being extended to the SBAs. We intend to continue to work with the Republic of Cyprus to bring an end to this unpleasant and outlawed practice.

European Commission (Costs)

Mr. Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many committees and advisory groups are funded by the European Community to advise the Commission; and at what cost. [14859]

Peter Hain: The general budget for the European Union for 2001 lists 473 committees under budget lines A-7031 and A-7032. Appropriations for their expenditure in 2001 totalled 21.96 million euros. The full list of these committees appears on pages 480–508 of the Official Journal of the European Communities of 26 February 2001.

British Russia Centre

Valerie Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when the annual reports of the British Russia Centre and British East-West Centre will be available. [16309]

Peter Hain: Copies of the centres' annual report for the financial year 2000–01 have now been placed in the Libraries of both Houses..

The centres received grant in aid of £226,648 from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office to support their activities in FY 2000–01. In addition, the centres secured funding of £109,346 from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office for direct expenditure on projects.

The centres manage projects to promote and support the development of democratic institutions, the rule of law and society in Russia, eastern Europe and central Asia. Activities last year included sending election observers to Kyrgyzstan; bidding for and winning a contract for a two-year project to assist in reform of tax systems in Russia, and a project to train young lawyers in the south Caucasus in specialist skills relating to the ECHR.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what proportion of those named day parliamentary written questions to his Department that received a holding answer between 15 October and 5 November received the substantive answer (a) within three parliamentary days, (b) within seven parliamentary days, (c) within 10 parliamentary days, (d) within 15 parliamentary days and (e) over 15 parliamentary days after the holding answer was issued. [13321]

Mr. Straw: The four questions which were issued with holding replies received substantive answers within the following timescales:

(a) 2
(b) 1
(c) 1
(d) 0
(e) 0.

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many named day parliamentary written questions were tabled to his Department between 15 October and 5 November; and what proportion of these have received holding answers. [13302]

Mr. Straw: Sixty-six named day parliamentary written questions were tabled to my Department between 15 October and 5 November. Of these, 6 per cent. received a holding reply.

Sudan

Mr. Dawson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the UN Special Rapporteur for Sudan's recent comments to the UN General Assembly on the links between oil exploitation and conflict in that country; and if he will make a statement. [15688]

Mr. Bradshaw: The civil war in Sudan started decades before the oil project came on stream in 1999. The main fields are in or close to an area of longstanding conflict between pro and anti government Nuer militias. It is not clear that oil has significantly affected this situation. We are engaged, with our EU partners, in an effort to encourage the Government to be more transparent about the use to which it puts its oil revenues. The Government's assurances that the majority are devoted to development expenditure would be all the more convincing if they were backed up by clear data.

European Union Heads of Mission held a meeting with the Sudanese Minister of Finance on this subject on 6 November. But the overall objective remains to achieve a lasting peace, which alone will bring an end to suffering in Sudan. In that respect we warmly welcome Senator Danforth's mission to Sudan and intend to work closely with our US and EU colleagues, and interested regional parties, to try to achieve renewed progress.

Fair Trade

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his Department's policy is in relation to departmental spending for supplies concerning the purchase of fair trade goods. [15206]

Mr. MacShane: We have no departmental policy on the purchase of fair trade products though my private office seeks to offer fair trade coffee and teas to visitors.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Sure Start, Birkenhead

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much of the (a) revenue and (b) capital allocation awarded to Birkenhead for the first year of its Sure Start programme was used. [11819]

Jacqui Smith: In the 2000–01 financial year, Sure Start Birkenhead received £141,000 of its revenue allocation and £22,000 of its capital allocation.

Private School Funding

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the average extra funding per primary school pupil in (a) the UK, (b) England and (c) Shropshire was in (i) 1997, (ii) 1998, (iii) 1999, (iv) 2000 and (v) 2001. [13812]

Mr. Timms: The Secretary of State is responsible for England only. The funding data for the years in question are as follows:

Shropshire revenue funding per primary pupil

£

	Cash terms			Real terms 2000
	SSA	Grants	Total per pupil	SSA	Grants	Total per pupil
1997–98	2,000	30	2,040	2,150	40	2,180
1998–99	2,100	40	2,140	2,190	40	2,230
1999–2000	2,220	120	2,340	2,260	120	2,380
2000–01	2,300	290	2,590	2,300	290	290
2001–02	2,410	460	2,870	2,350	450	2,800
Change	400	430	830	200	420	610

Note:
Real terms calculated using GDP deflators published by the Treasury 25 September 2001. The 2001–02 grant figures are provisional and are liable to change. The figures have been rounded to the nearest £10.

England revenue funding per primary school pupil

£

	Cash terms			Real terms 2000
	SSA	Grants	Total per pupil	SSA	Grants	Total per pupil
1997–98	2,130	30	2,160	2,280	30	2,320
1998–99	2,250	40	2,290	2,350	50	2,390
1999–2000	2,370	120	2,490	2,420	120	2,530
2000–01	2,470	290	2,760	2,470	290	2,760
2001–02	2,590	500	3,090	2,520	490	3,010
Change	460	470	920	240	450	690

Note:
Real terms calculated using GDP deflators published by the Treasury 25 September 2001. The 2001–02 grant figures are provisional and are liable to change. The figures have been rounded to the nearest £10.

Students (Living Expenses)

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills, pursuant to her answer of 2 November 2001, Official Report, column 898W, on costs of living, what estimates the research gave of total required living expenses in (a) London and (b) other parts of England and Wales. [14677]

Margaret Hodge: The Student Income and Expenditure Survey 1998–99 did not give estimates of the total required living expenses. It recorded reported expenditure by students of students.

Individual Learning Accounts

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what plans she has to examine the role of Capita in the operation of their contract to run individual learning accounts; and if she will make a statement. [14836]

John Healey: The Department regularly monitors the performance of Capita in the delivery of ILAs as part of the standard contract management arrangements.

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what proportion of individual learning account credits was spent on IT-related skills. [15010]

John Healey [holding answer 15 November 2001]: The Department holds information specific to basic IT-related learning which attracts an ILA incentive of 80 per cent. As at 31 October, ILAs had supported 765,873 such learning episodes at a total cost of £147,669,129, since the launch of the national framework in September 2000.

During this period ILAs have supported 1,380,370 learning episodes.

Course titles for the 20 per cent. ILA discount do not allow precise figures for IT-related learning to be extracted.

Internet Access

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what plans her Department has to increase internet access to those without computers. [15126]

John Healey: The Department has a range of measures to increase access to those without computers particularly for those who live in disadvantaged areas. We are committed to establishing 6,000 UK online centres in England by the end of 2002. There are currently over 1900 UK online centres in operation with more opening each month. They offer access and support to people who have not used, or are not familiar with the internet. In addition we are investing in wiring up communities. Seven pilot projects are exploring how the benefits of access to information and communication technology, including the internet, will help individuals to develop new skills, access job opportunities and become more involved in their communities.

Excellent progress is being made to improve computer/student ratios in schools, further education colleges and higher education institutions. 97 per cent. of all schools are now connected to the internet. In future all school leavers should have the skills to use and benefit from new technologies.

Educational Maintenance Allowances

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what plans she has to extend educational maintenance allowances to all areas of all local education authorities; [15554]

(2) what evaluation she intends to make of the educational maintenance allowance pilots; and when. [15469]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The educational maintenance allowance (EMA) scheme is still in the pilot stage. There are currently eight different variants of the scheme being tested in a total of 56 local education authorities.

The Department has commissioned the Centre for Research and Social Policy to carry out a rigorous three-year evaluation study of the pilots which is now in its third year of data collection. The study is examining each of the EMA variants to determine their effect upon participation, retention and achievement in further education. It is an extensive study not only of hard figures on take-up of EMAs but also includes interviews with local practitioners and partners. 20,000 interviews will be carried out with young people from both pilot and control areas to examine what factors influence their decisions at age 16 when considering post-compulsory education.

Early findings of the study show that EMAs are having a positive effect not only on participation and retention but also on student behaviour. However, it is important that we do not make any decisions on the future of EMAs until we have received satisfactory evaluation conclusions.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) how many named day parliamentary written questions were tabled to her Department between 15 October and 5 November; and what proportion of these have received holding answers; [13314]

(2) what proportion of those named day parliamentary written questions to her Department that received a holding answer between 15 October and 5 November received the substantive answer (a) within three parliamentary days, (b) within seven parliamentary days, (c) within 10 parliamentary days, (d) within 15 parliamentary days and (e) over 15 parliamentary days after the holding answer was issued. [13333]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: We have provided substantive replies to all of the 191 PQs tabled to this Department for answer on a named day between 15 October and 5 November, 96 of which were sent on the named day. Details of all the remaining 95, for which holding replies were issued, are as follows;

44 were answered within three parliamentary days; 28 within seven parliamentary days; seven within 10 parliamentary days; nine within 15 parliamentary days; and seven over 15 parliamentary days (the longest of which was 22 days after the named day).

SCOTLAND

Ministerial Visits

Annabelle Ewing: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland (1) if she will list all official overseas visits undertaken by Ministers in her Department in each year since May 1997, indicating (a) the cost in (i) cash and (ii) real terms, (b) the number and grade of (i) civil servants and (ii) special advisers accompanying Ministers and (c) the number of official engagements or meetings undertaken on each visit; and if she will make a statement; [6923]

(2) on how many occasions in each year since 1992 non-commercial flights were used by Ministers in her Department for official overseas visits; what the (a) destination, (b) Ministers involved, (c) cost and (d) reason for use of non-commercial flights were on each occasion; and if she will make a statement. [6924]

Mrs. Liddell: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister on 15 October 2001, Official Report, column 823W.

Ministers (Evidence to Committees)

Mr. Salmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what her policy is with regard to (a) Ministers and (b) officials in her Department giving evidence to (i) Scottish Parliament, (ii) Welsh Assembly and (iii) Northern Ireland Assembly committees; and to what categories of document she gives (A) full access, (B) restricted access and (C) no access to (1) Scottish Parliament, (2) Welsh Assembly, (3) Northern Ireland Assembly and (4) House of Commons Select Committees. [7012]

Mrs. Liddell: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by the Minister of State, Cabinet Office on 15 October 2001, Official Report, column 1003W.

Royal Prerogative

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many ministerial decisions were made where authority for the same derived from the Royal Prerogative for the most recent calendar month for which information is available. [9370]

Mrs. Liddell: Records are not kept of the individual occasions on which powers under the Royal Prerogative are exercised, nor would it be practicable to do so.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland (1) how many named day parliamentary written questions were tabled to her Department between 15 October and 5 November; and what proportion of these have received holding answers; [13312]

(2) what proportion of those named day parliamentary written questions to her Department that received a holding answer between 15 October and 5 November received the substantive answer (a) within three parliamentary days, (b) within seven parliamentary days, (c) within 10 parliamentary days, (d) within 15 parliamentary days and (e) over 15 parliamentary days after the holding answer was issued. [13331]

Mrs. Liddell: Of the small number of 'named day' written questions (the vast majority are tabled as 'ordinary' written questions instead) tabled to my Department between the dates mentioned, all but one were either answered on the day or within 15 days.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Fair Trade

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what her Department's policy is in relation to departmental spending for supplies concerning the purchase of fair trade goods. [15209]

Hilary Benn: We take every opportunity to promote fair trade products and also to support ethical trading in mainstream business. As the hon. Member knows, fair trade tea, coffee and chocolate are available in the House of Commons and they are also available in the Department for International Development refreshment facilities. I understand that a number of other Departments have considered stocking fair trade products.

Afghanistan

David Winnick: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if, in liberated parts of Afghanistan, she will take steps to arrange for children who are seriously injured as a result of the fighting to receive medical treatment where this has not so far been available. [15618]

Clare Short: My Department is currently supporting a number of agencies including Save the Children, UNICEF and the Red Cross Movement, which provide health services for children throughout Afghanistan. I have recently announced further financial contributions to both UNICEF and the Red Cross, which will also include support for health services that benefit children.

We anticipate that the advances made by the Northern Alliance in recent days will improve access and enable more effective delivery of humanitarian assistance.

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development when she will publish a detailed humanitarian aid strategy document for Afghanistan. [13988]

Clare Short: We have no plans to publish a humanitarian aid strategy document for Afghanistan. Thrice weekly updates on the humanitarian situation in Afghanistan are published by my Department and held in the Library of the House. A further paper, "Afghanistan Recovery: An Emergency Plan for the First 100 Days", is also available in the Library of the House.

Mr. John Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if she will make a statement on the Government's commitment to provide humanitarian aid to the people of Afghanistan; and how services by road will be sustained. [13865]

Clare Short: The UK Government have fully committed to doing all they can to help relieve the suffering of the people of Afghanistan. My Department has set aside £40 million to respond to the current crisis affecting Afghans. In line with the objectives of the international community, our top priorities are to: help meet immediate life saving needs within Afghanistan; support refugee needs in neighbouring countries; help host populations in neighbouring countries through programmes which benefit them; and strengthen international humanitarian agency capacity and co-ordination. Funds are being channelled through UN agencies, the Red Cross and non-governmental organisations (NGOs).

UN agencies, particularly the World Food Programme (WFO), continue to make good and steady progress in the delivery of humanitarian assistance into Afghanistan. New land convoy routes into Afghanistan are opening up, and the volume of relief supplies entering the country has increased over recent weeks as a result. With our support, WFP and the Russian Ministry for Emergencies (EMERCOM) have begun a joint operation to transport 9,000 metric tonnes of food from Tajikistan to northern Afghanistan.

Some mountainous areas of Afghanistan may become cut off by snow during the winter months. WFP are in the process of procuring snowploughs and other equipment to support their trucking operations in these regions. They have already begun snow clearance in the Anjuman Pass—the main north-east route into the Panjsheer Valley. As a last resort, WFP are also looking at the possibility of airdropping food to vulnerable people living in snowbound areas of Afghanistan.

The changing situation on the ground opens up new opportunities for us to improve humanitarian programmes and give better access to some of the most vulnerable people. Plans are now being made for the international staff of humanitarian agencies to return to parts of Afghanistan as soon as possible. Those agencies should now be able to accelerate deliveries so that winter stockpiles can be built closer to people who need them. However, such progress is dependant on improved security.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development (1) how many named day parliamentary written questions were tabled to her Department between 15 October and 5 November; and what proportion of these have received holding answers; [13305]

(2) what proportion of those named day parliamentary written questions to her Department that received a holding answer between 15 October and 5 November received the substantive answer (a) within three parliamentary days, (b) within seven parliamentary days, (c) within 10 parliamentary days, (d) within 15 parliamentary days and (e) over 15 parliamentary days after the holding answer was issued. [13324]

Clare Short: We received 21 parliamentary questions for named day answer between 15 October and 6 November of which seven were answered without sending a holding reply. Ten received substantive answers within three days and four within seven days. No named day question took longer than seven days to answer.

Departmental Publications

Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what were the total (a) publication and (b) advertising costs for the Department in each of the past four years. [15692]

Clare Short: Expenditure in relation to publications in the years in question is as follows:

Year	£000
1997–98	166
1998–99	347
1999–2000	570
2000–01	639

We have adopted a policy of openness and now publish policy documents that were previously kept secret.

We do not hold a separate advertising budget. However, the bulk of our advertising is in relation to recruitment, on which we spend around £1-£1.2 million per year.

Development and Co-operation Council

Mr. Connarty: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the outcome was of the Development and Co-operation Council held in Brussels on 8 November; what the Government's stance was on each issue discussed, including its voting record; and if she will make a statement. [14396]

Clare Short: At its meeting on 8 November, the Development Council, by consensus:

Noted the progress that had been made in reform of the EC's external programmes, including the publication of the Commission's first ever annual report on external assistance. The Council agreed that further progress was needed and that in order to make the annual report a more useful tool for monitoring progress it should be substantially enhanced next year to include firm indicators of the effectiveness of the EC's aid programmes and policies;

Agreed that member states would consider further what steps might be taken to establish specific timetables to reach the 0.7 per cent. GNP aid target in the context of preparations for the UN Financing for Development Conference (Mexico March 2002);

Agreed that, following the events of 11 September, the Council should continue to give priority to implementing the Declaration on Development Policy agreed in November 2000, give increased attention to the development challenges in Asia, and continue to integrate analysis on conflict prevention and resolution into the EC's programmes;

Agreed conclusions on the preparations for the world summit on sustainable development (Johannesburg September 2002); measures to be taken to address poverty reduction; the link between fisheries policy and poverty reduction; the biodiversity action plan; mainstreaming gender equality in development policy; participation of civil society in the implementation of the Cotonou agreement; improving the EU development response towards ACP countries in crisis and conflict; and a resolution on the importance of development education.

Military Planners

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development (1) what contact her Department has had with military planners at US Central Command in Tampa, Florida, to enhance humanitarian aid efforts in Afghanistan; [13987]

(2) if she has seconded officials from her Department to US Central Command in Tampa, Florida to liaise with US military planners on the humanitarian aid strategy for Afghanistan. [13986]

Clare Short: Good civil/military liaison is essential to the effectiveness of the humanitarian effort.

Civil/military specialists from my Department have been deployed to CENTCOM and to Islamabad to liaise with the coalition military and United Nations humanitarian staff.

Freedom of Information Act

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development on what date her Department established a working group of officials to prepare her Department for the implementation of the Freedom of Information Act 2000; and on what dates this committee has met since it was set up. [14773]

Clare Short: DFID's Knowledge and Communications Committee oversees preparations for the implementation of the Freedom of Information Act 2000. The committee considered freedom of information issues at its meetings in July and November of this year.

"Trade Matters"

Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what was the cost of producing the Departmental publication, "Trade Matters, Eliminating World Poverty, Information Pack"; and how many were produced. [15691]

Clare Short: The cost of producing the "Trade Matters" information pack, which included an introductory booklet and 12 briefing papers, was around £48,000.

The quantities produced were as follows:

Booklet—30,000 copies

Briefing papers—36,000 copies (3,000 copies of each of 12)

Information pack wallets—4,000.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many named day parliamentary written questions were tabled to his Department between 15 October and 5 November; and what proportion of these have received holding answers; [13306]

(2) what proportion of those named day parliamentary written questions to his Department that received a holding answer between 15 October and 5 November received the substantive answer (a) within three parliamentary days, (b) within seven parliamentary days, (c) within 10 parliamentary days, (d) within 15 parliamentary days and (e) over 15 parliamentary days after the holding answer was issued. [13325]

Mr. Darling: We received 106 named day parliamentary questions for answer between 15 October and 5 November and we issued holding replies in respect of 18 (17 per cent.).

Substantive replies were subsequently issued to one question within three parliamentary days, 10 questions within seven parliamentary days, three questions within 10 parliamentary day and two questions over 15 parliamentary days. One question was subsequently transferred to another Department and one remains unanswered.

Benefits

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much was recovered, in the last year for which information is available, of the benefits paid to those ineligible to receive such benefits by reason of (a) fraud and (b) mistake; and how much is estimated to remain uncollected. [7960]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 16 October 2001]: It is not possible to separate the total amount of overpaid benefit recovered into overpayments due to fraud and those due to other reasons. At the end of September 2001, the total amount of overpayments remaining uncollected was estimated to be £1,040 million.

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much a person must have in savings to receive interest equal to the value of (a) the average income support entitlement and (b) the average housing benefit entitlement, if interest is paid according to the base rate of the clearing banks. [7920]

Malcolm Wicks: The information is in the table.

Benefit	Average amount payable per week (£)	Amount of savings needed to earn the equivalent amount in interest
Income Support	70.21	Between £70,000 and £90,000
Housing Benefit	51.20	Between £50,000 and £65,000

Notes:

1. Calculations are based on a bank base rate of interest of 5.25 per cent.
2. The range given reflects the extent to which interest is gross or net of basic rate income tax.
3. Average benefit rates taken from Housing Benefit Quarterly Summary Statistics May 2001 and the Income Support Quarterly Statistical Enquiry, 5 per cent. sample, May 2001.
4. Interest rate taken from Bank of England information on bank base rate appropriate to end of May 2001. This interest rate is arrived at through information provided by selected clearing banks. It has been assumed for the purposes of the calculations that interest can be obtained on a weekly basis without loss compared to the annual rate.
5. The amounts of savings have been rounded to the nearest five thousand pounds.

Winter Fuel Payment

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many winter fuel payment claims for winter 2000 have been received since the deadline of 31 March; how many of these claims have been allowed; how many have been disallowed; and how many have yet to be processed. [7921]

Mr. McCartney: For the winter of 2000–01, claims needed to be made before 31 March 2001. To date, there have been 5,379 claims which did not meet this deadline. Some 3,445 of these claims have been allowed. 1,379 have been disallowed, and 573 have still to be processed.

New Deal (Young People)

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many former participants in the new deal have become (a) personal advisers and (b) senior advisers in the new deal for young people. [7980]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: The information is not available as the Employment Service does not hold details of the programmes in which all employees were previously engaged.

Pension Credit

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much he has forecast for expenditure on the pension credit in its first full year. [7795]

Mr. McCartney: The Government will publish estimates of the costs of the Pension Credit when the Bill is introduced.

Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many responses to the pension credit consultation document he has received; who they are from; and if he will make them available in the Library. [14312]

Mr. McCartney: Over 400 responses were received to the formal consultation exercise (The Pension Credit: A Consultation Paper, Cm4900, November 2000), many welcoming our proposals. We continue to consider views and work closely with groups representing older people to deliver a modernised and dedicated service to meet pensioner needs. We will be announcing our response to the Pension Credit consultation in due course.

SEMA

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how he monitors compliance by SEMA with its latest guidelines; and if he will make a statement. [11902]

Malcolm Wicks: Medical quality standards, including compliance with training and guidelines, are monitored monthly by SchlumbergerSema Medical Services. Doctors in the Department's Corporate Medical Group are regularly involved in validation of Medical Services' medical quality audit system and its application.

The Department takes a keen interest in Medical Services' performance against quality targets. Monitoring outcome reports are analysed by the Department's contract management team (IMPACT) and Corporate Medical Group, and stringent requirements are placed on Medical Services to develop and deliver action plans to improve performance where this fails to reach an acceptable standard. Failure to improve may result in service credits being applied.

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on the service credit arising from SEMA's performance against targets up to 31 March. [11906]

Malcolm Wicks: SchlumbergerSema Medical Services' performance against service levels and quality targets is reviewed monthly. Service credits are applied when performance falls below target. The Department aims to apply service credits in a manner which acts as an incentive to improve performance, therefore the decision to apply service credits takes into account any mitigating factors, and the effectiveness of action being taken to improve performance.

In the period to March 2001 the Department has claimed service credits from SchlumbergerSema on several occasions where there has been failure to deliver the required service or improvements.

Details of the amount involved are not in the public domain, as commercially sensitive information.

Job Losses

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the numbers of (a) jobs lost and (b) jobs under threat by the events of 11 September; and if he will make a statement. [12552]

Mr. Nicholas Brown: Because normal labour market turnover is so large, it is difficult to assess how much is due to particular changes or events.

Benefit Fraud

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people in the West Chelmsford constituency have been caught involved in (a) social security benefit fraud and (b) housing benefit fraud in each of the last five years for which figures are available; what action was taken against them; and what was the total amount of money calculated to have been lost to the Treasury as a result of the fraud. [14961]

Malcolm Wicks: The information requested is not available.

Benefit Claimant Count

Mr. Howard: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what recent estimate he has made of the impact on Government expenditure of a change in the claimant count of 50,000. [12797]

Malcolm Wicks: The impact on Social Security expenditure of either an increase or decrease in unemployment of 50,000 is estimated to be either a saving or additional cost of approximately £250 million, for a full year.

Child Benefit

Mr. Edwards: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what plans he has to award maximum child benefit to all siblings of a multiple birth; [13655]

(2) if he will review the provision of child benefit for siblings of a multiple birth. [13656]

Malcolm Wicks: There are no plans to award the higher rate of Child Benefit to siblings of a multiple birth.

Stakeholder Pensions

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will place in the Library a copy of the letter sent to companies to remind them of their obligation to offer access to a stakeholder pension. [7919]

Mr. McCartney: A copy of the letter, and the factsheet that accompanied it, has been placed in the Library.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Murder Inquiries

Mr. Donaldson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will publish details of the arrangements for the inquiries into the murders of (a) Chief Superintendent Breen, (b) Superintendent Buchanan, (c) Lord Justice and Lady Gibson and (d) Billy Wright; and if he will make a statement. [12001]

Jane Kennedy: The package of proposals published after the Weston Park talks contained details of the investigation by a judge of international standing into the case of Chief Superintendent Breen and Superintendent Buchanan, Lord Justice and Lady Gibson, Billy Wright, Patrick Finucane, Rosemary Nelson, and Robert Hamill. Further details will be published in due course.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many named day parliamentary written questions were tabled to his Department between 15 October and 5 November; and what proportion of these have received holding answers. [13309]

Dr. John Reid: In total 32 named day parliamentary written questions were tabled to my Department between 15 October and 5 November. Of these, 25 received holding replies.

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what proportion of those named day parliamentary written questions to his Department that received a holding answer between 15 October and 5 November received the substantive answer (a) within three parliamentary days, (b) within seven parliamentary days, (c) within 10 parliamentary days, (d) within 15 parliamentary days and (e) over 15 parliamentary days after the holding answer was issued. [13328]

Dr. John Reid: Of the 25 named day parliamentary written questions tabled to my Department which received holding replies between 15 October and 5 November: (a) none received substantive answers within three parliamentary days; (b) 21 received substantive answers within seven parliamentary days. The remaining four questions will receive substantive responses as soon as possible.

LORD CHANCELLOR'S DEPARTMENT

Fair Trade

Mr. Weir: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what his Department's policy is in relation to departmental spending for supplies concerning the purchase of fair trade goods. [15211]

Mr. Wills: I refer the hon. Member to the reply provided today by the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Department for International Development. The Lord Chancellor's Department will take every opportunity to encourage the use of fair trade products through its procurement activities, and specifically during the course of the review of the arrangements for contracted catering services that is planned to take place during the next 12 months.

Jury Rooms (Smoking Ban)

Mrs. Browning: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department, pursuant to his answer of 31 October 2001, Official Report, column 752W, on smoking in jury rooms, if he will give instructions that all asthmatics who are allergic to tobacco fumes will automatically be exempted from jury service. [15689]

Mr. Wills: There are no plans to introduce any further restrictions on eligibility for jury service. However, a person suffering from asthma, or any other illness, can apply to the Crown court to be excused from service on the ground of personal hardship. It will ultimately be for a judge to decide whether a person should be excused for this reason.

WALES

Fair Trade

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what his Department's policy is in relation to departmental spending for supplies concerning the purchase of fair trade goods. [15218]

Mr. Paul Murphy: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given today by my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, International Development. My Department has fewer than 50 staff and does not provide snack or canteen facilities.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales (1) how many named day parliamentary written questions were tabled to his Department between 15 October and 5 November; and what proportion of these have received holding answers; [13310]

(2) what proportion of those named day parliamentary written questions to his Department that received a holding answer between 15 October and 5 November received the substantive answer (a) within three parliamentary days, (b) within seven parliamentary days, (c) within 10 parliamentary days, (d) within 15 parliamentary days and (e) over 15 parliamentary days after the holding answer was issued. [13329]

Mr. Paul Murphy: 10 questions. All received substantive answers on the given date.

HEALTH

SNOMED System

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what arrangements are in place for independent scrutiny and evaluation of the SNOMED system; if the results of that scrutiny will be published; and if he will make a statement. [9400]

Ms Blears [holding answer 22 October 2001]: Agreement has been reached with the College of American Pathologists that a programme of formative evaluation work should be carried out in the national health service, as part of the United Kingdom contribution to the development of the SNOMED clinical terms. This will run through 2002–03. A further independent evaluation will be undertaken and plans are being drawn up for a panel to oversee this process. The SNOMED clinical terms will also be subjected to the NHS information standards approval process, which is overseen by the NHS Information Standards Board. The results of these evaluations will be published.

Intermediate Care

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make it his policy from 1 April 2002 to give people an enforceable right not to be charged for intermediate care services. [14714]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 14 November 2001]: Our view is that all intermediate care, as defined in paragraphs 7 and 8 of the January circular (Health Service Circular 2000–01: Local Authority Circular (2001)1) and subject to the normal time limits outlined there, should be free at the point of use.

Services commissioned or provided by the national health service are free. Although councils retain local discretion to charge we are encouraging them to make all such services free at the point of use, through the use of Health Act flexibilities.

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department has taken in evaluating the baseline figures for intermediate care to audit compliance with the criteria set out in paragraph 7 of HSC 2001/01: LAC (2001). [14712]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 14 November 2001]: A recent detailed survey of intermediate care validated the 1999–2000 baseline and established current levels of provision using the defining criteria in the January 2001 circular (Health Service Circular 2001/01: Local Authority Circular (2001)1).

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the adequacy of the definition of intermediate care in HSC 2001/01: LAC (2001). [14715]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 14 November 2001]: The definition in the January 2001 circular (Health Service Circular 2001/01: Local Authority Circular (2001)1) was drawn up in consultation with practitioners in the field. Subsequent feedback indicates that it has brought much needed clarity and is being implemented.

We shall, however, keep this under review and issue further guidance if needed.

Statutory Instruments (Explanatory Notes)

Mr. Lilley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on the mechanisms for ensuring that Explanatory Notes to Statutory Instruments issued by his Department are comprehensible, with special reference to S.I. No. 3442. [13222]

Ms Blears: It is a long-standing convention that the Explanatory Note of a Statutory Instrument should contain a reference to the full title of any European Commission legislation that is implemented by that Statutory Instrument. In accordance with that convention, the Explanatory Note of Statutory Instrument No. 2001/3442 indicates which EC legislation is being implemented. The subject matter is inherently technical.

Beta Interferon

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if he will make a statement on the decision by the National Institute for Clinical Excellence not to recommend beta interferon to be supplied by the NHS for patients with multiple sclerosis; [13403]

(2) what estimate he has made of the cost per patient of supplying beta interferon by the NHS to multiple sclerosis patients; [13405]

(3) what estimate he has made of the number of NHS patients with multiple sclerosis who would require beta interferon if available from the NHS. [13404]

Ms Blears: The National Institute for Clinical Excellence has not yet issued definitive guidance on the use of disease modifying drugs in multiple sclerosis. Its final appraisal determination (FAD) is now at the appeals stage.

However, as recommended in the FAD we are currently holding discussions with the manufacturers to consider a range of options under which drugs for multiple sclerosis might be made available under the National Health Service. One option is a "risk-sharing" scheme which will evaluate their clinical and cost effectiveness, and until these discussions are concluded we cannot provide detailed information on potential numbers of patients who may be affected. The FAD indicates that the current annual cost per patient of the various available drug treatments is £7,259 (Betaferon), £9,061 (Avonex), £9,088-£12,068 (lower dose/higher dose Rebif) or £6,650 (glatiramer acetate).

Coronary Heart Disease

Dr. Evan Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for Health at how many places it was possible to treat coronary heart disease (a) in each health authority and (b) in total in England for the last two years for which figures are available. [13616]

Jacqui Smith: Coronary heart disease is treated throughout the national health service. Depending on the severity and nature of the disease, patients are treated in a variety of settings, covering prevention, treatment and rehabilitation in both community and hospital settings. It is therefore not possible to quantify provision in the manner requested.

Pneumococcal Vaccination

Dr. Stoate: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment he has made of the value of pneumococcal vaccination in reducing the winter burden on the NHS; [13970]

(2) if he will reduce the target age for pneumococcal vaccination to match the flu vaccination programme for older people. [13971]

Jacqui Smith: Pneumococcal vaccine is recommended for all those aged two years or older in whom pneumococcal infection is likely to be more common and/or dangerous, ie those with:

- Asplenia or severe dysfunction of the spleen
- Chronic renal disease or nephrotic syndrome
- Immunodeficiency or immunosuppression due to disease or treatment, including HIV infection at all stages
- Chronic heart disease
- Chronic lung disease
- Chronic liver disease including cirrhosis
- Diabetes mellitus.

The Department continues to recommend this vaccine based on underlying ill health rather than age. Because the Department's policy on pneumococcal vaccine is designed to reduce morbidity and mortality, we have made no specific studies on the reduction of winter burden on the national health service.

Mental Health

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to proceed with the reforms of the Mental Health Act 1982 outlined in the White Paper, "Reforming the Mental Health Act"; and if he will make a statement. [15178]

Jacqui Smith: We remain committed to the reform of the Mental Health Act 1983. New legislation will be introduced as soon as parliamentary time allows.

Nursing Care

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how much each (a) primary care trust and (b) health authority paid in respect of free nursing care up to 31 October; and how many nursing home residents were placed in each registered nursing care contribution band; [12341]

(2) what estimate he has made of how many hours of nursing care will be funded from each of the registered nursing care contribution bands; [12343]

(3) pursuant to his answer of 18 October 2001, Official Report, column 1329W, on nursing care, if he will place in the Library a copy of the background papers concerning the testing of the registered nursing care contribution tool; [12416]

(4) pursuant to his answer of 18 October 2001, Official Report, column 1329W, on nursing care, (a) how many assessments had been completed by 31 October and (b) how many of these assessments were conducted face to face; [12415]

(5) pursuant to his answer of 18 October 2001, Official Report, column 1329W, on nursing care, how many nurses had completed the training in the use of the tool by 31 October; how many nurses have been designated to undertake assessments; and of these, how many were in post by 31 October. [12417]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 5 November 2001]: I refer to the answers given to the hon. Member for West Chelmsford (Mr. Burns) on 9 November 2001, Official Report, columns 478–79W.

Copies of an "Evaluation of the Registered Nurse Care Contribution for the Determination of Residents' Needs for Registered Nursing Care, When in Use in Nursing Homes" undertaken by the Gerontological Nursing Programme of the Royal College of Nursing have been placed in the Library.

The Department is commissioning an evaluation of the implementation of free nursing care.

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the projected cost is of providing free nursing care for the elderly in England in the next three financial years. [15420]

Jacqui Smith: £100 million was made available for free nursing care for adults over the age of 18 in nursing homes for the last six months of 2001–02. The full year costs for 2002–03 are currently being considered and allocations will be made early next year.

EU Food Supplements Directive

Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress has been made in negotiations regarding the draft EU food supplements directive in protecting the interests of the UK health food industry. [12753]

Ms Blears: We supported the final compromise proposal on which political agreement was reached in the Council of Ministers recently. The final text includes a number of important and hard won concessions which will benefit both United Kingdom consumers and the UK health food industry.

Cutlass Review

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the timetable is for the Cutlass review of medicines; [13787]

(2) how many patients have been recruited to the Cutlass review (a) to take the existing medicines and (b) to take the atypical medicines; [13786]

(3) what assessment he has made as to the opinion of psychiatrists on the efficacy of atypical anti-psychotic medicines. [13783]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 12 November 2001]: A multi-centred, randomised, controlled trial of the Cost Utility of The Latest Antipsychotics in Severe Schizophrenia (CUTLASS) is being conducted under the Department's health technology assessment programme. The trial, which compares new (atypical) drugs with conventional drugs, started in 1999 and is due to end in November 2002. The design of the trial means that it is not possible to extract information before the trial is completed about how many patients have taken which drugs. It is similarly not possible to provide information on results until the trial is ended.

Treatments

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if it is his policy that treatments should not be available in the NHS unless they have been subjected to randomised controlled trials; [13782]

(2) what proportion of treatments used in the NHS have been subjected to randomised controlled trials. [13781]

Jacqui Smith: No. Clinicians may choose to prescribe medication on the national health service which has not yet been licensed for use in this country (with the manufacturer providing supplies on a "named patient" basis) or is not licensed for a particular indication for which it is to be used. The clinician will do so only after considering the benefit of administering the medicine in relation to the risk involved.

We do not hold information on the use of treatments which have not been the subject of randomised controlled trials.

Antipsychotic Medicines

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment he has made as to the likely occurrence of (a) tardive dyskinesia and (b) other side effects from the use of (i) atypical antipsychotic medicines and (ii) older treatments; [13784]

(2) what the main side effects are from the use of typical antipsychotic medicines; and if he will make a statement. [13785]

Jacqui Smith: The safety and efficacy of antipsychotics are assessed at the time of licensing by the Medicines Control Agency (MCA) with expert advice from the Committee on Safety of Medicines (CSM).

Tardive dyskinesia is a well-recognised side effect of older "typical" antipsychotics. Tardive dyskinesia is of particular concern because it may be irreversible on withdrawing therapy and treatment is usually ineffective. Factors predisposing to the development of tardive dyskinesia include old age, female sex, affective disorder, schizophrenia characterised by negative symptoms and organic brain damage. Newer atypical antipsychotics have been developed that are better tolerated, but tardive dyskinesia can still occur following long term administration with these drugs. The lower incidence of tardive dyskinesia with atypical antipsychotics remains to be established although at present this does appear to be the case.

Information on possible adverse effects is available in the summary of product characteristics which is produced by the manufacturer and approved by the licensing authority for each medicine. Tardive dyskinesia is well documented in the product information for both typical and atypical antipsychotics and is also described in the British National Formulary which provides guidance on prescribing to doctors.

Other side effects of older, typical antipsychotics can include; drowsiness, agitation, convulsions, dizziness, headache, confusion, gastrointestinal disturbances, dry mouth, constipation, difficulty with passing urine and blurred vision, cardiovascular symptoms, endocrine effects, blood abnormalities and skin rashes.

As with all medicines the safety of antipsychotics (typical and atypical) are continuously monitored by the MCA and the independent expert advisory body, the CSM.

Patients (Testing)

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) under what circumstances it is lawful for patients to be tested without their knowledge or consent; and if he will make a statement; [14127]

(2) what guidance and legislation applies to staff of accident and emergency departments on testing girls under the age of 10 years for pregnancy without their knowledge or agreement or that of their parents. [14126]

Ms Blears [holding answer 12 November 2001]: In treating a child, the welfare of the child must be paramount. While in most circumstances we would expect a child and, where relevant, his or her parents to be involved in decisions about that child's treatment or care, in certain circumstances—for example emergencies—this may not be possible.

A range of tests would be carried out in the case of abdominal pain, intended to facilitate a diagnosis, dependent upon whether or not the health professional involved considers the test to be an appropriate medical response to the symptoms presented. Ectopic pregnancy can be life threatening. The test described does not involve any form of physical intervention as the child is asked to give samples to enable the tests, and will voluntarily agree to provide these samples. Therefore there can be no question of assault by staff. The potential of pregnancy in a very young child may raise the question of abuse which, once the child's health has been safeguarded, may require further investigation. Following the case of Gillick, the courts have held that children who have sufficient understanding and intelligence to enable them to understand fully what is involved in an intervention will also have the capacity to consent to that intervention.

While there is no English statute setting out the general principles of consent, case law ("common law") exists. The Department has published the "Reference Guide to Consent for Examination or Treatment", (March 2001) which provides guidance in this respect. This states:

> "A life threatening emergency may arise when consultation with either a person with parental responsibility or the court is impossible, or the persons with parental responsibility refuse consent despite such emergency treatment appearing to be in the best interests of the child. In such cases the courts have stated that doubt should be resolved in favour of the preservation of life and it will be acceptable to undertake treatment to preserve life or prevent serious damage to health".
> (Section 3.8.5, page 17.)

In respect of adults, except in strictly defined circumstances (for example under the Mental Health Act) an adult cannot be subjected to a test which involves a physical intervention without his or her consent if the person is capable of giving it. If the person lacks capacity to consent, in England and Wales the test can be carried out if it is in the best interests of the person concerned. The law in Scotland is somewhat different.

We announced in the NHS Plan (paragraph 10.22) that we intend to ensure that good practice in consent for examination and treatment is in place in clinical and research settings, with changes to be introduced from the end of 2001. Guidance for health professionals and leaflets for patients have been produced to inform people about their rights and responsibilities earlier this year. Ministers are currently considering a model consent policy and revised consent forms for the national health service.

Endometriosis

Mrs. Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many cases of endometriosis diagnosed at (a) Dorset County, (b) Poole General and (c) Royal Bournemouth hospitals in the 1999–2000 data year were classified stage three or four; [13943]

(2) how many endometriosis patients from Dorset were referred out of county for laser treatment during the data year 1999–2000; [13944]

(3) how many cases of endometriosis were diagnosed in the 1999–2000 data year at (a) Dorset County, (b) Poole General and (c) Royal Bournemouth hospitals. [13942]

Ms Blears [holding answer 14 November 2001]: The Department does not collect information showing the number of patients diagnosed with endometriosis, or the classification of the condition. The hon. Member may wish to contact the chief executives of the national health service trusts concerned for further information.

Information from the health episode statistics database shows that no patients from Dorset were referred out of the health authority area for laser treatment for endometriosis.

NHS Reconfiguration Panel

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on the composition of the NHS reconfiguration panel; when he expects appointments to this body will be made; what the remit of the panel is; and what measures he is taking to ensure its independence. [14301]

Ms Blears [holding answer 14 November 2001]: Composition of the independent reconfiguration panel (IRP) will follow the modernisation board model of one third professionals, one third managers and one third patients' and citizens' representatives. Dr. Peter Barrett has been appointed chair of the IRP. The members are being selected through open competition and the interviews are due to take place shortly. The aim is to complete the appointments process by the end of the year.

The panel's draft terms of reference were outlined in the press release accompanying Dr. Barrett's appointment. These will need to be agreed with the panel membership before being confirmed. The panel will provide authoritative advice to the Secretary of State on referred proposals for national health service service change. The panel will publish the advice it gives in relation to each proposal referred to them by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State.

The IRP will have a crucial role in advising on the outcome of significant reconfigurations, making the process more transparent and accountable. It is important to have public confidence in the panel and the processes it will use in its deliberations.

We propose to hold a simulation exercise early in the new year to which all major stakeholders will be invited to participate. We are also committed to consulting widely on the criteria that the panel will use. The simulation exercise will form part of the consultation process.

Electro-convulsive Therapy

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the trends have been in the use of electro-convulsive therapy in the last 15 years; and what research his Department has undertaken into the trends. [14937]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 15 November 2001]: The most recent information available concerning trends in the administration of electro-convulsive therapy (ECT) is contained in the one-off survey covering the period from January 1999 to March 1999, England only, that was undertaken to provide an up-to-date and accurate snapshot picture of the use of electro-convulsive therapy (ECT). A copy of this document is available in the Library.

The results of the ECT survey showed that in keeping with the trend from 1985 through 1999–91 the number of administrations of ECT has declined. The estimated 65,930 administrations of ECT compares with 105,466 reported administrations in 1990–91 and 137,940 in 1985.

Waiting Lists

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people have been waiting more than 13 weeks for an out-patient appointment (a) on the latest day for which figures are available and (b) for the previous quarter, in the Mid Essex hospital trust area. [14966]

Mr. Hutton: The information requested is given in the table.

Total number of patients waiting 13 weeks or more for an outpatient appointment at Mid Essex hospital services national health service trust at quarter 1 2001–02 (June 2001) and quarter 2 2001–02 (September 2001).

Number of patients waiting over 13 weeks

2001–02	Number
Quarter 1 (June 2001)	2,146
Quarter 2 (September 2001)	2,439

Source:
QM08 quarterly return

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people were (a) waiting for inpatient treatment and (b) waiting more than 12 months for inpatient treatment, on the latest day for which figures are available in the Mid Essex Hospital Trust area. [14967]

Jacqui Smith: The information requested is given in the table.

Total number of patients waiting and the number of patients waiting over 12 months for hospital treatment at Mid Essex hospital services national health service trust in September 2001.

	Number
September 2001
Total waiting	8,968
Waiting over 12 months	683

Source:
Monthly waiting list return

Digital Hearing Aids

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if the July 2000 NICE guidance on NHS audiology services and digital hearing aids was published before the financial contract for the NHS bulk purchasing of digital hearing aids for the first wave sites had been completed. [15677]

Jacqui Smith: Yes. The National Institute for Clinical Excellence guidance was published in July 2000 and the bulk purchasing contract was completed at the beginning of October 2000.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if he will set out the timetable for the evaluation of digital hearing aids under the 20 first wave sites; [15680]

(2) what guidance his Department has given to the 20 NHS sites providing digital hearing aids for the financial year 2002–03; [15681]

(3) pursuant to his answer to the hon. Member for Vale of York (Miss McIntosh) of 29 October 2001, Official Report, column 560W, on digital hearing aids, what evaluation has been made of the impact that an extra £25 million extra expenditure on audiology services will have; and by what date his Department expects to make a decision as to the speed and scale of the modernisation of NHS audiology services. [15676]

Jacqui Smith: Twenty national health service trusts are participating in the modernising hearing aid services pilot project, which is addressing the most effective hearing aids for NHS patients, the best ways of supplying hearing aids and how a modernised hearing aid service can best be delivered to NHS patients. £11 million has been invested since May 2000 and up to 18,000 people will have benefited by March 2002.

The Institute of Hearing Research is evaluating the modernisation project on behalf of the Department. Interim reports have been made available to the Department, based on limited data at this stage, suggesting that there is benefit to patients from a digital hearing aid fitted in a modernised service. The evaluation is on-going and further reports are expected to be available in March and December 2002.

Detailed guidance on patient protocols, when to fit various aids etc., has been given to those sites participating in the pilot. Guidance will be updated based on the experience of the pilot sites. Subject to favourable evaluation, we will make decisions about how best to spread the modernised services, including the provision of digital hearing aids, throughout the NHS. We have earmarked funds to begin roll-out and up to £25 million will be invested by 2003–04 subject to further favourable evaluation. Funding decisions for 2002–03 will be made in time to allow sites to make plans for delivering services for that financial year.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department is taking to monitor the number of people who have decided to purchase digital hearing aids from overseas. [15678]

Jacqui Smith: No such steps are being taken. People who purchase digital hearing aids overseas are not required to inform the Department of their purchase.

NHS Plan

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list the sponsors for the public consultation to confer on the NHS plan referred to in Annex E (p112) of the Department's Annual report 2001. [15418]

Mr. Hutton: The sponsors in kind who helped us with the distribution of the NHS Plan by making copies available on their shelves were five retail chains: Safeway, Morrisons, Waitrose, Tesco and Sainsbury; and three high street pharmaceutical chains: Boots, Lloyds and Superdrug.

Osteoporosis

Linda Gilroy: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what steps he will take to encourage primary care organisations to consider the recommendations in "Primary Care Strategy for Falls and Osteoporosis", published by the National Osteoporosis Society in July; [10210]

(2) what was the cost to the health service of dealing with osteoporotic fractures in each of the last three years; [10211]

(3) what estimate he has made of the impact which recommendations in the "Primary Care Strategy for Falls and Osteoporosis", published by the National Osteoporosis Society in July, could have on reducing the number of fractures which the health service has to deal with; [10208]

(4) what estimate he has made of the impact which recommendations in "Primary Care Strategy for Falls and Osteoporosis", published by the National Osteoporosis Society in July, could have on reducing the cost to the national health service of dealing with fractures. [10209]

Jacqui Smith: The latest evidence suggests that the annual cost of hip fractures in the United Kingdom is in excess of £1.7 billion. Hip fractures are caused mainly by osteoporosis. Through the National Service Framework for Older People we have signalled the importance of addressing osteoporosis. This document sets targets and milestones for local health and social care systems to establish an integrated falls service, which will include appropriate interventions and advice to prevent osteoporotic fracture.

We welcome the National Osteoporosis Society's primary care strategy for falls and osteoporosis. This strategy, involving many different agencies, is an excellent example of the type of integrated approach that is likely to be successful in the long term. We hope that local health care providers make its implementation a priority in their work to develop the osteoporosis aspects of integrated falls services.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many named day parliamentary written questions were tabled to his Department between 15 October and 5 November; and what proportion of these have received holding answers. [13308]

Jacqui Smith: The Department received 345 named day parliamentary questions in the period 15 October to 5 November, 61 per cent. received a holding answer.

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proportion of those named day parliamentary written questions to his Department that received a holding answer between 15 October and 5 November received the substantive answer (a) within three parliamentary days, (b) within seven parliamentary days, (c) within 10 parliamentary days, (d) within 15 parliamentary days and (e) over 15 parliamentary days after the holding answer was issued. [13327]

Jacqui Smith: The information requested is as follows:

Substantively answered within three days—69 per cent.

Substantively answered within seven days—15 per cent.

Substantively answered within 10 days—9 per cent.

Substantively answered within 15 days—1 per cent.

Substantively answered over 15 days—0 per cent.

A further 6 per cent. are still to be answered.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Holocaust Memorial Day

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will make a statement on the decision of the BBC not to televise Holocaust Memorial Day 2002. [14720]

Dr. Howells: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given to him by the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department my hon. Friend the Member for Wallasey (Angela Eagle), on 13 November 2001, Official Report, columns 638–39W.

European Year of People with Disabilities

Mr. Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will make a statement on her plans for the 2003 European Year of People with Disabilities. [14831]

Dr. Howells: National plans for the 2003 European Year of People with Disabilities are still in an embryonic state. The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, my hon. Friend the Member for Liverpool, Garston is leading on this issue, and I understand that a decision to approve the formation of the National Co-ordinating Committee will not be taken until 3 December. I will be pleased to consider what contribution would be most appropriate for my Department when this is requested.

WPC Kaur

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) at the employment tribunal hearing of the claim by WPC Kaur, how many days were taken (a) by the claimants' case and (b) by the response on her behalf; when the judgment is expected; and if she will instruct the Royal Park Constabulary not to stop paying WPC Kaur before the judgment is given; [15283]

(2) if she (a) instructed him not to and (b) was informed that the former head of the Royal Parks Constabulary did not give oral evidence on her behalf in the employment tribunal case of WPC Kaur. [15284]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 15 November 2001]: Responsibility for the subject of these questions has been delegated to the Royal Parks Agency under its chief executive, William Weston. I have asked him to arrange for replies to be given.

Letter from William Weston to Mr. Peter Bottomley, dated 16 November 2001:

I have been asked by the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport to reply to your Parliamentary Questions about the tribunal involving PC Kaur because this is an operational matter that is the responsibility of the Royal Parks Agency.

The industrial tribunal sat on a number of days between 24th September and 17th October. During that time the presentation of the claimant's case took six and a half days and the case for the Secretary of State took five and a half days. No indication was given as to when a judgement will be forthcoming.

The former Chief Officer of the Royal Parks was not called to give evidence. The former Deputy Chief Officer was due to give evidence but was unable to do so because he was unwell. We would not expect to inform the Secretary of State about such a detail of the proceedings unless it was of particular significance.

The question of how PC Kaur is paid is not related to the period of the tribunal. We have been paying her according to the procedures for paying all staff in the Agency (and the Royal Parks Constabulary) who are absent from work through sickness and we will continue to pay her on this basis, regardless of when the judgement of the tribunal is made known.

Ofcom

Annabelle Ewing: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what her plans are for representation for Scotland on the proposed Ofcom; and if she will make a statement. [15066]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 15 November 2001]: The draft Communications Bill to be published in spring 2002 will contain details of how the interests of Scotland will be represented within Ofcom.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) how many named day parliamentary written questions were tabled to her Department between 15 October and 5 November; and what proportion of these have received holding answers; [13315]

(2) what proportion of those named day parliamentary written questions to her Department that received a holding answer between 15 October and 5 November received the substantive answer (a) within three parliamentary days, (b) within seven parliamentary days, (c) within 10 parliamentary days, (d) within 15 parliamentary days and (e) over 15 parliamentary days after the holding answer was issued. [13334]

Dr. Howells: Of the 44 named day written questions tabled to the Department between 15 October 2001 and 5 November 2001, 27 received holding answers. Of these, 20 received substantive answers within three parliamentary days, four within seven parliamentary days, two within 10 parliamentary days, and one within 15 parliamentary days of the holding answer being issued.

Fair Trade

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what her Department's policy is in relation to departmental spending for supplies concerning the purchase of fair trade goods. [15202]

Dr. Howells: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport recognises the public desire to purchase ethically and environmentally sound goods where this is practical. It is inherent in the Department's environmental management system that it should seek to influence the supply chain in favour of fair trade type goods but, at the same time the expenditure of public money demands that procurement must achieve value for money via a competitive market. Where fair trade can compete successfully against other suppliers for cost, quality and service the Department will give preference to the ethical and environmentally acceptable option.

DEFENCE

HMS Ocean

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, (1) pursuant to his answer to the hon. Member for New Forest, West (Mr. Swayne) of 30 October 2001, Official Report, column 659W, for what reason the docking period for HMS Ocean planned for early 2002 has been brought forward; if its four month duration can be shortened; and which Lloyd's Survey Standards it is designed to achieve; [13428]

(2) when HMS Ocean will be ready for deployment; [13423]

(3 whether repairs other than routine maintenance are required on HMS Ocean. [13424]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 8 November 2001]: I refer the hon. Member to the answers I gave to the hon. Member for Vale of York (Miss McIntosh) on 2 November 2001, Official Report, column 877W, and the hon. Member for Portsmouth, South (Mr. Hancock) on 9 November 2001, Official Report, column 433W.

While it would have been possible to reduce the duration of the now deferred docking period, the optimum solution in the current operational circumstances is to carry out the shorter assisted maintenance period at Ocean's home port of Portsmouth, rather than dock the vessel. This will also maximise the time ships staff can spend with their families before rejoining the vessel if she is required for operational deployment.

A number of surveys to meet Lloyd's standard are undertaken over a period of time to assess the vessel's condition. Many of these surveys can be completed while the vessel is afloat but those which can be undertaken only in dock will be deferred until the docking period. This will not affect the ability of the vessel to operate safely.

Public-private Partnerships

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the projects in his Department which have been considered as potential public private partnerships since 1997 which have not been undertaken because the public sector comparator had a lower net present value than the public private partnership proposed; and if he will make a statement. [13435]

Mr. Ingram: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by the Chief Secretary on 13 November 2001, Official Report, column 607W. Rigorous appraisal processes are applied to public-private partnerships to ensure that they are workable and appropriate, as well as economic. This usually means that we can confirm the viability or otherwise of a project at an early stage. There have been no cases in the last four years within defence where it has been decided not to proceed with a project because of financial comparisons with the public sector comparator.

RAF St. Athan

Mr. John Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has for the future of RAF St. Athan; and if he will make a statement. [15155]

Mr. Ingram: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave him on 20 July 2001, Official Report, column 706W. The position remains that we are continuing to work closely with all stakeholders to develop a solution for the St. Athan site. An announcement will be made once this work is complete.

Recruitment

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence of those recruited to the armed forces, how many have successfully completed initial training at depots in each of the last 10 years. [14029]

Mr. Ingram: The information is not held in the format or period requested. Details that are available are set out in the table.

Year	Intake	Gains to trained strength
Naval service
1995–96	2,337	1,483
1996–97	3,959	2,144
1997–98	4,600	2,959
1998–99	4,767	3,028
1999–2000	4,953	3,314
2000–01	4,623	[illegible]
Army
1995–96	12,911	7,194
1996–97	15,522	8,718
1997–98	15,379	9,492
1998–99	16,963	9,331
1999–2000	16,483	10,472
2000–01	14,714	9,994
RAF
1995–96	2,424	2,032
1996–97	2,684	2,292
1997–98	3,526	3,074
1998–99	4,246	3,477
1999–2000	4,097	3,433
2000–01	3,632	3,072

For all of the services there is limited correlation between intake and gains to the trained strength because the date of entry and date of completing training will often fall in different financial years.The figures reflect not just the completion of basic training but also the initial specialist training required to allow each person to join the trained strength of his/her service.

Defence Aviation Repair Agency

Mr. John Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when the Defence Aviation Repair Agency requested the assistance of the Welsh Development Agency to facilitate the relocation of the fixed wing aircraft repair business from RAF St. Athan to Cardiff International Airport. [15156]

Mr. Ingram: Informal discussions initially took place between the Defence Aviation Repair Agency (DARA) and the Welsh Development Agency (WDA) during October and November 2000. DARA gave a formal presentation to the WDA on 12 December 2000 detailing the business development needs at DARA's sites in Wales (St. Athan and Sealand).

Mr. John Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the cost of retaining four sites within the Defence Aviation Repair Agency. [15154]

Mr. Ingram: No formal assessment of the cost of retaining four sites within the Defence Aviation Repair Agency (DARA) has been carried out. I refer my hon. Friend to the letter by the then Minister of State for the armed forces, Mr. Spellar, dated 31 January 2001, which gives a breakdown of the actual cost for running the four sites in financial year 1999–2000, copies of which were placed in the Library of the House.

Afghanistan

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to his answer of 2 November 2001, Official Report, column 874, on Afghanistan, what his estimate is of how many civilians have been killed as a result of Coalition action; and how many actions have caused unintended (a) injury and (b) damage. [15623]

Mr. Ingram: We cannot estimate the number of civilian casualties or the number of actions that have caused unintended injury or damage because we have no means of independently verifying the allegations made in Afghanistan.

As has regularly been made clear in the House, our targeting processes are rigorous and every effort is made to avoid civilian casualties and damage to non-military equipment and buildings.

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the deployment of British forces in Afghanistan. [15343]

Mr. Hoon: I refer my hon. Friend to the statement my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister gave to the House on 14 November 2001, Official Report, columns 861–79.

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to his answer of 2 November 2001, Official Report, column 874W, on Afghanistan, how many claims of damage to civilian life and property have been carefully investigated; which agencies are responsible for investigating such claims; and if he will place (a) copies of those claims and (b) the results of the investigations made by the Coalition in the Library. [15629]

Mr. Ingram: I will write to my hon. Friend and a copy of my letter will be placed in the Library of the House.

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to his answer of 2 November 2001, Official Report, column 874W, on Afghanistan, how many battle damage assessment reports he has received; and how many attacks on a target were over 50 per cent. successful. [15628]

Mr. Ingram: I receive regular Battle Damage Assessment reports and am kept updated on significant developments. The success of missions is not measured in terms of a percentage but against the achievement of military objectives. Our objectives of destroying terrorist camps and creating the right conditions for future action in Afghanistan, including possible humanitarian or stabilisation operations, have been met. As recent events show, we are also making progress on our objective of limiting the Taliban's ability to protect and support Osama bin Laden and the al-Quaeda organisation.

Departmental Assets

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the value of his Department's assets holdings is, broken down by asset holder, under the headings of (a) Land & Buildings Scotland, (b) Land & Buildings UK, (c) Land & Buildings Overseas, (d) Fighting Equipment, (e) Nuclear Submarine Fleet, (f) Nuclear Missile Capacity, (g) Heritage Assets, (h) Plant & Machinery, (i) Vehicles and (j) Investments, in the last financial year for which figures are available. [15220]

Mr. Ingram: Information on asset values for the 1999–2000 financial year is contained in the Ministry of Defence section (Section 7) of the National Asset Register published by the Treasury in July 2001. The register lists asset holdings by Top Level Budget Holder and Agency Chief Executive in the asset categories agreed by the Treasury. A copy of the register is available in the Library of the House. Providing the information in the format requested could be done only at disproportionate cost.

Information on our asset holdings for 2000–01 will be published in the Departmental Resource Accounts in December. These will provide a breakdown by Treasury category at MOD departmental level.

Northern Ireland

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many troops have been stationed in Northern Ireland in each of the last 10 years. [13774]

Mr. Ingram: The number of Armed Forces personnel stationed in Northern Ireland in each of the last 10 years is set out in the table.

As at 31 October	Number of troops
1991	17,962
1992	18,982
1993	19,022
1994	18,345
1995	17,070
1996	16,490
1997	16,716
1998	15,566
1999	14,459
2000	13,640
2001	13,820

Swift Sword II

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many battle groups exercised within 1 Armoured Division during exercise Swift Sword II. [14030]

Mr. Ingram: The UK Land contribution to Exercise Saif Sareea II comprised Headquarters 1 UK Armoured Division, 3 Commando Brigade, 4 Armoured Brigade and 102 Logistic Brigade. Of this force, 4 Armoured Brigade, commanding two fully equipped armoured battlegroups, came under the command of 1 UK Division.

Short Service Commissions

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the conversion rate of short service to regular commissions in each of the last 10 years. [13704]

Mr. Ingram: Lists of the conversion rate of short service to regular commissions in each of the last 10 years are shown by individual service in the tables.

All naval service officers (trained and untrained)

Year	Short commission strength	Conversions	Rate (percentage)
1991–92	1,659	'134	8.1
1992–93	1,560	'128	8.2
1993–94	1,450	'101	7.0
1994–95	1,299	'75	5.8
1995–96	1,201	'123	10.2
1996–97	1,204	'167	13.9
1997–98	1,158	'184	15.9

All naval service officers (trained and untrained)

Year	Short commission strength	Conversions	Rate (percentage)
1998–99	1,089	[1]179	16.4
1999–2000	1,383	180	13.0
2000–01	1,694	233	13.7

[1] Incomplete data

Note:

Some of the information requested is not held as complete data, and the tables are marked accordingly.

Army officers trained strength

	SSC start strength	Conversions to Reg. C	Rate (percentage)
1 April 1991	4,721	596	12.6
1 April 1992	4,506	507	11.3
1 April 1993	4,264	387	9.1
1 April 1994	3,770	320	8.5
1 April 1995	3,417	272	8.0
1 April 1996	3,174	247	7.8
1 April 1997	3,162	259	8.2
1 April 1998	3,314	254	7.7
1 April 1999	3,237	173	5.3
1 April 2000	3,164	119	3.8

Note:

Until the 'Stepping Stone' approach to commissions was introduced on 1 March 1999, short service commission (SSC) officers could convert to regular commission (Reg. C) or special regular commission (SRC). Subsequently, the standard progression has been from SSC to intermediate regular commission (IRC) and then to Reg. C. As a result, fewer officers now go direct from SSC to Reg. C.

Statistics for transfers to IRC are not yet to hand. I will write to the hon. Member with these statistics when they are available and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

All RAF officers (trained and untrained)

	Conversions SSC to permanent commission
	SSC strength	Conversions	Rate (percentage)
1991–92	1,614	133	8
1992–93	1,621	182	11
1993–94	1,460	159	11
1994–95	1,260	115	9
1995–96	1,018	93	9
1996–97	799	103	13
1997–98	626	162	26
1998–99	513	102	20
1999–2000	570	126	22
2000–01	574	125	22

Cluster Bombs

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what evaluation has been made by (a) the UK and (b) its allies of the use of cluster bombs in Kosovo, with particular respect to the impact of these weapons on civilians (i) during and (ii) after hostilities. [15669]

Mr. Ingram: 531 RBL 755 cluster bombs were dropped by the RAF during Operation Allied Force. We assessed them to have performed reliably and within their specification. I have no information on allies' evaluation of similar weapons.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many named day parliamentary written questions were tabled to his Department between 15 October and 5 November; and what proportion of these have received holding answers. [13311]

Mr. Ingram: According to our records, 153 named day parliamentary written questions were tabled to the Ministry of Defence between 15 October and 5 November. The proportion which received a holding reply is 35 per cent.

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what proportion of those named day parliamentary written questions to his Department that received a holding answer between 15 October and 5 November received the substantive answer (a) within three parliamentary days, (b) within seven parliamentary days, (c) within 10 parliamentary days, (d) within 15 parliamentary days and (e) over 15 parliamentary days after the holding answer was issued. [13330]

Mr. Ingram: According to our records 153 named day parliamentary questions were tabled to the Ministry of Defence between 15 October and 5 November. I am unable to provide details in the format requested, however, the table gives details of those questions which received an answer within the time scale specified:

	Number
Within three parliamentary days	15
Within seven parliamentary days	1
Within 10 parliamentary days	0
Within 15 parliamentary days	0
Over 15 parliamentary days	1

These figures include answers which gave an undertaking to write to hon. Members.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Review Bodies

Mr. Bryant: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what task forces, ad hoc advisory groups and reviews established since 2 May 1997 were in existence between 1 April 2000 and 31 March 2001. [15832]

Mr. Leslie: I have today placed this information in the Libraries of the House, in the form of an annual report; a copy is also being placed in the Vote Office. Future reports will be published annually.

Task forces, advisory groups and reviews provide independent, expert advice to Government on a wide range of issues. These are an effective means of securing high quality advice on matters of real public concern and they seek to operate in as open and transparent a way as possible. While they are not a new phenomenon, it is only since 1997 that detailed information on them has been public.

Pension Mis-selling

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what his estimate is of the total lump sum cash payment received by the civil service pension schemes from transfers back into such schemes as a result of the outcome of private pension mis-selling; and if he will estimate the sums still to come. [12655]

Mr. Leslie: This information is not held centrally and the information below has been collected from scheme administrators.

The total amount received for the last three complete financial years (1998–99, 1999–2000 and 2000–01) is £7,147,792. This does not include any amounts received in respect of staff employed by either the Ministry of Defence or the Crown Prosecution Service for 1998–99 as these figures are not available.

I cannot estimate any sums still to be received. It is for those who have mis-sold pension policies to identify cases and, under the relevant Financial Services Authority guidelines, make restoration payments to the PCSPS.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Burns: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister (1) how many named day parliamentary written questions were tabled to his Department between 15 October and 5 November; and what proportion of these have received holding answers; [13298]

(2) what proportion of those named day parliamentary written questions to his Department that received a holding answer between 15 October and 5 November received the substantive answer (a) within three parliamentary days, (b) within seven parliamentary days, (c) within 10 parliamentary days, (d) within 15 parliamentary days and (e) over 15 parliamentary days after the holding answer was issued. [13317]

Mr. Leslie: During the period queried the Cabinet Office received 20 named day questions of which seven (equating to 35 per cent.) had holding replies.

Of these seven holding replies, one parliamentary question was answered within three parliamentary days; two were answered within seven parliamentary days; one was answered within 10 parliamentary days; and three were answered within 15 parliamentary days.

People's Panel

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister with effect from which date the People's Panel has been wound up. [15374]

Mr. Leslie: The People's Panel has not been wound up. The contract with MORI does not expire until the end of January 2002. By that time, decisions will have been made about the future of the panel.

Regeneration

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister for each (a) area-based and (b) other regeneration-related initiative for which his Department is responsible, what is (i) the amount budgeted and (ii) the total expenditure in each financial year for the planned lifetime of each initiative (A) nationally and (B) in the Middlesbrough, South and Cleveland, East constituency. [14883]

Mrs. Roche: The Deputy Prime Minister is responsible for the Government Office network which administers initiatives of the type referred to on behalf of other Departments. The budgets for such initiatives are the responsibility of the Secretaries of State for those Departments.

Regional Schemes

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what regional schemes are in operation in the Middlesbrough, South and Cleveland, East constituency. [14882]

Mrs. Roche: The Government office for the north east administers the following major schemes operating in the Middlesbrough, South and Cleveland, East constituency:

Programmes under the Local Transport Plan;

Programmes under Objectives 2 and 3 European funding;

Regional Selective Assistance;

The Housing Investment Programme; and Neighbourhood Renewal Fund.

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what regional schemes are managed by the Government Office for the North East; how long they will run; and how much investment is involved. [14881]

Mrs. Roche: The Government Office for the North East delivers many programmes in the region for a number of government departments. Major programme expenditure includes:

£458 million to improve transport infrastructure for five years (2001–06);

£434 million over the years 2000–06 by the European Commission under the European Structural Funds;

£215 million under the New Deal for Communities initiative over 10 years (2000 and 2011);

£186 million under the Regional Selective Assistance scheme between 1997 and 2001;

£175 million in 2001–02 under the Housing Investment Programme;

£119 million under the Neighbourhood Renewal Fund initiative over 3 years (2001–04).

48-hour Week (Waivers)

Mr. Rosindell: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many civil servants in each Department have signed waivers to work voluntarily more than 48 hours per week; for how many the Minister has rescinded such a waiver; what grade of civil servant is involved; for what reason the waiver was requested; by whom; and if he will make a statement on his policy. [15171]

Mr. Leslie: This information is not held centrally. It could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

It is for individual departments and agencies to put into place measures which they consider necessary to ensure compliance with the Regulations.

Technologies Advisory Group

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what is (a) the remit and (b) the membership of the Technologies Advisory Group. [15200]

Mr. Leslie: The Technical Advisory Group (recently renamed as the Technology Advisory Group) was formed by the Office of the e-Envoy earlier this year to enable government to obtain the views of expert and representative members of the Technology, Media and Telecoms Sectors and other industry on technology issues affecting the realisation of the e-government vision. The mechanism also enables industry to gain a clearer understanding of the current and possible future direction of e-government. The full terms of reference for the Group are at Annex A.

The membership of the Group is a cross-section of experts mainly at Technical Director level drawn by invitation from twenty or so industry leading organisations. The Department of Trade and Industry, the Society of IT Managers (SOCITM) and the Computer Software Services Association (CSSA) are also represented. A full list of members is attached at Annex B.

The group met for the first time in July and a second meeting was held in September. The next meeting is planned for December 2001. The subject matter has included the e-Government Interoperability Framework (the e-GIF), Public Key Infrastructure (PKI) and Channels Strategies for e-government services.

A sister group, the E-business Advisory Group (EAG), was also established this year with a remit to provide views on how best to introduce e-business ideas and approaches across the Public Sector.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Antisocial Behaviour Orders

Mr. Stinchcombe: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the cost to local authorities of seeking antisocial behaviour orders. [12026]

Mr. Denham: Based on a survey of 21 cases conducted in April this year, the average cost of applying for an antisocial behaviour order was calculated to be £4,800. This is the cost to either the local authority or the police and includes staff costs associated with evidence gathering, preparing the case and attending court.

Mr. Stinchcombe: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the time taken to obtain antisocial behaviour orders broken down by the time taken to (a) collect evidence, (b) consult with interested parties and (c) complete court proceedings; and if he will make a statement. [12025]

Mr. Denham: This information is not available centrally.

Dyfed-Powys Police

Mr. Simon Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, pursuant to his reply to the hon. Member for Ceredigion of 24 October 2001, Official Report, column 67W, on police suspensions, what is the cost of the suspension of the officers in the Aberystwyth division of Dyfed-Powys police since September and December 1999. [12284]

Mr. Denham [holding answer 2 November 2001]: The Professional Standards Department of Dyfed-Powys police has informed me that the two officers from the Aberystwyth division were suspended on full pay in accordance with Police Regulations. At the time of suspension, one officer was in receipt of an annual salary of £22,323; the second officer was in receipt of an annual salary of £23,787.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what proportion of those named day parliamentary written questions to his Department that received a holding answer between 15 October and 5 November received the substantive answer (a) within three parliamentary days, (b) within seven parliamentary days, (c) within 10 parliamentary days, (d) within 15 parliamentary days and (e) over 15 parliamentary days after the holding answer was issued; [13322]

(2) how many named day parliamentary written questions were tabled to his Department between 15 October and 5 November, and what proportion of these have received holding answers. [13303]

Mr. Blunkett: 156 named day parliamentary written questions were tabled to the Home Department for answer between 15 October and 5 November. Of these, 92 (59 per cent.) were given a holding answer.

Of these 92 questions:

(a) 62 were given a substantive answer within three parliamentary days,

(b) 12 were given a substantive answer between four and seven parliamentary days,

(c) seven were given a substantive answer between eight and 10 parliamentary days,

(d) seven were given a substantive answer between 11 and 15 parliamentary days, and

(e) three were given a substantive answer over 15 parliamentary days after the holding answer was issued.

A further one has yet to be answered.

Special Constables

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many special constables there were in the (a) City of London and (b) Metropolitan police area in (i) May 1997 and (ii) for the latest month for which figures are available based on current police area boundaries; [12408]

(2) how many special constables there were in the (a) City of London and (b) Metropolitan police area in (i) May 1997 based on old police area boundaries and (ii) for the latest month for which figures are available, based on current boundaries. [12407]

Mr. Denham [holding answer 5 November 2001]: The strength of the City of London and Metropolitan police special constabularies as at March 1997 and March 2001, the latest date for which figures on special constabulary strength are available, are set out in the table:

	March 1997	March 2001
City of London police	86	43
Metropolitan police	1,714	774

The boundary of the Metropolitan police district was redrawn with effect from April 2000, with responsibility for policing areas outside the London boroughs being transferred to Essex, Hertfordshire and Surrey constabularies.

The Government are committed to increasing the special constabulary and as part of the police reform process we are looking at radical improvements in the management, welfare and deployment of special constables.

Islamic Radicals (Extradition)

Mr. Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department on how many occasions since May 1997 requests for extradition of Islamic radicals based in the United Kingdom have been turned down; and if he will make a statement. [14830]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: None.

Police Resignations

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many resignations there were from the police force in the year to March (a) 1997 and (b) 2001 due to (i) medical and (ii) other reasons. [9724]

Mr. Denham [holding answer 24 October 2001]: The information requested is in the table provided by Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Constabulary.

	Medical retirements		Other reasons
Forces	1996–97	2000–01	1996–97	2000–01
England and Wales	2,012	1,209	3,340	4,244
Avon and Somerset	66	42	113	89
Bedfordshire	15	18	35	33
Cambridgeshire	20	11	39	55
Cheshire	19	22	45	57
City of London	7	9	30	29
Cleveland	22	9	25	41
Cumbria	18	24	40	37
Derbyshire	39	12	32	39
Devon and Cornwall	21	15	106	116
Dorset	11	12	52	54
Durham	23	8	25	41
Dyfed-Powys	12	14	19	33
Essex	29	34	72	106
Gloucestershire	11	7	45	43
Greater Manchester	207	110	152	189
Gwent	28	16	26	34
Hampshire	21	17	111	167
Hertfordshire	10	13	64	99
Humberside	19	20	47	98
Kent	15	29	108	124
Lancashire	36	30	70	99
Leicestershire	29	28	44	50
Lincolnshire	11	4	42	49
Merseyside	167	47	73	109
Metropolitan police	457	225	623	917
Norfolk	15	10	65	49
North Wales	33	31	27	44
North Yorkshire	39	37	22	30
Northamptonshire	14	8	23	38
Northumbria	85	28	78	100
Nottinghamshire	34	16	43	71
South Wales	43	76	92	69
South Yorkshire	33	30	61	99
Staffordshire	47	9	54	56
Suffolk	22	14	40	50
Surrey	24	18	56	74
Sussex	42	16	143	134
Thames Valley	55	20	94	165
Warwickshire	10	15	21	31
West Mercia	39	28	54	68
West Midlands	96	29	228	252
West Yorkshire	57	44	136	161
Wiltshire	11	5	65	46

Domestic Violence

Mr. Blizzard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list, by police authority, the number of reported incidents of domestic violence for each of the last three years for which figures are available. [10213]

Mr. Denham: Details of the numbers of domestic violence incidents recorded by police forces, obtained from Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Constabulary Annual Statistical Return, are given in the table. The definition of domestic violence incidents used for the 1999–2000 and 2000–01 figures is as follows:

Any violence between current or former partners in an intimate relationship, wherever and whenever the violence occurs. The violence may include physical, sexual, emotional or financial abuse.

The figures for 1998–99 used the following definition:

Any form of physical, sexual or emotional abuse which takes place within the context of a close relationship. In most cases, the relationship will be between partners, married, cohabiting or otherwise; or ex-partners.

The figures for 1998–99 are therefore not directly comparable with those for 1999–2000 and 2000–01.

Domestic violence incidents

	Financial years
Forces	1998–99	1999–2000	2000–01
Avon and Somerset	4,791	9,973	9,210
Bedfordshire	4,923	5,474	5,616
Cambridgeshire	1,113	2,558	2,959
Cheshire	9,503	7,271	7,393
City of London	83	n/a	22
Cleveland	4,818	3,980	4,540
Cumbria	3,268	3,140	3,294
Derbyshire	12,585	9,872	n/a
Devon and Cornwall	3,453	3,611	2,957
Dorset	2,116	2,306	2,361
Durham	1,930	4,679	5,446
Dyfed-Powys	2,106	2,184	1,670
Essex	10,850	10,841	9,936
Gloucestershire	1,421	6,248	6,061
Greater Manchester	56,203	46,330	51,448
Gwent	4,250	4,603	3,150
Hampshire	3,128	3,856	10,513
Hertfordshire	6,363	6,373	6,228
Humberside	1,148	7,787	6,356
Kent	9,605	8,997	8,926
Lancashire	6,778	8,560	17,392
Leicestershire	7,246	5,631	3,320
Lincolnshire	1,519	738	278
Merseyside	20,612	19,801	16,663
Metropolitan police	41,531	77,099	91,154
Norfolk	4,973	5,567	5,811
Northamptonshire	2,620	4,422	2,843
Northumbria	14,442	10,336	11,898
North Wales	4,305	2,763	3,436
North Yorkshire	4,024	5,327	3,554
Nottinghamshire	3,803	3,799	4,054
South Wales	7,252	7,609	7,507
South Yorkshire	12,209	2,177	n/a
Staffordshire	n/a	9,482	10,868
Suffolk	1,962	495	2,307
Surrey	1,653	3,234	5,026
Sussex	8,174	9,300	10,083
Thames Valley	10,885	10,221	5,887
Warwickshire	2,500	2,687	3,360
West Mercia	n/a	1,866	6,383
West Midlands	20,362	25,225	31,328
West Yorkshire	23,658	26,271	18,604
Wiltshire	7,563	5,977	5,485
England and Wales	351,728	398,670	415,327

n/a = not available

Alcohol (Young People)

Vernon Coaker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions he had with the police prior to the amendment of the Confiscation of Alcohol (Young Persons) Act 1997 to the effect that only alcohol in unsealed containers may now be seized; and if he will make a statement. [12092]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 2 November 2001]: Section 29 of the Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 amends section 1 of the Confiscation of Alcohol (Young Persons) Act 1997 and increases the power of police in respect of under-age drinkers because it now allows them to confiscate alcohol, and alcohol containers which have been opened, from under-age drinkers in public places.

The 1997 Act was deliberately amended by the 2001 Act to ensure consistency between new police powers to confiscate alcohol (but not sealed alcohol containers) from any person in a public place designated for the purpose by the relevant local authority, and the measures contained within the 1997 Confiscation of Alcohol (Young Persons) Act.

Prior to the Act discussions on the provisions were held with representatives of the Association of Chief Police Officers and individual forces who had included confiscation powers within the model byelaw on banning drinking in public places.

Cemeteries

Colin Burgon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what his policy is with regard to the provision of new cemeteries. [13488]

Beverley Hughes: Burial facilities are currently provided by local organisations, including burial authorities, religious bodies and private companies, in response to local demand. Whether these arrangements need to be reinforced is a matter we intend to consider over the next year. As a first step, we propose shortly to seek information on existing burial space availability.

Illegal Drugs

Mr. Hawkins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the relationship between the street price and purity of (a) cocaine and (b) heroin in the last 10 years. [9464]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 22 October 2001]: Information on mean purity of seizures is available from April 1997 to March 2001 and this together with average street prices over the same period is set out in the table.

	1997–98	1998–99	1999–2000	2000–01
Heroin purity (percentage)	35.3	38.2	43.6	49.7
Price per gram (£)[1]	74	74	65	70
Cocaine purity (percentage)	52.3	55.9	60.2	53.5
Price per gram (£)[1]	71	77	75	65

[1] in December

Police Numbers (Essex)

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) actual and (b) funded police officers there are in the county of Essex for the latest available date; and what were the same figures on 1 May 1997. [9734]

Mr. Denham [holding answer 26 October 2001]: The information for funded officers and the most recent strength data has been provided by the chief constable of Essex. The 1997 strength figures relate to 31 March 1997 as the Home Office collects police strength data in March and September for each year. The information is in the table.

Essex police

	31 March 1997	1 October 2001
Funded police officers	2,944	3,031
Actual police strength	2,961	2,974
Funded civilian support staff	1,425	1,747
Actual civilian staff strength	1,199	1,586

Notes:
1. Figures are full-time equivalents
2. The funded posts reflect budget provision by the police authority

Fraud (Police Staff Levels)

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many staff were employed (a) in each police fraud squad, including the City of London police fraud squad, and (b) in the economic and financial crime section of the National Criminal Intelligence Service, in each year since 1996. [11269]

Mr. Denham: (a) This information is not kept centrally and can be obtained only at disproportionate cost. However, for the last two years Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Constabulary has collected data from all forces in England and Wales according to a range of 62 staff functions, one of which is fraud. The staff function for fraud is defined as

> "staff who predominately investigate fraud cases (not including staff who are predominately employed in asset confiscation duties)"

and

> "staff who are predominately employed to support the investigation of fraud cases (not including staff who are predominately employed to support asset confiscation duties)".

The data are as follows:

	1999–2000		2000–01
Force	Police officer	Civilian staff	Police officer	Civilian staff
Avon and Somerset	17	1	15	2
Bedfordshire	8	1	13	3
Cambridgeshire	7	0	6	0
Cheshire	16	0	15	3
City of London	74	12	70	11
Cleveland	10	0	10	0
Cumbria	4	0	4	0
Derbyshire	10	1	12	1
Devon and Cornwall	10	0	18	5
Dorset	13	1	14	2
Durham	5	0	4	0
Dyfed-Powys	7	0	5	1
Essex	0	0	0	0
Gloucester	8	1	8	1
Greater Manchester	36	0	35	0
Gwent	5	0	5	0
Hampshire	11	3	12	3
Hertfordshire	10	0	11	0
Humberside	9	1	10	1
Kent	14	4	13	11
Lancashire	0	0	0	0
Leicester	0	0	7	0
Lincolnshire	7	0	7	0
Merseyside	0	4	0	4
Metropolitan police	118	0	68	2
Norfolk	7	0	7	0
North Wales	9	0	0	0
North Yorkshire	6	0	6	0
Northamptonshire	8	2	8	4
Northumbria	14	0	0	0
Nottinghamshire	11	1	17	1
South Wales	15	2	3	0
South Yorkshire	21	2	20	5
Staffordshire	10	2	10	2
Suffolk	6	0	8	2
Surrey	12	0	17	3
Sussex	2	1	0	2
Thames Valley	15	4	15	5
Warwickshire	1	0	6	1
West Mercia	7	0	5	0
West Midlands	28	12	29	9
West Yorkshire	42	0	43	0
Wiltshire	3	0	4	0
England and Wales	616	55	560	84

(b) The number of staff employed in the National Criminal Intelligence Service as at 1 April each year was:

Year	Number
1996	17
1997	16
1998	21
1999	24
2000	24
2001	54

Since April 2001, eight more staff have been recruited by the Economic Crime Unit and a further 18 people are currently being recruited. By the end of the financial year there will be 80 staff in the unit.

Police Numbers (Sussex)

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police officers have left Sussex constabulary since March 2000 through (a) retirement, (b) early retirement, (c) injury and (d) other employment. [11027]

Mr. Denham [holding answer 29 October 2001]: The information requested has been provided by the acting chief constable of Sussex police and is set out in the table.

Officers leaving Sussex police between March 2000 and September 2001

	Number
Retirement	142
Early (medical) retirement	35
Resignation	73
Transfer to new force	54
Other reasons[1]	11
Total	315

[1] Includes officers retiring while on sick leave, for disciplinary reasons, or leaving to return to their original force.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many new police officers have been taken on in each division of the Sussex constabulary since March 2000 under crime fighting fund funding. [11026]

Mr. Denham [holding answer 29 October 2001]: The number of crime fighting fund (CFF) funded recruits taken on by a force is calculated as a proportion of total recruitment. Sussex police recruited 47 officers funded by the CFF in 2000–01. Based on forecasts of recruitment for 2001–02 provided by the force, a further 26 Sussex recruits appointed between April and September 2001 will be funded by the CFF.

The distribution of CFF recruits within a police force area is a matter for the chief constable of that force. I am informed by the force that Sussex do not identify particular officers as CFF recruits but that the number per division is calculated using an allocation formula based on budgetary provision. For 2000–01 Sussex's CFF officers were distributed as follows:

	Number of officers
Brighton	8
East Downs	7
Forest	6
Highdown	6
Hove and Shoreham	4
Senlac	6
Weald	5
Western	5
Total	47

The force has not yet calculated the distribution of 2001–02 CFF recruits between divisions.

Religious Hatred

Mr. Malins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what consultations he has had with (a) the Law Society, (b) the Bar Council, (c) the Justices' Clerks, (d) the District Judges (magistrates courts), (e) the lay magistracy and (f) the Crown court judges in relation to the proposed law on religious incitement; and if he will place a summary of their responses in the Library. [13691]

Mr. Denham [holding answer 9 November 2001]: Because of the need to place an emergency anti-terrorism Bill before Parliament urgently, it has not been possible to undertake a formal consultation exercise.

Public-private Partnerships

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the projects in his Department which have been considered as potential public-private partnerships since 1997 which have not been undertaken because the public sector comparator had a lower net present value than the public private partnership proposed; and if he will make a statement. [13433]

Mr. Blunkett: From the best information available, there are no instances in this Department where a potential public-private partnership has not gone ahead due to the public sector comparator having a lower net present value than the public-private partnership proposed.

I would also refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my hon. Friend the Chief Secretary to the Treasury, to this question.

Communications Data

Brian White: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has to make data retention compulsory for internet and communications service providers. [13644]

Mr. Denham: I intend to work with service providers on a voluntary code on retention of communications data as part of the Anti-terrorism, Crime and Security Bill. This is an important element of our drive against terrorism and crime. I propose that compulsory powers should be held in reserve and subject to further consideration by Parliament.

Anti-terrorist Legislation

Brian White: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions he has had with internet and communications service providers about new anti-terrorist legislation. [13646]

Mr. Blunkett: Officials met representatives of service providers on 24 October to discuss provisions on communications data retention contained in the Anti-Terrorism, Crime and Security Bill. The meeting was a useful opportunity for Government at an early stage of the process to hear the views of industry representatives. The industry has of course been in dialogue with the Department of Trade and Industry over the last two months and we have reflected the representations made. As I said on 15 October in my statement to the House, we are very grateful to the providers. The Government look forward to continuing co-operation with industry on this important issue and to developing a code of practice with industry to implement the provisions of the Bill.

Afghanistan

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions he has had with his European counterparts about dealing with European nationals apprehended in Afghanistan taking arms against British military personnel. [12603]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 5 November 2001]: None at present.

Fair Trade

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what his Department's policy is in relation to departmental spending for supplies concerning the purchase of fair trade goods. [15208]

Beverley Hughes: The Home Department's policy on the procurement of goods and services is based on value for money principles, which include quality, fitness for purpose and delivery against price. Unless there are reasons to the contrary, all goods and services are acquired by competition. We fully support ethical trading in mainstream business and fair trade products will be purchased where they meet the stated criteria.

Departmental Publications

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much his Department spent on information literature, advertising and campaign material in the financial years (a) 1995–96, (b) 1996–97, (c) 1997–98, (d) 1998–99, (e) 1999–2000 and (f) 2000–01; and if he will make a statement. [12269]

Mr. Blunkett: Expenditure on information literature advertising and campaign material in the years specified is as follows.

	£ million
(a) 1995–96	10,869
(b) 1996–97	8,328
(c) 1997–98	3,372
(d) 1998–99	4,194
(e) 1999–2000	10,080
(f) 2000–01	35,637

Expenditure figures for years 1997–98 and 1998–99 cover the production of information literature, advertising and campaign material in the following subject areas; absent voting/electoral voting, accelerated promotion scheme for graduates (APSG) police, special constables recruitment and fire safety. No significant marketing campaigns were run in these financial years.

Expenditure in the years 1999–2000 and 2000–01 however, covers campaigns in the following areas: police recruitment, vehicle crime reduction, fire safety, rolling/electoral registration and postal voting, passports advice and the introduction of the Human Rights Act 1998.

In 2000–01 the main areas of expenditure were:

	£ million
Rolling registration and postal voting	7
Fire safety	5
Police recruitment	7.5
Crime (including vehicle crime reduction)	10

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Rural Payments Agency

Vernon Coaker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will make a statement on the abolition of the Intervention Board for Agricultural Produce and the progress towards agency status of the Rural Payments Agency; and if she will publish its framework document, corporate plan and business plan. [16242]

Mr. Morley: The Rural Payments Agency was launched as an executive agency of the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on 16 october 2001. It received accreditation as an EU paying agency on the same date. The chief executive is Mr. Johnston McNeill.

Since that date and until 15 November, when the Intervention Board for Agricultural Produce (Abolition) Regulations 2001 came into force, the agency has been operating as a joint enterprise between the Intervention Board for Agricultural Produce and the Department under a single management structure headed by the chief executive.

The House has already been informed of the agency's performance targets on 17 October 2001, Official Report, column 1247W. I am arranging for copies of the framework document, the corporate plan and the business plan for 2001–02 to be placed in the Library of the House.

Illegal Food Imports

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will make it her policy to reduce the number of bodies involved in controlling illegal imports of food. [15193]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 15 November 2001]: There are a number of bodies with an interest in the control of food imports. We are co-ordinating action to identify practical ways to simplify the situation.

Scrapie

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will make a statement on how the Government will test for scrapie-causing agents in apparently scrapie-resistant sheep. [14531]

Mr. Morley: Next year we will be testing a sample of sheep brains for signs of transmissible spongiform encephalopathies (TSEs) including scrapie. At present the number of sheep to be tested is 23,000 but this may increase. The relevant European Union legislation requires that, if a test performed under that legislation gives a positive result for the presence of TSEs, the sample material must be genotyped. This will reveal any case where the sheep had a scrapie-resistant genotype.

We are also carrying out experiments to see if sheep that are fully resistant to scrapie can be infected with BSE. Over five years the sheep will be culled so that, using a range of available tests, their tissues can be examined for signs of infectivity. Results so far have been very encouraging, as infectivity has not been detected.

Animal Health Bill

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will make a statement on the level of consultation on the Animal Health Bill before its publication. [14530]

Mr. Morley: We have had to draw up this legislation swiftly to prepare for any emergency and there has not been time to consult in the way that we normally would. However, over the coming weeks and months, while the Bill is before Parliament we will consult widely on key provisions and their practical implementation.

With specific regard to the provisions on scrapie and TSEs, we signalled the possibility of introducing a compulsory programme of genotyping and breeding restrictions for TSE-susceptible sheep when we launched a public consultation exercise on the proposed national scrapie plan in July 2000. We are currently consulting stakeholders about the detailed arrangements including the timing of the introduction of a compulsory scheme.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many named day parliamentary written questions were tabled to her Department between 15 October and 5 November; and what proportion of these have received holding answers. [13304]

Mr. Morley: According to our records, for the period 15 October and 5 November this Department received 254 named day parliamentary written questions, 79 per cent. of which received holding answers.

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what proportion of those named day parliamentary written questions to her Department that received a holding answer between 15 October and 5 November received the substantive answer (a) within three parliamentary days, (b) within seven parliamentary days, (c) within 10 parliamentary days, (d) within 15 parliamentary days and (e) over 15 parliamentary days after the holding answer was issued. [13323]

Mr. Morley: The proportion of named day parliamentary written questions that received a holding answer between 15 October and 5 November, and have subsequently received a substantive answer is in the table:

Parliamentary days	Number	Percentage
(a) Within three	40	20
(b) Within seven	62	31
(c) Within 10	19	9.5
(d) Within 15	19	9.5
(e) Over 15	61	30

Mink Farms

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many mink farms were inspected during the slaughter period in November and December 2000; and what were the methods of slaughter observed. [13800]

Mr. Morley: Our records show that three mink farms were inspected during November and December 2000. However, slaughter was only observed at two of these farms. Exposure to carbon monoxide was observed on one farm, and exposure to carbon dioxide was observed at the other.

Agricultural Policy

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what her priorities are for the reform of UK agricultural policy. [12079]

Mr. Morley: The Government want to see a sustainable, competitive and diverse farming and food sector which contributes to a thriving and sustainable rural economy and advances environmental, economic, health and animal welfare goals. The independent Policy Commission on the future of farming and food, announced on 9 August, has been established to advise us on how to achieve these objectives.

One key policy objective is to secure further positive change to the common agricultural policy, framing much of our domestic agriculture policy. In particular, we want to see market price support and production controls phased out, with transitional support payments to help farmers to adjust. This should be complemented by a shift towards the "second pillar" of the CAP, expanding the resources available for targeted support for rural development and agri-environment schemes.

Vets (Domestic Pets)

Mr. Jon Owen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what information she has collated on (a) how many vets in each of the last five years have been struck off or disqualified and (b) how many were struck off or disqualified for mistreating domestic pets; [14284]

(2) what information she has collated on (a) how many complaints have been made about vets in each of the last five years and (b) how many of those complaints were about the mistreating of domestic pets. [14285]

Mr. Morley: This Department does not collate figures regarding this matter, as responsibility for these matters rests with the Royal College of Veterinary Surgeons. However, figures furnished to this Department by the college indicate that during the last five years a total of four vets have been struck off. Of these one was struck off for the mistreatment of pet animals.

During the same period, a total of three vets have been disqualified for periods ranging from one to three months.

	Disqualified	Struck off
1997	0	2
1998	0	0
1999	0	0
2000	1	2
2001	2	0

Over-30-months Scheme

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what recent discussions she has had with the European Commission on the continuation of the OTMS scheme; [14788]

(2) what time limit has been set for the continuation of the over-30-months cattle scheme. [14792]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 15 November 2001]: It is the Government's intention to review the over-30-month scheme (OTMS) in light of any changes to the over-30-month rule. The rule will be reviewed by the Foods Standard Agency when a sufficient sample of cattle has been tested for BSE and the Spongiform Encephalopathy Advisory Committee (SEAC) is expected to reconsider existing guidance in the new year. Changes to the scheme would need to be agreed with the European Commission and other member states if amendments to Commission Regulation (EC) No. 716/96, under which the scheme operates, are required.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many cattle were slaughtered under the Over 30 Months Cattle Scheme in (a) 1997, (b) 1998, (c) 1999, (d) 2000 and (e) 2001. [14794]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 16 November 2001]: The total numbers of cattle slaughtered under the scheme for the years in question are shown in the table.

	Total scheme throughput
1997	847,409
1998	895,278
1999	970,125
2000	972,751
2001[1]	459,606

[1] To 31 October 2001

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the cost was of the over-30-months cattle scheme in (a) 1997, (b) 1998, (c) 1999, (d) 2000 and (e) 2001. [14793]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 15 November 2001]: The total cost of the over-30-months cattle scheme for the years in question are detailed in the table. The second column shows the total amount of compensation paid to producers. The third column shows the total cost of the scheme including compensation payments.

£ million

Year	Total compensation paid to producers	Total cost of the scheme including compensation
1997–98	288	432
1998–99	264	380
1999–2000	265	394
2000–2001	240	358
2001–2002[1]	44	81

[1] To 30 September 2001

Border Inspection Posts

Mr. Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will make a statement on the establishment of border inspection posts in the United Kingdom by the European Commission Food and Veterinary Office. [14812]

Mr. Morley: Community law requires that all products of animal origin from third countries enter through, and are subject to checks at, a border inspection post (BIP).

Before a BIP can operate it has to be approved by officials of the European Commission Food and Veterinary Office (FVO). FVO veterinary experts will inspect the facility to ensure that the layout, structure and procedures comply with Community requirements.

Once approval has been given this must be ratified at the Standing Veterinary Committee who will adopt a decision amending the list of approved BIPs.

Common EU Fisheries Licence

Mr. Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will make a statement on progress made towards a common EU fisheries licence, with respect to communitarisation of national fleets. [14816]

Mr. Morley: There has been no movement in this direction. The belief that this is a likely development is based on a misreading of the Swedish Accession Treaty and has no basis in fact.

Fisheries (Derogation)

Mr. Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will make a statement on the state of negotiations to extend the derogation on six and 12 mile limits. [14819]

Mr. Morley: A decision on the six and 12 mile limits will be taken as part of the CFP review in 2002. Discussions in the Council of Ministers have revealed a very strong consensus among member states in favour of renewing the limits; the Commission is also known to support them. For my part, I shall be making every effort to get the limits made permanent.

Fishing Controls

Mr. Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment she has made of the effect of Council Regulation (EC) No. 1936/2001, laying down control measures applicable to fishing for certain stocks of highly migratory fish, on (a) her Department's activities and (b) Dependent and Associated Territories, with special reference to (i) the Falklands and (ii) Gibraltar. [14796]

Mr. Morley: No assessment has been made of the effect of Council Regulation (EC) No.1939/12001 laying down control measures applicable to fishing for certain stocks of highly migratory fish in any fisheries.

Live Export Refunds

Mr. Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will make a statement on her policy regarding live export refunds for cattle; and if it is her policy to support their suspension as concerns the European Communities budget. [14813]

Mr. Morley: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave to the hon. Member for Newbury (Mr. Rendel) on 12 November 2001, Official Report, columns 597–98W.

Foot and Mouth

Mr. Sayeed: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs in what percentage of cases livestock owners who resisted an animal culling order were subsequently informed that their animals were infected with foot and mouth disease; and if she will make a statement. [13887]

Mr. Morley: The London headquarters of the Department was involved in or made aware of a total of 127 cases where livestock owners appealed against a cull. At the time of appeal, 104 were contiguous premises, 17 were dangerous contacts, three were 3km cull cases, two were slaughters on suspicion and one was an infected premises. In 15 per cent. of this total number, the owners were subsequently informed that their animals were infected with foot and mouth disease and the status of their premises was amended accordingly.

Mr. Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what regulations govern (a) the export of game, and (b) compensation for game exporters whose business was affected by foot and mouth. [14308]

Mr. Morley: The Import and Export Restrictions (foot and mouth disease) Regulations regulate the export of fresh meat and animal products from animals susceptible to foot and mouth disease (FMD); there is no statutory provision for payment of compensation to farming or other businesses for consequential losses caused by the outbreaks of FMD, and there are no plans to introduce such payments.

Mr. Sayeed: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will publish the protocols and guidance for the removal of ash from a foot and mouth disease burn site. [7748]

Mr. Morley: The protocols and guidance for the removal of ash from foot and mouth disease burn sites have been placed in the Library of the House.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs under what powers the foot and mouth contiguous cull was carried out. [13815]

Mr. Morley: The contiguous cull was carried out using powers contained in schedule 3, paragraph 3 of the Animal Health Act 1981.

Laptop Computers

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many laptop computers held by her Department have been (a) stolen and (b) lost; how many have been recovered; and what is the total cost of replacements since June 2001. [15354]

Mr. Morley: Since June 2001, the Department has had four laptops stolen, and has lost none. None of the stolen laptops has been recovered and none has been replaced to date.

Departmental Plan

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when she will publish her departmental plan. [15358]

Mr. Morley: I intend to publish the DEFRA Departmental Report in April 2002 in common with other Government Departments. The report will contain information on progress against the Department's objectives and the challenges ahead for the forthcoming financial year. It will also contain summary expenditure plans for the Department.

IT

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what problems have been identified in the (a) installation and (b) management of her Department's IT programmes. [15359]

Mr. Morley: IT programmes in DEFRA are managed using the Government's methodology for project management known as "Prince 2", and have a single individual with overall responsibility for their delivery. In addition, the Department submits IT programmes to independent review under procedures introduced by the Office of Government Commerce earlier this year. The Department's experience is that these approaches are powerful tools for ensuring that problems in individual programmes are addressed at an early stage and successfully.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what percentage of her Department's budget is for IT. [15360]

Mr. Morley: Around 2 per cent. of the 2001–02 resource budget (ie expenditure covered by the Departmental Expenditure Limit and Annually Managed Expenditure) is planned to be spent on IT.

Civil Servants

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many civil servants there are in each division of her Department. [15342]

Mr. Morley: The number of civil servants employed by DEFRA as at 1 October 2001 is given in the table. The figures relate to people in post; they include staff employed to deal with foot and mouth disease and those who were in the process of transferring to the Rural Payments Agency. All other executive agencies are excluded.

Division of DEFRA	Number of employees
Agriculture and Food	577
Fisheries	217
Environment, rural and regional services	4,075
Animal health (including state veterinary services)	2,914
Science directorate	101
European Union and international policy	57
Economics and statistics	175
Central services	1,133
E-business directorate	360
Communications directorate	106
Total	9,715

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many civil servants (a) are employed in her Department and (b) were employed by its predecessor department at the latest date for which figures are available. [15372]

Mr. Morley: As at 1 October 2001, 9,715 civil servants were employed by DEFRA.

As at 1 June 2001, 8,735 civil servants were employed by the former Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food.

The figures given include staff employed to deal with foot and mouth disease and those who were in the process of transferring to the Rural Payments Agency, but exclude all other executive agencies of the Department.

PFI Contracts

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will list the PFI contracts which (a) have been agreed and (b) are under consideration. [15355]

Mr. Morley: There are four existing PFI contracts: the Countryside Agency's SPIRIT contract for IT services, Pevensey Bay Sea Defences, Broadlands Flood Alleviation Scheme, and the Broadlands Avenue Office

Development (Cambridge). The British Waterways Board have two PPP projects under consideration: a property project known as P4, and the Water Grid scheme.

Vets

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many vets were employed by (a) the Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food in May 1997 and (b) her Department in October 2001. [15368]

Mr. Morley: The number of veterinary surgeons (full-time equivalents) employed by the State Veterinary Service (SVS) for 1997 and 2001 are shown in the table. Of the 286 full-time equivalent veterinarians employed by the State Veterinary Service in 2001 as a whole, 220 veterinarians are employed as field veterinary officers. The work of these officers is supplemented by about 100 Temporary Veterinary Inspectors (TVIs) from the private sector in normal times.

Year as at 1 January	Number
1997	289.5
2001	286.0
2001[1]	316.0

[1] As at October

Flood Defence

Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what communications have been received from local authorities in respect of the availability of resources to implement flood defence plans. [14686]

Mr. Morley: This Department provides funding to local authorities in England for flood and coastal defence capital works. Other central Government funding for flood and coastal defence is provided through revenue support grant. Local authorities submit forecasts of their plans for capital works on a regular basis and the local government association has provided high level justification of their flood defence spending in future years as part of the Spending Review 2002 process.

Managed Retreat Schemes

Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans she has for managed retreat schemes in Essex; and if she will make a statement. [13922]

Mr. Morley: Operational management of flood and coastal erosion risk in England is a matter for local operating authorities—the Environment Agency (EA), local authorities and internal drainage boards. The Government require them to consider a range of options when considering their response to the risk, including managed realignment where appropriate (sometimes called managed retreat). I understand the EA is actively progressing two schemes involving realignment in Essex at present, namely Abbot's Hall in the Blackwater estuary and Brandy Hole on the river Crouch.

I also understand the EA is currently undertaking strategy studies of the Essex Estuaries which will involve consideration of managed realignment as an option for other sites in the future.

Movement of Livestock Scheme

Hywel Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs at what dates and times the autumn movement of livestock scheme helpline has been unavailable; and if she will make a statement on the impact on applicants of the unavailability of that helpline. [12542]

Mr. Morley: The Movement Licence Helpline (01392 314941) is open 08.30 to 17.30 Monday to Friday and 09.00 to 13.00 on Saturday. The helpline has never been unavailable. Some calls may be answered by an automatic message, when all the lines are busy, but the number of unanswered calls has not exceeded 5 per cent. of calls made to the helpline.

The Department also provides a helpline for the use of local authorities and local veterinary inspectors. This helpline is not intended to be used by farmers. However, some farmers have obtained the number and will have been asked to call the Movement Licence Helpline.

Hywel Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how the autumn movement of livestock scheme applies to movements between different parcels of land held by the same person. [12541]

Mr. Morley: Since 8 October, sole occupancy licences have been available to permit the movement of foot and mouth disease susceptible stock between premises which are in the same control, management and occupation in respect of FMD susceptible animals. All premises listed on the licence must be within a circle of a maximum diameter of 20.0 kms (12.4 miles). Movement of stock between premises covered by the same sole occupancy licence may take place without prior veterinary inspection and without triggering a 21 day standstill of destination. Full details are available from local offices of the DEFRA website.

Hywel Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will make a statement on the help available from her Department to local authorities to deal with the backlog of applications in respect of the autumn movement of livestock scheme. [12544]

Mr. Morley: The Department is working extremely closely with the Local Authorities Co-ordinating Body on Food and Trading Standards (LACOTS) on the administration of the livestock movement scheme. The initial backlog of applications which built up after the introduction of the livestock movement scheme has been cleared.

Potato Industry

Mrs. Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will estimate the annual output of the UK potato industry in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available; and what percentage of the land in England under cultivation is used for the production of potatoes. [14062]

Mr. Morley: The volume and value of UK potato production and the percentage of crop area in England used for potato production are given in the table.

Year	1991	1992	1993	1994	1995	1996	1997	1998	1999	2000[1]
Potatoes in the United Kingdom:
Volume of harvested production[2]	6,393	7,841	7,097	6,568	6,435	7,251	7,153	6,439	7,156	6,611
Value of production[3]	527	533	390	710	1,095	636	390	630	750	501
Area[4]	178	182	172	165	173	178	167	165	178	165
Percentage of UK total crop area	3.6	3.6	3.8	3.7	3.8	3.8	3.3	3.3	3.8	3.5
Potatoes in England:
Area used for potato production[4]	135	137	131	125	130	135	127	124	137	127
England total crop area[4]	4,222	4,244	3,839	3,804	3,865	4,016	4,244	4,229	4,005	3,982
Percentage of England total crop area	3.2	3.2	3.4	3.3	3.4	3.4	3.0	2.9	3.4	3.2

[1] Provisional
[2] Thousand tonnes
[3] £ million
[4] Thousand hectares
Source:
Agriculture in the UK

Land Use

Mrs. Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what percentage of land in England was (a) under cultivation for crops and (b) used for animal rearing in (i) 1975, (ii) 1985, (iii) 1995 and (iv) the most recent year for which figures are available. [14059]

Mr. Morley: The information is given in the table.

	Thousand hectares	1975	1985	1995	2001
Total area of England[1]	13,042	—	—	—	—
of which:
Percentage total crops	—	30.1	33.7	29.6	29.0
Percentage animal rearing	—	40.2	36.4	34.3	33.1

[1] Including inland waterways
Notes:
1. Crops including all arable crops, some of which are grown for stockfeeding.
2. Animal rearing is all grassland and rough grazing.
3. Common land has not been included in the figures for animal rearing. There are 427,889 hectares of common land in England.
Sources:
1. Crops and Animal Rearing—June Agricultural Census 1975, 1985, 1995 and 2001 (main and minor holdings).
2. Total Area of England—Office for National Statistics (2001 data).

Common Agricultural Policy

Mrs. Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will list the principal changes her Department is seeking on reform of the common agricultural policy. [12812]

Mr. Morley: The CAP needs further reform to deliver better outputs for our farmers, consumers and taxpayers. The Government are committed to striving to secure a more economically rational CAP, and one which is sustainable in relation to the countryside environment and rural economy. In particular, the Government want to see market price support and production controls phased out, with transitional support payments to help farmers to adjust. This should be complemented by a shift towards the "second pillar" of the CAP, expanding the resources available for targeted support for rural development and agri-environment schemes.

Correspondence

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when she will reply to the letter from the hon. Member for West Chelmsford of 29 May on behalf of his constituent Mr. J. Matchett of Langton Ave., Chelmsford; and if she will make a statement about the reason for the delay in replying. [8266]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 22 October 2001]: I apologise to the hon. Gentleman for the delay in providing a reply to his letter. My right hon. Friend the Minister for Rural Affairs replied to his letter yesterday. We have recently identified a real problem with the correspondence system which has led to a backlog of correspondence which Ministers and officials are working hard to clear. I am sorry the hon. Gentleman's letter was caught in that backlog.

Farming Assistance (Exmoor)

Mr. Liddell-Grainger: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what action she is taking to speed up the process of the collection of cattle and assist farmers with welfare problems in Exmoor. [10778]

Mr. Morley: Under the animal movement restrictions which apply to control the spread of foot and mouth disease, collection for movement is permitted to only a single destination on any one day at present.

Following representations from Exmoor farmers, veterinary advice is that provided there is proper cleansing and disinfection between batches, it will be possible to allow more than one operation per day of gathering for movement to a single destination, without an undue increase in disease risk. Officials are therefore finalising changes to the collecting centre procedures to allow more than one batch per day subject to cleansing and disinfection between each batch and these should be implemented shortly.

INDEX TO THE

PARLIAMENTARY DEBATES

OFFICIAL REPORT

SIXTH SERIES — VOLUME 374

SESSION 2001–2002

5th November—16th November 2001

Printed indexes to Hansard

The volume index is one of three printed indexes to Commons Hansard produced from the House of Commons Library's Parliamentary On-Line Indexing Service (POLIS). It contains references to material in the bound volumes of Hansard. The other indexes produced are:

- The fortnightly index to Hansard. This covers the same date range as the volume index but references are to the column numbering in the daily parts and weekly edition of Hansard.
- The sessional index to Hansard. This contains references to material in the bound volumes for a whole session.

Indexes on the Parliamentary website

Fortnightly, volume and sessional indexes covering material from the beginning of the 1999/2000 session will also appear on the Parliamentary website at http://www.parliament.uk with links to the full text of Hansard.

SCOPE

The indexes include entries covering:

- The content of all material recorded in Hansard, including debates, procedural motions and questions.
- The names of all Members contributing to the Parliamentary business recorded in Hansard.
- The names of some types of Parliamentary business whenever they occur in Hansard. These are 'Ministerial statements', 'Business statements', 'Opposition days' and 'Estimates days'.

ARRANGEMENT

- All headings are in one word-by-word alphabetical sequence, with Members' contribution entries distinguished from other entries by italics.
- Where a Member contributes to Parliamentary business and is the subject of Parliamentary business there are separate contribution and subject entries, the subject entry coming first.
- Entries beginning 'Mac' and 'Mc' are sorted in one sequence as 'Mac'.
- 'St', when abbreviated for Saint, is filed as 'Saint'.
- Numbers are filed as if spelt out, e.g. '10 Downing Street' as if 'Ten Downing Street'.

HEADINGS

Choice of headings

- Specificity—Entries summarise the overall content of a debate or question as specifically as the various POLIS thesauruses allow. For example, Education, Higher education, Universities or the name of a particular university is used depending on the breadth of the item.
- Name headings—Specific entries are included for the names of people, places, institutions, organisations, committees, programmes, initiatives, publications and legislation when these constitute the overall subject of an item.
- Organisations and subjects—Organisation entries are preferred for material about the general performance, administration and staffing of an organisation (for example, United Kingdom Passports Agency, Standards). Subject entries are preferred for what organisations do as part of their duties (for example, Passports, Fees and charges).

Geographical coverage

- Subject headings—Subject headings are assumed to refer to the whole of England, Great Britain or the United Kingdom unless otherwise stated.
- Scotland, Northern Ireland and Wales—Material relating to the whole of Scotland, Northern Ireland and Wales is indexed under these headings.
- Places within the UK—Material about specific towns, areas and institutions is entered under the name of the specific town, area or institution.
- Foreign countries—Most material relating to foreign countries is collected under the name of that country. Some additional material may be found under the names of—groups of countries, areas within countries, geographical features, place names associated with particular issues, politicians and heads of state, international bodies, and institutions and companies operating in those countries.
- EC/EU material—General material about the European Communities and European institutions as bodies is entered under 'European Communities' and 'EC institutions'. Organisational material about specific communities and institutions is entered under the name of the body, for example 'European Coal and Steel Community' or 'European Parliament'. Material about what the Communities and institutions are doing or propose to do is entered under various subject headings beginning 'EC' such as 'EC environmental policy'.

Parliamentary material and business

- Material about Parliament—This is indexed under 'Parliament', the names of the two Houses, the 'Palace of Westminster' and parts of the Parliamentary estate (such as 'Portcullis House').
- Committees—Material about committees is indexed under 'Committees', types of committee (such as 'Select committees') and the names of individual committees (such as 'Home Affairs Select Committee').
- Parliamentary proceedings/procedures—Material discussing these is indexed under the specific type of proceeding (such as 'Parliamentary questions' or 'Oral questions'), procedure (such as 'Calling of Members') or issue (such as 'Unparliamentary expressions').
- Legislation—Entries for Parliamentary proceedings on bills and statutory instruments are entered under their titles. Where the lead word of the bill or statutory instrument does not provide a full or clear indication of the subject there are additional subject entries when the bill or instrument is debated. For example, debates on the 'Child Support Pensions and Social Security Bill' have entries under 'Pensions' and 'Social security benefits' as well as under the title of the Bill.
- Members' names—These are given in the form by which the Member prefers to be known.
- Speaker and Chair—Contributions by the Speaker and deputies are brought together under the heading 'Speaker and deputies'. Contributions from the chair during Committees of the Whole House are brought together under 'Chairman of Committee of the Whole House'. Significant rulings and statements (as opposed to routine comments) are indicated by the sub-heading 'Rulings and statements' in both cases.

Guidance on headings

- Cross references—'See' references indicate all the material has been entered under another heading. 'See also' references indicate that additional information may be found under another heading.
- Concept thesaurus—A copy of the subject thesaurus to POLIS, listing the concept entries used in the index, is available on the Parliamentary website. A hard copy is available from the Head of the POLIS Unit, House of Commons Library, 1 Derby Gate, London, SW1A 2DG (020 7219 6456).

REFERENCES

- References in the indexes are to columns rather than pages.
- References to debates, but not questions, are accompanied by the date of the item.
- There are separate sequences in Hansard for the material taken on the floor of the House, Westminster Hall sittings and written questions:
  - References consisting of a number by itself indicate material taken on the floor of the House.
  - References ending in 'wh' indicate Westminster Hall sittings.
  - References ending in 'w' indicate written questions.
- References under all headings except the names of Members contributing to Parliamentary business and the titles of legislation are listed in one numerical sequence irrespective of whether the material is taken on the floor of the House, is discussed at a Westminster Hall sitting or is a written question.
- References under the names of Members contributing to Parliamentary business and the titles of legislation are listed in numerical sequence under the following headings:
  - Debates etc. (which includes interventions and points of order as well as significant contributions to debates);
  - Sittings in Westminster Hall (covering all debates held as part of the Westminster Hall sittings); and
  - Questions (which includes written, oral and private notice questions).

ABBREVIATIONS

The following abbreviations are used in connection with the progress of bills:

- 1R=First reading
- 2R=Second reading
- Com=Committee stage
- Rep=Report stage
- 3R=Third reading
- res=resolution
- amendt(s)=amendment(s)
- *=matter taken formally without debate or division.

Parliamentary background

- The Parliamentary website at http://www.parliament.uk contains a range of information about Parliament and the full text of some Parliamentary papers and proceedings including Hansard.
- Information on current Parliamentary business is provided in the House of Commons Information Office Weekly Information Bulletin, available on the website and from The Stationery Office (020 7873 8499).
- Further information on Parliamentary proceedings and procedures is available from the House of Commons Information Office (020 7219 4272).

A12
Road works 912–3w

Abandoned vehicles
514w

Abortion
Northern Ireland 480w

Absenteeism
London Underground 737w

Accident and emergency departments
858–9
Greater London 674w

Accidents
Boats 291w
Chinook helicopters 128–9w
Fireworks 661w
Railways 291w
Roads 505–6w, 513w

Adams, Mrs Irene
Questions
Aviation, Scotland 95

Administration of justice
Expenditure 90w

Administration Select Committee
(05.11.01) 74, (12.11.01) 684

Adoption
230–5w

Adult education
855–6w, 866w
Finance 865–6w

Advanced skills teachers
425–7w

Advertising
Dept for International Development 933w

Advisory services
Immigration 387w
New deal for young people 936w

Advocacy
Mental health services 678w

Aerials
Planning permission 614w, 731w

Aerospace industry
339w, 507w, 654w

Afghanistan
Armed conflict 27–8w, 123w, 131–2w, 182w, 197w, 230, 232–5, 237–8, 248w, 364, 432w, 435w, 522w, 630–1w, 663w, 745w, 767w, 828w, 856–7, 863–4w, 954–5w
Armed forces 81w, 825w
Arms trade 745w
Education 858
Females 238w
International assistance 132–3w, 742w, 854–5, 934w
Mass media 878w
Ministerial statements (14.11.01) 861–79
Overseas aid 264–5w, 931–3w
Politics and government 852–3
Prisoners 835w, 970w
Refugees 264w, 336–7w
Television 748w

Africa
AIDS 847–8w
Child prostitution 849w
International assistance 237–8w, 336w
Sanctions 664w

Agency nurses
673–4w

Aggregates levy
661–2w, 916w
Glass 660–1w

Agriculture
see also Farmers
Imports 599–601w
Subsidies 147w, 591w, 817w

Aiding and abetting
93w

AIDS
Africa 847–8w

Ainsworth, Bob, Parliamentary Secretary, Home Office
Debates etc.
Drugs, Misuse (09.11.01) 475–84, 487, 491, 504, 511, 516, 539–43
Questions
Alcoholic drinks, Young people 965–6w
Bank services, EC action 492w
Cannabis 82–3w
Cannabis, Arrests 176w, 317–8w
Drugs, Misuse 90w, 183–4w, 320–1w, 966w
Extradition 963w
Extradition, USA 92w
Money laundering, Convictions 496–7w
Prisoners, Afghanistan 970w

Ainsworth, Mr Peter
Debates etc.
Animal Health Bill, 2R (12.11.01) 577, 583–92, 598, 600, 620, 625, 635–6
Questions
Alternative energy 546w
Athletics, Greater London 342w
Bovine spongiform encephalopathy 962–3
Bovine spongiform encephalopathy, Sheep 27–9w
Climate Change Convention 965–6
Consultation papers, Dept for Environment Food and Rural Affairs 34w
Flood control 34w
Floods, Insurance 34w
Food, Import controls 31w
Foot and mouth disease, Disclosure of information 811–2w
Foot and mouth disease, Disease control 587w
Foot and mouth disease, Waste disposal 30w
Genetically modified organisms, Food 108–9w
Incinerators 31w
Information officers, Dept for Environment Food and Rural Affairs 33–4w
Manpower, Dept for Environment Food and Rural Affairs 32–3w
Meat products, Import controls 30–1w
Monetary compensatory amounts 30w
Recycling, Greater London 458–9w
Scrapie, Disease control 29w
Tax allowances, Combined heat and power 916w
Veterinary medicine, Drugs 31w

Air ambulance services
356–7w

Air routes
Inverness 469w

Air traffic
Gatwick Airport 467–8w
Greater London 469w
Heathrow Airport 467–8w
West Freugh 436w

Air traffic control
Nuclear power stations 469w
Prestwick 288w, 747–8w

Aircraft
Seating 339–40w

Aircraft carriers
381w
Finance 249w

Airports
Scotland 174w
Security 524w

Al Qaeda
835w

Alcoholic drinks
Crime 734w
Health education 223–4w
Refreshment Dept 723w
Smuggling 68w, 766w
Young people 965–6w

Aldershot
Military bases 827w

Alexander, Mr Douglas, Minister for E-commerce and Competitiveness, Dept of Trade and Industry
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Post offices, Closures (07.11.01) 110–4wh
Questions
Broadband 262w
Cellular phones, Licensing 262–3w
Consignia 647w
Email, Data protection 650w
Motor vehicles, Excise duties 653w, 922w
Post offices 543w, 921w
Post offices, Bank services 261–2w, 543w
Post offices, Closures 261w, 660w
Post offices, Finance 545w
Post offices, Greater London 923w
Post offices, Pilot schemes 646w
Post offices, Social security benefits 922w
Postal services 333–4w
Postal services, Anthrax 646w
Postal services, Hampshire 921–2w
Postal services, Licensing 919–20w
Postal services, Recruitment 920w
Postal services, Regulation 920w
Postal services, Standards 545w
Postal services, Theft 648w
Radio frequencies, Defence 917w
Telephone services, Nuisance 647w

Allan, Mr Richard
Debates etc.
World Trade Organisation (07.11.01) 267
Questions
Digital broadcasting 343w, 636w
Electronic government 887w
Health and Safety Laboratory 510w

Allen, Mr Graham
Debates etc.
Human Rights Act 1998 (Designated Derogation) Order, Points of order (14.11.01) 880
Questions
Manpower, Cabinet Office 8w
National Lottery 66w

Alternative energy
332–3w, 546w, 648–50w, 657–8w

Ambulance services
Isle of Wight 361w
Standards 361–2w, 684w
Telephone services 361w

Amess, Mr David
Questions
Waste management 977–8

Ammunition
437w

Ancram, Rt Hon Michael
Questions
Afghanistan, Armed conflict 123w
Kosovo, War crimes 334w

Ancram, Rt Hon Michael—continued
Zimbabwe, Armed forces 668w

Anderson, Rt Hon Donald
Debates etc.
Afghanistan, Armed conflict (14.11.01) 873–4
Questions
Bus services, Wales 761w

Anderson, Janet
Debates etc.
Motor Vehicles (Prohibition on Use of Hand-Held Mobile Telephones) Bill, 1R (14.11.01) 881–2

Animal experiments
175–6w, 645–6w

Animal feed
148–9w, 882–3w

Animal Health Act 1981
Questions
596–7w, 977w

Animal Health Bill 2001/02
Debates etc.
2R, Programme motion and Money res (12.11.01) 574–684
Questions
29w, 972w

Animal products
Import controls 975w

Animal welfare
325–6w

Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986
Questions
175w

Anniversaries
Gibraltar 27w
Queen Elizabeth II 490w, 499w, 521w

Anthrax
Hoaxes and false alarms 555–6w
Iraq 6w
Postal services 646w
Vaccination 790w

Antibiotics
Chemical and biological warfare 25w

Antisocial behaviour orders
318–9w, 393w, 878–9w, 961–2w

Antitank missiles
Imports 526w
Israel 526w

Anti-Terrorism Crime and Security Bill 2001/02
Debates etc.
1R (12.11.01) 571
Order relating to Com (13.11.01) 831, (14.11.01) 948
Questions
982–3, 989–90

Apache AH-64 helicopter
435w, 632–3w

Apples
150w

Appointments Commission
Annual reports 834w

Apprentices
QINETIQ 763w

Apprenticeships
see Modern apprenticeships

Arbuthnot, Rt Hon James
Debates etc.
Afghanistan, Armed conflict (14.11.01) 869

Architecture
Rotherham 1–3

Armed conflict
Afghanistan 27–8w, 123w, 131–2w, 182w, 197w, 230, 232–5, 237–8, 248w, 364, 432w, 435w, 522w, 630–1w, 663w, 745w, 767w, 828w, 856–7, 863–4w, 954–5w
Immigration controls 182w
Kosovo 958w
Sudan 927w

Armed forces
524–5w
Afghanistan 81w, 825w
Balkans 436w
British overseas territories 835–6w
Deployment 129–30w
Drugs 434w
Entertainments 525–6w
Equal opportunities 435–6w
Ethnic groups 378–9w
Gibraltar 131w
Health services 26w, 741w
Housing 130–1w, 381w, 827w
Monuments 24w, 131w
National security 524w
Northern Ireland 956w
Pay 128w, 827w
Pension rights 381–2w
Pensions 23w, 249–50w
Race relations 380w
Radio 433w
Recruitment 22–3w
Telecommunications 518w
Training 953–4w, 956–7w
Uniforms 525w
Zimbabwe 668w

Arms trade
523w
Afghanistan 745w
Export controls 251w
Israel 744w

Army
Scotland 173w

Army Foundation College
25w, 525–6w

Arrests
Cannabis 176w, 317–8w
Customs and Excise 69w

Art works
Church of England 5w

Artillery
524w

Ashcroft, Lord
662w

Ashworth Hospital
675–6w

Aston Clinton bypass
337w

Asylum
see Refugees

Atherton, Ms Candy
Debates etc.
Lifelong learning (06.11.01) 186
Questions
Adult education 855–6w
Older workers, Training 711w
Regional airports 907w

Athletics
271w
Greater London 342w
Picketts Lock 64w, 170w

Atkins, Charlotte
Debates etc.
Animal Health Bill, 2R (12.11.01) 642, 659–61
Questions
Advanced skills teachers 425–7w
Farms, Diversification 885w
Members, Information technology 198–9w
Specialist schools 412–21w
Working families tax credit 362–3

Attendance allowance
187–8w
Administrative delays 191w, 311–3w
Appeals 313w
Institutional care 579–80w

Austin, Mr John
Questions
Animal experiments 175–6w

Automated credit transfer
Social security benefits 570w

Aviation
(05.11.01) 75–90, (14.11.01) 249–69wh, 338w, 507w
Manpower 910w
Scotland 94–6
Scotland Office 930w
Security 456–7w, 512w, 908w
Taxation 154w

Avon Health Authority
226–7w

Baby care units
Nurses 475w

Bacon, Mr Richard
Debates etc.
Animal Health Bill, 2R (12.11.01) 661–2, 669
Questions
Customs and Excise, Fraud 152w

Badgers
see also Bovine tuberculosis
561–2w, 880–1w

Bailey, Mr Adrian
Debates etc.
Football (Disorder) (Amendment) Bill, Rep and 3R (14.11.01) 944–5
Questions
Cancer, Medical treatments 672w

Bailiffs
77w

Baird, Vera
Debates etc.
Export Control Bill, Rep and 3R (08.11.01) 396–7
Questions
Animal experiments 645–6w
Judiciary, Public appointments 395–7w
New deal for communities, Finance 724w
Schools, Annual reports 247w
Schools, Buildings 856w
Sewers 886w
Swimming pools 829–30w

Baker, Norman
Questions
Animal experiments 175w
BBC 5–6
Data protection 880w
Firearms 881w
Food, Import controls 972w
Freedom of Information Act 2000 895w
House of Lords composition 196w
Hunting 696w
Magistrates, Working hours 395w
Non-departmental public bodies 202w
Pheasants, Gun sports 34–5w

Baker, Norman—continued*
Private finance initiative, Conditions of employment 307w
Saudi Arabia, Christianity 839w
Smuggling, Food 844w, 916–7w
Special constables, Sussex 323w
World Trade Organisation, China 840w

Baldry, Tony
Debates etc.
Afghanistan, Armed conflict (14.11.01) 876
Hospital Inspectorate Bill, 1R (07.11.01) 269–71
International Development Bill (HL), 2R (07.11.01) 276–7, 302–7, 328
World Trade Organisation (07.11.01) 263
Questions
Climate Change Convention 883w
UK Sports Institute 61w

Balkans
Armed forces 436w

Ballistic missile defence
129w, 434w, 828w

Bank of Credit and Commerce International
Company liquidations 660w

Bank services
(14.11.01) 298–305wh, 398–9w
Disadvantaged 72w, 535w
EC action 492w
Post offices 261–2w, 543w, 854

Banks
Commemorative coins 260w

Banks, Mr Tony
Debates etc.
Animal Health Bill, 2R (12.11.01) 581, 585, 618–23, 664
Drugs, Misuse (09.11.01) 527–30, 534
Questions
Business questions 982
County Hall 12w
Fish farming 589w

Barker, Mr Gregory
Debates etc.
Lifelong learning (06.11.01) 128, 144, 197–8
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 734
Stakeholder pensions (13.11.01) 787, 798, 820
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Housing (15.11.01) 337–8wh, 340–2wh, 349wh, 356wh
Questions
Business questions 995
Flood control, Wales 842–3
Foot and mouth disease 970–1
Foot and mouth disease, Hunting 889–90w
Russia, Organised crime 924w

Barnes, Mr Harry
Debates etc.
World Trade Organisation (07.11.01) 264, (15.11.01) 1003
Questions
Afghanistan, Armed conflict 856–7
Business questions 375–6
Climate change levy, Nuclear power 768w
Economic situation, Terrorism 359
Parliamentary year 105

Barnet Hospital
677w

Barnsley
Council housing 615w
Refugees 87–8w
Social rented housing 615–6w

Baron, Mr John
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Housing (15.11.01) 336–9wh
Small businesses (06.11.01) 7–10wh
Questions
Aerials, Planning permission 731w

Barrett, John
Questions
Air traffic control, Prestwick 288w, 747–8w
Airports, Scotland 174w
Energy, Cabinet Office 203w
Energy, Dept for Work and Pensions 313–4w
Energy, Home Office 174w
Energy, Prime Minister 286w
Energy, Scotland Office 872w
Gaming machines, Social clubs 14–5
Job creation, Scotland 584w
Lorry drivers, Working hours 133w, 287–8w
Motor vehicles, Excise duties 133w, 288w
Oral questions 395w
Oral questions, Scotland Office 394w
Redundancy 583w
Road traffic 288w
Written questions, Administrative delays 459w, 872w

Barron, Rt Hon Kevin
Questions
Smoking 700

Bath
Orthopaedics 791w

Battle, Mr John
Debates etc.
Export Control Bill, Rep and 3R (08.11.01) 423, 432, 440
International Development Bill (HL), 2R (07.11.01) 299–302
World Trade Organisation (07.11.01) 266
Questions
Smuggling, Drugs 916w

Bayley, Hugh
Debates etc.
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 716–7, 765–8
Sittings in Westminster Hall
East coast railway line (13.11.01) 244wh

BBC
5–6
Public appointments 636w
Television channels 271w

Beacon schools
Standards Fund 861w

Beard, Mr Nigel
Questions
Taxation, Business 357

Beckett, Rt Hon Margaret, Secretary of State for Environment Food and the Regions*
Debates etc.
Animal Health Bill, 2R (12.11.01) 574–86, 590, 594
Questions
Bovine spongiform encephalopathy 961–3
Bovine spongiform encephalopathy, Sheep 27–9w
Climate Change Convention 883w, 963–6
Consultation papers, Dept for Environment Food and Rural Affairs 34w
Flood control 34w
Floods, Insurance 34w
Food, Import controls 31w
Foot and mouth disease 969–71
Foot and mouth disease, Disclosure of information 811–2w

Beckett, Rt Hon Margaret—continued*
Foot and mouth disease, Disease control 587w
Foot and mouth disease, Waste disposal 30w
Incinerators 31w
Information officers, Dept for Environment Food and Rural Affairs 33–4w
Manpower, Dept for Environment Food and Rural Affairs 32–3w
Meat products, Import controls 30–1w
Monetary compensatory amounts 30w
Scrapie, Disease control 29w
Transmissible encephalopathies, Research 303w
Veterinary medicine, Drugs 31w
Waste management 977–8

Bed and breakfast accommodation
463w

Bedfordshire Police
Pay 642–3w

Bee Diseases Insurance
258w

Beef
Imports 304w, 820–1w

Bees
Diseases 890w, 968–9

Begg, Miss Anne
Questions
Digital broadcasting 11
New deal for 50 plus 557–8

Beggs, Mr Roy
Questions
Business questions 986–7

Beith, Rt Hon A J
Questions
Coquetdale Hospital 109w
Foot and mouth disease, Northumberland 298w
Health centres, Widdrington 369w

Belize
Financial services 17–8w, 123–4w

Bell, Mr Stuart, Second Church Estates Commissioner*
Questions
Bishops 18
Church Commissioners, Children 5w
Church of England, Art works 5w
Churches, Floods 18
Churches, Reading 4–5w
Churches, Repairs and maintenance 5–6w
Clergy, Pay 16–7
Religion 5w

Bellingham, Mr Henry
Debates etc.
Afghanistan, Armed conflict (14.11.01) 875
Drugs, Misuse (09.11.01) 504–5, 509, 522, 530–3
House of Lords, Reform (07.11.01) 251
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Zimbabwe (07.11.01) 121–5wh
Questions
Employment, Scotland 173–4w
Foot and mouth disease 969–70
Magistrates, Recruitment 199w
Monetary compensatory amounts 362
Northern Ireland government 275w
Orthopaedics, Waiting lists 675w

Benefits Agency
see Social Security Benefits Agency

Benefits Agency Medical Service
Fibromyalgia 192–3w

Benn, Hilary, Parliamentary Secretary, Dept for International Development*
Debates etc.
International Development Bill (HL), 2R (07.11.01) 333–7
Questions
Fair trade initiative, Dept for International Development 931w

Bennett, Andrew
Debates etc.
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 729–31
Questions
Census 327–8w

Bercow, Mr John
Questions
Aston Clinton bypass 337w
Bank services, EC action 492w
British Petroleum 843w
Business, Regulation 769w
Cancer 67–8w
Cancer, Medical treatments 471w
Cannabis 82–3w
Cannabis, Arrests 317–8w
Chess 170w
Children, Day care 715–6w
Civil servants, Pay 670w, 767w
Climate change levy 841w
Climate change levy, Engineering 768w
Commemorative coins, Princess of Wales 259–60w
Corporation tax 768–9w
Dental services 351–3w
Departmental responsibilities, Dept for Education and Skills 861w
Departmental responsibilities, Dept for Transport Local Government and the Regions 904w
Development aid, Trade unions 267w
Economic and monetary union 154w
Education, Buckinghamshire 716–7w
Education, Finance 717w, 860–1w
Education, Standards 716w
Educational maintenance allowance 716w
Elderly, Buckinghamshire 476w
Employee share ownership schemes 770–1w
Euro, Forgery 255w
European Central Bank, Accountability 154w
Excise duties, Fuels 536w, 766w
Exercise Saif Sareea 2 255w
Financial services, EC action 73w
Fires, Death 290w
Foot and mouth disease, Hunting 695–6w
Further education, Standards Fund 861w
General practitioners, Manpower 218w
Heart diseases, Medical treatments 472–3w
Hospitals, Waiting lists 220–1w
Income tax 769w, 915w
Industrial health and safety, EC action 337w
Insurance premium tax 770w
Jobcentre Plus 703w
Learndirect centres 859w
Manufacturing industries, Redundancy 772–3w
Modern apprenticeships 856w
Money laundering, Convictions 496–7w
Motor vehicles, EC law 159w
Motor vehicles, Registration 736w
National College for School Leadership 715w
National insurance 772w
National insurance contributions, EC countries 775w
National literacy strategy 714w, 858w
National Lottery 66w
New Opportunities Fund, Buckinghamshire 638w

Bercow, Mr John—continued*
Office for Standards in Education, Standards 859w
Office of Government Commerce 74w
Office of the Schools Adjudicator 714w
Ozone layer, EC law 158w
Part-time employment, Conditions of employment 2w
Pension credit 770w, 936w
Pension funds 252w
Pensioners, Buckinghamshire 527w
Pre-school education 716w, 857w
Public expenditure 606–7w, 914–5w
Public expenditure, Dept of Health 607w
Public private partnerships 155w
Public sector, Pay 767w
Publications, Cabinet Office 204w
Publications, Dept for International Development 16–7w
Publications, Dept of Health 350w
Publications, Home Office 556w
Publications, Office of the Secretary of State for Wales 341w
Radio frequencies, Defence 917w
Railtrack, Finance 252w, 899w
Rape crisis centres 388w
Registration of births deaths and marriages, Cohabitation 76–7w
Schools, Internet 713–4w
Schools, Standards 857w
Sexual offences, Reviews 83w
Skilled workers, Buckinghamshire 856–7w
Small Business Service 159w
Small businesses 159w
Smuggling, Fuels 775w
Stamp duties, Property transfer 769w
Tax allowances, Pensions 844–5w
Tax burden, Industry 772w
Tax yields, Health insurance 770w
Taxation, Charities 73–4w
Taxation, Company cars 843w
Teachers, Pay 714–5w
Teachers, Training 715w
Terrorism, Finance 359–60
Trade competitiveness 72–3w
Unemployment, Buckinghamshire 527–8w
VAT, Manufacturing industries 842–3w
VAT, Motor vehicles 767w
VAT, Tax yields 253w
Vocational guidance 857w

Berry, Mr Roger
Debates etc.
Export Control Bill, Rep and 3R (08.11.01) 416, 426–8
Questions
Brain, Injuries 282–3w, 549w

Best, Mr Harold
Questions
Terrorism, Finance 358

Beta-interferon
117w, 227w, 941–2w

Bin Laden, Osama
8w

Biological and Toxin Weapons Convention
668w, 745–6w

Biological weapons
790w

Birds
Cyprus 925–6w

Birkenhead
Sure start programme 927w

Birmingham
New deal for long term unemployed 568w

Birmingham Relief Road
135w

Bishops
18

Blackman, Mrs Liz
Questions
Jobcentre Plus 552–3
Schizophrenia, Prescription drugs 710–1

Blackpool Victoria Hospital
Tomography 359w

Blair, Rt Hon Tony, Prime Minister, First Lord of the Treasury and Minister for the Civil Service*
Debates etc.
Afghanistan, Ministerial statements (14.11.01) 861–79
Questions
Accident and emergency departments 858–9
Afghanistan, Armed conflict 197w, 230, 232–5, 237–8, 856–7
Afghanistan, Education 858
Afghanistan, International assistance 854–5
Afghanistan, Politics and government 852–3
Alternative energy 546w
Assets, Prime Minister 286w
Bin Laden, Osama 8w
Byers, Stephen 230–2
Civil Contingencies Committee 6–8w
Climate Change Convention 670w
Council of Europe, UK delegations 286–7w
Deep vein thrombosis 232
Departmental coordination, Manpower 547w
Departmental responsibilities 546–7w
Departmental responsibilities, Ports 547–8w
Diabetes 857
Energy, Prime Minister 286w
Equitable Life Assurance Society 237
Explosions, Port Talbot 850–1
Gibraltar 858
Haemophilia, Medical treatments 855
Health authorities, Mergers 855
Hospitals, Waiting lists 855–6
House of Lords, Reform 238
House of Lords composition 196w
Housing 234
Industrial diseases, Compensation 236–7
Industrial training 548w
Iraq, Anthrax 6w
Manpower, Cabinet Office 8w
Manufacturing industries 851–2
Ministers, Concorde 783w
Ministers, Visits abroad 668–9w
Moore, Jo 229
NHS 235–6
Northern Ireland government 196–7w, 238
Pensioners, Health services 854
Post offices, Bank services 854
Railtrack 233–4
Railways, Standards 857–8
Students, Fees and charges 286w
Terrorism 669–70w
Terrorism, EC countries 547w
Terrorism, Human rights 853–4
Terrorism, International cooperation 196w
Tibet 6w
Tobin tax 234
Travel, Concessions 850
Unemployment 859–60
Voluntary organisations 548w
Written questions, Prime Minister 898w

Blears, Ms Hazel, Parliamentary Secretary, Dept of Health*
Debates etc.
Domestic violence (13.11.01) 837–40
Kidderminster Hospital (08.11.01) 469–74
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Clones (07.11.01) 117–20wh
Princess Royal Hospital (06.11.01) 63–8wh
Questions
Air ambulance services 356–7w
Ambulance services, Standards 361–2w, 684w
Ambulance services, Telephone services 361w
Assets, Dept of Health 549–50w
Avon Health Authority 226–7w
Beta-interferon 227w, 941–2w
Brain, Injuries 549w
Buildings, Dept of Health 205w, 280w
Consent to medical treatment 945–6w
Coquetdale Hospital 109w
Dental services 213w, 215w, 351–3w, 678w
Dental services, Fees and charges 214–5w
Dental services, Isle of Wight 678w
Dental services, Lincolnshire 213–4w
Dental services, Manpower 214w
Dental services, Northamptonshire 213w
Dental services, Refugees 279–81w
Dental services, Shropshire 98w, 677–8w
Dietary supplements, EC action 943w
Drinking water, Standards 216–7w
Drugs, Expenditure 680w
Drugs, OECD countries 473–4w
Electric cables, Health hazards 207–8w
Endometriosis 946w
Euthanasia 355–6w
General practitioners, Sittingbourne 671w
Genetically modified organisms, Food 108–9w
Grain, Import controls 151w
Hampshire Ambulance Service NHS Trust, Surrey Ambulance Service NHS Trust 687w
Health education, Alcoholic drinks 223–4w
Heart diseases, Surgery 671–2w
Herbal medicine, EC action 685–6w
Heroin, Death 222–3w
Homeopathy 673w
Hospital beds 676–7w
Hospital wards 362w
Hospitals, Catering 357w
Hospitals, Waiting lists 220–1w
Human organs 358–9w
Independent Reconfiguration Panel, Public appointments 946–7w
Medical profession 686w
Meningitis 205–6w
NHS, Classification schemes 940w
NHS, Drugs 680–1w
NHS, Negligence 224–6w
NHS, Standards 360w
NHS Magazine 360w
"NHS Plan News" 360w
NHS Plus 221w
North Durham Health Care NHS Trust 356w
Orders and regulations, Explanatory notes 941w
Orthopaedics, Bath 791w
Prescription Pricing Authority 229w
Prescriptions, Fees and charges 228w
Publications, Dept of Health 350w
Radioactive fallout, Chernobyl 588–9w
Royal prerogative, Dept of Health 470w
Smoking 699–700
Smoking, Medical treatments 356w
Stoke Mandeville Hospital NHS Trust, South Buckinghamshire NHS Trust 687w

Blears, Ms Hazel—continued*
Worcestershire Acute Hospitals NHS Trust, Resignations 209–10w
Zyban 217–8w, 359–60w

Blizzard, Mr Bob
Debates etc.
Export Control Bill, Rep and 3R (08.11.01) 401–2
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Tourism (13.11.01) 190–3wh
Questions
Bus services, Concessions 725w
Business questions 374–5
Cannabis 83w
Domestic violence 964–5w
Fireworks 754w
Institutional care, Standards 702–3
Litter 589w
Schools, Cleaning services 46w

Blood transfusions
553–4w
Cancer 673w

Blunkett, Rt Hon David, Secretary of State for the Home Dept*
Debates etc.
Anti-Terrorism Crime and Security Bill, 1R (12.11.01) 571
Oral question time intervention (14.11.01) 847
Questions
Anthrax, Hoaxes and false alarms 555–6w
Assets, Home Office 391–3w
Consultation papers, Home Office 782w
Convention on Combating Bribery of Foreign Public Officials in Business 431w
Data protection 880w
Disadvantaged, Home Office 879w
Energy, Home Office 174w
EU Justice Home Affairs and Civil Protection Council 184w
Freedom of Information Act 2000, Home Office 917–8w
Intelligence services, Finance 778w
Internet, Disclosure of information 970w
Islam, Proscribed organisations 876w
Mass media, Afghanistan 878w
Members, Correspondence 184w
National security 880w
Nuclear shelters, Sales 777–8w
Public private partnerships, Home Office 969w
Publications, Home Office 556w
Publicity, Home Office 970–1w
Terrorism Act 2000 881–2w
Written questions, Home Office 962–3w

Blunt, Mr Crispin
Questions
Aerials, Planning permission 614w
Downview Prison 382–3w, 777w
Football, Television 65w
Police, Northern Ireland 485w
Prisoners, Females 326w
Terrorism, Northern Ireland 227, 278–9w

Board of Inland Revenue
see Inland Revenue

Boarding schools
Disabled 39w

Boateng, Rt Hon Paul, Financial Secretary, Treasury*
Questions
Afghanistan, Armed conflict 364
Aggregates levy 916w
British Petroleum 843w
Broadband 404w
Charities 402w

Boateng, Rt Hon Paul—continued*
Climate change levy 256w, 768w, 841w
Climate change levy, Engineering 768w
Climate change levy, Manufacturing industries 841w
Climate change levy, Nuclear power 768w
Common agricultural policy 69w
Company liquidations 153w
Customs and Excise, Arrests 69w
Customs and Excise, Body searches 70w, 251w
Customs and Excise, Disciplinary proceedings 530w
Customs and Excise, Fraud 152w
Customs and Excise, Manpower 403w
Customs and Excise, National Investigation Service 152w
Customs and Excise, Orders and regulations 841w
Customs and Excise, Prosecutions 69–70w, 252w
Customs and Excise, Right of search 68–9w
Customs and Excise, Sick leave 605w
Customs and Excise, Smuggling 403w
Customs and Excise, Standards 152w, 766w
Customs and Excise, Terrorism 153w
Customs officers, Rosyth 843w
Debts, Developing countries 398w, 530w
Debts, Serbia 515w
Drug seizures 530w
Drug seizures, Heroin 530w
Entrust 817–8w
Entrust, Pay 818w
Excise duties 250–1w
Excise duties, Fuels 256w, 529w, 766w
Export controls 68w
Export controls, Arms trade 251w
Import controls 68w
Income tax 356
Landfill tax 154w
Landfill tax, Sustainable development 72w
Landfill tax credit scheme 256w
Landfill tax credit scheme, Abuse 818w
Manufacturing industries 531w
Smuggling 75w, 605–6w
Smuggling, Alcoholic drinks 68w
Smuggling, Drugs 916w
Smuggling, Food 844w, 916–7w
Smuggling, Fuels 775w
Smuggling, Tobacco 75–6w, 766w
Tax allowances, Combined heat and power 916w
Tax allowances, Derelict land 71w
Tax evasion 251–2w
Taxation, Business 356–7
Taxation, Company cars 843w
Tobacco, Imports 531w
Tobacco, Taxation 74–5w
Tobin tax 71w
Trade competitiveness 400w
VAT 74w, 157–8w, 253w, 528w
VAT, Churches 72w
VAT, Fraud 155–7w, 402–3w, 528w
VAT, Institutional care 70w, 608w
VAT, Motor vehicles 767w
VAT, Repairs and maintenance 250w
VAT, Repayments 156w
VAT, Tax allowances 253w
VAT, Tax burden 253w
VAT, Tax evasion 155–7w
VAT, Tax yields 253w, 255w
VAT Large Payers Unit 156w
VAT returns, Business 157w
Written questions, Treasury 915–6w

Boats
Accidents 291w

Body searches
Customs and Excise 70w, 251w

Bombs
825w
International law 1w

Borrow, Mr David
Debates etc.
Animal Health Bill, 2R (12.11.01) 586, 600–3
Questions
Post offices, Pilot schemes 646w
Postal services, Anthrax 646w
Postal services, Regulation 920w
Street warden scheme, North West region 730w
Weapons, Northern Ireland 274w

Boswell, Mr Tim
Debates etc.
Lifelong learning (06.11.01) 117, 126, 136, 149–50, 158–62
Special education (05.11.01) 43–4
Stakeholder pensions (13.11.01) 797, 808, 817–20
Questions
Business 352
Carers, Social security benefits 704w
Disability Discrimination Act 1995 191w
Disability living allowance, Hearing impaired 438w
Individual learning accounts, Information technology 928w
New deal for 50 plus 558–9
NHS Plus 221w
Primary education, Class sizes 870w
Stakeholder pensions 700w
Transsexuals Interdepartmental Working Group 78–9w
West coast railway line, Bridges 831–2w
Workstep 370w

Bottomley, Peter
Questions
Dizaei, Ali 563–4w
Health services, Reciprocal arrangements 707–8
Hospital beds 211–2w
NHS, Finance 213w
Roads, Accidents 505–6w
Roads, Safety 611–3w, 912w
Royal Parks Constabulary, Employment tribunals 951w

Bottomley, Rt Hon Virginia
Debates etc.
Sex Discrimination (Election Candidates) Bill, Rep and 3R (14.11.01) 889, 912–4

Boundary Commission for Scotland
171w

Bovine spongiform encephalopathy
887w, 961–3
Disease control 974–5w
Research 448–9w
Sheep 27–9w

Bovine tuberculosis
Gloucestershire 306w

Bowman combat radio system
127–8w, 523w

Bradley, Rt Hon Keith, Minister of State, Home Office*
Questions
Administration of justice, Expenditure 90w
Aiding and abetting 93w
Armed forces, Afghanistan 81w
Corruption, Prosecutions 186–7w
Crimes against property 96w
Driving offences, Essex 94w
Juries, Protection 564w

Bradley, Rt Hon Keith—continued*
Punishment 96w
Sexual offences 558w
Sexual offences, Reviews 83w
Tucker, Nick 561w
Youth courts, Sentencing 96w

Bradley, Peter
Questions
Dental services, Shropshire 98w, 677–8w
Education, Shropshire 861–2w
Local government finance 876w

Bradshaw, Mr Ben, Parliamentary Secretary, Foreign and Commonwealth Office*
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Zimbabwe (07.11.01) 125–7wh
Questions
Afghanistan, Armed conflict 123w, 131–2w, 663w, 745w
Afghanistan, Females 238w
Afghanistan, Prisoners 835w
Africa, International assistance 237–8w, 336w
Al Qaeda 835w
Ashcroft, Lord 662w
Biological and Toxin Weapons Convention 668w, 745–6w
British overseas territories 744w, 835w
British overseas territories, Armed forces 835–6w
Burma, Political prisoners 123w
Commonwealth Heads of Government Conference 124w
Cuba, Terrorism 2w
Diplomatic service, Ethnic groups 1w
Diplomatic service, Public appointments 664w
Drugs, International cooperation 123w
Eastern Europe, Nuclear weapons 663w
Entry clearances 745w
Entry clearances, Appeals 835w
Entry clearances, Applications 237w
Firearms, EC action 742–3w
India 514w
India, Embassies 237w
Indonesia, Religious freedom 2w
Israel, Arms trade 744w
Joint Entry Clearance Unit, Manpower 664w
Members, Correspondence 124w
Pakistan 515w
Prisoners, Repatriation 744–5w
Saudi Arabia, Christianity 839w
Sierra Leone, Peace keeping operations 662–3w
Sudan, Armed conflict 927w
USA, Terrorism 837–8w, 924w
Vanunu, Mordechai 664w
Zimbabwe, Armed forces 668w
Zimbabwe, Elections 838–9w
Zimbabwe, Land 743w
Zimbabwe, Sanctions 743w

Bradwell power station
542w

Brady, Mr Graham
Debates etc.
Lifelong learning (06.11.01) 198–202, 204–5
Questions
Civil servants, Manpower 76w
Commonwealth Games, Security 12–3
Education, Assessments 720w
GCE AS level 720w
Health services, Reciprocal arrangements 706–7, 855w
Literacy 53w
Private education, Fees and charges 407–8w

Brady, Mr Graham—continued*
Schools, Finance 718w
Schools, Hackney 424w
Schools, Music 423–4w
Schools, Religion 127w
Sixth form education, Finance 717w
Teachers 408–9w
Teachers, Foreign workers 805–6w
Teachers, Manpower 805w
Teachers, Pay 719–20w, 801w
Teachers, Qualifications 246w, 805w
Teachers, Vacancies 802w
Terrorism, Northern Ireland 225–6
Visits abroad, Dept for Education and Skills 245–6w, 802–5w

Brain
Injuries 106w, 282–3w, 549w

Brake, Tom
Questions
Chemical and biological warfare, Water supply 130w
Climate Change Convention 963–4
GoVia 137w
Individual learning accounts, Sutton 865w
London Underground, Absenteeism 737w
London Underground, Directors 621w
London Underground, Finance 831w
London Underground, Holiday leave 621w
London Underground, Manpower 624w
London Underground, Public private partnerships 620–4w
London Underground, Standards 737w
London Underground, Working hours 620w
Sports, Community development 3–4

Breast cancer
533–4w
Electric cables 474w
Screening 790–1w

Breed, Mr Colin
Debates etc.
Animal Health Bill, 2R (12.11.01) 647–50, 652
Questions
Agency nurses 673–4w
Foot and mouth disease, Government assistance 589w
Supermarkets, Farmers 441–2w

Brennan, Kevin
Questions
Economic situation, Terrorism 360
European City of Culture 343w
Inland waterways 35w
New deal for lone parents 567
Sportsgrounds 64w
Students, Finance 711w
Telephone services, Nuisance 647w

Bridges
Upton upon Severn 148w
West coast railway line 831–2w

British Coal Corporation
Equal pay (07.11.01) 339–46

British Council
839w

British East West Centre
Annual reports 926w

British Irish Council
307–8w

British nationality
Applications 778w

British overseas territories
744w, 835w
Armed forces 835–6w

British Petroleum
843w

British Russia Centre
Annual reports 926w

British Sky Broadcasting
756w

Broadband
262w, 404w

Broadcasting
637w

Broadcasting Act 1990
Questions
271w

Broadcasting reception
High Peak 268w

Bromley
Individual learning accounts 247–8w

Brooke, Mrs Annette L
Debates etc.
Lifelong learning (06.11.01) 184–6, 200
Questions
Ambulance services, Standards 361–2w
Council housing, Cash incentive scheme 738w
Endometriosis 946w
Hearing aids 355w
Refrigerators, Waste disposal 329w
Teachers, Resignations 440w

Brown, Rt Hon Gordon, Chancellor of the Exchequer*
Questions
Economic situation, Terrorism 347–8, 350–2
New deal schemes 354–6
Queen Elizabeth II, Anniversaries 490w
Terrorism, Finance 347–50, 358
Working families tax credit 362–3

Brown, Rt Hon Nicholas, Minister for Work, Department for Work and Pensions*
Questions
Buildings, Dept for Work and Pensions 699w
Correspondence, Dept for Work and Pensions 369–70w
Employment 572w
Employment zones 573w
International Labour Conference 3w
Job creation, Scotland 584w
Jobcentre Plus 372–3w, 567–8, 572w, 576w, 703w
Jobcentre Plus, Industrial disputes 785w
Jobcentre Plus, Interviews 4w
Jobcentre Plus, Telephone services 575–6w
Jobcentre Plus, Training 372w, 374w, 575w
Jobcentre Plus, Vale of York 371–2w
Jobcentre Plus, Working conditions 576–8w
Jobcentres, Crimes of violence 565w
Jobcentres, Information technology 583w
Manufacturing industries, Manpower 570w
National Employment Panel 784–5w
New deal for lone parents 370–1w, 539–40w, 568w
New deal for long term unemployed 568–9w
New deal for long term unemployed, Birmingham 568w
New deal for young people 568–9w
New deal for young people, Advisory services 936w
New deal schemes 565
New deal schemes, Information technology 570w

Brown, Rt Hon Nicholas—continued*
New deal schemes, Publicity 569–70w
ONE programme 584w
Pay, Dept for Work and Pensions 582w
Redundancy 583w, 937w
Select committees, Dept for Work and Pensions 581w
Social security, Scotland 375w
Social Security Benefits Agency, Security 579w
Social Security Benefits Agency, Working conditions 578–9w
Social Security (Jobcentre Plus Interviews) Regulations 2001 375w

Brown, Mr Russell
Debates etc.
Animal Health Bill, 2R (12.11.01) 586, 599, 660
Questions
Energy Policy Review 171w
Farms, Waste disposal 446w
Monetary compensatory amounts 812w
NHS, Finance 399w
Poverty 132w
Railway stations, Disabled 139w, 295–6w
West coast railway line 139–40w

Browne, Mr Desmond
Questions
Abortion, Northern Ireland 480w
Criminal Justice Review, Northern Ireland 516–7w
Elections, Northern Ireland 277–8w
Health education, Northern Ireland 347w, 480w

Browning, Mrs Angela
Debates etc.
Animal Health Bill, 2R (12.11.01) 582, 591, 610, 631–6, 638–9
Questions
Juries, Eligibility 939w

Bruce, Malcolm
Debates etc.
Animal Health Bill, 2R (12.11.01) 579, 595–600, 668
Questions
Animal Health Bill 2001/02 972w
Flood control, Cambridgeshire 967
Monetary compensatory amounts 305w
Radioactive fallout, Chernobyl 588–9w
Sheep 972w

Bryant, Mr Chris
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Gibraltar (07.11.01) 72wh, 74wh, 79–80wh, 82–4wh
Questions
Broadcasting 637w
Clergy, Pay 17
Digital broadcasting 9–10
Euro 486w
Task forces 959w

BSE
see Bovine spongiform encephalopathy

Buck, Ms Karen
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Housing (15.11.01) 324wh, 337wh, 341–6wh
Questions
Free school meals 868w
Local government finance, New Earnings Survey 504–5w
London Underground, Public private partnerships 503w, 900–1w
Parking, Greater London 133w
Refugees, Applications 84–7w, 316–7w
Rented housing, Greater London 508w

Buck, Ms Karen—continued*
UK online for business, Greater London 871w

Buckinghamshire
Education 716–7w
Elderly 476w
Hospitals 220–1w
New Opportunities Fund 638w
Pensioners 527w
Skilled workers 856–7w
Unemployment 527–8w

Building Act 1984
Questions
292w

Building (Amendment) Regulations 2001
Debates etc.
(08.11.01) 381

Building inspectors
338w
Complaints 292w

Bull bars
137w

Burden, Richard
Debates etc.
Afghanistan, Armed conflict (14.11.01) 875
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 755–7

Bureaucracy
Schools 43–4w
Social security benefits 786w

Bureaux de change
490w

Burglary
641w

Burgon, Colin
Questions
Cemeteries 966w
Northern Ireland Compensation Agency 834w
Nurses, Manpower 674w
Pension credit 560–1

Burma
Political prisoners 123w

Burnett, Mr John
Debates etc.
Afghanistan, Armed conflict (14.11.01) 873
Oral questions, Points of order (06.11.01) 109
Questions
Investment returns 399w
Livestock, Waste disposal 301w
Rural areas, Voluntary organisations 36w

Burnham, Andy
Debates etc.
British Coal Corporation, Equal pay (07.11.01) 339–43
Questions
Independent Living Fund 191–2w

Burns, Mr Simon
Debates etc.
Oral question time intervention (13.11.01) 696, 709
Roads, Safety (14.11.01) 949–52
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Hepatitis (14.11.01) 283–5wh
Questions
A12, Road works 912–3w
Driving offences, Essex 94w
Influenza, Vaccination 348–9w
Institutional care 109–10w, 551w
Institutional care, Closures 109w

Burns, Mr Simon*—*continued
Institutional care, Fees and charges 478–80w
Maintenance, Children 565w
Members, Correspondence 982w
Mid Essex Hospital Services NHS Trust, Waiting lists 947–8w
Nurses, Recruitment 698–9
Police, Essex 966–7w
Social security benefits, Abuse 937–8w
Written questions, Cabinet Office 959–60w
Written questions, Dept for Culture Media and Sport 952w
Written questions, Dept for Education and Skills 930w
Written questions, Dept for Environment Food and Rural Affairs 972–3w
Written questions, Dept for International Development 932–3w
Written questions, Dept for Transport Local Government and the Regions 913w
Written questions, Dept for Work and Pensions 935w
Written questions, Dept of Health 950w
Written questions, Dept of Trade and Industry 918–9w
Written questions, Foreign and Commonwealth Office 926–7w
Written questions, Home Office 962–3w
Written questions, Ministry of Defence 958w
Written questions, Northern Ireland Office 938–9w
Written questions, Office of the Secretary of State for Wales 940w
Written questions, President of the Council 898w
Written questions, Prime Minister 898w
Written questions, Scotland Office 931w
Written questions, Solicitor-General 897w
Written questions, Treasury 915–6w

Burnside, David
Questions
Terrorism, Northern Ireland 276–7w
Tourism, Terrorism 7

Burstow, Mr Paul
Questions
Attendance allowance 187–8w
Caribbean, HIV infection 776w
Community care services grant 357w
Computers, Cabinet Office 308w
Computers, Dept for Culture Media and Sport 345w
Computers, Dept for Education and Skills 246–7w
Computers, Dept for Environment Food and Rural Affairs 589–90w
Computers, Dept for International Development 431w
Computers, Dept of Trade and Industry 540w
Computers, Foreign and Commonwealth Office 485–6w
Computers, Home Office 558w
Computers, Northern Ireland Office 484–5w
Computers, Office of the Secretary of State for Wales 342w
Computers, President of the Council 834w
Electroconvulsive therapy 681–2w, 947w
Health services 941w
Health services, Fees and charges 940w
Home energy efficiency scheme 452w
Homelessness, Elderly 513–4w, 832w
Hospitals, Waiting lists 852w
Income support 893w
Influenza, Vaccination 349w
Institutional care, Capital rules 110w
Institutional care, Fees and charges 943w

Burstow, Mr Paul*—*continued
Institutional care, Income support 195w
Local government finance 224w
National Care Standards Commission 224w
National Care Standards Commission, Manpower 349–50w
NHS, Classification schemes 940w
NHS trusts, Franchises 553w
NHS trusts, Standards 551w
Nutrition 682–4w
Pension Service 560
Pensioners, Income support 188w
Social security benefits 195–6w
Social services, Standards 98–100w
Technology Advisory Group 961w
VAT, Institutional care 70w

Burt, Alistair
Debates etc.
Lifelong learning (06.11.01) 131
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Higher education (08.11.01) 175–8wh
Questions
Aviation, Manpower 910w
Doctors, Career structure 110w
Higher education, Information technology 39–40w
Higher education, Pay 440w
Individual learning accounts 707w
Individual learning accounts, Fraud 706–7w, 865w
National training organisations 867–8w
Students, Finance 717–8w
Students, Loans 718w
Vocational training 424w
Working mothers 556
Yarls Wood Detention Centre 185–6w

Bus services
137–8w
Concessions 141w, 725w
Standards 626–7w, 737w
Wales 761w

Business
352, 354
Government assistance 329–30w
Regulation 538w, 769w
Scotland 174w
Taxation 356–7
VAT returns 157w

Business links
159w
Farmers 147w

Business premises
Empty property 296w

Business statements
366–78, 979–95

Butterfill, Mr John
Debates etc.
House of Lords, Reform (07.11.01) 248
Stakeholder pensions (13.11.01) 795–6, 799–800, 807, 811–3

Byers, Stephen
230–2

Byers, Rt Hon Stephen*, *Secretary of State for Transport Local Government and the Regions
Debates etc.
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 723–35, 737
Questions
Bus services, Standards 626–7w, 737w
Cellular phones, Licensing 15–6w
Council housing, Rents 616–7w
Local government, Pension funds 9w
Local government finance 139w

Byers, Rt Hon Stephen*—*continued
Local government finance, Greater London 13–4w
Local government finance, Hackney 16w
Local government modernisation team 624–6w
Ministerial policy advisors, Dept for Transport Local Government and the Regions 456w
Railtrack 19–29
Railtrack, Finance 455w, 899–900w
Regional planning and development 14–5w
Terrorism, Dept for Transport Local Government and the Regions 618w
Voting behaviour 15w

Bypasses
339w

Cabinet Office
Assets 204w
Buildings 404–5w
Computers 308w
Consultation papers 308w
Devolution 783w
Energy 203w
Manpower 8w
Parliamentary questions 404w
Public expenditure 307w
Publications 204w
Written questions 959–60w

Cable, Mr Vincent
Debates etc.
Export Control Bill, Rep and 3R (08.11.01) 397–9, 415, 429–31, 444–5
Railways, Franchises (16.11.01) 1126–9
World Trade Organisation (07.11.01) 261–2, (15.11.01) 1000–1
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Aviation (14.11.01) 260–4wh
Post offices, Closures (07.11.01) 104–7wh, 113wh
Questions
Bank services 398–9w
Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service 99–100
Metropolitan Police, Finance 646w
Ports, Property transfer 136w
Post offices, Bank services 262w
Publicity, Dept for Culture Media and Sport 634w
Publicity, Dept for Education and Skills 707w
Publicity, Dept for International Development 266w
Publicity, Dept for Transport Local Government and the Regions 453w
Publicity, Home Office 970–1w
Publicity, Lord Chancellor's Dept 487w
Publicity, Ministry of Defence 518w
Publicity, Northern Ireland Office 485w
Tax allowances 537w

Caborn, Rt Hon Richard*, *Minister of State for Sport, Dept for Culture Media and Sport
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Gambling (06.11.01) 32wh, 43–5wh
Questions
Athletics 271w
Athletics, Picketts Lock 170w
Chess 170w
Commonwealth Games, Security 12–3
English Sports Council 749–50w
English Sports Council, Finance 271w
Football, Finance 749w
Football, Industrial disputes 748–9w
Gambling 64w
Gaming machines 63–4w
Gaming machines, Social clubs 14–5
Millennium Stadium, Cardiff 8–9

Caborn, Rt Hon Richard—continued
National Lottery 63w, 66w, 170w, 493–4w
National Lottery, West Yorkshire 748w
New Opportunities Fund, Buckinghamshire 638w
New Opportunities Fund, Sports 501w
New Opportunities Fund, Terminal care 170–1w
Playing fields, Sales 752w
Queen Elizabeth II, Anniversaries 499w
Sports 62–3w, 65w, 751w
Sports, Community development 3–5, 750–2w
Sports, Finance 749w
Sports, Specialist schools 750w
Sports, Training 65–6w
Sports competitors, Learning disability 492–3w
Sportsgrounds 64w
Sportsgrounds, Football 63w
Sportsgrounds, Manchester 344w
UK Sports Institute 61w

Calton, Mrs Patsy
Questions
Hearing aids 355w
Schools, Fast food 421w

Cambridgeshire
Flood control 966–8
Primary care trusts 688w

Cameras
Speed limits 729–30w

Cameron, Mr David
Debates etc.
Lifelong learning (06.11.01) 116
Questions
Foot and mouth disease, Hunting 696w

Campbell, Mr Alan
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Gambling (06.11.01) 32–4wh

Campbell, Mrs Anne
Debates etc.
Lifelong learning (06.11.01) 118
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 720
Questions
International Criminal Court 238w

Campbell, Rt Hon Menzies
Questions
Exercise Saif Sareea 2 376–7w, 521w

Campbell, Mr Ronnie
Debates etc.
Afghanistan, Armed conflict (14.11.01) 871–2
House of Commons Liaison Committee (05.11.01) 65
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 725

Cancer
67–8w
Blood transfusions 673w
Medical treatments 471w, 672w
Waiting lists 107–8w

Cannabis
82–3w
Arrests 176w, 317–8w

Capital gains tax
840–1w

Capital Modernisation Fund
844w

Capital rules
Institutional care 110w

Caplin, Mr Ivor, An Assistant Whip
Debates etc.
Public bodies (16.11.01) 1125

Caravan sites
Electricity 648w

Carbon monoxide
Poisoning 773w

Carbon Trust
Public appointments 35–6w, 590w

Cardiff
Millennium Stadium 8–9

Career structure
Doctors 110w

Carers
Social security benefits 704w

Caribbean
HIV infection 776w

Carmichael, Mr Alistair
Debates etc.
House of Lords, Reform (07.11.01) 253
Questions
Business questions 990
NHS, Private finance initiative 673w
Petrol, Scotland 647w

Casale, Roger
Debates etc.
Export Control Bill, Rep and 3R (08.11.01) 409–10, 428, 463
International Development Bill (HL), 2R (07.11.01) 316–8
Stakeholder pensions (13.11.01) 784
World Trade Organisation (07.11.01) 265
Questions
Business questions 370
Pensioners, Welfare tax credits 573w
Social security benefits 399w

Cash, Mr William
Questions
Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service 102
Council housing, Staffordshire 291–2w

Cash incentive scheme
Council housing 738w

Category A prisoners
641w

Catering
Hospitals 357w

Caton, Mr Martin
Questions
Individual learning accounts, Redundancy 865w
Teachers, Early retirement 866–7w

Cattle
Exports 597–8w, 976w

Cellular phone masts
see Aerials

Cellular phones
Hoaxes and false alarms 879–80w
Licensing 15–6w, 68w, 262–3w

Cemeteries
966w

Census
327–8w
Forms 402w

Central America
335–6w

Central Asia
Oil 169w

Central Railway
736–7w

Central Trains
Standards 507–8w

Ceredigion
Magistrates' courts 201w
Water supply (14.11.01) 292–7wh, 894w

Cervical cancer
Leicestershire 470w
Medical treatments 471w
Screening 470–1w

Challen, Mr Colin
Questions
Aviation, Security 908w
Creative partnerships initiative 636w
Magistrates, Leeds 102–3
National Lottery, West Yorkshire 748w
Pensioners, Income support 703w
Public sector, Standards 401w
Regional airports 907w
Tobin tax 71w, 234

Challenger tanks
24–5w, 376w, 527w

Chancellor of the Exchequer
see Treasury

Chapman, Mr Ben
Questions
Dee estuary 844–5
Energy, Conservation 883w
Formby Fire Station 731–2w
House of Commons, Reform 197w
Magistrates, Recruitment 199w
Older workers 571w
Regional development agencies 401w

Chapman, Sir Sydney
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Housing (15.11.01) 313–4wh
Questions
Architecture, Rotherham 2–3
Business questions 987–8
Charity Commission, Complaints 89–90w
Clergy, Pay 16–7

Charities
402w
Private education 91w
Registration 187w
Taxation 73–4w

Charity Commission
Complaints 89–90w

Chaytor, Mr David
Debates etc.
Lifelong learning (06.11.01) 159–61, 167–8, 170, 172
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Higher education (08.11.01) 148wh, 157–63wh
Questions
Adult education 866w
Adult education, Finance 865–6w
Business premises, Empty property 296w
Business questions 372, 991
Carbon Trust, Public appointments 35–6w, 590w
Climate Change Convention 964–5
Education, Assessments 862–3w
Education, Finance 238–9w
Energy, Consumption 264w
Hearing aids 704–5
Housing associations, Shared ownership schemes 510w
Industrial training 548w
Lorry drivers, Working hours 505w
Nuclear power stations, Security 329w
Pensions, Complaints 576w
Postal services, Theft 648w
Powershift programme 724w
Sellafield, Security 540–1w

Chelmsford
Social security benefits 937–8w

Chemical and biological warfare
434w
Antibiotics 25w
Eastern Europe 663w
Water supply 130w

Chemicals
EC action 445–6w
Health hazards 476w, 505w

Chernobyl
Radioactive fallout 588–9w, 894w

Cheshire
Foot and mouth disease 145w

Cheshire Constabulary
317w

Chess
170w

Chidgey, Mr David
Questions
British overseas territories 744w, 835w

Child benefit
938w

Child care tax credit
842w

Child prostitution
Africa 849w
Ivory Coast 849w

Child Support Agency
Audit 565–6w
Debts 3–4w, 566w
Finance 566–7w
Manpower 310–1w

Children
Abuse 216w, 471–2w
Church Commissioners 5w
Day care 715–6w
Democratic Republic of Congo 266–7w
Depressive illnesses 101–2w
Disabled 216w
Homicide 91–2w
Maintenance 551–2, 565w, 891–3w
Mentally ill 102–3w
Poverty 579w
Refugees 386–7w
Self-mutilation 101–2w

Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service
99–102

Children in care
227–8w

China
651–2w
World Trade Organisation 840w

Chinook helicopters
27w, 632w
Accidents 128–9w

Chiropody
229–30w, 285–6w, 795w

Chope, Mr Christopher
Debates etc.
World Trade Organisation (07.11.01) 266, (15.11.01) 1003–4
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 204–8wh
Questions
Attendance allowance, Administrative delays 311–3w
Attendance allowance, Appeals 313w
Bee Diseases Insurance 258w
Bees, Diseases 890w, 968–9
Caravan sites, Electricity 648w
Early excellence centres 539w

Chope, Mr Christopher—continued
Equitable Life Assurance Society 203–4w, 254w, 491w
Equitable Life Independent Inquiry, Costs 531w
Equitable Life Independent Inquiry, Manpower 531w
Financial Services Authority, Pay 259w
Financial Services Authority, Standards 489–90w
Income tax, Self-assessment 257w
National Lottery 493–4w
Personal pensions, Misrepresentation 255w
VAT, Tax yields 255w

Chorley
Foot and mouth disease 346w
Housing 611w
Regional planning and development 650w
Royal Ordnance 542w

Christianity
Saudi Arabia 839w

Christmas bonus
Pensioners 437w

Church Commissioners
Children 5w

Church of England
Art works 5w

Church schools
42–3w
Equal opportunities 169–70w

Churches
Floods 18
Military bases 827w
Reading 4–5w
Repairs and maintenance 5–6w
VAT 5–6w, 72w

Cirencester Hospital
Petitions (13.11.01) 832

City of London
Police 321w

City of London (Ward Elections) Bill 1998/99
Debates etc.
Motion to proceed in present session (07.11.01) 221, (15.11.01) 1030–66

Civil Contingencies Committee
6–8w

Civil servants
Dept for Environment Food and Rural Affairs 978w
Manpower 76w, 540w
Pay 670w, 767w
Pensions 959w
Working hours 961w

Clapham, Mr Michael
Questions
Architecture, Rotherham 1–2
Working mothers 556

Clappison, Mr James
Debates etc.
Stakeholder pensions (13.11.01) 786
Questions
Employment, Scotland 172w
Employment agencies, Regulation 541–2w
Income support, Lone parents 193–4w
Internet, Dept for Work and Pensions 190w
Jobcentre Plus 373w, 554–5
Jobcentre Plus, Industrial disputes 785w
Jobcentre Plus, Training 372w, 374w
Jobcentre Plus, Working conditions 576–8w
Jobcentres, Information technology 583w
Jobseeker's allowance 190w

Clappison, Mr James—continued
National insurance 699–700w
New deal for lone parents 370–1w, 539–40w, 568w
New deal for long term unemployed 568–9w
New deal for young people 568–9w
New deal for young people, Advisory services 936w
New deal schemes, Information technology 570w
New deal schemes, Publicity 569–70w
ONE programme 584w
Social security benefits, Abuse 783–4w
Social Security Benefits Agency, Security 579w
Social Security Benefits Agency, Working conditions 578–9w

Clark, Mrs Helen
Debates etc.
Mental health services, Racial discrimination (09.11.01) 544–7
Questions
Environment protection 159–60w
Mental patients, Death 283w
Unemployment, Peterborough 571–2w
VAT, Institutional care 608w

Clark, Dr Lynda, Advocate General for Scotland
Questions
Human rights, Scotland 98
Legislation, Scotland 97–8
Oral questions 395w
Refugees, Deportation 98–9
Refugees, Scotland 99

Clarke, Rt Hon Kenneth
Debates etc.
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 746–50, 769
Questions
Immigration, Applications 94w
Refugees, Applications 92–3w
Terrorism, International cooperation 196w

Clarke, Rt Hon Tom
Debates etc.
Export Control Bill, Rep and 3R (08.11.01) 399–400
International Development Bill (HL), 2R (07.11.01) 292–5
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Tourism (13.11.01) 183–7wh
Questions
Tourism, Terrorism 7

Clarke, Mr Tony
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Gambling (06.11.01) 36wh
Questions
Class sizes, Northamptonshire 41–2w
Dental services, Northamptonshire 213w
Education, Northamptonshire 42w
Holocaust Memorial Day, Dept for Culture Media and Sport 267w
Schools, Northamptonshire 41w
Teachers, Training 428w
Terrorism, Northern Ireland 276w

Class sizes
711w
Northamptonshire 41–2w
Primary education 711–2w, 870w

Classification schemes
NHS 940w

Cleaning services
Schools 46w

Cleansing Service Group
Explosions (06.11.01) 215–20

Clelland, Mr David
Debates etc.
House of Lords, Reform (07.11.01) 250–1
Questions
Training, Contracts 572–3w

Clergy
Pay 16–7

Clifton-Brown, Mr Geoffrey
Debates etc.
Animal Health Bill, 2R (12.11.01) 576, 580, 584, 593
Aviation (05.11.01) 76–7, 79, 83–7, 89
Cirencester Hospital, Petitions (13.11.01) 832
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 738, 744, 751
Stakeholder pensions (13.11.01) 809–10
Travel Concessions (Eligibility) Bill (HL), 2R (05.11.01) 37–40, 42
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Aviation (14.11.01) 254–5wh, 264–6wh
Fire services, Ministry of Defence (13.11.01) 233wh
Housing (15.11.01) 319–26wh, 329wh, 332wh, 338wh, 343wh, 354–5wh, 358wh, 360wh
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 214wh, 217wh
Questions
Aviation, Scotland 94–5
Bed and breakfast accommodation 463w
Census, Forms 402w
Children, Poverty 579w
Council housing, Property transfer 466–7w
Empty property 508–9w
Flats over shops initiative 459w
Homelessness 460–2w
Local authorities, Debts 463–6w
Planning permission 462w
Planning permission, Appeals 462–3w
Runaway children 441w

Climate Change Convention
670w, 883w, 887w, 963–6

Climate change levy
256w, 768w, 841w
Engineering 768w
Glass 660–1w
Horticulture 148w
Manufacturing industries 841w
Nuclear power 657w, 768w

Clones
(07.11.01) 115–20wh

Clwyd, Ann
Debates etc.
Export Control Bill, Rep and 3R (08.11.01) 424, 434–7

Coaker Mr Vernon
Questions
Alcoholic drinks, Young people 965–6w
New deal for young people 567w
Rural Payments Agency 971w

Coal
162–3w, 652w
Government assistance 160–1w, 163w, 754w
Imports 163w

Coal operating aid scheme
652–3w

Coastal areas
Economic situation 636–7w, (15.11.01) 1068–76
Essex 979–80w
Tourism 637–8w

Coffey, Ms Ann
Debates etc.
Stakeholder pensions (13.11.01) 798
Questions
House of Commons, Reform 197w

Cohabitation
Registration of births deaths and marriages 76–7w

Cohen, Harry
Questions
Afghanistan, Armed conflict 131–2w
Afghanistan, Television 748w
Bin Laden, Osama 8w
Church Commissioners, Children 5w
Furs, Labelling 920–1w
Hospitals, Catering 357w
Liability 564–5w
Local government, Pensions 725w
London Underground, Fares 289–90w
MacSwiney, Terence 694w
Mink 973w
Mink, Farms 813–4w
Mink, Transport 813w
Roads, Greater London 615w
Social services, Finance 221w
Tibet 6w

Colchester
Magistrates' courts 200w

Cold weather payments
437w

Coleman, Mr Iain
Questions
London Underground, Public private partnerships 900–2w

Collins, Mr Tim
Debates etc.
Public bodies (16.11.01) 1081–8, 1118–20
Questions
Nuclear power stations, Security 378w

Colman, Mr Tony
Debates etc.
World Trade Organisation (15.11.01) 1001–2
Questions
Democratic Republic of Congo, Children 266–7w
Entry clearances 745w
Members, Correspondence 500w, 778w, 876–7w

Combined heat and power
38w, 657w, 756w, 886–7w
Tax allowances 916w

Commemorative coins
Banks 260w
Princess of Wales 259–60w
Queen Elizabeth II 490w

Commission for Health Improvement
229w

Commission of the European Communities
see European Commission

Committee of Selection
(05.11.01) 1

Committees
European Communities 926w
Legislative process 198w
Local government 293w

Common agricultural policy
69w, 981–2w
EC enlargement 447w
Reform 973w

Common fisheries policy
975–6w

Common sugar regime
300–1w

Commonwealth
Scholarships 848w

Commonwealth Games
Security 12–3

Commonwealth Heads of Government Conference
124w

Community care
Mental health services 101w, 227w, 680w

Community care services grant
357w

Community development
Sports 3–5, 750–2w

Community health services
Medical equipment 98w

Community Legal Service
Disadvantaged 201w
Employment tribunals 201w

Community nurses
709–10

Community service orders
Enforcement 488w, 641–2w

Companies
Debts 492w

Company cars
Taxation 843w

Company liquidations
153w
Bank of Credit and Commerce International 660w

Compensation Agency
see Northern Ireland Compensation Agency

Competition
Legal profession 442–3w

Compulsorily detained mental patients
104w

Computers
Cabinet Office 308w
Dept for Culture Media and Sport 345w
Dept for Education and Skills 246–7w
Dept for Environment Food and Rural Affairs 589–90w, 977w
Dept for International Development 431w
Dept of Trade and Industry 540w
Foreign and Commonwealth Office 485–6w
Home Office 558w
Magistrates' courts 564w
Northern Ireland Office 484–5w
Office of the Secretary of State for Wales 342w
President of the Council 834w
Social Security Benefits Agency 528w

Concorde
Ministers 783w

Conditions of employment
EC action 3w
Mental health services 679–80w
Part-time employment 2w
Primary care trusts 687–8w
Private finance initiative 307w

Confiscation of Alcohol (Young Persons) Act 1997
Questions
965–6w

Congo (Kinshasa)
see Democratic Republic of Congo

Connarty, Mr Michael
Questions
EC Development Council 933–4w

Connex Rail
Finance 830–1w

Consent to medical treatment
945–6w

Conservation
Energy 590–1w, 814w, 883w, 978
Fish 303–4w

Consignia
647w

Consultants
Government departments 607–8w
Hospitals 477–8w
Neurology 794w

Consultation papers
Cabinet Office 308w
Dept for Culture Media and Sport 343–4w
Dept for Education and Skills 710–1w
Dept for Environment Food and Rural Affairs 34w
Dept for International Development 849–50w
Dept for Transport Local Government and the Regions 610–1w
Dept of Health 476–7w
Foreign and Commonwealth Office 514w
Home Office 782w
Ministry of Defence 520w
Treasury 532w

Consumer Protection Act 1988
Questions
470w

Consumer Protection (Cancellation of Contracts Concluded Away from Business Premises) (Amendment) Regulations 1998
Questions
918w

Consumers
Protection 442w

Consumption
Energy 264w

Contingency reserve
397–8w

Contracts
Training 572–3w

Convention on Combating Bribery of Foreign Public Officials in Business
431w

Convictions
Money laundering 496–7w
Tipping of waste 393w

Conway, Derek
Questions
Personal savings, Tax allowances 529w

Cook, Rt Hon Robin, President of the Council and Leader of the House of Commons*
Debates etc.
House of Commons Liaison Committee (05.11.01) 64–6, 71–2
House of Lords, Ministerial statements (07.11.01) 239–55
Questions
Appointments Commission, Annual reports 834w
Business statements 366–78, 979–95
Computers, President of the Council 834w
Fair trade initiative, President of the Council 897w
House of Commons, Reform 197w

Cook, Rt Hon Robin—continued*
House of Lords composition 662w
Legislation 602w
Members, Information technology 198–9w
Members, Travel 76w
Parliamentary scrutiny 197w
Parliamentary year 104–6
Scottish Parliament, House of Lords composition 286w
Written questions, Administrative delays 871–2w
Written questions, President of the Council 898w

Coquetdale Hospital
109w

Corbyn, Jeremy
Debates etc.
Afghanistan, Armed conflict (14.11.01) 873
City of London (Ward Elections) Bill, Motion to proceed in present session (15.11.01) 1031–5, 1040–1, 1044, 1047–52, 1054, 1058–60
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Housing (15.11.01) 315wh, 323–4wh
Questions
Afghanistan, Armed conflict 432w
Religion 5w
Whittington Hospital, Repairs and maintenance 671w

Coroners
MV Marchioness 200w

Corporate manslaughter
563w

Corporation tax
768–9w
Manufacturing industries 842–3w

Corruption
Prosecutions 186–7w

Corston, Jean
Debates etc.
Human Rights Joint Select Committee (15.11.01) 1024–7
Questions
Terrorism, Northern Ireland 226

Cotswold Hills
Nuclear shelters 741w

Cotter, Brian
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Gambling (06.11.01) 26wh
Hepatitis (14.11.01) 276–8wh, 290wh
Small businesses (06.11.01) 12–5wh
Questions
Business, Government assistance 329–30w
Haemophilia, Medical treatments 795w
Hepatitis 470w
Institutional care, Young people 470w, 548w

Council housing
Barnsley 615w
Cash incentive scheme 738w
Doncaster 615w
Property transfer 466–7w
Rents 616–7w
Staffordshire 291–2w

Council of Europe
UK delegations 286–7w

Council of the Isles
see British Irish Council

Council tax benefit subsidy limitation scheme
140w

Countryside and Rights of Way Act 2000
Questions
888w

Countryside stewardship scheme
448w

County Hall
12w

Courts
Interpreters 789w

Cousins, Mr Jim
Questions
Civil servants, Pensions 959w
Corruption, Prosecutions 186–7w
Customs and Excise, Manpower 403w
East coast railway line 11w
Individual learning accounts 705–6w
Institutional care, Attendance allowance 579–80w
National Criminal Intelligence Service 93–4w
National Insurance Fund 258w
NHS Pensions Agency 113w
Pension funds 704w
Police, Manpower 388–9w, 967–8w
Tajikistan, Overseas aid 21w
Tax evasion 258w
Terrorism, Finance 252w
Vacancies, Statistics 490–1w

Cox, Mr Tom
Questions
Armed forces, Deployment 129–30w
Beef, Imports 304w
British Council 839w
British nationality, Applications 778w
Category A prisoners 641w
Common agricultural policy, Reform 973w
Debts, Developing countries 530w
Drugs, International cooperation 123w
EC enlargement 924–5w
Embassies, Operating costs 334w
Ethnic minority achievement grant, Greater London 869–70w
Excise duties, Fuels 529w
Homelessness, Greater London 908w
Immigrants, Detainees 877–8w
Income tax, Pensioners 774w
Organic farming 447w
Post offices, Greater London 923w
Prisoners 79w
Prisoners, Disabled 644w
Prisoners, Elderly 644w
Prisoners, Repatriation 744–5w
Prisons, Construction 644w
Refugees, Location 873w
Refugees, Ports 877w
Refugees, Sri Lanka 559–60w

Cranston, Ross
Debates etc.
Parliamentary procedure, Sub judice (15.11.01) 1015–6
Questions
Consumers, Protection 442w
Special constables 393–4w

Crausby, Mr David
Questions
Gibraltar 121w
Gibraltar, European Parliament elections 121w
Older workers 571w

Creative partnerships initiative
636w

Crime
Alcoholic drinks 734w
London Underground 503–4w
Railways 733–4w

Crime prevention
Wales 762–3w, 845–7

Crimes against property
96w

Crimes of violence
Jobcentres 565w
Northern Ireland 276w, 483w
Teachers 423w
Wales 765w

Criminal injuries compensation
894w

Criminal injuries compensation scheme
563w

Criminal Justice Review
Northern Ireland 516–7w

Criminal Records Bureau
90w

Crops
Genetically modified organisms 821w
Land use 981w

Crossrail line
455w
Finance 13w

Crown courts
Hereford 397w

Cruddas, Jon
Questions
Civil Contingencies Committee 6–8w

Cryer, Mrs Ann
Questions
Business questions 985

Cryer, John
Debates etc.
City of London (Ward Elections) Bill, Motion to proceed in present session (15.11.01) 1039, 1053
Questions
Business questions 377
Hearing aids 706
Hospital beds 676–7w
Illegal immigrants 497–8w

Cuba
Terrorism 2w

Cultural heritage
Lancashire 267w

Culture
62w

Cunningham, Mr Jim
Questions
Afghanistan, Armed conflict 234–5
Anthrax, Vaccination 790w
Commonwealth Heads of Government Conference 124w
Exercise Saif Sareea 2 631–2w
Fire services, Manpower 832–3w
Fire services, Recruitment 511w
Further education 57–9w
General Service Medal, Suez Canal 26w
Immigration rules 873w
Industrial health and safety, Hotels 511w
Juries, Protection 201–2w, 564w
Manufacturing industries 755w
Midwives, Recruitment 114–5w
Military decorations 520w
NHS, Finance 553w
Regional planning and development, West Midlands 618–9w
Schools, Discipline 59w
Sixth form education 246w
Transport, West Midlands 510w
Water supply 36–7w
Working mothers 555–6

Cunningham, Mr Jim—continued
Youth offender panels 556–7w

Curriculum
45–6w
Terrorism 863–4w

Curry, Rt Hon David
Debates etc.
Animal Health Bill, 2R (12.11.01) 576, 611–8

Curtis-Thomas, Ms Claire
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Housing (15.11.01) 320–1wh, 339wh
Questions
Fire services, Merseyside 736w
Written questions, Administrative delays 94w

Customs and Excise
Arrests 69w
Body searches 70w, 251w
Disciplinary proceedings 530w
Fraud 152w
Information technology 842w
Insurance premium tax 151–2w
Manpower 403w
National Investigation Service 152w
Orders and regulations 841w
Poole 403w
Prosecutions 69–70w, 252w
Right of search 68–9w
Sick leave 605w
Smuggling 403w
Standards 152w, 766w
Terrorism 153w

Customs and Excise Management Act 1979
Questions
251w

Customs officers
Rosyth 843w

Cyprus
Birds 925–6w

Dalyell, Mr Tam
Debates etc.
Afghanistan, Armed conflict (14.11.01) 869
World Trade Organisation (07.11.01) 261, (15.11.01) 1000
Questions
Afghanistan, Armed conflict 954–5w
Bovine spongiform encephalopathy 961
Business questions 992
Iraq, Anthrax 6w
Ministers, Concorde 783w
Pakistan 515w
Smallpox, Disease control 687w
Sports 65w

Damages
New Forest District Council 453–4w

Darling, Rt Hon Alistair, Secretary of State for Work and Pensions
Debates etc.
Stakeholder pensions (13.11.01) 785–97
Questions
Jobcentre Plus 552–5
New deal for 50 plus 556–9, 567–8w
New deal for lone parents 564–5
Social security benefits, Automated credit transfer 570w
Written questions, Dept for Work and Pensions 935w

Data protection
880w
Email 650w

Databases
Genetics 554–5w
Housing benefit 788w

Davey, Mr Edward
Debates etc.
City of London (Ward Elections) Bill, Motion to proceed in present session (15.11.01) 1038–9, 1051–6
Questions
Economic situation, Terrorism 359

Davey, Mrs Valerie
Debates etc.
Lifelong learning (06.11.01) 153–8
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Higher education (08.11.01) 165–7wh
Questions
Afghanistan, Armed conflict 248w
British Russia Centre, Annual reports 926w

David, Mr Wayne
Questions
Business questions 990–1
Crime prevention, Wales 845–6

Davidson, Mr Ian
Questions
Scottish Parliament 172w

Davies, Rt Hon Denzil
Debates etc.
World Trade Organisation (15.11.01) 1002
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Gibraltar (07.11.01) 92wh
Questions
Refugees, Applications 874w
Terrorism, Finance 350

Davies, Geraint
Debates etc.
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 718, 731–2
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Housing (15.11.01) 314wh, 321wh, 327–8wh
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 208–13wh, 217wh, 221wh
Questions
Housing, Capital investment 910–2w

Davies, Mr Quentin
Questions
Northern Ireland government 225
Police, Northern Ireland 228–9

Davis, Rt Hon David
Questions
Fish, Conservation 303–4w
Fisheries, Compensation 303w
Flood control, East Riding 144w, 290w

Dawson, Mr Hilton
Questions
Afghanistan, International assistance 132w
Afghanistan, Overseas aid 264–5w
Afghanistan, Refugees 264w
Bypasses 339w
Sudan, Armed conflict 927w
Tomography, Blackpool Victoria Hospital 359w

Day care
Children 715–6w

Deaf
see Hearing impaired

Death
Fires 290w, 617w
Heroin 222–3w
Meningitis 773w
Mental patients 283w

Debts
Child Support Agency 3–4w, 566w

Debts—continued
Companies 492w
Developing countries 398w, 530w
Local authorities 463–6w
Serbia 515w

Decommissioning International Commission
see Independent International Commission on Decommissioning

Dee estuary
844–5

Deep vein thrombosis
232, 340w

Defence
Radio frequencies 917w

Defence Aviation Repair Agency
380w, 954w
RAF St Athan 827w, 954w

Defence Diversification Agency
Scotland 518–9w

Defence equipment
Israel 526w
Procurement 28w, 378w, 523w, 526w
Scotland 28w

Defence Medical Services
740–1w

Democratic Republic of Congo
Children 266–7w
Natural resources 848w

Denham, Rt Hon John, Minister of State, Home Office*
Debates etc.
Football (Disorder) (Amendment) Bill, Rep and 3R (14.11.01) 921, 930–5, 938–9, 945
Questions
Antisocial behaviour orders 318–9w, 393w, 878–9w, 961–2w
Badgers 561–2w, 880–1w
Burglary 641w
Community service orders, Enforcement 641–2w
Computers, Home Office 558w
Corporate manslaughter 563w
Criminal injuries compensation scheme 563w
Criminal Records Bureau 90w
Dizaei, Ali 563–4w
Domestic violence 964–5w
Dyfed Powys Police, Disciplinary proceedings 962w
EU Justice Home Affairs and Civil Protection Council 315–6w
Firearms 881w
Fireworks 643–4w
Genetics, Databases 554–5w
Hoaxes and false alarms, Cellular phones 879–80w
Homicide, Children 91–2w
Imitation guns 555w
Internet, Disclosure of information 969–70w
Juries 692–3w
Metropolitan Police, Finance 646w
Metropolitan Police, Pay 642–3w
National Criminal Intelligence Service 93–4w
Police, Essex 966–7w
Police, Manpower 316–7w, 321w, 388–9w, 967–8w
Police, Pay 319–20w
Police, Pensions 315w, 640w
Police, Resignations 963–4w
Police, Vehicles 389–91w, 500w
Police custody 321w
Race relations 640w

Denham, Rt Hon John—continued*
Rape crisis centres 388w
Religiously aggravated offences 969w
Road traffic offences, Fines 80w
Security, Private sector 322w
Sexual offences 641w
Special constables 393–4w, 963w
Special constables, Sussex 323w
Sussex Police, Manpower 968–9w
Terrorism 644–5w
Terrorism, Training 562–3w, 645w
Theft, Motorcycles 317w
Tipping of waste, Convictions 393w
Vandalism 322w
Voluntary organisations 319w
Written questions, Administrative delays 94w
Youth offender panels 556–7w

Dental services
213w, 215w, 351–3w, 678w
Fees and charges 214–5w
Isle of Wight 678w
Lincolnshire 213–4w
Manpower 214w
Northamptonshire 213w
Refugees 279–81w
Shropshire 98w, 677–8w

Departmental coordination
Manpower 547w

Departmental responsibilities
546–7w
Dept for Education and Skills 861w
Dept for Transport Local Government and the Regions 904w
Ports 547–8w

Deployment
Armed forces 129–30w
Royal Naval Reserve 633–4w

Deportation
643w
Refugees 98–9, 383–6w

Depressive illnesses
Children 101–2w

Dept for Culture Media and Sport
Computers 345w
Consultation papers 343–4w
Fair trade initiative 952w
Holocaust Memorial Day 267w
Non-departmental public bodies 62w
Public private partnerships 882w
Publicity 634w
Written questions 952w

Dept for Education and Skills
Assets 247w
Computers 246–7w
Consultation papers 710–1w
Departmental responsibilities 861w
Freedom of Information Act 2000 864w
Manpower 245w
Publicity 707w
Visits abroad 245–6w, 802–5w
Written questions 930w

Dept for Environment Food and Rural Affairs
Annual reports 977w
Assets 145w
Civil servants 978w
Computers 589–90w, 977w
Consultation papers 34w
Correspondence 444w
Exeter 696–7w
Information officers 33–4w
Information technology 977–8w
Manpower 32–3w
Private finance initiative 978–9w
Select committees 302w

Dept for Environment Food and Rural Affairs—continued
Written questions 972–3w

Dept for International Development
Advertising 933w
Computers 431w
Consultation papers 849–50w
Fair trade initiative 931w
Freedom of Information Act 2000 934w
Public relations 431–2w
Publications 16–7w, 933w
Publicity 266w
Written questions 932–3w

Dept for Transport Local Government and the Regions
Consultation papers 610–1w
Departmental responsibilities 904w
Devolution 829w
Fair trade initiative 914w
Ministerial policy advisors 456w
Public private partnerships 725–6w
Public relations 737–8w
Publicity 453w
Standards 733w
Terrorism 618w
Written questions 913w

Dept for Work and Pensions
Buildings 699w
Correspondence 369–70w
Disabled 585w
Energy 313–4w
Internet 190w
Parliamentary questions 369–70w
Pay 582w
Select committees 581w
Written questions 935w

Dept of Health
Assets 549–50w
Buildings 205w, 280w
Consultation papers 476–7w
Public expenditure 607w
Publications 350w
Publicity 284w
Royal prerogative 470w
Written questions 950w

Dept of Trade and Industry
Computers 540w
Orders and regulations 654w
Public private partnerships 659w
Written questions 918–9w

Derelict land
831w
Tax allowances 71w

Detainees
Immigrants 877–8w

Developing countries
Debts 398w, 530w
Trade 654w

Development aid
Trade unions 267w

Devolution
Cabinet Office 783w
Dept for Transport Local Government and the Regions 829w
Scotland Office 748w
Treasury 915w

Devon
Employment (06.11.01) 46–53wh

Diabetes
105–6w, 857

Dietary supplements
EC action 943w

Digital broadcasting
9–11, 268w, 343w, 636w

Dioxins
598w

Diplomatic service
Ethnic groups 1w
Public appointments 664w
USA 486–7w

Dir85/337/EEC
339w

Dir90/220/EEC
821w

Dir97/11/EC
339w

Dir2000/53/EC
159w

Direct selling
Utilities 918w

Directors
London Underground 621w

Disability Discrimination Act 1995
Questions
191w

Disability income guarantee
587w

Disability living allowance
Administrative delays 191w
Hearing impaired 438w

Disabled
Boarding schools 39w
Children 216w
Dept for Work and Pensions 585w
Prisoners 644w
Railway stations 139w, 295–6w
Social security benefits 314w, 701w, 703w

Disadvantaged
Bank services 72w, 535w
Community Legal Service 201w
Home Office 879w
Lancaster 627w
Treasury 765–6w

Disciplinary proceedings
Customs and Excise 530w
Dyfed Powys Police 962w
Medical profession 851w
NHS 110–1w
North Staffordshire Hospital NHS Trust 107w

Discipline
Schools 59w

Discrimination
Religion 80w

Disease control
Bovine spongiform encephalopathy 974–5w
Foot and mouth disease 30w, 145–6w, 297–9w, 306w, 449–50w, 587–8w, 596–7w, 695w, 814–6w
Scrapie 29w
Smallpox 687w

Diseases
Bees 890w, 968–9

Dismore, Mr Andrew
Debates etc.
Stakeholder pensions (13.11.01) 799, 802
Questions
Afghanistan, Armed conflict 663w
Afghanistan, Armed forces 825w
Barnet Hospital 677w
Building Act 1984 292w
Building inspectors 338w
Building inspectors, Complaints 292w
Corporate manslaughter 563w
Criminal injuries compensation 894w

Dismore, Mr Andrew—continued
Criminal injuries compensation scheme 563w
Holocaust Memorial Day 639–40w
Holocaust Memorial Day, Television 638–9w, 950w
Immigration 645w
International Labour Conference 3w
Legal aid 788–9w
Legal profession, Competition 442–3w
London Underground, Public private partnerships 902–3w
Museums and galleries, Fees and charges 66w
National House Building Council, Standards 292w
New Forest District Council, Damages 453–4w
Passports 315w
Social security benefits, Abuse 190w
Social security benefits, Overpayments 193w
Terrorism 644–5w
Terrorism, Training 645w
War graves, Wrecks 435w

Dizaei, Ali
563–4w

Djanogly, Mr Jonathan
Debates etc.
Stakeholder pensions (13.11.01) 794
World Trade Organisation (15.11.01) 1007
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Higher education (08.11.01) 167–8wh
Questions
Teachers, Huntingdon 806–8w

Dobbin, Jim
Questions
Museums and galleries 14

Dobson, Rt Hon Frank
Questions
Cannabis, Arrests 176w
Information technology, Treasury 257w
NHS, Negligence 77–8w, 224–6w
Passports, Postal services 499–500w

Doctors
Career structure 110w
Foreign workers 227–8w, 284w, 368w
Suicide 226w

Doctors' list of patients
218–9w

Dodds, Mr Nigel
Questions
Terrorism, Northern Ireland 226–7

Domestic violence
103, (13.11.01) 833–40, 964–5w

Donaldson, Mr Jeffrey M
Debates etc.
House of Lords, Reform (07.11.01) 249
Questions
Homicide 938w
Medical treatments, EC countries 107w
Parades Commission, Complaints 482w
Parades Commission, Manpower 480–2w
Parades Commission, Public appointments 481–2w
Police, Northern Ireland 275w, 279w, 609–10w
Refugees, Applications 81w

Doncaster
Council housing 615w
Social rented housing 615–6w

Donohoe, Mr Brian H
Debates etc.
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 719, 722, 727, 731–2

Dorrell, Rt Hon Stephen
Debates etc.
Lifelong learning (06.11.01) 146–53, 171

Double taxation
Jordan 775w
Lithuania 775w

Doughty, Sue
Questions
Landfill tax credit scheme 70–1w, 256w
Livestock, Exports 303w
Recycling 300w
Tipping of waste 972–3

Downview Prison
382–3w, 777w

Drew, Mr David
Debates etc.
Animal Health Bill, 2R (12.11.01) 594, 620, 641–2, 650–3
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Housing (15.11.01) 314wh, 317wh, 324wh
Questions
Derelict land 831w
English Sports Council 749–50w
Flood control 738–9w
Flood control, Cambridgeshire 966–7
Food Standards Agency 304w
Foot and mouth disease, Disease control 587w
Fuel poverty 890–1w
Immigration and Nationality Directorate, Information technology 185w
Individual learning accounts 774w
Indonesia, Religious freedom 2w
Planning permission, Stroud 739w
Sign language, Training 4w
Social rented housing 739w
Sports 751w
Sports, Community development 750–2w
Sports, Specialist schools 750w
Tax avoidance, Self-employed 774w
Taxation, Information technology 774w

Drinking water
Standards 216–7w

Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency
Telephone services 618w

Driving offences
Essex 94w

Drug seizures
530w
Heroin 530w
Kingston upon Hull 916w

Drugs
Armed forces 434w
Expenditure 680w
International cooperation 123w
Mentally ill 944–5w
Misuse 90w, 183–4w, 320–1w, (09.11.01) 475–543, 966w
NHS 680–1w
OECD countries 473–4w
Research 944w
Schizophrenia 944w
Smuggling 916w
Veterinary medicine 31w, 591–2w

Duncan, Mr Alan
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Gibraltar (07.11.01) 75wh, 86–7wh, 92wh

Duncan, Mr Peter
Questions
Air traffic, West Freugh 436w

Duncan, Mr Peter*—*continued
Air traffic control, Prestwick 747w
Broadband 262w
Manufacturing industries, Wales 762w
Poverty, Scotland 96–7
Small businesses, Scotland 171w

Duncan Smith, Rt Hon Iain
Debates etc.
Afghanistan, Armed conflict (14.11.01) 864–6
Questions
Byers, Stephen 230–2
Hospitals, Waiting lists 855–6
Manufacturing industries 851–2
NHS 235–6

Dunwoody, Mrs Gwyneth
Debates etc.
Animal Health Bill, 2R (12.11.01) 575
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 719
Questions
Health services, Reciprocal arrangements 707
Railtrack 23–4

Dyfed Powys Police
Disciplinary proceedings 962w

Eagle, Angela, Parliamentary Secretary, Home Office
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Shrestha, Gitanjali (14.11.01) 308wh, 310–2wh
Questions
Animal experiments 175–6w, 645–6w
Animal welfare 325–6w
British nationality, Applications 778w
Charities, Registration 187w
Charity Commission, Complaints 89–90w
Deportation 643w
Ethnic groups, Home Office 777w
Experience Corps, Elderly 319w
Experience Corps, Schools 185w
Forensic science, Manpower 391w
Forensic science, Standards 391w
Holocaust Memorial Day 639–40w
Holocaust Memorial Day, Television 638–9w
Identity cards 79w, 183w, 321–2w
Identity cards, Terrorism 387–8w
Illegal immigrants 497–8w
Immigrants, Detainees 877–8w
Immigration 645w
Immigration, Advisory services 387w
Immigration, Appeals 89w
Immigration, Applications 94w, 557–8w
Immigration and Nationality Directorate, Administrative delays 781–2w
Immigration and Nationality Directorate, Information technology 185w
Immigration controls, Armed conflict 182w
Immigration rules 873w
Immigration rules, Racial discrimination 394w
Kidnapping 318w
Local government finance 876w
Medical profession, Foreign workers 874–5w
Members, Correspondence 90–1w, 500w, 778w, 876–7w
National Asylum Support Service 881w
Passports 315w
Passports, Fees and charges 183w, 556w
Passports, Postal services 499–500w
Private education 91w
Private education, Charities 91w
Racially aggravated offences, Prosecutions 498–9w
Refugees 79–81w, 88w, 875–6w

Eagle, Angela*—*continued
Refugees, Administrative delays 181w, 385w, 393w
Refugees, Appeals 384–5w
Refugees, Applications 81w, 84–7w, 92–3w, 177–9w, 316–7w, 560–1w, 874w
Refugees, Barnsley 87–8w
Refugees, Children 386–7w
Refugees, Deportation 383–6w
Refugees, Employment 87w
Refugees, Fingerprints 179–80w
Refugees, Housing 91w
Refugees, Identity cards 83–4w
Refugees, Location 177w, 873w
Refugees, Ports 877w
Refugees, Proof of identity 87w
Refugees, Racial harassment 383–6w, 558–9w
Refugees, Social security benefits 375–6w
Refugees, Sri Lanka 559–60w
Refugees, Temporary accommodation 323–6w, 876w
Refugees, Voucher schemes 386w
Refugees, Young people 875w
Religion, Discrimination 80w
Religiously aggravated offences 500w
Rodents 878w
Singh, Amarjit 777w
Terrorism, Islam 873w
United Kingdom Passport Agency, Information technology 183w
Yarls Wood Detention Centre 185–6w

Eagle, Maria, Parliamentary Secretary, Department for Work and Pensions
Debates etc.
Stakeholder pensions (13.11.01) 781
Questions
Attendance allowance 187–8w
Attendance allowance, Administrative delays 311–3w
Attendance allowance, Appeals 313w
Benefits Agency Medical Service, Fibromyalgia 192–3w
Carers, Social security benefits 704w
Disability Discrimination Act 1995 191w
Disability income guarantee 587w
Disability living allowance, Administrative delays 191w
Disability living allowance, Hearing impaired 438w
Employment schemes, Learning disability 565w
Independent Living Fund 191–2w
Institutional care, Attendance allowance 579–80w
Invalid care allowances, Students 189w
New deal for disabled people 567w
Pension Service 559–60
Social security benefits, Disabled 701w, 703w
Social security benefits, Overpayments 193w
Workstep 370w

Early excellence centres
539w, 798–9w

Early retirement
Teachers 866–7w

East coast railway line
11w, 144w, (13.11.01) 242–8wh

East Riding
Flood control 144w, 290w

Eastbourne
Housing 452w

Eastern Europe
Chemical and biological warfare 663w
Nuclear weapons 663w

Eastern region
Heart diseases 676w

EC action
Bank services 492w
Chemicals 445–6w
Conditions of employment 3w
Dietary supplements 943w
Financial services 73w, 488–9w, 770–1w
Firearms 742–3w
Herbal medicine 685–6w
Industrial health and safety 337w, 610w, 913–4w
Occupational pensions 772w
Taxation 257w
Veterinary medicine 592w

EC countries
Medical treatments 106–7w, 210w, 283–4w, 367–8w, 550–1w, 853w
National insurance contributions 775w
Rapid deployment forces 379w
Terrorism 547w

EC Culture Council
494w

EC Development Council
933–4w

EC enlargement
924–5w
Common agricultural policy 447w

EC Finance Council
537w

EC Foreign Affairs Council
665–8w

EC grants and loans
332w, 341w, 759w
Film 494–5w
Lancaster 629w
Wales 341w, 762w

EC law
Genetically modified organisms 884w
Ground water 206w
Motor vehicles 159w, 648w, 758–9w, 889w
Ozone layer 158w
Railways 294w

EC Research Council
330w

Economic and monetary union
153–4w
Referendums 401–2w

Economic growth
532w

Economic situation
255–6w, 844w
Coastal areas 636–7w, (15.11.01) 1068–76
Scotland 873w
Terrorism 252w, 347–8, 350–2, 358–60, 400w

Eden project
64–5w

Education
Afghanistan 858
Assessments 720w, 862–3w
Buckinghamshire 716–7w
Fees and charges 797w
Finance 52w, 140w, 238–9w, 717w, 860–1w
Leeds 713w, 868w
Northamptonshire 42w
Political impartiality 869w
Prisons 95–6w, 778–81w
Private sector 538w
Shropshire 861–2w
Standards 716w
Worcestershire 52w, 140w

Education*—*continued
Young offenders 94–5w

Education and Skills Select Committee
(12.11.01) 685

Educational maintenance allowance
716w, 929–30w

Edwards, Mr Huw
Debates etc.
Animal Health Bill, 2R (12.11.01) 628–31
Questions
Bus services 137–8w
Child benefit 938w
Housing market, Interest rates 401w
Non-domestic rates 536w
Non-domestic rates, Public houses 536w
Occupational pensions, Tax allowances 529–30w
Paternity leave 542w
Schools, Admissions 440–1w
Transport, Schools 724w, 765w, 908–9w
Transport, Wales 841–2

Efford, Clive
Debates etc.
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 760–2
Questions
Bovine spongiform encephalopathy 887w
London Underground, Public private partnerships 900–1w, 903–4w
Railways, South East region 292–3w, 732w
TNF Alpha Blockade, Prescriptions 672w
Transport for London, Finance 904w

Elderly
Buckinghamshire 476w
Experience Corps 319w
Homelessness 513–4w, 832w
Prisoners 644w

Elections
Northern Ireland 277–8w
Zimbabwe 838–9w

Electoral Commission
740w

Electoral register
Ethnic groups 872w
Scotland 97, 872w

Electric cables
166w
Breast cancer 474w
Health hazards 207–9w, 474w

Electricity
Caravan sites 648w

Electricity generation
659–60w
Fossil fuels 331–2w
Markets 161–2w, 658–9w, 755–6w

Electroconvulsive therapy
105w, 681–2w, 947w

Electromagnetic fields
Health hazards 474–5w

Electronic government
887w

Ellman, Mrs Louise
Debates etc.
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 717, 750–2, 763, 766
Questions
Manufacturing industries 353–4
National Asylum Support Service 881w
Refugees, Temporary accommodation 876w
Walton Group 723w

Email
Data protection 650w

Embassies
India 237w
Operating costs 334w

Emissions trading scheme
546w

Employee share ownership schemes
608–9w, 770–1w

Employment
572w
Devon (06.11.01) 46–53wh
Females 609w
Refugees 87w
Scotland 172–4w

Employment agencies
Regulation 541–2w

Employment Bill 2001/02
Debates etc.
1R (07.11.01) 268

Employment rehabilitation
Insurance 567w

Employment schemes
Learning disability 565w

Employment tribunals
760–1w
Community Legal Service 201w
Royal Parks Constabulary 951w

Employment zones
573w

Empty property
508–9w
Business premises 296w

Endometriosis
946w

Energy
Cabinet Office 203w
Conservation 590–1w, 814w, 883w, 978
Consumption 264w
Dept for Work and Pensions 313–4w
Government assistance 919w
Home Office 174w
Prime Minister 286w
Scotland Office 872w

Energy Policy Review
171w

Engineering
Climate change levy 768w

English Partnerships
Land 726w

English Sports Council
749–50w
Finance 271w

Ennis, Jeff
Debates etc.
British Coal Corporation, Equal pay (07.11.01) 344
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Gambling (06.11.01) 36–7wh
Questions
Council housing, Doncaster 615w
Equal pay 759w
Heart diseases, Surgery 671–2w
Social rented housing, Doncaster 615–6w
Stakeholder pensions, Small businesses 700w

Entertainments
Armed forces 525–6w

Entrust
817–8w
Pay 818w

Entry clearances
745w

Entry clearances*—*continued
Appeals 835w
Applications 237w

Environment Food and Rural Affairs Select Committee
(05.11.01) 74

Environment protection
159–60w
Seas and oceans 144–5w

Environmental Audit Select Committee
(05.11.01) 74

Environmentally sensitive areas
146–7w

Equal opportunities
Armed forces 435–6w
Church schools 169–70w

Equal pay
759w
British Coal Corporation (07.11.01) 339–46

Equal Pay Act 1970
Questions
759w

Equitable Life Assurance Society
203–4w, 237, 254w, 491w

Equitable Life Independent Inquiry
Costs 531w
Manpower 531w

Ernst and Young
Railtrack 735w

Essex
Coastal areas 979–80w
Driving offences 94w
Police 966–7w

Estuaries
Scotland 872w

Etherington, Bill
Debates etc.
City of London (Ward Elections) Bill, Motion to proceed in present session (15.11.01) 1040, 1042, 1044, 1056–8, 1062, 1064
Questions
Genetic engineering, Patents 443w

Ethics
Local government 457–8w

Ethnic groups
Armed forces 378–9w
Diplomatic service 1w
Electoral register 872w
Home Office 777w
Mental health services 101w
Mental patients 104w
Teachers 53w, 799–800w

Ethnic minority achievement grant
Greater London 869–70w

EU Justice Home Affairs and Civil Protection Council
184w, 315–6w

Euro
350, 486w
Forgery 255w

European Central Bank
Accountability 154w

European City of Culture
343w

European Commission
Plutonium 167–8w

European Communities
see also EC and EU headings

European Communities—continued
Committees 926w

European Communities (Definition of Treaties) (European School) Order 2001
Debates etc.
(06.11.01) 213–4

European Communities (Definition of Treaties) (North Atlantic Salmon Conservation Organization) Order 2001
Debates etc.
(06.11.01) 213–4

European Communities (Definition of Treaties) (Partnership Agreement Between the Members of the African Caribbean and Pacific Group of States and the European Community and its Member States (The Cotonou Agreement) Order 2001
Debates etc.
(12.11.01) 684

European Communities (Immunities and Privileges of the North Atlantic Salmon Conservation Organization) Order 2001
Debates etc.
(06.11.01) 213–4

European Communities (Privileges of the European School) Order 2001
Debates etc.
(06.11.01) 213–4

European Court of Auditors
15–6

European fighter aircraft
633w, 741w

European Parliament elections
Gibraltar 121w, 123w

European Scrutiny Committee
(12.11.01) 684

European Year of People with Disabilities 2003
951w

Euthanasia
355–6w

Evans, Mr Nigel
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Post offices, Closures (07.11.01) 98–102wh, 106wh
Water supply, Ceredigion (14.11.01) 292wh
Questions
Crime prevention, Wales 847

Ewing, Annabelle
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Tourism (13.11.01) 195–6wh
Questions
Aviation, Scotland Office 930w
Capital Modernisation Fund 844w
Correspondence, Dept for Work and Pensions 369–70w
Institutional care, Scotland 171w
National insurance contributions, Scotland 260–1w
New deal for 50 plus 557
Office of Communications, Scotland 951–2w
Pay, Dept for Work and Pensions 582w
Refugees, Scotland 99
Select committees, Dept for Work and Pensions 581w
Social security, Scotland 375w

Excise duties
250–1w
Fuels 256w, 529w, 536w, 766w
Motor vehicles 133w, 288w, 653w, 922w

Excise duties—continued
Tax yields 253w

Exercise Saif Sareea 2
255w, 376–7w, 521–2w, 631–2w, 956w
Pay 437w

Exeter
Dept for Environment Food and Rural Affairs 696–7w

Exmoor
Foot and mouth disease 982w

Experience Corps
Elderly 319w
Schools 185w

Explanatory notes
Orders and regulations 941w

Explosions
Cleansing Service Group (06.11.01) 215–20
Port Talbot 850–1

Export Control Bill 2001/02
Debates etc.
Rep and 3R (08.11.01) 382–464

Export controls
68w
Arms trade 251w

Exports
Cattle 597–8w, 976w
Game 976–7w
Livestock 303w, 597w
Sheep 300w
Sheep meat 821w

Exservicemen
Medals 521w

Extradition
963w
USA 92w

Fabricant, Michael
Debates etc.
Drugs, Misuse (09.11.01) 476–7, 480, 490, 503, 510–3
Picketts Lock, Points of order (08.11.01) 379
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 724–5
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Housing (15.11.01) 327wh
Questions
Bishops 18
Foot and mouth disease, Inquiries 888–9w
Jobcentre Plus 554
Schizophrenia, Prescription drugs 711

Fair trade initiative
Dept for Culture Media and Sport 952w
Dept for International Development 931w
Dept for Transport Local Government and the Regions 914w
Foreign and Commonwealth Office 927w
Home Office 970w
Lord Chancellor's Dept 939w
Office of the Secretary of State for Wales 939–40w
President of the Council 897w
Solicitor-General 897w

Fallon, Mr Michael
Questions
Public expenditure, Scotland 172w

Fares
London Underground 289–90w

Farm Business Advice Service
593w

Farm woodland premium scheme
306w

Farmers
see also Agriculture
Business links 147w
Supermarkets 263w, 306–7w, 441–2w, 886w
Worcestershire 306–7w

Farms
Diversification 593w, 697w, 884–5w
Mink 813–4w
Shropshire 597w
Tenants 601w
Waste disposal 446w

Farrelly, Paul
Debates etc.
Export Control Bill, Rep and 3R (08.11.01) 407–9

Fast food
Schools 421w

Females
Afghanistan 238w
Employment 609w
Prisoners 326w

Ferries
Passengers 143–4w
Pensioners 141w
Rosyth 513w, 905w
Scotland 173w

Fibromyalgia
Benefits Agency Medical Service 192–3w

Field, Rt Hon Frank
Debates etc.
Stakeholder pensions (13.11.01) 802–5
Questions
Chinook helicopters, Accidents 128–9w
National insurance 538w, 584–5w
New deal for 50 plus 558
Social security benefits, Abuse 700w
Sure start programme, Birkenhead 927w
Teachers, Manpower 808–9w
Working families tax credit, Abuse 253–4w

Field, Mr Mark
Debates etc.
City of London (Ward Elections) Bill, Motion to proceed in present session (15.11.01) 1058–61
Drugs, Misuse (09.11.01) 524
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Small businesses (06.11.01) 10–2wh
Questions
Income tax 356
Office of the Rail Regulator 739–40w
Westminster City Council 12w
Westminster City Council, Inquiries 904–5w

Film
EC grants and loans 494–5w
Prisons 640w

Financial services
Belize 17–8w, 123–4w
EC action 73w, 488–9w, 770–1w

Financial Services Authority
Pay 259w
Standards 489–90w

Fines
Litter 149–50w
Road traffic offences 80w

Fingerprints
Refugees 179–80w

Finland
Nuclear power 163–4w

Fire services
617w

Fire services*—*continued
Finance 829w
Hoaxes and false alarms 617w
Manpower 832–3w
Merseyside 736w
Ministry of Defence (13.11.01) 227–34wh
Recruitment 511w

Firearms
881w
EC action 742–3w

Firearms Act 1968
Questions
881w

Fires
Death 290w, 617w

Fireworks
643–4w, 753–4w
Accidents 661w
Retail trade 443w
Sales 261w
Scotland 754w

Fireworks (Safety) Regulations 1997
Questions
443w

Fish
Conservation 303–4w

Fish farming
589w

Fisher, Mr Mark
Debates etc.
Human Rights Act 1998 (Designated Derogation) Order, Points of order (12.11.01) 572

Fisheries
Compensation 302–3w, 592w
Subsidies 448w

Fishing Vessels (Decommissioning) Scheme 2001
Debates etc.
(06.11.01) 214

Fitzsimons, Lorna
Questions
Tucker, Nick 561w

Flats over shops initiative
459w

Flexible working
544w

Flight, Mr Howard
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Princess Royal Hospital (06.11.01) 64–5wh
Questions
Capital gains tax 840–1w
Local government, Pension funds 917w
Local government, Pensions 725w

Flint, Caroline
Debates etc.
British Coal Corporation, Equal pay (07.11.01) 346
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Hearing aids (07.11.01) 131wh, 134wh
Questions
Health services, Reciprocal arrangements 708
New deal for lone parents 564
Parliamentary year 104

Flood control
34w, 450–2w, 594–5w, 698w, 738–9w, 975–6
Cambridgeshire 966–8
East Riding 144w, 290w
Finance 885–6w, 979w
Greater London 818–9w

Flood control*—*continued
North Yorkshire 594w
Rawcliffe 595w
River Ouse 594–5w
Wales 842–4
Worcestershire 593–4w

Floods
Churches 18
Housing 457w
Insurance 34w, 698w

Flook, Mr Adrian
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Post offices, Closures (07.11.01) 109wh

Flynn, Paul
Debates etc.
Drugs, Misuse (09.11.01) 476, 482–3, 499–502
Stakeholder pensions (13.11.01) 784
Questions
Clergy, Pay 16
Drugs, Misuse 183–4w, 320–1w
Farms, Diversification 697w
Foot and mouth disease, Disease control 587–8w, 814–5w
Foot and mouth disease, Markets 445w
Health education, Alcoholic drinks 223–4w
Heroin, Death 222–3w
Hospitals, Hygiene 672w
Industry, Government assistance 757–8w
Livestock, Markets 591w
Manufacturing industries, Wales 763w
Millennium Stadium, Cardiff 8–9
Monetary compensatory amounts 361–2
Nuclear power stations, Security 631w, 846w
Personal pensions 569–70
Sellafield, Security 160w

Follett, Barbara
Questions
Bureaux de change 490w
Double taxation, Jordan 775w
Economic and monetary union 153w
Medical profession, Training 285w
Motor vehicles, EC law 889w

Food
Genetically modified organisms 108–9w
Import controls 31w, 972w
Imports 306w
Smuggling 844w, 916–7w

Food Standards Agency
304w

Foot and mouth disease
445w, 888w, 969–71, 976–7w
Cheshire 145w
Chorley 346w
Compensation 299w
Disclosure of information 811–2w
Disease control 30w, 145–6w, 297–9w, 306w, 449–50w, 587–8w, 596–7w, 695w, 814–6w
Exmoor 982w
Government assistance 298w, 589w, 815w
Hunting 446–7w, 695–6w, 819–20w, 889–90w
Import controls 889w
Incinerators 977w
Inquiries 888–9w
Leominster 588w
Markets 445w
Northumberland 298w
Powys 300w, 346w
Public inquiries 299–300w, 445w
Redundancy 815w
Sheep 298–9w
Tourism 61w
Wales 763–5w
Waste disposal 30w

Football
Finance 749w
Industrial disputes 748–9w
Sportsgrounds 63w
Television 65w

Football (Disorder) (Amendment) Bill 2001/02
Debates etc.
Rep and 3R (14.11.01) 919–48

Foreign and Commonwealth Office
Assets 1w
Computers 485–6w
Consultation papers 514w
Fair trade initiative 927w
Wines 746–7w
Written questions 926–7w

Foreign workers
Doctors 227–8w, 284w, 368w
Medical profession 874–5w
NHS 796w
Teachers 800w, 805–6w

Forensic science
Manpower 391w
Standards 391w

Forgery
Euro 255w

Formby Fire Station
731–2w

Forms
Census 402w

Forth, Mr Eric
Debates etc.
House of Commons Liaison Committee (05.11.01) 65–9
House of Lords, Reform (07.11.01) 241–4
Human Rights Joint Select Committee (15.11.01) 1021–6, 1029
Oral question time intervention (06.11.01) 97
Parliamentary procedure, Sub judice (15.11.01) 1014–5, 1018
Points of order intervention (15.11.01) 1010
Questions
Business statements 366–8, 979–82

Fossil fuels
Electricity generation 331–2w
Pipelines 169w

Foster, Mr Don
Debates etc.
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 735–42
Travel Concessions (Eligibility) Bill (HL), 2R (05.11.01) 35–7, 41
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 215wh, 219–21wh
Questions
Central Railway 736–7w
Chemicals, Health hazards 476w, 505w
Hearing aids 703–4
Railtrack 24–5
Trains, Sanitation 511–2w, 905w
Transport, Schools 723–4w
VAT, Repairs and maintenance 250w

Foster, Mr Michael Jabez, (Hastings and Rye)
Debates etc.
Coastal areas, Economic situation (15.11.01) 1071–3
Human Rights Joint Select Committee (15.11.01) 1025
Lifelong learning (06.11.01) 120

Foster, Mr Michael John, (Worcester)*
Questions
Flood control 976
Infant mortality, Worcestershire 206–7w

Foulkes, Mr George, Minister of State, Scotland Office*
Questions
Airports, Scotland 174w
Army, Scotland 173w
Business, Scotland 174w
Electoral register, Scotland 97
Employment, Scotland 172–4w
Energy Policy Review 171w
Nuclear reactors, Scotland 173w
Poverty, Scotland 96–7
Railways, Scotland 171–2w
Small businesses, Scotland 171w

Fox, Dr Liam
Debates etc.
Sponsorship, Points of order (13.11.01) 713
Questions
Ambulance services, Telephone services 361w
Children in care 227–8w
Commission for Health Improvement 229w
Doctors, Foreign workers 227–8w, 284w, 368w
Doctors' list of patients 218–9w
General practitioners 367w
General practitioners, Occupational health 367w
General practitioners, Retirement 220w
General practitioners, Vacancies 219–20w
Ger Medic 285w
Government Statistical Service 853w
Heart diseases, Health services 362–7w
Hospital beds 360w
Hospital wards 362w, 854w
Hospitals, Waiting lists 852–3w
Institutional care, Closures 285w
Institutional care, Standards 701–2, 852w
Medical profession, Disciplinary proceedings 851w
Medical treatments, EC countries 283–4w, 367–8w, 550–1w, 853w
Medicine, Research 368–9w
Mental health services 228w
Mental health services, Community care 227w
MMR vaccine 478w
New Opportunities Fund, Terminal care 170–1w
NHS, Finance 843w
NHS, Pay 852w
NHS, Standards 360w
NHS Leadership Centre 853w
NHS Magazine 360w
NHS plan 229w, 949w
"NHS Plan News" 360w
NHS trusts, Pilot schemes 854w
Nurses, Recruitment 850w
Ports, Health authorities 338–9w, 909–10w
Prescription Pricing Authority 229w
Prescriptions, Fees and charges 228w
Press releases 855w
Public Health Laboratory Service 367w
Publicity, Dept of Health 284w
Radiotherapy, Finance 550w
Surgery 853–4w
Welfare foods 367w
Zyban 359–60w

Franchises
NHS trusts 553w
Railways (16.11.01) 1126–34
South West Trains 629w

Francis, Dr Hywel
Questions
Explosions, Port Talbot 850–1

Francois, Mr Mark
Debates etc.
City of London (Ward Elections) Bill, Motion to proceed in present session (15.11.01) 1048
Export Control Bill, Rep and 3R (08.11.01) 400–1
Lifelong learning (06.11.01) 127
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 727
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Gibraltar (07.11.01) 74wh, 82–3wh
Questions
Accident and emergency departments 858–9
Crimes of violence, Wales 765w
Housing 234
Public private partnerships 400w
Tourism, Terrorism 6–7

Fraud
388–9w
Customs and Excise 152w
Individual learning accounts 706–7w, 865w
Internet 833w
VAT 155–7w, 402–3w, 528w

Free school meals
46–51w, 240–3w, 407w, 868w

Freedom of Information Act 2000
Questions
693w, 895w
Dept for Education and Skills 864w
Dept for International Development 934w
Home Office 917–8w
Ministry of Defence 825w
Treasury 773w

Fruit
Subsidies 304–5w

Fuel poverty
890–1w

Fuels
Excise duties 256w, 529w, 536w, 766w
Smuggling 775w

Furs
Labelling 920–1w

Further education
57–9w
Finance 429w
Part-time employment 425w
Pay 424w
Per capita costs 704–5w
Standards Fund 861w
Student wastage 428–9w
Wales 764w

Future large aircraft
Italy 130w
Procurement 249w

Gale, Mr Roger
Debates etc.
Special education (05.11.01) 47, 51, 55, 63
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Gambling (06.11.01) 31–2wh
Questions
Aviation, Security 512w
Immigration controls, Armed conflict 182w
Members, Correspondence 345w
Refugees, Location 177w

Galloway, Mr George
Questions
Antitank missiles, Imports 526w
Defence equipment, Procurement 526w

Galloway, Mr George—continued*
Israel, Arms trade 744w

Gambling
(06.11.01) 24–45wh, 64w

Game
Exports 976–7w

Gaming machines
63–4w
Petitions (07.11.01) 338
Social clubs 14–5

Gapes, Mike
Questions
Culture 62w

Gardiner, Mr Barry
Questions
Council of Europe, UK delegations 286–7w
Government departments, Consultants 607–8w
Local Government Commission for England 740w
Tourism, Terrorism 7

Garnier, Mr Edward
Debates etc.
Human Rights Joint Select Committee (15.11.01) 1021, 1024–5
Questions
Business questions 988
Judges, Manpower 202w
Magistrates 199w

Gas Supply
see Natural gas

Gatwick Airport
Air traffic 467–8w
Landing rights 509w

GCE A level
44w

GCE AS level
38–9w, 720w

General certificate of secondary education
867w
Standards 51w, 406w, 539w

General practitioners
108w, 367w
Manpower 218w
Occupational health 367w
Performance appraisal 116w
Recruitment 548–9w, 688–9w
Retirement 220w
Sheppey 671w
Sittingbourne 671w
Vacancies 219–20w, 552w
Worthing 688–9w

General Service Medal
Suez Canal 26w

Genetic engineering
Patents 443w

Genetically modified organisms
Crops 821w
EC law 884w
Food 108–9w

Genetics
Databases 554–5w

George, Andrew
Questions
EC grants and loans 759w
Fisheries, Compensation 302w, 592w
Immigration, Appeals 181–2w
Refugees, Applications 177–9w

George, Rt Hon Bruce
Questions
Charities 402w

Ger Medic
285w

Gerrard, Mr Neil
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Hepatitis (14.11.01) 278–80wh

Gibb, Mr Nick
Questions
Refugees, Identity cards 83–4w
Smuggling 606w
Tobacco, Imports 531w

Gibraltar
(07.11.01) 69–92wh, 121–2w, 335w, 515w, 741w, 858
Anniversaries 27w
Armed forces 131w
European Parliament elections 121w, 123w
Pensions 122w
Telecommunications 122w

Gibson, Dr Ian
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Clones (07.11.01) 115–7wh
Hepatitis (14.11.01) 273–6wh, 279wh
Higher education (08.11.01) 141–2wh
Questions
Heart diseases, Eastern region 676w
National Institute for Clinical Excellence 117–9w
Norfolk and Norwich Hospital, Roads 830w

Gidley, Sandra
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Hepatitis (14.11.01) 280–3wh, 289wh
Questions
Consultation papers, Cabinet Office 308w
Consultation papers, Dept for Culture Media and Sport 343–4w
Consultation papers, Dept for Education and Skills 710–1w
Consultation papers, Dept for International Development 849–50w
Consultation papers, Dept for Transport Local Government and the Regions 610–1w
Consultation papers, Dept of Health 476–7w
Consultation papers, Foreign and Commonwealth Office 514w
Consultation papers, Home Office 782w
Consultation papers, Ministry of Defence 520w
Consultation papers, Treasury 532w
Dental services 213w
Fireworks 753w
General practitioners, Recruitment 548–9w
Hearing aids 683–5w
Medical profession, Manpower 222w
Meningitis 205–6w
New deal for lone parents 564–5
Nurses, Manpower 106w
People's Panel 783w
Press releases, Ministry of Defence 517–8w
Railtrack 341w

Gillan, Mrs Cheryl
Debates etc.
Lifelong learning (06.11.01) 121
Questions
Beta-interferon 227w

Gilroy, Linda
Questions
Africa, International assistance 336w
Eden project 64–5w

Gilroy, Linda—continued
New deal for disabled people 567w
Osteoporosis 949–50w

Glass
Aggregates levy 660–1w
Climate change levy 660–1w

Glencorse
Military bases 27w

Gloucestershire
Bovine tuberculosis 306w

Goggins, Paul
Questions
Aerospace industry 339w
Commonwealth Games, Security 13
New deal for lone parents 566–7
Treasure Act 1996 271w

Goodman, Mr Paul
Debates etc.
Stakeholder pensions (13.11.01) 788, 791, 821–2
Questions
Inland Revenue, Powers 259w
Roads, Noise 506w
Skilled workers, Buckinghamshire 857w
Social security benefits, Automated credit transfer 570w

Government art collection
501–2w

Government departments
Consultants 607–8w

Government Office for London
Manpower 871w

Government Office for the North East
960w

Government Statistical Service
853w

GoVia
137w

Grace and favour housing
634–6w

Graduates
Pay 533w

Grain
Import controls 151w

Gray, Mr James
Debates etc.
Foot and mouth disease, Points of order (15.11.01) 1009–10
Lifelong learning (06.11.01) 127, 129
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 727
Questions
Apache AH-64 helicopter 632–3w
Chinook helicopters 632w
European fighter aircraft 633w
Future large aircraft, Italy 130w
Future large aircraft, Procurement 249w
General practitioners, Vacancies 552w
HMS Ocean 952–3w
Immigration, Applications 557–8w
Manufacturing industries, Manpower 570w
Mercenaries 336w
Rural areas, Unemployment 345w
Sea Harrier aircraft 377w, 433w
State retirement pensions 194w
Veterinary medicine 974–5

Grayling, Chris
Debates etc.
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 717, 733, 736, 741, 744–6
Railtrack, Points of order (15.11.01) 1010
Transfer of questions, Points of order (08.11.01) 380

Grayling, Chris—continued
World Trade Organisation (15.11.01) 1006
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Higher education (08.11.01) 141wh, 155wh, 160–1wh, 163–5wh
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 209wh, 211wh, 218–20wh
Questions
Afghanistan, International assistance 132–3w
Business questions 378, 994–5
Civil servants, Manpower 540w
Companies, Debts 492w
Education, Finance 239w
Excise duties, Fuels 256w
General certificate of secondary education 867w
Higher education, Finance 705w
Higher education, Student numbers 710w
Identity cards 79w
Ministerial policy advisors 76w
Motor vehicles, EC law 648w
Plants, Prices 304w
Railtrack 134–5w, 340–1w
Railtrack, Finance 454–5w, 898–9w
Railways, EC law 294w
Rapid transit systems 454w
Rolling stock, Investment 455–6w
Schools, Merton 423w
Sixth form education 246w, 717w
Special education 421w
Sportsgrounds, Football 63w
Students, Finance 707w, 928w
Taxation, EC action 257w
Teachers, Recruitment 408w, 439–40w
Teachers, South East region 412w
Utilities, Direct selling 918w
Waterloo Station 454w
Youth Hostels Association, Finance 634w

Grazing land
148–9w

Greater London
Accident and emergency departments 674w
Air traffic 469w
Athletics 342w
Ethnic minority achievement grant 869–70w
Flood control 818–9w
Homelessness 908w
Hospitals 852w
Litter 37w
Local government finance 13–4w
Mental health services 99–101w
Parking 133w
Post offices 923w
Recycling 458–9w
Rented housing 508w
Roads 615w
UK online for business 871w

Greece
Refugees 840w

Green, Mr Damian
Debates etc.
Lifelong learning (06.11.01) 114–22, 131, 141
Special education (05.11.01) 50
Questions
Free school meals 407w
General certificate of secondary education, Standards 539w
Higher education 60w
Individual learning accounts 864w
Individual learning accounts, Fraud 865w
Pre-school education, Teachers 811w
Primary education, Class sizes 711–2w
Schools, Per capita costs 809w
Schools, Private sector 45w, 407w, 719w

Green, Mr Damian—continued
Sixth form education, Finance 809w

Green, Matthew
Debates etc.
Kidderminster Hospital (08.11.01) 466, 471
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 744
Questions
Health authorities, Mergers 855
Ophthalmic services 550w

Greenway, Mr John
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Tourism (13.11.01) 196wh, 198–200wh
Questions
Armed forces, Pensions 249–50w

Greenwich
Regional planning and development 906–7w

Grieve, Mr Dominic
Debates etc.
Football (Disorder) (Amendment) Bill, Rep and 3R (14.11.01) 919–24, 933, 935–6, 939–40
Questions
Administration of justice, Expenditure 90w
Antisocial behaviour orders 393w
Criminal Records Bureau 90w
EU Justice Home Affairs and Civil Protection Council 184w

Griffiths, Jane
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Home detention curfews (06.11.01) 54–7wh, 60wh
Questions
Churches, Reading 4–5w
Radio, Licensing 63w
Rodents 878w

Griffiths, Nigel, Parliamentary Secretary, Dept of Trade and Industry
Debates etc.
Export Control Bill, Rep and 3R (08.11.01) 382–8, 404, 414–7, 420–4, 438–41, 448–53, 455–7, 459
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Small businesses (06.11.01) 19–23wh
Questions
Refrigerators, Waste disposal 329w
Small Business Service 159w
Small businesses 159w

Griffiths, Mr Win
Debates etc.
Afghanistan, Armed conflict (14.11.01) 876–7
Special education (05.11.01) 49, 51
Questions
Crime prevention, Wales 762–3w
Employment tribunals 760–1w
Incapacity benefit 586w
Jobcentre Plus 567–8
Prisons, Film 640w
Solar power 759–60w

Grogan, Mr John
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Fire services, Ministry of Defence (13.11.01) 227–30wh
Tourism (13.11.01) 194–5wh
Questions
Coal, Government assistance 160–1w
Institutional care, Young people 472w
Rivers 446w

Ground water
EC law 206w
Pollution 149w

Gulf Veterans' Illnesses Unit
Manpower 824w

Gummer, Rt Hon John
Debates etc.
World Trade Organisation (15.11.01) 1002
Questions
Military decorations 520–1w
Voting methods 731w

Gun sports
Pheasants 34–5w

Gurkhas
26w
Pensions 248–9w

Hackney
Local government finance 16w
Schools 424w

Haemophilia
Medical treatments 210w, 795w, 855

Hague, Rt Hon William
Debates etc.
Animal Health Bill, 2R (12.11.01) 603–9
Questions
Armed forces, Equal opportunities 435–6w
Armed forces, Race relations 380w

Hain, Rt Hon Peter, Minister for Europe, Foreign and Commonwealth Office
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Gibraltar (07.11.01) 88–92wh
Questions
Afghanistan, Arms trade 745w
Africa, Sanctions 664w
British Russia Centre, Annual reports 926w
Cyprus, Birds 925–6w
EC enlargement 924–5w
EC Foreign Affairs Council 665–8w
Euro 486w
European Communities, Committees 926w
Gibraltar 121–2w, 335w, 515w
Gibraltar, European Parliament elections 121w, 123w
Gibraltar, Pensions 122w
Gibraltar, Telecommunications 122w
Greece, Refugees 840w
International Criminal Court 238w
International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia 743w
Mercenaries 336w
Russia, Organised crime 924w
Treaties 836–7w
World Trade Organisation, China 840w
"Your Britain Your Europe" 925w

Hall, Mr Mike
Debates etc.
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 743–6

Hall, Patrick
Debates etc.
Animal Health Bill, 2R (12.11.01) 609–11, 615
Questions
Northern Ireland government 222

Hammond, Mr Philip
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Small businesses (06.11.01) 6wh, 15–22wh
Questions
Conditions of employment, EC action 3w
Electricity generation, Markets 161–2w
Manufacturing industries 161w, 754–5w

Hampshire
Postal services 921–2w
Rapid transit systems 456w

Hampshire Ambulance Service NHS Trust
Surrey Ambulance Service NHS Trust 687w

Hancock, Mr Mike
Questions
Afghanistan, Armed conflict 630–1w
Aircraft carriers, Finance 249w
Armed forces, Health services 26w
Bowman combat radio system 127–8w
HMS Ocean 26w, 433w
Nurses, Recruitment 696–7
Rapid transit systems, Hampshire 456w

Harman, Rt Hon Harriet, Solicitor-General
Questions
Fair trade initiative, Solicitor-General 897w
International law, Bombs 1w
Internet, Fraud 833w
Law officers, Disclosure of information 833w
Written questions, Solicitor-General 897w

Harrier aircraft
Manpower 21w

Harris, Dr Evan
Debates etc.
Hospital Inspectorate Bill, 1R (07.11.01) 271–3
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Clones (07.11.01) 120wh
Higher education (08.11.01) 139wh, 143wh, 149wh, 161wh, 171–3wh
Questions
Drugs, Misuse 90w
Health services, Reciprocal arrangements 708–9
Hearing aids 355w
Heart diseases, Health services 942w
Holocaust Memorial Day, Television 639w
Hospitals, Waiting lists 792–3w
Medical treatments, EC countries 107w
Surgery, Waiting lists 793–4w

Harris, Mr Tom
Debates etc.
Public bodies (16.11.01) 1083–4, 1093, 1097, 1100–3, 1106–11, 1117
Questions
Electoral register, Scotland 97

Harvey, Nick
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Gambling (06.11.01) 39–41wh
Questions
Digital broadcasting 10–1

Havard, Mr Dai
Questions
Blood transfusions 553–4w
Cancer, Blood transfusions 673w
Crime prevention, Wales 845–6
National Blood Service, Public appointments 685w

Hawkins, Mr Nick
Debates etc.
Drugs, Misuse (09.11.01) 478, 480, 484–9, 492, 533, 539, 542
International Development Bill (HL), 2R (07.11.01) 283, 330–3
Questions
Business questions 371
Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service 101
Drugs, Misuse 966w
Playing fields, Sales 752w
Railtrack 28–9
Sports, Community development 4

Hayes, Mr John
Debates etc.
Lifelong learning (06.11.01) 124, 181
Questions
Business questions 370, 986

Heald, Mr Oliver
Questions
Chiropody 229–30w
Compulsorily detained mental patients 104w
Depressive illnesses, Children 101–2w
Drugs, Research 944w
Electroconvulsive therapy 105w
Health services, Hertfordshire 686w
Herbal medicine, EC action 685–6w
Medical profession 686w
Mental health services 104–5w, 679w
Mental health services, Community care 101w, 680w
Mental health services, Conditions of employment 679–80w
Mental health services, Ethnic groups 101w
Mental health services, Finance 552–3w, 679w
Mental health services, Greater London 99–101w
Mental health services, Private finance initiative 100w
Mental health services, Standards 476w, 679w
Mental health services, Young people 686w
Mental hospitals 677w
Mental patients, Ethnic groups 104w
Mentally ill, Children 102–3w
Mentally ill, Institutional care 475–6w
Mentally ill, Prescriptions 103–4w
Non-domestic rates, Hertfordshire 512–3w
Nurses, Housing 552w
Nurses, Training 850–1w
Nurses, Vacancies 552w
Prisons, Finance 89w
Schizophrenia, Drugs 944w
Schizophrenia, Prescription drugs 712
Special hospitals 105w
Suicide 111w
Tardive dyskinesia, Side effects 944–5w
Valuation Office, Standards 489w

Healey, John, Parliamentary Secretary, Dept for Education and Skills
Debates etc.
Lifelong learning (06.11.01) 202–6
Questions
Adult education 855–6w, 866w
Adult education, Finance 865–6w
Further education, Finance 429w
Further education, Part-time employment 425w
Further education, Pay 424w
Further education, Per capita costs 704–5w
Further education, Student wastage 428–9w
Individual learning accounts 125–7w, 705–7w, 864w, 928w
Individual learning accounts, Bromley 247–8w
Individual learning accounts, Fraud 706–7w, 865w
Individual learning accounts, Information technology 928w
Individual learning accounts, Isle of Wight 124–5w
Individual learning accounts, Redundancy 865w
Individual learning accounts, Sutton 865w
Information technology 929w
Learndirect centres 859w
Literacy, Standards 858–9w

Healey, John—continued
National literacy strategy 858w
National training organisations 867–8w
Older workers, Training 711w
Skilled workers, Buckinghamshire 856–7w
Student numbers 409–10w
Vocational training 424w

Health
Pupils 676w

Health and Safety at Work Etc Act 1974
Questions
818w

Health and Safety Laboratory
510w

Health authorities
550w
Mergers 855
Ports 338–9w, 909–10w
Standards 222w

Health centres
Widdrington 369w

Health education
39w
Alcoholic drinks 223–4w
Northern Ireland 347w, 480w
Tobacco 223–4w

Health hazards
Chemicals 476w, 505w
Electric cables 207–9w, 474w
Electromagnetic fields 474–5w

Health insurance
Tax yields 770w

Health services
341w, 941w
Armed forces 26w, 741w
Fees and charges 940w
Heart diseases 362–7w, 942w
Hertfordshire 686w
Lancashire 671w
Lung cancer 680w
Pensioners 854
Private sector 111–2w
Reciprocal arrangements 706–9, 855w

Hearing aids
(07.11.01) 128–36wh, 355w, 683–5w, 703–6, 948–9w

Hearing impaired
Disability living allowance 438w

Heart diseases
850w
Eastern region 676w
Health services 362–7w, 942w
Medical treatments 472–3w
National Specialist Commissioning Advisory Group 96–7w
Surgery 671–2w

Heath, Mr David
Debates etc.
Animal Health Bill, 2R (12.11.01) 629
Export Control Bill, Rep and 3R (08.11.01) 406–7
House of Commons Liaison Committee (05.11.01) 66
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Post offices, Closures (07.11.01) 93–7wh, 109wh, 114wh
Questions
Aggregates levy 916w
Business questions 993–4
Community Legal Service, Employment tribunals 201w
House of Lords, Reform 238
Parliamentary questions 107
Pigs 976–7

Heath, Mr David—continued
Smuggling, Tobacco 766w

Heathcoat-Amory, Rt Hon David
Questions
National insurance 309–10w
Social security benefits, Immigrants 188–9w

Heathrow Airport
469w, 620w
Air traffic 467–8w
Landing rights 509w
Planning permission 619w
Terrorism 620w

Helmets
Motorcycles 16w

Henderson, Mr Ivan
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Gambling (06.11.01) 29wh

Hendrick, Mr Mark
Debates etc.
Export Control Bill, Rep and 3R (08.11.01) 447–8
Questions
Commonwealth Games, Security 12

Hendry, Mr Charles
Questions
Burma, Political prisoners 123w
Business questions 991–2
Foot and mouth disease, Tourism 61w
Forensic science, Manpower 391w
Forensic science, Standards 391w
Hearing aids 703–4
Nurses, Vacancies 222w
Police, Pay 319–20w
Police custody 321w
Refrigerators, Recycling 593w, 891w

Hepatitis
(14.11.01) 270–91wh, 470w

Hepburn, Mr Stephen
Questions
Alternative energy 643–9w
Information technology 929w
Sports 62w

Herbal medicine
EC action 685–6w

Hereford
Crown courts 397w

Hermon, Lady
Debates etc.
House of Lords, Reform (07.11.01) 254
Questions
Police, Northern Ireland 227–8

Heroin
Death 222–3w
Drug seizures 530w

Hertfordshire
Health services 686w
Non-domestic rates 512–3w

Hesford, Stephen
Questions
Fireworks 753–4w
Police, Northern Ireland 516w
Pre-school education 866w
Public sector debt, Expenditure 397w
Terrorism Act 2000 881–2w

Hewitt, Rt Hon Ms Patricia, Secretary of State for Trade and Industry
Debates etc.
Employment Bill, 1R (07.11.01) 268
World Trade Organisation, Ministerial statements (07.11.01) 256–68, (15.11.01) 996–1008

Hewitt, Rt Hon Ms Patricia—continued
Questions
Alternative energy 332–3w
Bradwell power station 542w
Business, Government assistance 329–30w
Computers, Dept of Trade and Industry 540w
EC grants and loans 332w
EC Research Council 330w
Electricity generation, Fossil fuels 331–2w
Electricity generation, Markets 162w
Energy, Government assistance 919w
Ilisu dam 543–4w
Institute of Directors 330w
Institute of Management 331w
Members, Correspondence 544w
Nuclear power stations, Construction 542–3w
Nuclear power stations, Security 329w, 545w
Orders and regulations, Dept of Trade and Industry 654w
Part-time employment, Conditions of employment 2w
Public private partnerships, Dept of Trade and Industry 659w
Redundancy 661w
Sellafield, Security 540–1w
Trade, Developing countries 654w
Written questions, Dept of Trade and Industry 918–9w

Heyes, David
Debates etc.
Maiden speech (16.11.01) 1088–91
Public bodies (16.11.01) 1088–91

Heysham
Industrial estates 655w
M6 617w

High Peak
Broadcasting reception 268w

Higher education
51–2w, 60w, (08.11.01) 137–82wh
Age participation rates 40–1w, 707–10w
Finance 705w
Information technology 39–40w
Pay 411w, 440w
Student numbers 410–1w, 710w
Teachers 411–2w
Wales 764w

Hinchliffe, Mr David
Questions
Children, Abuse 216w, 471–2w
Children, Disabled 216w
Independent Reconfiguration Panel, Public appointments 946–7w
Nurses, Recruitment 697

HIV infection
Caribbean 776w

HM Chief Inspector of Schools see Office for Standards in Education

HM Customs and Excise
see Customs and Excise

HMS Fearless
376w

HMS Ocean
26w, 433w, 952–3w

Hoaxes and false alarms
Anthrax 555–6w
Cellular phones 879–80w
Fire services 617w

Hoban, Mr Mark
Debates etc.
Drugs, Misuse (09.11.01) 516, 538–9
Sex Discrimination (Election Candidates) Bill, Rep and 3R (14.11.01) 898–9

Hoban, Mr Mark—continued
Questions
Church schools 42–3w
Local authorities, Insurance 737w
Office of the Rail Regulator 735w
Private education 91w
Railtrack 135w, 735w
Railtrack, Finance 899w
Schools, Standards 42w
Taxation, Business 356–7
Voluntary organisations 548w

Hodge, Margaret, Minister of State for Universities, Dept for Education and Skills
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Higher education (08.11.01) 178–82wh
Questions
Further education, Standards Fund 861w
Higher education 51–2w, 60w
Higher education, Age participation rates 40–1w, 707–10w
Higher education, Finance 705w
Higher education, Information technology 39–40w
Higher education, Pay 411w, 440w
Higher education, Student numbers 410–1w, 710w
Higher education, Teachers 411–2w
Sign language, Training 4w
Sixth form education, Finance 717w
Students, Finance 707w, 711w, 717–8w, 863w, 868–9w, 928w
Students, Loans 718w, 863w

Hoey, Miss Kate
Questions
Foot and mouth disease, Hunting 695–6w
Immigration, Appeals 89w

Hogg, Rt Hon Douglas
Debates etc.
Afghanistan, Armed conflict (14.11.01) 871
Animal Health Bill, 2R (12.11.01) 583–4
Business questions intervention (08.11.01) 373, (15.11.01) 981, 985, 990
House of Lords, Reform (07.11.01) 247–8
Human Rights Act 1998 (Designated Derogation) Order, Points of order (12.11.01) 572
Ministers, Points of order (06.11.01) 110
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 723
Questions
Business questions 375, 989
Maintenance, Children 552
Northern Ireland government 224
Parliamentary year 104–5
Railtrack 735w

Holiday leave
London Underground 621w

Holmes, Paul
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Higher education (08.11.01) 154–8wh
Questions
Investment returns 399–400w

Holocaust Memorial Day
639–40w
Dept for Culture Media and Sport 267w
Television 638–9w, 950w

Home detention curfews
(06.11.01) 54–60wh

Home energy efficiency scheme
452w

Home Office
Assets 391–3w
Computers 558w
Consultation papers 782w

Home Office—continued
Disadvantaged 879w
Energy 174w
Ethnic groups 777w
Fair trade initiative 970w
Freedom of Information Act 2000 917–8w
Public private partnerships 969w
Publications 556w
Publicity 970–1w
Written questions 962–3w

Homelessness
460–2w, 508–9w
Elderly 513–4w, 832w
Greater London 908w
Wiltshire 731w

Homeopathy
673w

Homicide
938w
Children 91–2w
Northern Ireland 346–7w

Hood, Mr Jimmy
Questions
EC Culture Council 494w
EC Finance Council 537w
EC Research Council 330w
EU Justice Home Affairs and Civil Protection Council 315–6w

Hoon, Rt Hon Geoffrey, Secretary of State for Defence
Questions
Afghanistan, Armed conflict 27–8w, 432w, 435w, 522w, 828w, 955w
Afghanistan, Armed forces 825w
Armed forces 524–5w
Ballistic missile defence 129w, 434w, 828w
Challenger tanks 24w
Chinook helicopters 27w
Exercise Saif Sareea 2 377w, 521–2w
Nuclear power stations, Security 378w
Nuclear submarines 826w
Nuclear weapons 523w
Rapid deployment forces, EC countries 379w

Hopkins, Mr Kelvin
Debates etc.
City of London (Ward Elections) Bill, Motion to proceed in present session (15.11.01) 1055
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 753, 766

Horam, Mr John
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 212–5wh, 226wh
Questions
Climate Change Convention 964

Horses
Ragwort 601–2w

Horticulture
Climate change levy 148w

Hospital beds
211–2w, 283w, 360w, 676–7w

Hospital Inspectorate Bill 2001/02
Debates etc.
1R (07.11.01) 269–73

Hospital wards
362w, 854w

Hospitals
117–8w, 794–5w
Buckinghamshire 220–1w
Catering 357w
Construction 118w, 692w
Consultants 477–8w

Hospitals—continued
Greater London 852w
Hygiene 672w
Private finance initiative 112–3w
Private sector 794w
Romford 108w
Waiting lists 116w, 220–1w, 762w, 792–3w, 852–3w, 855–6
Wales 762w

Hostels
Rough Sleepers Unit 502w

Hotels
Industrial health and safety 511w

House of Commons
Internet 198w
Recycling 106
Reform 197w

House of Commons Liaison Committee
(05.11.01) 64–74

House of Commons Modernisation Select Committee see Modernisation of the House of Commons Select Committee

House of Lords
Ministerial statements (07.11.01) 239–55
Reform 238

House of Lords Appointments Commission
see Appointments Commission

House of Lords composition
196w, 662w
Scottish Parliament 286w

House sellers pack
507w, 829w

Housing
234, (15.11.01) 313–407wh
Armed forces 130–1w, 381w, 827w
Capital investment 910–2w
Chorley 611w
Construction 294–5w, 456w, 726w
Eastbourne 452w
Floods 457w
Nurses 552w
Refugees 91w

Housing associations
Shared ownership schemes 510w

Housing benefit
787–8w, 935–6w
Abuse 565–6, 704w
Appeals 787w
Databases 788w
Maladministration 788w
Scotland 704w
Young people 893–4w

Housing improvement
Planning permission 16w

Housing market
Interest rates 401w

Howard, Rt Hon Michael
Debates etc.
Oral question time intervention (08.11.01) 363
Questions
Business 354
Climate change levy, Manufacturing industries 841w
Economic growth 532w
Economic situation 255–6w
Post offices, Closures 532w
Privy Council, Silverware 532w
Public expenditure 534–5w
Social security benefits, Expenditure 938w
South Downs 13w

Howard, Rt Hon Michael—continued
Tax burden 531–2w
Tax credit 258w
Terrorism, Economic situation 252w, 351–2
Terrorism, Finance 605w

Howarth, Mr Gerald
Debates etc.
Export Control Bill, Rep and 3R (08.11.01) 446–8, 463–4
Human Rights Joint Select Committee (15.11.01) 1022
Ministers, Points of order (06.11.01) 109–10
Parliamentary procedure, Sub judice (15.11.01) 1017–9
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 719–20, 742
Questions
Armed forces, Housing 827w
Military bases, Aldershot 827w
Military bases, Churches 827w

Howells, Dr Kim, Parliamentary Secretary, Dept for Culture Media and Sport
Debates etc.
Coastal areas, Economic situation (15.11.01) 1073–6
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Tourism (13.11.01) 188wh, 190wh, 201–3wh
Questions
Architecture, Rotherham 1–3
BBC 5–6
BBC, Public appointments 636w
BBC, Television channels 271w
Broadcasting reception, High Peak 268w
Coastal areas, Economic situation 636–7w
Coastal areas, Tourism 637–8w
Computers, Dept for Culture Media and Sport 345w
Consultation papers, Dept for Culture Media and Sport 343–4w
Creative partnerships initiative 636w
Cultural heritage, Lancashire 267w
Culture 62w
Digital broadcasting 9–11, 268w, 343w, 636w
EC Culture Council 494w
European City of Culture 343w
European Year of People with Disabilities 2003 951w
Fair trade initiative, Dept for Culture Media and Sport 952w
Film, EC grants and loans 494–5w
Foot and mouth disease, Tourism 61w
Government art collection 501–2w
Grace and favour housing 634–6w
Holocaust Memorial Day, Dept for Culture Media and Sport 267w
Holocaust Memorial Day, Television 950w
Members, Correspondence 345w
Millennium Exhibition 343w
Office of Communications, Scotland 951–2w
Office of Communications, Wales 61w
Public private partnerships, Dept for Culture Media and Sport 882w
Public service broadcasting 494w
Publicity, Dept for Culture Media and Sport 634w
Radio, Licensing 63w
Royal Parks Constabulary, Employment tribunals 951w
S4C 65w
Television, Licensing 344–5w
Treasure Act 1996 271w
Written questions, Dept for Culture Media and Sport 952w
Youth Hostels Association, Finance 634w

Hoyle, Mr Lindsay
Debates etc.
World Trade Organisation (15.11.01) 1007
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Gibraltar (07.11.01) 69–73wh, 75wh, 79wh, 88wh
Questions
Aircraft carriers 381w
Armed forces, Housing 130–1w
Armed forces, Recruitment 22w
Athletics 271w
English Sports Council, Finance 271w
Farms, Diversification 593w
Food, Imports 306w
Foot and mouth disease, Chorley 346w
Football, Finance 749w
Football, Industrial disputes 748–9w
Gibraltar 121–2w, 335w, 515w, 741w
Gibraltar, Anniversaries 27w
Gurkhas, Pensions 248–9w
Higher education, Finance 705w
Housing, Chorley 611w
Housing, Construction 456w
Institute of Directors 330w
Institute of Management 331w
Institutional care, Fees and charges 943w
Manufacturing industries 531w
Ministry of Defence Police, Finance 826w
Ministry of Defence Police, Redundancy 826w
Ministry of Defence Police, United Kingdom Atomic Energy Authority Constabulary 826w
National Lottery 170w
Northern Ireland government 273w
Police, Vehicles 389–91w, 500w
Regional planning and development, Chorley 650w
Road traffic offences, Fines 80w
Royal Gibraltar Regiment 381w
Royal Ordnance, Chorley 542w
Security, Private sector 322w
Sportsgrounds, Manchester 344w
Vandalism 322w

Hughes, Beverley, Parliamentary Secretary, Home Office
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Home detention curfews (06.11.01) 57–60wh
Questions
Category A prisoners 641w
Cemeteries 966w
Downview Prison 382–3w, 777w
Fair trade initiative, Home Office 970w
Prisoners 79w
Prisoners, Disabled 644w
Prisoners, Elderly 644w
Prisoners, Females 326w
Prisoners, Medical treatments 555w
Prisoners, Mentally ill 95w
Prisons, Construction 644w
Prisons, Education 95–6w, 778–81w
Prisons, Film 640w
Prisons, Finance 89w
Prisons, Information technology 782w
Prisons, Welfare to work 781w
Young offenders, Education 94–5w

Hughes, Mr Kevin Michael
Debates etc.
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 715
Questions
Coal 162–3w
Coal, Government assistance 163w, 754w
Coal, Imports 163w
Lung cancer, Health services 680w
Members, Correspondence 140w

Hughes, Simon
Debates etc.
Drugs, Misuse (09.11.01) 478–9, 488, 494–9
Football (Disorder) (Amendment) Bill, Rep and 3R (14.11.01) 919, 922–3, 924–8, 930–2, 934–5, 943–5
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Gibraltar (07.11.01) 77–9wh, 83wh
Questions
Anthrax, Hoaxes and false alarms 555–6w
Clergy, Pay 17
Community service orders, Enforcement 488w, 641–2w
Contingency reserve 397–8w
Entry clearances, Applications 237w
Immigration, Advisory services 387w
Museums and galleries 14
National security 880w
Passports, Fees and charges 183w
Police, Pensions 640w
Race relations 640w
Refugees, Administrative delays 385w
Refugees, Appeals 384–5w
Refugees, Deportation 383–6w
Refugees, Racial harassment 383–6w, 558–9w
Refugees, Temporary accommodation 323–6w
Sexual offences 558w, 641w
United Kingdom Passport Agency, Information technology 183w

Human experiments
Porton Down 823w

Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990
Sittings in Westminster Hall
(07.11.01) 115–20wh

Human organs
358–9w

Human rights
Northern Ireland 516w
Scotland 98–9
Terrorism 853–4

Human Rights Act 1998
Questions
98–9

Human Rights Act 1998 (Designated Derogation) Order 2001
Questions
989

Human Rights Joint Select Committee
(15.11.01) 1021–30, 1066

Humble, Mrs Joan
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Gambling (06.11.01) 26wh, 38–9wh

Hunting
696w
Foot and mouth disease 446–7w, 695–6w, 819–20w, 889–90w
Unemployment 345w
Wales 819w
Worcestershire 819w

Huntingdon
Teachers 806–8w

Hurst, Mr Alan
Debates etc.
Roads, Safety (14.11.01) 952–3

Hutton, Rt Hon John, Minister of State, Dept of Health
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Hepatitis (14.11.01) 286–91wh

Hutton, Rt Hon John—continued
Questions
Accident and emergency departments, Greater London 674w
Agency nurses 673–4w
Barnet Hospital 677w
Beta-interferon 117w
Biological weapons 790w
Blood transfusions 553–4w
Breast cancer, Screening 790–1w
Cancer, Blood transfusions 673w
Cancer, Waiting lists 107–8w
Chiropody 229–30w, 285–6w, 795w
Commission for Health Improvement 229w
Community nurses 709–10
Doctors, Career structure 110w
Doctors, Foreign workers 227–8w, 284w, 368w
Doctors' list of patients 218–9w
General practitioners 108w, 367w
General practitioners, Manpower 218w
General practitioners, Occupational health 367w
General practitioners, Performance appraisal 116w
General practitioners, Recruitment 548–9w, 688–9w
General practitioners, Retirement 220w
General practitioners, Vacancies 219–20w, 552w
Ger Medic 285w
Government Statistical Service 853w
Haemophilia, Medical treatments 210w, 795w
Health authorities 550w
Health services, Lancashire 671w
Health services, Private sector 111–2w
Health services, Reciprocal arrangements 855w
Heart diseases 850w
Hospital wards 854w
Hospitals 117–8w, 794–5w
Hospitals, Construction 118w, 692w
Hospitals, Consultants 477–8w
Hospitals, Hygiene 672w
Hospitals, Private finance initiative 112–3w
Hospitals, Private sector 794w
Hospitals, Romford 108w
Hospitals, Waiting lists 116w, 792–3w, 852–3w
Institutional care, Standards 852w
Lymphoedema 224w
Medical profession, Disciplinary proceedings 851w
Medical profession, Manpower 222w
Medical profession, Training 285w
Medical treatments, EC countries 106–7w, 210w, 283–4w, 367–8w, 550–1w, 853w
Methicillin resistant staphylococcus aureus 553w
Mid Essex Hospital Services NHS Trust, Waiting lists 947–8w
Midwives, Recruitment 114–5w
National Blood Service, Public appointments 685w
National Institute for Clinical Excellence 117–9w
National Specialist Commissioning Advisory Group, Heart diseases 96–7w
Neurology, Consultants 794w
NHS, Disciplinary proceedings 110–1w
NHS, Finance 213w, 553w
NHS, Foreign workers 796w
NHS, Pay 852w
NHS, Private finance initiative 673w, 689–91w
NHS Leadership Centre 853w
NHS Pensions Agency 113w
NHS plan 229w, 949w

Hutton, Rt Hon John—continued
NHS trusts, Franchises 553w
NHS trusts, Pilot schemes 854w
NHS trusts, Standards 551w
North Durham Health Care NHS Trust 695–6
North Staffordshire Hospital NHS Trust, Disciplinary proceedings 107w
Nurses, Housing 552w
Nurses, Manpower 106w, 674w, 691w, 791–2w
Nurses, Recruitment 850w
Nurses, Students 549w
Nurses, Training 850–1w
Nurses, Vacancies 222w, 552w
Orthopaedics, Waiting lists 675w
Press releases 855w
Primary care trusts, Cambridgeshire 688w
Primary care trusts, Conditions of employment 687–8w
Primary care trusts, Finance 687w
Surgery 853–4w
Surgery, Waiting lists 115–6w, 793–4w
TNF Alpha Blockade, Prescriptions 672w
Transplant surgery, Waiting lists 347–8w
Whittington Hospital, Repairs and maintenance 671w

Hygiene
Hospitals 672w

Iddon, Dr Brian
Debates etc.
Drugs, Misuse (09.11.01) 477, 479, 487, 505–10, 520, 532
Gaming machines, Petitions (07.11.01) 338
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Hepatitis (14.11.01) 270–3wh, 278–9wh, 282wh, 287wh
Housing (15.11.01) 320wh, 347–50wh, 360wh
Questions
Dietary supplements, EC action 943w
Euthanasia 355–6w
Institutional care, Standards 701
Muslims 233

Identity cards
79w, 183w, 321–2w
Refugees 83–4w
Terrorism 387–8w

Ilisu dam
543–4w

Illegal immigrants
497–8w

Illsley, Mr Eric
Questions
Ashworth Hospital 675–6w
Refugees, Barnsley 87–8w
Refugees, Dental services 279–81w
Students, Fees and charges 286w
Students, Loans 398w, 491–2w

Imitation guns
555w

Immigrants
Detainees 877–8w
Social security benefits 188–9w

Immigration
645w
Advisory services 387w
Appeals 89w, 181–2w
Applications 94w, 557–8w

Immigration and Nationality Directorate
Administrative delays 781–2w
Information technology 185w

Immigration controls
Armed conflict 182w

Immigration rules
873w
Racial discrimination 394w

Import controls
68w
Animal products 975w
Food 31w, 972w
Foot and mouth disease 889w
Grain 151w
Meat products 30–1w
Terrorism 151w

Imports
Agriculture 599–601w
Antitank missiles 526w
Beef 304w, 820–1w
Coal 163w
Food 306w
Tobacco 531w

Incapacity benefit
192w, 586w

Incinerators
31w
Foot and mouth disease 977w
Wrexham 763w

Income support
190w, 893w, 935–6w
Institutional care 195w
Lone parents 193–4w
Pensioners 188w, 703w

Income tax
356, 769w, 915w
Pensioners 774w
Self-assessment 257w
Tax rates and bands 915w

Independent International Commission on Decommissioning
274w

Independent Living Fund
191–2w

Independent Reconfiguration Panel
Public appointments 946–7w

India
514w
Embassies 237w
Overseas aid 18–21w

Individual learning accounts
125–7w, 705–7w, 774w, 864w, 928w
Bromley 247–8w
Fraud 706–7w, 865w
Information technology 928w
Isle of Wight 124–5w
Redundancy 865w
Sutton 865w

Individual pension accounts
70w, 403w

Indonesia
Religious freedom 2w

Industrial diseases
Compensation 164–6w, 236–7, 849–50
Wales 849–50

Industrial disputes
Football 748–9w
Jobcentre Plus 785w

Industrial estates
Heysham 655w
Lancaster 629w, 656w

Industrial health and safety
EC action 337w, 610w, 913–4w
Hotels 511w

Industrial injuries disablement benefit
195w

Industrial training
548w

Industry
Government assistance 757–8w
Tax burden 772w

Infant mortality
Worcestershire 206–7w

Influenza
Vaccination 348–9w, 942w

Information officers
Dept for Environment Food and Rural Affairs 33–4w

Information technology
929w
Customs and Excise 842w
Dept for Environment Food and Rural Affairs 977–8w
Higher education 39–40w
Immigration and Nationality Directorate 185w
Individual learning accounts 928w
Inland Revenue 842w
Jobcentres 583w
Members 198–9w
New deal schemes 570w
Prisons 782w
Standing committees 198w
Taxation 774w
Treasury 257w
United Kingdom Passport Agency 183w

Ingram, Rt Hon Adam, Minister of State, Ministry of Defence*
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Fire services, Ministry of Defence (13.11.01) 231–4wh
Questions
Afghanistan, Armed conflict 522w, 630–1w, 954–5w
Afghanistan, International assistance 742w
Air traffic, West Freugh 436w
Airports, Security 524w
Ammunition 437w
Apache AH-64 helicopter 435w
Armed forces, Balkans 436w
Armed forces, Deployment 129–30w
Armed forces, Drugs 434w
Armed forces, Entertainments 525–6w
Armed forces, Equal opportunities 435–6w
Armed forces, Ethnic groups 378–9w
Armed forces, Health services 741w
Armed forces, National security 524w
Armed forces, Northern Ireland 956w
Armed forces, Pay 128w, 827w
Armed forces, Pension rights 381–2w
Armed forces, Pensions 23w
Armed forces, Race relations 380w
Armed forces, Radio 433w
Armed forces, Recruitment 22–3w
Armed forces, Training 953–4w, 956–7w
Armed forces, Uniforms 525w
Arms trade 523w
Army Foundation College 25w, 525–6w
Assets, Ministry of Defence 955–6w
Bombs 825w
Chemical and biological warfare 434w
Chemical and biological warfare, Antibiotics 25w
Chemical and biological warfare, Water supply 130w
Chinook helicopters 632w
Chinook helicopters, Accidents 128–9w
Defence Aviation Repair Agency 380w, 954w
Defence Aviation Repair Agency, RAF St Athan 827w, 954w
European fighter aircraft 741w

Ingram, Rt Hon Adam—continued*
Exercise Saif Sareea 2 376–7w, 631–2w, 956w
Exercise Saif Sareea 2, Pay 437w
Gibraltar 741w
Gurkhas 26w
Harrier aircraft, Manpower 21w
HMS Fearless 376w
HMS Ocean 26w, 433w, 952–3w
Kosovo, Armed conflict 958w
Military bases, Glencorse 27w
Military bases, Telecommunications 379–80w
Nuclear power stations, Security 377w, 436w, 631w
Public private partnerships, Ministry of Defence 953w
RAF Coltishall 526–7w
RAF St Athan 953w
Rescue services, Private finance initiative 742w
Reserve forces 827–8w
Royal Gibraltar Regiment 381w
Sea Harrier aircraft 377w, 433w
Territorial Army 823w
Written questions, Ministry of Defence 958w

Injuries
Brain 106w, 282–3w, 549w

Inland Revenue
Information technology 842w
Powers 259w

Inland waterways
35w

Insolvency
263w

Institute of Directors
330w

Institute of Management
331w

Institutional care
109–10w, 551w, 672–3w
Attendance allowance 579–80w
Capital rules 110w
Closures 109w, 285w
Fees and charges 478–80w, 943w
Income support 195w
Mentally ill 475–6w
Scotland 171w
Standards 700–3, 852w
VAT 70w, 608w
Young people 470w, 472w, 548w, (12.11.01) 686–94

Insurance
Employment rehabilitation 567w
Floods 34w, 698w
Local authorities 737w
Terrorism 737w

Insurance premium tax
770w
Customs and Excise 151–2w

Intellectual property
Trade agreements 432w

Intelligence services
Finance 778w

Interdepartmental Working Group on Transsexuals
see Transsexuals Interdepartmental Working Group

Interest rates
402w.
Housing market 401w

International cooperation
Drugs 123w

International cooperation—continued*
Terrorism 196w

International Criminal Court
238w

International Criminal Court (Scotland) Act 2001
Questions
97–8

International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia
743w

International Decommissioning Commission
see Independent International Commission on Decommissioning

International Development Bill (HL) 2001/02
Debates etc.
2R and Money res* (07.11.01) 274–338

International Development Select Committee
(05.11.01) 74, (12.11.01) 685

International Labour Conference
3w

International law
Bombs 1w

Internet
Dept for Work and Pensions 190w
Disclosure of information 969–70w
Fraud 833w
House of Commons 198w
Legislation 108
Schools 713–4w

Interpreters
Courts 789w

Invalid care allowances
Students 189w

Inverness
Air routes 469w

Investment income
Tax credit 529w

Investment returns
399–400w

Iraq
Anthrax 6w

Iron and steel
845–6w

Islam
Proscribed organisations 876w
Registration of births deaths and marriages 327w
Terrorism 873w

Isle of Wight
Ambulance services 361w
Dental services 678w
Individual learning accounts 124–5w
Pensioners 850

Israel
Antitank missiles 526w
Arms trade 744w
Defence equipment 526w

Italy
Future large aircraft 130w

Ivory Coast
776w
Child prostitution 849w

Jack, Rt Hon Michael
Debates etc.
Animal Health Bill, 2R (12.11.01) 579, 587, 623–8

Jack, Rt Hon Michael—continued*
Questions
Business questions 984–5
Climate Change Convention 887w
Hospitals, Consultants 477–8w
New deal schemes 355–6
Standing committees, Information technology 198w
Tax yields 775w
Tomography 230w

Jackson, Ms Glenda
Debates etc.
Sex Discrimination (Election Candidates) Bill, Rep and 3R (14.11.01) 890, 899–900

Jackson, Helen
Questions
Meningitis, Death 773w
Rights of way 888w

Jamieson, Mr David, Parliamentary Secretary, Dept for Transport Local Government and the Regions
Debates etc.
Aviation (05.11.01) 85–90
Private notice question intervention (05.11.01) 26
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 716
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Aviation (14.11.01) 266–9wh
East coast railway line (13.11.01) 245–8wh
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 223–6wh
Questions
A12, Road works 912–3w
Aerospace industry 339w
Air routes, Inverness 469w
Air traffic, Greater London 469w
Air traffic control, Nuclear power stations 469w
Air traffic control, Prestwick 288w
Aircraft, Seating 339–40w
Aston Clinton bypass 337w
Aviation 338w
Aviation, Manpower 910w
Aviation, Security 456–7w, 512w, 908w
Birmingham Relief Road 135w
Bull bars 137w
Bus services 137w
Bypasses 339w
Central Railway 736–7w
Central Trains, Standards 507–8w
Companies, Debts 492w
Connex Rail, Finance 830–1w
Crime, Alcoholic drinks 734w
Crossrail line 455w
Crossrail line, Finance 13w
Deep vein thrombosis 340w
Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency, Telephone services 618w
East coast railway line 11w, 144w
Ferries, Passengers 143–4w
Ferries, Rosyth 513w, 905w
GoVia 137w
Heathrow Airport, Air traffic 467–8w
Heathrow Airport, Landing rights 509w
Heathrow Airport, Terrorism 620w
Jet skis, Safety 294w
Jubilee line 12w
London Underground, Absenteeism 737w
London Underground, Crime 503–4w
London Underground, Directors 621w
London Underground, Fares 289–90w
London Underground, Finance 831w
London Underground, Holiday leave 621w
London Underground, Manpower 624w
London Underground, Public private partnerships 9–10w, 288–9w, 503w, 620–4w, 900–4w
London Underground, Railway signals 10w, 452–3w

Jamieson, Mr David—continued*
London Underground, Standards 9–11w, 737w
London Underground, Working hours 620w
Lorry drivers, Working hours 133w, 287–8w, 505w
M1 732–3w
M25 138w
Manchester Airport, Roads 134w
Methyl tertiary butyl ether 507w
Methyl tertiary butyl ether, USA 506w
Motor vehicles, Excise duties 133w, 288w
Motor vehicles, Registration 736w
Motorcycles, Helmets 16w
Motorcycles, Safety 136w
Motorways 732w
Motorways, Speed limits 504w
Norfolk and Norwich Hospital, Roads 830w
Nuclear power stations, Security 736w
Office of the Rail Regulator 735w, 739–40w
Parking, Greater London 133w
Ports 296–7w
Ports, Police 296w
Ports, Property transfer 136w
Powershift programme 724w
Public relations, Dept for Transport Local Government and the Regions 737–8w
Public transport, Passengers 141w
Public transport, Subsidies 141–2w
Railtrack 134–5w, 289w, 340–1w, 513w, 735w, 828w
Railtrack, Finance 454–5w, 614w, 898–9w
Railway stations, Disabled 139w
Railways, Accidents 291w
Railways, Assets 290–1w
Railways, Crime 733–4w
Railways, EC law 294w
Railways, Kent 455w
Railways, Private sector 293w
Railways, Recruitment 453w
Railways, Safety 733w
Railways, Scotland 8w
Railways, Skegness 900w
Railways, South East region 292–3w, 732w
Rapid transit systems 454w
Regional airports 907w
Road traffic 288w
Roads, Accidents 505–6w, 513w
Roads, Greater London 615w
Roads, Noise 506w
Roads, Safety 611–3w, 912w
Rolling stock 293w
Rolling stock, Investment 455–6w
South West Trains, Franchises 629w
Speed limits, Cameras 729–30w
Strategic Rail Authority, Rapid transit systems 506w
Trains, Overcrowding 508w
Trains, Sanitation 511–2w, 905w
Tramtrack Croydon 338w
Transport for London, Finance 904w
Waterloo Station 454w
West coast railway line 139–40w, 502w
West coast railway line, Bridges 831–2w
Woolwich Ferry, Subsidies 143w
Written questions, Administrative delays 459w

Jenkin, Mr Bernard
Debates etc.
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 730
Questions
Afghanistan, Armed conflict 435w, 828w
Afghanistan, International assistance 742w
Airports, Security 524w
Armed forces 524–5w
Armed forces, Balkans 436w

Jenkin, Mr Bernard*—*continued
Armed forces, Entertainments 525–6w
Armed forces, National security 524w
Armed forces, Pay 827w
Arms trade 523w
Artillery 524w
Bowman combat radio system 523w
Bradwell power station 542w
Challenger tanks 376w
Chemical and biological warfare 434w
Defence equipment, Procurement 378w, 523w, 526w
Exercise Saif Sareea 2 377w
Harrier aircraft, Manpower 21w
HMS Fearless 376w
Nuclear power stations, Construction 542–3w
Nuclear power stations, Security 377w, 436w
Nuclear weapons 523w
QINETIQ 629–30w
Rapid deployment forces, EC countries 379w
Rescue services, Private finance initiative 742w
Royal Naval Reserve, Deployment 633–4w
Smallpox, Vaccination 523w
Territorial Army 517w

Jenkins, Mr Brian
Debates etc.
Lifelong learning (06.11.01) 195–7

Jet skis
Safety 294w

Job creation
Scotland 584w

Job satisfaction
NHS 671w

Jobcentre Plus
372–3w, 552–5, 567–8, 572w, 576w, 703w, 893w
Industrial disputes 785w
Interviews 4w
Telephone services 575–6w
Training 372w, 374w, 575w
Vale of York 371–2w
Working conditions 576–8w

Jobcentres
Crimes of violence 565w
Information technology 583w

Jobseeker's allowance
190w, 310w

Johnson, Alan, Minister of State for Employment Relations and Regions, Dept of Trade and Industry*
Debates etc.
British Coal Corporation, Equal pay (07.11.01) 343–6
Questions
Church schools, Equal opportunities 169–70w
Conditions of employment, EC action 3w
EC grants and loans 759w
Employment agencies, Regulation 541–2w
Employment tribunals 760–1w
Equal pay 759w
Flexible working 544w
Industrial estates, Heysham 655w
Industrial estates, Lancaster 656w
North West Development Agency, Finance 923w
Paternity leave 542w
Regional assistance, Morecambe 655w
Regional assistance, St Helens 847w
Regional development agencies, Finance 923–4w

Johnson, Alan*—*continued
Regional planning and development, Chorley 650w
Royal Ordnance, Chorley 542w
South West Regional Development Agency, Finance 443–4w
Work and Parents' Task Force 167w

Johnson, Mr Boris
Debates etc.
Lifelong learning (06.11.01) 191–2

Johnson, Miss Melanie, Parliamentary Secretary, Dept of Trade and Industry*
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Employment, Devon (06.11.01) 48–53wh
Questions
Bank of Credit and Commerce International, Company liquidations 660w
British Sky Broadcasting 756w
Consumers, Protection 442w
Fireworks 753–4w
Fireworks, Accidents 661w
Fireworks, Retail trade 443w
Fireworks, Sales 261w
Furs, Labelling 920–1w
Genetic engineering, Patents 443w
Insolvency 263w
Intellectual property, Trade agreements 432w
Legal profession, Competition 442–3w
Supermarkets, Farmers 263w, 441–2w

Joint Entry Clearance Unit
Manpower 664w

Jones, Helen M
Questions
Community nurses 709–10
Free school meals 46–51w, 240–3w
GCE A level 44w
General certificate of secondary education, Standards 51w
Higher education, Age participation rates 707–10w
Maternity services 350w
Mental health services, Advocacy 678w
NHS trusts, Private sector 281w
Prisoners, Mentally ill 95w
Prisons, Education 95–6w, 778–81w
Prisons, Information technology 782w
Prisons, Welfare to work 781w
Public libraries, Standards 67w
Young offenders, Education 94–5w

Jones, Mr Jon Owen
Debates etc.
Drugs, Misuse (09.11.01) 480–1, 484–6, 490, 492, 495, 498, 533–5, 540
Lifelong learning (06.11.01) 119
Questions
Medical profession, Foreign workers 874–5w
NHS, Foreign workers 796w
Veterinary services, Complaints 974w

Jones, Mr Kevan
Questions
North Durham Health Care NHS Trust 356w, 695

Jones, Dr Lynne
Debates etc.
Stakeholder pensions (13.11.01) 784–5, 792–3
Questions
Afghanistan, Armed conflict 522w
Energy, Conservation 883w
Graduates, Pay 533w
Incapacity benefit 192w
International law, Bombs 1w
Jobcentre Plus 572w
Kosovo, Armed conflict 958w

Jones, Dr Lynne*—*continued
Mental Health Act 1983 942w
National insurance contributions 256–7w
Rough Sleepers Unit, Hostels 502w

Jones, Mr Martyn David
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Bank services (14.11.01) 298–300wh, 303wh
Questions
Digital broadcasting 268w
Email, Data protection 650w
Further education, Wales 764w
Gibraltar 335w
Refreshment Dept, Alcoholic drinks 723w

Jones, Mr Nigel
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Gibraltar (07.11.01) 84–6wh, 88wh
Questions
British overseas territories, Armed forces 835–6w

Jordan
Double taxation 775w

Jowell, Rt Hon Ms Tessa, Secretary of State for Culture Media and Sport*
Questions
Athletics, Greater London 342w
Athletics, Picketts Lock 64w
Broadcasting 637w
Eden project 64–5w
Football, Television 65w
Lee Valley Regional Park Authority 60w
Museums and galleries 13–4
Museums and galleries, Fees and charges 66w
Non-departmental public bodies, Dept for Culture Media and Sport 62w
Public libraries, Standards 67w
Sports, Finance 67w
Television, Afghanistan 748w
Tourism 268–71w
Tourism, Foot and mouth disease 61w
Tourism, Terrorism 6–8

Joyce, Mr Eric
Questions
Jobcentre Plus 576w

Jubilee line
12w

Judges
Manpower 202w, 328w

Judicial review
397w

Judiciary
Public appointments 199w, 395–7w

Juries
692–3w
Eligibility 939w
Protection 201–2w, 564w

Kaufman, Rt Hon Gerald
Questions
Business questions 983–4
Members, Correspondence 184w, 345w
Railtrack 27

Keeble, Ms Sally, Parliamentary Secretary, Dept for Transport Local Government and the Regions*
Debates etc.
Roads, Safety (14.11.01) 953–6
Travel Concessions (Eligibility) Bill (HL), 2R (05.11.01) 40–2
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Housing (15.11.01) 313–9wh, 355–9wh
Questions
Aerials, Planning permission 614w, 731w

Keeble, Ms Sally—continued*
Bed and breakfast accommodation 463w
Bus services 137–8w
Bus services, Concessions 141w, 725w
Business premises, Empty property 296w
Council housing, Cash incentive scheme 738w
Council housing, Doncaster 615w
Council housing, Property transfer 466–7w
Council housing, Staffordshire 291–2w
Derelict land 831w
Disadvantaged, Lancaster 627w
EC grants and loans, Lancaster 629w
Empty property 508–9w
English Partnerships, Land 726w
Ferries, Pensioners 141w
Flats over shops initiative 459w
Flood control 738–9w
Heathrow Airport 469w
Heathrow Airport, Planning permission 619w
Homelessness 460–2w
Homelessness, Elderly 513–4w, 832w
Homelessness, Greater London 908w
Homelessness, Wiltshire 731w
House sellers pack 507w, 829w
Housing, Capital investment 910–2w
Housing, Chorley 611w
Housing, Construction 294–5w, 456w
Housing, Eastbourne 452w
Housing, Floods 457w
Housing associations, Shared ownership schemes 510w
Housing improvement, Planning permission 16w
Industrial estates, Lancaster 629w
M6, Heysham 617w
Members, Correspondence 140w
Millennium Exhibition 614w
Millennium Exhibition, Property transfer 905–6w
Mobile homes 16w
New deal for communities, Finance 724w
New Forest District Council, Damages 453–4w
Parking 140–1w
Parks 11–2w
Parks, Urban areas 833w
Planning permission 462w, 726–8w
Planning permission, Administrative delays 726w
Planning permission, Appeals 293w, 462–3w, 727–9w
Planning permission, Stroud 739w
Railway stations, Disabled 295–6w
Rapid transit systems, Hampshire 456w
Recycling, Greater London 458–9w
Regional assistance, Morecambe 627–9w
Regional planning and development, Greenwich 906–7w
Regional planning and development, West Midlands 618–9w
Rented housing, Greater London 508w
Rough Sleepers Unit, Hostels 502w
Social rented housing 739w
Social rented housing, Doncaster 615–6w
South Downs 13w
Street warden scheme, North West region 730w
Transport, Schools 723–4w, 908–9w
Transport, West Midlands 510w
Travelling people 733w
Unitary development plans 139w
Walton Group 723w

Keen, Ann
Questions
India, Embassies 237w
Terrorism, Northern Ireland 277w

Keetch, Mr Paul
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Gibraltar (07.11.01) 76wh
Questions
Biological and Toxin Weapons Convention 745–6w
Livestock identification scheme 816w
Operation Palliser 518w

Kelly, Ruth, Economic Secretary, Treasury*
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Bank services (14.11.01) 300–5wh
Questions
Bank services 398–9w
Bank services, Disadvantaged 72w, 535w
Bee Diseases Insurance 258w
Breast cancer 533–4w
Bureaux de change 490w
Cancer 67–8w
Census, Forms 402w
Commemorative coins, Banks 260w
Commemorative coins, Princess of Wales 259–60w
Construction, Treasury 535–6w
Consultation papers, Treasury 532w
Customs and Excise, Insurance premium tax 151–2w
Economic and monetary union 153–4w
Economic and monetary union, Referendums 401–2w
Employee share ownership schemes 608w, 770–1w
Employment, Females 609w
Equitable Life Assurance Society 254w, 491w
Equitable Life Independent Inquiry, Costs 531w
Equitable Life Independent Inquiry, Manpower 531w
Euro, Forgery 255w
European Central Bank, Accountability 154w
Financial services, EC action 73w, 488–9w, 770–1w
Financial Services Authority, Pay 259w
Financial Services Authority, Standards 489–90w
Freedom of Information Act 2000, Treasury 773w
Graduates, Pay 533w
Housing market, Interest rates 401w
Individual pension accounts 70w, 403w
Infant mortality, Worcestershire 206–7w
Information technology, Treasury 257w
Insurance premium tax 770w
Interest rates 402w
Landfill tax credit scheme 70–1w
Manufacturing industries, Redundancy 772–3w
Meningitis, Death 773w
Monetary compensatory amounts 360–2
Mortgages 74w
Occupational pensions, EC action 772w
Occupational pensions, Tax allowances 529–30w
Pension credit 770w
Pension funds 70w
Pensioners, Buckinghamshire 527w
Personal pensions, Misrepresentation 255w
Personal savings, Tax allowances 529w
Privy Council, Silverware 532w
Public sector debt, Expenditure 397w
Registration of births deaths and marriages, Cohabitation 76–7w
Secondment, Treasury 845w
Stamp duties, Property transfer 769w
Tax allowances, New businesses 74w
Tax allowances, Pensions 844–5w
Tax yields, Health insurance 770w

Kelly, Ruth—continued*
Taxation, Charities 73–4w
Terrorism, Economic situation 400w
Terrorism, Finance 398w, 771w
Trade competitiveness 72–3w
Unemployment, Buckinghamshire 527–8w
Vacancies, North East region 491w
Vacancies, Statistics 490–1w
Valuation Office, Standards 489w
Working hours 154w, 773–4w

Kennedy, Rt Hon Charles
Debates etc.
Afghanistan, Armed conflict (14.11.01) 867
Questions
Afghanistan, Armed conflict 232–3
Terrorism, Human rights 853–4

Kennedy, Jane, Minister of State, Northern Ireland Office*
Questions
Crimes of violence, Northern Ireland 276w, 483w
Homicide 938w
Homicide, Northern Ireland 346–7w
Human rights, Northern Ireland 516w
Independent International Commission on Decommissioning 274w
Northern Ireland Executive, Finance 278w
Organised Crime Task Force 278w
Parades Commission 276w
Parades Commission, Complaints 482w
Parades Commission, Manpower 480–2w
Parades Commission, Public appointments 481–2w
Police, Northern Ireland 227–9, 275w, 279w, 485w, 516w, 609–10w
Security, Northern Ireland 272w
Terrorism, Northern Ireland 225–7, 276–9w, 515w
Trials, Northern Ireland 834w
Weapons, Northern Ireland 274–5w, 277–8w

Kent
Railways 455w

Key, Mr Robert
Debates etc.
Export Control Bill, Rep and 3R (08.11.01) 388–92, 411–4, 424–6, 442–4, 448, 450
Questions
Alternative energy 649–50w
China 651–2w
Electricity generation, Markets 162w, 755–6w
Nuclear power, Finland 163–4w

Khabra, Mr Piara S
Debates etc.
International Development Bill (HL), 2R (07.11.01) 307–9
Questions
Economic situation, Terrorism 400w

Kidderminster Hospital
(08.11.01) 465–74

Kidnapping
318w

Kidney, Mr David
Debates etc.
Stakeholder pensions (13.11.01) 810–1
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Housing (15.11.01) 326–30wh
Questions
Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service 99–100
Commemorative coins, Banks 260w
Courts, Interpreters 789w

Kidney, Mr David—continued
Employment rehabilitation, Insurance 567w
Farm Business Advice Service 593w
Landfill tax 154w
Landfill tax, Sustainable development 72w
Local authorities, Translation services 507w
Sports 62–3w
Trade competitiveness 400w

Kilfoyle, Mr Peter
Questions
Business questions 984

King, Andy
Questions
Afghanistan, International assistance 854
Hospitals, Hygiene 672w
Northern Ireland government 273w

King, Ms Oona
Debates etc.
Drugs, Misuse (09.11.01) 492, 513–7, 522
World Trade Organisation (15.11.01) 1005
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Housing (15.11.01) 320wh, 333–6wh, 340wh

Kingston upon Hull
Drug seizures 916w

Kirkbride, Miss Julie
Debates etc.
Kidderminster Hospital (08.11.01) 467, 469, 472
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Gibraltar (07.11.01) 85wh, 88wh
Questions
Boarding schools, Disabled 39w
Pension credit 562

Kirkwood, Mr Archy
Debates etc.
House of Commons Liaison Committee (05.11.01) 70
Questions
House of Commons, Internet 198w
House of Commons, Recycling 106
Housing benefit 787–8w
Housing benefit, Appeals 787w
Housing benefit, Databases 788w
Housing benefit, Maladministration 788w
National Employment Panel 784–5w
ONE programme 786w
Pension credit 936–7w
Performance Assessment Framework 785–6w
Post offices, Bank services 543w
Social security benefits, Bureaucracy 786w
Social security benefits, Local authorities 784w
Working families tax credit, Expenditure 438–9w

Knight, Rt Hon Greg
Questions
Aviation, Scotland 95–6
Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency, Telephone services 618w
Flood control, Wales 843–4
Judges, Manpower 328w
M1 732–3w
M25 138w
Motorways 732w
Motorways, Speed limits 504w
Parliamentary year 105
Standards, Dept for Transport Local Government and the Regions 733w

Knight, Jim
Debates etc.
International Development Bill (HL), 2R (07.11.01) 278–9
Questions
Local government finance 914w

Kosovo
Armed conflict 958w
War crimes 334w

Kumar, Dr Ashok
Questions
Government Office for the North East 960w
India 514w
Iron and steel 845–6w
Regional assistance, Middlesbrough 960w

Labelling
Furs 920–1w

Ladyman, Dr Stephen
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Gambling (06.11.01) 24–30wh
Questions
Connex Rail, Finance 830–1w

Laing, Mrs Eleanor
Debates etc.
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 731
Special education (05.11.01) 45, 49–54, 61–2
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Gibraltar (07.11.01) 76wh, 88–9wh, 92wh

Lait, Mrs Jacqui
Debates etc.
Drugs, Misuse (09.11.01) 503–5
Questions
Crossrail line 455w
Devolution, Cabinet Office 783w
Devolution, Dept for Transport Local Government and the Regions 829w
Devolution, Scotland Office 748w
Devolution, Treasury 915w
Diabetes 105–6w
Health services 341w
Housing benefit, Scotland 704w
Individual learning accounts, Bromley 247–8w
Railways, Kent 455w
Railways, Scotland 8w
Scottish Parliament, House of Lords composition 286w
Scottish Parliament, Members 93–4

Lamb, Norman
Debates etc.
World Trade Organisation (15.11.01) 1008
Questions
Coal 652w
Energy, Conservation 814w
Ministerial policy advisors, Dept for Transport Local Government and the Regions 456w
Railtrack, Finance 455w
Social security benefits, Widowed people 784w

Lammy, David
Questions
London Underground, Crime 503–4w

Lancashire
Cultural heritage 267w
Health services 671w

Lancaster
Disadvantaged 627w
EC grants and loans 629w
Industrial estates 629w, 656w

Land
English Partnerships 726w

Land—continued
Registration 326–7w
Zimbabwe 743w

Land use
Crops 981w
Livestock industry 981w

Landfill tax
154w
Sustainable development 72w

Landfill tax credit scheme
70–1w, 256w
Abuse 818w

Landing rights
Gatwick Airport 509w
Heathrow Airport 509w

Lansley, Mr Andrew
Debates etc.
Export Control Bill, Rep and 3R (08.11.01) 417
Sex Discrimination (Election Candidates) Bill, Rep and 3R (14.11.01) 884–94, 899, 902–5, 914–6
World Trade Organisation (07.11.01) 265–6, (15.11.01) 1003
Questions
Flood control, Cambridgeshire 966

Law officers
Disclosure of information 833w

Law Society
694w

Lawrence, Mrs Jackie
Questions
British Sky Broadcasting 756w
Crime prevention, Wales 762–3w
Haemophilia, Medical treatments 855
Queen Elizabeth II, Anniversaries 490w
State retirement pensions 574w

Laws, Mr David
Debates etc.
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 721
Questions
Assets, Cabinet Office 204w
Assets, Dept for Education and Skills 247w
Assets, Dept for Environment Food and Rural Affairs 145w
Assets, Dept of Health 549–50w
Assets, Foreign and Commonwealth Office 1w
Assets, Home Office 391–3w
Assets, Lord Chancellor's Dept 487w
Assets, Ministry of Defence 23w
Assets, Northern Ireland Office 483w
Assets, Prime Minister 286w
Correspondence, Dept for Environment Food and Rural Affairs 444w
Dental services 678w
Disadvantaged, Home Office 879w
Disadvantaged, Treasury 765–6w
Economic situation 844w
Education, Private sector 538w
GCE A level 44w
GCE AS level 38–9w
General certificate of secondary education, Standards 406w
General practitioners 108w
Government art collection 501–2w
Health authorities, Standards 222w
Health services, Private sector 111–2w
Literacy, Standards 45w, 858–9w
Local education authorities, Private sector 406–7w
Ministers, Concorde 783w
Post offices 543w
Public expenditure 528–9w
Schools, Bureaucracy 43–4w

Laws, Mr David—continued*
Smuggling 605–6w
Teachers, Pay 43w, 239–40w
Wines, Foreign and Commonwealth Office 746–7w

Laxton, Mr Bob
Questions
Gibraltar, Pensions 122w
Gibraltar, Telecommunications 122w

Lazarowicz, Mr Mark
Sittings in Westminster Hall
East coast railway line (13.11.01) 242–5wh
Questions
British Irish Council 307–8w
East coast railway line 144w
Economic situation, Scotland 873w
Electoral register, Scotland 872w
Estuaries, Scotland 872w
Financial services, EC action 770–1w
Fireworks, Sales 261w
Housing benefit, Young people 893–4w
Human rights, Scotland 98
Mortgages 74w
Occupational pensions, EC action 772w
Railways, Accidents 291w
Railways, Assets 290–1w
Railways, Private sector 293w
Scottish Parliament 172w
Seas and oceans, Environment protection 144–5w
Strategic Rail Authority, Rapid transit systems 506w
Taxation, Aviation 154w
West coast railway line 502w

Learndirect centres
859w

Learning disability
Employment schemes 565w
Sports competitors 492–3w

Learning support units
720w

Lee Valley Regional Park Authority
60w

Leeds
Education 713w, 868w
Magistrates 102–3
Orthopaedics 211w

Legal aid
788–9w

Legal profession
Competition 442–3w

Legislative process
Committees 198w

Leicestershire
Cervical cancer 470w

Leigh, Mr Edward
Debates etc.
International Development Bill (HL), 2R (07.11.01) 277, 290, 309–11

Leominster
Foot and mouth disease 588w

Lepper, Mr David
Questions
Haemophilia, Medical treatments 210w
Travelling people 733w

Leslie, Mr Christopher, Parliamentary Secretary Cabinet Office*
Debates etc.
Public bodies (16.11.01) 1077–81, 1120–5
Questions
Assets, Cabinet Office 204w
Buildings, Cabinet Office 404–5w
Civil servants, Manpower 76w, 540w

Leslie, Mr Christopher—continued*
Civil servants, Pay 670w
Civil servants, Pensions 959w
Civil servants, Working hours 961w
Computers, Cabinet Office 308w
Consultation papers, Cabinet Office 308w
Devolution, Cabinet Office 783w
Energy, Cabinet Office 203w
Equitable Life Assurance Society 203–4w
Ministerial policy advisors 76w
Non-departmental public bodies 202w
Parliamentary questions, Cabinet Office 404w
People's Panel 783w, 960w
Private finance initiative, Conditions of employment 307w
Publications, Cabinet Office 204w
Task forces 959w
Technology Advisory Group 961w
Written questions, Cabinet Office 959–60w

Letwin, Mr Oliver
Questions
Intelligence services, Finance 778w

Levitt, Mr Tom
Debates etc.
House of Lords, Reform (07.11.01) 255
Lifelong learning (06.11.01) 117, 151, 168, 186–91, 200
Questions
Broadcasting reception, High Peak 268w

Lewis, Mr Ivan, Parliamentary Secretary, Dept for Education and Skills*
Questions
Assets, Dept for Education and Skills 247w
Computers, Dept for Education and Skills 246–7w
Consultation papers, Dept for Education and Skills 710–1w
Departmental responsibilities, Dept for Education and Skills 861w
Education, Assessments 720w
Education, Fees and charges 797w
Education, Finance 717w
Education, Standards 716w
Educational maintenance allowance 716w, 929–30w
Freedom of Information Act 2000, Dept for Education and Skills 864w
Further education 57–9w
GCE A level 44w
GCE AS level 38–9w, 720w
General certificate of secondary education, Standards 51w, 406w, 539w
Manpower, Dept for Education and Skills 245w
Modern apprenticeships 856w
Publicity, Dept for Education and Skills 707w
School leaving, Qualifications 858w
Schools, Annual reports 247w
Sixth form education 246w
Sixth form education, Finance 809w
Sixth form education, Worcestershire 809–10w
Visits abroad, Dept for Education and Skills 245–6w, 802–5w
Vocational guidance 857w
Written questions, Dept for Education and Skills 930w

Lewis, Dr Julian
Debates etc.
Drugs, Misuse (09.11.01) 487
Lifelong learning (06.11.01) 120
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 211wh
Tourism (13.11.01) 199wh

Lewis, Dr Julian—continued*
Questions
Beta-interferon 941–2w
Business questions 377–8, 992–3
Class sizes 711w
Digital broadcasting 11
Eastern Europe, Nuclear weapons 663w
Economic situation, Terrorism 347–8
Education, Political impartiality 869w
Genetics, Databases 554–5w
Identity cards, Terrorism 387–8w
International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia 743w
Mass media, Afghanistan 878w
Moore, Jo 229
Nuclear power stations, Security 846w
Nuclear shelters, Sales 777–8w
Prisoners, Medical treatments 555w
Sierra Leone, Peace keeping operations 662–3w
Teachers, Crimes of violence 423w
Territorial Army 823w
Terrorism, Islam 873w
Zimbabwe, Land 743w
Zimbabwe, Sanctions 743w

Liability
564–5w

Liaison Committee
see House of Commons Liaison Committee

Liddell, Rt Hon Mrs Helen, Secretary of State for Scotland*
Questions
Air traffic control, Prestwick 747–8w
Aviation, Scotland 94–6
Aviation, Scotland Office 930w
Boundary Commission for Scotland 171w
Devolution, Scotland Office 748w
Economic situation, Scotland 873w
Electoral register, Scotland 872w
Energy, Scotland Office 872w
Estuaries, Scotland 872w
Ferries, Scotland 173w
Institutional care, Scotland 171w
Oral questions, Scotland Office 394w
Public expenditure, Scotland 172–3w
Royal prerogative, Scotland Office 931w
Scottish Parliament 172w
Scottish Parliament, Members 91–4
Select committees, Scotland Office 930–1w
Terrorism, Scotland 174w
Tourism, Scotland 172w
Written questions, Administrative delays 872w
Written questions, Scotland Office 931w

Liddell-Grainger, Mr Ian
Debates etc.
Export Control Bill, Rep and 3R (08.11.01) 410–1, 434
Questions
Foot and mouth disease, Exmoor 982w
Livestock, Markets 302w

Lidington, Mr David
Questions
Common agricultural policy 69w
Company liquidations 153w
Customs and Excise, Arrests 69w
Customs and Excise, Body searches 70w, 251w
Customs and Excise, Insurance premium tax 151–2w
Customs and Excise, National Investigation Service 152w
Customs and Excise, Orders and regulations 841w

Lidington, Mr David*—*continued
Customs and Excise, Prosecutions 69–70w, 252w
Customs and Excise, Right of search 68–9w
Customs and Excise, Sick leave 605w
Customs and Excise, Standards 152w
Customs and Excise, Terrorism 153w
Excise duties 250–1w
Export controls 68w
Export controls, Arms trade 251w
Import controls 68w
Juries 692–3w
Smuggling 75w
Smuggling, Tobacco 75–6w
Stoke Mandeville Hospital NHS Trust, South Buckinghamshire NHS Trust 687w
Tax evasion 251–2w
Taxation, Business 357
Taxation, Tobacco 75w
VAT 74w, 157–8w, 253w, 528w
VAT, Fraud 155–7w, 402–3w, 528w
VAT, Repayments 156w
VAT, Tax allowances 253w
VAT, Tax burden 253w
VAT, Tax evasion 155–7w
VAT Large Payers Unit 156w
VAT returns, Business 157w

Lifelong education
Opposition days (06.11.01) 114–213

Lilley, Rt Hon Peter
Debates etc.
Drugs, Misuse (09.11.01) 487–8, 517–22
Football (Disorder) (Amendment) Bill, Rep and 3R (14.11.01) 921, 928–30
Human Rights Act 1998 (Designated Derogation) Order, Points of order (12.11.01) 573
Oral questions, Points of order (13.11.01) 714
Stakeholder pensions (13.11.01) 790, 805–10, 821
Questions
Orders and regulations, Explanatory notes 941w
Personal pensions 563
Railtrack 27–8
Refugees, Employment 87w
Refugees, Fingerprints 179–80w
Refugees, Proof of identity 87w
Refugees, Social security benefits 375–6w
Social security benefits, Applications 579w

Lincolnshire
Dental services 213–4w

Literacy
53w
Standards 45w, 858–9w

Lithuania
Double taxation 775w

Litter
589w
Fines 149–50w
Greater London 37w

Liverpool
Refugees 876w

Livestock
Exports 303w, 597w
Markets 302w, 591w
Transport 595–6w, 697–8w, 763w, 820w, 980w
Waste disposal 301w

Livestock identification scheme
816w, 890w

Livestock industry
Land use 981w

Lloyd, Mr Tony
Debates etc.
Drugs, Misuse (09.11.01) 477, 485–6, 489–93, 528
Export Control Bill, Rep and 3R (08.11.01) 391, 404–5, 437–8
Questions
Business questions 368–9
Northern Ireland government 275w
Waste management, Standards 884w

Llwyd, Mr Elfyn
Debates etc.
Afghanistan, Armed conflict (14.11.01) 872
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Tourism (13.11.01) 187–90wh
Questions
Farms, Diversification 884–5w
Flood control 975–6
Flood control, Wales 844
Ilisu dam 543–4w

Local authorities
Codes of practice 142–3w
Debts 463–6w
Insurance 737w
Social security benefits 784w
Translation services 507w

Local education authorities
Assets 867w
Private sector 406–7w
Standards 405w, 722w

Local government
Committees 293w
Ethics 457–8w
Pension funds 9w, 917w
Pensions 725w

Local Government Commission for England
740w

Local government finance
139w, 224w, (13.11.01) 831–2, 876w, 914w, (14.11.01) 957–60
Greater London 13–4w
Hackney 16w
New Earnings Survey 504–5w

Local government modernisation team
624–6w

Location
Refugees 177w, 873w

Lockerbie
Railway stations 139w

London
see Greater London

London Rough Sleepers Unit
see Rough Sleepers Unit

London Underground
Absenteeism 737w
Crime 503–4w
Directors 621w
Fares 289–90w
Finance 831w
Holiday leave 621w
Manpower 624w
Public private partnerships 9–10w, 288–9w, 503w, 620–4w, 900–4w
Railway signals 10w, 452–3w
Standards 9–11w, 737w
Working hours 620w

Lone parents
Income support 193–4w

Lord Chancellor's Dept
Assets 487w
Fair trade initiative 939w

Lord Chancellor's Dept*—*continued
Official residences 693w
Public private partnerships 789–90w
Publicity 487w

Lorry drivers
Working hours 133w, 287–8w, 505w

Loughton, Tim
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Hearing aids (07.11.01) 133wh, 135wh
Questions
Aiding and abetting 93w
Armed forces, Afghanistan 81w
Burglary 641w
Crimes against property 96w
Doctors, Suicide 226w
Drugs, Expenditure 680w
Economic situation, Terrorism 400w
General practitioners, Performance appraisal 116w
General practitioners, Recruitment 688–9w
Hearing aids 705–6, 948–9w
Hospitals, Waiting lists 116w
Jet skis, Safety 294w
Magistrates' courts, Trials 78w
National Clinical Director for Children 691–2w
NHS, Drugs 680–1w
NHS, Private finance initiative 689–91w
Nurses, Manpower 691w
Playing fields, Sussex 59–60w
Primary care trusts, Conditions of employment 687–8w
Primary care trusts, Finance 687w
Prisoners, Afghanistan 970w
Punishment 96w
Railtrack 233–4
Social workers, Training 688w
Surgery, Waiting lists 115–6w
Sussex Police, Manpower 968–9w
Youth courts, Sentencing 96w

Love, Mr Andrew
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Housing (15.11.01) 317–8wh, 325wh, 332wh, 336wh, 340wh, 348wh, 354–5wh
Small businesses (06.11.01) 17–20wh
Questions
Employee share ownership schemes 608–9w
Terrorism, Finance 398w, 771w

Lucas, Ian
Questions
Badgers 880–1w
Energy, Conservation 978
Ethnic groups, Home Office 777w
Industrial diseases, Compensation 164w, 849
Pension credit 570w

Luff, Mr Peter
Debates etc.
Export Control Bill, Rep and 3R (08.11.01) 445–6, 448
Foot and mouth disease, Points of order (15.11.01) 1009
Kidderminster Hospital (08.11.01) 467–71
Lifelong learning (06.11.01) 132, 167–75
Questions
Education, Finance 52w, 140w
Flood control, Worcestershire 593–4w
Foot and mouth disease, Disease control 145w
Foot and mouth disease, Hunting 819w
Foot and mouth disease, Inquiries 888w
Members, Correspondence 303w, 544w
Monetary compensatory amounts 146w
Sixth form education, Worcestershire 809–10w
Supermarkets, Farmers 306–7w

Luff, Mr Peter—continued
Tipping of waste 297w
Worcestershire Acute Hospitals NHS Trust, Resignations 209–10w

Luke, Mr Iain
Questions
Poverty, Scotland 96

Lung cancer
Health services 680w

Lymphoedema
224w
Walsall 224w

Lyons, Mr John
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Tourism (13.11.01) 186wh, 193–4wh
Questions
Criminal Justice Review, Northern Ireland 516–7w

M1
732–3w

M6
Heysham 617w

M25
138w

McCabe, Mr Stephen
Debates etc.
House of Lords, Reform (07.11.01) 248
Questions
Business questions 986
Employment zones 573w
National Specialist Commissioning Advisory Group, Heart diseases 96–7w
Northern Ireland government 273w

McCafferty, Ms Chris
Questions
Afghanistan, Education 858

McCartney, Rt Hon Ian, Minister for Pensions, Department for Work and Pensions
Debates etc.
Stakeholder pensions (13.11.01) 799–800, 819–23
Questions
Disabled, Dept for Work and Pensions 585w
Institutional care, Income support 195w
Occupational pensions 374–5w
Pension credit 560–2, 570w, 936–7w
Pension funds 704w
Pensioners, Christmas bonus 437w
Pensioners, Income support 188w, 703w
Pensioners, Welfare tax credits 573w
Pensions 580w
Pensions, Complaints 576w
Personal pensions 562–4, 568–70, 574w
Stakeholder pensions 700w, 938w
Stakeholder pensions, Publicity 192w
Stakeholder pensions, Small businesses 700w
State retirement pensions 194w, 574w
State retirement pensions, Patients 194w
Winter fuel payments 438w, 574–6w, 936w

McDonagh, Ms Siobhain
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Hearing aids (07.11.01) 128–31wh

Macdonald, Mr Calum
Debates etc.
House of Lords, Reform (07.11.01) 252

McDonnell, John
Debates etc.
Aviation (05.11.01) 75–81

McDonnell, John—continued
City of London (Ward Elections) Bill, Motion to proceed in present session (15.11.01) 1031, 1033, 1035–56, 1059, 1061–3
Special education (05.11.01) 58

McFall, Mr John
Questions
Northern Ireland government 223–4
Smoking 699–700
Terrorism, Finance 349–50

McIntosh, Miss Anne
Debates etc.
Animal Health Bill, 2R (12.11.01) 574–5, 578
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 729–30, 762–4
Speed limits, Petitions (13.11.01) 832
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Gambling (06.11.01) 41–2wh
Questions
Aviation 338w
Aviation, Security 456–7w
Breast cancer 533–4w
Business questions 377, 994
Church of England, Art works 5w
Electric cables 166w
Electric cables, Health hazards 207–9w, 474w
Film, EC grants and loans 494–5w
Flood control 451–2w, 594w
Flood control, North Yorkshire 594w
Flood control, Rawcliffe 595w
Flood control, River Ouse 594–5w
Foot and mouth disease, Disease control 588w, 695w, 815–6w
Jobcentre Plus, Vale of York 371–2w
Livestock, Transport 595–6w
Military bases, Telecommunications 379–80w
Millennium Exhibition 614w
Monetary compensatory amounts 360–1
New deal schemes 565
Nurses, Manpower 791–2w
Police, Pensions 315w
Public service broadcasting 494w
Refugees 80–1w
Refugees, Deportation 98–9
Tourism, Terrorism 7–8
VAT, Churches 72w
Weapons, Northern Ireland 273w
Written questions, Administrative delays 871–2w

McIsaac, Shona
Questions
Museums and galleries 13–4
Tourism 268–71w

MacKay, Rt Hon Andrew
Questions
Business questions 374, 985
Gibraltar 858
Railtrack 27

McKechin, Ann
Debates etc.
International Development Bill (HL), 2R (07.11.01) 311–4
World Trade Organisation (07.11.01) 268
Questions
Scottish Parliament 172w

McKenna, Mrs Rosemary
Debates etc.
House of Lords, Reform (07.11.01) 244
Questions
Afghanistan, International assistance 855

Mackinlay, Andrew
Debates etc.
Oral question time intervention (13.11.01) 696
Questions
Grace and favour housing 634–6w

Maclean, Rt Hon David
Debates etc.
Lifelong learning (06.11.01) 206
Questions
Foot and mouth disease, Disease control 145w, 297–8w
Foot and mouth disease, Government assistance 298w

McLoughlin, Mr Patrick
Debates etc.
Special education (05.11.01) 43
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 207wh, 210wh
Questions
Members, Correspondence 222w, 444w

McNamara, Mr Kevin
Debates etc.
Human Rights Joint Select Committee (15.11.01) 1023, 1028–9
Questions
Higher education, Student numbers 410–1w
Homicide, Northern Ireland 346–7w
Human rights, Northern Ireland 516w
Private education, Charities 91w
Student numbers 409–10w
Treaties 836–7w
Trials, Northern Ireland 834w

MacShane, Mr Denis, Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, Foreign and Commonwealth Office
Questions
Assets, Foreign and Commonwealth Office 1w
Belize, Financial services 123–4w
British Council 839w
Computers, Foreign and Commonwealth Office 485–6w
Consultation papers, Foreign and Commonwealth Office 514w
Embassies, Operating costs 334w
Fair trade initiative, Foreign and Commonwealth Office 927w
Kosovo, War crimes 334w
South America 335–6w
USA, Diplomatic service 486–7w
Wines, Foreign and Commonwealth Office 746–7w

MacSwiney, Terence
694w

Mactaggart, Fiona
Debates etc.
House of Lords, Reform (07.11.01) 246
Public bodies (16.11.01) 1084, 1095–9, 1101, 1103
Sex Discrimination (Election Candidates) Bill, Rep and 3R (14.11.01) 892
Questions
Northern Ireland government 275w
Nurses, Recruitment 698
Refugees 79w

McWalter, Mr Tony
Debates etc.
Stakeholder pensions (13.11.01) 815–7
Questions
Business questions 989–90
Jobcentre Plus 553–4

McWilliam, Mr John
Debates etc.
House of Commons Liaison Committee (05.11.01) 68

Magistrates
199–200w
Leeds 102–3
Recruitment 199w
Working hours 395w

Magistrates' courts
Ceredigion 201w
Colchester 200w
Computers 564w
Trials 78w, 894–5w

Magnetic resonance imagers
674w
Newark 674–5w

Mahmood, Mr Khalid
Debates etc.
Afghanistan, Armed conflict (14.11.01) 876
Questions
Employment schemes, Learning disability 565w
Organised Crime Task Force 278w

Mahon, Mrs Alice
Questions
Cuba, Terrorism 2w

Maiden speeches
Heyes, David (16.11.01) 1088–91

Maintenance
Children 551–2, 565w, 891–3w

Maladministration
Housing benefit 788w

Malins, Mr Humfrey
Questions
Racially aggravated offences, Prosecutions 498–9w
Refugees 88w
Refugees, Administrative delays 181w
Refugees, Applications 560–1w
Refugees, Housing 91w
Religiously aggravated offences 500w, 969w

Mallaber, Judy
Debates etc.
World Trade Organisation (07.11.01) 267
Questions
Imitation guns 555w
Tipping of waste 972

Manchester
Sportsgrounds 344w

Manchester Airport
Roads 134w

Mandelson, Rt Hon Peter
Debates etc.
House of Lords, Reform (07.11.01) 249

Mann, John
Debates etc.
British Coal Corporation, Equal pay (07.11.01) 339–40
Stakeholder pensions (13.11.01) 813–4
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Hearing aids (07.11.01) 135wh
Small businesses (06.11.01) 5–7wh
Questions
Common sugar regime 300–1w
Industrial diseases, Compensation 164w
Speed limits, Cameras 729–30w

Manufacturing industries
161w, 352–4, 531w, 754–5w, 851–2
Climate change levy 841w

Manufacturing industries*—*continued
Corporation tax 842–3w
Manpower 570w
Redundancy 772–3w
VAT 842–3w
Wales 762–3w

Maples, Mr John
Questions
Crown courts, Hereford 397w
Departmental coordination, Manpower 547w
Departmental responsibilities 546–7w

Marine Wildlife Conservation Bill 2001/02
Debates etc.
Money res (15.11.01) 1011

Marketing
Sheep meat 695w

Markets
Electricity generation 161–2w, 658–9w, 755–6w
Foot and mouth disease 445w
Livestock 302w, 591w

Marris, Rob
Debates etc.
British Coal Corporation, Equal pay (07.11.01) 345

Marsden, Mr Gordon
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Higher education (08.11.01) 148wh, 169–71wh, 180wh
Questions
Crime, Alcoholic drinks 734w
Older workers 571w
Railways, Crime 733–4w
Railways, Safety 733w
Trains, Overcrowding 508w

Marsden, Mr Paul
Questions
Judicial review 397w

Marshall-Andrews, Mr Robert
Debates etc.
Afghanistan, Armed conflict (14.11.01) 877

Martlew, Mr Eric
Debates etc.
Animal Health Bill, 2R (12.11.01) 587, 589, 597, 605, 615, 620, 636–9

Mass media
Afghanistan 878w

Maternity and Parental Leave (Amendment) Regulations 2001
Debates etc.
(12.11.01) 684

Maternity payments
Sure start programme 573w

Maternity services
97w, 350w

Mawhinney, Rt Hon Sir Brian
Debates etc.
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 752–5
Questions
Railtrack 25–6

May, Mrs Theresa
Debates etc.
Ministers, Points of order (06.11.01) 109
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 715–22, 725–8, 730, 732, 742
Sex Discrimination (Election Candidates) Bill, Rep and 3R (14.11.01) 894–6, 900, 904, 906–7

May, Mrs Theresa*—*continued
Questions
Abandoned vehicles 514w
Buildings, Cabinet Office 404–5w
Buildings, Dept for Work and Pensions 699w
Buildings, Dept of Health 280w
Bus services, Standards 626–7w, 737w
Cellular phones, Licensing 15–6w, 68w, 262–3w
Hospital beds 283w
Litter, Fines 149–50w
Local government, Pension funds 9w
Local government finance 139w
Local government finance, Greater London 13–4w
Local government finance, Hackney 16w
Local government modernisation team 624–6w
Police, Manpower 321w
Railtrack 19–29
Railtrack, Finance 899–900w
Regional planning and development 14–5w
Special constables 963w
Terrorism, Dept for Transport Local Government and the Regions 618w
Tipping of waste, Convictions 393w
Voting behaviour 15w

McCarthy, Georgina
77w

Meacher, Rt Hon Michael, Minister of State for the Environment, Dept for Environment Food and Rural Affairs
Debates etc.
Marine Wildlife Conservation Bill, Money res (15.11.01) 1011
Money res (15.11.01) 1011
Questions
Abandoned vehicles 514w
Aggregates levy 661–2w
Carbon Trust, Public appointments 35–6w, 590w
Chemicals, EC action 445–6w
Climate Change Convention 887w
Combined heat and power 38w, 886–7w
Dioxins 598w
Emissions trading scheme 546w
Energy, Conservation 590–1w, 814w, 883w, 978
Farms, Waste disposal 446w
Fuel poverty 890–1w
Genetically modified organisms, Crops 821w
Genetically modified organisms, EC law 884w
Ground water, EC law 206w
Ground water, Pollution 149w
Home energy efficiency scheme 452w
Inland waterways 35w
Litter 589w
Litter, Fines 149–50w
Litter, Greater London 37w
Motor vehicles, EC law 889w
Nature conservation 891w
Radioactive wastes 819–20w
Recycling 300w, 882w
Refrigerators, Recycling 593w, 891w
Refrigerators, Waste disposal 449w
Rivers 446w
Seas and oceans, Environment protection 144–5w
Sewers 886w
Southern Water, Complaints 449w
Tipping of waste 297w, 972–4
Waste management, Standards 884w
Water, Pollution 149w
Water supply 36–7w
World Summit on Sustainable Development 602–3w

Meat products
Import controls 30–1w

Medals
Exservicemen 521w
Police 499w

Medical equipment
Community health services 98w

Medical examinations
Social security benefits 315w

Medical profession
686w
Disciplinary proceedings 851w
Foreign workers 874–5w
Manpower 222w
Training 285w

Medical treatments
Cancer 471w, 672w
Cervical cancer 471w
EC countries 106–7w, 210w, 283–4w, 367–8w, 550–1w, 853w
Haemophilia 210w, 795w, 855
Heart diseases 472–3w
Prisoners 555w
Smoking 356w

Medicine
Research 368–9w

Members
Correspondence 75w, 90–1w, 124w, 140w, 184w, 222w, 303w, 345w, 444–5w, 500w, 544w, 778w, 876–7w, 982w
Information technology 198–9w
Scottish Parliament 91–4
Travel 76w

Meningitis
205–6w
Death 773w

Mental Health Act 1983
Questions
104w, 942w

Mental health services
104–5w, 228w, 679w
Advocacy 678w
Community care 101w, 227w, 680w
Conditions of employment 679–80w
Ethnic groups 101w
Finance 552–3w, 679w
Greater London 99–101w
Private finance initiative 100w
Racial discrimination (09.11.01) 544–50
Standards 476w, 679w
Young people 686w

Mental hospitals
677w

Mental patients
Death 283w
Ethnic groups 104w

Mentally ill
Children 102–3w
Drugs 944–5w
Institutional care 475–6w
Prescriptions 103–4w
Prisoners 95w

Mercenaries
336w

Mercer, Patrick
Debates etc.
Afghanistan, Armed conflict (14.11.01) 872–3
Questions
Magnetic resonance imagers, Newark 674–5w
Special education, Wales 761–2w

Mergers
Health authorities 855

Merron, Ms Gillian
Questions
Africa, Sanctions 664w
EC Foreign Affairs Council 665–8w
New deal schemes 354–5

Merseyside
Fire services 736w

Merton
Schools 423w

Methicillin resistant staphylococcus aureus
553w

Methyl tertiary butyl ether
507w
USA 506w

Metropolitan Police
Finance 646w
Pay 642–3w

Michael, Rt Hon Alun, Minister of State, Dept for Environment Food and Rural Affairs*
Questions
Agriculture, Subsidies 147w
Bees, Diseases 968–9
Environmentally sensitive areas 146–7w
Farm Business Advice Service 593w
Farmers, Business links 147w
Farmers, Supermarkets 886w
Farms, Diversification 593w, 697w, 884–5w
Foot and mouth disease, Disease control 30w
Foot and mouth disease, Government assistance 589w, 815w
Foot and mouth disease, Hunting 446–7w, 695–6w, 819–20w, 890w
Foot and mouth disease, Northumberland 298w
Foot and mouth disease, Redundancy 815w
Hunting 696w
Parish councils, Standards 150–1w
Rights of way 888w
Rural areas, Unemployment 345w
Rural areas, Voluntary organisations 36w
Rural development programme 146w

Mid Essex Hospital Services NHS Trust
Waiting lists 947–8w

Middlesbrough
Regional assistance 960w

Midwives
Recruitment 114–5w

Milburn, Rt Hon Alan, Secretary of State for Health*
Debates etc.
National Health Service Reform and Health Care Professions Bill, 1R (08.11.01) 380
Questions
Cancer, Medical treatments 672w
Health services, Reciprocal arrangements 706–9
NHS, Job satisfaction 671w
Nurses, Recruitment 696–9

Miliband, Mr David
Questions
Vacancies, North East region 491w

Military bases
Aldershot 827w
Churches 827w
Glencorse 27w

Military bases—continued
Telecommunications 379–80w

Military decorations
520–1w

Millennium Exhibition
343w, 614w
Property transfer 905–6w

Millennium Stadium
Cardiff 8–9

Miller, Mr Andrew
Questions
Dee estuary 845
Personal pensions 563

Mining
Pensions 774w

Ministerial policy advisors
76w
Dept for Transport Local Government and the Regions 456w

Ministerial statements
Afghanistan (14.11.01) 861–79
House of Lords (07.11.01) 239–55
World Trade Organisation (07.11.01) 256–68, (15.11.01) 996–1008

Ministers
Concorde 783w
Rulings and statements (15.11.01) 1010
Visits abroad 668–9w

Ministry of Defence
Assets 23w, 955–6w
Consultation papers 520w
Fire services (13.11.01) 227–34wh
Freedom of Information Act 2000 825w
Press releases 517–8w
Public private partnerships 953w
Public relations 740w
Publicity 518w
Royal prerogative 25w
Written questions 958w

Ministry of Defence Police
Finance 826w
Redundancy 826w
United Kingdom Atomic Energy Authority Constabulary 826w

Mink
973w
Farms 813–4w
Transport 813w

Misrepresentation
Personal pensions 255w

Misuse
Drugs 90w, 183–4w, 320–1w, (09.11.01) 475–543, 966w

Misuse of Drugs Act 1971
Debates etc.
(09.11.01) 475–543
Questions
320w

Mitchell, Mr Andrew
Debates etc.
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 739
Questions
Business questions 372–3
Hospitals, Construction 692w

Mitchell, Mr Austin
Questions
Agriculture, Subsidies 817w
Security, Northern Ireland 272w
South America 335–6w
Students, Finance 863w
Students, Loans 863w
Uganda 849w

MMR vaccine
478w

Mobile homes
16w

Mobile phones
see Cellular phones

Modern apprenticeships
856w

Modernisation of the House of Commons Select Committee
(05.11.01) 74

Moffatt, Laura
Debates etc.
Drugs, Misuse (09.11.01) 522–4
Questions
Departmental responsibilities, Ports 547–8w

Monetary compensatory amounts
30w, 146w, 305w, 360–2, 598w, 812w

Money laundering
Convictions 496–7w

Money Laundering Regulations 2001
Questions
490w

Monuments
Armed forces 24w, 131w

Moonie, Dr Lewis, Parliamentary Under-Secretary, Ministry of Defence
Questions
Afghanistan, Armed conflict 248w
Aircraft carriers 381w
Aircraft carriers, Finance 249w
Antitank missiles, Imports 526w
Apache AH-64 helicopter 632–3w
Armed forces, Health services 26w
Armed forces, Housing 130–1w, 381w, 827w
Armed forces, Monuments 24w, 131w
Armed forces, Pensions 249–50w
Armed forces, Telecommunications 518w
Artillery 524w
Assets, Ministry of Defence 23w
Bowman combat radio system 127–8w, 523w
Challenger tanks 24–5w, 376w, 527w
Consultation papers, Ministry of Defence 520w
Defence Diversification Agency, Scotland 518–9w
Defence equipment, Procurement 28w, 378w, 523w, 526w
Defence Medical Services 740–1w
European fighter aircraft 633w
Freedom of Information Act 2000, Ministry of Defence 825w
Future large aircraft, Italy 130w
Future large aircraft, Procurement 249w
General Service Medal, Suez Canal 26w
Gibraltar, Anniversaries 27w
Gulf Veterans' Illnesses Unit, Manpower 824w
Gurkhas, Pensions 248–9w
Military bases, Aldershot 827w
Military bases, Churches 827w
Military decorations 520–1w
Ministry of Defence Police, Finance 826w
Ministry of Defence Police, Redundancy 826w
Ministry of Defence Police, United Kingdom Atomic Energy Authority Constabulary 826w
Nuclear shelters, Cotswold Hills 741w
Nuclear weapons, Uranium 523w
Operation Palliser 518w
Porton Down 823–5w

Moonie, Dr Lewis—continued
Porton Down, Human experiments 823w
Press releases, Ministry of Defence 517–8w
Prisoners of war, Compensation 825–6w
Public relations, Ministry of Defence 740w
Publicity, Ministry of Defence 518w
QINETIQ 629–30w
Queen Elizabeth II, Anniversaries 521w
Royal Naval Reserve, Deployment 633–4w
Royal prerogative, Ministry of Defence 25w
Smallpox, Vaccination 523w
Territorial Army 131w, 250w, 517w
Veterans' Task Force 630w
War graves, Wrecks 435w
War pensions 521w

Moore, Jo
229

Moore, Mr Michael
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Post offices, Closures (07.11.01) 102–4wh

Moran, Margaret
Debates etc.
Domestic violence (13.11.01) 833–7
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Gibraltar (07.11.01) 75–7wh
Housing (15.11.01) 321wh, 350–3wh
Questions
Bailiffs 77w
Domestic violence 103
Homicide, Children 91–2w
Legislation, Internet 108
McCarthy, Georgina 77w
Weapons, Northern Ireland 273–4w

Morecambe
Regional assistance 627–9w, 655w

Morgan, Julie
Debates etc.
House of Lords, Reform (07.11.01) 250
Sex Discrimination (Election Candidates) Bill, Rep and 3R (14.11.01) 888, 891, 911–2
Questions
Business questions 376, 987
Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service 101–2
New deal schemes, Wales 764w

Morley, Mr Elliot, Parliamentary Secretary, Dept of Environment Food and Rural Affairs
Debates etc.
Animal Health Bill, 2R (12.11.01) 597–8, 602, 604, 607, 616, 622, 625–8, 631, 633–4, 639–40, 643, 648, 654–5, 665–70
Cleansing Service Group, Explosions (06.11.01) 218–20
Questions
Agriculture, Imports 599–601w
Agriculture, Subsidies 591w, 817w
Animal feed 148–9w, 882–3w
Animal Health Bill 2001/02 972w
Animal products, Import controls 975w
Annual reports, Dept for Environment Food and Rural Affairs 977w
Apples 150w
Assets, Dept for Environment Food and Rural Affairs 145w
Beef, Imports 304w, 820–1w
Bees, Diseases 890w
Bovine spongiform encephalopathy 887w
Bovine spongiform encephalopathy, Disease control 974–5w
Bovine spongiform encephalopathy, Research 448–9w
Bovine tuberculosis, Gloucestershire 306w
Bridges, Upton upon Severn 148w

Morley, Mr Elliot—continued
Cattle, Exports 597–8w, 976w
Civil servants, Dept for Environment Food and Rural Affairs 978w
Coastal areas, Essex 979–80w
Common agricultural policy 981–2w
Common agricultural policy, EC enlargement 447w
Common agricultural policy, Reform 973w
Common fisheries policy 975–6w
Common sugar regime 300–1w
Computers, Dept for Environment Food and Rural Affairs 589–90w, 977w
Correspondence, Dept for Environment Food and Rural Affairs 444w
Countryside stewardship scheme 448w
Crops, Land use 981w
Electronic government 887w
Exeter, Dept for Environment Food and Rural Affairs 696–7w
Farm woodland premium scheme 306w
Farms, Shropshire 597w
Farms, Tenants 601w
Fish, Conservation 303–4w
Fish farming 589w
Fisheries, Compensation 302–3w, 592w
Fisheries, Subsidies 448w
Flood control 450–2w, 594–5w, 698w, 975–6
Flood control, Cambridgeshire 966–8
Flood control, East Riding 144w
Flood control, Finance 885–6w, 979w
Flood control, Greater London 818–9w
Flood control, North Yorkshire 594w
Flood control, Rawcliffe 595w
Flood control, River Ouse 594–5w
Flood control, Worcestershire 593–4w
Floods, Insurance 698w
Food, Import controls 972w
Food, Imports 306w
Food Standards Agency 304w
Foot and mouth disease 445w, 888w, 976–7w
Foot and mouth disease, Cheshire 145w
Foot and mouth disease, Chorley 346w
Foot and mouth disease, Compensation 299w
Foot and mouth disease, Disease control 145–6w, 297–9w, 306w, 449–50w, 587–8w, 596–7w, 695w, 814–6w
Foot and mouth disease, Exmoor 982w
Foot and mouth disease, Government assistance 298w
Foot and mouth disease, Hunting 889–90w
Foot and mouth disease, Import controls 889w
Foot and mouth disease, Incinerators 977w
Foot and mouth disease, Inquiries 888–9w
Foot and mouth disease, Leominster 588w
Foot and mouth disease, Markets 445w
Foot and mouth disease, Northumberland 298w
Foot and mouth disease, Powys 300w, 346w
Foot and mouth disease, Public inquiries 299–300w, 445w
Foot and mouth disease, Sheep 298–9w
Fruit, Subsidies 304–5w
Game, Exports 976–7w
Horses, Ragwort 601–2w
Horticulture, Climate change levy 148w
Information technology, Dept for Environment Food and Rural Affairs 977–8w
Livestock, Exports 303w, 597w
Livestock, Markets 302w, 591w
Livestock, Transport 595–6w, 697–8w, 820w, 980w
Livestock, Waste disposal 301w

Morley, Mr Elliot—continued
Livestock identification scheme 816w, 890w
Members, Correspondence 303w, 345w, 444–5w, 982w
Mink 973w
Mink, Farms 813–4w
Mink, Transport 813w
Monetary compensatory amounts 146w, 305w, 598w, 812w
Organic farming 447w
Pheasants, Gun sports 34–5w
Pigs 976–7
Plants, Prices 304w
Potatoes 980–1w
Private finance initiative, Dept for Environment Food and Rural Affairs 978–9w
Rendering industry 148w
Rural Payments Agency 971w
Rural Payments Agency, Manpower 448w
Scrapie 598–9w
Select committees, Dept for Environment Food and Rural Affairs 302w
Sheep 972w
Sheep, Exports 300w
Sheep meat 150w
Sheep meat, Exports 821w
Sheep meat, Marketing 695w
State Veterinary Service, Manpower 821w, 979w
Supermarkets, Farmers 306–7w
Tuberculosis, South West region 147–8w
Veterinary medicine 974–5
Veterinary medicine, Drugs 591–2w
Veterinary medicine, EC action 592w
Veterinary services, Complaints 974w
Written questions, Administrative delays 305w
Written questions, Dept for Environment Food and Rural Affairs 972–3w
Zoos 818w

Morris, Rt Hon Ms Estelle, Secretary of State for Education and Skills
Debates etc.
Lifelong learning (06.11.01) 122–32, 137–8

Mortgages
74w

Moss, Mr Malcolm
Questions
Regional assemblies, Finance 138–9w
Regional Coordination Unit 202–3w

Motor vehicles
EC law 159w, 648w, 758–9w, 889w
Excise duties 133w, 288w, 653w, 922w
Registration 736w
VAT 767w

Motor Vehicles (Prohibition on Use of Hand-Held Mobile Telephones) Bill 2001/02
Debates etc.
1R (14.11.01) 881–2

Motorcycles
Helmets 16w
Safety 136w
Theft 317w

Motorways
732w
Speed limits 504w

Mountford, Kali
Debates etc.
Afghanistan, Armed conflict (14.11.01) 870
World Trade Organisation (15.11.01) 1004

Mountford, Kali—continued
Questions
Manufacturing industries 353

Movement of Farm Animals Bill 2001/02
Debates etc.
1R (06.11.01) 111–3

Mudie, Mr George
Questions
Education, Leeds 713w, 868w
Employment 572w

Mullin, Mr Chris
Questions
Parliamentary year 104

Munn, Meg
Debates etc.
World Trade Organisation (15.11.01) 1008
Questions
Schools, Finance 427w

Murphy, Mr Jim
Questions
Afghanistan, Armed conflict 237–8

Murphy, Rt Hon Paul, Secretary of State for Wales
Questions
Bus services, Wales 761w
Computers, Office of the Secretary of State for Wales 342w
Dee estuary 844–5
EC grants and loans 341w
EC grants and loans, Wales 341w, 762w
Fair trade initiative, Office of the Secretary of State for Wales 939–40w
Foot and mouth disease, Wales 764–5w
Incinerators, Wrexham 763w
Livestock, Transport 763w
Manufacturing industries, Wales 762–3w
New deal schemes, Wales 764w
Publications, Office of the Secretary of State for Wales 341w
QINETIQ, Apprentices 763w
Radioactive fallout, Chernobyl 894w
Small businesses, Wales 765w
Terrorism, Wales 847–9
Transport, Wales 841–2
Water supply, Ceredigion 894w
Written questions, Office of the Secretary of State for Wales 940w

Murrison, Dr Andrew
Debates etc.
Football (Disorder) (Amendment) Bill, Rep and 3R (14.11.01) 942–3
Questions
Brain, Injuries 106w
Breast cancer, Screening 790–1w
Homelessness, Wiltshire 731w
Hospitals, Waiting lists 762w
Institutional care, Standards 700–1
Orthopaedics, Bath 791w
Television, Licensing 344–5w

Museums and galleries
13–4
Fees and charges 66w

Music
Schools 423–4w, 538–9w

Muslims
233

MV Marchioness
Coroners 200w

National Asylum Support Service
881w

National Blood Service
Public appointments 685w

National Care Standards Commission
224w
Manpower 349–50w

National Clinical Director for Children
691–2w

National College for School Leadership
715w

National Criminal Intelligence Service
93–4w

National Employment Panel
784–5w

National Health Service Reform and Health Care Professions Bill 2001/02
Debates etc.
1R (08.11.01) 380

National House Building Council
Standards 292w

National Institute for Clinical Excellence
117–9w

National insurance
309–10w, 538w, 584–5w, 699–700w, 772w

National insurance contributions
256–7w
EC countries 775w
Scotland 260–1w

National Insurance Fund
258w

National Investigation Service
Customs and Excise 152w

National literacy strategy
714w, 858w

National Lottery
63w, 66w, 170w, 493–4w
West Yorkshire 748w

National numeracy strategy
714w, 858w

National security
880w
Armed forces 524w

National Specialist Commissioning Advisory Group
Heart diseases 96–7w

National Sports Institute
see UK Sports Institute

National training organisations
867–8w

Natural gas
Prices 168–9w, 655w
Storage 166–7w

Natural resources
Democratic Republic of Congo 848w

Nature conservation
891w

Negligence
NHS 77–8w, 224–6w

Neurology
Consultants 794w

New businesses
Tax allowances 74w

New deal for 50 plus
556–9, 567–8w

New deal for communities
Finance 724w

New deal for disabled people
567w

New deal for lone parents
370–1w, 539–40w, 564–7, 568w

New deal for long term unemployed
568–9w
Birmingham 568w

New deal for young people
567–9w
Advisory services 936w

New deal schemes
354–6, 565
Information technology 570w
Publicity 569–70w
Wales 764w

New Earnings Survey
Local government finance 504–5w

New Forest District Council
Damages 453–4w

New Opportunities Fund
Buckinghamshire 638w
Sports 501w
Terminal care 170–1w

New Scotland Yard
see Metropolitan Police

Newark
Magnetic resonance imagers 674–5w

NHS
235–6
Classification schemes 940w
Disciplinary proceedings 110–1w
Drugs 680–1w
Finance 213w, 399w, 553w, 843w
Foreign workers 796w
Job satisfaction 671w
Negligence 77–8w, 224–6w
Pay 852w
Private finance initiative 673w, 689–91w
Standards 360w
Wales 158w

NHS Leadership Centre
853w

NHS Magazine
360w

NHS Pensions Agency
113w

NHS plan
229w, 949w

"NHS Plan News"
360w

NHS Plus
221w

NHS trusts
Franchises 553w
Pilot schemes 854w
Private sector 281w
Standards 551w

Noise
Roads 506w

Non-departmental public bodies
202w
Dept for Culture Media and Sport 62w

Non-domestic rates
536w, 617–8w
Hertfordshire 512–3w
Public houses 536w

Norfolk
Schools 422w

Norfolk and Norwich Hospital
Roads 830w

Norman, Mr Archie
Questions
Public relations, Dept for Transport Local Government and the Regions 737–8w
Railtrack 828w

North Durham Health Care NHS Trust
356w, 695–6

North East region
Railways 11w
Vacancies 491w

North Staffordshire Hospital NHS Trust
Disciplinary proceedings 107w

North West Development Agency
Finance 923w

North West region
Street warden scheme 730w

North Yorkshire
Flood control 594w

Northamptonshire
Class sizes 41–2w
Dental services 213w
Education 42w
Schools 41w
Social security benefits 190–1w
Teachers 428w

Northern Ireland
Abortion 480w
Armed forces 956w
Crimes of violence 276w, 483w
Criminal Justice Review 516–7w
Elections 277–8w
Health education 347w, 480w
Homicide 346–7w
Human rights 516w
Police 227–9, 275w, 279w, 485w, 516w, 609–10w
Post offices 922w
Remembrance Day 279w
Security 272w
Terrorism 225–7, 276–9w, 515w
Trials 834w
Weapons 273–5w, 277–8w

Northern Ireland Act 1998 (Amendment of Enactment) Order 2001
Debates etc.
(06.11.01) 214

Northern Ireland Act 2000 (Restoration of Devolved Government) (No 2) Order 2001
Debates etc.
(06.11.01) 214

Northern Ireland Act 2000 (Restoration of Devolved Government) Order 2001
Debates etc.
(06.11.01) 214

Northern Ireland Act 2000 (Suspension of Devolved Government) (No 2) Order 2001
Debates etc.
(06.11.01) 214

Northern Ireland Act 2000 (Suspension of Devolved Government) Order 2001
Debates etc.
(06.11.01) 214

Northern Ireland Compensation Agency
834w

Northern Ireland Executive
Finance 278w

Northern Ireland government
196–7w, 222–5, 238, 273w, 275w

Northern Ireland Office
Assets 483w
Buildings 279–80w
Computers 484–5w
Publicity 485w
Written questions 938–9w

Northern Ireland Organised Crime Task Force

Northern Ireland Organised Crime Task Force—continued
see Organised Crime Task Force

Northern Ireland Parades Commission
see Parades Commission

Northern Ireland (Sentences) Act 1998 (Specified Organizations) Order 2001
Debates etc.
(06.11.01) 214

Northumberland
Foot and mouth disease 298w

Nuclear power
656–7w, 846w
Climate change levy 657w, 768w
Finland 163–4w
Government assistance 756–7w

Nuclear power stations
Air traffic control 469w
Construction 542–3w
Security 160w, 187w, 329w, 377–8w, 436w, 545w, 631w, 736w, 846w, 921w

Nuclear reactors
Scotland 173w

Nuclear shelters
Cotswold Hills 741w
Sales 777–8w

Nuclear submarines
826w

Nuclear weapons
523w
Eastern Europe 663w
Uranium 523w

Nuisance
Telephone services 647w

Numeracy
53w

Nurses
Baby care units 475w
Housing 552w
Manpower 106w, 674w, 691w, 791–2w
Recruitment 696–9, 850w
Students 549w
Training 850–1w
Vacancies 222w, 552w

Nutrition
682–4w

Oaten, Mr Mark
Debates etc.
Public bodies (16.11.01) 1091–5, 1105, 1108, 1121
Questions
Community health services, Medical equipment 98w
People's Panel 960w
Post offices 921w

O'Brien, Mr Stephen
Debates etc.
House of Commons Liaison Committee (05.11.01) 69
Lifelong learning (06.11.01) 128, 133–4
Special education (05.11.01) 52–3
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Higher education (08.11.01) 142–3wh, 146–50wh, 153wh
Questions
Incinerators, Wrexham 763w

O'Brien, Mr William
Questions
Industrial diseases, Compensation 236–7
Maintenance, Children 551–2
Railtrack 26–7
Recycling 882w

Occupational health
General practitioners 367w

Occupational pensions
374–5w
EC action 772w
Tax allowances 529–30w

OECD countries
Drugs 473–4w
Teachers 810–1w

Office for Standards in Education
Standards 859w

Office of Communications
Scotland 951–2w
Wales 61w

Office of Communications Bill (HL) 2001/02
Questions
61w, 951–2w

Office of Government Commerce
74w

Office of the Rail Regulator
735w, 739–40w

Office of the Schools Adjudicator
714w

Office of the Secretary of State for Wales
Computers 342w
Fair trade initiative 939–40w
Publications 341w
Written questions 940w

Official residences
Lord Chancellor's Dept 693w

Offshore industry
Wind power 168w

Oil
Central Asia 169w
Sudan 169w

Oil rigs
Terrorism 187w

Older workers
571w
Training 711w

ONE programme
584w, 786w

O'Neill, Mr Martin
Debates etc.
Export Control Bill, Rep and 3R (08.11.01) 423, 431–4, 440, 461–2
Questions
Scottish Parliament, Members 93

OPEC
Reserves 167w

Operation Palliser
518w

Ophthalmic services
550w

Opik, Lembit
Debates etc.
Drugs, Misuse (09.11.01) 479, 482, 489–90, 496, 511, 526, 530, 535–6, 539
Questions
Afghanistan, Refugees 336w
Flood control, Wales 844
Foot and mouth disease, Hunting 446–7w, 695–6w, 890w
NHS, Job satisfaction 671w
Northern Ireland government 224–5

Opposition days
Lifelong education (06.11.01) 114–213
Railtrack (13.11.01) 715–79
Stakeholder pensions (13.11.01) 780–831

Oral questions
395w
Scotland Office 394w

Organ, Diana
Questions
Foot and mouth disease, Government assistance 815w

Organic farming
447w

Organised crime
Russia 924w

Organised Crime Task Force
278w

Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons (Immunities and Privileges) Order 2001
Debates etc.
(06.11.01) 213–4

Organs
347w

Orthopaedics
Bath 791w
Leeds 211w
Waiting lists 675w

Osborne, Mr George
Debates etc.
Stakeholder pensions (13.11.01) 787
Questions
Business questions 994
Foot and mouth disease, Cheshire 145w
Identity cards 183w, 321–2w
Manchester Airport, Roads 134w
Members, Travel 76w
Natural gas, Storage 166–7w
Police, Manpower 317w
Refugees, Voucher schemes 386w
Schools, Per capita costs 405–6w
World Health Organisation, Transport 281–2w

Osteoporosis
949–50w

Ottaway, Richard
Debates etc.
Stakeholder pensions (13.11.01) 783, 796
Questions
Accident and emergency departments, Greater London 674w
Equitable Life Assurance Society 237
Tramtrack Croydon 338w

Overcrowding
Trains 508w

Overpayments
Social security benefits 193w, 935w

Overseas aid
Afghanistan 264–5w, 931–3w
India 18–21w
Sierra Leone 265–6w
Tajikistan 21w

Owen, Albert
Debates etc.
Animal Health Bill, 2R (12.11.01) 644–6
Questions
Terrorism, Wales 847–8

Ozone layer
EC law 158w

Page, Mr Richard
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Small businesses (06.11.01) 21wh
Questions
Armed forces, Afghanistan 81w

Paice, Mr James
Questions
Flood control, Cambridgeshire 967–8
Motor vehicles, Excise duties 653w, 922w
Police, Resignations 963–4w
Primary care trusts, Cambridgeshire 688w

Pakistan
515w, 775–6w

Parades Commission
276w
Complaints 482w
Manpower 480–2w
Public appointments 481–2w

Parish councils
Standards 150–1w

Parking
140–1w
Greater London 133w

Parks
11–2w
Urban areas 833w

Parliamentary Boundary Commission for Scotland
see Boundary Commission for Scotland

Parliamentary Contributory Pension Fund
(15.11.01) 1067

Parliamentary procedure
Sub judice rule (15.11.01) 1012–20

Parliamentary questions
107
Cabinet Office 404w
Dept for Work and Pensions 369–70w

Parliamentary scrutiny
197–8w

Parliamentary year
104–6

Part-time employment
Conditions of employment 2w
Further education 425w

Part-Time Workers (Prevention of Less Favourable Treatment) Regulations 2000
Questions
2w

Passengers
Ferries 143–4w
Public transport 141w

Passport Agency
see United Kingdom Passport Agency

Passports
315w
Fees and charges 183w, 556w
Postal services 499–500w

Patents
Genetic engineering 443w

Paternity leave
542w

Paterson, Mr Owen
Questions
Afghanistan, Prisoners 835w
Bovine spongiform encephalopathy, Disease control 974–5w
Council tax benefit subsidy limitation scheme 140w
Farms, Shropshire 597w
Foot and mouth disease 977w
Foot and mouth disease, Disease control 596–7w
Foot and mouth disease, Public inquiries 300w
House sellers pack 507w, 829w

Paterson, Mr Owen—continued
Members, Correspondence 444–5w
Primary education, Finance 927–8w
Primary education, Speech therapy 871w
Railtrack 135w, 513w
Rural development programme 146w
Special education 712–3w
Special education, Shropshire 712w
Special education, Standards 870–1w
Veterinary medicine, EC action 592w
Zoos 818w

Patients
State retirement pensions 194w

Payroll System Review
535w

Peace keeping operations
Sierra Leone 662–3w

Peers
199w

Penrose Inquiry
see Equitable Life Independent Inquiry

Pension credit
560–2, 570w, 770w, 936–7w

Pension funds
70w, 252w, 704w
Local government 9w, 917w

Pension rights
Armed forces 381–2w

Pension Service
559–60

Pensioners
Buckinghamshire 527w
Christmas bonus 437w
Ferries 141w
Health services 854
Income support 188w, 703w
Income tax 774w
Isle of Wight 850
Welfare tax credits 573w
West Yorkshire 703w

Pensions
580w
Armed forces 23w, 249–50w
Civil servants 959w
Complaints 576w
Gibraltar 122w
Gurkhas 248–9w
Local government 725w
Mining 774w
Police 315w, 640w
Tax allowances 844–5w

People's Panel
783w, 960w

Performance appraisal
General practitioners 116w

Performance Assessment Framework
785–6w

Perham, Linda
Questions
Flood control, Greater London 818–9w

Personal pensions
562–4, 568–70, 574w
Misrepresentation 255w

Personal savings
Tax allowances 529w

Peterborough
Unemployment 571–2w

Petitions
Cirencester Hospital (13.11.01) 832
Gaming machines (07.11.01) 338
Speed limits (13.11.01) 832

Petrol
Scotland 647w

Pheasants
Gun sports 34–5w

Picketts Lock
Athletics 64w, 170w

Picking, Anne
Questions
Parliamentary scrutiny 197w

Pickles, Mr Eric
Debates etc.
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 742–3, 750–2, 764–7
Travel Concessions (Eligibility) Bill (HL), 2R (05.11.01) 31–5, 40
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 209–10wh, 221–3wh, 225–6wh
Questions
Boats, Accidents 291w
London Underground, Public private partnerships 900w
London Underground, Railway signals 452–3w
Railtrack 828w
Railtrack, Ernst and Young 735w
Railtrack, Finance 455w, 914w
Roads, Safety 734–5w
Strategic Rail Authority 12w

Pickthall, Mr Colin
Debates etc.
Lifelong learning (06.11.01) 162–7
Questions
Child Support Agency, Debts 3–4w
Chiropody 285–6w
Farmers, Supermarkets 886w

Pigs
976–7

Pike, Mr Peter L
Debates etc.
House of Lords, Reform (07.11.01) 253–4
Questions
Hearing aids 704
Parliamentary questions 107
Parliamentary scrutiny 197–8w

Pilot schemes
NHS trusts 854w
Post offices 646w

Pipelines
Fossil fuels 169w

Planning permission
462w, 726–8w
Administrative delays 726w
Aerials 614w, 731w
Appeals 293w, 462–3w, 727–9w
Heathrow Airport 619w
Housing improvement 16w
Stroud 739w

Plants
Prices 304w

Plaskitt, Mr James
Questions
Parish councils, Standards 150–1w
State retirement pensions, Patients 194w

Playing fields
Sales 752w
Sussex 59–60w

Plutonium
European Commission 167–8w
Sellafield 847w

Poisoning
Carbon monoxide 773w

Police
City of London 321w
Essex 966–7w
Manpower 316–7w, 321w, 388–9w, 967–8w
Medals 499w
Northern Ireland 227–9, 275w, 279w, 485w, 516w, 609–10w
Pay 319–20w
Pensions 315w, 640w
Ports 296w
Resignations 963–4w
Staffordshire 316w
Sussex 319–20w
Vehicles 389–91w, 500w

Police custody
321w

Policyholders Protection Act 1975
Questions
258w

Political impartiality
Education 869w

Political prisoners
Burma 123w

Political refugees
see Refugees

Politics and government
Afghanistan 852–3

Pollard, Mr Kerry
Questions
Baby care units, Nurses 475w
Hospitals, Private finance initiative 112–3w
Maternity services 97w

Pollution
Ground water 149w
Water 149w

Pond, Mr Chris
Debates etc.
Special education (05.11.01) 63
Questions
MV Marchioness, Coroners 200w
New deal for 50 plus 556–7

Poole
Customs and Excise 403w

Port Talbot
Explosions 850–1

Porton Down
823–5w
Human experiments 823w

Ports
296–7w
Departmental responsibilities 547–8w
Health authorities 338–9w, 909–10w
Police 296w
Property transfer 136w
Refugees 877w

Post offices
543w, 921w
Bank services 261–2w, 543w, 854
Closures (07.11.01) 93–114wh, 261w, 532w, 660w
Finance 545w
Greater London 923w
Northern Ireland 922w
Pilot schemes 646w
Social security benefits 922w

Postal services
333–4w
Anthrax 646w
Hampshire 921–2w
Licensing 919–20w
Passports 499–500w

Postal services—continued
Recruitment 920w
Regulation 920w
Standards 545w
Theft 648w

Postal Services Act 2000
Sittings in Westminster Hall
(07.11.01) 93–114wh

Potassium iodate
224w

Potatoes
980–1w

Pound, Mr Stephen
Debates etc.
Special education (05.11.01) 49
Questions
Northern Ireland government 224

Poverty
132w
Children 579w
Scotland 96–7

Powers
Inland Revenue 259w

Powershift programme
724w

Powys
Foot and mouth disease 300w, 346w

Prayer
Rulings and statements (08.11.01) 365

Prentice, Ms Bridget
Questions
Jubilee line 12w
London Underground, Railway signals 10w
London Underground, Standards 9–11w
Oil rigs, Terrorism 187w
Parks, Urban areas 833w

Prentice, Mr Gordon
Debates etc.
House of Lords, Reform (07.11.01) 251
Questions
Aerospace industry 654w
Appointments Commission, Annual reports 834w
Biological weapons 790w
Churches, Floods 18
Cultural heritage, Lancashire 267w
Drugs, OECD countries 473–4w
Environmentally sensitive areas 146–7w
Flexible working 544w
Health services, Lancashire 671w
Hoaxes and false alarms, Cellular phones 879–80w
Internet, Fraud 833w
Invalid care allowances, Students 189w
Judiciary, Public appointments 199w
Land, Registration 326–7w
Peers 199w
Redundancy 937w
Registration of births deaths and marriages, Islam 327w
Royal prerogative, Dept of Health 470w
Royal prerogative, Ministry of Defence 25w
Royal prerogative, Scotland Office 931w
Tax allowances, Derelict land 71w
Tyres 167w

Pre-school education
54–7w, 716w, 857w, 866w
Teachers 811w

Prescott, Rt Hon John, Deputy Prime Minister and First Secretary of State
Questions
British Irish Council 307–8w

Prescription drugs
Schizophrenia 710–2

Prescription Pricing Authority
229w

Prescriptions
Fees and charges 228w
Mentally ill 103–4w
TNF Alpha Blockade 672w

President of the Council
Computers 834w
Fair trade initiative 897w
Written questions 898w

Press releases
855w
Ministry of Defence 517–8w

Prestwick
Air traffic control 288w, 747–8w

Prevention of Corruption Acts
Questions
186–7w

Price, Adam
Debates etc.
Lifelong learning (06.11.01) 177–80
World Trade Organisation (07.11.01) 264
Questions
Broadband 404w
Debts, Serbia 515w
EC grants and loans 332w
EC grants and loans, Wales 762w
Foot and mouth disease, Public inquiries 299w
Foot and mouth disease, Sheep 298–9w
Industrial diseases, Compensation 164–5w, 849–50
Manufacturing industries 352–3
Members, Correspondence 75w
Meningitis 206w
Tax allowances, New businesses 74w
Tobin tax 71w

Primarolo, Ms Dawn, Paymaster General
Questions
Business, Regulation 538w, 769w
Capital gains tax 840–1w
Corporation tax 768–9w
Double taxation, Jordan 775w
EC Finance Council 537w
Employee share ownership schemes 608–9w
Excise duties, Fuels 536w
Income tax 769w, 915w
Income tax, Pensioners 774w
Income tax, Self-assessment 257w
Income tax, Tax rates and bands 915w
Individual learning accounts 774w
Inland Revenue, Information technology 842w
Inland Revenue, Powers 259w
National insurance 538w, 584–5w, 772w
National insurance contributions 256–7w
National insurance contributions, EC countries 775w
National insurance contributions, Scotland 260–1w
National Insurance Fund 258w
Non-domestic rates 536w
Non-domestic rates, Public houses 536w
Payroll System Review 535w
Pension credit 770w
Social security benefits 399w
Social Security Benefits Agency, Computers 528w
Tax allowances 537w
Tax avoidance, Self-employed 774w
Tax credit 258w
Tax evasion 258w

Primarolo, Ms Dawn—continued
Tax yields 775w
Taxation, Aviation 154w
Taxation, EC action 257w
Taxation, Information technology 774w
Working families tax credit 842w
Working families tax credit, Abuse 253–4w
Working families tax credit, Expenditure 438–9w

Primary care trusts
Cambridgeshire 688w
Conditions of employment 687–8w
Finance 687w

Primary education
Class sizes 711–2w, 870w
Finance 927–8w
Shropshire 871w, 927–8w
Speech therapy 871w

Prime Minister
Assets 286w
Energy 286w
Written questions 898w

Princess of Wales
Commemorative coins 259–60w

Princess Royal Hospital
(06.11.01) 61–8wh

Prisk, Mr Mark
Debates etc.
Drugs, Misuse (09.11.01) 480, 514, 535–8
Stakeholder pensions (13.11.01) 792
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Small businesses (06.11.01) 1–5wh, 12wh, 22wh
Questions
Athletics, Picketts Lock 64w
EC grants and loans 341w
EC grants and loans, Wales 341w
Orders and regulations, Dept of Trade and Industry 654w
Payroll System Review 535w
Small businesses, Wales 765w
Working families tax credit 363

Prisoners
79w
Afghanistan 835w, 970w
Disabled 644w
Elderly 644w
Females 326w
Medical treatments 555w
Mentally ill 95w
Repatriation 744–5w

Prisoners of war
Compensation 825–6w

Prisons
Construction 644w
Education 95–6w, 778–81w
Film 640w
Finance 89w
Information technology 782w
Welfare to work 781w

Private education
91w
Charities 91w
Fees and charges 407–8w

Private finance initiative
841–2w
Conditions of employment 307w
Dept for Environment Food and Rural Affairs 978–9w
Hospitals 112–3w
Mental health services 100w
NHS 673w, 689–91w
Rescue services 742w

Private sector
Education 538w
Health services 111–2w
Hospitals 794w
Local education authorities 406–7w
NHS trusts 281w
Railways 293w
Schools 45w, 407w, 719w
Security 322w

Privy Council
Silverware 532w

Procurement
Defence equipment 28w, 378w, 523w, 526w
Future large aircraft 249w

Proof of identity
Refugees 87w

Proscribed organisations
Islam 876w

Prosecutions
Corruption 186–7w
Customs and Excise 69–70w, 252w
Racially aggravated offences 498–9w
Sexual offences 69–70w

Prostitution
see also Child prostitution

Protection of Badgers Act 1992
Questions
880–1w

Public Accounts Committee
(05.11.01) 74

Public appointments
BBC 636w
Carbon Trust 35–6w, 590w
Diplomatic service 664w
Independent Reconfiguration Panel 946–7w
Judiciary 199w, 395–7w
National Blood Service 685w
Parades Commission 481–2w

Public bodies
(16.11.01) 1077–125

Public expenditure
528–9w, 534–5w, 606–7w, 914–5w
Cabinet Office 307w
Dept of Health 607w
Scotland 153w, 172–3w
Wales 764w

Public Health Laboratory Service
367w

Public houses
Non-domestic rates 536w

Public inquiries
Foot and mouth disease 299–300w, 445w

Public libraries
Standards 67w

Public private partnerships
155w, 400w
Dept for Culture Media and Sport 882w
Dept for Transport Local Government and the Regions 725–6w
Dept of Trade and Industry 659w
Home Office 969w
London Underground 9–10w, 288–9w, 503w, 620–4w, 900–4w
Lord Chancellor's Dept 789–90w
Ministry of Defence 953w
Treasury 607w

Public relations
Dept for International Development 431–2w
Dept for Transport Local Government and the Regions 737–8w

Public relations*—*continued
Ministry of Defence 740w

Public sector debt
Expenditure 397w

Public service broadcasting
494w

Public transport
Passengers 141w
Subsidies 141–2w

Publicity
Dept for Culture Media and Sport 634w
Dept for Education and Skills 707w
Dept for International Development 266w
Dept for Transport Local Government and the Regions 453w
Dept of Health 284w
Home Office 970–1w
Lord Chancellor's Dept 487w
Ministry of Defence 518w
New deal schemes 569–70w
Northern Ireland Office 485w
Stakeholder pensions 192w

Pugh, Dr John
Debates etc.
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 738, 747
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 208wh, 224wh
Questions
Sports, Finance 67w

Punishment
96w

Pupils
Health 676w
Sick leave 720w

Purnell, James
Debates etc.
Lifelong learning (06.11.01) 139, 168, 170, 180–3, 202

QINETIQ
629–30w
Apprentices 763w

Queen Elizabeth II
Anniversaries 490w, 499w, 521w
Commemorative coins 490w

Quin, Rt Hon Joyce
Debates etc.
Afghanistan, Armed conflict (14.11.01) 872

Quinn, Lawrie
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Gambling (06.11.01) 28wh
Questions
Charities, Registration 137w
Elections, Northern Ireland 277–8w

Race relations
640w
Armed forces 380w

Race Relations Act 1976
Questions
380w, 394w

Racial discrimination
Immigration rules 394w
Mental health services (09.11.01) 544–50

Racial harassment
Refugees 383–6w, 558–9w

Racially aggravated offences
Prosecutions 498–9w

Radio
Armed forces 433w
Licensing 63w

Radio frequencies
Defence 917w

Radioactive fallout
Chernobyl 588–9w, 894w
Wales 894w

Radioactive wastes
819–20w

Radiotherapy
Finance 550w

RAF Coltishall
526–7w

RAF St Athan
953w
Defence Aviation Repair Agency 827w, 954w

Ragwort
Horses 601–2w

Rail Regulator
see Office of the Rail Regulator

Railtrack
19–29, 134–5w, 233–4, 289w, 340–1w, 513w, 735w, 828w
Ernst and Young 735w
Finance 155w, (13.11.01) 204–26wh, 252w, 454–5w, 614w, 898–900w, 914w
Opposition days (13.11.01) 715–79

Railway signals
London Underground 10w, 452–3w

Railway stations
Disabled 139w, 295–6w
Lockerbie 139w

Railways
Accidents 291w
Assets 290–1w
Crime 733–4w
EC law 294w
Franchises (16.11.01) 1126–34
Kent 455w
North East region 11w
Private sector 293w
Recruitment 453w
Safety 733w
Scotland 8w, 171–2w
Skegness 900w
South East region 292–3w, 732w
Standards 857–8

Railways Act 1993
Questions
455–6w

Rammell, Mr Bill
Debates etc.
Lifelong learning (06.11.01) 119
Questions
Animal welfare 325–6w
Nurses, Recruitment 696–7

Randall, Mr John
Debates etc.
Aviation (05.11.01) 81–3
Questions
Institutional care 672–3w
Sportsgrounds, Football 63w

Rape crisis centres
388w

Rapid deployment forces
EC countries 379w

Rapid transit systems
454w
Hampshire 456w
Strategic Rail Authority 506w

Rawcliffe
Flood control 595w

Raynsford, Rt Hon Nick, Minister for Local Government, Dept for Transport Local Government and the Regions
Debates etc.
City of London (Ward Elections) Bill, Motion to proceed in present session (15.11.01) 1036, 1061–4
Sex Discrimination (Election Candidates) Bill, Rep and 3R (14.11.01) 893, 900–6
Questions
Local authorities, Codes of practice 142–3w
Local Government Commission for England 740w
Local government finance 914w
Ports, Health authorities 338–9w, 909–10w
Voting methods 731w

Reading
Churches 4–5w

Reciprocal arrangements
Health services 706–9, 855w

Recruitment
Armed forces 22–3w
Fire services 511w
General practitioners 548–9w, 688–9w
Magistrates 199w
Midwives 114–5w
Nurses 696–9, 850w
Postal services 920w
Railways 453w
Teachers 246w, 408w, 439–40w

Recycling
300w, 882w
Greater London 458–9w
House of Commons 106
Refrigerators 593w, 891w

Redundancy
583w, 661w, 937w
Foot and mouth disease 815w
Individual learning accounts 865w
Manufacturing industries 772–3w
Ministry of Defence Police 826w

Redwood, Rt Hon John
Debates etc.
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 724, 740, 757–60, 770
Questions
Railtrack 134w
Railtrack, Finance 155w
Terrorism, Finance 350

Reed, Mr Andy
Questions
Security, Northern Ireland 272w
Sports, Community development 4
Sports, Finance 749w

Referendums
Economic and monetary union 401–2w

Refreshment Dept
Alcoholic drinks 723w

Refrigerators
Recycling 593w, 891w
Waste disposal 329w, 449w

Refugees
79–81w, 88w, 875–6w
Administrative delays 181w, 385w, 393w
Afghanistan 264w, 336–7w
Appeals 384–5w
Applications 81w, 84–7w, 92–3w, 177–9w, 316–7w, 560–1w, 874w
Barnsley 87–8w
Children 386–7w
Dental services 279–81w
Deportation 98–9, 383–6w
Employment 87w

Refugees—continued
Fingerprints 179–80w
Greece 840w
Housing 91w
Identity cards 83–4w
Liverpool 876w
Location 177w, 873w
Ports 877w
Proof of identity 87w
Racial harassment 383–6w, 558–9w
Scotland 99
Social security benefits 375–6w
Sri Lanka 559–60w
Temporary accommodation 323–6w, 876w
Voucher schemes 386w
Young people 875w

Regional airports
907w

Regional assemblies
Finance 138–9w

Regional assistance
Middlesbrough 960w
Morecambe 627–9w, 655w
St Helens 847w

Regional Coordination Unit
202–3w

Regional development agencies
401w
Finance 923–4w

Regional planning and development
14–5w
Chorley 650w
Greenwich 906–7w
West Midlands 618–9w

Registration of births deaths and marriages
Cohabitation 76–7w
Islam 327w

Reid, Mr Alan
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Post offices, Closures (07.11.01) 102wh
Questions
Ferries, Scotland 173w
Written questions, Administrative delays 305w

Reid, Rt Hon Dr John, Secretary of State for Northern Ireland
Questions
Assets, Northern Ireland Office 483w
Buildings, Northern Ireland Office 279–80w
Computers, Northern Ireland Office 484–5w
Northern Ireland Compensation Agency 834w
Northern Ireland government 222–5, 273w, 275w
Publicity, Northern Ireland Office 485w
Terrorism, Northern Ireland 277w
Weapons, Northern Ireland 273–4w
Written questions, Northern Ireland Office 938–9w

Religion
5w
Discrimination 80w
Schools 127w

Religious freedom
Indonesia 2w

Religiously aggravated offences
500w, 969w

Remembrance Day
Northern Ireland 279w

Rendel, Mr David
Debates etc.
Cleansing Service Group, Explosions (06.11.01) 216, 218
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Higher education (08.11.01) 147wh, 173–5wh
Questions
Cattle, Exports 597–8w
European Court of Auditors 15–6
Livestock, Exports 597w
Livestock, Transport 697–8w
NHS, Private finance initiative 673w
Social Security Benefits Agency, Computers 528w

Rendering industry
148w

Rented housing
Greater London 508w

Rents
Council housing 616–7w

Repatriation
Prisoners 744–5w

Reprography
Schools 421–2w

Republic of Ireland
938w

Rescue services
Private finance initiative 742w

Reserve forces
827–8w

Reserves
OPEC 167w

Resignations
Police 963–4w
Teachers 440w
Worcestershire Acute Hospitals NHS Trust 209–10w

Retail trade
Fireworks 443w

Retirement
General practitioners 220w

Review of the Payroll System
see Payroll System Review

Reviews
Sexual offences 83w

Right of search
Customs and Excise 68–9w

Rights of way
888w

River Ouse
Flood control 594–5w

Rivers
446w

Road traffic
288w

Road traffic offences
Fines 80w

Road works
A12 912–3w

Roads
Accidents 505–6w, 513w
Greater London 615w
Manchester Airport 134w
Noise 506w
Norfolk and Norwich Hospital 830w
Safety 611–3w, 734–5w, 912w, (14.11.01) 949–56

Robathan, Mr Andrew
Debates etc.
International Development Bill (HL), 2R (07.11.01) 280
Members' interests, Points of order (13.11.01) 713–4
Railtrack, Points of order (06.11.01) 110
Questions
Gambling 64w
Housing benefit, Abuse 565–6
Terrorism, Finance 358
Weapons, Northern Ireland 278w

Robertson, Angus
Debates etc.
Export Control Bill, Rep and 3R (08.11.01) 402–4, 416
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Fire services, Ministry of Defence (13.11.01) 230–1wh, 234wh
Questions
Afghanistan, International assistance 934w
Afghanistan, Overseas aid 932w
Army Foundation College 525–6w
Assets, Ministry of Defence 955–6w
Buildings, Northern Ireland Office 279–80w
Defence equipment, Procurement 28w
Exercise Saif Sareea 2, Pay 437w
Public relations, Dept for International Development 431–2w
Public relations, Ministry of Defence 740w

Robertson, Hugh
Questions
Badgers 561–2w
Monetary compensatory amounts 598w

Robertson, John
Questions
Business questions 988
Fireworks, Retail trade 443w
Legislation, Scotland 97–8
Scottish Parliament, Members 91

Robertson, Mr Laurence
Debates etc.
Cleansing Service Group, Explosions (06.11.01) 215–9
Public bodies (16.11.01) 1111–8
Questions
Agriculture, Subsidies 147w
Armed forces, Pay 128w
Bovine tuberculosis, Gloucestershire 306w
Child Support Agency, Debts 566w
Economic and monetary union, Referendums 401–2w
Farmers, Business links 147w
Farmers, Supermarkets 263w
Foot and mouth disease, Disease control 306w, 449–50w
Foot and mouth disease, Hunting 819w
Housing improvement, Planning permission 16w
Livestock, Transport 596w
Mobile homes 16w
Monetary compensatory amounts 305w, 812w
RAF Coltishall 526–7w
Rendering industry 148w
Tuberculosis, South West region 147–8w

Robinson, Mrs Iris
Questions
Abortion, Northern Ireland 480w
Health education, Northern Ireland 347w, 480w
Post offices, Social security benefits 922w

Roche, Mrs Barbara, Minister of State, Cabinet Office
Questions
Government Office for London, Manpower 871w
Government Office for the North East 960w
Public expenditure, Cabinet Office 307w
Regional assistance, Middlesbrough 960w
Regional Coordination Unit 202–3w
Runaway children 441w

Rodents
878w

Roe, Mrs Marion
Questions
Nurses, Recruitment 697–8

Rolling stock
293w
Investment 455–6w

Romford
Hospitals 108w

Rooney, Mr Terry
Questions
Hospitals, Construction 118w
Motorcycles, Helmets 16w
Work and Parents' Task Force 167w

Rosindell, Mr Andrew
Debates etc.
Drugs, Misuse (09.11.01) 529
International Development Bill (HL), 2R (07.11.01) 325–9
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Gibraltar (07.11.01) 79–82wh, 84–5wh, 88wh
Questions
Animal products, Import controls 975w
Cattle, Exports 976w
Civil servants, Working hours 961w
Common fisheries policy 975–6w
Crossrail line, Finance 13w
Cyprus, Birds 925–6w
European Communities, Committees 926w
European fighter aircraft 741w
European Year of People with Disabilities 2003 951w
Extradition 963w
Foot and mouth disease 888w
Gibraltar 335w
Gibraltar, European Parliament elections 123w
Government Office for London, Manpower 871w
Hospitals, Romford 108w
Lee Valley Regional Park Authority 60w
Motorcycles, Safety 136w
Nuclear submarines 826w
Parks 11–2w
Personal pensions 568–9
Terrorism, Scotland 174w
Theft, Motorcycles 317w
Voluntary organisations 319w
"Your Britain Your Europe" 925w
Zimbabwe, Elections 838w

Rosyth
Customs officers 843w
Ferries 513w, 905w

Rotherham
Architecture 1–3

Rough Sleepers Unit
Hostels 502w

"Routes to Resolution: Improving Dispute Resolution in Britain Consultation Paper"
760–1w

Roy, Mr Frank
Questions
Scottish Parliament, Members 92

Royal Gibraltar Regiment
381w

Royal Naval Reserve
Deployment 633–4w

Royal Ordnance
Chorley 542w

Royal Parks Constabulary
Employment tribunals 951w

Royal prerogative
Dept of Health 470w
Ministry of Defence 25w
Scotland Office 931w

Ruane, Chris
Debates etc.
International Development Bill (HL), 2R (07.11.01) 289
Questions
Prisoners of war, Compensation 825–6w
Transport, Wales 842

Ruddock, Joan
Debates etc.
Sex Discrimination (Election Candidates) Bill, Rep and 3R (14.11.01) 887–8, 893, 908–9
Questions
Afghanistan, Armed conflict 745w
Biological and Toxin Weapons Convention 668w
Climate Change Convention 964

Ruffley, Mr David
Questions
Terrorism, Northern Ireland 515w
Trade, Developing countries 654w

Runaway children
441w

Rural areas
Unemployment 345w
Voluntary organisations 36w

Rural development programme
146w

Rural Payments Agency
971w
Manpower 448w

"Rural Recovery after Foot and Mouth Disease"
811–2w

Russell, Bob
Questions
Experience Corps, Elderly 319w
Experience Corps, Schools 185w
Magistrates' courts, Colchester 200w
Pupils, Health 676w
Sports, Training 65–6w

Russell, Ms Christine
Questions
Debts, Developing countries 398w

Russia
Organised crime 924w

Rwanda
849w

Ryan, Ms Joan
Questions
Parliamentary scrutiny 197w

S4C
65w

St Helens
Regional assistance 847w

St Helens—continued
Welfare to work 571w

Salmond, Mr Alex
Questions
Cold weather payments 437w
Industrial health and safety, EC action 913–4w
Industrial injuries disablement benefit 195w
Members, Correspondence 544w
Pensioners, Christmas bonus 437w
Public expenditure, Scotland 153w
Roads, Accidents 513w
Select committees, Scotland Office 930–1w
Winter fuel payments 438w

Salter, Mr Martin
Debates etc.
Aviation (05.11.01) 76–7
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 720, 724–6
Questions
Business questions 370–1
House of Commons, Internet 198w
Ports 296–7w
Schools, Music 538–9w

Sanctions
Africa 664w
Yugoslavia 664w
Zimbabwe 743w

Sanders, Mr Adrian
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Employment, Devon (06.11.01) 49wh, 51wh
Housing (15.11.01) 322wh, 330–3wh, 353wh
Questions
Diabetes 857
Local government, Committees 293w
Local government, Ethics 457–8w

Sanitation
Trains 511–2w, 905w

Saudi Arabia
Christianity 839w

Savidge, Mr Malcolm
Debates etc.
Export Control Bill, Rep and 3R (08.11.01) 405–6
House of Lords, Reform (07.11.01) 253

Sawford, Phil
Questions
Magnetic resonance imagers 674w
Transmissible encephalopathies, Research 303w

Sayeed, Mr Jonathan
Questions
Alternative energy 546w
Dioxins 598w
Entrust 817–8w
Entrust, Pay 818w
Flood control 450–1w, 595w, 698w
Flood control, Cambridgeshire 968
Flood control, Finance 885–6w
Floods, Insurance 698w
Foot and mouth disease 976w
Foot and mouth disease, Disease control 299w
Foot and mouth disease, Incinerators 977w
Foot and mouth disease, Redundancy 815w
Housing, Construction 294–5w
Housing, Eastbourne 452w
Housing, Floods 457w
Jobcentres, Crimes of violence 565w
Landfill tax credit scheme, Abuse 818w
Metropolitan Police, Pay 642–3w

Sayeed, Mr Jonathan—continued
Motor vehicles, EC law 758–9w
Nuclear power 656w, 846w
OPEC, Reserves 167w
School leaving, Qualifications 858w

Schizophrenia
Drugs 944w
Prescription drugs 710–2

Scholarships
Commonwealth 848w

School leaving
Qualifications 858w

Schools
Admissions 440–1w
Annual reports 247w
Buildings 856w
Bureaucracy 43–4w
Cleaning services 46w
Discipline 59w
Experience Corps 185w
Fast food 421w
Finance 427w, 718w, 861w
Hackney 424w
Internet 713–4w
Merton 423w
Music 423–4w, 538–9w
Norfolk 422w
Northamptonshire 41w
Per capita costs 405–6w, 809w
Private sector 45w, 407w, 719w
Religion 127w
Reprography 421–2w
Standards 42w, 721–2w, 857w
Transport 723–4w, 765w, 908–9w
Wales 765w

Schools Adjudicator
see Office of the Schools Adjudicator

Science and Technology Select Committee
(12.11.01) 685

Scotland
Airports 174w
Army 173w
Aviation 94–6
Business 174w
Defence Diversification Agency 518–9w
Defence equipment 28w
Economic situation 873w
Electoral register 97, 872w
Employment 172–4w
Estuaries 872w
Ferries 173w
Fireworks 754w
Housing benefit 704w
Human rights 98–9
Institutional care 171w
Job creation 584w
Legislation 97–8
National insurance contributions 260–1w
Nuclear reactors 173w
Office of Communications 951–2w
Petrol 647w
Poverty 96–7
Public expenditure 153w, 172–3w
Railways 8w, 171–2w
Refugees 99
Small businesses 171w
Social security 375w
Tax evasion 133w, 288w
Terrorism 174w
Tourism 172w

Scotland Act 1998
Questions
91–4, 98

Scotland Office
Aviation 930w
Devolution 748w

Scotland Office—continued
Energy 872w
Oral questions 394w
Royal prerogative 931w
Select committees 930–1w
Written questions 931w

Scotland Yard
see Metropolitan Police

Scottish Grand Committee
(14.11.01) 883

Scottish Parliament
172w
House of Lords composition 286w
Members 91–4

Scrapie
598–9w
Disease control 29w
Research 448–9w

Sea Harrier aircraft
377w, 433w

Seas and oceans
Environment protection 144–5w

Secondment
Treasury 845w

Security
Airports 524w
Aviation 456–7w, 512w, 908w
Commonwealth Games 12–3
Northern Ireland 272w
Nuclear power stations 160w, 187w, 329w, 377–8w, 436w, 545w, 631w, 736w, 846w, 921w
Private sector 322w
Sellafield 160w, 540–1w, 847w
Social Security Benefits Agency 579w

Select Committee on Standards and Privileges
see Standards and Privileges Select Committee

Select committees
Dept for Environment Food and Rural Affairs 302w
Dept for Work and Pensions 581w
Scotland Office 930–1w

Self-assessment
Income tax 257w

Self-employed
Tax avoidance 774w

Self-mutilation
Children 101–2w

Sellafield
Plutonium 847w
Security 160w, 540–1w, 847w

Selous, Andrew
Questions
Jobcentre Plus 568

SEMA Group
Standards 937w

Sentencing
Youth courts 96w

Serbia
Debts 515w

Sewers
886w

Sex Discrimination (Election Candidates) Bill 2001/02
Debates etc.
Rep and 3R (14.11.01) 884–918

Sex Offenders Act 1997
Questions
69–70w

Sexual offences
558w, 641w
Prosecutions 69–70w
Reviews 83w

Shared ownership schemes
Housing associations 510w

Shaw, Mr Jonathan
Questions
Combined heat and power 756w
Natural gas, Prices 655w

Sheep
972w
Bovine spongiform encephalopathy 27–9w
Exports 300w
Foot and mouth disease 298–9w

Sheep meat
150w
Exports 821w
Marketing 695w

Sheerman, Mr Barry
Debates etc.
Lifelong learning (06.11.01) 140–6, 150
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Higher education (08.11.01) 137–46wh

Shelter Now International
835w

Shephard, Rt Hon Gillian
Debates etc.
Animal Health Bill, 2R (12.11.01) 589–90
Questions
Members, Correspondence 445w
Schools, Norfolk 422w

Shepherd, Mr Richard
Debates etc.
Terrorism, Points of order (12.11.01) 573
Questions
Lymphoedema 224w

Sheppey
General practitioners 671w

Sheridan, Mr Jim
Questions
Aviation, Scotland 94

Shipley, Ms Debra
Questions
Benefits Agency Medical Service, Fibromyalgia 192–3w

Short, Rt Hon Clare, Secretary of State for International Development
Debates etc.
International Development Bill (HL), 2R (07.11.01) 274–86, 288–9, 297–8, 300, 321, 323–4, 327, 334
Questions
Afghanistan, International assistance 132–3w, 934w
Afghanistan, Overseas aid 264–5w, 931–3w
Afghanistan, Refugees 264w, 336–7w
Africa, AIDS 847–8w
Belize, Financial services 17–8w
Caribbean, HIV infection 776w
Commonwealth, Scholarships 848w
Computers, Dept for International Development 431w
Consultation papers, Dept for International Development 849–50w
Democratic Republic of Congo, Children 266–7w
Democratic Republic of Congo, Natural resources 848w
Development aid, Trade unions 267w
EC Development Council 933–4w

Short, Rt Hon Clare—continued
Freedom of Information Act 2000, Dept for International Development 934w
India, Overseas aid 18–21w
Ivory Coast 776w
Ivory Coast, Child prostitution 849w
Pakistan 775–6w
Poverty 132w
Public relations, Dept for International Development 431–2w
Publications, Dept for International Development 16–7w, 933w
Publicity, Dept for International Development 266w
Sierra Leone, Overseas aid 265–6w
Tajikistan, Overseas aid 21w
"Trade Matters", Costs 934–5w
Uganda 849w
World Trade Organisation 848–9w
Written questions, Dept for International Development 932–3w

Shrestha, Gitanjali
(14.11.01) 306–12wh

Shropshire
Dental services 98w, 677–8w
Education 861–2w
Farms 597w
Primary education 871w, 927–8w
Special education 712w

Sick leave
Customs and Excise 605w
Pupils 720w

Sierra Leone
Overseas aid 265–6w
Peace keeping operations 662–3w

Sign language
Training 4w

Silverware
Privy Council 532w

Simmonds, Mr Mark
Debates etc.
Lifelong learning (06.11.01) 192–5
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Skegness Hospital (13.11.01) 235–7wh, 240wh
Questions
Curriculum 45–6w
Dental services, Lincolnshire 213–4w
Gambling 64w
Game, Exports 976–7w
Higher education, Teachers 412w
Neurology, Consultants 794w
Railways, Skegness 900w

Simon, Mr Sion
Questions
New deal for long term unemployed, Birmingham 568w

Simpson, Mr Alan
Debates etc.
World Trade Organisation (07.11.01) 262–3
Questions
Further education, Per capita costs 704–5w
Genetically modified organisms, EC law 884w
War pensions 521w

Simpson, Mr Keith
Questions
Annual reports, Dept for Environment Food and Rural Affairs 977w
Civil servants, Dept for Environment Food and Rural Affairs 978w
Computers, Dept for Environment Food and Rural Affairs 977w
Foot and mouth disease, Hunting 696w

Simpson, Mr Keith—continued
Information technology, Dept for Environment Food and Rural Affairs 977–8w
Private finance initiative, Dept for Environment Food and Rural Affairs 978–9w
State Veterinary Service, Manpower 979w
Tipping of waste 973–4

Singh, Amarjit
777w

Singh, Mr Marsha
Questions
Customs and Excise, Disciplinary proceedings 530w
Drug seizures 530w
Drug seizures, Heroin 530w

Single parents
see Lone parents

Sittingbourne
General practitioners 671w

Sixth form education
246w, 717w
Finance 717w, 809w
Worcestershire 809–10w

Skegness
Railways 900w

Skegness Hospital
(13.11.01) 235–41wh

Skilled workers
Buckinghamshire 856–7w

Skinner, Mr Dennis
Debates etc.
British Coal Corporation, Equal pay (07.11.01) 345–6
House of Lords, Reform (07.11.01) 247
Points of order intervention (06.11.01) 110
Questions
Bovine spongiform encephalopathy 962
Interest rates 402w
Railtrack 25
Unemployment 859–60

Small Business Service
159w

Small businesses
(06.11.01) 1–23wh, 159w
Scotland 171w
Stakeholder pensions 700w
Wales 765w

Smallpox
Disease control 687w
Vaccination 523w

Smith, Rt Hon Andrew, Chief Secretary to the Treasury
Questions
Afghanistan, Armed conflict 767w
Business 352, 354
Capital Modernisation Fund 844w
Cellular phones, Licensing 68w
Civil servants, Pay 767w
Construction, Treasury 844w
Contingency reserve 397–8w
Devolution, Treasury 915w
Disadvantaged, Treasury 765–6w
Economic growth 532w
Economic situation 255–6w, 844w
Exercise Saif Sareea 2 255w
Government departments, Consultants 607–8w
Investment returns 399–400w
Manufacturing industries 352–4
Members, Correspondence 75w
NHS, Finance 399w, 843w
Office of Government Commerce 74w

Smith, Rt Hon Andrew—continued*
Pension funds 252w
Pensions, Mining 774w
Post offices, Closures 532w
Private finance initiative 841–2w
Public expenditure 528–9w, 534–5w, 606–7w, 914–5w
Public expenditure, Dept of Health 607w
Public expenditure, Scotland 153w
Public private partnerships 155w, 400w
Public private partnerships, Treasury 607w
Public sector, Pay 767w
Public sector, Standards 401w
Railtrack, Finance 252w
Regional development agencies 401w
Students, Loans 398w, 491–2w
Tax burden 531–2w
Tax burden, Industry 772w
Terrorism, Economic situation 252w, 358–60
Terrorism, Finance 252w, 359–60, 605w
VAT, Manufacturing industries 842–3w

Smith, Rt Hon Chris
Questions
Afghanistan, Politics and government 852–3
BBC 6
Council housing, Rents 616–7w

Smith, Geraldine
Debates etc.
Coastal areas, Economic situation (15.11.01) 1068–71, 1073–4
Questions
Coastal areas, Economic situation 636–7w
Coastal areas, Tourism 637–8w
Consignia 647w
Disadvantaged, Lancaster 627w
EC grants and loans, Lancaster 629w
Industrial estates, Heysham 655w
Industrial estates, Lancaster 629w, 656w
M6, Heysham 617w
Non-domestic rates 617–8w
Postal services, Anthrax 646w
Postal services, Licensing 919–20w
Postal services, Recruitment 920w
Regional assistance, Morecambe 627–9w, 655w
Weapons, Northern Ireland 274w

Smith, Jacqui, Minister of State, Dept of Health
Debates etc.
Institutional care, Young people (12.11.01) 689–94
Mental health services, Racial discrimination (09.11.01) 547–50
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Hearing aids (07.11.01) 131–6wh
Skegness Hospital (13.11.01) 237–41wh
Questions
Adoption 230–5w
Anthrax, Vaccination 790w
Ashworth Hospital 675–6w
Baby care units, Nurses 475w
Brain, Injuries 106w, 282–3w
Cancer, Medical treatments 471w
Cervical cancer, Leicestershire 470w
Cervical cancer, Medical treatments 471w
Cervical cancer, Screening 470–1w
Chemicals, Health hazards 476w
Children, Abuse 216w, 471–2w
Children, Depressive illnesses 101–2w
Children, Disabled 216w
Children in care 227–8w
Community care services grant 357w
Community health services, Medical equipment 98w
Compulsorily detained mental patients 104w

Smith, Jacqui—continued*
Consultation papers, Dept of Health 476–7w
Diabetes 105–6w
Doctors, Suicide 226w
Drugs, Research 944w
Elderly, Buckinghamshire 476w
Electric cables, Health hazards 208–9w, 474w
Electroconvulsive therapy 105w, 681–2w, 947w
Electromagnetic fields, Health hazards 474–5w
Health authorities, Standards 222w
Health centres, Widdrington 369w
Health services 941w
Health services, Fees and charges 940w
Health services, Hertfordshire 686w
Hearing aids 355w, 683–5w, 703–6, 948–9w
Heart diseases, Eastern region 676w
Heart diseases, Health services 362–7w, 942w
Heart diseases, Medical treatments 472–3w
Hepatitis 470w
Hospital beds 211–2w, 283w, 360w
Influenza, Vaccination 348–9w, 942w
Institutional care 109–10w, 551w, 672–3w
Institutional care, Capital rules 110w
Institutional care, Closures 109w, 285w
Institutional care, Fees and charges 478–80w, 943w
Institutional care, Standards 700–3
Institutional care, Young people 470w, 472w, 548w
Local government finance 224w
Lung cancer, Health services 680w
Magnetic resonance imagers 674w
Magnetic resonance imagers, Newark 674–5w
Maternity services 97w, 350w
Medicine, Research 368–9w
Members, Correspondence 222w
Mental Health Act 1983 942w
Mental health services 104–5w, 228w, 679w
Mental health services, Advocacy 678w
Mental health services, Community care 101w, 227w, 680w
Mental health services, Conditions of employment 679–80w
Mental health services, Ethnic groups 101w
Mental health services, Finance 552–3w, 679w
Mental health services, Greater London 99–101w
Mental health services, Private finance initiative 100w
Mental health services, Standards 476w, 679w
Mental health services, Young people 686w
Mental hospitals 677w
Mental patients, Death 283w
Mental patients, Ethnic groups 104w
Mentally ill, Children 102–3w
Mentally ill, Institutional care 475–6w
Mentally ill, Prescriptions 103–4w
Mid Essex Hospital Services NHS Trust, Waiting lists 948w
MMR vaccine 478w
National Care Standards Commission 224w
National Care Standards Commission, Manpower 349–50w
National Clinical Director for Children 691–2w
NHS trusts, Private sector 281w
Nutrition 682–4w

Smith, Jacqui—continued*
Ophthalmic services 550w
Organs 347w
Orthopaedics, Leeds 211w
Osteoporosis 949–50w
Potassium iodate 224w
Public Health Laboratory Service 367w
Publicity, Dept of Health 284w
Pupils, Health 676w
Radiotherapy, Finance 550w
Schizophrenia, Drugs 944w
Schizophrenia, Prescription drugs 710–2
Smallpox, Disease control 687w
Social services, Finance 221w
Social services, Standards 98–100w
Social workers, Training 688w
Special hospitals 105w
Suicide 111w
Sure start programme, Birkenhead 927w
Tardive dyskinesia, Side effects 944–5w
Tomography 230w
Tomography, Blackpool Victoria Hospital 359w
Viral haemorrhagic disease 151w
Welfare foods 367w
World Health Organisation, Transport 281–2w
Written questions, Dept of Health 950w

Smith, Mr John
Debates etc.
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 735
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 208wh, 215–8wh
Questions
Aircraft, Seating 339–40w
Business questions 985–6
Crime prevention, Wales 845–6
Deep vein thrombosis 232, 340w
Defence Aviation Repair Agency 380w, 954w
Defence Aviation Repair Agency, RAF St Athan 827w, 954w
Income tax 356
New deal for 50 plus 567–8w
RAF St Athan 953w
Weapons, Northern Ireland 277w

Smith, Llew
Debates etc.
Sex Discrimination (Election Candidates) Bill, Rep and 3R (14.11.01) 889–90
Questions
Afghanistan, Armed conflict 522w, 631w, 745w, 767w
Bombs 825w
Curriculum, Terrorism 863–4w
Customs and Excise, Standards 766w
European Commission, Plutonium 167–8w
Firearms, EC action 742–3w
Flood control, Finance 979w
Law officers, Disclosure of information 833w
Nuclear power stations, Security 160w, 631w, 736w, 921w
Nuclear shelters, Cotswold Hills 741w
Nuclear weapons, Uranium 523w
Radioactive fallout, Chernobyl 894w
S4C 65w
Sellafield, Plutonium 847w
Sellafield, Security 847w
Terrorism 669–70w
Terrorism, USA 924w
Terrorism, Wales 848
Vanunu, Mordechai 664w
World Trade Organisation 848–9w

Smith, Sir Robert
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Post offices, Closures (07.11.01) 104wh

Smith, Sir Robert—continued
Questions
Post offices, Bank services 854
Railways, Scotland 171–2w

Smoking
699–700
Medical treatments 356w

Smuggling
75w, 605–6w
Alcoholic drinks 68w, 766w
Customs and Excise 403w
Drugs 916w
Food 844w, 916–7w
Fuels 775w
Tobacco 75–6w, 766w

Smyth, Rev Martin
Debates etc.
Afghanistan, Armed conflict (14.11.01) 877
International Development Bill (HL), 2R (07.11.01) 275, 314–6
World Trade Organisation (15.11.01) 1005
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Gibraltar (07.11.01) 71wh
Questions
Business questions 372
Crimes of violence, Northern Ireland 483w
Hearing aids 705
Independent International Commission on Decommissioning 274w
Northern Ireland government 196–7w, 222–3

Soames, Mr Nicholas
Debates etc.
Animal Health Bill, Points of order (12.11.01) 572
Animal Health Bill, 2R (12.11.01) 667
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Princess Royal Hospital (06.11.01) 61–3wh, 67wh
Questions
Bovine spongiform encephalopathy 961–2
New deal for 50 plus 558

Social clubs
Gaming machines 14–5

Social rented housing
739w
Barnsley 615–6w
Doncaster 615–6w

Social security
Scotland 375w

Social security benefits
195–6w, 399w
Abuse 189–90w, 308–9w, 700w, 783–4w, 937–8w
Applications 579w
Automated credit transfer 570w
Bureaucracy 786w
Carers 704w
Chelmsford 937–8w
Compensation 193w
Disabled 314w, 701w, 703w
Expenditure 938w
Immigrants 188–9w
Local authorities 784w
Medical examinations 315w
Northamptonshire 190–1w
Overpayments 193w, 935w
Post offices 922w
Refugees 375–6w
Widowed people 784w

Social Security Benefits Agency
Computers 528w
Security 579w
Working conditions 578–9w

Social Security (Jobcentre Plus Interviews) Regulations 2001
Questions
4w, 375w

Social services
Finance 221w
Standards 98–100w

Social workers
Training 688w

Solar power
759–60w

Solicitor-General
Fair trade initiative 897w
Written questions 897w

South America
335–6w

South Buckinghamshire NHS Trust
Stoke Mandeville Hospital NHS Trust 687w

South Downs
13w

South East region
Railways 292–3w, 732w
Teachers 412w

South West region
Tuberculosis 147–8w

South West Regional Development Agency
Finance 443–4w

South West Trains
Franchises 629w

Southern Water
Complaints 449w

Speaker and deputies
Debates etc.
Amendments and new clauses (05.11.01) 64, (06.11.01) 114, (08.11.01) 382–3, 420–1, 442, 450, (12.11.01) 574, (13.11.01) 715, 780, (14.11.01) 884, 920
Conduct of proceedings (05.11.01) 29, 58, (06.11.01) 100, 103, 110, 120, 125, 174, 179, 202, (07.11.01) 230, 232, 244, 271, 284, (08.11.01) 354, 360, 374, 392, 408, 434, 440, 468–9, 474, (09.11.01) 483, 499, 524, (12.11.01) 590, 627, 648, 664, 670, (13.11.01) 696, 701, 719–20, 722, 726–9, 733, 735, 742, 766, 768, 798–9, 801, 810, 822–3, 832, (14.11.01) 843, 850, 856, 941, 952, (15.11.01) 1010, 1022, 1030, 1035, 1048, 1050, 1060–1, 1071
Deferred divisions (14.11.01) 918
Disallowed questions (05.11.01) 14, (07.11.01) 233, (08.11.01) 350, (12.11.01) 556, 560
Orders and regulations motions (06.11.01) 213–4, (12.11.01) 684
Points of order (06.11.01) 109–10, (08.11.01) 379–80, (12.11.01) 572–3, (13.11.01) 713–4, 725, 734–5, 765, (14.11.01) 880, 919, (15.11.01) 1009–10, 1031, 1034, 1041, 1044
Rulings and statements, Ministers (15.11.01) 1010
Rulings and statements, Prayer (08.11.01) 365
Rulings and statements, Transfer of questions (08.11.01) 379–80
Rulings and statements, Twelve minutes rule (13.11.01) 715
Rulings and statements, Unparliamentary expressions (08.11.01) 371
Select committee motions (05.11.01) 74

Speaker and deputies—continued
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Conduct of proceedings (06.11.01) 5wh, 23–4wh, 30wh, 45–6wh, 48wh, (07.11.01) 83wh, 85wh, 88wh, 90wh, 114–5wh, (08.11.01) 146wh, 148wh, 154wh, 163wh, (13.11.01)193wh, 196wh, 212wh, 219wh, 221wh, 225wh, 227wh, 234wh, 241wh, 244wh, (14.11.01) 259wh, 291wh, 297wh, 306wh, (15.11.01) 319wh, 325–6wh, 333wh, 339wh, 353wh, 359wh
Points of order (06.11.01) 7wh, (15.11.01) 327wh, 358wh, 360wh

Special constables
393–4w, 963w
Sussex 323w

Special education
(05.11.01) 43–63, 421w, 712–3w
Shropshire 712w
Standards 870–1w
Wales 761–2w

"Special Educational Needs Draft Code of Practice"
(05.11.01) 43–63

Special Educational Needs Tribunal
38w

"Special Grant Report (No 81) on 2001/02 Special Grant for Gypsy Sites Refurbishment" (13.11.01) 831–2, (14.11.01) 957–60

"Special Grant Report (No 88) on Special Grant for Activities undertaken by Beacon Councils" (13.11.01) 831

Special hospitals
105w

Specialist schools
412–21w
Sports 750w

Speech therapy
Primary education 871w

Speed limits
Cameras 729–30w
Motorways 504w
Petitions (13.11.01) 832

Spellar, Rt Hon John, Minister for Transport, Department for Transport Local Government and the Regions
Debates etc.
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 754, 767–71
Travel Concessions (Eligibility) Bill (HL), 2R (05.11.01) 30–3, 39
Questions
Aviation 507w
Boats, Accidents 291w
Heathrow Airport 620w
London Underground, Public private partnerships 900w
Railtrack 134w, 735w, 828w
Railtrack, Ernst and Young 735w
Railtrack, Finance 155w, 455w, 914w
Roads, Safety 734–5w
Strategic Rail Authority 12w

Spelman, Mrs Caroline
Debates etc.
International Development Bill (HL), 2R (07.11.01) 286–92, 297–8
Sex Discrimination (Election Candidates) Bill, Rep and 3R (14.11.01) 916–7
Questions
Afghanistan, Refugees 336–7w

Spelman, Mrs Caroline—continued
Convention on Combating Bribery of Foreign Public Officials in Business 431w
Intellectual property, Trade agreements 432w
Ivory Coast 776w
Ivory Coast, Child prostitution 849w
Pakistan 775–6w
Sierra Leone, Overseas aid 265–6w

Spicer, Sir Michael
Questions
Bridges, Upton upon Severn 148w

Spink, Bob
Questions
Armed forces, Monuments 24w
Institutional care 672–3w
Parking 140–1w
Queen Elizabeth II Anniversaries 499w

Sport England
see English Sports Council

Sports
62–3w, 65w, 751w
Community development 3–5, 750–2w
Finance 67w, 749w
New Opportunities Fund 501w
Specialist schools 750w
Training 65–6w

Sports competitors
Learning disability 492–3w

Sportsgrounds
64w
Football 63w
Manchester 344w

Spring, Mr Richard
Questions
Zimbabwe, Elections 838–9w

Squire, Ms Rachel
Debates etc.
British Coal Corporation, Equal pay (07.11.01) 340
Questions
Smoking, Medical treatments 356w
Tobacco, Taxation 74–5w

Sri Lanka
Refugees 559–60w

Staffordshire
Council housing 291–2w
Police 316w

Stakeholder pensions
700w, 938w
Opposition days (13.11.01) 780–831
Publicity 192w
Small businesses 700w

Stamp duties
Property transfer 769w

Standards and Privileges Select Committee
(05.11.01) 74

Standards Fund
Beacon schools 861w
Further education 861w

Standing committees
Information technology 198w

Stanley, Rt Hon Sir John
Debates etc.
Afghanistan, Armed conflict (14.11.01) 874
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Shrestha, Gitanjali (14.11.01) 306–10wh

Starkey, Dr Phyllis
Questions
Local authorities, Codes of practice 142–3w
Non-departmental public bodies, Dept for Culture Media and Sport 62w
Tipping of waste 973

State retirement pensions
194w, 574w
Patients 194w

State Veterinary Service
Manpower 821w, 979w

Statistics
Vacancies 490–1w

Steinberg, Mr Gerry
Questions
Hospitals 794–5w
Hospitals, Private sector 794w
North Durham Health Care NHS Trust 695–6
Smuggling, Alcoholic drinks 68w

Stevenson, Mr George
Questions
Electromagnetic fields, Health hazards 474–5w
Police, Manpower 316w

Stewart, Mr David
Questions
Air routes, Inverness 469w
Air traffic, Greater London 469w
Heathrow Airport 469w
Heathrow Airport, Air traffic 467–8w
Heathrow Airport, Landing rights 509w
Pension Service 559
Security, Northern Ireland 272w
Tourism, Scotland 172w

Stewart, Ian
Questions
Refugees, Administrative delays 393w

Stinchcombe, Mr Paul
Questions
Antisocial behaviour orders 318–9w, 878–9w, 961–2w
Extradition, USA 92w

Stoate, Dr Howard
Questions
Child Support Agency, Finance 566–7w
Influenza, Vaccination 942w
Railtrack 28

Stoke Mandeville Hospital NHS Trust
South Buckinghamshire NHS Trust 687w

Strategic Rail Authority
12w
Rapid transit systems 506w

Straw, Rt Hon Jack, Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs
Questions
Written questions, Foreign and Commonwealth Office 926–7w

Street warden scheme
North West region 730w

Streeter, Mr Gary
Questions
Kidnapping 318w

Stroud
Planning permission 739w

Student numbers
409–10w
Higher education 410–1w, 710w

Student wastage
Further education 428–9w

Students
Fees and charges 286w
Finance 707w, 711w, 717–8w, 863w, 868–9w, 928w
Invalid care allowances 189w
Loans 398w, 491–2w, 718w, 863w
Nurses 549w

Stunell, Mr Andrew
Debates etc.
House of Commons Liaison Committee (05.11.01) 70–1
Questions
Alternative energy 332–3w, 658w
Combined heat and power 657w, 886–7w
Electricity generation, Fossil fuels 331–2w
Energy, Conservation 590–1w
Energy, Government assistance 919w
Nuclear power 656–7w
Nuclear power, Climate change levy 657w
Nuclear power, Government assistance 756–7w
Radioactive wastes 819–20w

Sub judice rule
Parliamentary procedure (15.11.01) 1012–20

Sudan
Armed conflict 927w
Oil 169w

Suez Canal
General Service Medal 26w

Suffolk
Teachers 800w

Suicide
111w
Doctors 226w

Supermarkets
Farmers 263w, 306–7w, 441–2w, 886w

Sure start programme
Birkenhead 927w
Maternity payments 573w

Surgery
853–4w
Heart diseases 671–2w
Waiting lists 115–6w, 793–4w

Surrey
Teachers 800–1w

Surrey Ambulance Service NHS Trust
Hampshire Ambulance Service NHS Trust 687w

Sussex
Playing fields 59–60w
Police 319–20w
Special constables 323w

Sussex Police
Manpower 968–9w

Sustainable development
Landfill tax 72w

Sutton
Individual learning accounts 865w

Swayne, Mr Desmond
Questions
Ammunition 437w
Apache AH-64 helicopter 435w
Armed forces, Drugs 434w
Armed forces, Ethnic groups 378–9w
Armed forces, Health services 741w
Armed forces, Housing 381w
Armed forces, Monuments 131w
Armed forces, Northern Ireland 956w
Armed forces, Pension rights 381–2w
Armed forces, Pensions 23w
Armed forces, Radio 433w
Armed forces, Recruitment 22–3w

Swayne, Mr Desmond—continued
Armed forces, Telecommunications 518w
Armed forces, Training 953–4w, 956–7w
Armed forces, Uniforms 525w
Ballistic missile defence 129w, 434w, 828w
Boundary Commission for Scotland 171w
Challenger tanks 24–5w, 527w
Chinook helicopters 27w
Chiropody 795w
Defence Medical Services 740–1w
Exercise Saif Sareea 2 522w, 956w
Gaming machines 63–4w
Industrial health and safety, EC action 610w
Islam, Proscribed organisations 876w
Jobseeker's allowance 310w
Nurses, Students 549w
Potassium iodate 224w
Reserve forces 827–8w
Territorial Army 131w, 250w, 517w
Veterans' Task Force 630w
World Summit on Sustainable Development 602–3w

Swimming pools
829–30w

Swire, Mr Hugo
Questions
Army, Scotland 173w
Flood control, Finance 885w
Foot and mouth disease, Tourism 61w
Heart diseases 850w
Monetary compensatory amounts 361
South West Regional Development Agency, Finance 443–4w

Syms, Mr Robert
Debates etc.
City of London (Ward Elections) Bill, Motion to proceed in present session (15.11.01) 1043
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 740
Questions
Customs and Excise, Smuggling 403w
Members, Correspondence 90–1w
Terrorism, Northern Ireland 277w

Tajikistan
Overseas aid 21w

Tami, Mark
Questions
Crime prevention, Wales 762–3w
Flood control, Wales 843

Tapsell, Sir Peter
Debates etc.
House of Lords, Reform (07.11.01) 246–7
Questions
Economic situation, Terrorism 350–1

Tardive dyskinesia
Side effects 944–5w

Task forces
959w

Tax allowances
537w
Combined heat and power 916w
Derelict land 71w
New businesses 74w
Occupational pensions 529–30w
Pensions 844–5w
Personal savings 529w
VAT 253w

Tax avoidance
Self-employed 774w

Tax burden
531–2w
Industry 772w
VAT 253w

Tax credit
258w
Investment income 529w

Tax evasion
251–2w, 258w
Scotland 133w, 288w
VAT 155–7w

Tax rates and bands
Income tax 915w

Tax yields
775w
Excise duties 253w
Health insurance 770w
VAT 253w, 255w

Taxation
Aviation 154w
Business 356–7
Charities 73–4w
Company cars 843w
EC action 257w
Information technology 774w
Tobacco 74–5w
Tourism 154w

Taylor, Ms Dari
Questions
Community Legal Service, Disadvantaged 201w

Taylor, Mr David
Debates etc.
Movement of Farm Animals Bill, 1R (06.11.01) 111–3
World Trade Organisation (07.11.01) 267
Questions
Foot and mouth disease 971
Magistrates 200w
Northern Ireland government 238

Taylor, Mr John
Debates etc.
Afghanistan, Armed conflict (14.11.01) 870
Questions
Afghanistan, Overseas aid 932–3w
Legislation 602w

Taylor, Matthew
Questions
Ashcroft, Lord 662w
Belize, Financial services 17–8w, 123–4w
Business, Regulation 538w
Freedom of Information Act 2000, Dept for Education and Skills 864w
Freedom of Information Act 2000, Dept for International Development 934w
Freedom of Information Act 2000, Home Office 917–8w
Freedom of Information Act 2000, Ministry of Defence 825w
Freedom of Information Act 2000, Treasury 773w
Gulf Veterans' Illnesses Unit, Manpower 824w
Inland Revenue, Information technology 842w
London Underground, Public private partnerships 9–10w, 288–9w, 503w
Magistrates' courts, Computers 564w
Parliamentary questions, Cabinet Office 404w
Porton Down 823–5w
Porton Down, Human experiments 823w
Private finance initiative 841–2w
Public private partnerships, Dept for Culture Media and Sport 882w
Public private partnerships, Dept for Transport Local Government and the Regions 725–6w

Taylor, Matthew—continued
Public private partnerships, Dept of Trade and Industry 659w
Public private partnerships, Home Office 969w
Public private partnerships, Lord Chancellor's Dept 789–90w
Public private partnerships, Ministry of Defence 953w
Public private partnerships, Treasury 607w
Railtrack 289w
Railtrack, Finance 614w
Secondment, Treasury 845w
Terrorism, Finance 349
Working hours 154w, 773–4w

Taylor, Dr Richard
Debates etc.
Kidderminster Hospital (08.11.01) 465–8, 470, 474
Questions
Cancer, Waiting lists 107–8w
Foot and mouth disease, Disease control 30w
Medical treatments, EC countries 106w
NHS, Disciplinary proceedings 110–1w
North Staffordshire Hospital NHS Trust, Disciplinary proceedings 107w
Pensioners, Health services 854

Taylor, Sir Teddy
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Gibraltar (07.11.01) 73–5wh, 88wh
Questions
Community nurses 710
Crimes of violence, Northern Ireland 276w
Ports, Police 296w

Teachers
408–9w
Crimes of violence 423w
Early retirement 866–7w
Ethnic groups 53w, 799–800w
Foreign workers 800w, 805–6w
Higher education 411–2w
Huntingdon 806–8w
Manpower 805w, 808–9w
Northamptonshire 428w
OECD countries 810–1w
Pay 43w, 239–40w, 245w, 714–5w, 719–20w, 801w, 810–1w
Pre-school education 811w
Qualifications 246w, 805w
Recruitment 246w, 408w, 439–40w
Resignations 440w
South East region 412w
Suffolk 800w
Surrey 800–1w
Training 428w, 715w
Vacancies 800w, 802w

Technology Advisory Group
961w

Telecommunications
Armed forces 518w
Gibraltar 122w
Military bases 379–80w

Telecommunications masts
see Aerials

Telephone services
Ambulance services 361w
Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency 618w
Jobcentre Plus 575–6w
Nuisance 647w

Television
Afghanistan 748w
Football 65w
Holocaust Memorial Day 638–9w, 950w
Licensing 344–5w

Television channels
BBC 271w

Temporary accommodation
Refugees 323–6w, 876w

Tenants
Farms 601w

Terminal care
New Opportunities Fund 170–1w

Territorial Army
131w, 250w, 517w, 823w

Terrorism
(12.11.01) 571, 644–5w, 669–70w
Cuba 2w
Curriculum 863–4w
Customs and Excise 153w
Dept for Transport Local Government and the Regions 618w
EC countries 547w
Economic situation 252w, 347–8, 350–2, 358–60, 400w
Finance 252w, 347–50, 358–60, 398w, 605w, 771w
Heathrow Airport 620w
Human rights 853–4
Identity cards 387–8w
Import controls 151w
Insurance 737w
International cooperation 196w
Islam 873w
Northern Ireland 225–7, 276–9w, 515w
Oil rigs 187w
Scotland 174w
Tourism 6–8
Training 562–3w, 645w
USA 837–8w, 924w
Wales 847–9

Terrorism Act 2000
Questions
153w, 881–2w

Theft
Motorcycles 317w
Postal services 648w

Thomas, Gareth
Questions
Flood control 975
Terrorism, Finance 347–9
Wind power, Offshore industry 168w

Thomas, Mr Gareth R
Questions
Bank services, Disadvantaged 72w, 535w
Combined heat and power 38w
Electricity generation 659–60w
Electricity generation, Markets 658–9w
Litter, Greater London 37w

Thomas, Simon
Debates etc.
Animal Health Bill, 2R (12.11.01) 596, 623, 639–44, 668–9
Climate Change Convention, Points of order (12.11.01) 572–3
House of Commons Liaison Committee (05.11.01) 69–70
International Development Bill (HL), 2R (07.11.01) 290, 306, 318–22
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Water supply, Ceredigion (14.11.01) 292–6wh
Questions
Afghanistan, Armed conflict 364
Africa, AIDS 847–8w
Climate Change Convention 670w
Dyfed Powys Police, Disciplinary proceedings 962w
Legislative process, Committees 198w
Magistrates' courts, Ceredigion 201w

Thomas, Simon*—*continued
Office of Communications, Wales 61w
QINETIQ, Apprentices 763w
Transport, Wales 842
Water supply, Ceredigion 894w
Wind power, Wales 168w

Thurso, John
Debates etc.
House of Lords, Reform (07.11.01) 252
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Tourism (13.11.01) 196–8wh
Questions
Agriculture, Subsidies 591w
Scottish Parliament, Members 92–3

Tibet
6w

Timetabling of bills
(12.11.01) 574–684

Timms, Mr Stephen, Minister of State for Schools, Dept for Education and Skills
Debates etc.
Special education (05.11.01) 43–8, 51, 61–3
Questions
Advanced skills teachers 425–7w
Boarding schools, Disabled 39w
Children, Day care 715–6w
Church schools 42–3w
Class sizes 711w
Class sizes, Northamptonshire 41–2w
Curriculum 45–6w
Curriculum, Terrorism 863–4w
Early excellence centres 539w, 798–9w
Education, Assessments 862–3w
Education, Buckinghamshire 716–7w
Education, Finance 52w, 238–9w, 860–1w
Education, Leeds 713w, 868w
Education, Northamptonshire 42w
Education, Political impartiality 869w
Education, Private sector 538w
Education, Shropshire 861–2w
Ethnic minority achievement grant, Greater London 869–70w
Free school meals 46–51w, 240–3w, 407w, 868w
General certificate of secondary education 867w
Health education 39w
Learning support units 720w
Literacy 53w
Literacy, Standards 45w
Local education authorities, Assets 867w
Local education authorities, Private sector 406–7w
Local education authorities, Standards 405w, 722w
National College for School Leadership 715w
National literacy strategy 714w
Office for Standards in Education, Standards 859w
Office of the Schools Adjudicator 714w
Playing fields, Sussex 59–60w
Pre-school education 54–7w, 716w, 857w, 866w
Pre-school education, Teachers 811w
Primary education, Class sizes 711–2w, 870w
Primary education, Finance 927–8w
Primary education, Speech therapy 871w
Private education, Fees and charges 407–8w
Schools, Admissions 440–1w
Schools, Buildings 856w
Schools, Bureaucracy 43–4w
Schools, Cleaning services 46w
Schools, Discipline 59w

Timms, Mr Stephen*—*continued
Schools, Fast food 421w
Schools, Finance 427w, 718w, 861w
Schools, Hackney 424w
Schools, Internet 713–4w
Schools, Merton 423w
Schools, Music 423–4w, 538–9w
Schools, Norfolk 422w
Schools, Northamptonshire 41w
Schools, Per capita costs 405–6w, 809w
Schools, Private sector 45w, 407w, 719w
Schools, Religion 127w
Schools, Reprography 421–2w
Schools, Standards 42w, 721–2w, 857w
Sixth form education 717w
Special education 421w, 712–3w
Special education, Shropshire 712w
Special education, Standards 870–1w
Special Educational Needs Tribunal 38w
Specialist schools 412–21w
Teachers 408–9w
Teachers, Crimes of violence 423w
Teachers, Early retirement 866–7w
Teachers, Ethnic groups 53w, 799–800w
Teachers, Foreign workers 800w, 805–6w
Teachers, Huntingdon 806–8w
Teachers, Manpower 805w, 808–9w
Teachers, Pay 43w, 239–40w, 245w, 714–5w, 719–20w, 801w, 810–1w
Teachers, Qualifications 246w, 805w
Teachers, Recruitment 246w, 408w, 439–40w
Teachers, Resignations 440w
Teachers, South East region 412w
Teachers, Surrey 800–1w
Teachers, Training 428w, 715w
Teachers, Vacancies 800w, 802w
Vocational guidance 857w

Tipping, Mr Paddy
Debates etc.
British Coal Corporation, Equal pay (07.11.01) 345
Questions
Afghanistan, Armed conflict 230
Aviation 507w
Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service 99–101
Coal operating aid scheme 652–3w
Combined heat and power 38w
Foot and mouth disease, Compensation 299w
Monetary compensatory amounts 361
National Lottery 63w
Natural gas, Prices 168–9w
Pensions, Mining 774w

Tipping of waste
297w, 972–4
Convictions 393w

TNF Alpha Blockade
Prescriptions 672w

Tobacco
83w
Health education 223–4w
Imports 531w
Smuggling 75–6w, 766w
Taxation 74–5w

Tobin tax
71w, 234

Todd, Mr Mark
Debates etc.
Animal Health Bill, 2R (12.11.01) 592–5, 606, 666
Questions
Business questions 988–9
Child Support Agency, Audit 565–6w
Industrial diseases, Compensation 165–6w

Tomography
230w
Blackpool Victoria Hospital 359w

Tonge, Dr Jenny
Debates etc.
Export Control Bill, Rep and 3R (08.11.01) 392, 394–6, 462–3
International Development Bill (HL), 2R (07.11.01) 278, 283, 296–9, 328
Questions
Afghanistan, Arms trade 745w
Afghanistan, Females 238w
Africa, International assistance 237–8w
Chemicals, EC action 445–6w
Commonwealth, Scholarships 848w
Democratic Republic of Congo, Natural resources 848w
Fossil fuels, Pipelines 169w
Greece, Refugees 840w
Oil, Central Asia 169w
Oil, Sudan 169w
Teachers, Pay 810–1w
Tibet 6w
Zimbabwe, Elections 839w

Touhig, Mr Don, Parliamentary Secretary, Office of the Secretary of State for Wales
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Water supply, Ceredigion (14.11.01) 296–7wh
Questions
Bus services, Wales 761w
Crime prevention, Wales 762–3w, 845–7
Crimes of violence, Wales 765w
Flood control, Wales 842–4
Further education, Wales 764w
Health services 341w
Hospitals, Waiting lists 762w
Industrial diseases, Compensation 849–50
NHS, Wales 158w
Public expenditure, Wales 764w
Special education, Wales 761–2w
Transport, Schools 765w

Tourism
(13.11.01) 183–203wh, 268–71w
Coastal areas 637–8w
Foot and mouth disease 61w
Scotland 172w
Taxation 154w
Terrorism 6–8

Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) (Amendment) (England) Order 2001
Debates etc.
(08.11.01) 381

Trade
Developing countries 654w

Trade agreements
Intellectual property 432w

Trade competitiveness
72–3w, 400w

Trade Descriptions Act 1968
Questions
920–1w

"Trade Matters"
Costs 934–5w

Trade unions
Development aid 267w

Training
Armed forces 953–4w, 956–7w
Contracts 572–3w
Jobcentre Plus 372w, 374w, 575w
Medical profession 285w
Nurses 850–1w
Older workers 711w

Training—continued
Sign language 4w
Social workers 688w
Sports 65–6w
Teachers 428w, 715w
Terrorism 562–3w, 645w

Trains
Overcrowding 508w
Sanitation 511–2w, 905w

Tramtrack Croydon
338w

Transfer of questions
Rulings and statements (08.11.01) 379–80

Transfer of Undertakings (Protection of Employment) Regulations 1981
Questions
687–8w

Translation services
Local authorities 507w

Transmissible encephalopathies
Research 303w

Transplant surgery
Waiting lists 347–8w

Transport
Livestock 595–6w, 697–8w, 763w, 820w, 980w
Mink 813w
Schools 723–4w, 765w, 908–9w
Wales 841–2
West Midlands 510w
World Health Organisation 281–2w

Transport for London
Finance 904w

Transsexuals Interdepartmental Working Group
78–9w

Travel
Concessions 850
Members 76w

Travel Concessions (Eligibility) Bill (HL) 2001/02
Debates etc.
2R and Money res* (05.11.01) 30–42
Order relating to Com (15.11.01) 1066

Travelling people
733w

Treasure Act 1996
Questions
271w

Treasury
Construction 535–6w, 844w
Consultation papers 532w
Devolution 915w
Disadvantaged 765–6w
Freedom of Information Act 2000 773w
Information technology 257w
Public private partnerships 607w
Secondment 845w
Written questions 915–6w

Treaties
836–7w

Tredinnick, Mr David
Questions
Homeopathy 673w
Smoking 700

Trials
Magistrates' courts 78w, 894–5w
Northern Ireland 834w

Tribunals
200w

Trimble, Rt Hon David
Questions
Parades Commission 276w

Truswell, Mr Paul
Questions
Air ambulance services 356–7w
Fire services 617w
Fire services, Finance 829w
Fires, Death 617w
Medical treatments, EC countries 210w
Orthopaedics, Leeds 211w
Planning permission, Appeals 293w
Railways, Recruitment 453w
Rolling stock 293w
Sports, Training 66w
Unitary development plans 139w

Tuberculosis
South West region 147–8w

Tucker, Nick
561w

Turner, Mr Andrew
Debates etc.
Afghanistan, Points of order (08.11.01) 380
Coastal areas, Economic situation (15.11.01) 1074
House of Commons Liaison Committee (05.11.01) 69
House of Lords, Reform (07.11.01) 252–3
Lifelong learning (06.11.01) 125, 170, 181
Public bodies (16.11.01) 1078, 1087, 1097, 1100–1, 1103–6, 1114
Special education (05.11.01) 45–6, 59–61
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Housing (15.11.01) 316wh, 318–9wh, 323wh, 331wh, 346–8wh
Questions
Adoption 230–5w
Afghanistan, Armed conflict 197w
Ambulance services, Standards 361w, 684w
Animal feed 148–9w, 882–3w
Bus services, Concessions 141w
Business questions 378
Consent to medical treatment 945–6w
Dental services 215w
Dental services, Fees and charges 214–5w
Dental services, Isle of Wight 678w
Dental services, Manpower 214w
Early excellence centres 798–9w
Education, Fees and charges 797w
Employment, Females 609w
Ferries, Passengers 143–4w
Ferries, Pensioners 141w
Further education, Finance 429w
Further education, Student wastage 428–9w
Higher education, Age participation rates 40–1w
Horticulture, Climate change levy 148w
House of Lords composition 662w
Individual learning accounts 125–7w
Individual learning accounts, Isle of Wight 124–5w
Learning support units 720w
Local education authorities, Standards 405w, 722w
Maintenance, Children 891–3w
Manpower, Dept for Education and Skills 245w
Members, Correspondence 124w
Postal services, Hampshire 921–2w
Pre-school education 54–7w
Public private partnerships 400w
Public transport, Passengers 141w
Public transport, Subsidies 141–2w
Schools, Standards 721–2w

Turner, Mr Andrew*—*continued
Social security benefits, Overpayments 935w
Special Educational Needs Tribunal 38w
Travel, Concessions 850
Weapons, Northern Ireland 273w
Woolwich Ferry, Subsidies 143w

Turner, Mr Dennis
Debates etc.
International Development Bill (HL), 2R (07.11.01) 283–4
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Gambling (06.11.01) 44wh
Questions
Refreshment Dept, Alcoholic drinks 723w

Turner, Mr Neil
Questions
Immigration rules, Racial discrimination 394w
Refugees, Children 386–7w

Twelve minutes rule
Rulings and statements (13.11.01) 715

Twigg, Derek
Questions
Passports, Fees and charges 556w

Twigg, Mr Stephen, Parliamentary Secretary to President of the Council and Leader of the House
Debates etc.
Human Rights Joint Select Committee (15.11.01) 1021–2, 1029–30
Parliamentary procedure, Sub judice (15.11.01) 1012–4, 1019–20
Questions
Legislation, Internet 108
Legislative process, Committees 198w
Parliamentary questions 107
Parliamentary scrutiny 197–8w
Peers 199w
Standing committees, Information technology 198w

Tyler, Mr Paul
Debates etc.
House of Commons Liaison Committee (05.11.01) 68–9
House of Lords, Reform (07.11.01) 245–6
Human Rights Joint Select Committee (15.11.01) 1027–8
Parliamentary procedure, Sub judice (15.11.01) 1016–7
Sex Discrimination (Election Candidates) Bill, Rep and 3R (14.11.01) 896–7, 903–4, 909–13
Transfer of questions, Points of order (08.11.01) 379
Questions
Bovine spongiform encephalopathy 962
Business questions 369–70, 982–3
Churches, Repairs and maintenance 5–6w
Legislation, Internet 108

Tynan, Mr Bill
Debates etc.
World Trade Organisation (15.11.01) 1005–6
Questions
Business, Scotland 174w
Maternity payments, Sure start programme 573w
New deal schemes 565
Terrorism, Finance 398w

Tyres
167w

Uganda
849w

UK online for business
Greater London 871w

UK Passport Agency
see United Kingdom Passport Agency

UK Sports Institute
61w

Uncertificated Securities Regulations 2001
Debates etc.
(12.11.01) 684

Unemployment
859–60
Buckinghamshire 527–8w
Hunting 345w
Peterborough 571–2w
Rural areas 345w

Uniforms
Armed forces 525w

Unitary development plans
139w

United Kingdom Atomic Energy Authority Constabulary
Ministry of Defence Police 826w

United Kingdom Passport Agency
Information technology 183w

Unparliamentary expressions
Rulings and statements (08.11.01) 371

Upton upon Severn
Bridges 148w

Uranium
Nuclear weapons 523w

Urban areas
Parks 833w

Urban Regeneration Agency
see English Partnerships

USA
Diplomatic service 486–7w
Extradition 92w
Methyl tertiary butyl ether 506w
Terrorism 837–8w, 924w

Utilities
Direct selling 918w

Vaccination
Anthrax 790w
Influenza 348–9w, 942w
Smallpox 523w

Vale of York
Jobcentre Plus 371–2w

Valuation Office
Standards 489w

Vandalism
322w

Vanunu, Mordechai
664w

VAT
74w, 157–8w, 253w, 528w
Churches 5–6w, 72w
Fraud 155–7w, 402–3w, 528w
Institutional care 70w, 608w
Manufacturing industries 842–3w
Motor vehicles 767w
Repairs and maintenance 250w
Repayments 156w
Tax allowances 253w
Tax burden 253w
Tax evasion 155–7w
Tax yields 253w, 255w

VAT Large Payers Unit
156w

VAT returns
Business 157w

Vaz, Mr Keith
Questions
Bank of Credit and Commerce International, Company liquidations 660w
BBC, Public appointments 636w
Cervical cancer, Leicestershire 470w
Cervical cancer, Medical treatments 471w
Cervical cancer, Screening 470–1w
Deportation 643w
Diplomatic service, Ethnic groups 1w
Diplomatic service, Public appointments 664w
Entry clearances, Appeals 835w
Immigration and Nationality Directorate, Administrative delays 781–2w
India, Overseas aid 18–21w
Joint Entry Clearance Unit, Manpower 664w
Law Society 694w
Ministers, Visits abroad 668–9w
Official residences, Lord Chancellor's Dept 693w
Singh, Amarjit 777w
Terrorism, EC countries 547w

Vehicles
Police 389–91w, 500w

Veterans' Task Force
630w

Veterinary medicine
974–5
Drugs 31w, 591–2w
EC action 592w

Veterinary services
Complaints 974w

Viggers, Mr Peter
Debates etc.
Stakeholder pensions (13.11.01) 814–6
Questions
Hampshire Ambulance Service NHS Trust, Surrey Ambulance Service NHS Trust 687w
Methicillin resistant staphylococcus aureus 553w
Personal pensions 562–3
Post offices, Finance 545w
Refrigerators, Waste disposal 449w

Viral haemorrhagic disease
151w

Vis, Dr Rudi
Debates etc.
City of London (Ward Elections) Bill, Motion to proceed in present session (15.11.01) 1052–3, 1060–1
Lifelong learning (06.11.01) 160

Vocational guidance
857w

Vocational training
424w

Voluntary organisations
319w, 548w
Rural areas 36w

Voting behaviour
15w

Voting methods
731w

Voucher schemes
Refugees 386w

Wales
Bus services 761w
Crime prevention 762–3w, 845–7
Crimes of violence 765w
EC grants and loans 341w, 762w
Flood control 842–4

Wales—continued
Foot and mouth disease 763–5w
Further education 764w
Higher education 764w
Hospitals 762w
Hunting 819w
Industrial diseases 849–50
Manufacturing industries 762–3w
New deal schemes 764w
NHS 158w
Office of Communications 61w
Public expenditure 764w
Radioactive fallout 894w
Schools 765w
Small businesses 765w
Special education 761–2w
Terrorism 847–9
Transport 841–2
Wind power 168w

Wales Office
see Office of the Secretary of State for Wales

Walley, Ms Joan
Debates etc.
British Coal Corporation, Equal pay (07.11.01) 340
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Higher education (08.11.01) 151–4wh
Questions
Birmingham Relief Road 135w
Business questions 371–2
Construction, Treasury 535–6w, 844w
Disability living allowance, Administrative delays 191w
Drinking water, Standards 216–7w
Further education, Part-time employment 425w
Further education, Pay 424w
Ground water, EC law 206w
Ground water, Pollution 149w
Health education 39w
House of Commons, Recycling 106
Methyl tertiary butyl ether 507w
Methyl tertiary butyl ether, USA 506w
Queen Elizabeth II, Anniversaries 521w
SEMA Group, Standards 937w
Social security benefits, Disabled 314w, 701w, 703w
Social security benefits, Medical examinations 315w
Students, Finance 868–9w
Tipping of waste 974
Tribunals 200w
Water, Pollution 149w

Walsall
Lymphoedema 224w

Walter, Mr Robert
Debates etc.
International Development Bill (HL), 2R (07.11.01) 282, 323–5

Walton Group
723w

War crimes
Kosovo 334w

War graves
Wrecks 435w

War pensions
521w

War Pensions Agency
Manpower 521w

Ward, Ms Claire
Debates etc.
Lifelong learning (06.11.01) 121, 133, 168, 174–7, 194, 201–2

Ward, Ms Claire—continued
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Gambling (06.11.01) 41wh, 44wh
Questions
Economic situation, Terrorism 358–9

Wareing, Mr Robert N
Questions
Human organs 358–9w

Waste disposal
Farms 446w
Foot and mouth disease 30w
Livestock 301w
Refrigerators 329w, 449w

Waste management
977–8
Standards 884w

Water
Pollution 149w

Water Industry Act 1999
Questions
36–7w

Water Resale Order 2001
Questions
36–7w

Water supply
36–7w
Ceredigion (14.11.01) 292–7wh, 894w
Chemical and biological warfare 130w

Waterloo Station
454w

Waterson, Mr Nigel
Questions
Post offices, Bank services 261w
Post offices, Closures 261w, 660w
Postal services 333–4w
Postal services, Standards 945w

Watkinson, Angela
Debates etc.
International Development Bill (HL), 2R (07.11.01) 329–30
Sex Discrimination (Election Candidates) Bill, Rep and 3R (14.11.01) 912
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Gibraltar (07.11.01) 72wh
Questions
Public private partnerships 155w
Recycling 882w

Watson, Mr Tom
Questions
Magistrates' courts, Trials 894–5w
Organs 347w
Transplant surgery, Waiting lists 347–8w

Watts, Mr Dave
Questions
Aggregates levy 661–2w
Climate change levy 256w, 768w
Emissions trading scheme 546w
Glass, Aggregates levy 660–1w
Income tax, Tax rates and bands 915w
Police, Northern Ireland 228
Welfare to work, St Helens 571w

Weapons
Northern Ireland 273–5w, 277–8w

Webb, Mr Steve
Debates etc.
Institutional care, Young people (12.11.01) 686–9, 692
Stakeholder pensions (13.11.01) 797–802
Questions
Avon Health Authority 226–7w
Beta-interferon 117w
Chemical and biological warfare, Antibiotics 25w

Webb, Mr Steve—continued
Disability income guarantee 587w
Health authorities 550w
Hospitals 117–8w
Individual pension accounts 70w, 403w
Jobcentre Plus 553, 893w
Jobcentre Plus, Interviews 4w
Jobcentre Plus, Telephone services 575–6w
Jobcentre Plus, Training 575w
Jobcentre Plus, Working conditions 577–8w
Occupational pensions 374–5w
Pension funds 70w
Pensions 580w
Personal pensions 574w
Social security benefits, Abuse 308–9w
Social Security (Jobcentre Plus Interviews) Regulations 2001 375w
South West Trains, Franchises 629w
Sports competitors, Learning disability 492–3w
Stakeholder pensions, Publicity 192w
Winter fuel payments 574–5w

Weir, Mr Michael
Debates etc.
Afghanistan, Armed conflict (14.11.01) 878
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 737
World Trade Organisation (15.11.01) 1004
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Gambling (06.11.01) 34–5wh
Questions
Buildings, Dept of Health 205w
Fair trade initiative, Dept for Culture Media and Sport 952w
Fair trade initiative, Dept for International Development 931w
Fair trade initiative, Dept for Transport Local Government and the Regions 914w
Fair trade initiative, Foreign and Commonwealth Office 927w
Fair trade initiative, Home Office 970w
Fair trade initiative, Lord Chancellor's Dept 939w
Fair trade initiative, Office of the Secretary of State for Wales 939–40w
Fair trade initiative, President of the Council 897w
Fair trade initiative, Solicitor-General 897w
Fireworks 643–4w, 754w
Fireworks, Accidents 661w
Fireworks, Retail trade 443w
Monetary compensatory amounts 146w
Nuclear reactors, Scotland 173w
Select committees, Dept for Environment Food and Rural Affairs 302w

Welfare foods
367w

Welfare tax credits
Pensioners 573w

Welfare to work
Prisons 781w
St Helens 571w

Welsh Grand Committee
(14.11.01) 882

West coast railway line
139–40w, 502w
Bridges 831–2w

West Freugh
Air traffic 436w

West Midlands
Regional planning and development 618–9w
Transport 510w

West Yorkshire
National Lottery 748w
Pensioners 703w

Western European Union
UK delegations 286–7w

Westminster City Council
12w
Inquiries 904–5w

White, Brian
Questions
Internet, Disclosure of information 969–70w
Northern Ireland Executive, Finance 278w

Whitehead, Dr Alan, Parliamentary Secretary, Dept for Transport and the Regions*
Debates etc.
Railways, Franchises (16.11.01) 1129–34
Sex Discrimination (Election Candidates) Bill, Rep and 3R (14.11.01) 917–8
Questions
Building Act 1984 292w
Building inspectors 338w
Building inspectors, Complaints 292w
Chemicals, Health hazards 505w
Consultation papers, Dept for Transport Local Government and the Regions 610–1w
Council tax benefit subsidy limitation scheme 140w
County Hall 12w
Departmental responsibilities, Dept for Transport Local Government and the Regions 904w
Devolution, Dept for Transport Local Government and the Regions 829w
Education, Finance 140w
Fair trade initiative, Dept for Transport Local Government and the Regions 914w
Fire services 617w
Fire services, Finance 829w
Fire services, Manpower 832–3w
Fire services, Merseyside 736w
Fire services, Recruitment 511w
Fires, Death 290w, 617w
Flood control, East Riding 290w
Formby Fire Station 731–2w
Health and Safety Laboratory 510w
Industrial health and safety, EC action 337w, 610w, 913–4w
Industrial health and safety, Hotels 511w
Local authorities, Debts 463–6w
Local authorities, Insurance 737w
Local authorities, Translation services 507w
Local government, Committees 293w
Local government, Ethics 457–8w
Local government, Pension funds 917w
Local government, Pensions 725w
Local government finance, New Earnings Survey 504–5w
National House Building Council, Standards 292w
Non-domestic rates 617–8w
Non-domestic rates, Hertfordshire 512–3w
Public private partnerships, Dept for Transport Local Government and the Regions 725–6w
Publicity, Dept for Transport Local Government and the Regions 453w
Regional assemblies, Finance 138–9w
Standards, Dept for Transport Local Government and the Regions 733w
Swimming pools 829–30w
UK online for business, Greater London 871w
Westminster City Council 12w

Whitehead, Dr Alan—continued*
Westminster City Council, Inquiries 904–5w
Written questions, Dept for Transport Local Government and the Regions 913w

Whittingdale, Mr John
Debates etc.
Export Control Bill, Rep and 3R (08.11.01) 457–61
Roads, Safety (14.11.01) 949–50, 953
World Trade Organisation (07.11.01) 258–9, (15.11.01) 998–9
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Post offices, Closures (07.11.01) 107–10wh
Questions
Air traffic control, Nuclear power stations 469w
Coastal areas, Essex 979–80w
Financial services, EC action 488–9w
Higher education 51–2w
Insolvency 263w
Nuclear power stations, Security 436w, 545w
Redundancy 661w

Whittington Hospital
Repairs and maintenance 671w

Wicks, Malcolm, Parliamentary Secretary, Dept for Work and Pensions*
Questions
Child benefit 938w
Child Support Agency, Audit 565–6w
Child Support Agency, Debts 3–4w, 566w
Child Support Agency, Finance 566–7w
Child Support Agency, Manpower 310–1w
Children, Maintenance 551–2, 565w, 891–3w
Children, Poverty 579w
Cold weather payments 437w
Employment rehabilitation, Insurance 567w
Energy, Dept for Work and Pensions 313–4w
Housing benefit 787–8w, 935–6w
Housing benefit, Abuse 565–6
Housing benefit, Appeals 787w
Housing benefit, Databases 788w
Housing benefit, Maladministration 788w
Housing benefit, Scotland 704w
Housing benefit, Young people 893–4w
Incapacity benefit 192w, 586w
Income support 893w
Income support, Lone parents 193–4w
Industrial injuries disablement benefit 195w
Internet, Dept for Work and Pensions 190w
Jobcentre Plus 893w
Jobseeker's allowance 190w, 310w
Maternity payments, Sure start programme 573w
National insurance 309–10w, 699–700w
New deal for lone parents 566–7
New deal for young people 567w
Older workers 571w
ONE programme 786w
Performance Assessment Framework 785–6w
SEMA Group, Standards 937w
Social security benefits 195–6w
Social security benefits, Abuse 189–90w, 308–9w, 700w, 783–4w, 937–8w
Social security benefits, Applications 579w
Social security benefits, Bureaucracy 786w
Social security benefits, Disabled 314w
Social security benefits, Expenditure 938w
Social security benefits, Immigrants 188–9w

Wicks, Malcolm—continued*
Social security benefits, Local authorities 784w
Social security benefits, Medical examinations 315w
Social security benefits, Northamptonshire 190–1w
Social security benefits, Overpayments 935w
Social security benefits, Widowed people 784w
Training, Contracts 572–3w
Unemployment, Peterborough 571–2w
Welfare to work, St Helens 571w
Working mothers 555–6

Widdrington
Health centres 369w

Widowed people
Social security benefits 784w

Wiggin, Mr Bill
Debates etc.
Animal Health Bill, 2R (12.11.01) 619, 638, 653–9
Special education (05.11.01) 52, 58–9
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Small businesses (06.11.01) 3wh, 7wh, 14wh
Questions
Foot and mouth disease 445w
Foot and mouth disease, Leominster 588w
Grain, Import controls 151w
NHS, Wales 158w
Schools, Finance 861w
Sheep, Exports 300w
Transport, Wales 841
Viral haemorrhagic disease 151w

Wilkinson, Mr John
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Aviation (14.11.01) 256wh, 259–60wh
Questions
Business questions 376–7
Gurkhas 26w
Nature conservation 891w
Pension Service 559–60

Willetts, Mr David
Debates etc.
Stakeholder pensions (13.11.01) 780–5, 793, 801
Questions
Child Support Agency, Manpower 310–1w
Disabled, Dept for Work and Pensions 585w
Housing benefit 935–6w
Pension credit 561–2
Personal pensions 563–4
Social security benefits, Abuse 189–90w
Social security benefits, Northamptonshire 190–1w
Stakeholder pensions 938w
Winter fuel payments 575–6w, 936w
Working families tax credit 842w

Williams, Rt Hon Alan
Questions
European Court of Auditors 15–6

Williams, Mrs Betty
Debates etc.
Travel Concessions (Eligibility) Bill (HL), 2R (05.11.01) 37, 41–2
Questions
Bus services, Wales 761w
Railways, Standards 857–8

Williams, Hywel
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Post offices, Closures (07.11.01) 97–8wh

Williams, Hywel—continued*
Questions
Foot and mouth disease, Public inquiries 299w, 445w
Jobcentre Plus 372–3w
Livestock, Transport 763w, 820w, 980w
Terrorism, Training 562–3w
Terrorism, USA 837–8w
Terrorism, Wales 848–9

Williams, Mr Roger
Questions
Foot and mouth disease, Hunting 819–20w
Foot and mouth disease, Powys 300w, 346w
Foot and mouth disease, Wales 764–5w
Livestock identification scheme 890w
Terrorism, Wales 848

Willis, Mr Phil
Debates etc.
Lifelong learning (06.11.01) 117, 129–40, 151–2, 160–1, 188
Special education (05.11.01) 44, 46, 54–8
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Higher education (08.11.01) 138wh, 142wh, 144–5wh
Questions
Church schools, Equal opportunities 169–70w
Educational maintenance allowance 929–30w
Higher education, Pay 411w
Higher education, Teachers 411–2w
Individual learning accounts 125w, 928w
Local education authorities, Assets 867w
Religion, Discrimination 80w
Schools, Reprography 421–2w
Teachers, Ethnic groups 53w, 799–800w
Teachers, Pay 245w
Teachers, Recruitment 246w
Teachers, Vacancies 800w

Wills, Mr Michael, Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Dept*
Questions
Assets, Lord Chancellor's Dept 487w
Community Legal Service, Employment tribunals 201w
Community service orders, Enforcement 488w
Courts, Interpreters 789w
Criminal injuries compensation 894w
Crown courts, Hereford 397w
Fair trade initiative, Lord Chancellor's Dept 939w
Freedom of Information Act 2000 693w, 895w
Judges, Manpower 202w, 328w
Judicial review 397w
Judiciary, Public appointments 199w
Juries, Eligibility 939w
Juries, Protection 201–2w
Land, Registration 326–7w
Law Society 694w
Legal aid 788–9w
Magistrates 199–200w
Magistrates, Leeds 102–3
Magistrates, Recruitment 199w
Magistrates, Working hours 395w
Magistrates' courts, Ceredigion 201w
Magistrates' courts, Colchester 200w
Magistrates' courts, Computers 564w
Magistrates' courts, Trials 78w, 894–5w
Public private partnerships, Lord Chancellor's Dept 789–90w

Wilshire, Mr David
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Aviation (14.11.01) 249–59wh
Questions
Heathrow Airport 620w

Wilshire, Mr David—continued*
Heathrow Airport, Planning permission 619w
Heathrow Airport, Terrorism 620w
Teachers, Foreign workers 800w
Teachers, Surrey 800–1w

Wilson, Mr Brian, Minister of State for Industry and Energy, Dept of Trade and Industry*
Questions
Aerospace industry 654w
Alternative energy 648–50w, 658w
Caravan sites, Electricity 648w
China 651–2w
Coal 162–3w, 652w
Coal, Government assistance 160–1w, 163w, 754w
Coal, Imports 163w
Coal operating aid scheme 652–3w
Combined heat and power 657w, 756w
Electric cables 166w
Electricity generation 659–60w
Electricity generation, Markets 161–2w, 658–9w, 755–6w
Energy, Consumption 264w
Environment protection 159–60w
European Commission, Plutonium 167–8w
Fossil fuels, Pipelines 169w
Glass, Aggregates levy 660–1w
Industrial diseases, Compensation 164–6w
Industry, Government assistance 757–8w
Iron and steel 845–6w
Manufacturing industries 161w, 754–5w
Motor vehicles, EC law 159w, 648w, 758–9w
Natural gas, Prices 168–9w, 655w
Natural gas, Storage 166–7w
Nuclear power 656–7w, 846w
Nuclear power, Climate change levy 657w
Nuclear power, Finland 163–4w
Nuclear power, Government assistance 756–7w
Nuclear power stations, Security 160w, 846w, 921w
Oil, Central Asia 169w
Oil, Sudan 169w
Oil rigs, Terrorism 187w
OPEC, Reserves 167w
Ozone layer, EC law 158w
Petrol, Scotland 647w
Sellafield, Plutonium 847w
Sellafield, Security 160w, 847w
Solar power 759–60w
Tyres 167w
Utilities, Direct selling 918w
Wind power, Offshore industry 168w
Wind power, Wales 168w

Wiltshire
Homelessness 731w

Wind power
Offshore industry 168w
Wales 168w

Wines
Foreign and Commonwealth Office 746–7w

Winnick, David
Debates etc.
Afghanistan, Armed conflict (14.11.01) 868
Sex Discrimination (Election Candidates) Bill, Rep and 3R (14.11.01) 898–9, 904
Travel Concessions (Eligibility) Bill (HL), 2R (05.11.01) 30
Questions
Afghanistan, Overseas aid 931–2w
Business questions 373–4
Railtrack 29

Winnick, David—continued*
Terrorism, Northern Ireland 227

Winter fuel payments
438w, 574–6w, 936w

Winterton, Mrs Ann
Debates etc.
Animal Health Bill, 2R (12.11.01) 621, 637–8, 662–5
Questions
Agriculture, Imports 599–601w
Beef, Imports 820–1w
Bovine spongiform encephalopathy, Research 448–9w
Common agricultural policy 981–2w
Common agricultural policy, EC enlargement 447w
Countryside stewardship scheme 448w
Crops, Land use 981w
Exeter, Dept for Environment Food and Rural Affairs 696–7w
Farm woodland premium scheme 306w
Farms, Tenants 601w
Fisheries, Subsidies 448w
Foot and mouth disease 971
Foot and mouth disease, Disease control 588w
Foot and mouth disease, Hunting 695–6w
Foot and mouth disease, Import controls 889w
Livestock, Markets 591w
Potatoes 980–1w
Rural Payments Agency, Manpower 448w
Scrapie 598–9w
Sheep meat 150w
Sheep meat, Exports 821w
Sheep meat, Marketing 695w
State Veterinary Service, Manpower 821w
Veterinary medicine, Drugs 591–2w

Winterton, Mr Nicholas
Debates etc.
Animal Health Bill, 2R (12.11.01) 642–3, 648, 652
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 721
Questions
Business questions 984
Parliamentary year 105–6
Public expenditure, Scotland 172–3w
Public expenditure, Wales 764w
Weapons, Northern Ireland 274–5w
Zyban 217–8w

Winterton, Ms Rosie, Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Dept*
Questions
Bailiffs 77w
Census 327–8w
Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service 99–102
Community Legal Service, Disadvantaged 201w
Domestic violence 103
Immigration, Appeals 181–2w
Judiciary, Public appointments 395–7w
Liability 564–5w
McCarthy, Georgina 77w
MacSwiney, Terence 694w
MV Marchioness, Coroners 200w
NHS, Negligence 77–8w
Official residences, Lord Chancellor's Dept 693w

Winterton, Ms Rosie—continued
Publicity, Lord Chancellor's Dept 487w
Registration of births deaths and marriages, Islam 327w
Transsexuals Interdepartmental Working Group 78–9w
Tribunals 200w

Wishart, Pete
Debates etc.
Drugs, Misuse (09.11.01) 496, 521, 525–7
Questions
Afghanistan, Armed conflict 27–8w
Al Qaeda 835w
Army Foundation College 25w
Business questions 376
Customs officers, Rosyth 843w
Defence Diversification Agency, Scotland 518–9w
Ferries, Rosyth 513w, 905w
Military bases, Glencorse 27w
Public expenditure, Cabinet Office 307w
Publications, Dept for International Development 933w
Scottish Parliament, Members 91–2
"Trade Matters", Costs 934–5w

Women
see Females

Woodward, Mr Shaun
Questions
North West Development Agency, Finance 923w
Refugees 875–6w
Refugees, Young people 875w
Regional assistance, St Helens 847w
Regional development agencies, Finance 923–4w

Woolas, Mr Phil, An Assistant Whip
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Railtrack, Finance (13.11.01) 205wh

Woolwich Ferry
Subsidies 143w

Worcestershire
Education 52w, 140w
Farmers 306–7w
Flood control 593–4w
Hunting 819w
Infant mortality 206–7w
Sixth form education 809–10w

Worcestershire Acute Hospitals NHS Trust
Resignations 209–10w

Work and Parents' Task Force
167w

Working Age Agency
see Jobcentre Plus

Working conditions
Jobcentre Plus 576–8w
Social Security Benefits Agency 578–9w

Working families tax credit
362–3, 842w
Abuse 253–4w
Expenditure 438–9w

Working hours
154w, 773–4w
Civil servants 961w

Working hours—continued
London Underground 620w
Lorry drivers 133w, 287–8w, 505w
Magistrates 395w

Working mothers
555–6

Working Time Regulations 1998
Questions
679–80w

Workstep
370w

World Health Organisation
Transport 281–2w

World Summit on Sustainable Development
602–3w

World Trade Organisation
848–9w
China 840w
Ministerial statements (07.11.01) 256–68, (15.11.01) 996–1008

Worthing
General practitioners 688–9w

Worthington, Tony
Debates etc.
Export Control Bill, Rep and 3R (08.11.01) 392–3, 398–9, 415

Wrecks
War graves 435w

Wrexham
Incinerators 763w

Wright, Mr Anthony D
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Gambling (06.11.01) 28–9wh, 37wh
Questions
New deal schemes 565

Wright, David
Debates etc.
Football (Disorder) (Amendment) Bill, Rep and 3R (14.11.01) 940–2
Questions
Bull bars 137w
Central Trains, Standards 507–8w
English Partnerships, Land 726w

Wright, Tony
Debates etc.
House of Lords, Reform (07.11.01) 254–5
Questions
Freedom of Information Act 2000 693w

Written questions
Administrative delays 94w, 305w, 459w, 871–2w
Cabinet Office 959–60w
Dept for Culture Media and Sport 952w
Dept for Education and Skills 930w

Written questions—continued
Dept for Environment Food and Rural Affairs 972–3w
Dept for International Development 932–3w
Dept for Transport Local Government and the Regions 913w
Dept for Work and Pensions 935w
Dept of Health 950w
Dept of Trade and Industry 918–9w
Foreign and Commonwealth Office 926–7w
Home Office 962–3w
Ministry of Defence 958w
Northern Ireland Office 938–9w
Office of the Secretary of State for Wales 940w
President of the Council 898w
Prime Minister 898w
Scotland Office 931w
Solicitor-General 897w
Treasury 915–6w

Wyatt, Derek
Questions
Apples 150w
BBC, Television channels 271w
Foot and mouth disease 970
Fruit, Subsidies 304–5w
General practitioners, Sittingbourne 671w
New Opportunities Fund, Sports 501w
Southern Water, Complaints 449w
Sports, Community development 4–5
USA, Diplomatic service 486–7w

Yarls Wood Detention Centre
185–6w

Yeo, Mr Tim
Questions
Athletics, Picketts Lock 170w
Foot and mouth disease, Disease control 145–6w
Genetically modified organisms, Crops 821w
Millennium Exhibition 343w
Millennium Exhibition, Property transfer 905–6w
Millennium Stadium, Cardiff 9
Regional planning and development, Greenwich 906–7w

Young, Sir George
Debates etc.
City of London (Ward Elections) Bill, Motion to proceed in present session (15.11.01) 1031–4
House of Lords, Reform (07.11.01) 250
Questions
Business questions 991

Young offenders
Education 94–5w
Youth offender referral orders 557w

Young people
Alcoholic drinks 965–6w
Housing benefit 893–4w
Institutional care 470w, 472w, 548w, (12.11.01) 686–94
Mental health services 686w
Refugees 875w

Younger-Ross, Richard
Sittings in Westminster Hall
Employment, Devon (06.11.01) 46–8wh, 50wh, 52wh
Questions
Horses, Ragwort 601–2w
Planning permission 726–8w
Planning permission, Administrative delays 726w
Planning permission, Appeals 727–9w

"Your Britain Your Europe"
925w

Youth courts
Sentencing 96w

Youth Hostels Association
30w
Finance 634w

Youth offender panels
556–7w

Youth offender referral orders
Young offenders 557w

Yugoslavia
Sanctions 664w

Zimbabwe
(07.11.01) 121–7wh
Armed forces 668w
Elections 838–9w
Land 743w

Zimbabwe—continued*
Sanctions 743w

Zoo Licensing Act 1981
Questions
818w

Zoos
818w

Zyban
217–8w, 359–60w